The old time.—The United States, Dep. Marshall, called here last week, with a summons for some eight or ten persons; charged with being indebted to some body in New York. Besides being outlawed by the Statute of limitation, these men have been robbed by Missouri and Illinois, of fifty times the amount claimed; the United States sanctioning the felony and treason, and who has offered to pay the damage?

We understand that the concern has once been settled.

Writs to coop men up in Carthage jail, and then shoot them, whether they came from Uncle Sam, or his disgraced son, Illinois; and whether for debt or crime; should be looked upon by the people of Nauvoo, as a stratagem similar to Virgil's wooden horse, at the siege of Troy.

WELL-DONE.

"D. Parker, Baptist Missionary to China, has been nominated by Mr. Polk to be our Secretary of Legation there."

Several thousand Mormons did help elect Mr. Polk, and as he has begun to unite Church and State, by giving a Baptist Minister an office of profit and honor, if he will appoint a Latter Day Elder, as Minister plenipotentiary, Secretary of Legation, charge d'affaires, or even a Consul to Russia, Prussia or some of the South America Republics, he will show his even handed justice, and merit the thanks of the best men of the earth. What fatens a Missionary, might feast a Mormon.

The repeal of that charter, as the negro said by the cotton speculation, raises a kind of mobbing loafers. There is a kind of good natured unity among some folks, that out caps the wit of habes corpus, or even the display of the old Nauvoo Legion; it might be termed a precept of Habes Rustus; but as Shakespeare says "all the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players,"

We must content ourselves to play—

(We are just so players;)

And whistle and whittle;

And let the rest be done up

By old Aunt Peggy;—

She works to a little.

Masonic.—The greatest satisfaction among brethren, is to have a junior deacon hand a man over to the junior warden in the south for refreshment.

Fleshly (not Spiritual) wife doctrine broke out the natural way in Cincinnati.—The Cincinnati Enquirer says, that a respectable citizen of Cincinnati, the head of a family, is undergoing a trial in one of the churches of the city, on charge of having ruined a young woman, like himself a member of the church, and sent her off into the country to hide his and her shame. The enquirer adds that several similar cases have occurred there, within the limits of other churches.

This is anti-Mormonism with a whew to it.

Robbery.—Three fellows, pretending to be Mormons, robbed a man near Pekin, Ill., a few days ago, of about six hundred dollars in money, with which they succeeded in making their escape.

Anti-Mormonism is spreading according to the wants of villany. Lie on Mormon credit; cheat on Mormon credit; steal on Mormon credit; commit adultery on Mormon credit; and rob on Mormon credit.—'Tis worse than Sambo's song:

"We'll put the old sheep's head in the pot,

"The horns and wool together;

"And we'll make broth of that,

"Till I see some warmer weather.

"We'll have no more cause than one,

"We'll all lie together, &c.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Editor,

What propriety is there in our answering to writs that are sent in here to trouble us with vexatious law suits, when our enemies have killed our principal men, and have used writs for the purpose of getting them into their hands, under the assurance of protection. The fact that writs were only used to get Joseph & Hyrum Smith into their hands to kill them, must be plain and evident from the fact that their murderers yet run at large, and the government is slow to adopt any measure to retrieve its forfeited honor. These men have been murdered in cold blood while in the custody of the law within the walls of a prison, and as our enemies have become no better men than they then were, we are forced to the conclusion that they wish to serve us as they have served our brethren.

Should the government step forward and hang about a score of the murderers of the Smiths, and thus manifest a disposition to preserve good order and the rights of the Saints, we might the more readily conclude that writs did not mean treachery, murder and assassination, as they have heretofore meant.

The fact is from the history of past transactions, we have no confidence in the integrity or good faith of officers of the law, and until they will avenge the blood of those who have been murdered under their administration and sacred promise of protection we do not think it becomes them to trouble us further, or to aid or assist any that would trouble us.

We will tell the murderous deeds of Carthage—to our children's children—to the world at large—to the Saints of God both in heaven and on earth; and in the high court above, we will be witnesses of the foul deed and tell it there; and we entertain no fears of being told by the great Executive of heaven: "Gentlemen, your cause is just, but we have no power."

We would say to Americans, that as a law abiding people we do not mean to resist any law, but until every drop of blood shed at Carthage under the plegt of faith of the State, is atoned for; and every person engaged in that murderous plot, has been hung till he is dead; and every man that has threatened any of the citizens of Hancock County with expulsion or extermination, is put under bonds with good security to keep the peace,—no Mormon ought to allow a writ of any kind to be served upon him. If any man is dissatisfied with this advice, let him wait till mob murderers are dealt with according to law, and executed. No writ comes to Nauvoo without the smell of murder about it. We are not fools; we had much rather die at home than be martyred abroad. Our lives are our property, and we are bound to defend them, and we will in the name of Israel's God!

Mr. Editor.—Mr. Sharp of the "Warsaw Signal" has been inspired with new fears about the Mormons of late. Those poor deluded fanatics are building a fortification around their Temple. A monstrous wall. Poor man! Am you not cleared? Why good Lord! didn't you know that the Mormons have engaged all the lead that will be manufactured in the mining country for five years to come, and have chartered several powder mills in various parts of the country, all of which are in successful operation, manufacturing powder for the invasion of Warsaw and the Carthaginian empire? And did you not know also, that they have engaged a cannon to be cast in St. Louis, so large that it will require all the powder and lead that can be manufactured for five years to come to charge it once; and that this cannon is to be headed up in a hoghead of sugar and sent up to the "Holy City?"

If all the citizens of our country were of the stamp of the above notorious character, we should no doubt think proper to protect our Temple from their sacrilegious grasp, by a strong fortress; but no wonder that the imagination of a man who stands indicted for the crime of murder, should transform the stone foundation of a fence to receive an iron railing upon the top, into a fort or garrison. In fact had I taken the part in the Carthage murder that Sharp did, I presume my guilty heart would never let me think of any thing, dream of any thing, or write of any thing but forts, soldiers, concealed weapons, cannons, small arms, blood, ghosts, murder, treason and extermination. All these things, no doubt, are seen by Mr. Sharp in his night visions, and they contribute probably much to his happiness.

But to be candid; there is a certain attraction in a putrid carcass, that only operates upon dogs and filthy birds to draw them around it. So Mr. Sharp seems to possess a certain power of attraction that draws into his atmosphere persons who can manufacture lies, and slander to order, and after he has eaten them he sends them out again, and the Quincy Whig swallows them forthwith without indigestion. Rather a cold check for the poor Whig.

Mr. Editor,

I am quite persuaded that the kingdom of God has come, and that the same order of things exists on earth that exists in heaven. It would seem that the devil is situated in the eternal world, somewhere near the same distance from God, that Warsaw is from Nauvoo, and is called the accuser of the brethren, who accuses them day and night before God. So his satanic majesty is the standing accuser of the saints in that country, and wishing to establish himself on earth, by some agent or viceroy; he has, by and with

AMERICUS.

Mr. Editor,

The Harrisburgh correspondent of the United States Gazette, writing under date of the 19th ult says—

An atrocious murder is said to have been committed in Hagerstown, in Cumberland Co., yesterday. Two young men, brothers, by the name of White, formerly of this place, went to a Public House, (name not ascertained,) and desired the privilege of playing at cards, and being refused, one of them held the landlord, whilst the other deliberately cut his throat! Another young man of the party was looking on. All three were arrested.

P. S. It has just been stated that the gentleman injured is Mr. Trimble, and that though dangerously injured, he is not quite dead.

the consent of his prime ministers, appointed Thos. C. Sharp, as Charge d'affaires, to the Latter Day Saints, who accuses them day and night, before the God of this world.

If there was not some standing accuser of the church here, I could never believe that the kingdom of God had come, or that his will was done on earth, as it is done in heaven. But when I see a man standing in the same relation to this church, that the devil does to God, which is clearly seen in the course of Sharp, I am constrained to say that all things are going on after the true pattern of heavenly things. The devil cannot say one good thing of God, or of any who are with him; neither can Sharp say one good thing of the Latter Day Saints; but if the devil were to speak in favorable terms of God, I should not regard it as a very flattering compliment, and if Sharp were to speak favorably of us, I should be afraid that the world would think we were friendly with murderers.

AMERICUS.

Mr. Editor,

Carthage and Warsaw talk of the Mormons resisting the law, but we have never set the example of resistance that the Carthaginians have. They took a man from the office several times by force of arms, who was guilty of crime, and at length got their cannon, and charged it with nails, as it was said, to protect the criminal. They fired several guns at the officer and at those who were with him. The Mormons have never done that.

Are the Carthaginians honorable and good men? If they are, shall we follow their example? Shall we go and steal the State cannon and clandestinely remove it, to terrify and raise if possible, an excitement?

Whose designs look the most reasonable, those who are constantly threatening murder, house burning, expulsion and extermination; or those who adopt some measures for protection, that are only designed to extend far enough to embrace those who are threatened, and stand in danger?

Many thefts are charged upon the Mormons, well, perhaps some may be guilty. If they are, none would more heartily rejoice than I to have them brought to justice, and punished according to their crime. But we do not even want a Mormon criminal hauled away to be lynched by a set of murderers and their abettors; but we are willing, and will do all in our power to bring to just and proper punishment all who have sinned against the laws. But we are not willing to be made accountable for the loss of a certain gentleman's hogs, who went all about and reported that the Mormons had stolen his hogs. Then a "hurrah" was raised in the breeze at once! "Extermination! Murder! Expulsion! Hurrah boys! turn out!" Upon a little further examination, and after a little time, he found his hogs snugly shut up and fattening in the pen of a brother Anti. We have reason to believe that many such stratagems are resorted to, "to raise the wind." Malice, jealousy, and envy will find their own reward in due time.

AMERICUS.

Mr. Editor.—Sidney Rigdon's object now seems to be, to establish himself and his followers as the true church of Jesus Christ of Latter day Saints in the eyes of the law, that he may have claim on the Kirtland temple, church &c. We always knew he went in more for the fleece than for the flock. But should he succeed in establishing his claim by law, he of course will be legally responsible for all the old debts. So let the Saints hold fast upon their old claims, and perhaps Sidney may pay them! but I guess not till after he has taken, "a little Vic by the nose and led her out of her palace and taken possession of her treasure," and should he get the Temple into his hands, and afterwards find the title to be good for nothing, or that somebody could rip it all up from the very foundation, he would have his labor for his pains. Sidney has been legally expelled from the church by the very law which he helped to make, and which he has voluntarily given his name to sanction, and should he not have his object in securing the property, not one true hearted Latter day Saint could follow him. John C. Bennett's revelation to him as "Imperial prince and viceroy" to the contrary notwithstanding. Eh!

AMERICUS.

Mr. Editor,

I am quite persuaded that the kingdom of God has come, and that the same order of things exists on earth that exists in heaven. It would seem that the devil is situated in the eternal world, somewhere near the same distance from God, that Warsaw is from Nauvoo, and is called the accuser of the brethren, who accuses them day and night before God. So his satanic majesty is the standing accuser of the saints in that country, and wishing to establish himself on earth, by some agent or viceroy; he has, by and with

STRAW MANUFACTORY.

Mr. Editor,

The Ladies of Nauvoo have entered into an Association, the more effectually to carry into operation the manufacturing of Straw Bonnets and Hats: and to promote the objects of industry, and economy.

They have chosen a President, and six Directors, to manage the affairs of said Straw Association. All persons wishing to take a part in the employment, are requested to give their names to the President, or her Secretary.

The business has commenced with flattering prospects, and though the quantity of straw on hand is small, compared to the present wants of those who are desirous to learn the art; yet we feel that a few days of warm weather will bring us to an abundance, that will be harvested in due season; that all who wish may take a part in this delightful occupation. The association agree to wear home manufacture, and to supply the place of ribbons by decorating their bonnets with straw trimmings, which may be had of Sister Heywood and others.

The following persons may be looked too for council, and instruction, according to the present arrangement.

Nancy H. Rockwood, President.
Sarah Ann Higbee, Councilor.
Judith T. Haven,
Matilda C. Holman,
Abigail Gray,
Wealthy Richards,
Sally Pollitt.
April, 12th 1845.

We omit several communications for want of room this week.

NOTICE TO THE CHURCHES ABOARD.

This may certify that Elder George J. Adams and Elder Samuel Brannan are dis-fellowshipped and cut off from the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Their conduct has been such as to disgrace them in the eyes of justice and virtue, and we cannot and will not sanction men who are guilty of such things, as we have every reason to believe that they have been from the most indubitable testimony, we have for some time been unwilling to believe the foul statements made concerning them; but the nature of the testimony now adduced, compels us to believe that the statements are but too true, and that under the same practicing the most disgraceful and diabolical conduct.

We think it just to the saints at large to make this statement. And Elder Brannan will no longer be supported as an editor by us, nor any land agency of his be sustained or acknowledged by us. And let this be a warning to other elders; if there are any guilty of like conduct.

Done by order of the council.

BRIGHTON YOUNG, Pres.

WILLARD RICHARDS, Clerk.

April 10, 1845.

NOTICE.

BY the counsel of the Twelve, Mrs. Hyrum Smith and Mrs. Thompson request all those sisters who have received papers to collect the penny subscription, to forward them as soon as possible that they may be able to ascertain whether all those employed as collectors have been faithful: as it appears that there is suspicion resting upon a certain individual of having kept the money which she had collected. They would say for the satisfaction of the sisters that about one thousand dollars have been received, and most of the sisters with whom they have conversed, seem inclined to continue paying their cent a week until the temple is finished; and money being wanted to purchase other things besides glass and nails, they invite all those who are able and feel so disposed to pay up for the present year; and as there are some poor sisters who are extremely anxious to throw in their mite who cannot possibly raise money, they would say that any kind of useful articles will be received from such.

MARY SMITH.

MERCY R. THOMPSON.

April 1845—bp

NOTICE.

THE Saints are hereby cautioned not to purchase any certificate of stock, in the Nauvoo House Association, numbered from one hundred and seventy-six, to three hundred and sixty-six, inclusive, and dated February 10th, 1841, as they were stolen with the trunk of Lyman Wight, in the summer of the year 1843, and have not yet been recovered.

GEORGE MILLER.

April 15, 1845—50-37-5th

Prs. N. H. A.

LOOK AND READ.

GREAT BARGAINS.

THERE will be offered at public auction, a quantity of lots belonging to the "Nauvoo Water Power Company," situated immediately on the bank of the Mississippi river, along the whole length of Mr. D. Hibbard's farm. The conditions of sale are as follows: said lots will be estimated at $50 per quarter of an acre, to be sold to the highest bidder over and above the estimated value; half of the purchase money to be paid cash in hand on the day of sale, the remainder in two years with interest, and a deduction of six per cent, made on the whole amount of the purchase money, to those who pay all down on the day of sale.

Sale to commence on Saturday next the 10th inst. at 9 o'clock A. M., and continue until we have raised the amount of $190 of cash in hand, after which we shall raise the value of the remaining lots, to just double the amount as above stated.

N. B. The sale will be held on the above stated lots.

JOHN E. PAGE, President.

April 15, 1845.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.

THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style.

Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN.

No 52 Main street, St. Louis.

April 8th, 50-3th

NOTICE.

THE Trustees in Trust for the church hereby notify the Saints who emigrate to Nauvoo, that they have numbered City lots in the city of Nauvoo, which they propose to sell for cash and good property. The following is a list of the lots offered. Further particulars will be given at the office of the Trustees in P. P. A.'s store, one block north of the Temple.

Lot 1		Lot 2		Lot 3
Block	91	Block	92	Block	93
1	101	1	102	1	103
2	104	2	105	2	106
3	107	3	108	3	109
4	110	4	111	4	112
5	113	5	114	5	115
6	116	6	117	6	118
7	119	7	120	7	121
8	122	8	123	8	124
9	125	9	126	9	127
10	128	10	129	10	130

Lot 1 Block 91 Lot 2 Block 92 Lot 3 Block 93

Lot 4 Block 94 Lot 5 Block 95 Lot 6 Block 96

Lot 7 Block 97 Lot 8 Block 98 Lot 9 Block 99

Lot 10 Block 100 Lot 11 Block 101 Lot 12 Block 102

Lot 13 Block 103 Lot 14 Block 104 Lot 15 Block 105

Lot 16 Block 106 Lot 17 Block 107 Lot 18 Block 108

Lot 19 Block 109 Lot 20 Block 110 Lot 21 Block 111

Lot 22 Block 112 Lot 23 Block 113 Lot 24 Block 114

Lot 25 Block 115 Lot 26 Block 116 Lot 27 Block 117

Lot 28 Block 118 Lot 29 Block 119 Lot 30 Block 120

Lot 31 Block 121 Lot 32 Block 122 Lot 33 Block 123

Lot 34 Block 124 Lot 35 Block 125 Lot 36 Block 126

Lot 37 Block 127 Lot 38 Block 128 Lot 39 Block 129

Lot 40 Block 130 Lot 41 Block 131 Lot 42 Block 132

Lot 43 Block 133 Lot 44 Block 134 Lot 45 Block 135

Lot 46 Block 136 Lot 47 Block 137 Lot 48 Block 138

Lot 49 Block 139 Lot 50 Block 140 Lot 51 Block 141

Lot 52 Block 142 Lot 53 Block 143 Lot 54 Block 144

Lot 55 Block 145 Lot 56 Block 146 Lot 57 Block 147

Lot 58 Block 148 Lot 59 Block 149 Lot 60 Block 150

Lot 61 Block 151 Lot 62 Block 152 Lot 63 Block 153

Lot 64 Block 154 Lot 65 Block 155 Lot 66 Block 156

Lot 67 Block 157 Lot 68 Block 158 Lot 69 Block 159

Lot 70 Block 160 Lot 71 Block 161 Lot 72 Block 162

Lot 73 Block 163 Lot 74 Block 164 Lot 75 Block 165

Lot 76 Block 166 Lot 77 Block 167 Lot 78 Block 168

Lot 79 Block 169 Lot 80 Block 170 Lot 81 Block 171

Lot 82 Block 172 Lot 83 Block 173 Lot 84 Block 174

Lot 85 Block 175 Lot 86 Block 176 Lot 87 Block 177

Lot 88 Block 178 Lot 89 Block 179 Lot 90 Block 180

Lot 91 Block 181 Lot 92 Block 182 Lot 93 Block 183

Lot 94 Block 184 Lot 95 Block 185 Lot 96 Block 186

Lot 97 Block 187 Lot 98 Block 188 Lot 99 Block 189

Lot 100 Block 190 Lot 101 Block 191 Lot 102 Block 192

Lot 103 Block 193 Lot 104 Block 194 Lot 105 Block 195

Lot 106 Block 196 Lot 107 Block 197 Lot 108 Block 198

Lot 109 Block 199 Lot 110 Block 200 Lot 111 Block 201

Lot 112 Block 202 Lot 113 Block 203 Lot 114 Block 204

Lot 115 Block 205 Lot 116 Block 206 Lot 117 Block 207

Lot 118 Block 208 Lot 119 Block 209 Lot 120 Block 210

Lot 121 Block 211 Lot 122 Block 212 Lot 123 Block 213

Lot 124 Block 214 Lot 125 Block 215 Lot 126 Block 216

Lot 127 Block 217 Lot 128 Block 218 Lot 129 Block 219

Lot 130 Block 220 Lot 131 Block 221 Lot 132 Block 222

Lot 133 Block 223 Lot 134 Block 224 Lot 135 Block 225

Lot 136 Block 226 Lot 137 Block 227 Lot 138 Block 228

Lot 139 Block 229 Lot 140 Block 230 Lot 141 Block 231

Lot 142 Block 232 Lot 143 Block 233 Lot 144 Block 234

Lot 145 Block 235 Lot 146 Block 236 Lot 147 Block 237

Lot 148 Block 238 Lot 149 Block 239 Lot 150 Block 240

Lot 151 Block 241 Lot 152 Block 242 Lot 153 Block 243

Lot 154 Block 244 Lot 155 Block 245 Lot 156 Block 246

Lot 157 Block 247 Lot 158 Block 248 Lot 159 Block 249

Lot 160 Block 250 Lot 161 Block 251 Lot 162 Block 252

Lot 163 Block 253 Lot 164 Block 254 Lot 165 Block 255

Lot 166 Block 256 Lot 167 Block 257 Lot 168 Block 258

Lot 169 Block 259 Lot 170 Block 260 Lot 171 Block 261

Lot 172 Block 262 Lot 173 Block 263 Lot 174 Block 264

Lot 175 Block 265 Lot 176 Block 266 Lot 177 Block 267

Lot 178 Block 268 Lot 179 Block 269 Lot 180 Block 270

Lot 181 Block 271 Lot 182 Block 272 Lot 183 Block 273

Lot 184 Block 274 Lot 185 Block 275 Lot 186 Block 276

Lot 187 Block 277 Lot 188 Block 278 Lot 189 Block 279

Lot 190 Block 280 Lot 191 Block 281 Lot 192 Block 282

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago (Iowa), and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50th

FOR THE NEIGHBOR.

I've seen the dark and driving storm,
Rush wildly through the sky;
The forked lightning's glaring form;
Roll forth its thunder by.

I've seen the tempest driven deep,
And heard its dismal roar;
And seen its angry breakers sweep,
Their spray upon the shore.

I've seen the twining serpent fold,
His coils beneath my feet;
The frightful hiss or rattle told,
The foe I had to meet.

Would were there here no greater ill,
To trouble human life,
Than serpents hid in vales and hills;
And elemental strife.

For beating storms will soon subside,
The waters sink to rest,
The deadly snake in winter hide,
Within its rocky nest.

But man vile man is prone to sin,
By crime both dark and deep;
And fiercer storms oft rage with him,
Than after creation sweep.

I've seen their mobocratic bands,
In hostile form array'd;
And spread destruction through the land,
O'er city, field, and glade.

I've heard martyr's dying groan,
And seen the widow's tear,
And heard the orphan's piercing moan,
And no protector near.

Heal it ye great in latter time,
I tell it to your shame;
The perpetrators of these crimes,
Unpunish'd still remain.

THE RESTORATION OF ISRAEL.
Land of the bright and sunny clime!
Land of the Savior's birth!
Whose temples rose in ancient time,
The glory of the earth—
Whence has thy pride and splendor gone?
Thy holy seers and sages
Sleep in the dust—their names alone
Survive the lapse of ages!

And where are now the glittering hosts
That, in Religion's name,
From the far clime where England boasts
Her matchless navies, came,
And poured the tide of battle down,
By fount, and lake and river?
Their glory and their strength have flown,
Their sun gone down forever!

Thy children, friendless and alone,
Scattered through every land,
Are wandering from zone to zone,
A scorned and powerless band.
But He, who guides the sparrow's flight
From morning's dawn till even,
Will lead His faithful ones aright,
And bring them safe to Heaven!

Soon, soon, shall rise the promised sun,
Thy peaceful shores to lave,
Refulgent with the light that shone
On Jordan's ancient wave.
Soon shall the temples of our God
Be reared on hill and plain,
The soil where priests and prophets trod,
Shall own its sons again!

Blest land!—thy ransomed children now
Around their father's altars bow;
And Zion's holy mountain rings
With praises to the King of kings!

HEART WISHES.
I would not wear a golden crown,
Nor reign upon a throne,
But o'er one true and loving heart
I would be queen alone.

I would not have a servile throng
Press round to bow the knee,
But one light, free and eager step
Haste onward unto me.

I would not hear the stirring shout
Of plaudits far and wide,
But lift a soft voice gently speak
My name at eventide.

I would not have a sumptuous couch,
When pain had laid me low,
But one dear arm to fold my form,
One hand to press my brow.

I would not have proud marble piled Upon my lowly head,
But simple stone, and grassy mound,
And one to weep me dead.

I would not have the breath of fame
Attempt my worth to prove,
But I would have one warm heart keep
The memory of my love.

I would, beloved, to thee, and me,
The priceless pearl be given,
That thy true heart may meet mine own,
And each love each in heaven.

WANTED, by the subscriber, the following Neighbors: Sept. 20, 1843; Feb. 28 and July 3, 1844. Also Nos. 4 and 25 of the Wasp.

W. RICHARDS.
March 19-46tf

KEYSTONE STORE.
A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearsley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints, his friends and the public, with DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES, as they may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.

Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle: our interest; our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.

One man is not every body, but he may do much good by 'turning a penny' when he sells Goods. Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c., CHEAP for cash, produce, and truck, or exchanges fairly.—Call and try.

March 17th, -46-3m

MERMAID:
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET
FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAU-
VOO, AND BLOOMING-
TON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings; and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as 'plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity.' For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent,
for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-1f

In the Hancock Circuit court, Illinois, to the May term 1845.

State of Illinois,
Hancock County,
George McIntire, Plain,

vs. Ebenezer Robinson, Defendant.

Notice is hereby given to the said Ebenezer Robinson, that a writ of attachment has been issued out of the clerk's office of the Circuit court of said county, against the estate of you the said defendant, and in favor of the said plaintiff, for the sum of one hundred and forty-six dollars and forty cents, which said writ of attachment has been returned into the clerk's office of the said Circuit court, by the Sheriff of said county, levied upon the following described real estate, to wit: Lot No. 2, in block No. 125; lot No. 4, in block No. 149; lot No. 4, in block No. 126; and lot No. 3, in block No. 150, situate in the city of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.—Now unless you, the said Ebenezer Robinson, shall personally be and appear before the judge of our said Circuit court, to be holden at the court house in Carthage, on the third Monday in the month of May next, and plead, answer or demur to the said plaintiff's action, judgement will be rendered against you, and the premises so attached will be sold to satisfy the same with costs.

Witness David E. Head, clerk of our said Circuit court at Carthage, and the seal thereof, this fourth day of March, A. D. 1845.

DAVID E. HEAD, Clerk.

March 5-45-6w

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that the administrator of Joseph Smith, deceased, will present a petition to the judge of the fifth judicial circuit, at the next term of the circuit court in Hancock county, for an order to sell the north-west quarter, of the south-east quarter of section 6, in township 5 N. 8 W.; also the north-west fractional quarter of section 10, in township 7 N. 8 W.; also the south-west fractional quarter of section 19, in township 6 N. 8 W.; also the south-east quarter of the south-east quarter of section 26, in township 7 N. 8 W.; also the west half of the north-east quarter of section 35, in township 7 N. 8 W. The guardians heirs, and all parties interested, will appear at said term of the court, and show cause, if any, why said lands should not be sold to satisfy the claims against said estate.

JOSEPH W. COOLIDGE,
Administrator.

March 12-45-6w

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18-46tf

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 24-47tf

NOTICE—The subscriber takes this method of informing his friends and the public in general, that he has opened the large brick store, on the corner of Parley and Carlin streets, one block east of Main street; for the purpose of doing a general Commission and Storage business, both for home and foreign manufacture; and hopes by his close and strict attention to business, and the long experience he has had, he will share a liberal portion of public patronage.

To the different associations of mechanics he would say, any articles left with him for sale, will be sold according to instruction given; if left to my own discretion, they will be sold to the best advantage.

I am prepared to store a large quantity of Flour and Grain. Any shipments that my customers may wish to make, there will be no charge for taking bills of lading, nor for receiving goods at the landing more than for drayage.

Refer to close attention to business.

SAMUEL GULLEY.

March 31, 1845-44tf

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Pitch forks; finally, anything that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buck-wheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-43tf

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845-44tf

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-43tf

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk-lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19-42tf

LOOK HERE.

THE undersigned will exchange a few town lots, for Horses, Cattle, Wagons and Harnesses.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Jan. 27th, 1845-39tf

MR. HUGH PATRICK, Dentist.

begs to announce to the ladies and gentlemen of this city, his removal to that part of the post office, lately occupied by Mr. S. Rigdon, and returns his sincere thanks to his numerous friends in this city and surrounding country, for the extensive patronage he has received since he arrived here, and in doing so, he would assure them the same unremitting attention, which has hitherto gained him the approbation of those by whom he has been favored, it shall be his constant object to cultivate.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

Also H. Patrick, begs leave to inform the public in general, that he continues manufacturing the various articles in the above line; rings, brooches, pins, seals, keys, bracelets, chains, and various other ornaments too numerous to mention, two-thirds of the payments expected in cash. Old gold and silver taken in exchange.

Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1845-35tf

NOTICE is hereby given that at the next term of the circuit court, for the county of Hancock and state of Illinois, to be holden in May next, I shall make application by petition on the first day of the term, for an order to sell the real estate of Mathew Whyman deceased, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of his debts, his personal estate being insufficient for that purpose.

MARTIN YETER.

Administrator on the estate.

March 25th, 47-4w

OSPREY:
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAU-
VOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Port Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1-2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.

Jan. 1, 1845-35tf

HAT STORE.

THE subscriber has taken a store on Mulholland St., half a mile east of the Temple, where he now offers for sale Fur and Silk Hats of the latest fashions, and manufactured of the best of materials.

Country produce taken in exchange. Also a good assortment of Groceries and Provisions.

A. MERRILL.

Nov. 26, 1844-30tf

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

THE subscriber will sell at public vendue, at the Store House of the late Joseph Smith, on Saturday the 12th of April next, at 9 o'clock A. M., three stoves, and all the interest of Joseph Smith deceased in the Nauvoo House Association.

Terms of Sale: all sums under five dollars, cash in hand, for all sums over five dollars, three months credit will be given, the purchaser giving bonds and security to be approved by the administrator.

JOSEPH W. COOLIDGE.

Administrator of Joseph Smith, deceased.

Nauvoo, March 23rd, 1845-47-4w

NOTICE—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Charioteers, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Roggy Wagons, Hearses, Sportsmen's Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also, Ploughs, Scythe snaths, Rakes, &c. &c. which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Water street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices. For we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Prest.

ELIJAH FORDHAM, Clerk.

SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.

BURR FROST.

DAVID DE VOL.

JOSHUA SMITH.

DAVID W. FOX.

SHADRACH DRIGGS.

DWIGHT WEBSTER.

JESSE H. ATHONTON.

WM. LISK.

Jany. 15th, 1845-27-1f

CONSUMPTION OF THE LUNGS.

Coughs and Colds, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pains or Soreness of the Chest, Difficulty of Breathing, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, &c.

AMONG all the famous medicines for Consumption, none seems to be meeting with greater success or gaining a higher reputation than that most wonderful article, Wistar's Balm of Wild Cherry! That it stands at the head of all other remedies is now universally conceded. It has cured thousands upon thousands—of all classes—in cases of the most dangerously Consumptive character—and physicians of the greatest eminence throughout our whole country, hesitatingly recommend it as the most powerful curative of Pulmonary diseases, in the whole range of Pharmacy. Thousands of consumptive patients have already tested its exalted virtues, and confessed its surpassing, excellent and amazing power. The remarkable success of this Balm is no doubt owing in a great measure to the peculiarly agreeable and powerful nature of its ingredients. It is a fine Herbal Medicine, composed chiefly of Wild Cherry Bark and the genuine Iceland Moss—the latter imported expressly for this purpose—the rare, medicinal virtues of which are also combined, by a new chemical process with the Extract of Tar—the most certain and efficacious remedy ever discovered.

A CASE OF ASTHMA.

The following is from a distinguished Lawyer of the city of New York, who had been afflicted with the Asthma for upwards of 'Twenty Years,' and who, after reading such cases can doubt the efficacy of this medicine!

New York, January 25, 1843.

I have been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for 24 years—sometimes so severely as to be confined to my room for weeks; and although attended by various medical advisers, of the highest reputation and skill in the country, the relief was but partial and temporary—twice the disease proved nearly fatal to my life.

Some few weeks ago I commenced taking Wistar's Balm of Wild Cherry, which gave me instant relief, and a single bottle produced in a few days what I believe to be a radical and perfect cure.

A. WILLIAMS, Attorney at Law, No. 58 Williams st., New York.

We are acquainted with the writer of the above certificate, and his statements are entitled to the full confidence of the public.

F. A. TALMADGE.

Recorder of the city of New York.

JOHN POWER, D. D., Vicar General of New York.

P. S. The above certificate may be seen at No. 125 Fulton street, New York.

Price $1 per bottle, or six for $5.

All orders from dealers south and west of the Wabash river should be addressed to Benjn. Phelps 76 Chesnut street, St. Louis, Mo. The above truly valuable medicine is for sale at this office.

Feb. 13-42-3m

BENJAMIN PHELPS,

No. 76 Chesnut Street, ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

WESTERN GENERAL AGENT FOR ALL THE

BEST FAMILY MEDICINES.

OFFERS to Dealers and others the following highly popular and valuable Medicines:

Wistar's Balm of Wild Cherry

Rev. I. Covert's Balm of Life

Humphrey's Pile Ointment

Dr. Williamson's Pain Soother

Brite's Rheumatic Liniment and Pills

Sappington's Pills

Dr. Starkweather's Hepatic Elixir

Dr. Halsted's Magnetic Remedies

Bristol's Sarsaparilla

Fridley's Tetter Ointment

Fabnestock's Vermifuge

Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster

Dr. Halsted's Brisk Pills

Nov. 13-42-6m

EARTHWARE: EARTHENWARE.

J. GROCCOTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in 'Rich Street, one Block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844. no41-1f

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.

THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety.

From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d. 1844.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBELL LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 2.—No. 51.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, April 23, 1845.

Whole Number 145

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Water and Main Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 annually in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor, post paid, to receive attention.)

From the Boston Evening Transcript.

ASTONISHING FACTS IN RELATION TO THE EGYPTIAN PYRAMIDS.

The materials of which the pyramids are constructed, afford scope for long dissertation, because, independently of the science and skill requisite for their adaptation, the distances from which most of them were brought proves that each monarch's sway extended all over Egypt and Lower Nubia, if not beyond; and in relation to this subject we gather the following facts from the second lecture of Mr. Gliddon's new course:

Geologically considered, Egypt is a very peculiar country, the quarries of different kinds of stone lying at great distances from each other in distinctly marked localities. If you see a piece of granite on the beach of the Mediterranean, you know that there is no basaltic quarry nearer than between the first and second cataract, and when you find a block of granite at Memphis, you know that granite exists but at the first cataract—nearer than the peninsula of Mount Sinai. Every civilization and extended dominion is indicated in these facts, and when we reflect upon them, we almost think we witness the work of transportation going on that we see the builders, and the buildings themselves in process of erection. The blocks of Arabian limestone used in the interior of the pyramids were brought from the ancient quarries of Tebriah, on the opposite side of the Nile, distant about 15 or 20 miles from each pyramid. These very quarries are quarries, as it were, excavated in the living rock, wherein entire armies might encamp, are adorned with now unaffordable, recording the age of their respective opening by different Pharaohs, not only show the very beds whence the stupendous blocks of some of the pyramids were taken, but are in themselves works as wonderful and sublime as the Monophtic pyramids; nay, at the very foot of these quarries lie the countless tombs and sarcophagi of numbered generations of ancient quarriers! These quarries are of intense archaeological interest, because the tablets in them record that stone was cut in them for Memphis on such a day, such a month, such a year of the reign of such a king; and these kings begin from the remote times before the sixteenth dynasty, and, at different intervals, come down through the Pharaonic period with many of the others, till we reach the Ptolemic epoch, and end with Latin inscriptions similar to others in Egypt, attesting that "these quarries were worked" in the propitious era of our lords and emperors—Seyverus and Antoninus, thus enabling us to descend almost step by step from the remote antiquity of 2,200 years B. C. down to 200 years after the Christian era. The hand of modern barbarism prompted by the destructiveness of Mohammed Ali, has, since 1830, done more to deface these tablets—to blow up many of these halls in sheer wantonness, than has been effected by time in 4,000 years!

Every atom of the hundred thousand tons of granite used in the pyramids was cut at Syene, the first cataract, distant 610 miles. The blocks, some of which are 30 feet long, had to be cut out of their beds with wooden wedges and copper chisels; then polished with emery till they were as smooth as looking glass, and then carried by land half a mile to the river—placed on palls and floated down 640 miles to Memphis—brought by canals to the foot of the Lybian chain—conveyed by land over gigantic causeways from one life to three in length to the pyramids for which they were intended, and then elevated by machinery and placed in their present position, with skill and a masonic precision that has confounded the most scientific European engineer with amazement. The very basaltic sarcophagi that once held the mummy of the Pharaohs, in the dimmest recesses of these pyramidal mountains, 81-2 feet long by 31-2 broad and 3 deep were all brought from Lower Nubia, from the basaltic quarries of the second cataract, not nearer than 750 miles up the river!

Looking into the interior of the pyramids, there is still much to stagger belief—to excite our admiration. In the pyramid of five steps, the upper beams that support the roof of the chamber are of oak, larch, and cedar, not one of which trees grow in Egypt, and establish the fact of the timber trade with Illyria, Asia Minor, and Mount Lebanon in ages long before Abraham! In the fragments of a mummy the cloth is found to be saturated with "Pisaphatum"—Jew's pitch or bitumen Judacum, compounded of vegetable pitch from the Archipelago, and of asphaltum of the Dead Sea in Palestine; we find gum arabic, that does not grow nearer than 1,200 miles from the pyramids, attesting commerce with Upper Nubia. The gold leaf came from the mines of Suakim on the Red Sea, or from remote Fazogla. The liquor which cleansed out the body of the mummy was cedar, the fluid resin of the pines cedrus, that grows not nearer than Syria. The spices, sent us to the Indian ocean—the aloes to Succatra—the cinnamon to Ceylon, the ancient Taphropane—and then the arts and sciences brought to bear upon the pyramids that must have arrived at perfection long before that day, are not only themes for endless reflection, but oblige us to confess that in chronology we are yet children.

Among his novel and strange assertions in relation to the science of the ancient Egyptians, Mr. Gliddon maintained that from the very nature of their country, and the vast fossil remains in their quarries, &c., the Egyptian priests must have been geologists and referred to his "chapters," page 47—for the remarks of the priest of Solon, "You mentioned one deluge only, whereas many happened"—and other evidences, that the Egyptians recognised in their mythology and chronology of the world past periods of time, anterior to the creation of man.

Foreign News

By the Cambria at Boston, on the 18th ult., we have our files and news from England, to the 4th of March, but of so little importance is it to us, that we omit the bulk.

The Queen delivered her speech in person at the opening of parliament, as a state woman, she is quite an oratrix, we shall publish the Queen's speech hereafter.

We make the following extracts:

ENGLAND.

Respecting the new British tariff, the European Times has the following:—In the financial statement made by Sir Robert Peel on the 14th, February, besides the duties on cotton, wool, coal, glass, and iron, and staves for casks, which he proposes totally to repeal, it is also proposed to abolish the whole duties on 130 miscellaneous articles, and the duty on sugar partially.

There is no part of the new financial scheme which has given so much satisfaction as the abolition of the import duty on cotton wool. This tax has been keenly felt by the English manufacturer, for it saddled him on the coarser description of goods, with a tax of twelve per cent, more than his continental or American competitors; and in the same degree it has prevented him in the open markets of the world, from competing with his active and energetic rivals. It was tax on the productive power of the country, and every one rejoices that it has been swept away. The abolition of the duty on cotton will hardly be less popular in America, from which we derive nearly all our supply, for what little extraneous competition the manufacturer of the northern states may sustain, will more than be counterbalanced by the advantages accruing to the southern planter.

CHINA.

Two revolutions are announced, one in the Punjab and the other at Nepal, which occasioned considerable bloodshed. The Queen Donna Maria of Portugal, has given birth to another daughter.

Flood and Dreadful Inundation.—A letter from Macao, published in the foreign papers, gives an account of the overflowing rivers in the north of China, a fate which the European inundations have been recorded during the last few years almost to relative insignificance. On the shores of the Yellow Sea the phenomena took the character of a second deluge. Whole provinces, with populations respectively larger than some of the second class kingdoms of Europe, were almost entirely submerged. The retreat of the waters left corpses in thousands. Touching episodes are given as pictures of this awful calamity. On the river Yangtze were found large floating casks, which when examined, were discovered to contain the bodies of young children, whose mothers, when all hope for themselves was gone, had committed them to these floating arks, as a last slender chance of salvation. Upwards of seventeen millions of human beings, rescued from the inundation, have poured themselves over the adjacent provinces, beggared of all things and crying for bread.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

My Lords and Gentlemen, I rejoice that I am enabled, on a rainy meeting you in Parliament, to congratulate you on the improved condition of the country.

Increased activity pervades almost every branch of manufacture. Trade and commerce have been extended at home and abroad, and among all classes of my people there is generally prevalent a spirit of loyalty and cheerful obedience to the law.

I continue to receive from all Foreign Powers and States assurances of their friendly disposition.

The journey of the Emperor of Russia, undertaken at a great sacrifice of private convenience, was a proof of the friendship of his Imperial Majesty most acceptable to my feelings.

The opportunity of personal intercourse thus afforded to me, will, I hope, be the means of still further improvement in those amicable relations which have long existed between Great Britain and Russia.

The visit of the King of the French was rendered especially welcome to me, inasmuch as it had been impeded by discussions which might have impaired the good understanding happily established between the two countries.

I regard the maintenance of this good understanding as essential to the best interests of both; and I rejoiced to witness that the sentiments so cordially expressed by all classes of my subjects on the occasion of his Majesty's visit, were entirely in unison with my own.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

The estimates for the ensuing year have been prepared, and will forthwith be laid before you.

The progress of steam navigation, and the demands for protection to the extended commerce of the country, will occasion an increase in the estimates connected with the naval service.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I have observed with sincere satisfaction that the improvement which is manifest in other parts of the country has extended to Ireland.

The political agitation and excitement, which I have heretofore had occasion to lament appear to have gradually abated, and as a natural result, private capital has been more freely applied to useful public enterprise, undertaken through the friendly co-operation of individuals interested in the welfare of Ireland.

I have carried into effect, in the spirit in which it was conceived, the act for the more effectual application of charitable donations and bequests.

I recommend to your favorable consideration the policy of improving and extending the opportunities for academical education in Ireland.

The Report of the Commission appointed to enquire into the law and practice, in respect to the occupation of land, is nearly prepared, and shall be communicated to you immediately after its presentation.

The state of the law in regard to the privileges of the Bank of Ireland, and to other Banking establishments in that country, and in Scotland, will no doubt, occupy your attention.

The health of the inhabitants of large towns and populous districts in this part of the United Kingdom has been the subject of recent enquiry before a commission, the report of which shall be immediately laid before you.

It will be highly gratifying to me if the information and suggestions contained in that report shall enable you to devise the means of promoting the health and comfort of the poorer classes of my subjects.

I congratulate you on the success of the measures, which, three years since, were adopted by Parliament, for the purpose of supplying the deficiency in the public revenue, and arresting the accumulation of debt in the time of peace.

The act which was passed at that time for imposing a tax upon income will shortly expire.

It will be for you in your wisdom to determine whether it may not be expedient to continue its operation for a further period, and thus to obtain the means of adequately providing for the public service, and at the same time for making a reduction in other taxation.

Whatever may be the result of your deliberations in this respect, I feel assured that it will be your determination to maintain an amount of revenue amply sufficient to meet the necessary expenditure of the country, and firmly to uphold that public credit which is indispensable to the national welfare.

The prospect of continued peace, and the general state of domestic prosperity and tranquility, afford a favorable opportunity for the consideration of the important matters to which I have directed your attention, and I commit them to your deliberation with the earnest prayer that you may be enabled, under the superintending care and protection of Divine Providence, to strengthen the feelings of mutual confidence and goodwill between different classes of my subjects, and to improve the condition of my people.

Troops on the Frontier.—The Arkansas Intelligencer, in speaking of the recent difficulties in the Indian country between the Creeks and Pawnee Mahas, states that the Creeks upon hearing the news of the difficulty, immediately sounded the "war-whoop," which was carried to the distance of 120 miles in the short space of 18 hours—the runners who sounded the "whoop" travelling on foot the whole time—and in that short space of time 1000 Creek warriors were ready for the conflict. This, says the Intelligencer, shows the great necessity of a large force of troops upon our outposts; the Indians who in that time could raise such force, could easily commit dreadful depredations upon any hostile or opposing force. The subject of troops upon the frontier has been harped upon till it has become a mere song; but the press should continue to represent to the powers that be the great necessity of troops to prevent outbreaks.

A Tolerant Courtship.—The Rev. John Brown, of Haddington, was a man of singular bashfulness. His courtship lasted seven years. Six years and a half passed away, and the rev. gentleman had got no further forward than he had been the first six days. This state of things became intolerable; a step in advance must be made, and Mr. Brown summoned all his courage for the deed. Janet, said he, as they sat in solemn silence, "We've been acquainted now for six years and more, and I've not yet gotten a kiss yet—d'ye think I may take one?" Just as you like, John only becoming and proper, "I do," said Janet, "I'll take a blessing." The blessing was asked—the kiss taken, and the worthy divine, perfectly overpowered with blissful sensation, most rapturously exclaimed, "O woman! but it is good—we'll return thanks." Six months made the pious couple man and wife, and, added his descendant, who humorously told the tale, a happier couple never spent a long and useful life together.

LIFE AMONG THE INDIANS.

The following is an extract from a work, entitled "Three Years in New Mexico, and among the Camanches and other Indians west of the Mississippi, by Thos. James, of Illinois."

A company of eleven men, with the author, in 1841, were on the route to Santa Fe, and on a small branch of Salt river, one of the most westerly tributaries of the Arkansas, had fallen in with near two thousand Camanche warriors. The Americans were posted at the foot of a mound, with the Camanche village or encampment between them and the river. They had been detained as prisoners three days, after being robbed of most of their goods, when the following incidents occurred:

"During the night we were stoned by a party of boys from the mound in our rear. They were at length dislodged by the exertions of a chief, and were left to our repose. But of rest there was none for us, though this was the third night which had been sleepless to me and most of the men. Uncertain of our fate and exhausted with fatigue, watching and anxiety, we waited the issue of events. The sun rose to my mind with gloomy aspect, and every thing seemed to portend an evil fate to our little band. Six of my horses had been taken in the night, and I ordered my men out to bring them back. The friendly chief now came to me with great concern and dejection in his countenance, and begged of me not to leave my station or allow the men to go out. 'Keep together,' said he, or 'you will all be killed. The men that go out will be murdered. Don't try to get back your horses.' I saw that the whole army were preparing to decamp, and pulling down their lodges. Sometime after sunrise, I perceived about fifty of the chiefs and older Indians going up into the mound above us, in our rear, followed by a multitude of young warriors and boys; an old man turned and drove them back: the two friendly chiefs did not go up. Arrived at the top, this company formed a circle, sat down and smoked. Then one of their number commenced what seemed, from his gestures, to be a very violent harangue, designed to inflame their passions. I told my company that this council would decide our fate. They asked how I knew this. If they came down, said I, friendly, we have nothing to fear; but if sulky, and out of humor, we have nothing to hope. Put your guns in good order, and be prepared for the worst. We must sell our lives as dear as possible. In this sentiment they all agreed with me, and we prepared to meet our fate, whatever it should be, like men. During this time, the lodges with the women and children, were fast disappearing, and the men assembling before us on horseback and afoot, armed with guns, bows, and lances. The council on the hill, after an hour's council, descended, and we soon learned that our deaths were determined upon. Those Indians who before were sociable, were now distant and sulky. When spoken to by any of us they made no answer.

The friendly chief and Big Star who had taken no part in the council, now came and shook hands with us, and bade us farewell. I besought them to stay with us, shaking their heads sorrowfully they went away.

The press in front now greatly increased. Near two thousand warriors stood before and around us with the evident intention of making an attack, and appeared to be waiting the signal for an onslaught. We stood in a circle, with our backs to the goods and saddles heaped up above all our heads; and with our rifles raised to our breasts, and our fingers on the triggers. We were also armed with knives and tomahawks. Old Jimmy Wilson, seized an axe, having no gun, and swore he would hew his way as far as he could. Thus we stood eleven against ten thousand, with death staring us in the face. All seemed to be unwilling to commence the bloody work. The suspense was awful. I stood between John McKnight, and my brother, and noticed their countenances. McKnight's face was white and his chin and lips were quivering. My brother, as brave a man as ever lived, looked desperate and determined. Not a man but seemed bent to die in arms and fighting, and none were overcome by fear.

Thus we stood near half an hour in deathly silence, at length the White Bear warrior, a chief dressed in a whole bear skin, with the claws hanging over his hands, rode swiftly towards us, through the crowd, with his lance in his hand, as if to annihilate us at once, but seeing the dangerous position he was in, he stopped short about five paces from us, and glared upon me with the most deadly malignity. Finding he could not reach me with his lance, he took out the pistol, examined the prancing, tossed out the powder from the pan, reprimed, and again fixed his devilish eyes full upon me. But he saw that I could fire first, and kept his pistol down. Here McKnight first broke dreadful silence, saying, "let us commence, James; you will be the first man killed; this suspense is worse than death. The black chief is my mark." I said no. McKnight, let us, forbear, as long as they do; for us to begin is folly in the extreme; but as soon as a gun is fired, we must fire, rush in and sell our lives as dearly as possible. Here Kisher walked out with his gun over his head, gave it up, and passed into the crowd unmolested. In a minute afterwards we heard the cry from a distance, approaching nearer and nearer, of Tabbahon. Tabbahon. This I supposed was on account of Kisher's surrender. The cry increased and spread throughout the crowd. Looking towards the southwest, whence the cry arose, while the White-Bear's attention was withdrawn, I saw six horsemen riding at full speed, and as they came nearer, we heard the words in Spanish, save them! save them!

In a moment a Spanish officer rushed into our arms, exclaiming, thank God we are in time; are you all safe and unhurt. He said that he had heard of our danger by accident that morning, and had ridden twenty miles to save us. All the circumstances of our rescue we learned the next day. With joyous and thankful hearts for our escape from a death that, five minutes before seemed inevitable, we prepared to depart with our preservers. I had bidden farewell, as I then thought for ever, to wife, child, home and all its endearments, and the thoughts of them were now overpowering to me. The Spaniards asked the Indians why they were going to kill us. They answered, that the Spanish Governor at Santa Fe, had commanded them not to let any Americans pass, but that we were determined to go in spite of them; so that to stop us and keep their promise to the Spanish governor, they thought they were compelled to take our lives. The Spaniards told them that this was under the government of Spain, but that they were now independent and free, and brothers to the Americans. This was the first news I had heard of the Mexican revolution.

The Camanches all went down the river, offering no further violence to us, and we started for the Spanish camp the same day.

For the Nauvoo Neighbor.

ON THE LAWS OF NATURE.

Concluded.

The laws of nature are those eternal principles which exist in, or pervade all substances, by which they are governed and regulated, that is, such and such causes always producing such and such effects. For example; heat always expands bodies, and the absence of it contracts them. Many more examples might be given but I must hasten to the object of this communication. In my previous communications, I have endeavored to show or explain, why all rooms or halls where people assemble together ought to be well ventilated. I have also clearly shown that in all public assemblies the oxygen is continually changing into carbonic acid, which is detrimental to life and health if it cannot have an opportunity to escape, and pure air take its place. The Masonic hall is the best ventilated of any, but even that is imperfectly supplied with pure air, and I have noticed, when it is filled with a congregation, the air becomes very impure and unwholesome. In the Seventies hall no place is left for impure air to escape or fresh to enter. Many of those who were there on the first day of its dedication, learnt, I presume, by sad experience, that the air after it is converted from oxygen into carbonic acid is no longer fit for use. On the second day, I rejoiced to hear Elder Kimball make the request to have the doors and windows thrown open, for he himself had taken a violent cold, by being shut up the day before. The first and greatest cause of his cold was not, as some suppose, by going from that warm hall into the open air; but it was on the account of his lungs and blood being deprived of that amount of oxygen that is contained in pure air, by which means his system became debilitated and a fit subject for disease. While I am speaking of him, I am telling the story of all that assembled there on the first day, unless they possessed a strong constitution. A law of nature had been violated, and the penalty could not be avoided. If public speakers do not wish to injure their lungs, they should be cautious about speaking in unventilated rooms or halls.

When the Music hall was dedicated, why did brother Goddard and many others say on the third evening that the music and singing was better than it had been the two previous evenings? The reasons are obvious; on that evening the upper part of the windows were taken out, which supplied the musicians and singers with pure air.

The windows to the Masonic, Seventies, and Music hall, should be so fixed that they can be dropped down from the top from four to eight inches, which should always be done, when they are filled with a congregation, though the weather might be as cold as Greenland. I hope those who have the care of these buildings, if they regard the health of this people, will immediately fix them so they can be properly ventilated. It is better to have them ventilated by dropping the windows at the top, than it is by throwing the doors open or raising the windows at the bottom; for when the doors are thrown open or the lower part of the windows hoisted, those who sit near them, may receive injury, by having a current of air blowing upon them; but by having the windows dropped at the top, this difficulty will be obviated.

I hope the quorum of the twelve as they stand at the head of the church and have the dictation of matters and things, will use their influence in having every room in the Temple so fixed, that it can be well ventilated, for it will greatly contribute to the happiness, comfort, and health of those who may assemble there after it is finished.

Mr. Editor: I feel highly grateful to you for giving my communications a place in your paper. My object has been to benefit my brethren, by pointing out to them how they impair their health and constitution, by frequently depriving their lungs of that pure air which is free for all.

There are other subjects I should like to write upon, subjects that particularly have reference to the preservation of health; but for the present, I must remain, for I fear I have already trespassed on your patience, and the patience of your readers. J. H.

IMPORTANT.

We copy, says the New York Mirror, the following astounding intelligence from a Montreal paper just received:—

After all that has been said of Texas and Oregon and the desire entertained by the people of the United States, to enlarge their territory by the acquisition of immense tracts, it will surprise many and add much to the protocols that will be issued, to learn that the state of Maine, disgusted with slavery and repudiation, and feeling a community of interests with those north of 45 degrees, has petitioned Her Majesty Queen Victoria, to re-annex her to the old family circle of John Bull, where property is respected, and where there is neither vote by ballot, Lynch-law, slavery and repudiation.

It is generally surmised that his honor, Judge Preble, is charged with this delicate mission, and that the petition will be sent through his Excellency Lord Mervill, by the next steamer, though the ostensible ground of his honor's visit to Montreal is the railroad to Port-au-Pic, and it is evident that if the admission is agreed on, and is prompt and immediate, a large stock will at once be subscribed for by the Home Government, and presented to the new confederation.

Part of New Hampshire, Vermont, and that portion of New York, bordering on the St. Lawrence, will it is thought, follow this laudable example.

N. B.—No state that has repudiated need apply.

Important from the British Provinces.—We have our regular files and private advice from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island to the 15th, and from Montreal to the 10th inst.

The public mind in Nova Scotia is being roused to a full sense of the humiliating position in which it has ever been placed by the policy of the home government to place the colonies. A clearer perception of the rights of a free people, is spreading rapidly among the colonies in N. America. Onerous restrictions upon individual enterprise, monopolies in trade and commerce; an established church with profligate lands; an impoverished treasury and inadequate provisions for public instruction, have awakened the people of Nova Scotia to the utter hopelessness of their ever becoming prosperous and happy under the present colonial policy of Great Britain. A movement has commenced of which we shall speak hereafter. From Canada we learn that the government majority is sustained by a corrupt system of bargain and sale, between members of Parliament and the administration. The leaders of the French and Canadian are kept in business by official favors.

Interesting Relic.—The Catharagus whig, of a late date, mentions that Governor Blacksnake, the Grand sachem of the Indian Nation, was in that place. He resides on the Alleghany Reservation, about twenty miles from the village, as the successor of Corn Planter, as Chief of the Six Nations—a nephew of Joseph Brant, and uncle of the celebrated Red Jacket. He was born near Cayuga Lake, in the year 1749, being now 93 years of age. He was in the battles of Stanwix, Wyoming, &c., and was a warm friend of Gen. Washington, during the revolution. He was in Washington's camp forty days at the close of the revolution—was appointed chief by him, and now wears a medal presented to him by Gen. Washington, bearing date 1793.

The Outrages in Lincoln County.—We have information from Lincoln county up to yesterday. All was quiet. The meeting which was to have taken place at Turnbull's, on Monday, was abandoned, and it is probable that the law will now be permitted to take hold of those who have violated it. The two Turnbuls and Norrall were still living. It is said that at the time of the first affray, an officer was among the assassins, with a warrant for the apprehension of one of the Turnbuls, and that such resistance was not expected. [Republican.]

From the Pacific.—By the arrival at this port of the bark Autum, from Nauvoo, (Friendly Islands) we have been furnished by Mr. W. A. Westcott, of that vessel, (and who was acting as steward at the time,) with the trial and conviction of Henry Lee and Leonard Bonzy, one of the hands of the A., for the murder of a chief of the Tongareva (one of the Navigators) Island, while the Autum was stopping at that port. From the testimony taken before the Council of Kaitiaki, it appears that Lee deserted from his vessel and was arrested by the Chief and another Native, to be conveyed back to the ship, and while they were in the act of doing so he stabbed the Chief, who died almost immediately. The following is the verdict of the Council: Capt. Waddy, of the Autum acting as judge:—

The Natives' Verdict.—We are of an opinion that the Chief was acting according to our laws in bringing the desertor back to his ship. We say a man at Pallo was convicted of Murder and hanging and the Islands being all of one Group, we must use our Laws accordingly. Therefore, we find him guilty of Murder, and we sentence him to be hung by the neck on Tuesday next, 5th November, at 12 o'clock Meridian, and may God have mercy on his soul.

Piracy of the Chinese.—We learn through the New York Commercial's correspondence of an act of piracy upon an American vessel in the China seas. The following is an extract:—

The American schooner Hannah, on her passage from Macao to Whampoa was attacked by Chinese pirates, and succeeded in escaping only after a desperate struggle of some hours, during which the rigging of the vessel was much injured, and she was robbed of some articles. During the struggle the first officer and some of the crew escaped in one of the boats, and we believe the boat has been carried into Macao with the body of the officer and some of the crew, who had died from exposure and the wounds they had received.

Immediately on the news being received at Macao, Com. Parker despatched the brig Boxer, well armed, to cruise about the place where the piracy was committed, but we believe they have returned to Macao without finding any of the persons guilty of the outrage.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1843.

OUR RIGHTS.

All men should be entitled to two kinds of rights:—Natural and artificial. Natural rights are embraced in life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Artificial rights consist of powers granted by legislative enactment; hence the machinery of government.

Now for a case in point. The state of Illinois granted the City of Nauvoo a charter of "perpetual succession," and that body had no more right to repeal it than the United States would have to abrogate and make void the Constitution of the state, or than Great Britain would have to abolish the Constitution of the United States—and the man that says differently, is a coward, a traitor to his own rights, and a tyrant; no odds what Blackstone, Kent, or Story may have written to make themselves and their names popular, to the contrary.

If the Legislature granted a charter of "perpetual succession" and they had no such power, they were a clan of knaves in high places; if they had the power, then the legislature that repealed the charter of "perpetual succession" were a set of licensed robbers, plundering an innocent people with impunity. Each body is welcome to the honor or disgrace, hence upon which horn of the dilemma they please.

The act repealing the Nauvoo charter, was an assumption of might not a prerogative of right.

Men do not enjoy all their rights in any government now existing. They waive the right by appointing men to make laws for the safety and convenience of the whole, allowing the majority to govern. But this is no criterion, or standard to suit the wants and capacities of the people. Every man is above the law, and can act as he pleases if he does not interfere with his neighbor's right.

This is clearly taught in the great foundation of all law, the ten commandments. Human law, the artificial contrivance of intellect, is not binding upon any honest man; nor should it be any more than the creeds and dogmas of bigots. Laws are for transgressors.

The Legislature have repealed the Nauvoo charter; and what then? why, in so doing, the people of Nauvoo are left to their own resources. Instead of being protected, they have been plundered with impunity. Who is to bear the loss of the private rights which have been infringed upon by this repeal? Can a private individual sue a Sovereign State? Where will the Lieutenant General, the Major Generals, &c., take rank according to their grade and date of commission?—There is no discharge in this war; these questions will have to be answered, and the foundation and stability of the government tried.

Men have a right to petition and protest, and if either is unheeded by those entrusted with powers, they, the people, (oppressed) have what is denominated the reserved right of protecting themselves from insult.

Nor is it less legal for an insulted individual or community to resist oppression. For this reason, until the blood of Joseph and Hyrum Smith has been atoned for, by hanging, shooting, or slaying in some manner, every person engaged in that cowardly, mean assassination, no Latter-day Saint should give himself up to the law; for the presumption is, that they will murder him in the same manner. The government has not redeemed the broker; each of the State; but upon the contrary, allowed an indicted murderer to sit in the Legislative Hall, whereby the whole State becomes accessory to the crime! The partner is as bad as the thief.

Neither should civil process come in to Nauvoo, till the United States, by a rigorous effort, causes the state of Missouri and the State of Illinois to redress every man that has suffered the loss of lands, goods, or any thing else, by expulsion and the robbery from the one State and martyrdom and State plunder in the other. Commissioners can be appointed to regulate, where the clandestine forms of law might require the strange work of God to rebut it.

Let it be proclaimed to the ends of the earth that the lives of the Saints are their own property, and that they are bound to protect them, and that they will in the name of Israel's God!

If any man is bound to maintain the law, it is for the benefit he may derive from it. No man can be compelled in a free country, to support a law that deprives him of his natural rights, when, enjoying them, is no disadvantage to his neighbor. "Thus," says Blackstone, "the statute of King Edward IV. which forbade the fine gentlemen of those times (under the degree of lord) to wear plumes upon their hats and shoes of more than two inches in length, was a law that savored of oppression."

Well, our charter is repealed; the murders of the Smiths are running at large, and if the Mormons should wish to imitate their forefathers, and fold the scriptures making it "hard to kick against the pricks," by wearing cast steel pikes, about four or five inches long in their boots and shoes, to kick with, what's the harm?

The Late Writ.—On Saturday the 12 inst., the U. S. Marshall, for the district of Illinois, came into Nauvoo for the purpose of serving summonses on some 12 or 14 of the Latter Day Saints, for the recovery of an old debt. So many tricks and stratagems, having heretofore been resorted to, to entrap the saints, that an American hardly call and not find the men ready.

Nor is this to be wondered at, when the blood stained pikes of Missouri, and the crimsoned floor of Carthage jail, yet smoke with the vengeance of mobocratic outlaws, while the wail of widows and orphans go up to God, as if men had degenerated to beasts; ay, and the moment a stranger comes to the city and inquires for a person, there is something appalling! kidnapping! more victims wanted! the spirit of the martyrs whisper, beware! and every person that has a patriotic soul is ready for the worst!

Accordingly, knowing that secret plots had been entered into by mobocrats to destroy certain leading men in Nauvoo; and that they had sworn that they would effect this hellish purpose, by teasing and annoying the saints with vexatious lawsuits, till they would be driven to the alternative of resisting in self defence; knowing also that suspicion rested upon several, as accomplices in this outrageous proceeding, against the rights and privileges of an innocent and afflicted people; knowing also that either the principal or security had once satisfied the "debt" now sued, by turning out property; knowing also, that the present portentous shower of writs, had lain in Springfield for the last two years, and were only issued now, as feelers for the pending murderers at Carthage;—and to cap the climax of judicial severity (hear it!) that five of the men called for in the writs, had been MURDERED in MISSOURI and ILLINOIS!—the editor of this paper, with the scars of four wounds received in Carthage jail on the 27th of last June, stood up at the stand on Sunday following, at meeting, and laid the matter before the citizens of Nauvoo, in its true light, amid the hearty "amens" of thousands.

It was reported that the Marshal had said that "Mr. Young had better let him serve the writ on him, for if he did not, he would put them into the hands of officers at Carthage." This was enough, a touch stone for mobocracy! Capt Smith of the Carthage Greys, who made a sham military, by which Joseph and Hyrum Smith were butchered in cool blood—and Betancourt the constable who officiated so largely, during the whole tragedy, and some others, while the murderers are at large, will find the saints in Nauvoo always ready, no odds what the writ is! No snakes in the grass, nor no charter in Nauvoo.

We appeal to the common humanity of man; if ever the like cruel, vindictive insult was offered to any people but Nauvoo! Rob them of their property; murder them like hogs and cattle, and then hurl down writs to burst the tombs that contain their sleeping bones! Oh horrible! Talk about making the Gentiles—this looks a little like stripping the dead; and the man that would not reset it, is unworthy to live among civilized beings! Oh red hot wrath! tell it not to the world, that the United States are trying to resurrect the bones of the martyred dead, by summonses for old debts! oh hush! don't let kings and potentates know this, lest they laugh and exclaim; WHAT SWEET LIBERTY! From this day forth, let the saints beware! there is nothing but roguery in villainous man.

Great Fire in Pittsburgh.—Over twenty squares in the city of Pittsburgh, have been devastated by the sudden vengeance of fire; whereby some 1000 or 1200 houses have gone to ashes, and left the occupants homeless, to ponder on the loss of about ten millions. It has been said, that riches takes wings, but it appears that wealth takes fire.

Two Great Courts.—"Pig thumper," the leader of the Anti-Renters in the State of New York, and "Priest Fairchild," the seducer of Rhoda Davidson, in Boston, have both been acquitted; the former on account, most probably of friendly jurors, and the latter, very likely, through the aid of friendly witnesses. So the glory of American justice flies off like sparks from burning iron.

The Index of the Times.—If an honest man wants an index of the times, let him read the stealing from steamboats; the incendiaries in large towns; dead babies about the streets in cities; the debauchery and seduction of females every where; the Anti-rent fever among the peasantry; and ten thousand other crimes, in every part of the United States, filled with lawyers judges and jurors, and contrast it with Nauvoo, without a charter, and no crimes committed. That tells the story, where God is, as much as these crimes show that the devil reigns.

Singing.—At the Music Hall on Saturday evening last, Mr. Slater's two daughters gave a concert. "Get out of the way" for these pretty maidens singing charmingly and will get a full house next time.

State Arms.—Up to Saturday last the Carthage Greys, and others, of whom the Governor's agent had demanded the State arms, refused obedience to the order. How submissive! How peaceful! But if the Mormons had refused—"and if, and if!" says the lawyer, that alters the case! So, it takes nine days for some animals to get their eyes open; but they see the better for it.

The River.—The improvement of the Rapids, while freshet lasts, is so much above any thing that Congress can do, that we truly thank the Lord for such favors. Lulus Deus.

Dead men tell no tales, but living ones do.—Four men were killed, and three wounded by the bursting of a cannon at Ft. Leavenworth.

Copper Mine.—A new Copper mine has been discovered near Fort Wilkins, Lake Superior. It is said to be the richest known.

A Western Trick.—The State of Iowa has rejected her constitution, by a large vote. How they tick matters away!

The War Eagle. arrived in this city on Wednesday evening last, in 27 hours from St. Louis, being the quickest trip known here. The distance, 224 miles, should not occupy more than 20 hours including stoppages according to modern running. Who bids higher?

HAWK CHIEF.

The person who took two volumes of the Hawk Chief from the book bindery unbound, is requested to return them as the librarian wishes to keep the books clean.

At Man! Friend Greeley of the Tribune has a sorry paper. Murders, duels, drunkards mad bound, eating their fingers; husbands horrified at seeing young doctors dissecting their wives, only three days after burial; Indian disturbances, anti-rent troubles; Rum business; troubled about annexation of Texas, and election of democrat Mayor; and lastly:

Sale of Human Beings for the benefit of Theological Education.—The following notice of a public sale, is taken from the Savannah Republican of March 3d, 1845. After describing the plantation which was to be sold, the notice adds:

Also at the same time and place, the following negro slaves, to wit: Charles Peggy, Antoniet, Davy, September, Maria, Jonny, and Isaac; levied on as the property of Henry T. Hall, to satisfy a mortgage of $1. fr. issued out of McIntosh Superior Court, in favor of the Board of Directors of the Theological Seminary of the Synod of South Carolina and Georgia, vs. said Henry T. Hall. Conditions cash.

C. O'NEAL, Deputy Sheriff, M. C.

THE CARTHAGE GRAYS.

The recent conduct of this company, in calling on Mr. Backenstos, and ordering him to leave the county, on penalty of the consequences, which meant death, was the most reckless, ill-advised, distasteful act, that has ever fallen under our notice, as public journalists. Mr. Backenstos was and is a member of the Legislature—in that official capacity, he is not responsible for words spoken in debate in the halls of the Legislature.

Thus have these desperadoes committed a double wrong—they have not only violated the law, but they have trampled on the constitution. Against any citizen, their conduct was illegal and cowardly; against Mr. B. it was worse, on account of his official station. We cannot find words to express, the indignant scorn and contempt we feel for this body of desperadoes. They have placed a member of the Legislature in a position the most critical. Mr. Backenstos is compelled either to forfeit his life and leave his young family without a protector, or see a great principle, the independence of Legislatures, broken down and trampled on in his person. This outrage upon him is one of the effects of repealing the Nauvoo charter instead of amending it. It has given encouragement to a set of unprincipled scoundrels who richly deserve to be prosecuted in the severest manner known to the laws.

LATEST FROM HANCOCK.

We learn from the Governor that he has received intelligence from two authentic sources, that some villainous and Mormon forged an order, in the name of Gen. Deming, for a piece of artillery in McDonough county, and that the same has been conveyed, on the authority of this forgery, to the "Carthage Greys," in whose possession it now is. We learn also, that the Governor has sent an agent to Carthage, to take possession of all the state arms, in the hands of these incipient rioters.

By last night's mail we also received a letter from Hancock stating that twenty-seven hours had elapsed, since the hour set by the "Carthage Greys" for driving Mr. Backenstos out of the county. He is well prepared for any villains that may molest him; and expects a night, at rack from them. It is the duty of every good citizen; of every republican freeman, of every lover of the constitution, and laws, to stand by Mr. Backenstos in this emergency. It would be a disgrace to our republican institutions, and to American liberty, if these lawless desperadoes succeeded in forcing Mr. Backenstos to leave the county, for words spoken in debate, the freedom of which is guaranteed by the constitution of the state, and of the United States.

The above extracts from the State Register at Springfield, are highly creditable. Mr. Backenstos is yet in Carthage and probably will be for the present. If all the honest men in the state, would thus rise against mobocracy, two places at least, would smell sweeter after ventilation.

There was recently a fire at Milwaukee, which destroyed about $91,000 worth of property.

The charter Election in New York, for Mayor, resulted in favor of the Democrats. The Natives have hardly a scab left, as to hope for future success.

Suggesting the Gentiles.—It is said, says the Missouri Reporter, that Orson Hyde has assumed the post of prophet and head of the Mormon Church. That we believe is the station to which Sidney Rigdon, apostle, had been appointed. We have not learned by what process Orson Hyde has assumed the Twelve. The division among the Mormons will probably cause this delusion soon to pass away, as the thousands of others which preceded it, have done.

O dear! "the delusion pass away." O dear! doctor, can you tell what will cure a sick generation? Yes, I think I can—

"Feed them with judgment!" O dear! an Editor talks about prophets, who do not know a prophet's voice, from the bray of an ass; how wise! "The delusion will pass away as others preceding have done." Well, Mr. Penn, you have touched the inspired harp, and foretold the end of the delusion; now hand, let some of the bob-tailed believers stand you with false prophet!

But hearken to wisdom. May God who never errs, sprinkle upon every man and city, that believes the saints, as upon Pitsburg, now and then, a hot drop!

Roman Catholics in the United States.—The Metropolitan almanac gives a summary of the Catholic Church in the United States, from which we collect the following:—There are dioceses 21; bishops 26; churches 675; other stations 592; clergymen on missions 572; clergyman on missions and otherwise employed 137; ecclesiastical institutions 22; clerical students 222; literary institutions for young men 28; female religious institutions 20; female academies 63; charitable institutions 91; population 3,115,800. To show the progress of the Catholics, the following comparative statistics are given:—1835—13 dioceses, 14 bishops, 275 churches, 337 priests, 12 ecclesiastical seminaries, and 9 colleges; 1840—16 dioceses, 16 bishops, 454 churches, 431 priests, 16 ecclesiastical seminaries and 11 colleges; 1845—21 dioceses, 26 bishops, 675 churches, 703 priests, 22 ecclesiastical seminaries and 15 colleges.

Well, what harm is there in the spread of the Catholic religion? It certainly was the original of the Protestant, and for more than one thousand years, held the power, if it was not withdrawn to bind on earth and bind in heaven, and loose on earth and loose in heaven.

Testimony in favor of Missions.—Rev. Mr. Tustun, chaplain to the United States Senate, has addressed a letter to Hon. Caleb Cushing, late commissioner to China, asking his opinion in relation to the missionary efforts in that country. Mr. Cushing replies that "in the late negotiations, important, not to say indispensable services were derived from American missionaries in China, and more especially from Dr. Bridgman and Dr. Parker." He says that their intimate knowledge of China and the Chinese, made them invaluable as advisers, and their high character contributed to give weight and moral strength to the mission. After alluding to the valuable philological labors of missionaries to China, he closes thus:—"Permit me to add that, eminently great as this their incidental utility has been, it is but a small point comparatively among the great and good deeds of the religious missionaries in the East. There is not a nobler nor a more deeply interesting chapter than this in the history of human courage, intellect, self-sacrifice, greatness and virtue; and it remains yet to be written in a manner worthy of the dignity of the subject, and of its relations to civilization and government, as well as to the Christian church."—Gazette.

And Jesus said unto them, "ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts; for that which is highly esteemed among men, is an abomination in the sight of God." So much for popularity.

communications.

Mr. Eliot—Permit me through your paper to offer a few reflections on what I conceive to be the moral character of a lawyer.

The vulgar notion is, that lawyers are seldom honest men. I quote our profession abounds in opportunities for the practice of tricks, sophistry, stratagem, and chicanery; and because occasionally, lawyers have been found, who will stoop to these vile expedients, the exceptions are perforce mistaken for the general rule, and the more ignorant part of the community seem ready to believe that the conscience of every lawyer can be bought and sold; they also affect to find scripture authority for this prejudice, in the too so emphatically denounced upon lawyers; not knowing that a very different set of lawyers are there annihilated. But the most efficient cause of this wholesale label upon the profession of law, is to be found in the fact that, with few exceptions, wherever you find a lawyer introduced into the popular fictions of the day, you find him represented as an ardent knave; I need not refer to instances, for hundreds will suggest themselves. You can scarcely call to mind a novel or a drama where a lawyer figures, in all in which he is not made use of to help out some infamous scheme of villainy. In fact I have heard this very circumstance made use of or adduced to prove that rascality must be a prominent attribute of the profession; but but the cause of the misrepresentation will, may, we know the fact to be, that popular sentiment is generally against us, inasmuch that the question is often asked whether the world would not be better off without lawyers; no doubt it would be a happy state of society in which lawyers could be entirely dispensed with, for it would be that perfect state in which laws themselves would be superfluous;—and it may also be admitted, that just in proportion as law becomes simple and certain, the demand for lawyers will grow less, because litigation which is their element will be correspondingly diminished; but so long as the rights of spirit exists among mankind, and the uncertainty which belongs to all human affairs, furnishes occasion for its exercise, the principle which requires a division of labor in all other cases, will require, also in this; and we may safely conclude, that a distinct class of men, will always be required to conduct the litigation of their fellow men; indeed those who join in the obloquy so ignorantly cast upon lawyers, seem to forget that in so doing they reproach mankind at large. Let the demand for lawyers be diminished, and the supply will correspond. Let men cease to be contentious, and be always ready to do right without compulsion, and lawyers will not trouble them.

But while it is evident, that without dishonest clients there would be no dishonest lawyers; and as a profession we are grossly belied by this indiscriminate censure, yet it may perhaps be safely admitted that the standard of professional ethics, is not a ways as elevated as the honor of the profession requires it should be. In fact it is by no means easy to fix the precise standard; there is not perhaps a more difficult question in chemistry, than that which every lawyer has to decide; in determining the nature and extent of his professional obligation. (We have this however to learn in the outset, that in becoming attorneys, we do not cease to be moral agents, that in pleading our services to our clients, we do not also pledge to them our consciences; and maintain no principle can justify us in doing, or our clients in requiring us to do for them what we should blush to think of doing for ourselves.)

It is so obvious that even on selfish motives, honesty is the best policy for a lawyer, as it is for all other men; and therefore that in consulting with clients we are not only morally bound to tell them frankly our real opinion, but it is our interest to do so, because otherwise we should soon cease to be consulted.

Again it is clear that in conducting proceedings through the various stages of litigation, we can never be justified in attempting to mislead either the court or jury, by wilfully misrepresenting the law or the facts; thus far there can be no room for hesitation. But if a lawyer believes that his client has the wrong side of the cause, and have candidly told him so, he is then justified in undertaking his cause, if he should persist in having it

communications.

Mr. Eliot—Permit me through your paper to offer a few reflections on what I conceive to be the moral character of a lawyer.

The vulgar notion is, that lawyers are seldom honest men. I quote our profession abounds in opportunities for the practice of tricks, sophistry, stratagem, and chicanery; and because occasionally, lawyers have been found, who will stoop to these vile expedients, the exceptions are perforce mistaken for the general rule, and the more ignorant part of the community seem ready to believe that the conscience of every lawyer can be bought and sold; they also affect to find scripture authority for this prejudice, in the too so emphatically denounced upon lawyers; not knowing that a very different set of lawyers are there annihilated. But the most efficient cause of this wholesale label upon the profession of law, is to be found in the fact that, with few exceptions, wherever you find a lawyer introduced into the popular fictions of the day, you find him represented as an ardent knave; I need not refer to instances, for hundreds will suggest themselves. You can scarcely call to mind a novel or a drama where a lawyer figures, in all in which he is not made use of to help out some infamous scheme of villainy. In fact I have heard this very circumstance made use of or adduced to prove that rascality must be a prominent attribute of the profession; but but the cause of the misrepresentation will, may, we know the fact to be, that popular sentiment is generally against us, inasmuch that the question is often asked whether the world would not be better off without lawyers; no doubt it would be a happy state of society in which lawyers could be entirely dispensed with, for it would be that perfect state in which laws themselves would be superfluous;—and it may also be admitted, that just in proportion as law becomes simple and certain, the demand for lawyers will grow less, because litigation which is their element will be correspondingly diminished; but so long as the rights of spirit exists among mankind, and the uncertainty which belongs to all human affairs, furnishes occasion for its exercise, the principle which requires a division of labor in all other cases, will require, also in this; and we may safely conclude, that a distinct class of men, will always be required to conduct the litigation of their fellow men; indeed those who join in the obloquy so ignorantly cast upon lawyers, seem to forget that in so doing they reproach mankind at large. Let the demand for lawyers be diminished, and the supply will correspond. Let men cease to be contentious, and be always ready to do right without compulsion, and lawyers will not trouble them.

But while it is evident, that without dishonest clients there would be no dishonest lawyers; and as a profession we are grossly belied by this indiscriminate censure, yet it may perhaps be safely admitted that the standard of professional ethics, is not a ways as elevated as the honor of the profession requires it should be. In fact it is by no means easy to fix the precise standard; there is not perhaps a more difficult question in chemistry, than that which every lawyer has to decide; in determining the nature and extent of his professional obligation. (We have this however to learn in the outset, that in becoming attorneys, we do not cease to be moral agents, that in pleading our services to our clients, we do not also pledge to them our consciences; and maintain no principle can justify us in doing, or our clients in requiring us to do for them what we should blush to think of doing for ourselves.)

It is so obvious that even on selfish motives, honesty is the best policy for a lawyer, as it is for all other men; and therefore that in consulting with clients we are not only morally bound to tell them frankly our real opinion, but it is our interest to do so, because otherwise we should soon cease to be consulted.

Again it is clear that in conducting proceedings through the various stages of litigation, we can never be justified in attempting to mislead either the court or jury, by wilfully misrepresenting the law or the facts; thus far there can be no room for hesitation. But if a lawyer believes that his client has the wrong side of the cause, and have candidly told him so, he is then justified in undertaking his cause, if he should persist in having it

communications.

Mr. Eliot—Permit me through your paper to offer a few reflections on what I conceive to be the moral character of a lawyer.

The vulgar notion is, that lawyers are seldom honest men. I quote our profession abounds in opportunities for the practice of tricks, sophistry, stratagem, and chicanery; and because occasionally, lawyers have been found, who will stoop to these vile expedients, the exceptions are perforce mistaken for the general rule, and the more ignorant part of the community seem ready to believe that the conscience of every lawyer can be bought and sold; they also affect to find scripture authority for this prejudice, in the too so emphatically denounced upon lawyers; not knowing that a very different set of lawyers are there annihilated. But the most efficient cause of this wholesale label upon the profession of law, is to be found in the fact that, with few exceptions, wherever you find a lawyer introduced into the popular fictions of the day, you find him represented as an ardent knave; I need not refer to instances, for hundreds will suggest themselves. You can scarcely call to mind a novel or a drama where a lawyer figures, in all in which he is not made use of to help out some infamous scheme of villainy. In fact I have heard this very circumstance made use of or adduced to prove that rascality must be a prominent attribute of the profession; but but the cause of the misrepresentation will, may, we know the fact to be, that popular sentiment is generally against us, inasmuch that the question is often asked whether the world would not be better off without lawyers; no doubt it would be a happy state of society in which lawyers could be entirely dispensed with, for it would be that perfect state in which laws themselves would be superfluous;—and it may also be admitted, that just in proportion as law becomes simple and certain, the demand for lawyers will grow less, because litigation which is their element will be correspondingly diminished; but so long as the rights of spirit exists among mankind, and the uncertainty which belongs to all human affairs, furnishes occasion for its exercise, the principle which requires a division of labor in all other cases, will require, also in this; and we may safely conclude, that a distinct class of men, will always be required to conduct the litigation of their fellow men; indeed those who join in the obloquy so ignorantly cast upon lawyers, seem to forget that in so doing they reproach mankind at large. Let the demand for lawyers be diminished, and the supply will correspond. Let men cease to be contentious, and be always ready to do right without compulsion, and lawyers will not trouble them.

But while it is evident, that without dishonest clients there would be no dishonest lawyers; and as a profession we are grossly belied by this indiscriminate censure, yet it may perhaps be safely admitted that the standard of professional ethics, is not a ways as elevated as the honor of the profession requires it should be. In fact it is by no means easy to fix the precise standard; there is not perhaps a more difficult question in chemistry, than that which every lawyer has to decide; in determining the nature and extent of his professional obligation. (We have this however to learn in the outset, that in becoming attorneys, we do not cease to be moral agents, that in pleading our services to our clients, we do not also pledge to them our consciences; and maintain no principle can justify us in doing, or our clients in requiring us to do for them what we should blush to think of doing for ourselves.)

It is so obvious that even on selfish motives, honesty is the best policy for a lawyer, as it is for all other men; and therefore that in consulting with clients we are not only morally bound to tell them frankly our real opinion, but it is our interest to do so, because otherwise we should soon cease to be consulted.

Again it is clear that in conducting proceedings through the various stages of litigation, we can never be justified in attempting to mislead either the court or jury, by wilfully misrepresenting the law or the facts; thus far there can be no room for hesitation. But if a lawyer believes that his client has the wrong side of the cause, and have candidly told him so, he is then justified in undertaking his cause, if he should persist in having it

communications.

Mr. Eliot—Permit me through your paper to offer a few reflections on what I conceive to be the moral character of a lawyer.

The vulgar notion is, that lawyers are seldom honest men. I quote our profession abounds in opportunities for the practice of tricks, sophistry, stratagem, and chicanery; and because occasionally, lawyers have been found, who will stoop to these vile expedients, the exceptions are perforce mistaken for the general rule, and the more ignorant part of the community seem ready to believe that the conscience of every lawyer can be bought and sold; they also affect to find scripture authority for this prejudice, in the too so emphatically denounced upon lawyers; not knowing that a very different set of lawyers are there annihilated. But the most efficient cause of this wholesale label upon the profession of law, is to be found in the fact that, with few exceptions, wherever you find a lawyer introduced into the popular fictions of the day, you find him represented as an ardent knave; I need not refer to instances, for hundreds will suggest themselves. You can scarcely call to mind a novel or a drama where a lawyer figures, in all in which he is not made use of to help out some infamous scheme of villainy. In fact I have heard this very circumstance made use of or adduced to prove that rascality must be a prominent attribute of the profession; but but the cause of the misrepresentation will, may, we know the fact to be, that popular sentiment is generally against us, inasmuch that the question is often asked whether the world would not be better off without lawyers; no doubt it would be a happy state of society in which lawyers could be entirely dispensed with, for it would be that perfect state in which laws themselves would be superfluous;—and it may also be admitted, that just in proportion as law becomes simple and certain, the demand for lawyers will grow less, because litigation which is their element will be correspondingly diminished; but so long as the rights of spirit exists among mankind, and the uncertainty which belongs to all human affairs, furnishes occasion for its exercise, the principle which requires a division of labor in all other cases, will require, also in this; and we may safely conclude, that a distinct class of men, will always be required to conduct the litigation of their fellow men; indeed those who join in the obloquy so ignorantly cast upon lawyers, seem to forget that in so doing they reproach mankind at large. Let the demand for lawyers be diminished, and the supply will correspond. Let men cease to be contentious, and be always ready to do right without compulsion, and lawyers will not trouble them.

But while it is evident, that without dishonest clients there would be no dishonest lawyers; and as a profession we are grossly belied by this indiscriminate censure, yet it may perhaps be safely admitted that the standard of professional ethics, is not a ways as elevated as the honor of the profession requires it should be. In fact it is by no means easy to fix the precise standard; there is not perhaps a more difficult question in chemistry, than that which every lawyer has to decide; in determining the nature and extent of his professional obligation. (We have this however to learn in the outset, that in becoming attorneys, we do not cease to be moral agents, that in pleading our services to our clients, we do not also pledge to them our consciences; and maintain no principle can justify us in doing, or our clients in requiring us to do for them what we should blush to think of doing for ourselves.)

It is so obvious that even on selfish motives, honesty is the best policy for a lawyer, as it is for all other men; and therefore that in consulting with clients we are not only morally bound to tell them frankly our real opinion, but it is our interest to do so, because otherwise we should soon cease to be consulted.

Again it is clear that in conducting proceedings through the various stages of litigation, we can never be justified in attempting to mislead either the court or jury, by wilfully misrepresenting the law or the facts; thus far there can be no room for hesitation. But if a lawyer believes that his client has the wrong side of the cause, and have candidly told him so, he is then justified in undertaking his cause, if he should persist in having it

communications.

Mr. Eliot—Permit me through your paper to offer a few reflections on what I conceive to be the moral character of a lawyer.

The vulgar notion is, that lawyers are seldom honest men. I quote our profession abounds in opportunities for the practice of tricks, sophistry, stratagem, and chicanery; and because occasionally, lawyers have been found, who will stoop to these vile expedients, the exceptions are perforce mistaken for the

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, April 1st, 1845, which if not taken out on or before the 30th June next, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters.

N. B. Any person calling for any of the following list of letters, will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Ackley John C
Adams Andrew
Adams Moore
Allen Charles
Allen Orlow N
Allen Jude
Allen Ezra
Andrews Amos B
Andrews Amos

Bates Ormus E 2
Bates Nelson
Babbie Loten
Bailey Loten or Rox
Baker Jesse
Barton John Baylor Watson
Baxter Z H
Bentley Johnson J
Beil Samuel
Beach Orson G
Beach John Becher Isaac
Berry John Blackman Joseph S
Black Abraham
Boyd William
Boyd Hannah A 2

Campbell Jonathan
Calkins Israel Jr
Carter Samuel Carter Simon
Card Alonzo
Card Matthew J
Chapman Jane
Chase Mr
Chase Isaac
Chase John D
Chase John Chasey Ephraim
Cogswell Wm
Cogswell William
Condit A W or Silas
Cooper M R
Cook Joseph or Aliaz
Cooke Margaret

Davis James Drullinger Hannah
Duke Jonathan 2
Dunham Albert

Edmonds Joel
Elliot B White
Emery John

Fanny Mary
Fairbanks Susan
Faunce Noah M
Fawkes Mary
Felshaw William Ferring Franklin
Finch John M

Gent George
Gibbs Sarah
Gifford Levi
Gillett Truman
Gillett Gideon
Gilmore Prudence
Goddard Benjamin
Goodwin Egbert
Graves Phoebe
Granger Lydia
Graham Carter

Hales Charles
Hales James
Hanks Jane
Hall Thomas
Hallam William Hammond John or Jo Hammond Thomas
Hawkins Benjamin
Hard Mary
Hart Aaron 2
Hartley George
Harwell Eliot
Hayes Katharine Haven James H
Hendricks James Herringshaw & Thomson

Inzeroll Nancy
Jacob Norton
Jacobs Brian
Jacobs Zina D
Jarratt James Jellands Oren 2
Jenkins Hannah

Kain Richard Koyzer Guy M
Kidd Thomas
King Eleazer Jr
King Thomas
King Caroline S
Kinney Sarah Ann

Layton Christopher Lenders Ebenezer
Lawrence Charles
Lawrence Sarah
Lawrence Charles I
Langley Johnson
Leary William
Lewis James Little Edwin

Martindale Wm
Mace Wanda Marion Reuben
Marion Edward Markham Stephen
Markham Warren
Mayberry Mary
Matthew Thomas
Merrill Mary Jane
Merrill Edward 2
Merrill Joseph Jr
Merrill E G
Middleton John J
Middleton John J
Miller Elizabeth
Miller Nelson
Moan Bartholomew J
Moore John
Moore Sarah
Morris Jemima

Nokes Thomas
Northrop Josephus
Nourse George Nowell Silas

Oathouse John Oviat Ira

Packard Philip
Parrish Samuel
Parker John
Parsons David H
Parsons William
Patterson Mary
Patterson Mary Ann
Parker Mary
Parker Mary
Parker Mary

Perry Napoleon
Perry John
Perry Stephen

Ralph William
Rawson Horace
Raymond Peaslee
Reed John Reed John H Reeves William
Ree Asaph
Richards Saml W
Richards W
Richards Dr
Richie John

Sabin Ara
Sabin Ara W Sagert Edward Sagert S V Seals Samuel
Seay Joseph K
Shannon Rowland
Shelley Joseph Sheridan Eliam
Simmons William
Smith Rodney R
Smith Mary
Smith James A Sister Susannah

Thomas Martha P
Thomas J R
Thompson Jackson

Walker John R
Walker William Wardell John
Waterman John
Waterman John O
Webb Joe
Webb Samuel 2
Weible Edson
White Samuel
White S S Wiley Robert

Young Seth
Young Alphonse 3

Young Geo W

ELIAS SMITH, P. M.

NAUVOO SEMINARY.

THE subscriber having been compelled to discontinue his school through the winter, on account of the weakness of his eyes, will commence his spring term on Monday the 14th of April next, in the Seventies Hall, where he will be well pleased to merit as many of his former pupils as can attend.

Terms of Tuition per quarter of sixty days.

Reading, Spelling, and Writing, $2.00 Grammar, Geography and Arithmetical, 2.50
Natural Philosophy, 3.00
Book Keeping, 4.00

No allowance will be made for occasional absence—tuition and various kinds of trade taken in payment for tuition, but cash will be expected in all cases where there is no agreement made to the contrary. A very liberal deduction will be made for cash, provisions, or clothing paid in advance.

ELI B. KELSEY.

Nauvoo, March 30, 1845-3w

CHESNUT TREES.

THE subscriber has about 10 or 11,000 beautiful chesnut trees, in the garden near Willard Richards near the Temple, now ready for sale. Now is the time for transplanting. They will be sold low.

P. H. YOUNG.

Nauvoo, March 27, 1845-48-3w

TAKE NOTICE.

THE subscriber, the administrator of the estate of Geo Cannon, deceased, will sell at public vendue, at the house of the deceased, on the 1st day of May 1845, the personal property of said estate. Terms of sale for all sums over five dollars, a credit of three months will be given. Purchasers giving bond and security to be approved by the administrator. Sums under five dollars cash.

CHARLES LAMBERT, Admr.

of the estate of G. Cannon.

April 2, 1845-48-3w

MERMAID.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET

FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMING-TON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings;—and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as 'plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity.' For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent,

for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-4f

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 24, 47f

Triber Eliza 2
Pugh Mary

Riley John

Roberts George

Roberts Robert

Roberts Horace

Roberts John W

Rowe C Maria

Ross Chas 2

Rose John

Rose Francis

Royleigh Alonzo H

Russell Daniel

Southworth Chester

Smoot A O

Springue Richard D 2

Starks Zilpha

Stanley Thomas

Stanley A S

Steed John

Stewart John

Stoddard B n n S

Stoddard Israel

Squires Charlotte

Sweet John

Swisher Andrew

Switz J

Thompson Harvey

Thompson William

Townsend James 2

Wiley William

Wilson Lewis D

Williams Abigail

Williams Albert

Williams James

Williams W

Wood Daniel

Woodward Jedediah S

Woodworth Parmenus

Wright Robert

Wright William

York Geo W

ELIAS SMITH, P. M.

NOTICE—The subscriber takes this method of informing his friends and the public in general, that he has opened the large brick store, on the corner of Parley and Carlin streets, one block east of Main street; for the purpose of doing a general Commission and Storage business, both for home and foreign manufacture; and hopes by his close and strict attention to business, and the long experience he has had, he will share a liberal portion of public patronage.

To the different associations of mechanics he would say, any articles left with him for sale, will be sold according to instruction given; if left to my own discretion, they will be sold to the best advantage.

I am prepared to store a large quantity of Flour and Grain. Any shipments that my customers may wish to make there will be no charge for taking bills of lading, nor for receiving goods at the landing more than for drayage.

Refer to close attention to business.

SAMUEL GULLEY.

March 31, 1845-44f

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinetware, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch forks; finally, anything that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Fowls, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buckwheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-43f

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845-44f

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city; wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-43f

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing rope of all descriptions, twine, chalk-lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 10-42f

NOTICE—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or for the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18-46f

LARGE NOTICE.

Warning! is now out and for sale at this office.

OSPREY.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.
THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1-2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evans' Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo

Jan. 1, 1845-35f

HAT STORE.

THE subscriber has taken a store on Mulholland St., half a mile east of the Temple, where he now offers for sale Fur and Silk Hats of the latest fashions, and manufactured of the best of materials.

Country produce taken in exchange.

Also a good assortment of Groceries and Provisions.

A. MERRILL.

Nov. 26, 1844-30f

MR. HUGH PATRICK, Dentist, begs to announce to the ladies and gentlemen of this city, his removal to that part of the post office, lately occupied by Mr. S. Rigdon, and returns his sincere thanks to his numerous friends in this city and surrounding country; for the extensive patronage he has received since he arrived here, and in doing so, he would assure them the same unremitting attention, which has hitherto gained for him the approbation of those by whom he has been favored, it shall be his constant object to cultivate.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

Also H. Patrick, begs leave to inform the public in general, that he continues manufacturing the various articles in the above line; rings, bracelets, pins, seals, keys, bracelets, chains, and various other ornaments too numerous to mention, two thirds of the payments expected in cash. Old gold and silver taken in exchange.

Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1845-35f

LOOK HERE.

THE undersigned will exchange a few town lots, for Horses, Cattle, Wagons and Harnesses.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Jan. 27th, 1845-30f

WANTED by the subscriber, the following Neighbors: Sept. 20, 843; Feb. 28 and July 3, 1844. Also Nos. 4 and 25 of the Wasp.

W. RICHARDS.

March 10-46f

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Chariotees, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Ruggy Wagons, Harnesses, Sportsmen's Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also, Ploughs, Scythe snaths, Rakes, &c. &c. which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Water street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yensley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices. For we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done, in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Prest.

ELIJAH FORDHAM, Clerk.

SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.

BURR FROST.

DAVID DE VOL.

JOSHUA SMITH.

DAVID W. FOX.

SHADRACH DRIGGS.

DWIGHT WEBSTER.

JESSE H. ATHERTON.

WM. LISK.

Jan. 15th, 1845-37-1f

CONSUMPTION OF THE LUNGS.
Coughs and Colds, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pains or Soreness of the Chest, Difficulty of Breathing, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, &c.

AMONG all the famous medicines for Consumption, none seems to be meeting with greater success, or gaining a higher reputation than that most wonderful article, Wistar's Balm of Wild Cherry! That it stands at the head of all other remedies is now universally conceded. It has cured thousands upon thousands—of all classes—in cases of the most dangerously Consumptive character—and physicians of the greatest eminence throughout our whole country unhesitatingly recommended it as the most powerful curative of Pulmonary diseases, in the whole range of Pharmacy. Thousands of consumptive patients have affixed tested its exalted virtues, and confessed its surpassing, excellent and amazing power. The remarkable success of this Balm is no doubt owing in a great measure to the peculiarly agreeable and powerful nature of its ingredients. It is a fine Herbal Medicine, composed chiefly of Wild Cherry Bark and the genuine Iceland Moss—the latter imported expressly for this purpose—the rare medicinal virtues of which are also combined, with a new chemical process with the Extract of Tar—thus rendering the whole Compound the most certain and efficacious remedy ever discovered!

A CASE OF ASTHMA.

The following is from a distinguished Lawyer of the city of New York, who had been afflicted with the Asthma for upwards of Twenty Years; and who, after reading such cases can doubt the efficacy of this medicine!

New York, January 25, 1843.

I have been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for 24 years—sometimes so severely as to be confined to my room for weeks; and although attended by various medical advisers, of the highest reputation and skill in the country, the relief was but partial and temporary—twice the disease proved nearly fatal to my life. Some few weeks ago I commenced taking Wistar's Balm of Wild Cherry, which gave me instant relief, and a single bottle produced in a few days what I believed to be a radical and perfect cure.

A. WILLIAMS, Attorney at Law.

No. 58 Williams St., New York.

We are acquainted with the writer of the above certificate, and his statements are entitled to the full confidence of the public.

F. A. FALMADGE.

Recorder of the city of New York.

JOHN POWER, D. D.,

Vicar General of New York.

P. S. The above certificate may be seen at No. 125 Fulton street, New York.

Price $1 per bottle, or six for $5.

All orders from dealers south and west of the Wabash river should be addressed to Benja. The p. 76 Chestnut street, St. Louis, Mo. The above truly valuable medicine is for sale at this office.

E. B. 13-42-3m

BENJAMIN PHELPS,

No. 76 Chestnut Street,

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

WESTERN GENERAL AGENT FOR ALL THE

BEST FAMILY MEDICINES.

OFFERS to Dealers and others the following highly popular and valuable Medicines:

Wistar's balm of wild cherry

Rev. L. Cover's balm of life

Humphrey's Pile ointment

Dr. Williamson's pain soother

Brate's rheumatic liniment and pills

Sappington's pills

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 2.—No. 52.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, April 30, 1845.

Whole Number 146

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Water and Bain Street,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

Debauchery of New York.—To show

the awful debauchery of the Christian

Cities of the world; we extract the following.

SUBTERRANEAN SCENES IN

NEW YORK.

Ireneus, in the N. Y. Observer, quotes from notes of a friend the following account of a recent exploration of one of the living hell in that city, which corroborates the reports heretofore made by Dickens:

"It was midnight. We had an appointment with an officer of the city police, one of the oldest and truest of that department, to meet us at the—House, and we were all ready. The neighborhood we proposed to visit was unsafe for any man to enter in the night unless well protected, and we had therefore taken such precaution as the first law of nature dictates in such cases. Turning down L—-to O—-street, we came to a large white-washed door at which the officer tapped as if giving a signal to be understood within. The door was cautiously opened and we stood enveloped in darkness, but the sound of distant music fell upon our ears. We groped our way to a flight of stairs, down which we marched, the officer being at the head, till we came to another door guarded by a porter, who proved to be the presiding genius of the establishment. He knew the officer; at a glance, and was as complaisant as if a new customer had come;

and on being informed that we were on a pleasure excursion through his dominions, he threw open his ball-room door, and there, as sure as life, was a sight, such as the disordered brain of a madman might conjure, but which we had never ventured to believe was one of nightly similar scenes in this Christian city. A motley multitude of men and women, yellow and white, black and dingy, old and young, ugly and—no, not handsome; God forbid that beauty should ever bloom in such a hot-bed as this—but there they were, a set of male and female

Bacchantes, dancing to the tamborine and fiddle; giggling and laughing in a style peculiar to the remote descendants of Ham, and making 'night hideous' with their lascivious orgies. Talk of the degradation of the heathen; of savage pow-wows, and Pagan carnivals; and stir up sympathy for the slaves of sin in the depths of Africa or Asia. Here we were within a stone's throw of the City Hall, in the centre of the first city in the most

Christian country on the earth, and here was a sight to make the heart sick and bleed. On one side of the room was a bar, tended by a rascally looking wretch who dealt out the liquors to the frequent calls of his customers; and as the drinking and filling went on, the fury of the company waxed fiercer, until the scene was as unreal and bewildering as if we had been suddenly ushered into the re-veiling halls of the Prince of darkness.

"Wandering through this horrid group was a young man whom we recognized make them fair, danced like celestial virgins in the blue ethereal sky, and we could scarcely believe that, under such a canopy, there could be such scenes as we had just left."

THE SULTAN AT HOME:

The Imperial Harem at Constantinople.

Before the Sultan enters his harem at night, (and it is not customary for him to do so during the day,) he communicates to the agha in waiting the name of the ka-dinn; whom he proposes to summon to his couch. The agha conveys the message to the Khat Khoda, who announces it to the first lady in waiting on the kadinn, all of whom have the honor of receiving the Sultan's visits in regular succession.

Should indisposition prevent this, the next in turn is selected. At the appointed time, which is generally after vatsy namazy, (night of the fifth prayer,) the Sultan proceeds to the harem dividing the harem from the mabim or Salanlyk.

Here all his attendants, save the black aghia on duty, make their obeisance, and the door is opened by the portress inside.

Care is taken that all issues looking upon the inner galleries, through which the monarch passes, shall be closed. No person is permitted to appear, and perfect silence is maintained.

The Sultan has a suit of apartments within the harem, to which the designated lady is generally conducted, and from which she withdraws at dawn. But sometimes he honors the kadinn in her own apartment. In the latter case a signal is given by the aghia, who precedes the monarch with lights; and the door being opened, the Sultan is received by the lady and her slaves with the most abject demonstrations of respect. The same silence and mystery are observed in the morning.

Should his highness bathe within the harem, which never occurs unless indisposition should prevent his quitting the interior, he is served by women allotted to this duty. They consist of gedeklik, (chosen) who are alone entitled to this honor. This process is conducted with rigid attention to etiquette and propriety, under the superintendence of two or more elderly costs. The imperial bath is enveloped in crimson silk clothes embroidered in gold, called pestamel, and the attendants are attired in light but ample dresses.

This ceremony is contrary to our ideas of delicacy. Nevertheless, it is more decorous than might be supposed. The old costs perform the required services while the sultan is within the heated room; and it is not until he returns to the vestry that the younger gedeklik approach, in order to offer refreshments, and to divert him with songs or stories, and this with most severe and rigid respect for decorum.

When it is the Sultan's pleasure to take refreshments in the apartments of any lady, he is waited upon by that lady's slaves. Sweetmeats, cakes, fruits, sherbets, coffee, ices, and other delicacies prepared by their own zealous hands, are presented. Each kadinn has a small kitchen, and great rivalry is exhibited in seeking to gratify the monarch with dainties, for which he is known to entertain a predilection. The evening is employed in playing with the children, if the kadinn be a mother, in listening to the songs or recitations of the most accomplished slaves, and in examining jewelry and es of meat, confectionary and fruit.

Sometimes, especially on Fridays, his highness proceeds direct from the harem to the bath.

When the Sultan receives one or more ladies in his state apartments within the harem, he is attended by all the great ladies of the palace, and is waited upon by the gedeklik, and also by the first ladies attached to the kadins or sultanas who may be present. Sometimes the whole harem is admitted to his presence, and diverted with music, dances, and mimic exhibitions, performed by slaves constituting what may be termed the corps de ballet. The crowd of beauty, the splendor of dresses and jewelry, the richness of furniture, and brilliancy of illumination are then said to rival the fairy creations of the Arabian tales; but,

with the exception of one frank lady, a

Spaniard, residing at Pera, no stranger was ever admitted to these dazzling spectacles.

The idea of one man ruling uncontrolled over an assemblage of some three hundred and fifty women, two-thirds of whom are selected for their personal charms, almost bewilders imagination, and leads to strange reflections. But our notions on this subject are for the most part erroneous. The harem etiquette is observed with the most minute punctiliousness and severity, and forms a barrier to indulgence. Indeed, if religious and moral scruples, combined with court regulations, did not curb the will of the master, the jealousy of kadins, and the watchful eye of the Khat Khoda, and oostas would restrain indiscriminate indulgence.

Every movement, every look of the Sultan, within the harem or mabim, is regulated by scrupulous attention to rules, and to the claims and privileges of each individual entitled to notice. Infractions of these rules, and gratifications of caprice, doubtless take place; but the tales that are recounted at Pera, the pandemonium of ignorance, falsehood, and venality, and the absurdities we read of unbounded profligacy, are fictions founded upon malice on one side, and upon excessive credulity on the other. The avidity with which foreigners seek for and listen to the inventions of Perote informants, encourages the latter to amuse themselves at the expense of travelers, and thus to mislead Europe. Fifty instances, some of which have appeared in print, might be enumerated.

Now-a-days the Sultan dares not openly overstep the bounds of propriety, nor can he indulge his caprices secretly without adopting precautions not to offend the laws of decorum, and the admitted rights of his kadins. Even in former days these rules could not always be infringed with impunity. One of the causes that led to the death of Sultan Ibrahim, in 1648, was his contempt for harem regulations, and his abuse of power over his numerous female slaves. Similar disregard to domestic duties and morality led to the disgrace and death of Damad Zadeh Efendi, Sheikh Islam under the Sultan Abdoul Hamid, A. D. 1785. This vizier, not less celebrated for unbounded profligacy than for talents and learning, long fascinated the Sultan and people; but he carried licentiousness to such extremes, that the very lowest classes were scin-dalized, and he fell scorned by all men.

The Turks are by no means patterns of morality; but it is indisputable that the

The law which ordains the legitimacy of all offspring of free Moslem fathers, no matter what the mother's condition, also acts as a check upon indulgence. The issue of female slaves being entitled to all privileges of inheritance, although the mothers be not kadins, the result would be a most inconvenient multiplication of legitimate heirs, or indiscriminate infanticide. Unfortunately, the latter expedient, anterior to birth, is often resorted to in the imperial harem and in private families, although it is rigidly forbidden by law, and perpetrators are liable to the death penalty for murder. (The law is strictly enforced in Constantinople.)

This prayer is invariably announced an hour and a half after Aksham (sunset)

namazy.

The children of each kadinn remain under the mother's care, and the utmost vigilance is exercised by them in watching over their charges, lest the jealousy of rivals should lead to fatal consequences.

The lady in question, gifted with great musical talents, was invited by the Sultan's command, to pass three or four days with the kadins and Sultanas:

The night watch, within and without the seraglio, is set about 10 P. M., and all fires and lights, save those in the niches, are extinguished. The signal for extinguishing lights, and for the whole harem to retire to rest, is the explosion of several rockets fired from the guard ship at anchor near the palace.

It is notorious that several women gain their livelihood by preparing drugs calculated to destroy life in the germ, while others enjoy a most unholy reputation for

TEXAS.
The Picayune has four columns of Texan correspondence, from Kendall and others, with regard to annexation.

Already have the citizens of Texas taken the alarm, and the idea of calling country conventions, to press the business forward, has been favorably considered. Gen. Henderson has taken the stump, advocating annexation strongly, and others of the more influential men have come out in its support; in the western section, a large majority of the more wealthy inhabitants are lending all their influence to bring about the measure. The opposition lies principally among the English merchants, especially the English, and those holding office or in some way dependent upon the present Government.

We learn that President Jones has returned to Washington, and that the United States Minister, Major Donelson, had been treated so cavalierly by him and his Cabinet, that he spoke of withdrawing from the seat of Government to Galveston. This intelligence is from sources so direct as to have no room to doubt its accuracy.

From all that we learn, we are constrained to believe, that if a rupture with Major Donelson would assist in procrastinating action with the acquiescence of the people, President Jones would edify the nation with another exequatur proclamation. It is very evident that the interests of the people of Texas have become a minor consideration to the interests of some of her officials; and our suspicious mislead us, if the enquiry for the present is not, what will certain individuals gain by accepting or rejecting annexation?

Mr. Saligny and the Hon. Ashbel Smith, Texan Secretary of State, came passengers in the N. York. Our information leads us to infer, that these gentlemen have come to the United States upon business connected with annexation. We have been informed that such was the eagerness of the French Charge to reach the city, that when the New York stopped a few miles below to take in wood, he procured a horse, and set out, immediately, and arrived in town on Saturday night. We have been told that Mr. Saligny asserted, in terms rather more peremptory than are generally employed by diplomatic agents, that annexation will not (shall not) take place.

From Mexico.—El Siglo, of (Mexico) of the 29th ultimo, contains a letter from the Minister of Foreign Affairs (Cuevas) to Mr. Shannon, U. S. Minister at Mexico, informing him that the Government was in possession of the knowledge of the passage of the Annexation resolutions, and that diplomatic relations between the two countries were suspended on that account. The same day a note was addressed, by the Mexican Cabinet, to the Ministers of Spain, France and England, protesting against the proceedings of the United States in relation to Texas.

From China.—In addition to the news by the Zenobia, which we gave yesterday morning, we find the following in the Baltimore Patriot of the 29th ult.:

There was a furious tempest at Manila on the night of November 11, in which several vessels were lost; the town of Nueva-Caceres sustained much damage, most of the houses being destroyed, including that of the Governor, who had a narrow escape for his life. In the town of Taybas more than 800 houses were destroyed, and the rice crops were ruined.

The following paragraphs from Bombay papers are given in the Register:

A fearful accident occurred at Indore on the 14th ult. Several thousands of Brahmans had been assembled at the palace to receive gifts at the festival of Gumpatide. They were simultaneously descending a staircase, when the structure gave way, and in the rush and crash which ensued one hundred and ninety-four lives were lost.

On the 24 ult., Tankeewall, a small town on the river Gambia, was stormed by a column of about 200 baboons, who assailed the natives with great ferocity, biting and pelting with sticks and stones in their daring attempt to carry off what provisions they could find in the village. The inhabitants made a stout counter assault with cutlery and musket, more deadly weapons than the monkeys could command. In a running contest nearly one hundred were captured, and since sold; several are here, and seen by their antics to have already forgot the old cause of their captivity.

Canton, December 10.—High rates for silk are still maintained—no purchases. Sugar continues high.

Teas, black.—Very little has been done in Congous, Souchong, Pekoe, and Caper. Most extravagant rates are still being paid for fine chops of green tea, and the competition is as great as ever. Large purchases of all descriptions of country-made teas are reported.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1845.

The Crazy World.—To one, well acquainted with the present disturbed state of the kingdoms and nations of the earth, as reported by the various newspapers of the day, the world appears crazy. The pressure is general, and the convulsions universal. The United States is drunken with madness, and abuses her own flesh.

The assassination at Carthage; the Philadelphia riots; the Anti-ent war, and a weekly catalogue of crimes of lesser magnitude, are strong symptoms, that her glory has departed. Nor are the old kingdoms and nations of Europe, Asia, and Africa, less affected: The walls of men in bondage under the glittering power of Monarchy; and the murmurings of almost every society, exalted and trampled by an ungodly priesthood, throughout Christendom, mingling with the clamor of the less deceived and despoiled heathen, show signs of woe; and the whole globe, like a great animal, upon the very verge of utter dissolution, is struck with death.

Every limb of the body is in pain; the head, which may be compared, to the enlightened part, is almost frantic with the sick head ache, while the blood shot eyes are glaring upon the ruin of an old moth eaten world, with remediless horror!

Disease incurable! Chills and fever in America; palsy and debauchery in Europe; consumption and gout in Asia; and plague and leprosy in Africa; As with Israel, so with the world; the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint; AND DIE IT MUST! And Mormonism, eternal Mormonism, will witness the dying struggle; the last gasp, when the earth quakes; and triumphs over death, hell, and the grave! So let the old world die.

The Lord vexes the people.—The forepart of April, the steamer Swallow, going down the North River, opposite Athens and Hudson, ran upon a rock in the night, which made an awful scene: The boat took fire, just as the after part began to sink. The bells in both towns began to ring the alarm; the passengers began to jump over board, and scream for mercy. Many small boats, with torches, and two steamers came to the rescue, but out of some three hundred passengers, it is supposed, that some forty or fifty found death by drowning. They that stayed on the bow of the Swallow were safe. How the Lord vexes the people!

An Old Man.—Benjamin Bush recently died in Vermont, aged 115 years. The Millennium is near, and then like our ancestors before the flood, people will live 1000 years. The gentiles don't believe that.

The War Eagle again.—She comes it finely; her last trip was made in 231 hours. Come it! 20 hours is time enough from St. Louis to Nauvoo. The War Eagle is a good boat, with a first rate set of officers, and hands.

A touch of the sublime.—Last Saturday evening, the Band made a trip to Montrose, (Iowa) and gave Capt. Davis a touch of the sublime. The music sounded delightfully upon the water.

Such Friendship.—The half pay officers alone of Great Britain, receive $24,000,000 a year. Wonder what the whole pay amounts to!

Eggorum.—It is said that New York devours 500,000 eggs a month, of which 7500 are used weekly in the Astor house.

Intemperant Temperance.—The long faced gentry of New England, who go the whole figure for temperance, are trying to rank in Tea, Coffee and Tobacco with Rum, Whiskey, Cider, &c. &c. Lord how perfect! The next step is:—[Ye shall keep my statutes. Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind. Thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed; neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woolen come upon thee.] So huzza for an end of Kentucky jeans, linsey woolsey, mules, and striped pigs!

Bishop Onderdonk, it is said, has gone on a mission to the Pa-nees.

The rest of the sacerdotal clergy, have put in for the Cana-day, as a bosom feeler.

Presentiment.—Mrs. Dorothy Toos of Maryland, died nine years ago that she was to die April 5, 1845, and although at times very ill, she insisted that that day was to die, and did die, aged 95 years.

Oshaw! Gentiles believe in dream! Take care that you don't catch Mormonism the natural way, and physic yourselves out of Babylon.

Dodging.—Mr. Dodge has been appointed in place of Mr. Talmadge, removed Governor of Wisconsin.

Mr. Dodge, the very man, To dodge in good, and dodge from evil, Dodge away—dodge all he can. He cannot dodge "death and the devil."

The Portraits and Pictures.—A notice in the "Prophet," not long since, gives information that the portraits of the "Twelve" and other distinguished persons in Nauvoo, were in contemplation for publication. We have advised on the matter, and do beseech our brethren in New York and elsewhere, to hold on.

The meagre skeletons which have come out in that city, are unworthy the patronage of the saints: The best of anything will do for a Mormon. The surrender of Farwest is a miserable caricature, representing Farwest a little bigger than a "piece of chalk." walled in; the Mormons running from their depredations; and the mobbers of Missouri as unfarmed Militia (Lord look at the land of "jeans and buckskin.") The picture of Joseph Smith addressing the Indians is unworthy of the man and "mockery minion." There is nothing real sentimental or true in these ratchpennies.

Just hold on: we have the best artists in the world in Nauvoo; and noble heads, and in time, we can give fac similes, to the life, worthy of men of God.

Blackberries.—The N. O. Picayune of April 4, notices blackberries in market. Every slave city in the Union, can brag as much all the year round.

Frost wanted.—The aforesaid 'Pic' of April 5, wants to "split the difference" between two feet of snow in Vermont, and a summer's sun of New Orleans. Just half "the difference" would land him upon the Alleghany mountains in Virginia. Where the frost of one night might satisfy his curiosity.

Boston is preparing a great steamer to carry the Mail to Liverpool under the new mail law. Why not construct a Tunnel under the ocean to Liverpool, at once! The cost of so many steamers would accomplish it, and a Telegraph to boot.

Texas.—Our latest news puts Texas in the attitude of playing "hide and covey" for the agents of the English, French, and Americans. Annexation, therefore, like the Negro's marriage after he purchased his dutchess's freedom, be at to gadder pon bigness of Massa's pus.

Nauvoo Pottery.—We called at the Pottery, a little east of the Temple, the other day, and were shown a sample of Pitchers, dishes, and various other articles of ware, which give great credit to the skill of the proprietors and workmen; and if rightly patronized, will not leave Nauvoo without honor. We hope in a short time, that Crockery, as good as any from England, for such young workmen, will adorn every house in the city, besides supplying our neighboring towns.

Phonography, or the art of writing short hand by sound, has been commenced in this city by professor WARR. We called in the other day, where several of our leading men were practicing with dexterity, life, and determination. It goes well: Mormonism embraces every thing good, from gay to grave; from Pot-hookian; to heavenly; from sound to salivation, and from Phonography to ad infinitum.

The city of Pittsburg, it is said, says the Aton Telegraph of April 19, "was never in a more prosperous condition, both as to its business and the rapid increase of its population and improvement."

Such an exclamation, between Pittsburg's glory and fire, puts us in mind of what Paul said to the Thessalonians: "For when they shall say: peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them as travail upon a woman with child, and they shall not escape."

Cheap.—The Steamboat fare from New York to Albany, is fifty cents; cheap! If some of the Yankees would come and lower the price on the Mississippi, from Nauvoo to St. Louis, (224 miles), to one dollar; they would soon get Mormon patronage enough to

"Klare de kitchen."

Bloody Religion.—Some women have been making Mr. Clay a member of the Home Missionary Society. His gambling tools and duelling irons stick out of his pockets two or three bloody feet.

Bigs.—There is nothing so speaks the good character of a place better, than the orderly conduct of small boys. The habit, in towns and cities, of boys running together to play, tends to evil. Drunkenness, profanity, thieving, and mobocracy, result from such practices. Parents, keep your children at home, and make them work for honor, or let them go for disgrace.

Showers.—On Wednesday night, and Thursday of last week, several thunder showers supplied the deficiency of rain of which the country had been lacking several weeks. All in time, and vegetation looks much more promising on account of it. Farmers like rain in due season, and speculators admire good crops, but do they all ask and thank the great Giver for it!

Nauvoo Market.—The continued emigration to this city, makes a good market for pork, bacon, flour, meal, corn, wheat, &c. and money circulates briskly with much less base coin than is reported in other cities. So, come.

Economy.—In 1787, the war of the Revolution being ended, and America free, the people began to look about for a living. The town of Andover, (Mass.) thus expressed themselves:—

"And upon this occasion, we apply ourselves to the good sense and virtuous dispositions of the female sex, to the younger as well as the elder, that they would by their engaging examples, as well as in other proper ways, devote that power of influence with which nature has endowed them, to the purpose of encouraging every species of economy in living, and particularly that neatness and simplicity of dress, which are among the best tokens of a good mind, and which seldom fail to command the esteem of the virtuous and wise; giving preference to that clothing which is produced from our flocks, and from our own fields."

All we shall add is, Nauvoo you have the best women in the world, "go and do likewise."

The Murder at Carthage.—Wm. M. Daniels, has published a pamphlet of 24 pages, containing "A correct account of the murder of General Joseph and Hyrum Smith, at Carthage, on the 27th of June, 1844." Mr. Daniels being an eye witness to the awful tragedy, cannot do less than give the particulars of the bloodstained deed that ever disgraced a state and nation. The pamphlet can be had at this Office. The cuts are worth the price of the book.

Poyglat Rifles.—Our friend Turley is turning out some of the best fifteen shooters, we ever saw. It is to be hoped that he will manufacture enough to satisfy foreign calls, as well as answer home requirements.

Women gratis.—To get rid of the thousands of young working women who are out of employment in New York, it is gravely proposed to form a society and raise $25,000 by subscription to provide free tickets for their passage to Chicago, Milwaukee, &c. for such young women as may choose to migrate westward in search of employment, husbands and happiness.

This looks like civilization and christianity! The Indians, nay the Hot-tentots, never offered such a vanishing insult to female virtue and dignity! We dare not turn out our hogs and cattle on the prairies without somebody to watch them. There are wolves in the west, as well as wild Boars in the east, whoever started that project, ought to be tapped for the shallows.

Corn Stalk Sugar.—The "Bigfield committee" wish all the information relative to the planting, tending, raising, and harvesting the corn, and manufacturing the sugar, or molasses, that can be furnished.

We give the following:—The Prairie Farmer says, "the mode is to pull off the ears when they begin to form; and when the leaves are dead half way up the stalk, to pull off the leaves, cut up the stalks, cut off the tops, and grind the bottoms."

Lights.—Several U. S. officers from Fort Snelling, on their way to cautionment Leavenworth, per steamer Gen. Brooke, called to view the Temple yesterday.

The St. Louis Reveille, on the 22d, mixed some spirit of the Saints, with a little solid soap, and made a first rate wash; all right when the Neighbor speaks the saints endeavor to keep their faces clean and hearts pure; and when the Reveille beats, the soldiers wash their hands and black their boots ready for duty.

By the by, we have weighed the wit and worth of the St. Louis papers, and find the Reveille is par a premium.

The Gazette is 1 dis, because the voice of the Lord has lowered her Flag.

The Reporter, is 2 dis, because steel Pens rust in the ink, and goose quills don't suit Bontone Texian taste.

The Republican is 24 dis, while the party rest in their Chambers till the indignation be over, for fear of the Clay mud hole.

The St. Louis American is 3 dis, for the reason that its Julian period does not embrace the Dutch and Irish.

The Organ is 31 dis, because the Editor cannot play but two tunes, both flat—la mi.

The New Era, and all others 4 dis, and dull sale—status infatus opinio, hurts the worth of part and pails metu, hinders the rest from being what the upper ten thousand would be, if they could, a Sampson among the Philistines, or a Saul among the prophets.

Upon the whole, the pleasant wit, hit, jig, gig, tachygraphy, and liveliness of the Reveille, is all sufficient to render it worthy of "mint drops" and mouth drops.

From the North Adams (Mass.) Transcript. Notice.—Sally Larrabee can have an interview with the subscriber by writing to him where she may be found, or coming to his residence at Timothy Waters, in Whittingham, Vt., 2 miles from Jacksonsville. I have been at a good deal of trouble to find her, and have got almost tired of it, and as I have had a good many chances to get married, and want to get married soon as spring opens, I hope she will take no offence if I should be obliged to give up the chase and have some one else. I should be very happy to have her to come over as quick as she could, as I cannot bear the thought of forgetting her for ever, and can never love any body else as well as I do her.

DANIEL WATERS.

Whittingham, March 13, 1845.

What a pretty thing it is to love! High diddle, diddle, The cat and the fiddle; The cow jump't over the stool.

How many court just for the sport, And then appear just like a fool!

Elder Richard Bender of Philadelphia arrived in this city on Sunday.

Police Reports.—No charter, no cases. Order and industry reign:

Yankee doodle without mobs, Yankee doodle dandy; The Legislature pl'd the cobs, The Mormons think them bandy.

THE GREAT WESTERN IN!

The Great Western arrived at New York on the 16th with dates to March 20th. Our files as usual. Our space being full, we shall only say the duty on cotton has been repealed: No fresh outbreak in Switzerland; but plague and famine has visited Afghanistan. More next week.

Spring.—With beauties like Eden, And charms like a maiden; With music, bird eloquence, And glory excelsior, has come down upon us to delight, please and multiply. How convenient!

Nauvoo Cane.—It is becoming quite fashionable for gentlemen to possess a Nauvoo cane; and the good people of this city of peace, also use a cane,—but the point of the staff is, to have it "sod with the preparation of the gospel."

Anti-Mormonism the natural way.—An old gentleman who arrived here on Saturday, was swindled next day out of one hundred and twenty-five dollars, by a fellow who induced him to take a walk to look at the city. They went out in the vicinity of the Big Mound, where they were met by a person who appeared to be very drunk, and who exhibited a large roll of money and proposed to bet on a certain trick at cards. The old man refused to bet, but loaned the money to his companion to do so. The drunken man of course won, when he started off and the pretended loser after him. The old man waited some time but the other not returning, he then suspected the trick. It is to be hoped the police will overhaul this sharper.—St. Louis Reporter.

Zounds! If the citizens of Nauvoo, without a charter, should tax strangers like that, Dr. Charles would get it so perfect into Warsaw, that an eruption of Mount Vesuvius might be expected. Oh Anti-Mormonism!

Mill Burnt.—Harris' mill in Summit County, Ohio, was burnt on the 11th. Loss $20,000; $10,000 insured.

More Fire.—Two or three houses were burnt in Newark N. J. valued about $12,000.

Hawk Chief Returned.—Thank'e; next time you do the like, be honest enough to give your name, and save suspicion.

At spiritualist's wishing, broke out the natural way among the members of Congress.—At New York, on Friday night, a gentleman who did not seek to give his name to the police, who resided at present at the Astor House, but is a member of Congress from the west, was robbed in a brothel, of about $50, by a female of the pave, named Louisa Fisher, with whom he was in company.—[Balt. Sun.

PAYMENT OF THE TROOPS.

The subject of paying the troops called out to suppress the riots in this country in May and July last, excites quite too much discussion. If any public service is equitably entitled to payment, independently of law, that of venturing health, limb and life in support of the law may urge this claim. It is a duty much more arduous than turning out to meet a foreign invasion; for in addition to the ordinary dangers of military service, the citizen soldier, in taking arms against domestic violence, must encounter all the rancors of civil war, and may be compelled to meet as enemies those whom he always regarded as friends. Yet these severe and trying responsibilities must be encountered; for without the military arms, when other means fail, the laws die; and when the laws die, all rights practically die with them. In this view of the case, who can deny the claim of such service, not only to payment according to law; but to such payment promptly and cheerfully? Then how extreme is the injustice of delay in such payment!

And how impossibly such injustice! If troops are not promptly and cheerfully paid for this service, we cannot expect of them a prompt turning out. If we would not have them refuse to do so, if we would have them come when wanted, we must have the other part of the contract faithfully performed. We must at least give them their due according to law. We hope, for the sake of the future, that this payment will be made without further delay. Those who object to taxation for such purpose, must remember that it is a purpose which protects their lives and property.—Phil. Newsper.

Foot your bills, loving brothers, for in so doing, "you keep up appearances," and show the world that there is a little patriotism left.

Whipping an Editor.—The editor of the Pottsville Miners' Journal, Mr. CHAMBERS, in publishing the marriage of a Mr. ROBERT MORRIS, said something pretty in return for a slice of cake. Mr. MORRIS took offence, and writing on Mr. C. with the editor of the Gazette, F. M. WYNN, took, undertook to chastise the supposed offender. Mr. C., it seems, was rather too much for both, and had them held to bail besides.—[Rep.

U. S. Ship Vandalla.—The Madisonian confirms the unpleasant accounts respecting the Vandalla. It says:

This ship, under command of J. S. CHANCEY, Esq., has just arrived at Norfolk from Port au Prince, with the yellow fever on board. Lieut. Geo. MASON HOOD, J. M. LOCKHART, Purser Moore, Assistant Surgeon Manning, the carpenter, sailmaker, and sixteen of the crew, died on the passage. Fifty of the crew are now down with the fever.

The Vandalla was under orders for Pensacola, but, owing to the alarming sickness on board, a council of war was held, and it was decided to run her into Norfolk, where she arrived as above stated.

Swallowing a Hook.—The following—which the Boston Traveler thinks good enough almost to be a "fish-story"—is related in the New Orleans Medical Journal, by Dr. KIRKPATRICK, of Woodville, Mississippi. The case occurred in Barwell district, South Carolina:

"Mrs. * * * was enjoying her usual siesta, in the afternoon of a warm day, on a pallet spread upon the floor, in a cool part of the house; and, while she was lying on her back, sleeping pleasantly, no doubt dreaming of past pleasures, her grandson, a little urchin of three or four summers, was playing about the house with a fishing tackle complete, pole, line, and hook, who, when he discovered the old lady with her mouth widely distended, thought it was a fine opportunity to 'catch a fish.' Accordingly, in order to effect his purpose, he cautiously deposited the 'barbed hook' (I believe there was no bait on it) into his grand-dame's open mouth. The trifling caused her to awake suddenly, and as her mouth was dry from exposure, she closed it, and swallowed the hook two or three inches below the uvula. So soon as she discovered her situation, the whole family was assembled by her cries and cries of distress, except little Charley, who had dropped his pole in a panic and run off."

Some gentle efforts were essayed to remove the hook, both by the patient and some of the family; but, being apprehensive of fixing the barb in the throat, they ceased all efforts, and despatched a messenger for Dr. E. Leroy Antony, who resides in the neighborhood. When he arrived, and found that the hook was not fastened into the flesh, his fertile brain suggested a plan by which it could be removed safely, easily and without an operation.

"His plan was to cut the line within a foot or two of the mouth of the patient; then to drill a hole through a rifle bullet, and drop it over the line, down on the hook. In order to fix the bullet on the point of the hook, and maintain it firmly in that position, a reed was procured, the joints punched out, and then passed down over the line, and pressed firmly over the bullet. In this manner the hook, bullet and reed, were all withdrawn at once, very easily, without any injury."

The Great Fire.—We copy the following paragraphs from the Pittsburgh Chronicle of last Tuesday:

Already, with commendable spirit, many are proceeding to build up where the fire has burnt down.

We are pleased to learn that the insurance companies will come out much better than was first supposed. The Navigation and Fire Company will be able to pay all their policies and have a surplus capital, but of course it will take time to do it, and the Firemen's and Pennsylvania will pay a large per centage, it is now thought. The Alleghany Mutual is also considered good. It will pay at least 90 cents on the dollar, and perhaps in full.

Promptly have the citizens of Wheeling extended their aid to the unfortunate sufferers by the fire. On Monday a boat arrived, having on board one hundred barrels of flour, and three thousand pounds of bacon, sent from that city to relieve the wants of the poor of our own

In the name of the unfortunate we return thanks for this kindly and timely aid.

COMMUNICATIONS.

For the Neighbor

SOWING CORN FOR FODDER.

Sow corn broadcast for fodder, immediately after your ordinary crop of corn is planted, at the rate of four bushels of seed to the acre, harrow it in; and without any further attention, will obtain from five to six tons of dry fodder to the acre—cut it while green, and before it is injured by the frost, and it will be decidedly more palatable and nutritious, and no doubt cheaper too, than prairie hay.

From the thick growth, and consequent smallness of the stalks, horses as well as cattle, eat them with avidity, devouring stalks and leaves alike, without leaving a vestige of either.

MEDICUS.

April 28, 1845.

COPY OF A LETTER TO * * * OF THIS CITY.

New Orleans, April 7th, 1845.

Dear Sir: I have no doubt before the present comes to hand you have been expecting some word from Florida. I should have written sooner but for two reasons; first, I have been expecting a letter for some time from Eder Sweeney, already in Tallahassee, I suppose; and secondly, I entertained a hope of meeting with you in conference at Nauvoo, which I am sorry to say is blasted.

I left St. Louis on the 11th December last, with my family for Florida according to my appointment, and reached this place on the 13th, after some what of a tedious journey. My health has gradually improved till the present, with the exception of one spell of two weeks, in which I was confined to my bed; and my cough was very violent, with a high fever—so much so, that I now begin to dream of obtaining perfect health again.

Elder Sweeney had a few days after I did, in good health and fine spirits. After consulting on our mission, it was thought best for me to tarry in N. O., as my health was bad and purse small, until he should somewhat explore the country, and then be the better able to assign me a location. He left immediately for Mobile, and from thence to Pensacola; from which place I received a letter, giving nothing but an encouraging account of that place, stating that he had tried all means to get an opportunity to preach, but to no purpose; that is was the most barren place he ever was in. He left for Tallahassee, from which place I have been anxiously expecting a letter, for some weeks. Elder Sweeney has left his family in Sangamon county, Illinois.

Elder Sherwood has visited us. His health is good; his company entertaining; his instructions edifying, and what few saints reside here, have greatly rejoiced in his visit, esteeming him approved of all righteous men and justified of God.

Our city is worthy the attention of the chronicler, from its notorious acts of the administration of Lucas, and from the judgments of God. For Hate, the wilful murderer of a young man, who deliberately cut him to pieces in the St. Louis exchange, and his trial last week came off clear in the midst of as positive testimony and much more circumstantial than ever was given against Morrel, the land pirate.

But why? The sequel gives the answer. Hate was rich; he was a New Orleans Merchant, and alone all, he had an abundance of cash at his command, and that works by the rule of crucifixity, and always makes an abundance of friends, and that you know, in such cases as his before the unjust, ate the very face of law, and transforms the English language; so much so that where it reads under positive testimony to hang Albe a dead; dead! does actually mean not guilty, not guilty; not guilty, with applause when before a Jury, Judge, and Lawyers, whose bosoms turn with the root of all evil; and Hate only lost a score or two of thousands, after meriting the applause of giving an impulse to union in which all the court seen eye to eye.

But the God of Heaven, as though angry at such proceedings, came out in wrath upon the most delightful part of the city, and on the same day that Hate was justified in the violation of all law; the fish, the craw fish, the crabs, eels, and turtles, in the New Basin, began to die by thousands; so much that in three days the city authorities had to employ boats to gather and remove them. I visited the basin at the time, and saw the water covered with its dead; those that were still living seemed anxious to flee from the curse. The craw fish and crabs, had climbed up the wall as high as possible, and every board, cob, and dead fish, that was large enough, was literally covered; and the fish that were yet living, would apparently force their nose out of the water as much as possible, but their destruction seemed to be sealed—for there is a law that cannot be spiritualized, nor its officers bought. The editors call for the wise men to come out and unfold the mystery. This will puzzle them a little, no doubt, for the basin was not stagnant water,—the Mississippi being high, and already running in the gutters through the streets, and quite a channel in the basin canal. But wise will give reasons and fools are sure to believe.—Hence they never examine the word of God, the revelations sealed with the blood of Joseph that ranks among the greatest of prophets since the days of Abel.

F. B. J.

Pittsburg, April 14, 1845.

Sir:—Pardon me for obtruding a few lines for consideration. Our city has just been visited by an awful calamity. A fire has destroyed the richest part of our city; the so much boasted Birmingham of America, has melted down with fervent heat; and perhaps you may say, such troubles are to be poured out in these last days; but as I am not a believer in Mormonism, I must declare my opinion, that every thing happens when it comes.

You will get the particulars of this terrible conflagration in the Post and Chronicle of the 11th.

There is one thing connected with this fire, that I wish to hint at. Sidney Rigdon came here last fall, after being rejected by your people, and professed great friendship, and feeling for this city. He declared that he was the actual head of the Mormons, and had been ordained a prophet and seer, but I must say my confidence in this connection with the powers of the other world, has been crippled by the event of the late fire. Is it possible that God would order his main spokesman on earth to locate himself and his followers in a city; to hold a convention for the purpose of carrying salvation to the whole world; and burn up that city in a week afterwards, and not tell his servant of it? If Rigdon knew the city was to be burnt, why not inform the people? Before Sodom was burnt the angels came and took Lot and his family and warned the people.

Jonah, though he went to Hell three days, returned and told the inhabitants of Nineveh what would befall the city, unless they repented: now why did Rigdon, especially with all that he pretended to have, keep the word of God hid? The real answer is because he was a hypocrite, and had no more to do with God, and coming events warn the people.

I have been informed that Mr. Smith always give notice of troubles and events before they came, and his writings incontestably prove the fact: But if there is revelations and judgments for men, Sidney Rigdon and his followers have missed the former and come nigh being burnt by the latter.

My word for it, Rigdon's sectarian Mormonism has too much smell of fire about it to entitle it to credit. Should he go to Kirtland, and let the Lord look at him once through the cloud as he did at some poor fellows there three or four years ago, the old man would have to adjudge his power and authority for another dispensation, and perhaps some other body.

Respectfully &c.,

S * * * S * * *

For the Neighbor.

Since the fire has whispered so closely about Sidney Rigdon in Pittsburg, some of his disciples have made their appearance in and about our section of country. It is fresh in the recollection of this people, that Rigdon's prophecy was that we should be overthrown in Nauvoo; there to fulfil his malicious predictions, he had recourse to the publishing of the most base and wicked slanders, the most foul insinuations and falsehoods. These he circulated gratuitously among the members of the legislature to awaken their wrath against us, and to make them the tools to bring about his base and wicked design—even the effecting of our ruin: But notwithstanding this combination inflicted a blow upon us, we have survived it; and while our top has been bruised, our roots have been increasing, and have acquired strength to send forth a more sturdy growth.

It would seem that these Rigdonites, who are like so many drossy sparks flying from under the refiner's hammer, and can only shine for a moment, are in despair about their predictions being fulfilled; and perhaps they have thought best to send on some agents to accomplish their design, or at least, help to do it. After these wretched creatures have slandered us in the way they have, they even have the shameless audacity, and unparalleled hypocrisy to come here and call us "brother," and would be as good as pie. Oh dear! If men believe the accursed tales of Rigdon about us, how can they call us "brother?" If they do not believe them, why do they join his standard? They are therefore accursed hypocrites any how, and for ought I know, their boasted keys of conquest are the lighted torch, and it may be these agents are sent here to conquer us. Now let one of these serpents in the grass but show his head; remember his fangs ache to be stuck into your heel. Will you wait for him to strike you?

It is also fresh in the memory of this people, that Rigdon when here, tried to get his disciples to arm themselves with deadly weapons and take possession of the stand and prevent the authorities of the church from bringing him to trial and excluding him from their number on the 8th of Sept. last. If the master of the house, to execute his wicked design, would be in the name of the Lord, assembled, and play the hypocrite to the best of his ability, as Sidney Rigdon has; and to cap the climax of desperation, recommend murder and bloodshed, in certainly becomes every honest man to send away the household of such a character as soon as possible. Let the watchman then in Zion, and in all her borders, watch the place where they den, and see that no evil is done. I would just as soon a Rigdonite would spit in my face as to call me brother, after slandering me and my brethren as they have done.

Let no Latter-day-Saint commit any depredations whatever upon the Anti-Mormons. Continue to mind your own business. Plough and sow your fields, and ask Heaven to bless your labors, that you may have food and raiment convenient, and something also for the poor. But should any man assault you or your house by day or by night, be ye always ready; and have your arms by you and in good order, and respond forth with powder and lead. Make no feint or foot of the game. Trifle with no man, neither be trifled with: for when men are taken out of their beds at midnight, and receive eighteen or twenty lashes by mob violence and lynch law, it should be a warning to every well wisher to his country and his God, to be always ready to give such midnight visitors a passport to damnation at the crack of the rifle.

FRED. VON HOLSTEIN.

SEXTON'S WEEKLY REPORT.

April 29th, 1845.

James Holden, (of Iowa,) 22y; winter fever.

Silas Knapp, (of Shokokon, Feb. 10th, 1845,) 47y; quick consumption.

Catherine McKee, 4m; erysipelas.

Martha Randall, 53y, 1ld; consumption.

Elijah Hale, infant of James and Lucy Hale.

James M. Henderson, 35y; consumption.

Total 6.

W. D. HUNTINGTON.

NOTICE.

THE Saints are hereby cautioned not to purchase any certificates of stock, in the Nauvoo House Association, numbered from one hundred and seventy-six, to three hundred and sixty-six, inclusive, and dated February 10th, 1841, as they were stolen with the trunk of Laman Wright, in the summer of the year 1843, and have not yet been recovered.

GEORGE MILLER, Pres. N. H. A.

TEN DOLLARS REWARD.

STOLEN from the stable of the subscriber in Nauvoo, on Tuesday evening the 22d of April, A black French stable horse, nine years old this spring, about 14 hands high, star in the forehead, and some white spots under the saddle; his mane was cut off last fall, and is now six or eight inches long, and hangs on both sides of his neck, no other brands or marks perceptible.

WALTER CLARK.

April 29, 1845—52-2w

NOTICE.

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinekeyville, Perry county, Ills. For further particulars enquire of

LEVI STEWART.

Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845—52-4f

NOTICE. The Stockholders of the Seventies' Library and Institute Association, are hereby notified that the time of drawing Books from the Library, will in future, be on Friday of each week from 2 to 7 o'clock P. M. by order of the Trustees.

GEO. A. SMITH, Pres. &c.

Nauvoo, April 21st, 1845—2w.

NOTICE.

I wish all those who have not paid up their Subscriptions to my Grammar School to go and work it out on the Temple; or pay me in Tithing. I do not know where they live, and I therefore, take this method of calling upon them for the amount of their subscriptions.

JAMES M. MONROE.

Apr 21st, 1845—2w.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons concerned, that, whereas the personal property of the Estate of Joseph Smith, late deceased, is in office to educate and maintain the children of the said Joseph Smith. Application will be made to the Circuit Court, for Hancock County, by petition, at the coming May term of said Court, for an order to sell the following real estate in Hancock county aforesaid, viz:

The east half of the sec 9 of sec No 31 in T. 5. n 8 w. containing 80 acres more or less. Also the west half of n w of sec No 5 in T. 4 n 8 w containing 74.94-100 acres, more or less. Also the east half of the n e of sec No 6, in T. 4 n 8 w containing 82.56-100 acres more or less; according to law, to answer the purpose.

EMMA SMITH, Guardian.

Nauvoo, April 16, 1845—3w

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, BOOT, AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.

The Tanners, Shoemakers, and Harness-makers of Nauvoo, the City of Joseph:

HAVING associated themselves together under the above name and title, are prepared to enter into any and all the above branches, and as the Association is composed of some of the best practical workmen, from the Eastern Cities and from Europe, who have had long experience in large Establishments; they are prepared to do work in their line, as neat, permanent, and fashionable, and also as reasonable as it can be done in any of the Western cities.

Having purchased an extensive Tannery, they are prepared to tan any amount of hides and skins, and to suit the convenience of farmers they will tan on shares.

We are also prepared to make saddles, harness, boots and shoes, of every description, and on the shortest notice. We hope to merit the support and confidence of the Merchants and dealers in hides and leather, and wish to purchase all the hides &c., as we believe in home manufacture and also all the leather, so that our Mechanics may be employed in preference to those who have no interest in the prosperity of our city.

Boot and Shoe Shop a little below the Committee Office, on Young Street. Samuel Mullins, Superintendent.

Saddle and Harness Shop, a little below the Arsenal. Joseph Turner, Superintendent.

The Tannery on Hubbard and Rich Street, near Colton's Brick Yard. George W. Rosecrans, Superintendent.

April 23, 1845—51-3m

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH, A. T. MARRIS, MASTER, WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Rock Island, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. On her upward trip, she will leave Nauvoo for Rock Island every Wednesday at six P. M. Returning will leave Nauvoo for St. Louis every Saturday at 6 A. M. In point of accommodations the Amaranth is surpassed by no boat on the upper Mississippi; and her officers will spare no pains to render her, worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to A. MORRISON, Agent. Nauvoo, April 30th, 52f

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 12th, 50f

Two farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses;—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Hellville, and 2 miles from Poyetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneyville, Perry county, Illinois.

ALSO:

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock: for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs;—situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Illinois county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—49f

ALSO:

A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncietown, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr Coulson of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15-50f

LIME, LIME!

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.

JOSEPH OWENS.

THOS. MENDENHALL.

April 13th, 50-2m

NOTICE is hereby given that Howard Egan, Conservator for Joel Bullard, an insane person, will present a petition at the next Term of the Hancock Circuit Court, praying for an order of said Court to sell so much of the real estate of the said Joel Bullard, as will satisfy the claims against said estate. All parties interested will appear at said Term of the court and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

HOWARD EGAN, Conservator of the estate of Joel Bullard Insane.

Nauvoo, April 17, 1845—51 f

TAILORS' ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis's store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells.—This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.

N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be held for the debts of said association.

JOHN W. BELL, Pres.

WM. P. MCINTIRE, Counselors.

GEORGE WATT, Superintendents.

ROBT. RUSSEL, J. H. GLINES, C. B. THOMPSON, WM. K. PARKER, JOSEPH ARMSTRONG, WM. STRINGHAM, JABEZ BUTSFORD, B. CHAPMAN.

Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845-47-3m

TO THE PUBLIC.

WE the Bricklayers, Stonelayers, and Plasterers of the city of Nauvoo, having formed ourselves into an Association for the purpose of our carrying on our business in all its branches, such as brick and stone laying, plastering, hard finish, cornice, together with all kinds of stucco work, cementing, rough casting, houses, cistern building, &c., &c., would say we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and having all the facilities for carrying on the business to any extent, either to furnish or not to furnish materials, and accomplish all jobs with despatch, which we warrant to be done in the best manner. Would recommend to any individual wishing work done in our line of business to apply to the President of the Association, (two blocks south of the Hay scales,) who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

JACOB FOUTZ, President.

C. R. DANAG, Councilor.

H. HOAGLAND, Councilor.

ENQCH REESE, Secretary.

JAS. TOWNSEND, Treasurer.

April 2nd, 1845-48f

NOTICE is hereby given that I have been constituted and appointed Dwight Eitche's, agent and lawful attorney, to bargain, sell, or exchange, any or all of the real estate of the same; I therefore give notice, that I will sell or exchange a lot of Woodland in Calhoun county, on the Mississippi River, containing 160 acres, designated as follows, viz: the north east quarter of section thirty-three, (33) in township no. eight south, in range three west of the fourth principal meridian, which I will sell low for cash or exchange for property, receivable at the Temple. I have also a small lot of land two blocks east of the Temple, with a good well of water, which will also be sold low if applied for soon. My residence is at the corner of Monson and Bain streets, north of the Seventies Hall, where I will continue to make lasts, boots, shoes and forms, all of which will be sold low. The best remedy for corns is to have a pair of lasts to fit the feet. Try the remedy. No cure no pay.

MELVIN WILBUR.

April 11, 1845-3w

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845—40.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.

THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style.

Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN,

No. 52 Main street, St. Louis.

April 8th, 50-3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business.

We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.

Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to give us a call.

Feb. 7:40f

W. & S.

NOTICE.

THE Trustees in Trust for the church Jesus Christ of Latter-day-Saints, would hereby notify the Saints who emigrated to Nauvoo, that they have a number of City lots in the city of Nauvoo, which they purpose to sell low for cash and good property. The following is a list of the lots offered. Further particulars will be given at the office of the Trustees in P. P. Pratt's store, one block north of the Temple.

Lot 4 Block 7		Lot 2 Block 68
1	14	1	78
2	14	2	80
3	14	3	82
4	14	4	84
5	14	5	86
6	14	6	88
7	14	7	90
8	14	8	92
9	14	9	94
10	14	10	96
11	14	11	98
12	14	12	100

Lot 1 Block 93		Lot 4 Block 120
1	101	1	121
2	101	2	122
3	101	3	123
4	101	4	124
5	101	5	125
6	101	6	126
7	101	7	127
8	101	8	128
9	101	9	129
10	101	10	130
11	101	11	131
12	101	12	132

1	101	w h f	1	135
2	do		4	do
1	105	w h f	1	143
2	do	w h f	4	do
3	do		3	115
4	do		4	do
2	106	a b f	1	146
2	107	w h f	4	147
4	do	n h f	2	149
2	108	a b f	1	152

POETRY.
For the Neighbor.
Awake, O Columbia, attend to my strain!
In anguish I sing to my lyre again:
This spot of thy glory, nor yet of thy fame,
In grief and in sorrow I publish thy shame.
On history's bright pages thy glory has blazed,
And nations of old have been blest with its rays:
The fame of thy conquests has spread far and near,
And oppress'd from all nations found asylum here.
Thy heroes and sages unsullied have shone,
With laurels unfading their pathways were strown:
And poets unnumber'd have measure'd their lays,
In anthems of glory sang forth to thy praise.
Thy woodlands and meadows were smiling with joy,
Thy vales fill'd with beauties that never could die,
And sweet was the music of every rill,
When freedom's proud echo was heard from each hill.
Thy once pleasant cities so blithe and free, Thy meadows and woodlands, what are they
to me,
Since strife and confusion throughout them abound,
And the blood of the saints now 'tis crimson thy ground.
In vain do I wander along the clear stream,
And gather fresh flowers to brighten the scene,
Or breathe the pure zephyr, my heart to regale, While death groans of martyrs are heard in their wail.
Though often and fondly I call to my mind,
The days of our fathers come apace to find,
I contrast those seasons again and again,
But sober reflection increases my pain.
For thousands of exiles in bondage now groan,
Who often have sought for redress from thy throne;
Though oft they petition'd, yet still they remain,
Thy hand was not proffer'd to wipe the foul stain.
In glory and pride thou hast taken thy rest,
And gather'd thy treasures from east and the west;
Thy powers and dominion have known no restraint,
And yet hast thou proudly refus'd their complaint.
Thou hast laugh'd at their troubles from evening till morn,
And teutantly pointed the finger of scorn,
Thou hast scoff'd at their pains and turn'd a deaf ear,
When in trouble they call'd there was no one to hear.
But when the great God in his anger shall ride,
And send forth his judgments to humble
thy pride,
What eye will then pity, what hand can then save,
The land of our fathers 'tis home of the brave."
S. HULET.
Lima, April, 1845.

Romantic incident.—The New York papers announce the marriage of Mr.
Thomas Mowitt, to Charlotte Conroy, under circumstances truly romantic, and in illustration of the marvellousness of truth over fiction.
We shall condense as briefly as practicable the particulars of this singular marriage. Mr. M. is a highly respectable shoemaker of N. Y., and in the capacity of boss, had employed numerous workmen, amongst whom was a Mr. J.
Pelsing, who by his faithfulness industry and sobriety, had so ingratiated himself into his good graces, that some three years since he took him into co-partnership and carried on the business in the name of Mowitt & Pelsing. From his period until sometime last summer, nothing occurred to disturb the relations existing between the partners.
Every thing went on swimmingly, and they became constant friends and companions, and boarded at the same house.
Thus their affairs went on till one day they were supped on a Coronet's jury about to be held over the body of a man that had been taken out of the river at one of the docks. The verdict of the jury was simply found drowned.
The jury being dismissed, Mr. Mowitt turned round to look for his friend and fellow juror, who had been at his side till that moment, but was now gone. Mr. M. proceeded to his boarding house, and thence to the store, to look for his partner, but he had not been to either, nor did return; and nothing could be heard of or from him. He gave up all further inquiries, thinking there must have been some mysterious connection between Mr. Pelsing and the man that was found drowned.
So matters rested until a certain day not long since, when a lady called upon Mowitt at his store, and asked for Mr.
Pelsing. She was then told the particulars of this story.
And has he not been here since? she anxiously inquired.
Not since, was the reply.
I know he has, returned the lady.
He has not, I assure you—at least not to my knowledge, replied Mr. Mowitt.
But I am positive, replied the lady.
What proof have you of it? inquired
Mr. Mowitt.
The best in the world, replied the lady, for I am here, and Mr. Pelsing and myself are one and the same person!
The question then was, whether Mr.
Pelsing was a gentleman or lady? and it turned out she was a lady, and her name was Charlotte Conroy.

It also appeared that the drowned man had been the husband of Mrs. Conroy; that he had lived with her in Philadelphia for about two years; that he was a shoemaker; but his habits were so dissipated she was constrained to leave him;
and disguised himself in men's clothes went to New York, sought employment with Mr. Mowitt, as above stated. Of her success as a journeyman and partner
we have been already informed.
The finale of the romantic affair was,
that Mr. M. requested Mrs. C. to make his house her home, and finding he loved Mrs. C. better even than Mr. Pelsing, he proposed a partnership for life, which was ratified by their becoming man and wife a few days afterwards.
This is perhaps the first instance on record wherein a wife performed the office of Coroner's juryman on the body of her husband.
The Last Treasure Ship.—The Baltimore correspondent of the New York Courier, writes that there have been letters received by the arrival of the ship Constitution, from those connected with the San Pedro expedition, who went out to the coast of the Spanish main to raise the Spanish man-of-war San Pedro, sunk on board about fifty years ago, having on board about $2,000,000 in specie, bullion, and other materials. They have succeeded in getting up an anchor, some brass cannon, and several dollars in silver. One of the dollars was embedded in the timbers of the vessel about four inches, caused, as is presumed, by an explosion of the magazine which sunk the ship.
The stockholders are in high spirits, and refuse $1,000 per share for the stock which originally cost $100.
Population of the United States.—At the return of increase of our population from 1790 to 1840, the following will be the census at the respective decennial periods, according to Mr. Dar-by's tables:
1850 - - - - - 23,027,641
1860 - - - - - 31,596,562
1870 - - - - - 41,639,583
1880 - - - - - 55,825,519
1890 - - - - - 73,977,990
1900 - - - - - 102,640,201
All this without the aid of Texas. Thus it may be presumed that, of the children born last week in Philadelphia, several will survive until these States (Queer United) then!
will exceed one-eighth of the population of the globe. The present number of inhabitants in our country is nineteen millions.
Population of the World.—According to Mc-Gee, the population of the world is 812,553, 712. According to Bell, this vast multitude is thus divided:
Whites, 440,000,000
Copper colored, 15,000,000
Mulattoes, 320,000,000
Blacks, 120,000,000
Hassel deemed the world's population to be 233,451,000, possessing the following religions:
Christians, 232,000,000
Jews, 5,000,000
Mahometans, 12,000,000
Brahmins, 140,000,000
Buddhists, 313,977,000
All others, 134,490,000
The Christian World.
Catholics, 137,000,000
Protestants, 75,000,000
Greek Church, &c., 50,000,000
The population of Europe is estimated by Malte Brun at 214,000,000 souls. Asia is put down by Balbi, at 423,844,000.
Lord Ross's great Irish Telescope is nearly finished, and the next steamer may bring us accounts of some of the observations made by it. Speculations as to the probable discoveries in the moon is already rife in England, and we may look for a confirmation of the celebrated moon story originally published at this office in 1835. The planets of some of the systems nearest our own will no doubt be brought to view in this great instrument, and in anticipation of such a wonderful event, Sir John Herschel has already called attention to minute point like stars around several of the larger fixed stars.—N. Y. Sun.

MERMAID:
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET
FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAU-
VOO, AND BLOOMING-
TON, IOWA.
THE Light draught steamer, MER-MAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St.
Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings;
and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civilty and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as "plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and force." For further particulars enquire of
C. ALLEN, Agent,
for Nauvoo.
March 22, 1845-46.
NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.
THE subscribers have opened a store,
on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county), where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.
Also about 100 qr. sections of land situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.
HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.
References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball
and Orson Hyde.
March 24, 47th

NOTICE.—The subscriber takes this method of informing his friends and the public in general, that he has opened the large brick store, on the corner of Parley and Carlin streets, one block east of Main street; for the purpose of doing a general Commission and Storage business, both for home and foreign manufacture; and hopes by his close and strict attention to business, and the long experience he has had, he will share a liberal portion of public patronage.
To the different associations of mechanics he would say, any articles left with him for sale, will be sold according to instruction given; if left to my own discretion, they will be sold to the best advantage.
I am prepared to store a large quantity of Flour and Grain. Any shipments that my customers may wish to make, there will be no charge for taking bills of lading, for receiving goods at the landing more than for drayage.
Refer to close attention to business.
SAMUEL GULLEY.
March 3d, 1845-46.
COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.
THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising
of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats,
Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinet-ware, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch forks; finally, any thing that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.
I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Flour, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buck-wheat,
Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.
Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.
ABEL LAMB.
Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-46.
FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.
A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twenty miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which
the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.
JUSTUS AMES.
March 1st, 1845-46.
SOAP MANUFACTORY.
THE subscriber having established a
Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard
and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.
ABEL LAMB.
Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-46.
NAUVOO ROPE MANUFAC-TORY.
THE undersigned having taken the
old stand formerly occupied by H.
Egan, have commenced manufacturing rope of all descriptions, twine, chalk-lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to
call and see before purchasing elsewhere.
N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.
EGAN & SANDERS.
Feb. 19-46.
NOTICE.—THE subscribers from
the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street; a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.
A. & E. GRAY.
N. B.—A. & E. G. have Turnished themselves with a patent press machine
by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.
June 10th 1844
FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.
A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 40 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises.
The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.
The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indispensable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber
on the premises.
SETH TAFT.
March 18-46th
NOTICE.
A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

OSPREY:
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAU-
VOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.
THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis
every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip
she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock
a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort
Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave
Nauvoo at 8 1-2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9
a. m.
The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evans' Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers; as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers
that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.
For information apply to
C. ALLEN, Nauvoo
Jan. 1, 1845-35th.
HAT STORE.
THE subscriber has taken a store on Mulholland St., half a mile east of the Temple, where he now offers for sale
Fur and Silk Hats of the latest fashions, and manufactured of the best of materials.
Country produce taken in exchange
Also a good assortment of Groceries and Provisions.
A. MERRILL.
Nov. 26, 1844-30th.
MR. HUGH PATRICK, Dentist.
begs to announce to the ladies and gentlemen of this city, his removal to that part of the post office, lately occupied by Mr. S. Rigdon, and returns his sincere thanks to his numerous friends in this city and surrounding country, for the extensive patronage he has received since he arrived here, and in doing so, he would assure them the same unremitting attention, which has hitherto gained for him the approbation of those by whom he has been favored, it shall be his constant object to cultivate.
GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.
Also H. Patrick, begs leave to inform the public in general, that he continues manufacturing the various articles in the above line; rings, bracelets, pins, seals, keys, ornaments too numerous to mention,
two thirds of the payments expected in cash.
Old gold and silver taken in exchange.
Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1845-35th
LOOK HERE.
THE undersigned will exchange a few own lots, for Horses, Cattle, Wagons and Harnesses.
HIRAM KIMBALL.
Jan. 27th, 1845-30th
WANTED, by the subscriber, the following Neighbors: Sept. 20, 1843; Feb. 28 and July 3, 1844. Also
Nos. 4 and 25 of the Wasp.
W. RICHARDS.
March 19-46th
THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.
WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be exceeded in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabriolettes, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Buggy Wagons, Hearses, Sportsmen's
Trailing Wagons, two and one horse
Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also,
Ploughs, Scythe snaths, Rakes, &c. &c.
which we shall sell at wholesale or retail
at our factory on Water street opposite
Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens
as we intend to hear no grumbling from
our customers on account of high prices.
For we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.
GEORGE W. HARRIS, Prest.
ELIJAH FORDHAM, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
BURR FROST.
DAVID DE VOL.
JOSHUA SMITH.
DAVID W. FOX.
SHADRACH DRIGGS.
DWIGHT WEBSTER.
JESSE H. ATHERTON;
WM. LISK.
Jany. 15th, 1845.-37-46.

WISTAR'S BALM.
THE
OF WILD CHERRY GREAT REMEDY
CONSUMPTION OF THE LUNGS.
Coughs and Colds, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pains or Soreness of the Chest, Difficulty of Breathing, Bronchitis,
Whooping Cough, Croup, &c.
AMONG all the famous medicines for Consumption, none seems to be meeting with greater success, or gaining a higher reputation than that most wonderful article, Wistar's Balm of Wild Cherry! That it stands at the head of all other remedies is now universally conceded. It has cured thousands upon thousands—of all classes—in cases of the most dangerously Consumptive character —and physicians of the greatest eminence throughout our whole country unhesitatingly recommend it as the most powerful curative of Pulmonary diseases, in the whole range of Pharmacy. Thousands of consumptive patients have already tested its exalted virtues, and confessed its surpassing, excellent and amazing power. The remarkable success of this Balm is no doubt owing in a great measure to the peculiarly agreeable and powerful nature of its ingredients. It is a fine Herbal Medicine, composed chiefly of Wild Cherry Bark and the genuine Iceland Moss—the latter imported expressly for this purpose) the rare medical virtues of which are also combined, by a new chemical process with the Extract of Tar—thus rendering the whole Compound the most certain and efficacious remedy ever discovered.
A CASE OF ASTHMA.
The following is from a distinguished Lawyer of the city of New York, who had been afflicted with the Asthma for upwards of 'Twenty Years,' and who, after reading such cases can doubt the efficacy of this medicine!
New York, January 25, 1843.
I have been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for 24 years—sometimes so severely as to be confined to my room for weeks; and although attended by various medical advisors, of the highest reputation and skill in the country, the relief was but partial and temporary—twice the disease proved nearly fatal to my life.
Some few weeks ago I commenced taking Wistar's Balm of Wild Cherry, which gave me instant relief, and a single bottle cured me in a few days what I believe a radical and perfect cure.
A. WILLIAMS, Attorney at Law,
No. 58 Williams st., New York.
We are acquainted with the writer of the above certificate, and his statements are entitled to the full confidence of the public.
F. A. TALMADGE.
Recorder of the city of New York.
JOHN POWER, D. D.,
Vicar General of New York.
P. The above certificate may be seen at No. 125 Fulton street, New York.
Price $1 per bottle, or six for $5.
All orders from dealers south and west of the Wabash river should be addressed to Benjn. Phelps 76 Chesnut street, St.
Louis, Mo. The above truly valuable medicine is for sale at this office.
Feb. 13-42-3m
BENJAMIN PHELPS,
No. 76 Chestnut Street,
ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI,
WESTERN GENERAL AGENT FOR ALL THE
BEST FAMILY MEDICINES.
OFFERS to Dealers and others the following highly popular and valuable Medicines:
Wistar's balm of wild cherry
Rev. I. Covert's balm of life
Humphrey's Pile ointment
Dr. Williamson's pain soother
Bristle's rheumatic liniment and pills
Sappington's pills
Dr. Starkweather's hepatic elixir
Dr. Halsted's magnetic remedies
Bristol's sarsaparilla
Fridley's tetter ointment
Fahnestock's vermifuge
Jew David's or Hebrew plaster
Dr. Halsted's brisk pills
Nov 13-42-6m
EARTHENWARE, EARTHENWARE!
J. CROCKETT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactury, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety
of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and
sale early in the spring, at his Manufactury in Rich Street, one Block north of Parley Street.
Feb. 7, 1844. no4-46.
IOWA TWINS.
THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.
THE good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety.
From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross
at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.
DANIEL C. DAVIS.
May 23d, 1844.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.
THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo
and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr.
Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cy-for more. They consist of
COUGH LOZENGES.
Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.
WORM LOZENGES.
The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion
long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them,
and are doctored for various complaints,
without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.
CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dinner, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all
the unpleasant symptoms arising from too
free living.
CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.
FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will
not return.
A cure in all cases guaranteed or the
money refunded.
SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.
This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000
are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within
the reach of every person in the community.
A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.
KEYSTONE STORE.
A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearsley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints,
his friends and the public, with DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES, as they may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.
Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle: our interest; our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.
One man is not every body, but he may do much good by "turning a penny"
when he sells Goods, Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c., CHEAP for cash, produce, and truck, or exchanges fairly.
Call and try.
March 17th, -46-3m
NOTICE.
PERSONS wishing to get the Times
and Seasons, or other books bound,
can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.
There can be obtained at this office,
the first, second, third and fourth volumes
of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.
A. W. BABBITT,
Attorney at Law,
HAS removed his office to the city of Nauvoo and has taken the office occupied by the late General Joseph Smith, where he will be ready to attend to any, or all business committed to his trust.
Oct. 9, 1844-23th
NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of
BOOK BINDING.
In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen,
he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment
in this State.
The following is a list of his prices.
Quartos half bound plain 1.50
do do do neat 2.00
do do whole bound plain 2.00
do do do neat 2.50
Octavo full bound plain 1.00
do do do neat 1.50
do do half bound plain 0.75
do do do neat 1.00
do do do extra 1.37
Twelves full bound plain .63
do do do neat .87
do do half bound plain .50
do do do neat .63
All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and
on the most reasonable terms.
JOHN TAYLOR.
Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1844.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 1.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, May 7, 1845.

Whole Number 147

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Water and Main Streets

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, 5¢

Every subsequent insertion, 3¢ 1/2 cents.

Advertisements will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor, Proprietor, to receive attention.)

From Hudson Gazette Extra, April 8, 6 P. M.

WRECK OF THE SWALLOW.

Terrible Steamboat Accident.—A Large Number of Lives Lost.—One of the most melancholy and heart rending accidents that ever happened on our river, took place last evening in the Athens channel, nearly opposite this city. The steamboat Swallow, Captain Squires, one of the New York and Troy 6 o'clock line, which runs through without landing,

while on her passage down last night, ran upon a small island, which is situated a short distance from the main shore, between the upper and lower villages.

We have visited the scene of destruction to day, and a melancholy sight it is truly. The forward part of the boat is broke off by her forward gangway, and her bows are thrown up nearly thirty feet, and rests high and dry on the island

some twenty feet from the water.

The crash must have been tremendous,

as every part of the boat is broken to pieces, and will be a total wreck.

The loss of life is awful, and as yet no correct estimate can be formed as to how many perished. We are informed by the captain that there were about three hun-ded passengers on board. The scene that took place on her striking is indescribable. The gentlemen who had ladies in charge rushed for the ladies' saloon, and the ladies who were in it rushed to the door to escape—the confusion and consternation were so great that a large number threw themselves headlong into the river, and many must have been drowned. The accident took place about eight o'clock in the evening; it was very dark and stormy, and the boat was under very moderate headway when she struck —had she been under full speed, many more lives must have been lost.

Some who jumped overboard had a very narrow escape. Miss Cornelia

Platt, a young lady of Detroit, who was on her way to New York, under the charge of Mr C. H. Hicks of that city, left the boat on a scuffle, and were taken to a short distance below nearly exhausted. Mr Hicks when he went over had his over-coat on, but finding that he could not do anything with it on, and it required great exertion to keep the scuffle up straight, he succeeded in getting it off

—the coat was found this morning nearly five miles below, in one of the pockets was a draft for a considerable amount.

A large number of boats from Athens and from this city, went immediately to the relief of the sufferers and a number of persons were picked up. The steamboats Rochester and Express were just behind the Swallow when the accident occurred, and they came along side and rendered all the assistance they could,

and took most of the passengers on board.

The stern of the boat sank almost immediately, and must have carried a large number down with it. At high tide

the water is clear up to the upper deck over the State rooms; this afternoon at low water they succeeded in getting out six bodies—five women and one man. One was recognized to be the wife of George

M. Coffin, of West Troy. The rest of the bodies were not recognized.

The John Mason has been down and taken all the baggage, and what furniture they could reach belonging to the boat. We understand that it is the intenion of the owners to take out her engines and machinery immediately, so that they can raise the stern and obtain the bodies of those who were drowned in the cabin.

The Coroner of Greene county held an inquest over the bodies, and rendered a verdict according to the facts. The bodies were then taken to Troy, that they might be identified by their friends.

It is supposed that a Mrs French, and a Mrs Lambert were among the drowned.

The following is from a passenger in the Swallow, on the night of the accident:—

I was one of the passengers in the Swallow on Monday evening, and never

d I want to be the witness of another scene such as occurred on board this boat. I had just retired to my state room, after taking tea in the lower cabin, when

I felt the boat strike with tremendous force against what I thought was some other boat. Immediately I heard an upper roar through the cabins, with confused cries that we had struck ground and were sinking. I put on my cloak, and rushed out upon the guard up to my hips in water. I was astounded and bewildered at the sight which presented itself to my view. Although the night was very dark

I could see a number of bodies in the river, some clinging to the guard of the boat, which was then fast sinking under water. At this moment a fireman rushed from the boiler room and gave the cry of 'fire.' I then gave myself up to despair, and resolved to jump overboard, and try to gain the shore. I proceeded to the top of the state rooms, where one of the most heart-rending scenes presented itself to my view that was ever witnessed.

The bells of Hudson and Athens were sounding the alarm, and we could hear the shouts from voices on the shore; but this only added to our agony, as we knew they could be of no service to us at this awful moment. Although the confusion at this moment was great, I distinctly recollect seeing several men throw themselves into the river. I know not what became of them, but I suppose they found a watery grave.

A gentleman just arrived from Athens informs us that among the persons lost is Mrs Parker of Utica, widow of the late Milton Parker. Her body has not been found.

PASSENGERS SAVED.

The Express took on board 40

The Rochester 94

Carried to Athens and Hudson 70

Total 204

Leaving about one hundred missing.

In all the additional intelligence received, the culpable negligence—the criminal carelessness of Wm. Burnett, the pilot, becomes more and more apparent.

One of the passengers gives the following account of the calamity:—

On examination by day light, this island on which we struck proved to be a rock, covered partly with grass, about 30

by 50 feet in size, and 10 or 15 feet above the water. The boat is broken a little forward of the wheels, the forward part running up on to the island at an angle of 45 degrees. Shortly after I tumbled over, (a fall of about 18 feet,) a ladder was brought, and in all I think about 100 persons escaped that way.

After remaining on the island until half past 9 o'clock, I finally got off on the Athens shore, where I remained until last evening. During yesterday efforts were made to search the boat, which resulted in obtaining most of the baggage and six bodies. Upon going on board of the John

Mason last evening, I was informed that the coroner's jury had just returned a verdict, either acquitting the pilot of, or not charging him with blame. This verdict has not been satisfactory to any of the passengers with whom I have conferred. Indeed, the question of negligence seems to me to lie in a very small compass, for if it were so dark as to prevent the pilot from seeing, he should have stopped; while on the other hand, if he could see, he was bound to know better than to leave a straight, fair channel—one quarter of a mile wide; and run his boat upon a well known island, at an angle with the channel of 25 or 30 degrees, and pointing almost into the village of Athens. If it is said that he had just come up from supper, the above remark will apply to the person left in charge, for on such a night as that, (if ever, none but persons of known skill and prudence should be at the wheel.

Great praise is due Mr J. P. Hinsdale of

New York, who with the aid of a small boat, supported Miss Platt of Detroit, for a long time in the water, and until they were picked up and taken ashore in a small boat, quite helpless. Mr J. A.

Hicks of Detroit, Chandler Root of Cooperstown, and Osborn Spencer of Albany,

also deserve honorable mention. Mr

Hinsdale was obliged to cast from his arm a satchel, which contained $1,500 in gold, belonging to Miss Platt, which was lost. From a careful examination of the above named persons and others who were in the water, (each of whom left different parts of the boat) who state that a number of persons were around them, crying for help, saying they could not swim &c. I am of opinion that not less than 20, and probably 40 lives were lost.

No search had yet been made in the river, nor had that part of the boat where the ladies would most likely be found,

been reached when I left last evening.

The ladies saloon being entirely submerged. I have not yet heard any blame attached to Captain Squires, but would be glad to know who it was who started that unfortunate cry, which sent those back to perish, who might have otherwise been saved.

A SLAVE SHOT DEAD:

The American has learned upon the authority of a letter from Charles County, Maryland, received by a gentleman of this city, that a young man named

Mathews, a nephew of Gen. Mathews, and whose father, it is believed, holds an office at Washington, killed one of the slaves upon his father's farm, by shooting him. The letter states that young Mathews had been left in charge of the farm; that he gave an order to the servant which was disobeyed, when he proceeded to the house, obtained a gun and returning, shot the servant. He immediately, the letter continues, fled to his father's residence, where he still remains unmolested. We hope he may be speedily brought to justice. It is time to put a stop to such high handed and bloody outrages on the part of slave-holders and their dependants!

Agricultural

POTATOES.

Potatoes were first discovered in Vir-

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1845.

VOLUME 3.

This number commences Volume 3, and as a matter of public notoriety, we must say something. Well we have said and published many things during the past year, and we mean to continue to spread the truth and make it honorable, as far as we can.

We have it also in contemplation to give our Neighbor a new suit, for the good he has done; confidently expecting that his patrons, far and near, will see that they are equal with him, by filling his pockets with spending money, so that we can go any where independently.

National Coats of Arms.—There is some thing singular in the "Coat of Arms" of a nation: the people catch the spirit of the emblems and mottoes, and the destinies of thousands seem to hang upon them. For instance; Great Britain presents to the world the Lion and Unicorn; and the people of the nation with a shrewd set of officers, are pushing and conquering the nations of the earth, as if they were Lions and Unicorns.

The United States have adopted the Eagle and Liberty cap. The eagle is a ferocious bird and what better are the people? Let her mob leaders, duellers, "big thunders," and thousand other, "independent" republicans, answer. This is not all; the word "liberty," so sweet, filled the tiara round the head of liberty upon all the coin, once; but now a days, the Goddess has taken it from its exaltation, and sits upon it! and so in all parts of the realm, the stronger portion sits upon the weaker.

Upon the Mexican coin, we see the Eagle holding a black snake in his beak, some capricious covered with bugs in his claws, and what is the nation but a perfect sample of the national coat of arms? Let Kendall of the Picayune answer. The Turks go by tails, i. e. the musk ox tails; there are bashaws of one tail; bashaws of two tails, and once in a while some fortunate fellow gets to flaunt before the gaping crowd as bashaws with three tails.

The Germans once had a broom for their fleet flag, with the motto—"a new broom sweeps clean."

The Hollanders or low Dutch, it is said made use of a cabbage head for a similar purpose on land, adapting these words for a caution: "When de horse pe stole, den put de lock on de stable door."

The French hold the tri-colored flag in great estimation. The violet is sacred with them. Their women paint in resemblance. Buonaparte tried to adopt something else, but the grape vine of Corsica could not stand the hug of a Russian bear.

It is altogether needless to trace the subject further. The scriptures give us plenty of samples in corroboration of national coats of arms. Naphali was a hind let loose; Gad was a serpent by the way; and Joseph was a "fruitful bough;" so if ever the Latter day Saints adopt a national motto, let it be a dove bearing a fruitful olive bough, as a token of peace on earth, and oil for the healing of the nations: For Judah will eventually come forth with the old Lion to break in pieces the nations, and the young Lions of the forest will roar.

GIANTS.

We have had for exhibition in our city for the last few days, a Giant and Giantess; the former seven feet four inches high, and the latter six feet six, and both of them well proportioned; pretty tall for a new country. Their name is Randall and they hail from Scotland.

We had thought of going to see them, but upon the following reflections we declined. In the first place, there is some of our stout police, five fellows and as great a natural curiosity as the giant, and they have never yet exhibited themselves. Then there is our youngest devil about six feet four inches and he is public works; and if he is not big enough, then there is Gen. Brown, from the other side of the river, head and shoulders above other folks, about six feet eight inches. We must not forget long John M. C. of Chicago; if we had him here he would exultate for two hours on pure democratic principles, before a multitude and charge nothing; he is seven feet two inches high. Then there is Mr. Walker, of Brown county; seven feet six inches high, two inches ahead, all public. We might enumerate Field Jarvis, the Salem baby; and Mr. Dibble's ten months old child, about 50 lbs. weight, and a host of others that might be mentioned. Talk of exhibition! Why against Illinois, is as old

Foreign News.

THE CALEDONIA.
SEVEN DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

The mail packet, Caledonia, from Liverpool arrived at Boston on Monday evening the 20th ult. By extra exertion of steamboats, express runners, and other means, we have news by her in advance of the mail several days.

The British Parliament have passed a bill to occupy Oregon, independent of the United States.

We have only room for the following extract:—

[From the London Times of April 5.]

The American packet ship, the Caledonia, which has been detained till this morning, will carry out the distinct and emphatic declaration of the British government on the subject of the Oregon Territory, which was received last night with the strong and unanimous satisfaction of both houses of Parliament. When the interests and dignity of the country, and the preservation of the dominions of the crown are really at stake, there is no equivocation in the language of the government to foreign powers, and no resemblance of weakness or hesitation in any political party. Lord Palmerston may abuse Lord Ashburton for acceding to the very same condition which he had himself not only accepted but urged upon the cabinet at Washington; and Lord John Russell may boast that his last official act was to sanction the rejection of a proposal in a negotiation which turns out to have been a mere provisional arrangement; but these attempts to depreciate the satisfactory adjustment of a former dispute, which the whigs had been unable to settle in ten years of negotiation, are only proofs that the tricks of that party have no effect whatever on the honest convictions of the country.

We are justly proud that on the Oregon question as well as on that of the north eastern boundary, the British government has uniformly shown its moderation as well as its firmness on our side. It is impossible not to deplore, on the other hand, that ill regulated, overbearing and aggressive spirit of the American Democracy, which overlooks the real present interests of the two nations in the Oregon territory—that, namely, of letting it alone for another half a century at least, or deciding the matter by arbitration, before any local national interest have sprung up there too powerful to be so disposed of.

But since the Americans, and even the President of the United States, are determined that this question shall not be allowed to rest any longer; since they have rejected the proposal of an arbitration, and ostentatiously announce claims and measures utterly inconsistent with the system of joint occupation; or the rights at all, it is fit that they be warned in the most explicit manner that their pretensions amount, if acted upon, to the clearest "cæcus belli" (cæcus belli) which has ever yet arisen between Great Britain and the American Union.

It is extraordinary that the United States should have advanced so near the brink of war, as to have carried through the Senate a measure for annexing Texas, and failed by only two votes, in a measure for seizing Oregon, without having any perceptible care to provide for the means of consummating such unparalleled acts, of defending themselves from the consequences of them.

Are they not aware that in proportion as they assume the illegal exercise of sovereign rights on the desert shores of the Pacific, they expose the populous coasts of the Atlantic to the broadsides and blockades of British fleets? Have they forgotten in their anxiety to extend their "domestic institutions" to the whole continent of America, that in the event of war they will have to encounter the most novel of all dangers; that arising from the presence of the standard of freedom among a population of slaves?

Or is their blindness and infatuation in proportion to the injustice and criminality of their designs, so that, in their eagerness to seize adjacent territories, they overlook the resources of their opponents and their own weakness? The consequences of such a war will prove incalculably disastrous. They would make brave men hesitate, even in a just cause; but the boldness of the democracies despises alike the justice of the cause, and the terrible evils of the probable result.

We have no intention of aggravating the very serious difficulties with which the indiscreet language of Mr. Polk has already surrounded the Oregon question, and which renders a speedy solution of it indispensable to the maintenance of pacific relations between the two nations. The language of this country in such emergency, and in the presence of such opponents, cannot be too temperate or too decided. That language has been used, and with equal propriety and patriotism, by the leaders of each of our great parties. The rights of Great Britain are as clear and unquestionable as those which Mr. Polk has thought fit to make the subject of his inaugural address; and whatever he may be prepared to do, this country is, as the Prime Minister of the crown declared last night, resolved and prepared to maintain them.

FRANCE.

In France, nothing very new or interesting had occurred. The Chambers were engaged in the wise project of endeavoring to regulate the concerns and management of the railroad companies, a project as feasible as those that sometimes show themselves in this country.

Legislation will hardly reach the gambling transactions in shares, to prevent which the attempt is made.

There was no additional intelligence of importance from Switzerland. The country still remained in a state of the most feverish agitation.

The accounts from Madrid are to the 27th of March. They represent the conspiracy, which has been lately detected in that capital, as one of the most serious character. It contemplated the assassination of the ministers and the imprisonment of the Queen. Twenty-seven persons had been arrested charged with participation in it, all of whom are said to belong to the lowest grade of society.

A letter from St. Petersburg states that the Empress remains in a very suffering state, and news of her improvement or the reverse are communicated to the public day by day. The Emperor, too, seems to have sustained a rude assault, both in body and mind, from these heavy losses. New regulations of importance have been proclaimed as to the education of women in Russia.

The overland mail from China had arrived but brings no news of interest to the American reader.

COMMERCIAL ITEMS AND ANNALS.

A correspondent of Hunt's Magazine is furnishing a series of papers on the annals of American commerce, in which are embodied some interesting items of information. In 1791, the Bank of the United States was established at Philadelphia, with a capital of $10,000,000. The revenue of the United States at that time was $1,771,200. The expenditure, was $3,795,430.

The exports from New York amounted to $2,505,465.

In the year named, also, the first parcel of cotton of American growth, was exported from the United States.

In 1792, Congress passed an act for establishing a mint and regulating the coins of the United States.

The South Carolina Bank, the Bank of Pennsylvania, and the Bank of New Hampshire were established. The Union Bank in Boston was incorporated.

The exports from Charleston, South Carolina, this year, were estimated at $2,917,976.

The raising of mulberry trees and silk worms and the culture of silk had as far succeeded in Connecticut, that a minister in Bradford had a silk gown made for him this year, at his own home. This was the first clergyman's gown fabricated throughout America.

The revenues of the United States at this time, were estimated at $3,700,000. The tonnage of vessels which paid duty in the ports of the United States, between the 1st of October, 1791, and the 30th of September, 1792, including the coasting and fishing vessels, was upwards of 800,000 tons.

In 1793, the exports of the United States were estimated at $20,000,000.

CRUMBS.

From all of nature, bees make honey; And misers suck the world for money.

An Irish post-boy having driven a gentleman a long stage through torrents of rain, the gentleman said to Paddy, "are you not very wet?" "Arrah! I don't care about being very wet, but please yer honour I'm very dry."

The cold water cure, like every other thing under the sun, has excited abundant discussion in the shape of pamphlets and treatises, pro and con. It is, however, astonishing, considering that the subject is a medical one, to mark the unanimity which prevails among the disputants. The immediate followers of Priessnitz advocate the system adopted at Grafenberg, which is principally on the plan of immersion, while those on the other side of the question are simply for throwing cold water on the subject.

It is the lot of royalty, whether real or imaginary, to be attended with misfortunes. A little while ago it was the fate of Richard the Third, to be represented by a young man well known for his attachment to the stage, at a country theatre. On Lord Stanley's entrance at the fourth act, the tyrant demands, "How now, Lord Stanley, what's the news?" The answer given was, it seems, a fast—"There's a man at the door says you owe him a crown, and who swears he won't go away till he gets it."

Cultivate your intellectual powers by habits of study and reflection. Cultivate your cabbagees by hoeing them early in the morning and very frequently.

Much coin, much care—much meat, much malady.

Be always without a cent, and be happy—eat nothing, and be healthy.

Daub yourself with honey, and you will have plenty of flies. Starch up, brush your whiskers, and lay in a plentiful supply of soft nonsense, and the girls will call you a nice young man.

The following is a good substitute for brewer's yeast, and will be found practically useful: Boil one ounce of hops in four quarts of water, until the hops fall to the bottom of the pan, strain it, and when milk-warm, add six ounces of flour and five of sugar; set the mixture by the fire, stirring it frequently; in 28 hours add four pounds of potatoes, boiled and bruised fine; next day bottle the yeast—it will keep a month. One-fourth of yeast, and three of warm water, is the proportion for baking.

When Sir G. Murray attempted to excuse himself from taking office under the Duke of Wellington, on account of his inexperience in public speaking, "Pooh! pooh!" said the duke, "do as I do; say what you think, and don't quote Latin."

The great man of the village being at dinner, allowed one of his tenants to stand while he conversed with him. "What news, my friend?" said the squire. "None that I know of," replied the farmer, "except that a sow of mine has had a litter of thirteen pigs, and she has only twelve teats." "What will the thirteenth do?" said the landlord. "Do as I do," returned Hodge; "it will stand and look on while others eat."

your telling me to go to sleep, for I won't. Go to sleep, indeed! I'm sure it's almost time to get up. I hardly know what's the use of coming to bed at all now.

The Skylarks, indeed! I suppose you'll be buying a little warbler, and at your time of life, be trying to sing. The peacocks will sing next. A pretty name you'll get in the neighborhood; and in a very little time, a nice face you'll have. Your nose is getting red already, and you've just one of the noses liquor always flies to. You don't see it's red? No—I dare say not—but I see it; I see a great many things you don't. And so you'll go on. In a little time, with your brandy and water—don't tell me that you only take two small glasses; I know what men's two small glasses are; in a little you'll have a face all over as if it was made of red currant jam. And I should like to know who's to endure you then? I won't, so don't think it. Don't come to me.

Nice habits men learn at clubs! There's Joskins; he was a decent creature once, and now I'm told he has more than once boxed his wife's ears. He's a skylark, too. And I suppose some day, you'll be trying to box my ears? Don't attempt it, Mr. Caudle; I say don't attempt it. Yes, it's all very well for you to say you don't mean to; but I only say again, don't attempt it. You'd rue it till the day of your death, Mr. Caudle.

Going and sitting for four hours at a tavern. What men, unless they had their wives with them, can find to talk about, I can't think. No good, of course.

Eighteen pence a week—and drinking brandy and water, enough to swim a boat! And smoking like the funnel of a steamship! And I can't afford myself so much as a piece of tape! It's brutal, Mr. Caudle. It's ve-ve-ry bru—tel—

And here, thank heaven! yawning, she fell asleep.—Punch.

The Heroine of Andes.—Anti rentism, which figures so disgracefully under the very nose of executive power, upon the very plains of Rensselaer, assumes a more interesting character among the wild hills of Delaware. Owen Steele and Charles Parker, two young men who are Sheriff's officers, were suddenly set upon by the Indians, near Fish lake, nearly on the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains. The road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the few mock heroes of the blanket. Steele and Parker, it seems, actually succeeded in keeping their assailants at bay, with a couple of Colt's pistols, until they had gained this forest covert, when, putting spurs to their horses, they were soon out of the reach of rifle, and gained the inn in the little village of Andes. The country around the summit of one of the Katybrag mountains, the road crossing the outlet of the lake, plunges at once after passing the clearings, into a deep and wooded defile, the very ground where real Indians would have lurked, and which was left unguarded by the

The Mermaid. came to, before the foundation of the Nauvoo House early on Friday morning, with Mormons and goods for Nauvoo, in 36 hours from St. Louis. Capt. Gleim is a prime good officer; sees well to the interest of the boat and passengers. That's the line, pull away.

Gentility. as the sucker said, is "stranger couldn't you nasty my dodger with a drizzle or two of them lasses, so as I cud sorta gag it down comfortabl'."

Anti-mormonism.—A great number of thieves, with about $100,000 worth of stolen goods, were arrested in and after the late fire in Pittsburg.

Word of the Lord.—Mr. Lord not the Lord, takes the place of Flagg in the St. Louis Gazette. Really we now hope the people of St. Louis will hear the word of the Lord.

Thanks.—The junior says, our thanks to Judge Breese for a map of Texas and California. Such favors are worth having and reciprocating.

Pine Lumber.—Four or five rafts of pine lumber from Wisconsin, landed at our wharf during last week. They were immediately taken by the Trustees of the Temple at about $12 per M. ft. This speaks well for Nauvoo; a nimbler dollar is worth a slow pound.

Arrivals.—Some thirty or forty emigrants for this place, together with some of the handy or needful works of men, came to this city on Thursday evening last, as Shakespeare says, "all to fill up."

Flour.—We are happy to notice a supply from up the river. It went current at $3.50 for super-fine per bbl. The money market has been quite easy for some time; with little or no "spurious stuff" to trouble the unwary.

The only way to "pass" bogus and counterfeit, is to "shun" the possessors and issuers, by expulsion, et al armis.

On the 26th March, says the N. O. Tropic, the Mexican Congress passed an act declaring it "treason" for any one to make a proposition to recognize or acknowledge the annexation of Texas to the United States.

Now this is plain Spanish, and if Uncle Sam has the wit of a common miller, he will not only take the grist but the bag too; That is, annex Mexico next and then there will be no treason.

Great Earthquake.—The City of Mexico, has been visited by a most destructive Earthquake on the 7th ult. Several Churches were destroyed, and many lives were supposed to have been lost. [Southern Paper.]

The scriptures foretell just such "earthquakes in divers places." The same paper that chronicles the earthquake, says that Mexico is declaring "War." The same scripture prophecies of that calamity too.

How many fond mothers and frugal housewives keep their pretty daughters and their preserves for some extra occasion—some "big bug" or other—till both turn sour? [Truth Teller.]

How many family christians keep their religion so well tended by pretty girls; so warmly clad by fine clothes, and so well fed on good preserves and fat living, that it never bears any fruit.

Pauperism in New York.—The annual returns of the authorities of the state of New York, show that in 1843, the number of paupers in that State was $2,754, or one to every thirty of the inhabitants. There were, besides, $2,047 paupers temporarily relieved, making an aggregate of 141,801, or one to every eighteen of the inhabitants. All except 11,416 of these were foreigners.

This is no more than should be expected in a state that has made so many canals, railroads, and other public works. English, Scotch, French, Irish and Dutch, have dug ditches, blasted rocks, and wore themselves out at other business, while the Yankees were speculating upon their labors.

The pauper system in New York is highly creditable to the wisdom and patriotism of her statesman. These paupers do much towards maintaining themselves. Every county has a farm and houses for its poor under an overseer, with excellent regulations. They have done selling poverty at auction.

It is a pity but they would come up to the scripture rule, and make every sectarian church support their own poor; for "the poor ye have always with you."

When is a man in a quandary? when he is holding a pretty woman with one hand, and a piece of custard pie in the other, and wants to scratch.

A Wonder.—About twenty thousand inhabitants live week after week in Nauvoo, without a charter, and no lawsuits. Aint that a wonder!

Hark! dye hear? Dr. Richards actually wants the odd numbers of the "Neighbor and Wasp," as advertised in another column. Who will bring them on?

Heavy job.—Richie is trying to shoulder the "Globe," with all of Blair's dirt, and Van Buren's cabbage upon it.

Spot on the Sun.—Six new and well-defined spots have appeared upon the sun's disc. Two of them are near together, and have the appearance of being surrounded with a multitude of smaller ones. The area of the whole together cannot be less than 20,000 miles in diameter.—[Aib. Citizen.]

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Editor:—I see by some remarks in the State Register, that the editor of that paper thinks the Neighbor advocates the resistance of the laws. I have not so considered it. But we are surrounded by those who not only advocate that doctrine, but are practicing it all the time; and if we have dipped our pen into their bloody inkstand, we will call for a pen wiper immediately. The hand that wrote those lines on which the editor of the Register has made remarks, has been shot all to pieces—burnt with powder—torn and mangled with balls while in prison, and no wonder that he should feel as though he was pulling trigger when he writes upon law and writs.

It is not the sentiment of the citizens of Nauvoo to resist the law. We do not wish to do it. But when there are secret plans laid by our enemies, when those who have been in their secret meetings have disclosed to us their whole designs—a conspiracy to destroy us,—and when they use the law only as a scabbard to conceal the assassins' dagger, or as sweet-meats to cover their deadly poison, and stand sworn and pledged to do it. Can the editor of the Register blame us if we look with a jealous eye upon that "white heap" and be always ready, when His Excellency, Gov. Ford, demanded our arms in the time of our greatest distress and danger, did we not forthwith give them up? Have we stolen any State arms, or forged orders to get them? But as the followers of Sidney Rigdon are lurking about our section, having recently come here from Pittsburgh, and, despairing of the fulfillment of their wicked predictions unless they turn in to fan the flame, and being satisfied that they are disposed to do us evil secretly, or to do the anti-mormons evil and then lay it to us, after publishing lies the most cruel, and slanders the most odious to effect our ruin, that it would be difficult to restrain even our women from committing violence upon them! We hope they may not come into our town. These creatures have cursed us and went away; and for fear it may not be fulfilled, we think they have come to, superintend its fulfillment. We do not wish to break any law of the land, and all the favors we ask of apostates and murderous Rigdonites are, if they have once safely got away from a people so corrupt as they say we are, to stay away forever. We do not wish to see their faces or hear their names. The curse of God is upon them, and our wives and our children have sealed it with their tears, and amen; and we hope they will keep far from us.

AMERICUS.

Pittsburg, April 21, 1845.
Dear Sir: Having a little leisure from the toils of our town, which has begun to build up again most astonishingly, (between 75 and 100 buildings being now under contract,) I drop you a few lines.

Some new developments having come to light among your opponents here, I thought I would notify you. I say opponents, for I learn from actual experience that they oppose every principle that your Editors advance, good bad or indifferent. The confidence of the people is, however, entirely destroyed in Rigdon, and his sec.

Several little things have leaked out here to impair and dilapidate Rigdon's system. He would not give Lane any credit for his course, but wanted him baptized again; Law would not stand that, and left for home two or three days before Rigdon's conference commenced. A noisy half-bred Missourian by the name of Hinkle, however, when commanded by Rigdon, bowed defiance; and being unclean ever since he apostatized, as Rigdon declared, was re-baptized and ordered to go home and do the same to his proselytes in Iowa.

Rigdon has a crude mixture: Some of his servants beat the Dutch and doctor Faust; and amid the contending elements of disappointed ambition, for so they betray their weakness in every move and speech they make, he is trying to make a new place of gathering at Chambersburg, where, according to some of his visions or calculations, the real work will begin.

I took pains to converse with Rigdon, and some of his wise men, since the conference, and I do really believe that there is nothing on earth, in heaven, and (doubtful) in hell, that matches his projects, and as to his Apostles, from the head down to a man they called Forge us, you might as well make diamonds out of dough; gold beads out of bran; or union out of fog! they speak for themselves; they are a set of jealous, disappointed ungovernable speculators in religion. A fellow they called McLellan, and a real little game cock by the name, I think of Winchester, "will head" President Rigdon (as they style him) worse than John M. Botts did Capt. Tyler. If they do not try to wear the bell, then I am greatly deceived in "bell weather."

The meanest principle betrayed by these new fashioned Mormons, is that they rely upon success by scaring old Mormons into their kingdom—and not by preaching. They make no efforts to preach and gain influence by good works: We have watched them here, and from the papers we glean that they run from one branch of your church to another, and scatter dissension, tales, and awful forebodings, to gain converts; but since the fire here, their "divine" authority has been so much scorched, that even Dr. Bennett had rather stay in Cincinnati than come here to see their curls grow again.

So far as I am conversant with people, and especially since the fire, the voice is, Joseph we know, and the "Twelve" we have heard of, but who are you? If you had any divine communication, why not tell us of the fire?

They harp upon a subject they call "spiritual wife doctrine," which I do not understand, nor have I been able to fathom the mystery by talking with them; for which reason I consider it a stratagem, to cozen with. If they had used any other term, and said "carnal wifery" I should have known what they meant, as several are now living nigh unto adultery, besides having the "appearance of fornication."

I have heard some choice morsels relative to their divisions, and claims for pre-emption rights, which if some should hang to Kirtland, some should go "out west" and some run to Chambersburg, you shall be duly notified.

Respectfully &c.,
S S

P. S. Our friends in the different cities, and other places have exceeded our most sanguine expectations in re-donating for our loss. Pittsburg will soon be itself again. Lumber is plenty and rafts arriving daily.

New York, April 19, 1845.

Mr. Editor:—Sir: The news of the fire in Pittsburg has brought a gloom over this city, which few, away, can imagine. We have felt the sad effects of fire, and we may again. We tremble for fear. Since the papers came out with an account of the fire in Pittsburg, there has been much speculation about Rigdon, the second rate Mormon. Some have heretofore believed the old man was sincere, but since the fire there is no mercy for the old fellow. He is a prophet, and let a city be burnt down over his head—I tell you, sir, it smells strong of hypocrisy, as well as of fire. Such incidents strengthen Mormonism, and as Col. Stone used to say, "gives your delusion fresh vigor."

It is singular how every effort to check, head, or turn Mormonism fails. We, of the world, notice this, and cannot account for it.

The popularity of Rigdonism has been distanced the first heat. His friends here are down; they feel the force of things as they happen, and the moral depravity of the old man's course. He, in his paper, has been cursing Nauvoo, and his satellites have chimed in; but the curse has fallen upon his own house, and the people believe he is a wicked man.

I must say I have been waiting for a sign—and when about one more course shall have fallen round the feet of those that turn and flee from "the house of faith," as you call yourselves; I shall be convinced that God is with you, whether I believe and obey or not. I think I shall write a line by the next packet to Liverpool, that they may know how closely God whisks to wicked men. Bennett of the Herald, is perfectly sewed up with Mormonism; he dare not peep or mutter. The spring trade is lively, and although the wreck of the Swallow, an account of which you have seen by the papers, ought to be a caution against travelling by steamboats, still the gay world are just as eager as ever to ride in these floating coffins.

I shall hereafter give you a more perfect account of matters and things in Gotham, or the land of the knickerbockers.

W. VAN T**

P. S. 9 1-2 P. M. The Caledonia steamer from Liverpool, is telegraphed as in at Boston.

DIED.—Near Macedonia, on the 29th inst, Mr. William N. Haws, aged 55 years 9 months and one day; after a severe sickness of about five weeks of the dropsy in the chest.

A VOICE FROM NAUVOO.

Whereas it is currently reported in various parts of this county, and in the adjoining counties as we are credibly informed, that it is our intention to throng Carthage during the ensuing session of the Circuit Court of this county, for the purpose of awing or overruling the court so as to procure a conviction of certain men of the crime of murdering Joseph & Hyrum Smith; and whereas such reports are calculated to awaken an unjust prejudice against an innocent people; and whereas our enemies have jumped upon this stratagem as a hobby to raise an excitement against us; and whereas many honest and law abiding men are liable to be misled and imposed upon by these false, malicious, and envious reports; and whereas the Governor of our State has solemnly pledged himself to us that the laws should be executed in justice in the premises; and whereas we did, at that time, pledge ourselves as a people, to patiently wait their execution, and the action of the government; and whereas it is reported that certain individuals are trying to raise an excitement on the editorial of the "Nauvoo Neighbor."

We, therefore, in behalf of the church we represent do hereby publish to all men, that as a people and council, we have no knowledge of the "Neighbor" until we read it, as do others, and therefore cannot be responsible for it, and all we ask is the same consideration in the public mind, as is exercised towards the editorials of other papers in our land. And we further declare to all men, that as a people we are still determined to abide our pledge, and await the action of the executive and judiciary, and tarry at home, and attend to our own business as usual during the sitting of the court—except such as have lawful business with the court, and are required to be in attendance, and hope that all men will do the same; and we wish, decidedly wish, that those whose business it is to keep the peace during court, should do it, and let us as a people alone, for we do not wish to be brought in collision with our neighbors, and we are determined to abide the law.

In behalf of a general council of the authorities of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, at Nauvoo, this 6th day of May, 1845.

W. RICHARDS, Committee.

HO DANIELS' COME FOR JUDGMENT.

A PAMPHLET containing 24 pages, and three elegant wood cuts, has been published at this office. It contains the names and proceedings of the principal murderers of Joseph and Hyrum Smith; such, as Nat. J. C. Davis—Sylvan T. C. Sharp, and others. These Pamphlets can be had at this office and at A. A. Lathrop's Store.

WM. M. DANIELS.

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.
BROTHERS wishing to purchase Lands on meyer Mrs. Emma Smith's or the Mansion of WILLIAM SMITH.

ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this county, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.

May 6th, 1845-1-f

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS.
ATTENTION!

GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, for lands or farms in other parts of this State, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a minutely written description of them, post paid, with their real cash value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.

Also members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this county, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact the business.

No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a mod rate or reasonable compensation will be exacted.

Nauvoo, May 5th, 1845-1-3m

LAND FOR SALE, CHEAP.
61 Acres s e q sec 22; 6 n 8 w the best q of land in the Big Field, good title.

ALSO—160 Acres n w q sec 36; 7 n 8 w on the Ly harp road.

ALSO—160 Acres s w 29; 7 n 6 w. Will take trade for this last q.

ALSO—118 Acres of the s e q of sec 14; 3 north of Har, with a new log house not finished, some timber; price $1 50 per acre, part cash part trade.

EDSON WHIPPLE.

Enquire of May 5th 1845.—1-f

WANTED, by the subscriber, the following Neighbors: Sept. 20, 1843; Feb. 28 and July 3, 1844. Also Nos. 4 and 25 of the Wasp.

W. RICHARDS.

March 19-46tf

TAILOR'S ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulhol land street, one door west of A. Davis's store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store; formerly occupied by R. Wells.

This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.

N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be holden for the debts of said association.

JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
WM. P. MCINTIRE, Counsellors.
GEORGE WATT, Superintendents.
ROBT. RUSSEL,
J. H. GLINES,
C. B. THOMPSON,
WM. K. PARKER,
JOSEPH ARMSTRONG,
WM. STRINGHAM,
JABEZ BOTSFORD,
B. CHAPMAN.

Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845-47-3m

TO THE PUBLIC.

WE the Bricklayers, Stonelayers, and Plasterers of the city of Nauvoo, having formed ourselves into an Association for the purpose of our carrying on our business in all its branches, such as brick and stone laying, plastering, hard finish, cornice, together with all kinds of stucco work, cementing, rough casting houses, cistern building, &c. &c., would say we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and having all the facilities for carrying on the business to any extent, either to furnish or not to furnish materials, and accomplish all jobs with despatch, which we will warrant to be done in the best manner. Would recommend to any individual wishing work done in our line of business to apply to the President of the Association, (two blocks south of the Hay scales,) who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

JACOB FOUTZ, President.
C. R. DANA, Councilor.
H. HOAGLAND, Councilor.
ENOCH REESE, Secretary.
JAS. TOWNSEND, Treasurer.

April 2nd, 1845-48tf

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned, having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845-49.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.

THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market.

In the latest and most fashionable style. Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN,
No. 52 Main street, St. Louis.

April 8th, 50-3m

LIME, LIME!

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.

JOSEPH OWENS,
THOS. MENDENHALL.

April 13th, 50-3m

NOTICE is hereby given that Howard Egan, Conservator for Joel Bullard, an insane person, will present a petition at the next Term of the Hancock Circuit Court, praying for an order of said Court to sell so much of the real estate of the said Joel Bullard, as will satisfy the claims against said estate. All parties interested will appear at said Term of the court and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

HOWARD EGAN, Conservator of the estate of Joel Bullard Insane.

Nauvoo, April 17, 1845-51 f

NOTICE
FOR sale of exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 183 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated 10 miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of

LEVI STEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52-4f

NOTICE.

THE Trustees in Trust for the church Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, would hereby notify the Saints who emigrate to Nauvoo, that they have a number of City lots in the city of Nauvoo, which they purpose to sell low for cash and good property. The following is a list of the lots offered. Further particulars will be given at the office of the Trustees in P. P. Pratt's store, one block north of the Temple.

Lot	Block	Lot	Block	Lot	Block
4	9	2	78
1	14	1	60
2	do	4	do
3	do	1	90
4	18	2	do
1	22	3	do
n hf 2	25	4	do

Lot	Block	Lot	Block	Lot	Block
1	93	1	120
2	94	2	121
3	100	1	122
4	do	2	do
1	103	n hf 1	123
2	do	3	do
3	101	w hf 1	127
4	do	4	do
1	105	w hf 1	139
2	do	2	do
3	do	3	do
4	do	4	do
1	106	h hf 1	140
2	107	w hf 1	147
3	do	2	do
4	108	h hf 1	157
1	do	3	do
2	do	4	do
3	110	1	159
4	119	3	do

Lot	Block	Lot	Block	Lot	Block
1	111	1	132
2	112	2	do
3	do	3	do
4	113	4	do
1	115	1	134
2	do	2	do
3	116	3	do
4	do	4	do
1	131	1	151
2	132	2	do

Lot	Block	Lot	Block	Lot	Block
1	111	1	132
2	112	2	do
3	do	3	do
4	113	4	do
1	115	1	134
2	do	2	do
3	116	3	do
4	do	4	do
1	131	1	151
2	132	2	do

The Trustees have also a number of good pieces of farming lands, near to Nauvoo, which they will sell low for cash, or such property as will help to build the Temple.

N. K. WHITELEY, Trustees.
Nauvoo, April 14, 1845-50tf

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR.

WAREHOUSE, general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo. The subscribers, having opened the above establishment and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try, ere you buy. Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7-49tf

NAUVOO TANNERY.

NOTICE—The Tanners and Shoemakers association, will pay in goods or Boots and Shoes, from four to five cents for calf-skins, and from three to four cents for hides, delivered at their tannery, situate on Hibbard and Rich streets, near Colton's brick yard, or at the Queens city store; we will also take on shares. We also want a large quantity of White and Black Oak bark and Sumach, for which we will pay the highest Nauvoo prices.

G. W. ROSECRANS, Superintendent.
April 1-48-3m

SEE HERE.

THE HOME

OF THE DESOLATE HEARTED.
The glory that reigned in those halls is past,
And the beauty that strangers courted,
And deep are the shadows that grief hath cast
On the home of the Desolate hearted.

The odor of flowers is in the air,
But no more we hear the muffled tread;
The vines untrained on the earth repose;
The nettles o'er top the bridal rose;
The clematis sinks from its wined place,
And the lily is crushed in its long embrace,
The garlands that hung on those walls of yore
With their beauty and bloom have departed.
And the wreathing of blossoms is known no more
In the home of the Desolate hearted.

The dust is deep on the rich guitar,
That wakened of old its music there,
The birds sit sadly with folded wing;
The lute lies by with a broken string,
The air-lark that hangs on the old elm bough
In a requiem wild is breathing now;
For the festive song and the joyous strain,
Ring not through those halls deserted,
And voices of mirth will not wake again,
In the home of the Desolate hearted.

The portrait that hung on the gallery's side,
Of that kindred band that long since died,
Are inward turned to the oaken wall,
For the gloomy memories they recall;
And many a landscape of glowing hue,
By a faded veil is hid from view;
For why should the gladness of happy days,
Whose light has for aye departed,
Be ever outpoured to the weary gaze,
In the home of the Desolate hearted.

H. E. G.

THE EVENING SKIES.

BY MRS. AMELIA D. WALBY.

Soft skies! amid your halls to night
How brightly beams each starry sphere,
Beneath your gently mellowed light
The loveliest scenes grow lovelier;
How high, how great, the glorious Power
That bade these silvery dew-drops fall:
That touched with bloom the folded flower!
And bent the blue sky over all!

I love to glide in these still hours,
With heart, and thought, and fancy,
When nought but stars, and waves and flowers
May give me their sweet company!
When far below the waves outspread
Glide safely on with liquid hue;
When winds are low—and skies overhead
Are beaming beautifully blue.

Oh, what a heavenly hour is this!
The green earth seems an Eden-home—
And yet I pine amid my bliss,
For purer blisses yet to come!
How can my spirit gaze aloft
Upon your deep delicious blue,
And that to those far realms so oft,
And never sigh to flutter through!

And yet this spot, so still, so lone,
Seems fabled to quit my mournful mood—
The far blue heavens seem all my own,
And all this lovely solitude!
A voice seems whispering on the hill,
Soft as my own, and on the sea
A living spirit seems to thrill
And throb with mine deliciously!

Yet though my thoughts from care seem freed
And a soft joy pervades my breast,
That makes me almost feel indeed
That hearts on earth are sometimes best,
There is a spell in those hushed skies—
A something felt in this lone spot,
That makes my very soul arise
With longings for—it knows not what!

Beneath such skies I must needs doubt
My heart can ever dream of sin—
The world seems all so calm without,
And all my thoughts so pure within!
Such dreams play o'er my folded lid;
Such heavenly visions greet my view,
I almost seem to glide amid
The Angel-lands, an angel too.

From the Rochester Daily Democrat.

Buffalo, April 3.—Terrible Flood on Niagara River.—An extraordinary excitement has prevailed at Queenston and Lewiston for the last three days. The ice has disappeared from here with great rapidity. Such have been its movements over the Niagara Falls, accompanied with a strong north wind, that the Niagara river has been completely blocked up. The ice there yesterday, within a mile of the Falls, was forty feet high! In the rapid course of the ice, every thing on the wharves at Queenston and Lewiston has been swept off, with the contents of the storehouses.

At Youngstown, it has cleared off every house near the wharf, and the steam flour-mill has gone with it, with some eighty barrels of flour and a large lot of polish in store there.

The damage, all around, is not far from $100,000.

Coffee Sugar and Molasses.—A writer in the Boston Atlas estimates the decrease in the production of coffee in 1845, 100,000,000 lbs.; in sugar at 150,000,000 pounds, and in molasses at 62,000 hogsheads.

ORDER.—A place for every thing, and every thing in its place.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50f
TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good brick house, and out houses. Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.
The owners of the above farms will exchange stock for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:
ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3.1-2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 80 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs—situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Lines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:
A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 graded fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Missineway river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—49f

ALSO:
A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie town, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coniston of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15 50f

LOOK HERE.
THE undersigned will exchange a few town lots, for Horses, Cattle, Wagons and Harnesses.

HIRAM KIMBALE.

Jan. 27th, 1845—30f

NOTICE.
A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.
WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business.

We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to give us a call.

Feb. 7:49f W. & S.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store on the premises of S. A. Knowlton. (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county.) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 qt. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.
References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 24—47f

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cane, Cutlery, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch forks; finally, any thing that you can make, or have on hand that will be useful in the vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Flour, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buck-wheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43f

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845—14f

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.
Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43f

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19—42f

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.
N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indispensable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18—40f

HAT STORE.

THE subscriber has taken a store on Mulholland St., half a mile east of the Temple, where he now offers for sale Fur and Silk Hats of the latest fashions, and manufactured of the best of materials.

Country produce taken in exchange. Also a good assortment of Groceries and Provisions.

A. MERRILL.

Nov. 26, 1844—30f.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH, ATHERTON, MASTER, WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Rock Island, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. On her upward trip, she will leave Nauvoo for Rock Island every Wednesday at six P. M. Returning will leave Nauvoo for St. Louis every Saturday at 6 A. M. In case of no boat on the upper Mississippi, and her officers will spare no pains to render her, worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to A. MERRILL, Agent, Nauvoo, April 30th, 51f

MERMAID: REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, GLEN, MASTER, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings; and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as "plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity." For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent, for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845—1f

OSPREY: REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, ANDERSON, MASTER, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1-2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to C. ALLEN, Nauvoo

Jan. 1, 1845—35f.

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will be seen in part of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Chaises, Chairs, Barouches, Baggies, Buggy Wagons, Horses, Sportsmens Trailing Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also, Ploughs, Scythes, snaths, Rakes, &c. &c. when we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Waer street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearnsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices. For we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Prest.
ELIJAH FORDHAM, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
BURR FROST.
DAVID DE VOL.
JOSHUA SMITH.
DAVID W. FOX.
SHADRACH DRIGGS.
DWIGHT WEBSTER.
JESSE H. ATHERTON.
WM. LISK.

Jan. 15th, 1845.—37-1f.

CONSUMPTION OF THE LUNGS, Coughs and Colds, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pains or Soreness of the Chest, Difficulty of Breathing, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, &c.

AMONG all the famous medicines for Consumption, none seems to be meeting with greater success, or gaining a higher reputation than that most wonderful article, Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry! That it stands at the head of all other remedies is now universally conceded. It has cured thousands upon thousands—of all classes—in cases of the most dangerously Consumptive character—and physicians of the greatest eminence throughout our whole country unhesitatingly recommend it as the most powerful curative of Pulmonary diseases, in the whole range of Pharmacy. Thousands of consumptive patients, have already tested its exalted virtues, and confessed its surpassing, excellent and amazing power. The remarkable success of this Balsam is no doubt owing in a great measure to the peculiarly agreeable and powerful nature of its ingredients. It is a fine Herbal Medicine, composed chiefly of Wild Cherry Bark and genuine Iceland Moss—the latter imported expressly for this purpose) the rare medicinal virtues of which are also combined, by a new chemical process with the Extract of Tar—thus rendering the whole Compound the most certain and efficacious remedy ever discovered.

A CASE OF ASTHMA.

The following is from a distinguished Lawyer of the City of New York, who had been afflicted with the Asthma for upwards of 'Twenty Years' and who, after reading such cases can doubt the efficacy of this medicine!

New York, January 25, 1843.
I have been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for 24 years—sometimes so severely as to be confined to my room for weeks; and although attended by various medical advisers, of the highest reputation and skill in the country, the relief was but partial and temporary—twice the disease proved nearly fatal to my life.

Some few weeks ago I commenced taking Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which gave me instant relief, and a single bottle produced in a few days what I believe to be a radical and perfect cure.

A. WILLIAMS, Attorney at Law, No. 53 Williams st., New York.

We are acquainted with the writer of the above certificate, and his statements are entitled to the full confidence of the public.

F. A. TALMADGE, Recorder of the City of New York.

JOHN POWER, D. D., Vice General of New York.

P. S. The above certificate may be seen at No. 125 Fulton street, New York.

Price $1 per bottle, or six for $5. All orders from dealers south and west of the Wabash river should be addressed to Benj. Phelps 76 Chestnut street, St. Louis, Mo. The above truly valuable medicine is for sale at this office.

Feb 13—42—3m

BENJAMIN PHELPS, No. 76 Chestnut Street, ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI, WESTERN GENERAL AGENT FOR ALL THE

BEST FAMILY MEDICINES.

OFFERS to Dealers and others the following highly popular and valuable Medicines:
Wistar's Balsam of wild cherry
Rev. L. Covert's balm of life
Humphrey's Pile ointment
Dr. Williamson's pain soother
Brite's rheumatic liniment and pills
Sappington's pills
Dr. Clark's hepatic elixir
Dr. Halden's magnetic remedial
Dr. Halden's catarrh
Fridley's tetter ointment
Fahnestock's vermifuge
Jaw David's or Hebrew plaster
Dr. Halden's brisk pills
Nov 13—42—6m

EARTHENWARE EARTHENWARE.

GROSVETT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one Block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844. no 11—1f.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY. THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest, and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate promoting expectation, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBELL LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

KEYSTONE STORE.

A. A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearsley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints, his friends and the public, with DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES, as they may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.

Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle: our interest; our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.

One man is not every body, but he may do much good by turning a penny when he sells Goods, Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c., CHEAP for cash, produce, and truck, or exchanges fairly. Call and try.

March 17th. —46—3m

NOTICE.

PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

A. W. BABBITT, Attorney at Law.

HAS removed his office to the city of Nauvoo and has taken the office occupied by the late General Joseph Smith, where he will be ready to attend to any, or all business committed to his trust.

Oct. 9, 1844—23f

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 2.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois Wednesday, May 14, 1845.

Whole Number 148

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Water and Main Street,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor.) POST PAID, to receive attention.

From the Baltimore Sun.

INTERESTING REVOLUTIONARY RELIC.

There was recently discovered among the papers of the late Major John Joab Shæmyer, an ardent patriot of the Revolution, the following interesting document. It is a discourse delivered by the Rev Jacob Trout, on the evening before the battle of Brandywine, i. e. on the 11th of September, 1777. It was pronounced before the main body of the American army, in presence of Gen Washington, Gen Wayne, and other distinguished officers of the army.

REVOLUTIONARY SERMON.

"They that take the sword shall perish by the sword."

Soldiers and Countrymen:—We have met this evening perhaps for the last time. We have shared the toil of the march, the peril of the fight, and the dismay of the retreat alike; we have endured the cold and hunger, the contumely of the internal foe, and the courage of the foreign oppressor.—We have sat, night after night, beside the camp fire; we have together heard the roll of the reveille, which called us to duty, or the beat of the tattoo, which gave the signal for the hardy sleep of the soldier, with the earth for his bed and the knapsack for his pillow.

And now, soldiers and brethren, we have met in the peaceful valley on the eve of battle, when the sunlight is dying away beyond yonder heights, and the sunlight that to-morrow morn will glimmer on scenes of blood. We have met, amid the whitening tents of our encampment; in the time of terror and gloom have we gathered together—God grant it may not be for the last time.

It is a solemn moment. Brethren, does not the solemn voice of nature seem to echo the sympathies of the hour? The flag of our country droops heavily from yonder staff—the breeze has died away along the green plain of Chadd's Ford—the plain that spreads before us glittering in sunlight—the heights of the Brandywine arise gloomy and grand beyond the waters of yonder stream—all nature holds a pause of solemn silence, on the eve of uproar and bloodshed and strife to-morrow.

"They that take the sword, shall perish by the sword."

And have they not taken the sword?

Let the desolate plain, the blood-sodden valleys, the burned farm house blackening in the sun, the sacked village, and the ravaged town, answer; let the whitening bones of the butchered farmer strewn along the fields of his homestead, answer; let the starving mother, with her babe clinging to the withered breast that can afford no sustenance, let her answer with the death-rattle mingling with the murmuring tones that marked that last struggle of her life; let the dying mother and her babe answer.

It was but a day past and our land slept in the quiet of peace. War was not here; wrong was not here; fraud and woe, and misery and want dwelt not among us. From the eternal solitude of the green woods, arose the blue smoke of the settler's cabin; and golden fields of corn looked forth amid the waste of the wilderness, and the glad music of human voices awoke the silence of the forest.

Now, God of mercy bend the change: Under the shadow of a pretext under the sanctity of the name of God, invoking the Redeemer to their aid, do these foreign hordes slay our people. They throng our towns—they darken our plains, and now they encompass our posts on the lonely plain of Chadd's Ford.

"They that take the sword, shall perish by the sword."

Brethren, think me not unworthy of belief, when I tell you that the doom of the British is near. Think me not vain when I tell you that beyond the cloud that now enshrouds us, I see gathering thick and fast, the darker cloud and blacker storm of divine retribution!

They may conquer us to-morrow.—Might and wrong may prevail, and we may be driven from this field, but the hour of God's own vengeance will come! Aye, in the vast solitude of eternal space, in the heart of the boundless universe, there throbs the being of an awful God, quick to avenge and sure to punish guilt, then will the man, George Brunswick, called King, feel in his brain and heart, the vengeance of the eternal Jehovah! A blight will be upon his life—a withered brain and an accursed intellect: a blight will be upon his children and on his people. Great God, how dread the punishment!

A crowded populace, peopling the dense towns where the man of money thrives while the laborer starves; want striding among the people in all its forms of terror; an ignorant and God-defying priesthood chuckling over the miseries of millions; a proud and merciless nobility adding wrong to wrong, and heaping insult upon robbery and fraud; royalty corrupt to the very heart, and aristocracy to the core; crime and want linked hand in hand, and tempting men to deeds of woe and death; these are a part of the doom and retribution that is to come upon the English throne and the English people!

Soldiers—I look around upon your familiar faces with a strange interest! To-morrow morning we will go forth to the battle—for need I tell you that your unworthy minister will march forth to battle. Need I exhort you to fight the good fight, to fight for your homesteads, for your wives and children?

My friends, I might urge you to fight by the gallant memories of British wrongs. Walton—I might tell you of your father butchered in the silence of the night on the plains of Trenton; I might picture his grey hairs dabbled in blood; I might ring his death shriek in your ears. Shelmor—I might tell you of a butchered mother, and a sister outraged; the lonely farmhouse, the night a-sault, the roof in flames, the shouts of the troopers as they despatched their victims, the cries for mercy and the pleadings of innocence for pity. I might paint this all again, in the vivid colors of the terrible reality, if I thought your courage needed such wild excitement.

But I know you are strong in the might of the Lord. You will march forth to battle on the morrow, with light hearts and determined spirits, through the solemn duty—the duty of avenging the dead, may rest heavy on your souls.

And in the hour of battle, when all around is darkness, lit by the lurid cannon glare, and the piercing musket flash, when he wounded strew the ground, and the dead litter your path, then remember, soldiers, that God is with you. The eternal God fights for you; he rides on the battle-cloud, he sweeps onward with the march of the hurricane charge; God the awful and infinite, fights for you, and you will triumph.

"They that take the sword, shall perish by the sword."

You have taken the sword, but not in the spirit of wrong or revenge. You have taken the sword for your homes, for your wives, for your little ones. You have taken the sword for truth and justice and light, and to you this promise is—be of good cheer, for your foes have taken the sword in defiance of all that men hold dear, in blasphemy of God—they shall perish by the sword.

And now brethren and soldiers, I bid you all farewell. Many of us may fall in the battle of to-morrow. God rest the souls of the fallen; many of us may live to tell the story of the fight to-morrow, and in the memory of all will ever rest and linger the quiet scene of this autumnal night.

Solemn twilight advances over the valley; the woods on the opposite heights fling their long shadows over the green of the meadows; around us are the tents of the continental host, the suppressed bustle of the camp, the hurried tramp of the soldiers to and fro among the tents; the stillness and awe that marks the eve of battle.

When we meet again may the shadow of twilight be flung over a peaceful land, and in heaven grant it. Let us pray.

Prayer of the Revolution.
Great Father we bow before thee; we invoke thy blessing, we deprecate thy wrath, we return thee thanks for the past, we ask thy aid for the future. For we are in times of trouble, oh Lord, and sore beset by foes, merciless and unyielding. Our land and our land and the dust of the soil is dampened with the blood of our neighbors and friends.

Oh! God of mercy, we pray thee to bless the American arms. Make the man of our hearts strong in thy wisdom; bless, we beseech thee, with renewed life and strength, our hope and thy instrument, even George Washington—show thy counsels on the honorable, the Continental Congress; visit our host, comfort the soldier in his wounds and afflictions, nerve him for the fight, prepare him for the hour of death.

And in the hour of defeat, oh! God of hosts, do thou be our stay, and in the hour of triumph be thou our guide.

Teach us to be merciful. Though the memory of gallant wrong be at our hearts, knocking for admittance, that they may fill us with the desire of revenge, yet let us, oh Lord, spare the vanquished though they never spared us in the hour of butchery and bloodshed.

And in the hour of death do thou guide us to the abode prepared for the blest; so shall we return thanks unto thee through Christ our Redeemer. God prosper the cause. Amen.

Trouble in Central America.—We have received via Mexico, late news from Guatemala:—

On the 1st of Feb. there was a fresh outbreak in the city, headed by Mariano Mendez, an officer who commanded the guard of the Plaza.

He set at large the prisoners, surprised the house of the President, and releasing General Monterrosa from his confinement, proclaimed him chief of the revolution. The precise object of the revolution was not known. The troops which remained faithful to the Government after an indecisive skirmish with the insurgents, took up their quarters in the suburbs, and granted to the other party the right of taking no other attack should be made upon them till that day.

In San Salvador there has been a revolution, growing out of a conflict between the military and political authorities. The outbreak occurred on the 21 of Feb. The details are uninteresting, but the civil authorities seemed to have had the best of it—and unusual circumstance with these less than half civilized people.—N. Y. Herald.

THE GULF SQUADRON.

War with Mexico.—The papers received by the mail yesterday confirm the report that the squadron about to set sail for the Mediterranean had received countermanding orders, and that the vessels comprising it will proceed to the Gulf of Mexico as speedily as they can be got ready for sea. This is a wise measure of precaution on the part of the Government, and one which, if it does not put a damper upon the belligerent disposition of Mexico, will at least afford security to American commerce in peril of Mexican cruisers, and at the same time concentrate a force along the coast capable of redressing promptly any wrongs that may be committed against United States citizens. A more circumspect examination of our files, received by the Water Witch, induces us to regard the hostile speeches made in the Mexican Congress in a more serious light than as the customary ebullition of a war-fever which periodically exhausts itself in grandiloquence. Congress and the people, judging from the tone of our exchanges, are disposed to a rupture of the peaceable relations subsisting between the two powers, and the Government, now that Santa Anna has begun to bully it, covers its humility by raising a dust about annexation. The Santa Anna party might be readily supposed to take the war side of the question, as the deposed tyrant imagines that in case of actual hostilities his military reputation will procure his release and place him at the head of the army; thus opening to his view once more the Chief Magistracy by a process and under circumstances that will establish his authority more surely than ever.

It will be seen that both parties to the recent revolution have a direct interest in seeing to be favorable to a declaration of war; whilst Congress has been in no wise behind either in manifesting a proneness that way. The absurdity of such an issue does not appear to have struck the Mexican Cabinet, Congress or people. The interest of contending factions keep the population in a ferment, and a war might result from causes altogether irrelevant to the matter in dispute. Neither Santa Anna nor Herrera have the slightest idea of ever invading Texas; but both are concerned in having the people think them resolved upon subduing the revolted province. In the struggle for the reputation of being the most warlike party, the Government may be driven to the extremity of declaring hostilities, with no view beyond sustaining itself at home. The question is not who shall retake Texas? or who blow up the United States? but a mere internal conflict for popularity with a people who have been pined with gasoline so effectually that it answers with them as well as gunpowder. Depredations upon our commerce within reach of the Mexican authorities, and arbitrary proceedings against our citizens within her territory would be the sum total of the active measures of the Government after declaring war; but against these it is incumbent upon the United States to be prepared.

It cannot be denied that the Mexicans derive comfort and confidence from some of our own journals, whose articles are reproduced in the Mexican papers with great gusto. The idea so elaborately propagated, that annexation would bring down upon us the moral and physical power of all Christendom, has inoculated the Mexican mind, which is incredibly susceptible to diseases that attack the vanity of mankind. Some of the journals before us are Spanish editions of papers issued from the United States press during the pendency of the annexation resolutions in Congress. There are beyond question a considerable number of Mexicans who suppose that, if the Government were to declare war, England, France, Spain and other European nations would do all the fighting, leaving to the Mexican Cabinet the grateful and safe task of writing manifestoes and issuing proclamations announcing the results of battles. The appearance of a considerable fleet of United States men-of-war off Vera Cruz and Tampico would have a most salutary effect in reducing a fever that has been greatly stimulated from this side of the Sabine. It would furnish a safe retreat for our citizens in the event of a war, as well as be at hand to inflict chastisement upon the enemy, should Mexico indulge her barbarous propensities towards any one who has a right to claim the protection of the United States authorities.—M. O. Pic.

The Babes in the Woods.—A touching incident occurred amongst the mountains, in the upper end of this county, last week, while the fire was raging in that vicinity. A Mrs. Lupold, wife of a gentleman who drives team for one of the furnaces in that neighborhood, (Rush township) has been somewhat deranged, occasionally, for some time past, but was not considered much out of the way; until, one day last week, in the absence of her husband, she left her infant in the cradle, and, taking with her two other children, one about five years of age, the other only three, fled to the mountains, and nothing could be discovered of them until Saturday last, when she was found, almost famished and nearly naked; but the children were missing. The neighborhood soon turned out to scour the mountains in search of them, but in vain, until Monday last, when some men providentially happened to come upon them in one of the wildest regions of that wild country, where no one would have dreamed of looking for them. They had been out four days and four nights; cold nights too, barefooted, and half naked otherwise, their clothes being nearly torn off them by the under brush, and their little legs blackened by the ashes of the conflagration through which they had wandered, and their flesh a good deal lacerated. They had cried themselves sick, and one of them had taken off its dress to make a bed of, and there they lay, at the root of a tree, locked in each other's arms, unable to speak, having eaten nothing, it is supposed, since they left home. The poor little sufferers were taken to the nearest house and comfortably provided for, and are said to be doing well. They were found ten miles distant from the place at which their mother was first discovered, and that they did not perish is altogether Providential, and almost miraculous.—[Balt. Chron.]

MINES IN THE WEST.

From a correspondent of the Nat. Intelligencer in Illinois.

A most valuable field is situated in the Apple River Diggins, fourteen miles east of the city of Galena, in Illinois, in which there are now at work two hundred miners, with eighty windlasses, two hundred spades and picks, with a corresponding quantity of blasting tools and powder, which produce daily twenty-five thousand pounds of lead mineral, which commands in cash at the mine, seventeen dollars per thousand, and there being seven north and south ranges and fifteen east and west ranges of a similar character already discovered, it is supposed the number of hands could be doubled with equal success, for the quantity of mineral is supposed to be inexhaustible. This field was purchased a few weeks since by a company of capitalists in Galena of the original claimant for $15,000, and cannot now be purchased of them at $50,000. It ought perhaps to be stated that this field is upon one of the many judicious and valuable reservations which were made by Dr. Owen, in 1830, under the direction of the War department in behalf of the United States, and is now held by the last purchasers under a lease from the Superintendent of the United States Lead Mines, to whom they pay six per cent. of all the mineral that is raised, and they have leased it to these miners at a rent of thirty to forty per cent.

SANTA FE.

The Western Expositor of the 19th inst. says:—

On Wednesday and Thursday we note the arrival at Hansford's Independence House, of Messrs. Leitensdorfer, Braham, and twelve or fourteen companions from New Mexico.

In the way of news we have little to communicate. The governmental affairs had remained perfectly quiet up to the 1st of March, the date of their departure. They had not yet received the intelligence of the final defeat of Santa Anna. Business had been dull all the winter. The non retail law in full force. This law it will be remembered, prohibited the retailing of goods by any, except Mexican subjects.

Mr. Speyre it is said met with further loss between Santa Fe and Chihuahua. One hundred and sixty-five of his mules were run off by the Apache Indians in that portion of the road known as the Jornada del Muerto.

Mr. Owens was expected to reach Santa Fe by the 1st of April, and may be looked for here in three or four weeks. Richard McCarty, Esq., of this place, died in Santa Fe in February last.

The news of the slaughter of the traders among them by the Yute Indians is verified. It is supposed Antonio Robidoux must have perished, as nothing had been heard from him during the winter.

The yield from the Gold mines in New Mexico, this winter, has been small owing to dry weather and scarcity of water. Forty or fifty thousand dollars, is the supposed yield.

Late arrivals bring unpleasant news from Hayti. Herald, ex-President of Hayti, who had for some time sojourning in Jamaica, is about to return to Port au Prince, with the view of regaining the chief Magistracy. General Rivere, who was lately outlawed, contemplates returning. Persons are daily placed under arrest, suspected of holding secret correspondences with him. The French indemnity is still unpaid, and a French squadron cruises before the various ports.

A LETTER FROM ENGLAND.

We present two or three paragraphs of an interesting letter from England, received recently by a correspondent of the Methodist Protestant:—

"The great questions which are now agitating the public mind in this country, are, in a religious point of view, the secularizing tendencies of all Established Churches; and the consequent necessity for the separation of the Church from the State. This process is going on quietly, but surely. The recent developments of Puseyite freaks, have tended much to deepen the conviction that such a separation is necessary. The noble example of the Free Church in Scotland will also have a powerful influence in forcing the conviction upon the minds of men, that the pure and holy religion of the Lord Jesus Christ, repudiates all such polluting alliances.

The other great question, which is now agitating the public mind, is the principle of Free trade. And though it may be thought by some, to have nothing to do with religion, yet in its bearing it will have a material influence in deciding men's minds as to the impolicy of restricting matters of religion by law, any more than restricting mankind in their intercourse with each other, in the way of trade. I know there are many people in the United States, who think we are not sincere in denouncing monopoly. Perhaps they will believe when they learn that all restrictions in trade have been swept away. The period when this will be done, is not far distant. Great progress has been made towards the accomplishment of this event during the last two years. In theory, even the present government advocate and maintain the principles of free, unrestricted, trade, and the great monopolies of corn and sugar are shaken to their base.

I have long entertained the opinion, that the commercial intercourse between nations (in which I include the extension of manufactures and agriculture) will, under the guiding hand of Providence, prove the means of extending the blessing of Gospel, and the promotion of civilization and industry throughout the world; and ultimately put an end to war."

Suppose we wait a little, and see if Governments and religions do not begin to crumble.

From the Philadelphia North American.

Pestilence the Penalty of War.—The British forces sent to the East Indies for the purposes of conquest, are followed by frightful pestilence. One of the advices from Scinde says: the country has been found literally the grave of soldiers. A Bombay paper of February 1, says; her Majesty's 78th Highlanders are now at Hyderabad, they are on their way to the sea-coast for the recovery of their health. Every man is either now sick or has recently been in the hospital. There has died since the 1st of September 502 men, 35 women, and 120 children; or 557 in all, belonging to the regiment. The deaths continue at the rate of from four to eight per diem, and the corps, unless removed, threatens speedily to become extinct.

The Britanna remarks on the subject of British ambition and Eastern conquest:

"We are taking not a leaf out of Napoleon's book; we are copying the whole volume, when some thirty years ago, we heard him talk of 'natural boundaries'—of provinces which belonged to France by the necessity of things; of the right of France to conquer; a permanent boundary; and all this pronounced in the brilliant charity of that great splendid of all cheats. England scoffed at the verbiage stripped of the tinsel, ripped up the cloak with her bayonet, and exposed the thief within. We beat France in argument then, we beat her in the field afterwards, and now we are actually taking up the sacred language and raving about natural boundaries, rivers and mountains marked for our frontier, and great provinces, which it would be an absolute offence to Providence to let slip, when they lie so temptingly in our way, and are so particularly unable to resist any robbery at this moment. This is the exact time;

nobody to oppose us; and therefore... What happier reasoning in the mouth of the house breaker! The hall-door without a bar, the lock easily picked, the servants drunk, the family asleep—now is the time for a burglary! In fact, all is so comfortable settled for an easy robbery, that not to rob would be a flying in the face of Providence.

The above remarks have an American meaning, if we choose to seek it, which was not probably in the writer's mind. After some powerful passages on the awful visitations which sometimes overtake an ambitious and heartless people, the writer adds:

"Can we forget our own gratuitous invasion of Cabul?—the six regiments and 12,000 followers slaughtered, and as if infatuation had given them the work of slaughter, perishing before barbarians? Where are now the political promoters and public agents of that guilty aggression? Trampled into a bloody and premature grave. Our next exploit was Scinde.—A bold resistance cost us more lives of brave men than ten Scindes were worth. The climate is now finishing the work of battle. The last arrivals mention 429 as the loss in a single regiment, and even now the battle is not over. The army are moving up the mountains to conquer chieftains to whom those mountains are fastnesses, and will probably molest us with incessant and wasteful hostility. In the mean time Scinde is a place of pestilence. It has cost us already blood, mutilities, and death by the soil. We have the warning before us, and evil will be the hour in which it is forgotten."

High handed outrage.—Writ of Habeas Corpus suspended.—The Legislature of South Carolina, at their late session, passed a law enacting:

"That no negro or free person of color who shall enter this State on board of any vessel, as cook, steward, or mariner, or in any other employment on board such vessel, and who shall be apprehended or confined by any sheriff, in pursuance of the provisions of said act, shall be entitled to the writ of Habeas Corpus."

The Constitution of the United States, sec. 9, declares:

"The writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it."

South Carolina thus, in another instance, sets at defiance the Constitution of the United States, and abolishes the great leading feature of American liberty. The writ of habeas corpus has been allowed in that State, ever since the reign of Charles the Second.—N. Y. Express.

It would be difficult to conceive of a more flagrant violation of the Constitution of the United States than the one above recorded. Yet because it only affects the rights of the colored citizens of this State, who, as a class, are debarréd the privilege of voting, the outrage will not call forth even a remonstrance from the democracy-professing authorities of this State.—[Alo. Eve. Journal.]

A Hint to the Ladies.—The critic of the Broadway Journal, in the course of a notice of Mrs. Hygo's Plea for Woman, says very pertinently—or, as the ladies, perhaps, will say, impertinently. It appears to us that the surest way for women to gain their rights—always supposing that they do not now enjoy them—is to train up their children properly; and they will see that their mothers suffer no wrong. When women dissipate their days and nights in idle amusements, and squander their incomes in dress, while their sons are entrusted to the keeping of hired servants; or sent away from home to distant schools, they must not blame men that they have no clearer perception of what is due to woman. It is true that men make the laws by which women are governed, but the women make the men who govern them.

A LIVE SKULL.

In exhuming the bones of a Marshal lately, who was a comrade of Murat, and whose family now wishes to transfer his remains to another cemetery, the skull suddenly became violently agitated, and from one of the eyes shone a bright gleam of fiery light. The diggers fled in all directions; but the superintendent went to the spot, and discovered that an enormous snake had coiled itself in the comfortable hollow of the brain, and looked out of the left eye as out of a window. An argument put into the old soldier's ear drove the thing out of his head, and the skull was once more deposited where it might give over its nid, nid, nodding.

There were giants in the earth in those days.—Friday week, a lady in the Alleghany Glades, presented her husband with a fine son, weighing, on the day of his birth, twenty and a half pounds!

The Scotch Giant and his wife, might beat this specimen of love and lullaby thirty pounds.

Foreign News

Not as we stated in our last, has Parliament passed a bill for the occupation of Oregon, but consider they have the right without "ifs or ands"—and as we stated, "if their rights are invaded, they have resolved and prepared to maintain them."

From Charles Willmers American News Letter, printed at Liverpool, and brought by Harnden's Express, we continue our extracts:

FRANCE.

The Presse has a long article on the reciprocal situations of England and the United States, in which it prophesies quarrels between the countries on the Oregon and Texas questions. A duel with pistols took place on the Bois de Boulogne, on Tuesday morning, the 11th inst. between M. Dujarrier, manager and a proprietor of La Presse, and M. Bayvallon, one of the editors of Le Globe, in which M. Dujarrier was mortally wounded. He expired before he could be brought home.

GERMANY.

The accounts from all parts of Germany and the northern division of Europe are most heart rending of the sufferings of the people for want of provisions, the navigation and communication being in many places quite interrupted. The mortality, both among the people and the cattle, is quite fearful.

TURKEY.

Advices have been received from Aleppo to the 10th, and Constantinople to the 18th. Namik Pasha was at Orfa with his troops, and everything was perfectly quiet in that neighborhood. On the 11th inst. the Sultan had born to him another daughter, who has been named Saniye Sultan (Princess Sublime). The Porte has just sent in a fresh note to the five ambassadors, relative to the administration of Mount Lebanon. Dr. Wolff had arrived at Constantinople, and has written a short letter to the Patriarch of Constantinople, under whose jurisdiction the Ottoman minister wishes to place it.

Letters from Constantinople of the 7th inst. mention that a serious mutiny had broken out among the Albanian recruits who had recently arrived in that city, in consequence of their pay having been withheld. The mutiny was at length put down; but not until several of the regular troops had been wounded. Five of the mutineers were ordered to receive 500 strokes of the bastinado upon their feet.

INDIA AND CHINA.

We have the Bombay Mail of the 1st, and the Calcutta Mail of the 8th February, with advices from Macao to the 21st December.

The intelligence by the former states that the insurrection in Kolapore and Sawant Warre continues unabated, although 10,000 men are in the field for the purpose of suppressing it. Three British officers have, in the course of the month, been slain by the enemy. The roads are everywhere blocked up, and robbery and plunder universal. In Lower Sindh the troops continue healthy and the people quiet. Her Majesty's 78th Highlanders, now at Hyderabad, are suffering as severely as ever from indisposition. They have in the course of four months lost 402 men, 35 women, and 120 children, or 557 in all, belonging to the regiment.

Sir Charles Napier has proceeded into the Bloogheet Mountains, with a force of nearly 5,000 men, for the purpose of chastising the marauders, who continually infest our frontier during the hot season. The expedition is a dangerous one.

SPAIN.

A military riot had occurred at Valencia, between some artillerymen and soldiers of the regiment of Lerida, and it was thought that a severe example would be made. The violent declamations from some pulpits had excited the attention of government.

SWITZERLAND.

The agitation in Switzerland still continues. An expectation of a general outbreak existed, and all the cantons were providing themselves with arms and ammunition. On the 10th, five large waggons, laden with muskets and ball-cartridges, passed through Domo d'Ossola, which were forwarded by the King of Sardinia to the Ultramontanes of the Valais.

PORTUGAL.

On the 1st the tax-gatherers having gone to the village of St. Martinho to collect the new impost on wine, the people rose upon them and put them to flight. Shortly afterwards, they returned with an escort of 30 infantry; but meanwhile the tocsin had been rung in all the surrounding villages, and a great number of men, headed by Morado Magaloes, a country gentleman of the district, had assembled at St. Martinho, armed, some with fowling pieces, but most with pikes and scythes. The soldiers seeing this formidable array, retraced their steps and took up a defensive position on a neighboring height, from which, however, they were soon dislodged by the people, who pursued them, firing a few shots at them, and abusing them as robbers, oppressors of the poor, and Malhadaes (the nickname given by the Miguelites to the liberals). Next day a detachment of 80 infantry and some dragons, under the command of Captain Guedes, attacked the insurgents, who stood their ground for some time, but at last fled and dispersed, leaving ten of their number dead on the field. The soldiers then went into the village and set fire to several cottages, which were burnt to the ground. The Diario do Governo has since officially announced the complete restoration of order.

NEW ZEALAND.

While New Zealand is the subject of angry and protracted debates in the British House of Commons, advices have come to hand which show how painfully and prejudicially the management of the Colonial office has acted upon the colony. The facts are announced by the Southern Cross, an Auckland paper, in its number for the 21st September last. The Governor opened a special session of the Legislative Council on the 19th, with this startling announcement—

Three great difficulties are now pressing so severely on this colony as to demand instant relief. In addition to the critical nature of our relations with the aborigines, a great measure to the operations of the Customs Ordinance, (which by each day's experience, I may say, are proved more and more clearly to be detrimental to our welfare,) we find ourselves without funds, almost without credit; and we have just received certain information that the New Zealand Company stopped payment last February!

The following is an extract of a letter received at Lyd's, from their agent at Auckland, dated September 27, 1841:—"A very great and important change is to take place in this colony on the 1st proximo. All customs duties, harbor dues, &c., are to be abolished. The bill has passed the second reading of the Colonial Legislative Council. The removal of these restrictions will operate greatly in favor of the whaling ships residing there."

SIGNS IN THE HEAVENS.

A Blood Red Sword—War Anticipated.

During all time, in all ages and in all countries, in times of contemplated trouble, doubt or of danger, man has been known to turn his eyes upwards towards the heaven for relief from his fears, or for confirmation of his doubts. Whether this arises from the force of early education and the religious instinct and belief that the only power to avert unknown evil resides in that habitation, or from a superstitious feeling that prompts him to expect a pre-figuration of coming calamity in some visible sign, we shall not undertake to decide. But of the fact there is abundance of testimony, not only recorded in the pages of the history of former times, when it is supposed that the world was more credulous, but even in these days of superior intelligence, when the march of mind in its rapid strides is leaving the marks of its footsteps every where around us.

It is remarkable, too, that the behavior of the planetary powers on such occasions is generally such as to warrant this universal confidence in their prognostications. An expected event dire to humanity, is frequently preceded by strange and unusual aspects in the heavens, which in the fearful condition of the public mind, are always interpreted as forerunners of the impending calamity.

Occurrences all around us show that the times and the elements are sadly out of joint. Dreadful disasters by flood and by fire fill the daily journals; forebodings of war impress the public mind fearfully, particularly that nervous class of the community who figure at the stock exchange and make fortunes or lose them by public excitement; various and frequent rumors of attacks and seizures by a foreign enemy fly about on the wings of credulity like bats in the twilight, inspiring more terror from the vague and indistinct character they assume.

All these things indicate, as we have said, some unusual disturbance and apprehension in the public mind, and it is natural to expect, under such circumstances, that the heavenly aspects, if faith is to be given to signs, should correspond to the prevailing sentiment; and such seems indeed to be the fact. Every one who had eyes noticed the recent flame-like color of the sun and moon, and many considered it portentous and shook their heads with doubt, if not with fear. It was a coincidence that it should occur just at the time of the Pittsburg fire. Simultaneously with the threatening news from Mexico, published Monday morning, comes from the south an account of a most extraordinary prognostic, a blood red sword, seen in the heavens, clearly indicating the predicament that the action of the United States Congress on the passage of Texas resolutions, has placed our beloved Yankee doodle-dandy, and the danger she has to apprehend from the indignation of the Mexican journals, and indeed the whole people of that redoubtable nation.—Philadelphia paper.

Astronomical Phenomenon—A Blood-Red Sword.

To those who pay attention to those who pay attention to the signs in the heavens, the following has its interest. On Monday evening last a gentleman of this city observed in the northern sky, near the horizon, shortly subsequent to sundown, a figure that excited his curiosity; not to say his astonishment. It was blood red, in the form of a naked sword—kept its place for some fifteen minutes, when it sunk beneath the horizon, near which it was. He supposes it to have been the moon, and that its strange and unusual appearance was occasioned by some magnifying property in the haze which floated in the horizon—others may offer a more strange solution of this phenomenon.

The same gentleman informs us that on the day of the sun, for the last three days, large dark spots were to be seen with a telescope of moderate dimensions, and that these spots considerably weakened the rays of that luminary as might be proven by the use of burning lens.

What these portents betoken, we know not, but while on the subject would say, that the 8th of next month we shall see: should the day prove fair—the trans of Mercury on the sun's disc, beginning about 11 o'clock, A. M., and ending after 5 o'clock, P. M.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1845.

The friendship of M. — As some of our are not well pleased with the idea of calling upon the Lord to sprinkle hot drops, or cold drops upon men or cities that baffle the saints, and as our intention is purely for the salvation of men in publishing such things, we will try another method, and say, "Let God send them so!"

Contrary to the common calculations of men, we ask nothing but our own: We ask a good name where positive proof can not be had to the contrary, we ask room enough on earth to sustain ourselves without interfering with the rights of others, and we ask peace: Now therefore, may God who never errs, bless every man, city, and nation, that deals justly with the saints; granting them equal justice, equal rights, equal freedom, and equal honor to praise worthy deeds.

Again, may God who is the judge of all the world, grant in this present generation, to every man, city, or nation, that gives a refuge of water, a meal of victuals, visits the saints in prison to comfort them, or affords them any relief for Jesus' sake, and the glory of the saints escape the dreadful ravages of a devastating scourge; of the pestilence that shall waste at noon day; of famine, and of the veracious plagues that shall torment hypocrites and vain men; and may they besides escaping these calamities, escape the ravages of war and the horror of earthquakes that shall assuredly waste this generation, and receive, for every good office and act they perform to the righteous, a reward in heaven.

Anti-mormon Tax.—In Philadelphia, says an Eastern paper, during the last thirteen months, the money stolen by pickpockets and robbers amounts to nearly $35,000.

A pretty heavy Anti-mormon tax: the Mormons do better than that without a charter. They make villains walk the plank, or, in common parlance, cut a stick, without whittling or whistling.

British Cunning.—It is rumored that Great Britain, since Parliament resolved on occupying Oregon, has a strong notion to alter the name of the United Kingdom and call it A-roar again.

WAR WITH ENGLAND!!

As a prospect of war with a foreign power is now rather flattering, it should admonish every refractory spirit in Hancock county and elsewhere, to settle all local difficulties, in the best possible manner, and prepare to sustain our national rights, and the honor of our flag. The lion is coming out of his thicket, let the eagle's feathers be well oiled, and his talons sharp and pointed.

The Sineus of War.—Great Britain has just appropriated ten millions of money for the service, and ordered an increase of 4,000 more to the navy. Huzza for the lead mines, and so forth, and the and so forth, is—

Yankee doodle go to war;

Jonathan keep tryin';

Ten to one by this small jar,

Whip old John Bull's lion,

Schools. Nauvoo does something in the line of schools, but cannot more be done. We have no charter, to trouble us, why not exert a little more power, once in having the children trained up in the way they should go? The surrounding communities see that Nauvoo goes ahead, and now let us show them what good principles and God can do among the children as well as men.

Prosperity.—It has been said that persecution made societies grow, but the supposition is false; peace and industry raise any people. Since the spring opened, it is really astonishing to witness the improvements in this city. All we ask is peace and time, and Nauvoo will show glory with any city on earth; and that too, without a charter. We break no laws; neither do we defy laws, as some scavengers of corruption have falsely charged us. We only want our own rights secure, and then we go the whole figure for the best houses, the best gardens, the best manufactories; the best cattle, the best grain, the best people, the best society, the best men, the best women, the best children, the best city, the best Temple, the best God.

The glory, honor, and blessings of Nauvoo, if we are let alone, will be felt round the globe. Already good men see it. Why! a mean man, or a Rigdonite, feels his own nothingness in the presence of the saints, and melts "in the glance of the Lord" like the first frost of fall. God bless Nauvoo and every body that blesses her, and her good people.

Tornado.—There was a very destructive storm in the north east section of this State, on the 24th of last month, in the evening. It passed through St. Charles, Geneva, Warrenville, Naperville, &c. Many buildings were blown down, some unroofed, and several lives were lost. The loss of property considerable. The reason for this storm is supposed to be—cause unknown: though long John's Chicago Democrat blackguards the Mormons and the "Twelve" without mercy or provocation;

"Let dogs delight to bark and fight,
"For God hath made them so;
"For 'tis their nature too;
"But children you should never let
"Such angry passions rise;
"Your little hands were never made,
"To tear each others eyes."
Do you take—ch?

A Sign.—The Alton Telegraph, printed in the city of untoned blood and culprits, (or Pen's) ten-tiary has some "old type advertised" as a sign that Davis has the belly-ache among the dry bones.

Fasting and Prayer.—Thursday of this week, has been appointed by the authorities of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, as a day of public fasting and prayer to Almighty God. We hope that a just observance of this day will characterize the saints: Call upon the Lord for an extension of blessings unto his people upon the earth; that their flocks, fields and works may yield an abundance; and their lives, peace, and his cause may be precious in his sight for Christ's sake and the world's.

A Saint Louis Prophet.—It is thought that the Reporter will be changed to Benton's bob-tailed Prophet No. 6, and will be filled with drops; hot drops, cold drops, paper drops, poker drops, feint drops, foul drops, cough drops, clique drops, mob drops, mince drops, mint drops, mouth drops, puke drops, poke drops, w drops, war drops, and so on, and the last drop will be a grave drop. Hurrah for Benton's bob-tailed Prophet, No. 6. Go it ye cripple, wooden legs are cheap!

Phrenology.—Mr. McLeake has been feeling some of the heads at Nauvoo: nothing yet has been discovered more than is common to the heads of other cities, only that the Nauvoos have large bumps of patience and wisdom.

Mr. McLeake has a touch of measuring the geograph of the head, as a carpenter would a barn, and then calculates the various apartments; and he calculates some things about right.

They say the Mermaid is the most regular packet that calls at this port. The officers and crew are certainly obliging—and if they will only act the gentleman with Nauvoo, and her people, they will reap the benefit. They bring us a bundle of papers; good.

There is more buildings on the tapis in this city than there has been for a long time. Peace and industry polish the earth.

Murder.—About midnight on Saturday the 10th inst, a shocking murder was committed in Lee Co., Iowa, some three or four miles from West Point. A Dutchman from Pennsylvania, by the name of Miller, and his son Hizen, had recently moved into the county and it was currently reported through the neighborhood that the old man had brought a large sum of money into the place. The murderers entered the house, (three in number) with their hands and faces blacked, and demanded what money there was;—upon which the old man and his son sprang from their beds, and in stead of handing out the cash, ordered the villains out, and soon succeeded in executing the order, by the use of such weapons as were at hand; nor were the women less vigilant in lending their assistance.

As the ruffians were driven from the house, the old man fell dead upon the floor from a stab.—The young man followed them out and felled one of them, and received a pistol ball through his right breast, and a cut over the left eye which fractured the skull; he also received a stab in the left side of his back. He has since died.

From 500 to 1000 persons were in search of the murderers on Sunday and Monday, without any success.

On Monday night, the vigilance of our citizens, was brought to bear so closely upon a couple of men, (not mormons) that they were held in custody for examination on suspicion, as soon as witnesses could be had from Iowa.

This is all right. Let every citizen be vigilant in aid of justice; search out and purge every scape gallow, counterfeiter, and other criminals, that hide in Nauvoo. As Shakespear says.—out upon them; out upon them! and drive them to their own kennels and dens where the world may execute justice and judgment upon them, and leave Nauvoo clear of other men's sins.

A tight fit.—We really think Elder Hyde's Speech, on Rigdonism, published at this Office, is a tight fit. It has emphatically knocked the Apostates' case into—and n ip it to ipso fact!

Meeting.—An uncommon large audience listened to a discourse on Ellen W. Smith on Sunday forenoon. And who could hear without reflecting that he was the last man of five brothers who had carried this kingdom in their arms when it was a child?

Hark that woe!—The following is from the St. Louis Organ of May 6. Verily, as Hal said, "There is more crime and iniquity committed in cities than common folks ever think of."

Awful.—Our blood runs cold.—Part I of the "Mysteries of St. Louis," makes its appearance to-day. It is the work of a young member of the Bar. As to what it is to be, or what it relates we are like the Canadian pas canale. We can see good reason why we can't have a mysterious town as well as the Jean Crapeauds of Paris, or the ros bif and plome pudding of over grown London.

British Guinea.—The Roger Stuart, Emigration Transport, which was chartered at the personal risk of about half a dozen gentlemen in Berbice arrived a few days ago from Sierra Leone with 344 emigrants. She had 350 when she left Africa, so that only two died during the voyage. By a return prepared by the Immigration Agent, it appears that the total number of emigrants on whom a bounty has been paid and who have come to the colony from 15th Feb. 1841, to the 30th Dec. last, amount to 11,627. Of this number Berbice has received 2,076.

Queen Vic's hypocrisy is too visible in the foregoing not to be discovered. The "Emigration Transport," is a slave ship, and the 348 emigrants are just so many poor black negroes, hooked from Africa.

Sin, traffic in human flesh, and dealings with the devil, have become so common in this generation, that even old John Bull, who is almost suffocated with the blaze of his own glory, cannot keep his hands clean.

From the State Register.

State of Illinois.
Hancock county.
Personally appeared before me, Asa W. Blakesly, a deputy clerk of the circuit court of said county, Isaac C. Howd, who being duly sworn deposes and says: "I have resided in Pilot Grove precinct, in Hancock county for the last three years, and am an acting justice of the peace of said precinct. I have acted politically with the anti Mormon party for some time past; belonging to the whig party as I do, though I have ever objected to their illegal and mob proceedings. On the 12th day of April A. D. 1845, I delivered to J. B. Backenstos, the representative of this county, who has been recently commanded to abandon his home for words spoken in legislative debate, by the anti-Mormons in and about Carthage, a load of corn, agreeable to a contract before made. Soon after my delivery of the corn, I was accosted by some anti-Mormons of Carthage respecting the transaction, and who have been active for the expulsion of Mr Backenstos. On the following morning, this 13th of April, being about 2 o'clock, my house was attacked with stones and fire arms by a party of ruffians, who discharged three or four guns or pistols in the yard under my window. Twelve stones were thrown at my house, one of which, weighing about two pounds, passed with great violence through the window, and over the bed occupied by myself and wife. My wife, by crawling under the bed, escaped injury, except a gash on her face, occasioned by the fractured glass or some other means in the assault. Unable to find my rifle, I called upon my son to learn where it was. This I think was heard by the assailants who immediately fled and were pursued by my dogs, which had all the time barked furiously at them. As soon as it was light enough to see, I followed in company with a son 24 years old in pursuit of the ruffians. I followed their tracks for one fourth of a mile to the place where they had tied their horses. There were 4 full grown men, as appeared by their tracks, in the party. I followed them for about one mile where they left the direct road to Carthage and followed that to Nauvoo, as though they were from that place. They however soon left this road and crossed to that leading to Carthage. I was enabled by the peculiarities and freshness of the tracks of the horses to follow two of them into Carthage; and the other two to a house not far distant.

I have ever lived on friendly terms with my Mormon neighbors who are generally industrious, quiet citizens, and have never had any personal difficulty to provoke such an attack from any one. I believe this assault was made by persons residing in and about Carthage, and who are active anti-Mormons, and who were led to the act by my having sold corn to J. B. Backenstos, and further this deponent saith not.

I. C. HOWD.

Sworn too and subscribed before me the 13th day of April, A. D. 1845.

A. W. BLAKESLY,

Deputy clerk, Hancock Circuit court.

Spiritual wife system in the right quarter.—It may be set down for certain, that there is a "spiritual wife system" in the sectarian private circles; and satan's servants, knowing his time was short, had heretofore tried hard to saddle it upon the Mormons, but have failed for want of proof. The saints are virtuous, and uncorrupted. The saddle is upon the right beast. Ride your jade ye crippled clan, and read the following from the Philadelphia Dollar Newspaper:

"We recently copied from the Bangor Whig an account of some disgraceful proceedings at a Millerite meeting, where they washed each other's feet, got on their hands and knees on the floor, with others astride their backs and even washed each other's person."

The New York Morning News asserts that some scenes still more gross and disgraceful occurred in that city on Sunday. Private meetings, it is said, are held at respectable dwellings, and scenes of the gross licentiousness took place. The assemblies are generally of a private nature, and if any stranger, not known to be one of their number, happens to be present, he is immediately detected and requested to withdraw. Women of respectability are enticed into these places, and washing each other's feet, and the bestowment of the kiss of peace, by designing, insinuating scoundrels, are extensively practiced. Beginning with Millerism, various foul practices have resulted, and the alienation of many virtuous women and good men from their families and their social duties have been the unhappy results. One of these crafty villains was most amply flogged by an indignant husband the other day, he having the cool impudence to tell the injured man, that in obeying the Lord, he had taken gross liberties with his wife. The News gives the following statement:

"We have received an account from a person who got in one of these places of meeting on Sunday last, of what was done there. There were collected together about a score of men and women, who soon perceived the presence of a stranger.

A man rose and said, I am sorry to think there's a Judas in the room. Any other added, that he was sure of it; the spirit informed him, that there was a betrayer among them. At length some of them began to question our informant as to what brought him there. They alleged that their meetings were not intended for the public, and told him to withdraw. He insisted upon remaining however, and they perceiving that he was not to be otherwise than forcibly dismissed, proceeded, under such apparent restraint, with their kissing and washing each other's feet; and so as to secure enough of this devout occupation, they have every Sunday. Other minor services having been despatched, they began this interesting ceremony in his presence. They washed each other's feet in bowls of water, and when the men (among them a negro) were doing this to the women, the latter held pocket handkerchiefs before their faces. At last a young woman went up to the stranger and offered her services to him. He declined them, however, declaring that he did not need any little personal attentions of that kind, having already washed his own feet that morning. Kisses were then interchanged (but in these he was not given a chance, to participate,) and the meeting then separated.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Nauvoo, May 10, 1845.

Dear Brethren:—
I improve this opportunity to say through the Neighbor, that after a journey of two weeks and one day, I have arrived safely in Nauvoo, with my family, although it was with much difficulty. I could keep my wife alive to reach this point; but thank God, we have met with our friends once more, who are alive; and rejoice to see Nauvoo, the holy Zion of God not yet laid in ruins to fulfil the revengeful prophecy of the lies of Rigdon. To meet with friends that I have been so long absent from is truly refreshing. Yesterday I took a look through the Temple;—this is truly an imposing and a stupendous work; it has progressed beyond all expectation;—one would hardly imagine, so far from Nauvoo, considering the time and the means, and the greatness of the work, that as much would have been done as has been, in building this Temple;—but the saints at home and abroad have truly been faithful and zealous; and it is my prayer to Almighty God, that peace and true fidelity will continue in the camp of the saints, until we can do the work the Lord has called us to.

Let the saints be true to one another and never desert a friend, and our God will protect us. We have many things to contend with—the prejudices of the world; and these continually increased by

FIRST RATE.

"Wilder and Smith's European Times," printed at Liverpool, April 5, among many other curious things, had the following:

DOG ANNEXATION.

We take the following jeu d'esprit from the last number of Punch. It can hardly fail to amuse all classes of our transatlantic readers:

John Polk was put to the bar charged with robbing the Mexican Minister of a favorite dog, named Texas. The circumstances of the case Don Bernardo Murphy stated to be simply these:

Some months since, John Polk sold his Excellency the dog (a very large animal, spotted black and white, that used to run under his carriage,) subsequently a fellow, by the name of Houston, a countryman of Polk's, who had been in his Excellency's service, absconded with the dog, and he had that day seen it at Greenwich Fair, whither he had gone in company with Chevalier Bunsen. The animal was tied to a Van, belonging to the prisoner, and from which he was haranguing and psalm-singing to the company at the fair.

Policeman, X. 21 said please your Worship, there has been more picking of pockets round that ere psalm-singing wan, than in any part of the fair.

Mr. Aberdeen. Silence, Policeman. What has that to do with the complaint? The Mexican Minister continued, in a very agitated manner, I instantly recognized my dog, and gave the scoundrel yonder in charge to a policeman.

Scoundrel! the prisoner cried (a very sanctimonious looking fellow, who held the dog in his arms.) Am I in a christian land, to hear myself called by such names? Are we men? Are we brethren? Have we blessings and privileges or have we not? I come of a country the most enlightened, the most religious, the most free, the most honest, punctuallest, on this earth, I do.

Mr. Aberdeen (with a profound bow). You are an American I suppose?

Polk. I thank a gracious mussy I am! I can appeal to every thing that is holy, and laying my hand on my heart, declare I am an honest man. I scorn the accusation that I stole the complainant's dog. The dog is my dog—mine by the laws of heaven, earth, right, nature, and possession.

Don Bernardo Murphy. Very much agitated, here cried out. How yours? I can swear to the animal. I bought him of you.

Polk. You did. 'Tis as true as I am a free born man.

Don Bernardo. A man who has an old servant of yours comes into my service and steals the dog.

Polk. A blessed truth you never told.

Don Bernardo. And I find the animal now again in your possession.

Polk. (cuddling the dog) Yes, my old dog—yes my old Texas it did like to come back to its old master, it did!

Don Bernardo. (in a fury) I ask your Worship, isn't this too monstrous?

Mr. Aberdeen. Your Excellency will permit me to observe that we have not yet heard Mr. Polk's defence. In a British court, justice must be shown and no favor.

Polk. I scorn a defence. The dog returned to me by a lot of nature. It wicked to fly against a lot of nature. It I sold the dog, and by the irresistible attraction of cohesion, and the eternal order of things he comes back to me, am I to blame? Its monstrous, heinous, regular blasphemy to say so.

Mr. Aberdeen appeared deeply struck by the latter observation.

Polk. (continued) I didn't steal the animal. Steal! Is a man of my character to be called a thief? I reannexed him—that's all. Besides what jurisdiction has this here court? What authority has any court on earth in a question purely American. My bargain with Don Bernardo Murphy took place out of this country; the dog came back to me thousands of miles herefrom.

Mr. Aberdeen. In that case I must really dismiss the complaint. Allow me to state my opinion, Mr. Polk, that the dog is yours; I have no business to enquire into questions of annexation as you call it, or of robbery as his Excellency here (very rudely, I must think,) entitles your bargain. I entreat rather that gentlemen so respectable should live together in harmony; and—and, I wish both of you a very good morning.

Mr. Polk then, left the office whistling to his dog, and making signs of contempt at Don Bernardo Murphy who slunk away in a cab. He had not been gone away an hour when Policeman X. 21, came into the office and said. Please your Worship the Yankee annexed your Canadian walking-stick in the passage.

Mr. Aberdeen. (sternly) Mind your own business, fellow. Mr. Polk is perfectly welcome to the stick.

Presently another member of the force (O'Regan by name) came and swore the incorrigible Polk had stolen his beaver hat.

Mr. Aberdeen. (good humouredly) Well, well, I dare say the hat wasn't worth two pence halfpenny; and it is better to lose it than to squabble about it at law.

O'Regan left the Court grumbling, and said it wasn't so in Temple's time.

Anti Millerism.—In Buckport, Maine: says the Boston Post, forty men disguised as Indians entered a house occupied by a Millerite meeting, administered to them an oath that they would not attend any more such meetings, and then cleared them out.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lay four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

MYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50tf

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses:—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 165 acres, 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock: for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri.

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3 1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION in MISSISSIPPI, situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs, situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—49tf

A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 miles from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie town, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on D. Coulston of La Harpe, or at Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15, 50tf

LOOK HERE. THE undersigned will exchange a few town lots, for Horses, Cattle, Wagons and Harnesses.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Jan. 27th, 1845—39tf

NOTICE. A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods, as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business.

We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.

Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to give us a call.

Feb. 7, 49tf

W. & S.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton. (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 24—47tf

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinet ware, Chairs, Hoops, Pitch forks; finally, any thing that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Fowls, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buck-wheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43tf

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845—14tf

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43tf

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egna, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk-lines, &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19—49tf

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 19—46tf

HAT STORE.

THE subscriber has taken a store on Mulholland St., half a mile east of the Temple, where he now offers for sale Fur and Silk Hats of the latest fashions, and manufactured of the best materials.

Country produce taken in exchange. Also a good assortment of Groceries and Provisions.

A. MERRILL.

Nov. 26, 1844—30tf.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH, ATTENDANT, MASTER, WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Rock Island, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. On her upward trip, she will leave Nauvoo for Rock Island every Wednesday at six P. M. Returning she will leave Nauvoo for St. Louis every Saturday at 6 A. M. In point of accommodations the Amaranth is surpassed by no boat on the upper Mississippi; and her officers will spare no pains to render her worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to A. MORRISON, Agent.

Nauvoo, April 30th, 51tf

MERMAID: REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings; and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as 'plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity.' For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent,

for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845—tf

OSPREY: REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo

Jan. 1, 1845—35tf.

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons which may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Chariottes, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Buggy Wagons, Hearses, Sportsmens Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Carriages, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also Ploughs, Scythe snaths, Rakes, &c. &c. which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Water street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices, for we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Pres.

ELIJAH FORDHAM, Clerk.

SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.

BURR FROST.

DAVID DE VOL.

JOSHUA SMITH.

DAVID W. FOX.

SHADRACH DRIGGS.

DWIGHT WEBSTER.

JESSE H. ATHERTON.

WM. LISK.

Jan. 15th, 1845—37—tf.

CONSUMPTION OF THE LUNGS.

Coughs and Colds, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pains or Soreness of the Chest, Difficulty of Breathing, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, &c.

AMONG all the famous medicines for Consumption, none seems to be meeting with greater success, or gaining a higher reputation than that most wonderful article, Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry! That it stands at the head of all other remedies is now universally conceded. It has cured thousands upon thousands—of all classes—in cases of the most dangerously Consumptive character—and physicians of the greatest eminence throughout our whole country unhesitatingly recommend it as the most powerful curative of Pulmonary diseases, in the whole range of Pharmacy. Thousands of consumptive patients have already tested its exalted virtues, and confessed its surpassing, excellent and amazing power. The remarkable success of this Balsam is no doubt owing in a great measure to the peculiarly agreeable and powerful nature of its ingredients. It is a fine Herbal Medicine, composed chiefly of Wild Cherry Bark and the genuine Iceland Moss—(the latter imported expressly for this purpose) the rare medical virtues of which are also combined, by a new chemical process with the Extract of Tar—thus rendering the whole Compound the most certain and efficacious remedy ever discovered.

A CASE OF ASTHMA.

The following is from a distinguished Lawyer of the city of New York, who had been afflicted with the Asthma for upwards of 'Twenty Years' and who, after reading such cases can doubt the efficacy of this medicine?

New York, January 25, 1843.

I have been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for 24 years—sometimes so severely as to be confined to my room for weeks; and although attended by various medical advisers, of the highest reputation and skill in the country, the relief was but partial and temporary—twice the disease proved nearly fatal to my life. Some few weeks ago I commenced taking Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which gave me instant relief, and a single bottle produced in a few days what I believe to be a radical and perfect cure.

A. WILLIAMS, Attorney at Law,

No. 53 Williams st., New York.

We are acquainted with the writer of the above certificate, and his statements are entitled to the full confidence of the public.

F. A. TALMADGE.

Recorder of the city of New York.

JOHN POWER, D. D.,

Vicar General of New York.

P. S. The above certificate may be seen at No. 125 Fulton street, New York.

Price $1 per bottle, or six for $5.

All orders from dealers south and west of the Wabash river should be addressed to Benjamin Phelps 76 Chesnut street, St. Louis, Mo. The above truly valuable medicine is for sale at this office.

Feb 13—42—3m

BENJAMIN PHELPS,

No. 76 Chesnut Street,

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

WESTERN GENERAL AGENT FOR ALL THE

BEST FAMILY MEDICINES,

OFFERS to Dealers and others the following highly popular and valuable Medicines:

Wistar's Balsam of wild cherry

Rev. L. Covert's balm of life

Humphrey's Pile ointment

Dr. Williamson's pain soother

Brite's rheumatic liniment and pills

Sappington's pills

Dr. Starkweather's hepatic elixir

Dr. Haldsted's magnetic remedies

Bristol's sarsaparilla

Fridley's tetter ointment

Fahnestock's vermifuge

Jew David's or Hebrew plaster

Dr. Haldsted's magnetic pills

Nov 13—42—6m

EARTHENWARE! EARTHENWARE!

J. GROCIT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one Block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844. no41—tf.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY:

THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THREE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 3.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, May 21, 1845.

Whole Number 149

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

(the square, one insertion, $1

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

DEFERRED ARTICLES.

NATIONAL DIFFERENCES.

Great Britain wants Oregon; the United States are hungry for Texas, and Missouri has already swallowed a portion of Iowa, and these National differences, are really quite fashionable. Well the old saying is, "we may as well be out of the world as out of the fashion."

Northern Boundary.—The Paris Mercury gives the following account of the recent difficulties between citizens residing in the disputed territory, between Missouri and Iowa. It is high time these difficulties were terminated in some way or other; and it is entirely wrong, as well as unjust to other portions of the State, that the people in the disputed territory should exercise the rights of citizenship, vote at our elections, be represented in our Legislature, and yet pay no taxes, and perform no duties that are incumbent upon other citizens. The Iowa folks have taken the start of us in their final enforcements against persons exercising authority within their territory without a commission from the Territorial authorities. Upon the boundary question, Gov. Edwards is right, and we hope he will manifest more zeal and energy in carrying out some speedy measure for its settlement. His predecessors have most shamefully neglected this matter.

Gov. Edwards and Iowa.—The northern boundary of Schuyler county, (a new county organized at the last session of the Missouri Legislature,) is within one mile of Boonefield, the county seat of Davis county, organized by the authorities of Iowa. Iowa claims ten or twelve miles of the north part of Schuyler county, and has for years exercised jurisdiction over the same. While Schuyler county was attached to Adair, a deputy sheriff by the name of Linden, executed a writ on the disputed territory which was issued from the Adair Circuit Court for doing which, we learn that Linden has been indicted, tried, and sentenced to the Penitentiary of Iowa. Another deputy of the Adair sheriff, named Mulhock, has been indicted and thrown into prison; by the authorities of Iowa, for executing a writ on the disputed ground.

Our readers are aware that Missouri extends north to Brown's line, and that Iowa claims south to Sullivan's line, leaving a strip of ten or twelve miles between said lines in dispute. Gov. Edwards has appointed our old acquaintance Jonathan Riggs, who resides on the disputed ground, sheriff of Schuyler county. Mr. Riggs is accepted, and we saw him present his bond to Judge Reese, the other day at Palmyra for approval. Mr. Riggs, a though, claimed as a citizen of Iowa, considers himself a citizen of Missouri, and is determined to discharge the duties of sheriff of Schuyler county. We have no doubt but that he will be indicted by the court of Iowa, for accepting office from the Governor of Missouri, as that is a penitentiary offence according to the laws of that territory. Gov. Edwards knew that Mr. Riggs resided on the disputed ground when he appointed him, and we presume that the Governor intends to see that the laws are enforced in every part of the State. This we think he should do by all means. Many of those who reside on the disputed territory, have no connection with Missouri, except to vote—and as they vote in Missouri, they should be compelled to pay taxes as others do. We fear bloodshed will be the consequence, but as the Gov. has taken the stand, it will not do to back out. The line between Missouri and Iowa, is so clearly defined in our constitution, that none (unless purposely blind) can mistake it. The right of Missouri to that portion of territory claimed by Iowa, is as clear as is her right to Cole county.

Crime in the City of New York.—The New York correspondent of the National Intelligencer, states that Judge Edmonds, in charging the grand jury of that city, on the 24th ult., gave some interesting facts as to the amount of crime perpetrated in Gotham. He stated that there were confined in the State prison at Sing Sing 415 males and 31 females; from the city; in the city prison 108 males and 35 females; in the penitentiary at Blackwell's Island 592 males and 564 females—making a sum total of persons confined in prison for crimes committed in the city of New York 1125 males and 630 females—making a sum total of 1755 persons. Yet the New York editors have the hardihood to talk of New Orleans as an uncivilized city when compared with their own. Such libellers ought to be delivered over to the devil to be buffeted.—N. O. Pic.

—This is all fair: New York with a population of 300,000 has about 1700 criminals; New Orleans with 100,000 has about 300, and Nauvoo with 20,000—none! Won't the Christian cities feel white to see the Mormons above the laws?

Duelling and Religion.—The difference in Paris and in New Orleans, says the N. O. Pic, between the mode of conducting the funeral of a person killed in a duel, is illustrated by two almost contemporaneous cases. As they are not without instruction, and seem to furnish matter for reflection, we refer again to them.

In our columns yesterday, was a notice of the funeral at New Orleans of Judge Leonard, who died in consequence of a wound received in a duel. It was a splendid cortege, in which, to civic and military honors, were added the solemn and imposing rites of the Roman Catholic church.

A few days only ago, we briefly related the particulars of a duel between two editors in Paris—which proved fatal to one of them, M. Dujarrier. Of the funeral ceremonial in his case, the French paper renders this account:

The obsequies of M. Dujarrier, took place on the 14th March, in the midst of a great concourse of literary men and journalists. The church refusing her payers to those slain in a duel, as to those who fall by their own hand, the corpse was conveyed to the burial ground without any religious ceremony. Extra efforts were made to induce the Archbishop to swerve in this case from the inflexible rule of the church—but in vain. The pall bearers were Messrs. Emile de Girardin, Mory, Alexander Dumas and

What a comment on law and religion! What a burlesque on reason and Christianity! Talk of preaching to the heathen, when a judge in the United States of freedom, and an Editor in France so refined, were shot in a duel; and both buried in the pomp and splendor of religion! It is no wonder that God begins to sprinkle the judgments.

CHAPTER OF MISCELLANY FOR 1845.

To give our readers a specimen of the times, we select from our exchanges, the following chapter of miscellany in May 1845.

FRIGHTFUL INUNDATION OF THE COUNTRY OF THE RHINE.

We are pained to learn from the Schnellpost of this city that there has been a most extensive and wasting flood upon the Rhine. Owing to the intensity of the winter, immense masses of snow had accumulated in the Upper Rhine country, the melting of which has caused such deplorable calamities. In Cologne the streets along the river are said to be under water, which, at the date of the information, (March 31) had reached the lower stories, and was still rising.

The only communication between the streets on the bank of the river, and the higher parts of the town, was in skill, On the opposite side of the river, the town of Deutz was nearly overflowed, the part that escaped forming an island. In a pleasure garden on the same side of the river, the upper branches only of the trees were visible. The whole flat country around Cologne is represented as in a similar condition—the dikes broken down and the frightful devastation continually on the increase. Such a flood, it is said, has not occurred for nearly two generations.

Great apprehensions are entertained of suffering from scarcity of provisions, diseases, and lack of employment for the poor.

In the midst of the general distress, the efforts of the benevolent are not wanting to mitigate the immediate suffering. Public eating-houses were opened for the destitute, free of cost; and provision made for the supply of the most pressing wants in respect of clothing and habitation.

The flood is said to extend from the borders of Switzerland to Holland. Vast numbers of peasantry had lost every thing but life. Those who escaped to the high grounds near were beginning to suffer for the necessities of life. Even where they had rescued their cattle, it seemed as if it was only to see them perish by starvation, for the uncommon length and severity of the winter had nearly exhausted the whole country of its stock of fodder. It was feared that the flood had destroyed or seriously injured the crops in the ground, while the deposits of sand would prove very unfavorable for the summer crops. These fears are, we hope, exaggerated, if not groundless, as to the winter and summer crops; but the present distress from such a calamity, cannot but be extremely severe.

In the fortified town of Coblenz, the water had reached the port-holes of the fortifications and passengers were landed from the steamboats over the ramparts.

Half of the city of Dusseldorf was under water. The great manufacturing town of Elberfeld, situated on a small branch of the Rhine, has also suffered severely.

A heavy calamity has, as we see, overtaken the whole valley of the Rhine—one of the fairest portions of the earth. There is no one who had ever visited that favored region, whose heart does not weep at the recollection of its beauties. The flood has now laid it desolate, but its natural fertility, and its many advantages are such that we may hope for its restoration to its former prosperity and beauty.

[Eve. Mirror.

FURTHER RESISTANCE OF LAW ON DUTCH HILL.

On Tuesday of last week, the Sheriff and his deputy, Palmer, together with two of our citizens, went to the town of Hindale for the purpose of executing a writ of possession against Jacob Learn.

Much has been said about the propriety and impropriety of calling out the force last winter for the purpose of executing the law. It has been often asserted by some of those misguided persons who are banded together for resisting the execution of the law, and by many others, that if the Sheriff would come without any posse, he would meet with no difficulty in the execution of process. To test the truth and sincerity of these pretensions the Sheriff and deputy went unaccompanied by any force, except a few neighbors of Mr. Learn. As soon as the business of the Sheriff was made known, horns were blown and messengers dispatched for the purpose of assembling a force to oppose the Sheriff. A considerable force was soon assembled, far more than sufficient to overcome any assistance which the Sheriff could then command.

The mob were resolutely determined that the writ should not be executed, and so proclaimed to the Sheriff. A few well-disposed persons present were willing to assist the Sheriff, but as Mr. Learn was absent, and it being near night, it was concluded to postpone the attempt till the following morning. The person who came on the ground after the Sheriff, to take possession, was brutally maltreated by the mob. Tar and feathers and a rail were got in readiness, but through the intervention of the Sheriff and well-disposed friends, he was finally extricated from the hands of the rabble, without any farther injury than that done by some cowardly miscreants throwing small quantities of tar upon his clothes from behind his back. Covert threats were made to intimidate him from coming the following morning. On Wednesday morning the Sheriff went again to the premises to execute his process.

A large force, numbering at least 100 men, were already assembled, the house was fastened and the Sheriff distinctly informed that he would not be permitted to execute the process. After much talk on both sides, the Sheriff was obliged to leave the field in the possession of the mob. Thus stands the matter at present. It now remains to be seen, whether the laws can and shall be executed, or whether the mob shall continue to triumph. It is said by these men in open rebellion against the authority of the State, that they will not oppose the execution of the law, where the land office proprietors are not concerned. But every friend of law and order, every friend of private rights and personal liberty, will at once perceive the danger of surrendering the discretion of deciding upon the execution or suspension of law, to the self-constituted authority of an excited and detestable mob.—Callaugus Whig, 28th.

Cruelty in the Navy.—The Old Dominion states, that Captain Voorhees, of the United States frigate Congress, is charged with the grossest cruelty towards the men under his charge. It is said that on leaving the capes of Virginia, he had the whole crew assembled, and made to them the following proclamation:—"I wish every man to understand that if he is reported, I will punish him whether right or wrong—for I believe that I can place confidence in my officers, that they will report a man without cause." The Old Dominion, which is published at Portsmouth, Va., adds:

Under this brutal policy punishment was perpetual, and the charge is boldly made that more than one sailor or inferior person was whipped to death! This we do know, that the officers of that ship did not dare to stay with and mingle with the men, but hurried themselves off at the earliest moment, for threats of vengeance were loud and deep against them; and we have no doubt, had the men been discharged, serious scenes would have been witnessed in this town.

Murder in Jefferson county.—The Republican says:—"Our readers will recollect that some months ago, we gave an account of the murder of a man, the keeper of a small store in the vicinity of the mines, under circumstances of peculiar atrocity. Three negroes, under the confession of a negro named Sam, were arrested for the offence. At the late term of the court, when Sam was brought before the grand jury, he denied that the other two negroes had any hand in it, and there being no other testimony against them, they were discharged. We understand that he now says that he and a white man, heretofore occupying a respectable position in society, did it—that the white man gave the first blow. The trial of Sam comes off next week, or the week following.

Insanity.—In seventy-two most recent dissections at Bethlehem hospital, performed by Mr. Lawrence, the brain was found to have undergone some structural alterations. In four hundred dissections, made by Mr. Davidson, at the Lancaster lunatic asylum, the brain was invariably found disorganized. M. Foville and Delays had paid more attention than perhaps any other two morbid anatomists to this subject, and they state that they have always been able to detect organic changes in the brain after death, principally in the cortical or gray part, which was frequently found to be of an intensely red color, representing erysipelas. If the gray substance in these cases be dexterously pared, and very thin slices of it cut off, so as not to lay bare the white part of the brain, a preternatural redness, varying from that of red to lilac color, will be seen. In some cases of acute mania, the brain will be found of a marbled appearance, in which patches of still deeper red hue and of preternatural softness are detected.

Another Murder.—Last evening, says the N. O. Tropic of the 1st inst., the Coroner held an inquest at a house in Magazine st., between St. Joseph and Julia sts., on the body of a drayman named Thomas Marsh, in the employ of the Orleans Cotton Press Company, who it appears from the evidence, came to his death by a blow inflicted with an iron dray pin, on his head, behind the left ear, by another drayman, on Tuesday last, in the gateway of the Orleans Cotton Press, which fractured his skull, and from the effects of which he died at 5 o'clock last evening. The murderer has not been arrested.

The same paper says: The Coroner held an inquest yesterday morning at a house in Burgundy street, between Main and St. Philip streets, on the body of a Portuguese named Jerome Martinez, who had shot himself in the mouth with a pistol, which caused his death. Verdict—suicide.

Murderous attempt in the New Hampshire State Prison.—On the 25th ult., a convict confined in the New Hampshire State Prison named Peter de Noss, a foreigner, attempted to kill another convict named Paul, a colored man and a barber. Paul had gone into the shop where de Noss was at work, for the purpose of shaving one of the prisoners, whereupon de Noss flew at the unlucky barber with a shoe knife, and inflicted a horrible wound upon him, and upon his attempting to defend himself, he received another nearly fatal cut across the abdomen. Paul then fell, and his assailant was taken off.

Horrid Murder.—We copy the following from the Richmond Star of the 24th ult.:—We learn from indubitable authority that Mrs. Holloway, wife of Mr. Holloway, of Person county, who was once a member of our Legislature, having prevailed on her husband, one day last week, to tie the hands of one of their negro women, beat and tortured her to death. It is said that she heated a pan handle red hot and ran it down the negro's throat, besides burning her lips to a crisp. The negro was privately buried eight feet deep, in an obscure place, and Mr. and Mrs. H. made their escape to parts unknown to their neighbors.

Another Murder is said to have been committed in Lincoln county, on the 20th ult. A man named Calloway was shot on the road from Troy to Capeau Gris. He was found with three ball shots through him, and appeared to have been fired upon from some bushes as he passed along the road. The perpetrators of the act are unknown. Calloway had been ordered to leave the county some time previously, and it is supposed that this is a continuation of the former violent acts committed in that county.

Fire in Springfield.—The Springfield (Ohio) Republic of the 25th ult., says: A heavy storm of rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning, came on about noon on Wednesday, during which the lightning struck the stable of Mr. Warden, of the National, prostrated five horses, and set the building on fire. All Mr. Warden's stabling and sheds were destroyed, with a considerable quantity of hay and grain. The five horses belonging to Neil, More & Co., were burned up. The large stable of the State Company was on fire, but by the extraordinary exertions of the firemen and others, it was saved, and the fire thus prevented from extending to the neighboring buildings on the north.

A Storm.—We are informed that a severe storm occurred a few days since, commencing about the mouth of the Platte, and passing down through Clay and other counties, in the direction of Camden. In its course it prostrated nearly every thing in its path. Below the town of Randolph, in Clay county, a house was blown, and a woman and two children killed. It is supposed that several other persons have been killed or injured by its ravages.

The City of Washington was visited by a dreadful tornado on the afternoon of the 25th ult. One stable was unroofed; the dust flew mountains high; the Whig Pole broke; a carpenter's shop was blown down; two or three chimneys smashed, and signs, trees and barrels "went it with a perfect rush!"

Rail Storm.—They have lately had a tremendous hail storm in Jackson county, in this State. At Independence, the hail stones were as large as turkey eggs. So says the 'Expositor' of the 20th ult.

The Steamer Swallow.—The Albany Evening Journal has the following notice of the report of the Committee on the loss of the Swallow, submitted to the Senate on Saturday:

The committee report, among other things, that at the moment the Swallow struck the rock, she was running about fourteen or fifteen miles an hour; that she sank in from two to five minutes after the collision took place; and that the disaster, in their judgment, was attributable to the gross neglect of the Pilot, who was at the wheel at the time.

The committee farther state, that the Swallow was owned in part (one-third) by the Troy Steamboat Association, and in part (two-thirds) by the People's Line, but that she was entirely under the control of the Association. They give the proprietors of the boat the credit of having used all diligence in making arrangements to raise the wreck, and express the belief that she will be raised today. The committee are of opinion that no more bodies will be found in the wreck, but think it probable that several persons were drowned in the river in addition to those whose bodies have been discovered. The report also states, that according to the testimony of the chambermaid, all the ladies had got out of the saloon on the main deck before the boat sank.

The report is an able and interesting one, and we will endeavour to publish it in full on Monday or Tuesday. The bill introduced by the committee provides, among other things, that no person shall be employed as a master or captain of a steamboat on the Hudson river, who has not had three years' experience as a pilot; that a list of the proprietors of every steamboat navigating the Hudson shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State; that such proprietors shall be held jointly and severally liable for all loss of life or property which may occur from any accident to steamboats; that the captain of every boat shall have control of all persons employed in such boat, whether pilot, engineer, or deck hand, that no spirituous liquors shall be sold or allowed on board of any steamboat navigating the Hudson; and that the fact of any disaster or accident shall be presumptive evidence of neglect or carelessness against the persons in charge of the boat, and that in every suit instituted to recover damages resulting from such accident, the burden of proof shall be thrown upon the defendant.

A hot drop.—The Bowery Theatre accidentally took fire yesterday afternoon about six o'clock, and in less than an hour became a mass of burning ruins, being the fourth or fifth time that the building known as the Bowery Theatre has been burnt down. The loss must be very heavy, as but little insurance had been effected. Mr. Hamblin, the manager, who had recently contracted for the building of a new Theatre, will be the principal sufferer. The ownership of the building was owned by various persons in the form of a joint stock company, and but little of the stock had been insured. The whole loss is over $50,000. [N. Y. Sun, April 20.]

Another chance for Penn. of the St. Louis Reporter to b-b-r-a-y BRAY!

The Mysterious Lady.—An American lady, now exhibiting in London, promises to excite no little attention among the lovers of the mysterious and the wonderful. She is apparently endowed with the faculty of second sight, for she turns her back upon you, and yet is able to speak of every thing that takes place with the most unflinching accuracy. If you throw up a couple of dice, touch a strange card, or even whisper a name, she tells you in a moment what is done or said, and that without difficulty or deliberation. A more satisfactory system of mystification has, we believe, never before been seen. There is an interlocutor employed who shuffles the cards and receives the whispers; and he, probably, is the Asmodeus who transmits, in some occult way, the intelligence to the lady; but the collusion is so well concealed, that the part he takes is so incidental, and so seemingly natural, that the spectator's penetration is completely at fault. No matter what questions are asked, the lady answers. If Mr. Duncombe were to hold up a letter she would tell him whether it came from a tailor or an opera dancer; in fact she sees without eyes and hears without ears.

During the intervals of her performances, which may well be called extraordinary, her coadjutor entertains the company with sleight-of-hand tricks, and his skill is surprising. [Wilmer's JI.]

Books before the invention of Printing.—In the ninth century, Albert, Abbot of Gemblours, who with incredible labor and immense expenses, had collected a hundred volumes on theology, and fifty on profanity, believed he had formed a splendid library. At the beginning of the tenth century, books were so scarce in Spain, that one copy of the bible served several district monasteries. In 1297, the Bishop of Winchester borrowed of his cathedral convent the Bible with marginal annotations; for the due return of which he was obliged to give a bond, drawn up with great solemnity. When a book was bought the affair was of so much importance that it was customary to assemble persons of consequence and character, and to make a formal record that they were present at the sale. The library of the University of Oxford, before the year 1400 consisted only of a few tracts, chained or kept in chests, in the choir of St. Mary's church.

A gentleman in the British navy has invented a cloak, which is capable of being filled with air and used as a boat. An experiment was lately made with one of these at Plymouth, England; in which the party paddled some miles from the ship, holding an umbrella over his head, and on landing, he put his boat on his back and walked off.

Oregon one hundred years ago.—A correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer states that a gentleman of Philadelphia has in his possession a map of North America, published about 1739, in which the territory at present in dispute between this country and Great Britain, is laid down as part of a large island, extending from the tropic of Cancer to 46 degrees north latitude, under the general name of "California," divided from the main land by the "Gulf of California, or the Red Sea." Numerous rivers and mountains are noted on the map. Vancouver's Island is not down; but all the country on the continent north of 46 degrees is designated "unknown parts." So slight was the knowledge of the geography of western America possessed by the English government at the time the map was issued, that the Rocky Mountains are represented in detached groups, extending nearly due east and west.

The Drought.—The drought of which we gave some notice in our last, (says the Edgefield Advertiser of Wednesday last), has continued down to the time at which we write this. We have never known warmer weather at this season. In the course of a short excursion which we made last week in the upper part of our District and in Abbeville, we observed that the crops of wheat and oats were very seriously damaged, and were suffering from a black blast. We fear that they will be cut short, if not entirely destroyed. [Charleston S. C. Courier.]

Elaeen, Comely Things.—These things are comely and pleasant, and worthy of honor from the beholder, says bishop Hal.

A young saint; an old martyr; a religious soldier; a conscientious statesman; a great man courteous; a learned man humble; a child that understands the eye of his parents; a cheerful companion without vanity; a friend not changed with horrors; a sick man happy; a soul departing with comfort and assurance.

COMMERCIAL ITEMS AND ANNALS.

In 1795 the exports of the United States amounted to upwards of $47,000,000. The net amount of imports and tonnage was nearly $8,000,000.

In 1797, the exports of the United States amounted to above $57,000,000.

In 1798, by the second census, the number of inhabitants was found to be 5,305,482.

The shipping of the United States amounted to 939,400 tons.

The revenue of the Post office was $80,000.

An old woman.—A Frankfort paper says there is now living at Moscow the widow of a dealer in skins, who has attained her 157 year. When 123 she married her fifth husband. At her alliances have been prosperous and happy. She has never been attacked with any dangerous illness.

FOURTEEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The Hibernia arrived at Boston on the 6th. Her exchanges are not all in, but enough has come to hand through the extraordinary exertion of expressmen and steamboats, (7 days in advance of the mails,) to show the state of affairs on the other side of the Atlantic.

The English are a little more mild on the Oregon question.

Repeal meetings are continued in Ireland. The Maynooth endowment bill was making some stir among the Catholics of the Emerald Isle.

As to trouble the following will suffice for this week. [Remember that Elder Hyde, not long since, warned the inhabitants of Germany in a printed pamphlet, that trouble was at hand.]

GERMANY.

Inundation.—Accounts are given of sad inundations in various parts of Germany and Belgium. The Revue de Paris states that the greatest inundation, of which Germany has, during two centuries, preserved the recollection, were those of 1655 and 1784; nevertheless, neither of those events was so disastrous as the inundations of the present year.

The entire Germanic confederation, a part of Austria and Poland, have been literally under water since the 30th of March. The Rhine, the Maine, the Neckar, the Danube, the Elbe, and the Vistula, have in succession, overflowed their banks, not in a day, but in an hour. Frankfurt, Mentz, Cologne, Breslau, Prague, and a number of other towns, and several thousand villages, were covered with water.

The magnificent bridge of Dresden has been carried away, and many edifices have been destroyed. In the midst of the general desolation, public charity has not remained inactive. Committees have been formed in the cities, and assistance has been afforded in every direction. At the head of the committees are inscribed names of kings, princes, ministers, generals, provincial governors, and bishops. One committee at Berlin, between the 1st and 17th of April, 104,792 thalers ($80,000.)

SWITZERLAND.

A bloody affray took place in Lucerne, between the rival Protestant and Catholic factions; the former invading Lucerne. The battle took place on the 31st of March. The whole account is too long for our columns. The following extracts must suffice.

The Swiss journals of the 7th ult., state that the government of Lucerne had just sent a commissioner to Lucerne with a supply of money, in order to relieve the distress of the prisoners in that turbulent Canton, and negotiate their release. Committees had also been appointed at Zurich and Lucerne for the assisting of the defeated Lucerne refugees. The Canton of Argau was occupied by the federal troops; and one of the federal commissioners left Argau for Lucerne on the 5th. On his departure, a very large number of women and children assembled around him, and entreated him to implore the mercy of the Lucerne government in behalf of their husbands and parents. Seventy-four families of Argau had as yet received no tidings of their relations; the place has not quite four thousand inhabitants.

The invaders were treated with such ferocity in all quarters, that it is said that out of 4,000 or 5,000, not more than 2,000 escaped massacre.

The Diet has again been convoked, and the session was re-opened on the 5th. The first debate was irregular and stormy; but it was resolved to refer the whole question to a committee.

Letters from Zurich, of the 5th, state that the exasperation of the conquering party is so great that serious apprehensions were entertained as to the fate of the prisoners taken before Lucerne. These prisoners are said to be 1,602 in all; and among them are 180 Bernese, and 694 Argovians.

The excitement occasioned by this bloodshed pervades all parts of the confederation; and general civil war can only be prevented by some vigorous measures on the part of the Diet. The last accounts state that the Diet had been convoked in great haste, and that a committee was appointed to inquire into the state of affairs.

From the accounts we have received, which are somewhat confused, we collect that they were received by a fire of grape-shot so terrible that from 800 to 1000 were killed. It is said that out of 600 men who marched from the half Canton of Bale country, only 100 have returned, and that a single man alone has got back to Liestal. Steiger and Rothliepitz, two of the leaders who have been captured, had been brought before a military commission. It is stated that Dr Steiger was tried and condemned, and immediately shot.

MEXICO AND THE UNITED STATES.

The following correspondence shows how Mexico feels in relation to the annexation of Texas. Taking the cause of Mexico and vowing of Great Britain about Oregon, and the winning of her Majesty against President Polk's independence; and the "noble Lord's" Cant, that the United States ought to be the last nation to think of war with so many slaves in her borders, we have quite a prospect of being clubbed into close quarters; that is to say, continental restrictions pettically.

United States Legation

March 31st, 1845.

The undersigned, Envoy Extraordinary, &c., of the United States, has the honor of acknowledging the receipt of his Excellency's, Senor Cuevas's Minister of Foreign Relations, &c., note of the 28th of March, announcing that the Congress of the United States has sanctioned the Annexation of Texas to its territory; that the Mexican Minister at Washington had terminated his official relations, and protested against the said act of the Congress and Government of the United States, and that diplomatic relations between the two countries could not be continued.

The liberal and honorable sentiments entertained by the actual government of Mexico had induced the undersigned to hope that the differences which exist between the two Governments could be arranged amicably upon terms just and honorable to both. It would appear, however, from the note of His Excellency Senor Cuevas, that Mexico declines to adjust these differences in this manner, and thus preserve the peace of the two countries.

The undersigned can assure his Excellency Senor Cuevas that his (Mr. Shannon's) Government entertains the liveliest desire to cultivate amicable relations with that of Mexico; and here he will improve this opportunity to repeat that which he has before communicated to the Government of Mexico, to wit: that the United States has not adopted the measure of Annexation in any spirit of hostility towards Mexico, and that the United States are anxious to settle all questions which may grow out of this measure, including that of boundaries, in terms the most just and liberal.

Having offered the olive branch of peace, and manifested a sincere desire to arrange these questions amicably and upon principles just and honorable to both Governments, the United States have done whatever is in their power to preserve the friendly relations between them, and it now remains for Mexico to decide whether they shall be continued, or whether the peace of the two countries shall be broken by a conflict equally injurious to both, and which can give satisfaction only to the enemies of civil liberty and republican institutions.

The undersigned will pass over in silence the charge made against his Government of having violated the treaty of friendship with Mexico. The right of Texas to cede the whole or a part of her territory to the United States, and the right of the United States to accept such cessions, have already been amply vindicated repeatedly.

The undersigned has received no official communication as to the action of his Government in regard to the Annexation of Texas to the Union; nevertheless, he cannot doubt, from the tenor of his personal correspondence, that the measure has been passed by Congress and approved by the President. He expects daily despatches from his Government, with special instructions upon this subject, and before taking any further steps, has resolved to await their arrival.

The undersigned has the honor &c., Wilson Shannon, Minister, &c.

In reply to the above, the following letter was sent two days after:—

NATIONAL PALACE

Mexico, April 2, 1845.

The undersigned, Minister of Foreign Relations, has the honor to communicate to His Excellency Mr. Shannon, Minister, &c., in reply to the note of His Excellency of the 21st of March, that the Government of Mexico cannot continue diplomatic relations with the United States upon the presumption that such relations are reconcilable with the law which the President of the United States has approved in regard to the Annexation of the Department of Texas to the American Union; that this determination is founded upon the necessity which Mexico feels of maintaining no friendship with a Republic which has violated her obligations, usurped a portion of territory belonging to Mexico by a right which she will maintain at whatever cost; that the relations between the two countries cannot be re-established until reparation of that injury, aggravado, such as is demanded by good faith, justice to Mexico, and the honor of the United States, is made.

Moreover, the undersigned will take the liberty to say to his Excellency Mr. Shannon, that if the United States Government thinks that it entertained friendly sentiments towards Mexico at the time of giving such offence, and when attacking the integrity of the Republic of Mexico, this Government (Mexico) is very far from entertaining the same views, or of acquiescing in the assurance which his Excellency Mr. Shannon has given, whatever may be its sentiments towards his Excellency personally.

The undersigned, in making this announcement to his Excellency Mr. Shannon, doing so by the order of the President of Mexico—cutting short a new discussion which the interruption of the relations of the two countries will not permit, and because nothing can be added to what this Department has already said—has the honor to renew the assurances of his very distinguished consideration.

LUIS G. GUEVAS.

From the N. O. Picayune.

LATE FROM TEXAS.

By the arrival at a late hour last night of the steamship John S. McKim, Capt. Lewis, 73 hours from Galveston, we are in receipt of full files of Houston and Galveston papers.

The President has issued his proclamation convening Congress on Monday, the 16th day of June next. We learn from the proclamation that the Government of the United States has selected the first and second sections of the resolutions (Brown's) as the basis for consummating the proposed union.

The enthusiasm of the friends of Annexation is bearing down all opposition. The people have taken the measure in their own hands. At a meeting held in Washington county strong resolutions were passed in favor of immediate annexation, "without reference to the wishes and concurrence of any foreign or European power;" and calling on the President to convene Congress immediately. The meeting also recommended to the citizens of the Republic, in case the President did not convene Congress, to meet as soon as possible in Convention to ratify the Joint Resolutions and form a State Constitution. Mr. E. Allen, Attorney-General, who was present, objected to the tone of the resolutions. Mr. Scurry in reply, intimated that the citizens of the Republic might yet become still more impatient of the delay of the President in convening Congress and adopt measures much more violent than those recommended in the resolutions. The resolutions were unanimously adopted. Gen. M. Hunt, Dr. J. C. Chalmers, Judge Ewing, R. W. Williamson, J. B. Wilkins, and other prominent gentlemen participated in the proceedings. The President issued his proclamation on the following day.

The Whirlwind Sweeps Onward.—From every section of the Republic (says the Houston Telegraph of the 16th inst.) we hear but the continued roar of plaudits, as the people assemble in county after county to testify their approbation of the terms of annexation offered by the American government. The thunders of applause resound on every side. The whirlwind of public opinion has swept down all opposition, and the few opponents of annexation have turned with dismay from the contest, if contest it could be called, when the opponents of this great measure only looked around them once to survey the field, and cry "all is lost." In Jasper and Jefferson it is said there is scarcely one man opposed to the measure. In Robertson, only five or six. In the great counties of San Augustine, Nacogdoches and Montgomery, it is estimated that the majority in favor of annexation exceeds two thousand. Along the whole line of the counties on the Brazos, Colorado, and Guadalupe, there is scarcely a dissenting voice except in the little hamlet of Washington. Even the officers of government now declare that the torrent of public opinion is irresistible, & they are bending beneath it. We have learned with pleasure that the Secretary of the Treasury has stated that he is in favor of annexation, and is willing to accept the propositions of Mr. Brown. The Secretary of State, we are told, has written back to the President and informed him that it is useless to delay the measure, and that the popular enthusiasm is irresistible. Even the Washington Register is compelled to change its course and veer about to the popular current. It is now reported that an extra session of Congress will be held on the 1st of June. Long before that time the people in each of the counties of the Republic will have expressed their entire assent to the terms offered by the American government. Since it is now admitted by every officer of the government that it is impossible to prevent the consummation of this great measure, why should there be any delay? Cannot Congress act upon this subject by the middle of May as well as on the first of June? We have yet confidence in the President that he will not resort to this crisis to any procrastinating policy to defeat the measure. The die is cast. It is the decree of destiny that this great work shall be consummated; and the puny hand of man might as well be uplifted to turn back the clouds as to turn back public opinion on this question. We shall indulge in no forebodings. We rejoice that the President and Cabinet have determined to carry out the will of the people. All parties can now unite with cordiality in advancing this great measure. The people will act with the government and the government will act with the people. Harmony, order and good feeling will prevail on every side, and we will have the proud satisfaction that we shall return as a band of brothers to our "Father Land."

ABOLITION FRACAS.

On Friday morning, as we learn from the Louisville Journal, there was quite a fracas at Madison, la. Sometime since a free mulatto stole several negroes from Harrodsburg, Ky., and carried them to Indiana. The Governor of Kentucky demanded the kidnapper of the Governor of Indiana; the latter issued his warrant and the mulatto was arrested by the sheriff of Jefferson and delivered to the officer from Kentucky for the purpose of taking him to justice. While the prisoner was on a boat at Madison the abolitionists managed to get out a writ of habeas corpus. The sheriff went on board with two deputies, and were in the act of breaking the state-room door open to find their man, when the captain of the boat interfered. At this moment the Kentucky officer opened the state-room door, and, holding a loaded pistol in each hand, told the officers that if they wanted the prisoner they must take him over his dead body, when they desisted and the mulatto negro stealer was taken to Kentucky and lodged in jail. Are we always to have such fracas along the Ohio.—Cin. Com.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 21, 1845.

Removal.—The office of the Times and Seasons and Neighbor, has been removed to the Store lately occupied by James Ivins, on the corner of Main and Kimball Streets.

THE IOWA MURDER.

The Lee County Democrat, printed at Fort Madison, has the following concluding remarks upon the murder perpetrated last week near West Point:—

"Every exertion is being made by our citizens for the apprehension of the wretches."

The place where they washed themselves after their retreat from the house, is discovered, and it is pretty well ascertained that they have made their escape into Nauvoo.

A number of our citizens intend proceeding to that place and insist on the prisoner being given up if they can be found, and no doubt their efforts will be successful.

Friday—Two gentlemen, resident at Montrose, having kept a keen look out, discovered two persons in Nauvoo, whom they strongly suspected to be the murderers, and on giving information the Sheriff, proceeded yesterday to that place, accompanied by a number of assistants, when they found the prisoners in the custody of the authorities.

After a hearing before Esquires Johnson and Higbee, they were surrendered to the Sheriff, who brought them to this town last evening and secured them in the penitentiary. Their name is Hodges; they are brothers. Two other persons named Tom Brown and A. Johnson, are suspected as implicated, and the most strenuous endeavors are being made for their arrest.

It is due to the Mormon authorities, to state that they made every exertion to further the ends of justice, and co-operated most cordially with the Sheriff to that effect.

—This is true; and we feel much obliged to the Sheriff and Editor of the Democrat, for their candour in stating the matter, exactly as it was. We ask the Burlington papers and all others that may have misrepresented the facts, to extend to Nauvoo the like candour, and correct their statements heretofore made. We ask nothing but what is honorable, and reasonable.

We always have and always will help honest men to execute the laws and bring the offenders to justice. Let it be known throughout the land, that these two young Hodges are not Mormons, nor never were: neither are Johnson or Brown. The Latter Day Saints will show registers with the world, in point of moral honesty and vigilance; and will co-operate with all good men to rid the country of villains, rascals, criminals, gamblers, bogus makers, counterfeiters, &c., only tell the truth and give us a fair chance. We have no charter, to be sure, but we have valiant men, and statutes a plenty. Who goes for law, truth, and equal rights? We shall see.

Be Merciful.—Really, should we judge from the tone of some newspapers and their correspondents, there would not be left a "grease spot" of Mormonism after 25, except a few dim stains of Rigolism. If there is any charity, religion, or republicanism in such vaporing; such revenge, and such a want of respect to law and order, then reason has vacated her dominions, and barbarity reigns triumphant.

But we still cherish better feelings, and live in hopes that the "whole people" have not so far lost their balance of power that they cannot be curbed by the ordinary courtesies of society, and the boasted safeguards of life, liberty, and the pursuits of happiness—the constitution, and laws of the country.

We make these remarks because there seems to be a spirit among some of our cotemporary editors to magnify our errors or sins as they seem to class them, but which we claim as rights and privileges, so long as they do not interfere with our neighbor's rights and privileges. Nor is this all, these same men have never received an injury from us knowingly. Their best men have not been sacrificed by us on the altar of savage barbarity, with impunity. No: patiently we "wait the laws slow delay," for atonement, for all the blood of our martyred brethren, and for the redress of the millions of property we have lost in Missouri and other places.

Now, the fact is, as our works will show, we are industrious, persevering, and forbearing. Is there upon record such instances of long suffering, patience, and charity, as the Latter Day Saints have exhibited for the last fourteen years? No! when we are goaded and vexed with lawsuits; and tormented with vagabonds and renegades, we speak openly against them, and then receive from those who seem to be coiled ready for a spring, the rattle for war; but thanks be to God, if there is no uproarious breakout of the people of the United States for foreign nations to wag their heads and laugh at, till the Latter Day Saints tumble out upon the country in the disgraceful attitude of MOB, the world will wag on in peace for ages.

We shall magnify the law and make it honorable as far as we can; we shall pay our just debts; and we shall try to preserve our lives as a people; and more than all this, we shall act in good Samaritan; and if we find any of these men, who are magnifying our faults, and trying to inflame the public mind against us, and they are in trouble, we will help them, for a good man's reward; and we will bless them as far as the Lord will justify.

Now, how sweet will be our consolation, in this world, and in the next, that we have not disgraced our character by mean acts, but on the contrary, have exalted our names and fames, by doing unto others as we wish they would do unto us.

Disgusting.—Nothing is more disgusting than a profane woman. She is like a peach tree, full of caterpillars in their nests; her beauty soon vanishes, and her fruit withers. Apply the same to men.

Drunkenness is like a river that overflows its banks every time it rains; no body wants to live by it.

Poetic prophecy fulfilled.—The learned are often quoting:—

"The gorgeous palaces, the cloud-capt towers, even the great 'globe' itself, shall dissolve"—and when the "globe" at Washington, fell on the first of May, this prophecy was literally fulfilled.

The Union. a paper to take the place of the "Globe," was established in Washington, by Messrs. Ritchie and Heiss, on the first inst.

Specimen of Enterprise.—The Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association with a stock of about twenty dollars in March last, commenced business, and now they inform us, that they have produced the following summary of articles, viz:—

30 Spinning wheels worth	$105 00
6 Waggon and Carriages	" 400 00
50 Doz. Scyth Snaths	" 300 00
40 Do. Patent wheel heads	" 240 00
4 Do. Grain cradles	" 80 00
10 Do. Rakes	" 40 00
Ploughs, hoes, wheel barrows, and hand carts	" 100 00
Stock on hand, produced by labor	" 500 00
Total	$1765 00

Now, all we have to ask, is, if a dozen or fifteen men can produce so much in about two months, what will ten thousand bring to pass in one year? Let the world answer.

Peace, industry, perseverance, and economy, bring health and ease.

Fortune in high life.—It is among the other wonders of the 19th century, that the "stone the builders refused," holding the "key of conquest," got his fortune told in Philadelphia. The fortune-teller publishes that if he is the head of Mormonism, it won't last long. Good; but the balance of the fortune, which was to have come forth in the next number, has not been brought out probably, by giving the Soothsayer "large money" as the Jews did, to hold on.

Court.—The Circuit for Hancock county, commenced on Monday at Carthage. As far as we have been informed, all was quiet, and with the exception of a few fellow beings, nothing more than is to be expected at courts is expected. The Carthage murder cases were to be called up on Wednesday, (to day.) We are glad that men of influence and standing set their faces against vaporing and bullying, at court, when the lives and property of the people, are put into the hands of the most worthy for safe-keeping. We have great confidence in the court and officers, no doubt they will, as heretofore, acquit themselves with honor, and increase the dignity and peace of the people, as well as soothe the angry passions of all such as have, through misguided impressions, thrown their patriotism into the wrong scale. As long as men will appeal to the majesty of the law for redress in all cases, so long, we are safe, and our republican institutions will flourish.

From the Pacific.—Elder Pratt, our Missionary at Toobou, one of the Society group, has forwarded several letters to this city, under date of Sept. 17, 1844. Although not the latest dates from that quarter, yet they contain much interesting matter, which will hereafter appear in its place. The Mission flourishes beyond our most sanguine expectations.

Pleasure.—There is certainly much pleasure in appearance if nothing more, to take a trip in fair weather upon the Mississippi, we frequently notice this recreation, and say: enjoy life, but be careful; don't let a squall capsize ye, like speculation.

The 'Time,' has come.—Last week when the steamer Time, arrived at our wharf, a wag sung out;—well, the Time has come!

The La Clede has made two or three trips over the Rapids recently. Capt. Cameron has assured us that he shall continue these trips; and so long as he favors us we shall favor him. He is an obliging Captain, with a swift boat, and good music.

The Water is nearly up to "high-water mark" and rising.

—The black tongue fever is raging in Raleigh, N. C.

—We expect the "hatless prophet" Geo. Mundy, soon.

Why ought a coquette to rank with the highest professor of a University? Because she is Mistress of Arts.

TAXES! TAXES!!

The following list of Lots sold for taxes, at Carthage in 1843, should be attended to, "off hand," as the hour of redemption ends the first of June, or before. Go and see to it.

	Lot.	Block.	Tax.
Kimball's Addition	14	2	$2 13
	30	6	2 13
	49	6	2 13
Second addition	1	4	1 41
	1	5	1 41
	1	12	1 51
	3	18	1 68
	4	21	1 41
	3	22	1 41
Heringshaw's addition	all		52 17
Hyram Smith's addition	4	2	1 41
	2	3	1 41
	2	4	1 41
	2	5	1 41
	1	6	1 41
	2	6	do
	4	6	do
	2	7	do
	4	10	do
	3	11	do
	1	12	do
	2	12	do
	1	1	do
	1	2	do
	2	2	do
	1	3	do
	2	3	do
	1	3	do
	4	3	do
	2	4	do
	3	4	do
	2	7	do
	2	8	do
	2	9	do
	4	12	do

Outragious!—Some discontented Journalists would feign make the world believe, on the old sing song, that the saints "tamper with the Indians." We throw this charge back upon those that made it, as false. We have not had the chance to preach to the Indians, but if we ever do find a door open whereby our elders can minister unto them, as unto the American, the European, the Asiatic, or the African, this will be the message: Good tidings of great joy which shall be to all men, on earth peace. If this is treason, like all the prophets and even Jesus, we preach righteousness, and pray God to bless us, and bless all that speak well of us.

Mob in New Orleans.—Capt. Craglie, vice of the Austrian brig Elisa wetta was recently murdered in New Orleans by a mob of hundreds, because he chose to employ his own sailors to load his vessel in preference to hiring such villains as took his life. Go it,—foreigners will find out the mobocracy of the United States, as well as the Mormons!

Baptist Church and Slavery.—The Baptist Board of Foreign Missions having declared that they can appoint no one as a missionary having slaves, and insisting upon holding them as his property, the Virginia board have appointed a convention, to be held in Augusta, (Ga.) in May next, to confer on the best means of promoting the foreign missionary cause and other interests of the Baptist denomination at the south. Other southern states are responding to the call.—Eastern paper.

If we mistake not, the balance of the sectarian churches in the United States, are agitating the subject of slavery; and from the spirit and division apparent, the harmony which has grown with the growth, and strengthened with the strength, of this boasted republic, has ceased to exist.

—Hush the tumult of war, and give peace to the world?

Why is there such an intense interest, waxing up to blood heat on the subject of slavery? Religion is the last virtue that ought to be brought into requisition, to bear upon a matter wholly national. It is not the sacerdotal robe, but the "ermine and lace," which controls the temporal doings and dealings of men. The whole nation only, through the people, by votes in ballot boxes, can put a quietus upon slavery. Why then, will not the clergy administer the oil of peace, rather than heat the oven of content on? One bucket of water is worth a load of straw, to put out fire with.

When God and Congress act in unity, upon slavery, the hands will be broken, or when the people, in righteousness, act by common consent, the captive will be free.

City Improvement.—In the days of the Nauvoo Legion, an arsenal was contemplated, but now, upon that spot, we behold the "Academy and Repository." Perfectly just, wisdom, skill and patience, have done much, and they may perform more. Public spirit, public patronage, with the right kind of art and science, if God and the people are willing, like a candle upon a bushel, may lighten many.

Discernment.—Great Britain has discerned that our greatest leading men, are opposed to the annexation of Texas. This means Van Buren and Clay, who both voted against annexation to be President. But Great Britain will find that Van Buren and Clay's popularity is like the Indian's two truths to one lie about the deer. You can find the United States and Texas, but not the popularity.

The Pope and Louis Philippe.—The following is from the Courier des Etais Unis:

A journal states that it has been asserted, in the diplomatic salons, that an order has been given to M. Rossi to negotiate at Rome for an interview between the Pope and Louis Philippe, to take place the ensuing summer at Neco. It added that the object of the conference would be to regulate, in a definitive manner, the great religious question, which has been agitated for a year past, and to introduce a new article into the Concordat, in order to regulate all the liberties of the Gallican church.

—Nolle! glorious, and even popular! let the world lack wisdom, let it inquire of the pope and the king; but if the saints lack wisdom let them inquire of God, said the bible.

Oregon One Hundred Years Ago.—A correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer states, that a gentleman of Philadelphia has in his possession a map of North America, published about 1739, in which the territory at present in dispute between this country and Great Britain, is laid down as part of a large island, extending from the tropic of Cancer to 46 degrees north latitude, under the general name of California, divided from the main land by the Gulf of California, or the Red Sea. Numerous rivers and mountains are noted on the map. Vancouver's Island is not shown, but all the country on the continent north of 46 degrees is designated "unknown parts." So slight was the knowledge of the geography of Western America possessed by the English Government, at the time the map was issued, that the Rocky Mountains are represented in detached groups, extending nearly due East and West.

This is all well enough; three hundred and fifty or sixty years ago, Great Britain laid down the continent of America as the Atlantic or Western Ocean. Don't worry about the matter; in one hundred years more the continent of America will become one "Union" by annexation, or common consent.

Great Fire at Portsmouth, N. H.—A destructive fire says an eastern paper, occurred in that town on the 3d inst., which destroyed property to the amount of one hundred and twenty thousand dollars. The west side of Market street is in ashes, and a great many other buildings in the business part of the town.

There were to be calamities in the last days, and so many fires and disasters have occurred within the last two months, are enough to awaken and alarm all men to prepare to meet them, and call on God to be merciful.

Fire.—A great fire occurred in Cleveland on the night of the 6th inst., consuming a large number of frame buildings of considerable value, the work of incendiaries.

Fire.—A rope walk belonging to Leander Wilson of Jacksonville was destroyed by fire on Sunday night. The loss is estimated at between $800 and $1000.

Fire.—We learn that the handsome residence of Col. M. J. Shelton of Georgetown, Ky., was burned on Saturday night, the 3d inst.

Fire in New York.—Miller & Co's steam saw mill was burned in New York, the third time, on the night of the 5th inst. Loss $30,000 to $40,000.

Fires in New York.—The New York Commercial, of the 3d inst., says: About half past 12 o'clock, a fire broke out in a carpenter's shop and piano-manufactory on the east side of Mulberry street, between Houston and Bleecker. The building was two stories, and was burned, we believe, entirely to the ground. The flames then communicated to the upper part of the residence of the Rev. Mr. D. M. Foster, pastor of the Mulberry street Methodist Episcopal Church, and was burning fiercely there when we went to press.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Editor:

I have enquired of the Temple Committee, and have also examined the records at the Temple, and learn that very few, if any of those persons who have apostatized from the church and gone after Rigdon, have ever paid any tithing for the purpose of erecting that edifice.

As they have withheld their substance from building this Temple at a time when they acknowledge God required it to be done, how came they to get a revelation from Heaven that the Temple was rejected of God because it was not sooner completed?—And how came they to find out that God has rejected those who have been faithful and done all in their power to complete the work? It must be that they have obtained this knowledge as a reward for their covetousness, or else they were drones in the hive and would not work, and the Mormons stung them and cast them out. Will you, Mr. Editor, give a few words of explanation upon these matters?

AMERICUS.

We would answer Americus by asking another question. A certain man had two sons, and he said to them both, "go and labor in the field, and if you complete your work at a certain time you shall receive a great reward." They both enter the field and one begins to labor and continues all the day long faithfully, but the other is idle and does nothing but tries to hinder the faithful one. The father knows precisely how both have conducted, and says to the idle one:—You shall be rewarded and continue to be my son, and even be exalted in my favor; but I will not speak to the faithful one at all; still I will tell you, that as he has not completed the work in the time specified, I will not accept it, neither shall he be any longer my son; but shall be disowned and sent away. Would Americus honor the justice of that father's decision? This is a true illustration of the character of Rigdon's God after whom his own character is, no doubt, formed. If any wish to know more of Rigdonism, let them read Elder Hyde's speech. It is a perfect saddlebag of medicine for that disorder. We do not wish to be troubled further upon this subject. If any will be Rigdonites after reading that pamphlet, they can never benefit themselves, neither the church of God; and we do not want them.

A FRAGMENT.

Mr. Editor:

The braying of a Jackass—what ludicrous sounds!—why did the Lord make such an ungainly animal? Perhaps he was made for sport, that the Gods might have something to laugh at. Methinks some one of the Gods, on some occasion when there was a gathering, produced the animal, as the most perfect specimen of awkwardness, and ugliness in respect to form, temper, disposition, color, voice &c., that had ever been created up to that time. How disproportioned is every part of his body to every other part, his ears are too large for his head, and his head too large for his body—his feet are ill shaped, and his tail seems to have been made in a time of doubt, uncertainty and hesitation as to the proper shape to give it, for it is like nothing else in the whole circle of creation. Then look! at his monstrous nose, and his ill shaped head, having only a very small part of it reserved for brains, and as to his voice, it is the most perfect specimen of the ludicrous that can be imagined.

On the whole I think the Lord never made the animal, but that one of the lesser Gods made him, either for sport, or else for want of skill. You cannot learn him anything. I know it is written in the good book, that "the ass knoweth his master's crib," but what does he know beyond that? Nothing more than to be stubborn on every occasion. But, his sublimely, ridiculous bray! When he begins, you think the end of all things is at hand!! and that heaven and earth are coming together!!! But, hark! after two or three trials at the tremendous, he seems to lose all confidence in himself, and gradually sinks the noise down into a hoarse whistle, at which the little pig, that pricked up his ears in the beginning of the wonderful oration, puts an extra quill into his little tail and scampers off to his playmates, highly pleased that the matter is no worse.

But there are resemblances all through the works of creation, and I have no doubt that a counterpart to the animal here contemplated might be formed without travelling far from Warsaw, Illinois.

From the Independence (Mo.) Express.

Important from Santa Fe.—We note the arrival on Tuesday last, at the Independence House, of Messrs. Eugene Leitensdorfer and P. Nolan from Santa Fe, and of Messrs. William Bent and M. St. Vrain, from Fort William.

The news from Santa Fe is interesting—for which the reader is referred to the letter of our Mexican correspondent.

It is said that Mr. N. Gentry had killed an American named Miller in Chihuahua, and that he is in confinement.

Col. Owens and a number of American and Mexican merchants may be expected here within the next two weeks.

The Plains.—Messrs. Bent & St. Vrain report the prairie region in the most attractive condition—the roads excellent—all the streams fordable—vegetation very forward and abundant, so much so, that parties bound for Oregon and California, may continue to depart until the 10th and 15th of June, without incurring any risk of obstruction or detention in the Mountains.

The Indian trade of the past winter has been an average one.

The Sioux Indians are reported to be near the Forks of the Platte, for the purpose of making war on the Pawnees and meeting the Delewarees, should they attempt to avenge the murder of a portion of their people upon the upper Kansas last summer.

Every appearance indicates that the streams will continue low, and the annual rise be very moderate.

They report but few Buffalo on the Arkansas. The great herd from Comanche country, not having yet commenced their migration north.

Taos, New Mexico, March 27, 1845.

To the Editor of the Expositor.

Dear Sir:—The glorious spirit of annexation is spreading like a prairie fire up the Rio del Norte, and rattling the dried bones in New Mexico. The news of Santa Anna's collapse into prison has just reached us. Governor Martinez is levying a forced loan of $14,000 for the soldiers. The population of Santa Fe, and all north of it, amounting to 35,000, refuse to pay. John Scully, an American merchant in Santa Fe, assessed at $600, has refused to pay, and has been thrust into prison by Martinez. Mariano Charvis, assessed at $1,000, refuses to pay until Martinez accounts for $150,000 which he has already sponged on the people of New Mexico.—The Governor refuses to account,—but demands more. Two-thirds of the people demand annexation, as the only means to escape from the avarice and tyranny of such a government.—Both Americans and Mexicans are making large purchases of land upon the streams running into the Rio del Norte and Arkansas, anticipating annexation. Ex-Governor Armijo is stirring up and concentrating around him the means of ejecting Mexican domination, and will shortly succeed in so doing. He rises in popular esteem; and his influence increases as Martinez becomes odious and hated.

Government, here, accomplishes nothing but the destruction of domestic tranquility, and indiscriminate misery wherever its force is felt. The Yuta Indians recently made an irruption into the neighboring settlements of Abijua; killed four and wounded seven Mexicans. The Governor and his fat soldiers, for whom we are taxed, never stirred from their barracks in the city. The Apaches, some time before, robbed Messrs. Speyers of 150 mules, on the lower del Norte.—The Governor smokes and sleeps, whilst the savages devastate the country.

The Gold Mountain has been more extensively worked this season than heretofore. The search for gold has been extended to the south side of the mountain, with great success.—The gentlemen with whom I send this take $13,000 in gold dust; some lumps valued at $370—found within thirty miles of Santa Fe. The gold region lies entirely on the eastern side of the Rio del Norte, and, if worked with any energy, would yield millions annually. This country is capable of being one of the most prosperous on the continent, but is every year sinking under the rapacity of its feeble tyrants. To improve the charity of the Americans, and seek to occupy a corner of the Union, is the only remedy for the unhappy people of New Mexico; and, to this consummation all their hopes and wishes are directed.

Yours, &c., CORTEZ.

A rare instance of filial affection occurred at a Newcastle (England) Regatta. A man and his two sons in a boat were run foul of, the boat being in danger of sinking, the boys threw their father overboard to lighten her, as they knew he was a good swimmer, and the father himself thought it a great act of piety of mind in his sons.

Joseph H. Reynolds Esq., formerly Sheriff of Jackson county, and recently a member of the Missouri Legislature, has been appointed Inspector of the Port of Independence Mo.

NOTICE TO THE LADIES.

There will be a meeting of the female association for the manufacturing of straw bonnets, hats, and straw trimmings at the Concert Hall on Saturday 31st inst. at 10 o'clock, A. M. The ladies in the branches abroad wishing to form a similar association are requested to be represented by their delegates.

NANCY H. ROCKWOOD, Pres.
Esther Huse, Secretary.

J. H. & W. RALSTON.

Attorneys & Counsellors at Law. WILL attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.

W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.

Warsaw, May 12th, 1845.—3—f

TRUTH.

WHEREAS John Gribble has taken of my bed and board, contrary to the decision of counsel, without any just cause, and having had to pay his debts up to this date;

Notice is hereby given, that I will pay no more debts of his contracting after this date: neither will I be responsible for his bad acts heretofore or hereafter, and solicit him to return what he has taken away, and save further trouble.

SABRA GRANGER.

May 19th, 1845.—3—3w

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.

The Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best of workmen, we hope to merit the respect and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyrum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets; who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West of the prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.

WM. EARL, President.
HENRY H. HUFFMAN, Counsellors
CYRUS WINGATE,
HUGH LYTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANGAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845.—3—3m

County Commissioners Court, Special April Term, A. D. 1845.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

It is hereby ordered by virtue of an act passed by the Legislature of this State at its session A. D. 1844-5, that a reward of Fifty Dollars be allowed to any person, who shall apprehend any thief within the limits of this county for having stolen any horse, mule or mare, without the limits of this county upon the conviction of the same pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided.

And it is further ordered, that the clerk furnish the Editors of each public Newspaper in this county with a true copy of the foregoing order, with a request that they publish the same for two weeks successively.

It is ordered by the court, that a reward of Fifty Dollars be allowed for the apprehension and delivery to the proper officer of any person who may steal any horse, mule or gelding from any citizen of this State, and bring the same into this county for concealment. The above reward to be paid upon conviction of the accused, and to be certified by the clerk of the Court of the proper county.

And it is further ordered, that the clerk be required to make a copy of this order for each public newspaper in this county, with a request to them to publish the same for two weeks successively.

The above are true copies from the Records of said court.

Attest. GEO. W. THATCHER, Clerk.

May 12, 1845.—2—2w

NOTICE is hereby given that Howard Egan, Conservator for Joel Bullard, an insane person, will present a petition at the next Term of the Hancock Circuit Court, praying for an order of said Court to sell so much of the real estate of the said Joel Bullard, as will satisfy the claims against said estate. All parties interested will appear at said Term of the court and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

HOWARD EGAN, Conservator of the estate of Joel Bullard Insane. Nauvoo, April 17, 1845.—51 f

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Sabra Gribble, has left my bed and board without any just cause or provocation, this is to caution all persons against trusting her on my account, as I will pay no debts of her contracting; neither will I be responsible for any of her acts, after this date.

JOHN GRIBBLE.

Nauvoo, May 12, 1845.—2—3w

TAILOR'S ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis's store, and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells.—This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.

N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be holden for the debts of said association.

JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
WM. P. MCINTIRE, Counsellors.
GEORGE WATT,
JOSEPH ARMSTRONG, Superintendents,
J. H. GLINES,
C. B. THOMPSON,
WM. K. PARKER,
JOSEPH ARMSTRONG,
WM. STRINGHAM,
JABEZ BOTSFORD,
B. CHAPMAN.
Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845.—47-3m

TO THE PUBLIC.

WE the Bricklayers, Stonelayers, and Plasterers of the city of Nauvoo, having formed ourselves into an Association for the purpose of our carrying on our business in all its branches, such as brick and stone laying, plastering, hard finish, cornice, together with all kinds of stucco work, cementing, rough casting, houses, cistern building, &c., &c., would say we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and having all the facilities for carrying on the business to any extent, either to furnish or not to furnish materials, and accomplish all jobs with despatch, which we will warrant to be done in the best manner. Would recommend to any individual wishing work done in our line of business to apply to the President of the Association, (two blocks south of the Hay scales), who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

JACOB FOUTZ, President.
C. R. DANA, Counsellor.
H. HOAGLAND, Counsellor.
ENOCH REESE, Secretary.
JAS. TOWNSEND, Treasurer.
April 2nd, 1845.—48f

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHIPPS.

April 7 1845.—20

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.

THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style.

Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN,
No. 52 Main street, St. Louis.
April 8th, 50-3m

LIME, LIME!—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate Lime, at their kilns near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Smith. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.

JOSIAH BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845.—No 1—6m

LIME, LIME!

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.

JOSEPH OWENS,
THOS. MENDENHALL.
April 13th, 50-3m

NOTICE.

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of LEVI STEWART. Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845.—52-f

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS.

ATTENTION! GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a promptly written description of them, post paid, with their real value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.

Also members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to change them for lands in this country, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact this business.

No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a moderate or reasonable compensation will be expected.

Nauvoo, May 6th, 1845.—1-3m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.

BRETHREN wishing to purchase Land, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's, or the Mansion.

WILLIAM SMITH.

ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this country, which I will sell or exchange for property in this City.

May 6th, 1845.—1f

LAND FOR SALE, CHEAP!

60 Acres a sq. sec 27, n 8 w the best qr of land in the Big Field, good title.

ALSO—160 Acres n w q. sec 36; 7 n 8 w on the La harp road.

ALSO—160 Acres s w 29; 7 n 6 w. Will take trade for this last qr.

ALSO—148 Acres of the s e q. of sec 14; 3 n 8 w, with a new log house not finished, some timber; price $1 50 per acre, part cash part trade.

Enquire of EDSON WHIPPLE.

May 6th, 1845.—1f

PHONOGRAPHY.

GEORGE D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in Thirteenth Lesson, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.

May 2d, 1845.—1f

LOOK HERE.

THE subscriber having been appointed agent for Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, to make sales, rent, and lease their real estate, as he may think proper and convenient, he therefore gives notice to all who wish to purchase or exchange property in any part of the state of Illinois, Ohio, Iowa territory, or the Eastern states; that he has for sale, 11 houses in the city, also the large house and soap manufactory near the river; and a number of lots unimproved, handsomely located in different parts of the city, and also that he has for collection, the accounts, notes, bonds, and mortgages of Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, and that all persons indebted will please call at the office of Esqr. Reynolds, or having local demands will please present them properly authenticated for settlement on the 17th instant, after which date they will be collected according to law.

May 13, 1845.—2 P JOHN A. FORGEUS,

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR

WARE HOUSE, general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo. The subscribers, having opened the above establishment and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try. See for you.

Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.

April 7-49f

NAUVOO TANNERY.

NOTICE—The Tanners and Skinners associated will pay in goods or money and shoes, from four to five cents for calf-skins, and from three to four cents for hides, delivered at their tannery, situated on Hibbard and Rich streets, near Colton's brick yard, or at the Queens city store; we will also tan on shares. We also want a large quantity of White and Black Oak bark and Sumach, for which we will pay the highest Nauvoo prices.

G. W. ROSECRANS,

April 1-48-3m Superintendent.

SEE HERE.

20 TON of hay, wanted immediately at the Nauvoo coach and carriage manufacturing association, for which good pay will be given.

Nauvoo, March 25-48-3m

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association, on Water street in the city of Nauvoo, opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's store, the following articles, to wit: Coaches, Omnibuses, Chaises, Cabs, Barouches, Buggies and Buggy Wagons, Hearse, Shortmen Trotting Wagons, two and four wheel Lumber Wagon, Old and Horse Carriage, Plough, Sleigh, Saddle, Pitch Fork, Rakes, Carding and Thrashing Machines, Horse Powers, Railroad Cars and many other articles too numerous to mention, as cheap as can be had, and purchased in any eastern market. All orders must be post paid, and addressed to GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq., Pres. of the Association.

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, BOOT, AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.

The Tanners, Shoemakers, and Harness makers of Nauvoo, the City of Joseph!

HAVING associated themselves together under the above name and title, are prepared to enter extensively into all the above branches, and as the Association is composed of some of the best practical workmen, from the Eastern Cities and from Europe, who have had long experience in large Establishments; they are prepared to do work in their line, as neat, permanent, and fashionable, and also as reasonable as it can be done in any of the Western cities.

POETRY.

For the Neighbor.

THE RAM'S HORN.

This now is the age when they boast of their light,
When wisdom and learning have rose to great height;
And orthodox Clergy have taken in hand,
To guide their flock safe unto Canaan's fair land.

No great is the knowledge that wise men have gained,
And so perfect the light that they have obtained
That creeds and commentaries now in their store,
Are almost enough to spread christendom o'er

But some of their freaks that have come in my range,
Though possibly true they are certainly strange;
But since they have sprung from their learning and light,
Though strange they appear they must surely be right.

The singular folio to which I allude,
Transpired not long since all in the back wood:
Where in camp meeting order with bedding and board,
Some hundreds assembled to worship their lord.

Dark midnight its mantle o'er nature had thrown,
All things hush'd to silence except a low moan.
Of the musical wind as it pass'd through the trees;
While the foliage danc'd to the whistling breeze.

A scene quite romantic was brought to my view,
Strange things were perform'd, but their priests call them true;
I sat there in wonder and view'd the odd scene;
And could but compare it unto a wild dream.

The first one in order that came to the stand,
Was a comic old fellow with ram's horn in hand,
With a blast quite horrible its notes sounding far,
As if Gabriel had summon'd all men to the bar.

A bustle ensu'd among women and men,
They rush'd to the altar or rather bull-pen;
With face and intention they all took their seat,
As if they expected their last doom to meet.

With an air of importance the preacher arose,
As if he intended all things to disclose—
He wamp'd and maneuver'd and made a great show;
Something like a baboon carried round as a show.

He spread himself out like a ship in full sail,
He puff'd and he blow'd until steam and lungs fail'd;
Like the mountain labor that fish's bath told,
He brought nothing forth but a mouse or a mole.

But to his assistance his fellows soon came,
Like their predecessor they play'd the same game;
Their labors united soon raised such a race,
That it caus'd at the altar some sinners to bow.

Like the prophets of Baal their voices rose higher,
But yet their good lord, did not answer by fire.
No accents of mercy, no voice, neither sound
From him could be heard throughout the camp ground.

Their cries were repeated again and again,
From night until morn, in y fomented their brains;
And yet from his throne gave relief,
He might be from home, or perhaps—

Such a farce was transient by people & priests,
As wild merriment 'mid Bacchus' dark fiends;
With actions as wild and eccentric as best,
As the dance of the natives, who live in the west.

Throughout the encampment confusion appear'd,
And groans more appalling but seldom are heard,
With yells quite terrific from greatest to least,
Some weeping—some wailing—some gnashing their teeth.

The scene I have labor'd so hard to unfold,
Quite begs description, it cannot be told;
If hell does not flourish where such works abound,
Then tell me kind reader, where hell can be found!

S. HULET.

KONAWHA SALT WORKS.

It has been known to the public for some two years, that several extensive salt furnaces in the salt region had been operated exclusively by gas. The gas forcing up the water from a depth of a thousand or fifteen hundred feet, and then being collected in a barrel, which serves as a gasometer, it is conveyed by a pipe to the furnace, furnishing all the heat necessary to carry on at the same time all the process of the manufacture of salt to its completion in an establishment capable of making a hundred barrels in a day, and at night brilliantly lighting up the whole works; thus saving the expense of a steam-engine to pump up the water, and all the fuel and lights. Last week, in deepening one of the wells of Messrs. Dickenson & Shrewsbury, the augur struck a stream of gas, at the depth of one thousand feet, that in quantity and force far surpassed anything of the kind heretofore discovered here, or perhaps in the world. The augur was pressed up with such force as almost to overcome the exertions of the workmen to hold it down while they could unscrew the detachments. The way being cleared, the gas having full play, sent up a column of water one hundred feet, (and, if tubed, would no doubt raise it to double that distance,) occasionally discharging stones from the size of a musket ball to that of a hen's egg almost with the force of a grape-shot from a piece of ordnance.

When we were there on Thursday last, all hands were engaged in active efforts to get down a plug to check the force of the gas, so as to enable them to insert the tube. They have, we learn, partially succeeded, and, in a few days, both the gas and water will be turned to good account. Serious apprehensions were very justly entertained of the destruction of the furnaces in the immediate neighborhood, as well as the residence of Mr. Wm. Tompkins, should this immense body of gas take fire, which it was thought might occur from a steamboat passing on the river, so extensively was it diffused in the atmosphere. A strong guard is kept up day and night to prevent such a catastrophe. On Saturday, the third well from the one we are speaking of, took fire, and, with the most active exertions, was not extinguished till considerable damage was done to the works.

That our readers may have some idea of the extent of nature's laboratory or gas manufactory on the Kanawha, we will say that gas enough issues from this single well to light all the cities of the United States, and we think we might safely throw in London, St. Petersburg, and a half dozen other big cities of Europe.

Some entertain fears that both the gas and the salt water will shortly fail; but we incline to the opinion that the upper stratum, the outskirts, the suburbs only of the treasures of salt and gas, as well as many subterranean wonders, are just now being reached. No matter whose dominions down there may be encroached upon, whether those of Pluto or Aëolus, our enterprising salt manufacturers are as determined to explore them, annex them, revel in their palaces, as the annexationists are by-and-by to revel in the halls of the Montezumas. [Charleston (Va.) Republican, April 9.]

Excavations at Pompeii.—The latest excavations made at Pompeii have been exceedingly interesting. A house was laid open in the quarter of the People. Twenty workmen were employed at the task, and the entrance room furnished about twenty-five articles, vases, cups, altars, and bronze paterae. In another room, from which a narrow passage led to the kitchen, the tinning of the saucepans was still bright. A large boiler two jars with handles, light and transparent, objects exceedingly rare in collections, were also found there. The next excavations were to be made in the workshops of sculptures of the town. [Reveille.]

The Ruins of Nineveh.—The discoveries in architecture and statuary made at Nineveh, by M. Botta, says the Moniteur Parisien, must be of considerable value, if we are to judge by the specimens which have arrived at Paris. The inscriptions are perfectly legible, but altogether beyond the art of deciphering. The King, after having examined these curiosities with great interest, has decided that a vessel belonging to the Government shall be sent to Bassora to transport the whole collection to Paris.

Discovery in Relation to Stone.—It is stated in the Sheffield (Eng.) Mercury, that a scientific gentleman residing at Ipswich, Mr. Frederick Ransome, engineer, has lately discovered a method whereby the hardest stone can be brought into a consistence resembling common putty, so that it can be cut and moulded into any shape for useful and ornamental purposes. Another peculiarity of the process is, that any color or variety of colors can be imparted to its solid substance.

The mails of the United States were carried over 14,355 miles of territory, in which space there were upwards of 480 post offices. The revenue of the post office, in a year, was upwards of $16,000.

EARTHENWARE EARTHENWARE.—J. GROCUTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing plates, dishes, bowls, pitchers, cups and saucers, milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844. no 41-1f.

IOWA TOWNS.—THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY. The subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS. May 23d. 1844.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 501f

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses;—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses; situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock; for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, of this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3 1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 30 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs, situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pond of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—491f

A FARM containing 160 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at flagston, and 10 miles from Muncietown, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way can call on Dr. Coulston of La Harpe, Lane Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15, 501f

LOOK HERE.

THE undersigned will exchange a few town lots, for Horses, Cattle, Wagons and Harnesses.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Jan. 27th, 1845—391f

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.

Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to give us a call.

Feb. 7, 491f

W. & S.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 24, 471f

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cap-wares, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch forks; finally, anything that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Fowls, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buck-wheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wood, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—431f

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845—441f

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—431f

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere. N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 10—421f

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18, 461f

HAT STORE.

THE subscriber has taken a store on Mulholland St., half a mile east of the Temple, where he now offers for sale Fur and Silk Hats of the latest fashions, and manufactured of the best of materials.

Country produce taken in exchange. Also a good assortment of Groceries and Provisions.

A. MERRILL.

Nov. 26, 1844—301f.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended; ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

KEYSTONE STORE.

A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearsley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints, his friends and the public, with DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES, as they may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.

Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle: our interest; our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.

One man is not every body, but he may do much good, by turning a penny when he sells Goods, Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c. CHEAP for cash, produce, and truck, or exchanges fairly.—Call and try.

March 17th, 46-3m

NOTICE.

PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

A. W. BABBITT.

Attorney at Law,

HAS removed his office to the city of Nauvoo and has taken the office occupied by the late General Joseph Smith, where he will be ready to attend to any, or all business committed to his trust.

Oct. 9, 1844—231f

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches, and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his

PRICES.

Quartos	half	bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	whole	bound	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	do	half	bound	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	do	half	bound	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Nauvoo, Jan 1, 1844.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH.

WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Rock Island, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. On her upward trip, she will leave Nauvoo for Rock Island every Wednesday at six P. M. Returning will leave Nauvoo for St. Louis every Saturday at 6 A. M. In point of accommodations the Amaranth is surpassed by no boat on the upper Mississippi; and her officers will spare no pains to render her worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to

A. MORRISON, Agent.

Nauvoo, April 30th, 521f

MERMAID:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET

FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings;—and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as "plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity." For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent.

for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-1f

OSPREY:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Annerson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.

Jan. 1, 1845-351f.

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 3.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, May 24, 1845.

Whole Number 149

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, 31

Every subsequent insertion, 12 1-2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to early advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

For the Neighbor.

VERSES.

By RICHARD McHARRIS.

The glorious day has been told,

By prophets long foretold;

The eternal truth of God revealed

As were in days of old.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

A veil of darkness has been spread,

From many a heart of sin;

But, lo! an angel has the veil

For us he has torn.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

Chorus—A prophet's voice is heard again,

What glorious news has come!

Come, all ye people, with the Lord,

Come, let us go to his home.

which the decision in the case of Bishop

Andrews created between the churches in the slaveholding and non-slaveholding

States—gave to that case and all future proceedings, a deep interest. To the church itself, it is a question of the most momentous importance, and the decision of this convention will be looked to with much interest by all. We presume the propriety of a total separation of the church, will be fully discussed in the convention, and in advance, we believe we hazard but little in expressing the belief that the majority will be in favor of a separation.

In fact, we do not see that any alternative is now left them.

But it is not our purpose to speak of the convention or its action in connection with the church, or its influence upon the religious efforts of that body. From the time the question was started in the case of Bishop Andrews, we have regarded it as one likely to have a most important bearing upon the political institutions of the country—as a question affecting the perpetuity of the Union itself. In fact, we have almost esteemed it a question of the dissolution of our political fabric.

Regarded in this aspect, it assumes a most important magnitude, and is attended with the most important consequences.

This church is spread over the whole southern and south-western States. Its members are numerous, and many of them influential men, and once the ties of social relations, growing out of the church connections, which heretofore have bound them to their brethren in the non-slave holding States, are severed, it is hardly to be expected, that they will not commence calculating the value of the Union. Certain it is, that the dissolution of this bond will contribute greatly to weaken that all cement which now binds them to the existing government. When the religious association between a people is broken up or destroyed by exceptions to the domestic institutions of a portion of them, the feeling will be very likely to extend to their political relations, at least; this is a consequence to be feared, and it is this that gives importance to the action of the convention, which we have alluded to. This consequence has been seen by the following extract:

From the Somerville (Tenn.) Rep'r.

Somerville, April, 1845.

Messrs. Editors: It is known to those acquainted with the part I have acted in the controversy now agitating the Methodist church, that the main ground of my opposition to its division was its tendency to produce a dissolution of the Union.

I have argued this point in an article devoted exclusively to its consideration.

I determined, however, previous to the publication of this article, to procure the opinions of the leaders of the two political parties. To this end I addressed Mr.

Polk and Mr. Clay the following queries:

'Will the division of the Methodist Episcopal church into two separate organizations, (slavery being the cause of division, and the dividing line,) be likely to effect the civil connection between the slave and the non-slave holding States?

'If so will it strengthen or weaken the bonds of their Union.'

Mr. Polk has not answered me, but it will be seen by the perusal of the following letter, that my views are endorsed by the great name Henry Clay. Will Methodist ministers, or southern Methodist editors, call the sage of Ashland 'too young?' Respectfully,

WM. A. BOOTH.

Remarks.—We omit Mr. Clay's

AWFUL CASE OF SOMNAMBULISM.

'In the Carthusian Convent, of which I was prior,' said Father A.—to me one evening, 'there lived a monk of a melancholy humor and gloomy disposition, who was known to be a somnambulist. Sometimes he would come out of his cell, when the fit was upon him, and go in again alone; and sometimes he would wander away and require to be conducted home.

Medical advice being obtained, some remedies were administered, and his relapses became of less frequent occurrence, people no longer thought of him. One evening that I sat up rather late than usual,

I was busy at my desk examining some papers when I heard the door of my chamber open, from which the key was usually withdrawn, and in a moment this monk entered in a state of somnambulism. His eyes were open, but fixed; he had nothing on but the tunic he slept in,

and in his hand a long-bladed knife.

Knowing where my bed stood, he went straight to it, and seemed to ascertain by feeling with his hand, whether I actually was there. Then three several times he struck with such force, that after piercing the blankets, the blade penetrated very deeply into the mattress, or rather mat which I used instead. When he passed before me his features were contracted and his brows knit; but when he turned on his heel I noticed that his features were relaxed, and had an air of satisfaction diffused over them. The light of the lamps which were standing on my desk, made no impression on his eyes, and he went back again as he came, opening carefully and shutting the door which led to my cell, and was long gone, I ascer-ained myself that he had gone directly and quietly to his apartment. The state into which this terrible apparition threw me,

continued Father A.—'may be conceived. I shuddered with horror at the idea of the danger that I had escaped, and offered up my thanks to heaven; but such was my state of excitement that I could not close an eye during the reminder of the night.

On the following morning, I sent for the somnambulist, and in a tone of seemingly calmness, I asked him the subject of his last night's dream. (This question rather disconcerted him.) 'Father,' said he, 'I dreamed so strange a dream that I feel some reluctance to tell it to you; it is, perhaps, the work of the devil, and—' 'I command you to tell it,'

said I. 'Dreams are always involuntary, and merely delusive. Speak out the truth.' 'Father,' then said he, 'scarcely had I laid myself down, when I dreamed that you had killed my mother, and that her bloody ghost appeared to me crying out for vengeance. This so transported me with fury, that I ran like a madman to you, and finding you in bed stabbed

you there. Shortly afterwards I awoke, perspiring at every pore, with a perfect horror of my wickedness, an awful God that so great a crime had not been committed.' 'More has been committed than you think,' said I in a quiet manner. I then related to him the scene I had witnessed, and showed him

the marks of the blows which he intended for me; at the sight of which he threw himself at my feet, suffused with tears, bitterly lamenting the involuntary misfortune which had so nearly taken place, and imploring me to inflict such a penance as I might think suitable for such an occasion. 'No,' I exclaimed, 'I will not voluntarily punish you for an involuntary deed; but hereafter your attention at the night service shall be dispensation, and I warn you that your cell shall be locked on the outside after the evening meal, and shall only be opened to let you out to the family mass at the dawn of day

Attempt to burn the Steamer St. Croix.—We take the following from the Era of this morning:—On last Tuesday morning, between 1 and 2 o'clock, as the boat was underway, just above the Upper Rapids, a fire was discovered in one of the state rooms on the larboard side, and before the flames could be arrested the interior of the room and the berths were destroyed; the flames spread across the cabin and against the ceiling, burning the panelling to a coal. By great exertions of the crew and passengers, the flames were checked and the boat saved. It is believed to have been the work of a person who started on the boat from this city, and registered his name as May, on taking passage, he deposited with the clerk a small trunk, which was labelled "Five hundred dollars" in specie; when the fire was put out, he was nowhere to be found, having fled, leaving his trunk and clothes behind. Suspicion being excited, the trunk he had deposited with the clerk was opened, and two large stones, weighing about 50 pounds, were found in it. There seems to be but little doubt but that he fired the boat with the intention of plundering some of the passengers, as there were several raftsmen on board who had considerable amount of money with them, and had the fire not been so promptly checked, the loss of life would have been terrible, as there were between forty and fifty passengers on board, many of whom were females and children and frightful to relate, two hundred and fifty kegs of powder in the hold!

for a breach of the navigation and revenue laws in shipping his crew and munitions of war. But not a word is said of the outrage perpetrated upon a friendly power by the British in countenancing the organization and equipment of these black forces for the capture of Hayti. The British Government withdraws its grant of $3000 per annum for the education of the laboring classes of Jamaica after 1st July, the sum of $500 to be allowed until 1847.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 28, 1843.

The Capstone of the Temple.—On the morning of the 24th, at a little past six, a goodly number of Saints had the honor and glory to witness the Capstone of the Temple laid in its place. The morning was cool, clear, and beautiful; the Saints felt glorious, the band upon the top of the walls, played charmingly, and when the stone was placed, there was a united Hosanna to God, the Lamb, amen and amen; shouted three times, which not only gave joy on earth, but filled the heavens with gladness! A new hymn, composed for the occasion, was then sung: The first verse of which is,

Have ye heard the revelation
Of this latter dispensation,
Which is unto every nation,
O prepare to meet thy God!

Chorus—We are a band of brethren,
And we've reared the Lord's temple,
And the cap stone now is laid,
And we'll sound the news abroad.

It was justly remarked that Saturday was the Jewish Sabbath, and that God finished his work on that day and rested, and so may the saints. Another great coincidence is, that this was the ascension week of Jesus—and (setting aside the narrow calculations of the world, concerning "Holy Thursday") this was actually the end of the week, and as the prophet said—the head stone was brought forward with shouting—"grace unto us,"—and peace to the saints.

Hark! Hark!—Some shrewd politicians have recently discovered, that the Mormons poll a good many more votes than Mr. Polk had majority. This touches the next President, as the Mormons are gaining converts daily all over the United States; and are ONE in religion, politics, virtue and humanity. But enough to merit those votes? The political destiny of millions hangs on that question. The hypocrisy of Van Buren, and the froth of some others, will fall as much short of the mark, as the candor of Mr. Harrison, or Mr. Polk has exalted him ahead. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

Carthage.—The Court was occupied last week, near three days in filling the pained of Jurors, for the reason that the right of challenge was carried almost to the extent. On Saturday Mr. Daniels was examined on the part of the State, in the Carthage murder case. The trial moves slow. Great credit is due to Gen. Lamborn, the counsel for the state. Thus far, in that awful trial, he has stood alone in defence of life, law, order, innocence, and virtue. His untiring vigilance, and indefatigable exertion to magnify the law of his country, and deal out even handed justice, has never been equalled in this country, if in the state. He seems to gain fresh strength from fresh opposition. May he receive the reward of the peace maker as promised by Jesus Christ. He is opposed by a host of lawyers, and the foes of law and liberty. The court and the balance of the people feel for the honor of their beloved country. As Christ once said, "Let the dead bury their dead," so say we, let those that break the law mend it. And may peace and union crown the efforts of all that seek it.

Spacious.—The Burlington Gazette mentions spacious "half Eagles," and intimates that they come from Nauvoo. That such coin might pass through or be paid out in Nauvoo, we have no doubt; for such tricks are as "plentiful as blackberries;" but they are made in other "digging," and vended by some of the birds of passage, that ease away time upon steamboats, &c. We have seen several Mexican Dollars recently that came from the Mobile Treasury. The "half Eagles" are unquestionably a second litter of the Mobile mint. Let every man beware, and keep such stuff from Nauvoo, for the veracity of a great portion of mankind has become so spacious or elastic that it stretches to Nauvoo for a foundation of almost all crimes, causes, effects or curiosities; as we all ways live, so let us keep ourselves clear and clean from such spots on the Ropes salt.

Reproof.—When men profess to be our friends, and are what may be called a worm in the heart of a tree, we should say like Dr. Dodsley, "O fool! fool! the pains which thou takest to hide what thou art, are more than what would make thee what thou appearest; the children of wisdom shall mock at thy cunning, when, in the midst of security, thy disguise shall be stripped off; and the finger of derision shall point thee to scorn, and the breath of judgment, cover thee with thine own shame."

The Great Gun.—The United States have hired a great gun made in Liverpool, to supply the place of the one that burst upon the Princeton last year. This gun is constructed out of wrought iron, and as finished, weighs 9 tons, 2 cwt, 2 qrs. 11 lbs; is 13 feet long, with a calibre 12 inches in diameter, requiring a ball of 235 lbs. It is truly a 235 pounder. Fifty pounds of powder will shoot after it soon, and there will be a glorious ex et praeterea nihil.

Lee County Iowa.—We learn that the Grand Jury of Lee County, Iowa, have been in session three weeks. The number of indictments is tremendous for such a young frontier settlement. It is said "West Point" boiled over, during the aforesaid three weeks, with informants, witnesses, and wayfaring men of grief, from murder down to stealing rails. "Tis all right; like the first "panic war" on the plains above Nimrod and Tuck, (or Kenkuck,) let justice have dominion, and the rights of the people will be respected.

We understand that Mr. Hopper of Henderson county, has reported, that he received $25 in counterfeit half Eagles, in payment for a lot of flour sold in this city a few weeks since. Yet that gentleman has never been here to get it exchanged. The money paid him for his flour was good money. He received his flour and was honorably paid. If Mr. Hopper has told such a tale, we are confident that he has lied wilfully and knowingly to injure us. He need not send us more flour here; we do not want it at any price, and would advise our citizens to purchase of men that will be satisfied with a liberal price and good flour.

Frost.—Our exchanges mention several frosts in some places. Near St. Louis, it is said corn has suffered materially. We have heard of some ravages in this section, but not very severe. The spots on the sun have a great effect on the weather in these last days.

Robbery.—Mr. Charles Allen of the Upper Stone house, had his Warehouse broken open on Sunday night last, and robbed of several hundred dollars worth of goods stored there. The thieves as yet have escaped detection.

Houses and Rent.—The continual emigration to this city, makes houses to let scarce. In the cities of the world, sharpers, by converting necessity into an opportunity, extort heavy rent from the poor. Let not such a sin spot Nauvoo. The man that grinds the poor saint, grinds a weapon to prick his conscience where the worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

The London Times of April 18, embracing 12 pages or three Mammoth sheets, contains forty columns of reading matter, more than nine hundred advertisements, besides births, marriages, and deaths, mostly in nonpareil. A little world of news.

Terrible Hailstorm.—On the 20th April, a severe hail storm passed through the State of Michigan. It did much damage, killing sheep, cattle and hogs, bruising trees and doing other damage. The hail stones are said to have been larger than hen's eggs.

Speculation.—Prentice, of Louisville, thinks off the Mormons stay in peace in Nauvoo, they will have to wall the city in.

If the citizens of Louisville keep Prentice there solter, they will have to lay an embargo on liquor that's all.

Another note.—It is said that President Polk, has concluded to send a minister to Great Britain to adjust the Oregon difficulty. Mr. Pickens of South Carolina, has had that office tendered him.

Dutch Democracy.—About 30,000 Germans, emigrate to the United States annually, and bring with them, probably $3,000,000 of the precious metals. They make good democrats with the proper currency.

Fires in Maine.—In one week in Maine, at Damariscotta some 25 buildings dropped down by fire.

At Wiscasset 3 or 4, the same.
At Gosham 1 do. do.
At Saccarappa 1 factory do.

Verily fire is a hot master.
There was also a fire at Perryville, Ala. about the same time, which consumed every house in it save one.

Fires.—There was a great fire at Newbern, N. C. week before last. Loss more than $50,000. There was also, about the same time a fire in Norwich, Ct. which destroyed several buildings. There was also about the same time, a great fire in Toronto, Canada. The loss is said to be very great.

Snow.—Some snow fell in Boston on the 8th instant, and enough in Maine to make several inches of sleighing. Cold drops.

Locusts.—There is quite a swarm of locusts in Clinton, La. The papers say millions are singing for something.

Riot.—Mr. Finnegan was mobbed near Chambersburg, Pa., by one or two hundred of negroes and abolitionists, because he had helped catch runaway slaves.

Death.—New Bedford has been scourged with the scarlet fever. Twenty-five bodies were waiting for burial at once.

A Spot among the Missionaries.—The Presbyterian printing establishment in North India, was consumed by fire last January, loss $10,000. Every thing has to be purified by fire.

Rom.—Not long since, some students kicked up a row in one of the Boston theatres.

Old Satan in May.—A few days ago a villain by the name of May, insured and shipped upon the steamer St. Croix, a trunk marked "5000 specie," which however was nothing but stone. Before the boat got to Quincy, he set fire to her to burn her and passengers, and claim the $5000 of the insurance office. It might be well for him to ensure his life.

The new Postmaster General has abolished the offices of ten traveling agents, thereby saving $25,000, this year.

Speculation.—As will be seen below, the British are speculating upon the future prospect of a war for Oregon. The Irish must win Oregon, to pay for the Maynooth bill. Hear!

Later.—The N. Y. Sun had the luck to obtain a London paper of the 19th, containing the decision of the house on that day, in favor of the Maynooth grant. Ministers became alarmed for the fate of the bill, when the premier summoning all his energies, commenced a powerful appeal to the house, the mere abstract of which occupies three columns and a half of the Morning Chronicle. He defended the policy of ministers, showed the necessity of conciliating Ireland, and alluded to a probable war with the United States, as one of the reasons why Great Britain should concentrate all her energies to maintain unimpaired the power and dignity of the United Kingdom.

If war should come he desired that Ireland should stand ranked with England, and the energies of a united people would insure a glorious triumph in a just cause.

[The premier resumed his seat about three o'clock in the morning, amid thousands of applause which lasted several minutes.]

After this exciting speech, the house divided, and there appeared for the Maynooth grant bill, 323, against it 170—majority for it 147. The ministers, were, of course, overjoyed at the result. It is probably the first time on record, that a religious grant has been carried by a popular vote to the legislature. The premier has evidently accepted O'Connell's offer of Ireland's services to fight America for Oregon and Texas. It remains to be seen how the bargain will be carried out.

O'Connell, at a repeal meeting on the 7th, applauded in the highest terms the Maynooth bill, and predicted not only the success of repeal, but that Mr. Peel himself would bring forward the bill to repeal the union. He said: "Sir Robert Peel was well aware of the favorable impression which the Maynooth bill would produce on the minds of the people of this country; and, accordingly, the evening of the bringing it in he set the Americans at defiance. If he preserved in his present line of conduct towards this country, Ireland would set them at defiance too. To America I say, don't dare attack England; they are conciliating Ireland; and you have three millions two hundred thousand slaves among your inhabitants."

Whilst Ireland is thus conciliated, England, Scotland—the Church of England and the Presbyterians, the Methodists, nearly all the dissenting sects are in flames at the measure, and such numbers of petitions as will crowd upon the lords to negative the bill, were never before piled upon their table. The Tory papers, even the Times denounce this movement of the ministry.

Mr. Peel is a bold statesman. As leader of the Tory party, to impose an income tax, and take control of the Bank of England, at one session, and to fly in the face of the Protestant church in favor of grants to Catholics at the next session, are exhibitions of daring intrepidity.

For the Neighbor.
Mr. Editor,

What means of protection shall we adopt since our city charter is repealed?

This question, Mr. Editor, is very frequently asked me, and it is one also that has engaged my serious attention for some time. The result of my deliberations, with your permission I will lay before your readers for their consideration.

Our charter has been taken from us for an alleged abuse of the powers contained in it, and we are thrown upon our own resources, and the common statute of the State to preserve order and regularity among nearly twenty thousand inhabitants.

There are many transient persons visiting our town from up and down the river, some of whom follow a business that is neither lawful or honorable. These latter well know that we have little or no existing city laws or regulations, that we cannot legally enforce a very right police upon them, and that our relations with other citizens at this time will not allow us to do it. Some of these abandoned characters consequently linger here to commit theft and robbery, which, when detected, they slip away under cover of the night, and leave us to suffer their crimes.

Now, in the outset, every honest man and worthy citizen has some visible means of support. This class is not idle; they do not prowl about the streets day after day without business. I would therefore suggest the propriety of "devoting a place in the 'Neighbor' for publishing the name of every person that is loitering about our streets, or lying around our public houses for any length of time without business; and if they refuse to give a reasonable account of themselves, let that be published also, and let such be regarded as rogues."

Let this be a warning to our citizens to avoid any dealing or connection with men whose names are thus published, and let them not be countenanced in any way, shape or manner. I believe there is no law against letting men alone, and none can take offence at it except Tom Sharp and some of his confidants, but this we cannot help.

After these persons are thus published as no friends of good order or good society harbor them an hour, and if any public or private house will do it let that house be published under the same head, as a den of the just contempt and indignation which their suspicious conduct merits. And "as the north wind driveth away rain," so will an angry countenance these black-legged renegades.

Some may say that their business is to enquire into our doctrine, and the principles of our faith. This may be true, but persons of this description will not be found drinking strong drink, or hanging around a grogery, neither will they associate with low profane persons. But honest enquirers will find some way to get into the society of those who are capable and worthy to instruct them. Let every man go to with his might to push from our shores every suspicious black-legged character that may be inclined to stop here. Then we shall prosper like the rose of Sharon, and flourish like a tree planted by a river of water.

ORSON HYDE.

For the Neighbor.
FIRE!

The ploughman factory of Doct. Coulson & Gates of La Harpe was consumed by fire on the night of the 20th inst. It was no doubt the work of an incendiarist, and lost about $800. We have no suspicion of the anti-Mormons, but there is a set of Rigidists lurking about that place, and we believe for no good. We have for some time suspected their design in coming here from P.sburgh, and have warned our brethren from the public stand to watch their property, lest the "Keys of Conquest" in the form of a Lucifer match be applied to their buildings. Men that will lie as they have done in charging us with the intention of instigating the Indians to deeds of blood and murder, are bad enough to burn buildings, steal horses, and to cut our throats. They tell these tales because they begin to despair of the fulfillment of their wicked prophecies unless they can raise an excitement against us by these wicked lies. But the capstone is laid! Rigidist's prophecy to the contrary notwithstanding.

We are satisfied that these miserable creatures have no respect for Rigdon or his pretensions; but they use him as a cover to fight against the people of God, a being led on by malice, revenge, and a spirit of apostasy. But their works will recoil upon their own heads, and spend their violence upon their own pates. For when the present excitement is over, the curse of God will begin to settle into their very bones like oil, and they will quake with fear, and will feel themselves accursed of God and despised of men. When they find their lies have failed to produce their intended effect; they will then see that the Saints despise them—that the world despise them; that God despises them; that the anti-Mormon despise them; that the Devil is ashamed of them; and that even old Tom Sharp despises them.

TELEMACHUS.

Permit me to address a few lines to you through the columns of the Neighbor. In looking over several of the journals of the day, I notice some of the most base and villainous remarks made upon the Mormons—regardless of all right or justice—a perfect sacrifice of truth and true republicanism. Among these is the Register of Springfield, a paper, as I had supposed, which was connected with some degree of propriety—and its editor a gentleman. But to my great surprise and astonishment, I must confess, that in this I am mistaken. The public can do something to shelter rogues as well as honest men; the former we can find as thick as hogs after a shower, and the latter as scarce as angels visits, few, and far between.

Had Mr. Walters been dependent just at this time on Mormon votes, for a little more of the public printing to replenish his dimes, he would not have been quite as willing to sacrifice his Democratic friends in Hancock (which, by the by, are not many,) as he has done in this time of trouble—and, no doubt, the members from Hancock will recollect the act, when I have seen a grosser insult practiced upon any community of people, a bill of sale, a transfer of the whole Mormon vote to the whig ranks. And what are the Mormons? Why folks, or brags sold at auction, struck off to the highest bidder; and this by a professed Democrat. O shame! A disgrace to the name! These statements are not endorsed by the Editor, but inserted for their merit—great merit, it must be, to insult and trample upon a whole community of people without impunity—a paper, that should be an organ of peace, and not this assassin's organ for death, tempered with the vilest sting and the warlike's steel. (Inserted for its writ?) if a man works for his neighbor truly and faithfully, and his professed friend cheats him out of his just wages or demands, for which he has labored hard, he is justified in doing so, because of the not he displays in doing it. Here is a fair specimen of Mr. Walters' Republicanism—Thank God it is not Mormon Democracy.

The subject of "whistling" and "whistling" is brought up, "such acts," he says, are adverse to republican freedom and deserve the stern condemnation of every American freeman. Why all this, Mr. Walters? Is it because there is so much whist in the traffic of human flesh, and the sacrifice of a large body of people, who are true Democrats and Republicans, by the wholesale? Is there no wit in whistling and whistling, sir? I will venture to say that there is not so much real dishonesty in whistling and whistling as there is in defalcation or approving of anti-Republican society, or a mob, or a forsaking of a free, or a cowardly, or a lawless mob, because it is a little whist. We have yet to learn that whistling and whistling is any thing to do with law or gospel. I may be, however, that the editor has discovered an additional bump of Democracy; the well known whistling bump being found on the man, while the power of the whistling subject is lost, for the want of wit, as the gentleman proposes to pack. And I will venture to say that the Master can find Democrats in Nauvoo when white and whistling to a mark, and prepare to pucker, without costing the treasury a single cent, or transgressing any law, or endorsing a libel as the Master has done, in the charge that a society of this kind has been set up in Nauvoo by Brigham Young. And if half as much had been said by the Register in condemnation of the cowardly and dastardly murder of Hyrum and Joseph Smith, as has been said on this new species of anti-Republicanism, whistling and whistling, it might have some claim to Republicanism. But, it not being so witty, it is the height of folly to bring them in to justice, to speak of the wrongs and exonerations of the murdered, defended, prisoners of the outraged rights of peace-born American citizens, of the broken laws of our country, the sad lamentation of a large body of people for the loss of their fellow citizens, the bereavement of the widows and orphan children, and to call on the government, or the people, or the laws, that you do might be a more innocent and oppressed people; this would be the height of folly and ignorance. Deeds of this kind cannot be done, because of its and ills, when Mormon goes before it. It is true, this is the land of the free and the home of the brave; yet the foils of the American banner are not sufficiently broad to shield a few lies and as upon equal terms—a liberal criticism, and ought to find place in the columns of Popularium. It is so republican with and popular to prescribe men to opinions sake, and murder, rob, and exterminate the Mormons. What a pity is that the crime of murder has not a criminality, and that whistling and whistling must make the president, and demand our foremost attention. The lies of Illinois, will, no doubt, spare the editor a petition, for his valor and praiseworthy conduct in calling on the honest citizens of the State, freeman, brave, and strong to put down the little boys of Nauvoo and stop their whistling and whistling sticks. Jack-knives will soon be plenty, but to run the flame of public excitement and urge on a lawless mob, to butcher and drive the Mormons because it is a whist, and the Democratic Republicanism of Illinois (if the Register is a specimen) do not shield or protect lies and lies. I must say, Mr. Editor, that this tale rather stings of partiality, and I shall to the tinner that gives me equal rights to Federalism, if you please to call it, for is more Republican, than the intolerant democracy of Illinois—possessed Republicanism, but black hearted Federalism at heart. "We yet hope for a better state of things at Nauvoo, when the Mormons are made justly responsible for their acts." I presume, before "God and man" for the new species of crime. But Warsaw and Carthage, where murders are committed and murderers are protected, will have nothing to answer for, or at least, this would not be a witty subject, and therefore could find no place in the columns of the Register. Such sentiments, Mr. Editor, I disavow, and every honest "freeman" will do the same. I am happy to learn that the Register is not the organ of the Democratic party throughout the state. There are Democrats in Nauvoo and elsewhere, who despise its treachery and the intolerance of the Register as they would a viper, and Mormons too, that do not change at every wind that blows; if they did we should find them traitors to a good cause. And, when we leave Mr. Walters climbing the tree, and forsaking his friends in the hour of trouble, the fable of the bear and the two friends, who properly explain the character of the Democratic Democrat. Those things remain at Nauvoo; this is the saying: "the sun is in the sky, the moon is in the sea, and the wicked devils find shelter in the signal and Register, without any action, whistling, or grumbling either, because they are witty subjects. Now to close, self praise, they say, as a great way. The bill and transfer of the Mormons, with the addition of the letter "T" would scarcely spell Walters. But as I am told that these men all through one quilt, it makes no difference, and we believe the — and Walters both military and witty men, we leave them to stand or fall to their own merits, and to jog on with their backs-eggs, and the advocacy of Tom Sharpism and the blackest kind of Federalism.

Mr. Register, a little soft soap will wash off blood soon; times, but the wounds made in Carthage are not so easily, or soon forgotten as the whining of one or two sticks cannot heal a wound that is made deep, and the sword is a good plaster to plaster a wound. What to kill peaceful citizens, to spill the blood, to oppress the weak and innocent, and still turn round on you as good men; vote for us; if you have been abused, you are Democrats. With new or party, expect my suffrage, when I hold a dagger and threaten my life, spits in my face one or twice and this is not enough, backs me to the wall and threatens me with extermination, and then says, oh, no doubt you will vote for us; still perhaps, Mr. Walters will find such Democrats at "heart" and silly Mormons; but not in this community, or I am much mistaken in the people called Mormons, not while the blood of innocent men is on the ground. At Carthage the broken pledge of a Governor, his cowardly widow and the fatherless, the ends of justice, upon me murderers, have made happy women husbands and fond children fatherless, and repudiated the charter of Nauvoo, when it is known that numerous are the town and city charters in Illinois—arms taken; the threatened and onerous of powder, and to gentry a mob. It is well known that the Nauvoo charter could not have been repealed without a majority of Democratic votes; and this they had; here further remarks on this subject are unnecessary.

The Mormons are not to be bought or sold to Whig or Democrats, murdered, plundered or trampled under foot, because it is a pughable witness for law from tippler's sport. It is a witty subject indeed, for such men to sit and laugh over Mormon beef and blood and the cold butchery of fathers, brothers, mothers, wives and children; for such appear to be the manifest spirit of the Register and its correspondents—impositions of former times will suffice for Mormon Democrats. But it is too late in the day to expect that the soft soap application will prove any longer effectual, our past experience and broken pledges prove the utter want of honesty and the treachery of aspiring demagogues.

A DEMOCRAT.
Our readers may perhaps be surprised that we have paid no attention to many such articles as the one referred to in the above article. We have for some time declined doing so for the simple reason, that men that will condescend to solemnity we consider unworthy of attention and shall let them alone in the glory, for this time being and mind in our own business, but we have a good memory, and would just say this day of judgment will come; perhaps it may be found out the Mormons have quite as much influence in the United States as Mr. Walters or Webster.—Editor.

A DREAM.
A few days since Mr. — framed that he was wondering why he, like the ancients, could not dream of something to represent the true state of parties, and what might be expected in Illinois. The prophets of old dreamed of beasts, birds, &c. and why not he? At this instant he thought he, with a number of respectable men were standing in a newly settling country; where there were some trees, some houses, and some prairies, looking earnestly for a sign,—when, all of a sudden, at a little distance at the south-east of them, among some hazel brush, he heard a hog grunt, and turning round, saw the head face and shoulders of a large hog, coming out of the bushes.

When he got out he observed the hog's hind parts, as far as the hams, had been cut off, and on the right side about three inches of the broadside.
Amazed at this singular appearance of the hog, he says, why that hog is mortifying, he must die—what means all this?
To which a voice from the bushes, replied: This hog is the State of Illinois. Jake Davis' taking his seat in the senate last winter, was the cause of the hog's losing his hind parts, and the right side represents the Democrat party which has gone three inches further in corruption, and towards destruction than the Whigs on the left side. And he awoke up, saying like Esdras, this is a token in a dream.

NOTICE.
To the Eastern Churches; we would inform them, in the case of Elder Brannan's being cut off from the church, it was by the testimony that was laid before us. When Br. Wm. Smith returned from the east, he laid the case of Br. Brannan before us, and upon his testimony we restored Br. Brannan to fellowship. About ten days after this, Br. Brannan came to us, and we had a council with Br. Wm. Smith, Geo. B. and Samuel Brannan. Br. Wallace being the person who was on hearing the testimony on both sides, we felt it our duty to restore Br. Brannan to full fellowship in the church, praying for his success in his official capacity. And inasmuch as Br. Pratt has suggested in the Prophet of May 10th, that some one had counselled Br. Brannan wrong, that we have reason to suppose that Br. Wm. Smith has not counselled him wrong in the case.

We give this notice to the churches for the satisfaction of Br. Pratt, Smith, Brannan, Wallace, and all concerned.
BRIHAM YOUNG, Pres.
WILLARD RICHARDS, Clerk.
Montrose, I. T. May 26, 1845.
Mr. Editor:
That little screech-owl, Pargous, held forth on the "Bluff" last Sunday; and the Hawkeyes, after hushing the first panic war, and Grand Jury, in vain, for about three weeks, to rid the country of murderers, pickpockets, and scoundrels, felt sore of queer, when he held his text in the forenoon:—"Being made free from sin, ye become the servants of righteousness." We took and happy, to get religion so soon; but the afternoon brought a cloud over the eye of the owl, and we lost all of our grace when he read these words and applied them to the Hawkeyes: "As for my people, children are their oppressors, and women rule over them. O my people, they which lead these cause thee to err, and destroy the way of thy paths."

A pretty heavy wallow at the governor and authorities of the land. No Mormonism in that.
At 5 P. M. upon the command, "come and hear," he continued the insult, thus: "For the leaders of this people cause them to err; and they that are led of them are destroyed."
How far all his insinuations relate to the late murder, I know not, but it smells rather too strong for half breeds and I will venture to predict, by the aid of aunt Jemima, the prophetess, that before the Hawkeyes will swallow his treacherous suffrage themselves to be bored by him, as Sidney's pod nager, some body will be mighty sick with.

THE LEAVINGS.
N. B. Dock says "he is a fool."
Alteration in the Senate Chamber.—A Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce writes: "Mr. Dallas, it is now said, was lately called here to decide the improvement necessary to be made in the Senate chamber for the accommodation of the growing family of states. The limits of the chamber are narrow enough to suit the views even of those who would make the Mississippi our Western boundary. It was not an easy matter to make room for Florida, Iowa and Texas. Mr. Dallas decided to another row of seats to the inner circle, in front of the chair. Texas, Iowa, and Florida are there to be accommodated. The sofas outside of the hall will afford room, hereafter, for Wisconsin, Nebraska, and the states hereafter to be carved out of Texas and Oregon."

Governor of Oregon.—The Halifax Herald says: "We have it upon good authority that Sir George Simpson, a passenger in the Columbia for Boston, goes out as Governor of the Oregon Territory—if so, the question of right and possession will be brought to a speedy issue."

OBITUARY.
Died on Thursday, May 22d, Mrs. Caroline, wife of Mr. William Smith, aged 30y, 4m.
There seems to be a strange fatality following this devoted family. Hardly four years have passed since one of the brothers departed this life; and not a year has gone by, since three of them have gone to that bourne, where no traveller returns; two of them were inhumanly murdered by a cowardly mob, while under the protection of the laws, and the solemn pledge of the Governor; and the death of the other two, doubtless, greatly accelerated the consequence of his mourning and grief, for the loss of his beloved brethren. And now, there is but one left. All of them were in the prime of their manhood, in the vigor of their intellect and in the midst of a most useful and glorious career. But they are gone—for what purpose, He only knows, "who giveth and who taketh away"—"blessed be his holy name."

The last of the Smiths, by another afflictive dispensation of Providence, is now called to add his tears, for the loss of a beloved companion, to those of the widows and children of the deceased brothers, for their husbands and fathers.

Truly, "in the midst of life we are in death." But, God "who tempereth the wind to the shorn lamb," will doubtless order every thing for the benefit of his children, and the accomplishment of his great designs. Our beloved sister has only passed behind the veil, and is now enjoying the full fruition of all her troubles, trials, and tribulations in this cold unfriendly world, where her sweetness of character and disposition, and her virtues rightly appreciated by all who knew her. She was indeed one of whom the world was not worthy, and she died in the firm belief that her "redemptive" life, and shall stand in the latter day upon the earth. For three successive years, she suffered the most exquisite pain, with the patience of a sincere and devoted christian, and a resignation to the will of God well worthy of imitation. After enduring so much in this life, and dying in the triumphs of the Gospel, and in the faith of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, who can doubt, but that she is now enjoying a glorious reward for all her sufferings, at the right hand of God, in the mansions of eternal bliss. Through the long period of her sickness, every thing that the most consummate skill could devise, and the most unequalled love invent, was done for the relief of the sweet sufferer. But all was of no avail. Human skill could not restore her to her health and happiness among her friends—she has gone to enjoy a far greater happiness in the regions of the blest. The friends and relatives of the deceased can have no painful reminiscences of neglect to call up, for every thing was done to make her comfortable, and smooth her journey through "this vale of tears." It is natural to mourn the loss of our friends, for, to be deprived of their company, conversation, and example, is, indeed, a great loss; but, let us remember, "that our loss is their infinite gain." Let not the relatives of the deceased "mourn as those who have no hope," for the time is not far distant, when you will meet again, to part no more forever; where you can enjoy her sweet company through unnumbered ages, in the celestial kingdom of our God, where there is no more death, sorrow, sickness, or pain, but ecstatic joy and everlasting bliss, in the company of the redeemed for evermore. Remember that "our light afflictions are but for a moment and will work for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." The connections and friends of the deceased were, no doubt, somewhat prepared for her departure, as it was evident for some time before her final end, that she was not long for this world, however resigned and prepared we may be, when death comes, it comes suddenly, as was the case in this instance. But, as saints, who live in hope of a glorious resurrection, they should not murmur at the dispensations of Providence, which are all suited to the accomplishment of his great purposes. She has left two orphan children to mourn the loss of their beloved mother, and they most bitterly weep over her departed remains; a father's care will but inadequately supply the loss of a mother's tenderness, and they will, doubtless, see many times, when they will most keenly feel their loss; but, time, the grand panacea for all earthly wounds, will, gradually, heal their grief, and they will live in hopes of again meeting her in heaven, and there with renewed pleasure receive her parental care. The departed was a faithful companion, a devoted wife, a fond mother, and a true friend, as such, her loss must be greatly felt by the whole circle of her numerous acquaintances and friends. And the entire community will sympathize in the grief of her afflicted partner, the only surviving brother of our lamented Prophet and Patriarch, whose murder, yet unwinged, calls loudly from the blood-stained walls of Carthage jail, for justice on their murderers. For, although offences must come, yet we be to them by whom they come, and notwithstanding God suffered the murder of these noble men, to answer his own purposes; yet, great and tremendous will be the punishment of those by whom the deed was committed. "Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord; and I will repay"; in his hands we leave it. When the trump of God shall sound, and the sleeping dead rise from their graves, then can we strike hands with our departed friends and relatives, enjoy their society, and in their company, tune our voices in praise to Israel's God; while those wicked men who had power over us here, will be weeping, wailing, and gnashing their teeth in the regions of the damned.

Then will they most bitterly repent their unhalloved persecution of God's people, and the stings of their guilty consciences will add fresh fuel to the flame already gnawing their vitals.

This doctrine of the resurrection, is a most glorious one. It is the source of the miserable, the comfort of the mourner, the hope of the righteous, and the curse of the wicked; it is to this joy-inspiring principle, that we refer the relations and friends of the deceased for consolation. But a few years will pass, during which she will be in a society where her virtues will be rightly estimated, before you will be called to travel the same road, and enter upon an untrod sphere of existence.

May you be as well prepared and as resigned to the will of God as she was. May her glorious example and righteous precepts be long imprinted upon your memory, and when you meet her above, may she welcome you to her embrace, and continue her kind offices to you in another world, as she has done in this.

Prospect.—The prospect of an abundant crop of wheat, was never more promising. The weather is cool, and rain falls in time to keep all things in order.

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.
D. and J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened in the house formerly known as the NAUVOO SEED STORE now JOSEPH CITY STORE, situated on Mulholland Street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles so essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Crochery. In short all things that are daily wanted in our line of business. And having been engaged in the business, for years, we flatter ourselves competent to give a satisfactory quality, and also in price, as we would invite the inhabitants of the city of Joseph and its vicinity to call and see.
Country produce will be received for goods.
May 27th 1845.—3m

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.
HARNDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGEMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1st, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans.
Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from our pound sterling warrants, all the particulars of which can be ascertained by enquiring of JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent, Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office.
Nauvoo, May 1845.—4m

NAUVOO TANNERY.
NOTICE.—The Tanners and Shoemakers association, will pay in goods or Boots and Shoes, from four to five cents for calf-skins, and from three to four cents for hides, delivered at their tannery, situated on Hubbard and Rich streets, near Colton's brick yard, or at the Queens city store; we will also tan on shares. We also want a large quantity of White and Black Oak bark and Sumach, for which we will pay the highest Nauvoo prices.
G. W. ROSECRANS, Superintendent.
April 1-48-3m

NOTICE TO THE LADIES.
There will be a meeting of the female association for the manufacturing of straw bonnets, hats, and straw trimmings at 10 o'clock, A. M. The ladies in the branches abroad wishing to form a similar association are requested to be represented by their delegates.
NANCY H. ROCKWOOD, Pres.
Esther House, Secretary.

J. H. & W. RALSTON.
Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.
We attend to all business in their professional character, and to their clients. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.
W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.
Warsaw, May 12th, 1845.—2-4m

TRUTH.
WHEREAS John Gribble has taken off my bed and board, contrary to the duty of a husband, without any just cause, and has refused to pay his debts, up to this date.
Notice is hereby given, that I will pay no more debts of his contracting after this date, as he will be responsible for his past debts, or hereafter, and so let him take care what he has taken away, and save further trouble.
SABRA GRANGER.
May 19th, 1845.—3-3w

C. O'BRIEN'S ASSOCIATION.
The Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best workmen, we hope to give the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.
Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyrum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.
We would also inform the public that we have immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest Western prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.
Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.
WM. EARL, President.
HENRY H. HUFFMAN, Counselors.
CYRUS WINGATE, HUGHS LITTLE, Superintendents.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845.—3-3m

NOTICE is hereby given that Howard Egan, Conservator for Joel Bullard, an insane person, will present a petition at the next Term of the Hancock Circuit Court, praying for an order of said Court to sell so much of the real estate of the said Joel Bullard, as will satisfy the claims against said estate. All parties interested will appear at said Term of the court and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.
HOWARD EGAN, Conservator of the estate of Joel Bullard Insane.
Nauvoo, April 17, 1845.—51m

NOTICE.
WHEREAS my wife Sabra Gribble, has left my bed and board without any just cause or provocation, this is to caution all persons against trusting her do my account, as I will pay no debts of her contracting; neither will I be responsible for any of her acts, after this date.
JOHN GRIBBLE.
Nauvoo, May 12, 1845.—2-3w

TAILORS ASSOCIATION.
WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis' store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells. This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.
N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be holden for the debts of said association.
JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
C. B. THOMPSON, Counselors.
WM. F. MCINTIRE, Counselors.
ROBT. RUSSELL, Superintendents.
J. H. GLINES, Superintendents.
WM. K. PARKER, Superintendents.
ALEXANDER MULLINER, Superintendents.
C. BEULARBY, Superintendents.
WM. STRINGHAM, Superintendents.
JABEZ BOTSFORD, Superintendents.
B. CHAPMAN, Superintendents.
Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845.—47-3m

TO THE PUBLIC.
WE the Bricklayers, Stonelayers, and Plasterers of the city of Nauvoo, having formed ourselves into an Association for the purpose of our carrying on our business in all its branches, such as brick and stone laying, plastering, hard finish, cornice, together with all kinds of stucco work, cementing, rough casting houses, cistern building, &c., &c., would say we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and having all the facilities for carrying on the business to any extent, either to furnish or not to furnish materials, and accomplish all jobs with despatch, which we will warrant to be done in the best manner. Would recommend to any individual wishing work done in our line of business to apply to the President of the Association, (two blocks south of the Hay scales,) who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.
JACOB FOUTZ, President.
C. R. DANAL, Councilor.
H. HOAGLAND, Councilor.
ENOCH REESE, Secretary.
JAS. FOWNSEND, Treasurer.
April 2nd, 1845.—48m

NOTARY PUBLIC.
THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.
W. W. PHELPS.
April 7 1845.—49.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.
THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style.
Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.
M. BROWN,
No 52 Main street, St. Louis.
April 8th, 50-3m

LIME! LIME!—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate Lime, at their kiln near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Pe or Shirs. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c. received in payment, cash not refused.
JOSIAH BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845.—No 1-6m

NOTICE.
FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo, A Farm of 200 acres, 1845 approved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated 4 miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of
LEVI STEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845.—52-4m

LIME, LIME!
THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.
JOSEPH OWENS,
THOS. MENDENHALL.
April 13th, 50-3m

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS.
ATTENTION!
GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, for lands or farms in other parts of this State, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a mutually written description of them, post paid, with their real estate value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG, of the City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.
Also members of our church, owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this county, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact this business.
No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a moderate or reasonable compensation will be expected.
Nauvoo, May 5th, 1845.—1-3m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.
BROTHERS wishing to purchase Lands, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's, or the Mansion.
WILLIAM SMITH.
ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this county, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.
May 6th, 1845.—1m

LAND FOR SALE, CHEAP!
1st) Acres a sq. sec 27: 6 n 8 w the best qt of land in the Big Field, good title.
ALSO—160 Acres n w q sec 36: 7 n 8 w on the La Harp road.
ALSO—160 Acres s w 20: 7 n 6 w. Will take trade for this last qt.
ALSO—140 Acres of the s w q of sec 14: 3 north 1 w w, with a new log house not finished, some timber; price $1 50 per acre, part cash part trade.
Enquire of
EDSON WHIPPLE.
May 5th 1845.—1m

PHONOGRAPHY.
GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in Thierston's school, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.
May 2d, 1845.—1m

LOOK HERE.
THE subscriber having been appointed agent for Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, to make sales, rent, and lease their real estate, as he may think proper and convenient, he therefore gives notice to all who wish to purchase or exchange property in any part of the state of Illinois, Ohio, Iowa territory, or the Eastern States; that he has for sale, 11 houses in the city, also the large house and soap manufactory near the river, and a number of lots situated in the city, and also that he has for a location, the accounts, notes, bonds, and mortgages of Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, and that all persons indebted to him, please call at the office of E. Reynolds, or all having legal demands will please present them properly authenticated for settlement on the 17th instant, after which date they will be collected according to law.
JOHN A. FORGEUS,
May 13, 1845.—2 f

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WARE HOUSE, general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo.
The subscribers, having opened the above establishment and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.
Call and try.
Are you here?
Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.
STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7-49m

SEE HERE.
20 TON of hay, wanted immediately at the Nauvoo coach and carriage manufacturing association, for which good pay will be given.
Nauvoo, March 25-48-3m.

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.
Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association, on Water street, in the city of Nauvoo, opposite Geo. Joseph Smith's store, the following articles, to wit—Coaches, Omnibuses, Chaises, Cabs, Barouche, Buggies and Bugys, Wagoes, Horse, and Carriages, Trotting Wagoes, Two and four Horse Lumber Wagoes, Stage and Horse Carriages, Horse and Cattle Sleds, Hides, Garding and Threshing Machines, Horse Powers, Railroad Cars and many other articles too numerous to mention, which they can be purchased in any quantity, and at low prices. All orders must be post paid, and addressed to GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq. Pres. of the Association.

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, BOOT, AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.
The Tanners, Shoemakers, and Harness-makers of Nauvoo, the City of Joseph.
HAVING associated themselves together under the above name and title, are prepared to enter extensively into all the above branches, and as the Association is composed of some of the best practical workmen, from the Eastern Cities and from Europe, who have had long experience in large establishments; they are prepared to do work in their line, in a neat, prompt, and fashionable, and also as reasonable as it can be done in any of the Western cities.
Having purchased an extensive Tannery, they are prepared to tan any amount of hides and skins, and to suit the convenience of farmers they will tan on shares.
We are also prepared to make saddles, harness, boots and shoes, of every description, and on the shortest notice. We hope to merit the support and confidence of the Merchants and dealers in hides and leather, and wish to purchase all the hides &c., as we believe in home manufacture and also all the leather, so that our Mechanics may be employed in preference to those who have no interest in the prosperity of our city.

Boots, Shoe Saddles and Harness Shop, on Mulholland Street, in a building formerly occupied by Brm, as a building and shoe shop, three blocks east of the Temple. Samuel Mullins, Superintendent.
The Tannery on Hubbard and Rich Street, near Colton's Brick Yard. George W. Rosecrans, Superintendent.
April 23, 1845.—51-3m

The following short sketch of the life and character of Gen Washington, from the London Chronicle of July 22, 1780, 65 years ago, will be read with interest at the present day.

As this gentleman always refused to accept of any pecuniary appointment for his public services, no salary has been annexed by Congress to his important command, and he only draws weekly for the expenses of his public table and other demands. Gen. Washington, having never been in Europe, could not possibly have seen much military service when the armies of Britain were sent to subdue the Americans, yet still, for a variety of reasons, was much the most proper man on the continent, and probably any where else, to be placed at the head of the American army. The very high estimation he stood in for integrity, and honor, his engaging in the cause of his country from sentiment and conviction, his hereditary property and his approved abilities as a commander, were motives which necessarily obliged the choice of America to fall upon him.

That nature has given Gen Washington extraordinary military talents, will hardly be controverted by his most bitter enemies. Having been early actuated with a warm passion to serve his country in the military line, he has greatly improved his talents by unremitting industry, a close application to the best writers on tactics, and by a more than common method and exactness. In reality, when it comes to be considered, that at first he only held a body of men entirely unacquainted with military discipline, and operations, somewhat ungovernable in temper, and who at best could only be styled an awkward militia, and under very short enlistments, untried, and at all times very ill supplied with ammunition and artillery; and that with such an army, he withstood the ravages and progress of near 40,000 veteran troops, plentifully provided with every necessary article, commanded by the bravest officers in Europe; and supported by a very powerful navy, which effectually prevented all movements by water; when all this comes to be impartially considered, we may venture to pronounce that Gen Washington may be regarded as one of the greatest military commanders of the present age.

Gen Washington is now in the forty seventh year of his age; he is a tall well made man, rather large boned, and has a tolerable genteel address; his features are manly and bold, his eyes of a bluish cast and very lively; his hair a deep brown, his face rather long, and marked with the small pox; his complexion sunburnt and without much color, and countenance sensible, composed and thoughtful. There is a remarkable air of dignity about him, with a striking degree of gracefulness; he has an excellent understanding, without much quickness; is strictly just, vigilant and generous; an affectionate husband, a faithful friend, a father to the deserving soldier; gentle in his manners, a temper rather reserved; a total stranger to religious prejudices, which have so excited Christians of one denomination to cut the throats of those of another; in his morals he is irreproachable, and was never known to exceed the bounds of the most rigid temperance; in a word, all his friends and acquaintances universally allow, that no man ever united in his own person more perfect alliance of the virtues of a philosopher, with the talents of a general, candor, sincerity, affability and simplicity, seem to be the striking features of his character, till an occasional display of the most determined bravery and independence of spirit.

A gentleman in the country who had just buried a rich relation, who was an attorney, was complaining to Foote, who happened to be on a visit with him, of the very great expenses of a country funeral, in respect to carriages, hatbands, seals, &c. Why do you bury your attorney here? asked Foote, gravely. Yes, to be sure we do how else? Oh! we never do that in London. No! said the other, much surprised. How do you manage? Why, when the patient happens to die, we lay him out in a room over night by himself, lock the door, throw open the sash, and in the morning he is entirely off! Indeed! said the other in amazement; what becomes of him? Why, that we cannot exactly tell, not being acquainted with supernatural causes. A! that you know of the matter is, that there's a strong smell of brimstone in the room the next morning!

Mysterious. A young lady arrived at the Virginia Hotel on the 9th inst., from Cincinnati, in a state of great debility, accompanied by another lady who left her there. She was treated with every attention but died on the following Saturday. She refused to give her name, in answer any interrogations respecting herself. Mary Early is marked upon one of her handkerchiefs, and the corresponding initials upon her trunk.

Thirty buildings burnt.—The village of Damariscotta Bridge, near New Castle, Maine, was the scene of a disastrous conflagration on the night of the 4th inst. Thirty buildings were destroyed, consisting of stores, dwelling houses, sail lofts, &c. Ten stores destroyed, and loss estimated at seventy five thousand dollars.

An Earthquake.—On Tuesday morning last, says the Montreal Courier, about half past four o'clock, a slight shock of an earthquake was felt. It did not make much rumble, but was sufficiently strong to make a slight clatter among the crockery ware.

A WESTERN PLACE HUNTER.
A friend writing from Washington early in March, says the Knickerbocker gives us this pleasant sketch of a "sucker" fish seeker: "Dickens might draw some laughable caricature from the live specimens of office hunters now on hand here. The new president has just advised them all to go home, and leave their papers behind, and such a scattering you never saw! One fellow came here from Illinois, and was introduced to a wag who, he was told had great influence at court, and who, although destitute of any such pretensions, kept up the delusion for the sake of the joke. The sucker addressed the man of influence something in this wise: 'Now stranger look at them papers. There are names in the list in our town. There's Deacon Stiles, there aint a prouder man in all the county; and there's John Rogers, our shoemaker, he made them boots, and a better pair never trod over these diggs. You wouldn't think them soles had walked three hundred miles over hoosier mud, but they have though, and are sound yet. Everybody in our town knows John Rogers; just go out to Illinois and ask him about me; you'll find out how I stand. Then you ask Jim Turner, our constable, what I did for the party; he'll tell you I was a screamer at the polls. Now I've come all the way from Illinois, and on foot too, most of the way to see if I can have justice. They wanted me to take a town office home, but I must have something that pays before hand; such as the charges as they call 'em. I ain't got but seven dollars left, and I can't wait; just give me one of them change es, will ye? Tell the old man how 'tis—he'll do it. Fact is, he must; I've airt the office, blowed it I ain't!'

From California.—It is stated in a letter under date of the 13th March from Mazatlan, (by a vessel which arrived from Upper California,) that General Micholich with 200 troops was on his way to that port, having been compelled to leave by the terms of the capitulation. From this we infer that persons from Oregon, aided by the Mexicans in California had surrounded the general in the fort and compelled him to capitulate, and among the conditions was his abandoning possession with his troops and filling back on Mazatlan. This must have been in January, and if this news be true, the Americans without any authority from our government and on their own responsibility, have been taking possession of Upper California.

The Yundilla and the Yellow Fever.—A correspondent of the New York Commercial states that in conversation with some of the crew of the Yundilla, they attribute the sickness altogether to the bad condition of the provisions which were shipped at Pensacola. The beef, it is asserted, had been a long time in the store house, and when the head of a barrel was knocked out, the stench pervaded every part of the vessel. The bread too was worm eaten and fell to pieces in the hand.—The men do not hesitate to lay the entire blame upon Commander Chancery, in the first instance for not causing a proper inspection of the provisions, and secondly for remaining in port, and on the coast, when the fever was making ravages among the officers and crew.

Army worms have made their appearance in vast numbers near Plattsville, Wisconsin. There has as yet been no effectual means discovered, by which a stop can be put to their ravages. The subject is worthy of the close attention of the farmers.—Organ

Look out for Pirates.—The New York Evening Post is of opinion that Mexico has already issued letters of marque, and that if she has not already done so, the encouragement she will receive from her own understanding of the position of the British Government towards this country, will lead her to lose no time in so doing. We hope not.—Baltimore Sun

A St. Petersburg paper, under date of March 11th, mentions the arrival of a train of 15 waggons from the mines at Kolyvan, in West Siberia, laden with 300 pieces of gold, which was immediately conveyed to the mint. A pool is about 30 English lbs.

EARTHENWARE EARTHENWARE!
GROGOTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthenware Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

IOWA TWINS.
THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE RAILROAD Subscribers having crossed the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosie or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.
May 23d. 1844.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.
THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.
April 14th, 50th

ONE farm containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 155 acres; 60 acres improved with a good dwelling house and out houses; situated south west of Pinkneyville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO:
ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneyville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3 1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Wilkenson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Galatin, and 10 miles from Jackson, containing 1084 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, with a dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs.—Situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:
A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

ALSO:
Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.
April 1845—49th

ALSO:
A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerslow, and 10 miles from Muncietown, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or a reduced price, for cash or other property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulton of La Harpe, La Harpe Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE.
April 15th 50th

LOOK HERE.
THE undersigned will exchange a few town lots, for Horses, Cattle, Wagons and Harnesses.

HIRAM KIMBALL.
Jan. 27th, 1845—29th

NOTICE.
A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at his office.

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.
Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
Feb. 7th 49th W. & S.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 qt. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.
Reference.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.
March 24—47th

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.
THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Combs, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinetware, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch forks; finally, anything that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Poultry, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buckwheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.
Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43th

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.
A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvement, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.
March 1st, 1845—19th

SOAP MANUFACTORY.
THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.
Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43th

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk-lines, &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere. N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.
Feb. 19—42th

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.
N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.
A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 80 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.
March 18—46th

HAT STORE.
THE subscriber has taken a store, on Mulholland St., half a mile east of the Temple, where he now offers for sale Fur and Silk Hats of the latest fashions, and manufactured of the best of materials.

Country produce taken in exchange. Also a good assortment of Groceries and Provisions.
A. MERRILL.
Nov. 26, 1844—30th.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended; ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of—

COUGH LOZENGES.
Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.
The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Insomnia and nervous affections generally; Persons suffering or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dinner, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

POWER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.
SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLEAST.
This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body; ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

KEYSTONE STORE.

A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints, his friends and the public, with DRUGS AND GROCERIES, as the may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.

Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle; our interest; our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.

One man is not every body, but he may do much good by turning a penny when he sells Goods, Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c., CHEAP for cash, produce, and truck, or exchanges fairly. Call and try.

NOTICE.
PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books, books can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office the first, second, third and fourth volume of the Times and Seasons; also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

A. W. BABBITT,
Attorney at Law.

HAS removed his office to the city of Nauvoo, and has taken the office occupied by the late General Joseph Smith, where he will be ready to attend to any, or all business committed to his trust.

Cet. 9, 1844—23th

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his prices.

JOHN TAYLOR.
Nauvoo, Jan 1, 1844.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, A MARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH, AT N. A. MARANTH, will run a regular packet between St. Louis and Nauvoo, during the season, touching at the intermediate ports. On her upward trip she will leave Nauvoo for Rock Island every Wednesday at six P. M. Returning will leave Nauvoo for St. Louis every Saturday at 6 A. M. In point of accommodations the Amaranth is surpassed by no boat on the upper Mississippi; and her officers will spare no pains to render her worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight and passage apply to A. MERRISON, Agent.

Nauvoo, Aug 30th 52th

MERMAID:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Glen, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Nauvoo in town. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesday at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings, and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several ports. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as plain as the finest gold, than tricks and flattery. For further particulars enquire.

C. ALLEN, Agent, for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845—19th

OSPREY.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steam passenger ship, OSPREY, Anderson, Master, has commenced running between St. Louis and Bloomington, carrying St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Tipton, Burlington, and Port Madison, Monday; Tuesday, will leave Nauvoo at 1-2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and arrangements are unsurpassed in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her flag of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. Attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evans' Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully requested to shippers and passengers at in no case the Osprey, can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo

Jan. 1, 1845—35th

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and willing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different parts of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the tastes or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles of our line of business, which will cost us in part Carriages, Omnibuses, Cabs, Harnasses, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Wagons, Heafses, Spotons, Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Carriages, Waggons, ox and horse Carts, Hays, Habi Carts, Wheel Barrows, &c., &c., Boughs, Saddle stents, Bikes, &c., &c., which we shall sell at wholesale or retail prices as low as all other establishments.

Our factory on Water street opposite Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store, is now occupied by David Yearley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to have no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices, for we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Times and Seasons of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line and deliver at our factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Pres.
ELIJAH FORDHAM, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
BURR FROST.
DAVID DE VOL.
JOSHUA SMITH.
DAVID W. FOX.
SHADRACH DRIGGS.
DWIGHT WEBSTER.
JESSE H. ATHERTON.
WM. LISK.

Jan. 15th, 1845—37th

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY, IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 5.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois Wednesday, June 4, 1845.

Whole Number 161

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Street,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 annually in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor.) POST PAID, to receive attention.

From the New York Tribune.

THE MORMON TROUBLES.

Nauvoo, April 16, 1845.

The difficulties between the Mormons and anti-Mormons, which have been so long a year past, still continue. Mormonism, instead of exploding here, as it was supposed it would, upon the death of the Prophet Joe Smith, has continued a-flourishing as ever. Joe's place has been filled by "The Twelve Apostles," who now rule the destinies of this band of ignorant, lawless, and unprincipled fanatics with the sway of despotism. The Temple is still progressing, and the outside will probably be completed this season.

When completed it will be a beautiful edifice, far surpassing anything in the State. It is one hundred and twenty-eight feet long, and eighty-eight feet wide, and is sixty feet from the basement to the roofs.

They are now building a wall, eight feet high, and fifteen feet high all around it, enclosing six acres. What the object of this wall is, I am not aware, but the anti-Mormons see in it a great Monor fortification. One thing is certain:

the Mormons are fast increasing in power and strength, and they talk openly of defending themselves against every thing that does not suit their notions. Every house has arms in it, and there is scarcely a man in the city who does not carry arms on his person. They permit no process of law to be executed upon the inhabitants of the Holy city, unless it suits

the sovereign majesty of the saints. No man is permitted to express any opinion less derogatory to the character of the people. If he does so, he is immediately driven out of the city by a Mormon mob. There have been several instances of this kind lately.

The trial of the persons indicted for the murder of the Smiths last summer, comes on at Carthage, in this county, in four weeks from Monday next. It will be a time of tremendous excitement.

Some 6 or 7 of the most respectable inhabitants of the county are indicted for the murder of the Smiths, and among the number are the Hon Jacob C. Davis,

State Senator; Thomas C. Sharp, Esq.,

editor of the Warsaw Signal; W. N.

Grover, Esq., Counselor at law, and Col.

Williams. All these gentlemen have strong friends, who are determined they shall have fair play. Several military companies from the anti-Mormon portions will reconnoitre the city on Saturday week. The "Nauvoo Legion" will probably be on hand also. If the appearance of the Mormon Legion would not put old Jack Falstaff's ragged regiment to the blush, I am mistaken.

One of Mr. Polk's nominees, a Jack Mormon, by the name of Backenstos, who resides at Carthage, is in trouble.

The Mormons sent him to the Legislature last winter where he made himself busy in abusing the old citizens of the county, and when he returned from Springfield a week or two ago, the citizens of Carthage went on a mass to his house and gave him notice to leave the town in a certain time. Before the time expired he received notice of his appointment by the President, to some lucrative office in the Lead Mines, and, by going to lead, the citizens, on account of his family, concluded to let him stay a week or two longer, to settle up his business. They did not extend this act of grace to him, however, without pelting his house with stones.

What will be the end of all these troubles no man can foretell, but I am apprehensive there will be a terrible collision one of these days. The Mormons and Anti-Mormons can never live in peace any more;

the hatred existing between them is deep, deadly, and inveterate. One party must leave, and if the old citizens of the county are driven from their homes and their friend, by Mormon persecution, a feeling of indignation will be aroused among the people of Illinois, that will not be quelled until the last vestige of Mormonism is driven from Illinois, as it was from Missouri.

Yours, &c.

From the New York Tribune.

THE SCIENCE OF ANTI-MORMON

SUCKEROLOGY—ITS

LEARNED TERMS, AND

THEIR SIGNIFICATIONS.

PREFACE.

The foregoing article, which appeared in the New York Tribune

last week, as well as other articles which are some times seen in the Warsaw Signal, Quincy Whig, and Alton Telegraph, and some other papers contain terms peculiar to anti-

Mormon SuckeroLOGY.

Or rather, some of the terms in use in these articles have a meaning peculiar to those singular people, and therefore not rightly understood abroad without an Anti-Mormon Sucker Dictionary.

The following list of terms and their signification, will aid the general reader in some measure and give him

the key to the better understanding to the Anti-Mormon communications which have, or may hereafter appear in the Tribune and other like papers.

The significations here given, however, may not be perfect, as we only form our judgment of their meaning from our knowledge of the circumstances to which they refer, or from a careful examination of the sense of the sentences, with which they stand connected.

Mormon. A believer in revealed religion; a patriot, who stands firmly for the laws of his country, and for equal rights and protection.

Jack-Mormon. One who may not be a member of a church, but makes common cause with the Mormons and all other good citizens, for the maintenance of right, and a just and equitable administration of the laws.

Anti-Mormon. A man opposed to the laws of his country; an instigator and justifier of murder, and of driving men, women, and children from their homes and plundering them of their property.

The Whites. Artificial black men.

Murderers who paint themselves in order that they may not be known when they commit a crime.—This term is also sometimes applied to men who neither paint nor murder in person, but who justify and approve of those who do.

Old Citizens. Early settlers of the county of Hancock, who disapprove of law and order, and who have combined in a mob to murder, drive, and plunder the Mormons, or to justify and defend those who do murder.

The term old citizens also applies to all of the mob party, no matter whether they are citizens at all or whether they have been in the country three days or one.

New Comers, (or Intruders.) The oldest citizens of the county, who first settled in, and who were the farmers and office holders before the Mormons settled there, but who have since either joined them in religious fellowship, or united with them in endeavoring to preserve the peace, and put down mobs. To such characters, even if they were the pioneers of the country, the Anti-Mormon

SuckeroLOGY never allows the term old citizens to be applied.

Gentlemen of High Respectability.

Those who have been indicted by an impartial grand jury of their country, for the most cruel, cold blooded and cowardly murder known upon the annals of history, and those who justify and defend them.

Mormon Fortifications. A garden fence, a common city enclosure of public grounds.

Mormon Fanatics. Those who believe the Scriptures, and endeavour to practice the worship of God according to the rules therein contained.

Mormon Despotism. Church government after the Scriptural pattern, as exemplified in the fourth chapter of Epistles, and throughout the New Testament.

Mormon Tyrant. A civil magistrate, or other officer, elected by the people, but who happens to belong to the church.

Mormon Tyranny. Any attempt on the part of civil officers to bring mobbers to justice, according to law and their oath of office.

Mormon Treason. To emigrate to the West; to settle in one place or neighborhood; to build a city or temple; to fence a field; to buy a powder horn; to possess, purchase or make arms; to do military duty according to law, or even to refuse to do it; to defend one's house, property, wife, children, or even his own life, when attacked by mobs! or even to be united in politics.

Mormon Notions. Of these there seems in the science of Anti-Mormon

SuckeroLOGY, to be a great variety, too numerous to mention in a dictionary. We will only give a few of the most queer and singular ones.

First. This singular people seem to have a notion to purchase land and settle in the west, and many of them have actually done so.

Second. They have a notion to build houses, to cultivate their land and get a living.

Third. They have a notion to build cities, public halls and houses of worship, and to organize schools and meetings, for the edification of themselves and children.

Fourth. They have a notion that they are American citizens and have a right to vote, and share in public offices.

Fifth. They have some how or other, got it into their heads lately—

according to a correspondent of the Tribune, that lands once purchased, and houses, cities and temples built by them, rightly belong to them, and that themselves, their wives and children have a right to occupy them.

Sixth. They have a notion not to

FIFTEEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The Britannia arrived at Boston on the 19th May, brings its usual cargo of London Liverpool and Edinburgh passengers.

The Britannia left Liverpool on the 4th inst., with eighty-three passengers. Among the number, it is said, is the Hon. Edward Everett. This we learn from passengers by the Long Island Railroad, arrived on Monday evening.

The intelligence is not of much importance.

The London Times and other English papers are still harping upon Oregon and Texas.

The Maynooth question had not yet reached the House of Commons; it only went through a committee, and that on the evening of the 2d inst.

There has been a slight improvement in cotton.

Connell was making the most of concessions of Peel to Ireland.

Affairs in Switzerland were without change.

The monster steamship Great Britain is coming over in July.

Parliament was engaged in railway investigations.

The Repeal Association met again on the 28th ult., and O'Connell again praised Peel's concessions—he looked upon the measure of the Premier in regard to Banking in Ireland, as excellent. The rent for the week was 417.

It is rumored that the Government has given orders for the purchase of 2000 tons of coal for Bermuda, and 2000 for Halifax, and that probably these purchases will be extended to 20,000 tons.

The arrival of the Great Western was looked for with some anxiety. She left New York on the 24th after the receipt of Sir Robert Peel's Oregon speech.

[From the London Times of May 2.]

OREGON, TEXAS AND ENGLAND.

The discussion now going on in the Republic of Texas between the American party which seeks to be absorbed in the Federal union of the American States, and the national Texan party, which upholds the independent interests of the new state, are matters of the deepest interest, not only to the annexation question of the present day, but to the future destinies of the continent of North America.

If Texas at once flings away her national existence, and makes herself subservient to the policy of the United States, it is highly improbable that any other new State will attain to independence in the southern regions of North America, and the progress of the dominions of the Cabinet of Washington will be as rapid as the decay of its defenceless and ungoverned southern neighbors. More than twenty years have elapsed since Mexico threw off her allegiance to Spain, and during the whole of that period the decline of the nation has been inconceivably great and rapid.

The result is now pitiable. The country is stated, by a recent observer, to be as defenceless as it was in the days of Montezuma. Another Cortez might march with a few hundred men upon the capital and as for the northern and western provinces, more especially the magnificent territory of California, since the sequestration of the missions and presidios, they are without even the semblance of a government. The whole white population of California is hardly more than 5000, scattered over 2000 square leagues of territory; the Mexican administration does not even communicate with the province, and to conquer the whole of it would not be more difficult than to take possession of a desert island.

The eager, gain-seeking, and roving population of the western States of the Union are fitted beyond all the rest of mankind to carry on this kind of surreptitious warfare. They conquer provinces as the cuckoo steals a nest; and if their irregular enterprises be allowed to carry with them all the political consequences of lawful war, it is evident that at no very distant period they will have made themselves masters of all such parts of the North American continent as are not defended by the forces and the resolution of Great Britain.

But the conduct of Texas in the present emergency will determine whether these political consequences are to be realized. It depends on the acceptance or rejection of the proposed measure of annexation by the people and Government of Texas, whether every fresh step of Anglo-American race is to add citizens and lands to the Union; or whether the new States which may be formed in the course of time on either shore of that vast continent may not uphold an independent flag, independent interests, and an independent policy.

The time is now rapidly approaching when the western coast of North America—hitherto the least peopled, the least productive, and the least frequented portion of the globe—will become the scene of great commercial interests, and will gradually be animated with the stir of nations and the activity of social life. The United States are seeking to subject these future races and States to their dominion, and, without an army, or any of the ordinary instruments of conquest, to extend their sovereignty over nations yet unborn.

The scheme for the annexation of Texas is the most decided step they have made in this direction; but that is only the prelude to their exclusive possession of the Oregon territory is another indication of the same policy; it will be followed by an attack, either by force or by fraud, on California. On all these points the same ultimate spirit of aggrandisement prevails.

SWITZERLAND.

The intelligence from Switzerland is not satisfactory. The Constitutionnel says, the demand of Lucerne, made in the Diet, on the 16th, for an indemnity, led to an animated debate, which ended in a rejection, six votes only appearing for the indemnity. All steps to induce that canton to grant an amnesty would, it was said, fail, unless supported by money. The Diet adjourned without fixing a day for discussing the positions of the commission.

Intelligence from Zurich to the 17th inst. states that at the sitting of the 16th a report of the Federal Commissioners was read, in which they stated that they arrived at Lucerne on the 13th, and immediately supported, with the Government, the decree relative to the amnesty. They also assured themselves, by the communications from the governments of the cantons from which the fee corps had proceeded, that no such expeditions should hereafter take place. Sixty young men under twenty years of age had been set at liberty by the Government of Lucerne, and 120 others were to be promptly liberated.

The New Zurich Gazette has a letter of the 17th from Lucerne, saying:—The court martial has condemned to ten years imprisonment in irons, Captain Ulmi, convicted of desertion. He might have been brought before the ordinary tribunals upon a charge of bearing arms against his canton, in which case he would probably have been condemned to death.

A letter of the 17th from Zurich says,—Yesterday and the day before all the prisoners taken at Lucerne who are under twenty years of age, arrived at Reinach. A detachment of Zurich troops received them at the frontier, and conducted them to the municipality, where set at liberty.

Troubles in Suffolk County.

The recent fires which have been raging at different times for the past month, and which are now daily occurring, have swept through a large portion of the woodlands of Suffolk county, destroying whole forests of young and growing timber, and consuming an immense quantity of cord wood, piled up and ready for market. In some instances the fires have extended from the railroad to the south side of the island, consuming in their progress numbers of dwelling houses, barns and other property. The whole amount thus annihilated is variously estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. The locomotives are generally regarded as the origin of these conflagrations. The sufferers are highly exasperated, and look upon every train that passes as a demon of destruction; and this feeling has extended widely through the county, and the people are under so great a state of excitement just now, that, as to be productive of serious consequences.—Buffalo Pilot.

WORMS IN WHEAT.

We have received from the Hon. James A. Pease, of Kent Co., Md., a few stalks of wheat, which, upon opening the stems just above the junction with the roots, we found to be invested with a thin whitish worm, in size about the thickness of fine cambric thread, and about the 32d part of an inch in length. Some fields of wheat in Kent County, we regret to learn, have been much injured by this insect. We believe the destruction of these depredators might be effected by sowing a bushel of salt to the acre; the which, on being dissolved by the first rain, would be taken up by the rootlets into the general system of the plants, and thus give the hidden enemy his quietus as certainly as though it were to be done with a bodkin. The salt, too, would serve to attract and give fixity to the ammonia of the atmosphere, and thus contribute to provide pabulum to the wheat in its after growth.—Am. Farmer.

CUCUMBERS.

A correspondent of the Boston Cultivator, an excellent agricultural paper, by the way, gives the following directions for improving the culture of cucumbers:

As soon as there appears several flower buds on a plant, bend the second or third joint or branch below the bloom, fasten it firmly in the ground, and cut off the capillary point of the plant. The vegetable speedily takes root, when you separate it from the parent stalk. Proceed thus with the most vigorous plants; and as each root has only to support a few fruits with nourishment, you both save labor and procure a constant succession of cucumbers for a number of months from one sort, and which are not as likely to degenerate, as if they were raised from a variety of seed.

* * The Cherokee country is represented by the Tahlequah Advocate (edited by a Cherokee) to be in a state of unusual quietude, and the people are rapidly advancing in education and civilization. The farmers were not idle. Many finished planting from thirty to fifty acres of corn, the last week in March; many others, who on the 10th of April had from fifty to an hundred acres planted; were not yet done. In many sections, corn and Irish potatoes were already up—the oats and wheat crops looked fine, and an abundant harvest was anticipated.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1845.

The Carthage Assassins.—On Friday last the trial terminated, and the prisoners were acquitted in the case of Joseph Smith. This accords with the vote of the City Council last July, that when the law failed to atone for the blood of our Prophet and Patriarch, shed at Carthage on the 27th of June last by a mob, we would refer the case to God for a righteous judgment, and we have never varied from that intention.

If those men had been found guilty it would have been a novel case, and a violation of all the rules of the world in all martyr cases before.

The wicked who slew the prophets; boiled the children of Israel in caldrons; who fried them in pans; who stoned a Stephen; who crucified the Son of God, and who harassed the saints to death for sport, or burnt them at the stake, for laws of the land, and its executors, ever make the perpetrators atone for that innocent blood? No: alas no!

We are satisfied to let the dead bury their dead. We ask for even handed justice; a righteous judgment, and we ask for our rights, of the powers that be, and then content ourselves as saints of the living God with the action of those powers, knowing that the judge of all the earth will reward every man according to his work in the day of judgment.

The sentence of Jehovah upon Cain for murdering his brother Abel, is a sample for all murderers that have cursed themselves and the earth since.—A fugitive and a vagabond in the earth shall thou be.

The severest punishment upon a guilty conscience, is a continual torment in the flesh without satisfying the demands of justice, wiping out the stains of innocent blood; or something the cry of widows and orphans to God for vengeance!

Again let us say, we are satisfied; we will not do wrong because others do. The ghosts that haunt the guilty by night and by day, shall never torment us for shedding innocent blood. The blood of the prophets; the tears of the widows, and the weeping of orphan children, let alone the broken faith of a State, and the weakness of law, or even the stars of living witnesses, shall not cry in the ears of the Lord of Sabbath, for vengeance—because we have shed innocent blood, and hid ourselves under the cobwebs of chicanery.

Mormonism was ever above such artifices, being eternal truth; and while we seek peace and salvation, the murderers of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, be they who may, can rest assured that their case, independent of all earthly tribunals, will be tried by the Supreme Judge of the universe, who has said, vengeance is mine and I will repay. The Mormons do not believe in taking life like the world, knowing that the scriptures say, NO MURDERER HATH ETERNAL LIFE ABIDING IN HIM.

Calm as a summer's morning; still as the noiseless leaf, that flies from sphere to sphere; and orderly as the worlds roll in their circuits before the Lord, does Mormonism pursue the even-tenor of its way—sounding to the nations of the earth, good tidings of great joy; continually consoling one another,—with persecution we are satisfied; with prosperity we are satisfied; yea, with all things we are satisfied, when we know that God is satisfied! and from henceforth let all men who drive, despoil, rob, or murder us—do it on the credit of the nation; that if there be any glory in opposing Mormonism, all that act may share in that glory. As for us, we will honor the law, we will honor our country; we will honor virtue; we will honor God.

The Carthage Trial.—A full report of that awful Trial will be prepared from the notes taken each day and published hereafter.

AND SO-NORTHIANA.

The Boston Daily Mail of May 12, besides a chapter on fires, containing the account of a "Great fire at the south end, upwards of twenty buildings destroyed—total loss $80,000.—The second edition of 9 A. M. contains an additional number of fires through the night, and a postscript on the margin, "two more fires besides the above."

There was also a fire in Syracuse N. Y. lately.

Destruction of a Village by Fire!—A fire broke out in the small village of Paris, in Washington county, Pa., on the 16th, and destroyed 17 or 18 houses, including several dwelling houses, three only of which escaped the devouring element.

Harlotting.—Pardon our title, gentle reader, but beware of the sin.—The Boston Bee devotes a space against the contagion of brothels and lebauchery. After showing how cities and large towns are wasting away in the lap of Delilah, the editor thus confesses the sins of Boston:

There are heaps upon heaps—dens upon dens—of this sort of corruption, rotting and festering all over this city, and within the knowledge of professedly good men and conservators of the public morals, which are permitted to remain undisturbed, while the creatures that inhabit them are daily drawing victim after victim within the poisonous folds of the green and gilded serpent, misnamed Pleasure, that lies coiled up in their midst.

And there are in this city many prostitutes who, assuming the guise of some respectable employment during the day, contrive to pass for very modest young ladies, and thus not only obtain access to the companionship of innocent and unsuspecting girls, but take advantage of it to corrupt their minds and gradually lead them from correct principles and habits till they too are inveigled into the snares of the profligate. Nor is this all; there are dashing young women, whose characters have not yet become publicly known, promenade our streets every day, dressed out in silks and satins, and bedecked with all the outward appliances which young people are apt to regard as indications of wealth and respectability, who are actually employed by men—or fends in the form of men—as decoys to aid them in their work of destruction.

Three or four houses were burnt down in Cincinnati on the morning of the 22nd ult.

Job 38: 22 & 23.—De Kalb county, Georgia, was visited a few days ago with a violent hail storm. In some parts of the county hail fell in lumps the size of large goose eggs.—The corn, cotton and other crops were literally beaten into the earth; the trees were stripped of their fruit and foliage, and in some places the ravines, at the base of steep hills, were covered to the depth of four feet.

Criminality and Murder.—A correspondent of the Albany Argus, writing from Chepango county, N. Y., states that a man named Griffin, married and living in Colton on the 6th instant, Coit, had seduced Griffin's wife from him, but the woman had sent for her husband and desired to return home. Griffin went to Coit's armed with a pistol, which exploded prematurely, with injury to himself. Coit, of whom he stood in much fear, approached in a friendly manner, when Griffin snatched up a whistle-tree and literally smashed Coit's head to atoms.

Drought.—The wheat crops of South Carolina are said to be almost entirely ruined by the long continuance of dry weather.

Tornado at Bourbon.—Advices from this Island, by way of Suez, bring the sad news that this colony was ravaged by a hurricane about the middle of December. This is the third time within one year that this unhappy Island has been ravaged by the elements. This tornado was preceded by excessive heat and a calm clear blue sky. In consequence of the atmospheric commotions great injury has been done to Bourbon, Grand-Chaloupe, Saint-Suzanne, Saint Andre, Saint-Rire, and the other localities.

Sin Rewarded.—A fellow named Parkhurst, who sold his wife and daughter's virtue for a living, was recently tarred and feathered at Hanover N. H.

Another Fire.—Allegheny city opposite Pittsburg was visited by a severe fire recently.

Another Fire.—Alligator city, on Bayou Cat-fish, says the N. O. Pic.—"was entirely consumed by fire a few days since. It contained one slab hut 10 by 12. The jug of whiskey, man and hound had left." The inmates of "that hut" or city are more fortunate than sister cities will be when the Lord's scourge passes them.

A Fire in Louisville.—A short time since, by which some eighteen or twenty houses were burnt down. Believed to be the work of incendiaries.

Great Fire and Destruction of Life.—A Wilmington (N. C.) paper of the 2d inst., says, as we were going to press, we were shown a private letter of the 18th inst., from Washington, in this State, which states that the large swamps in Beaufort, Tyrell and Hyde counties were on fire. The letter goes on to say, that there were two whole families burned up in Tyrell, one of the families consisting of a man, his wife, three children and three negroes; of the other family, says the writer, "I did not learn how many were burned." The whole woods are on fire.

Discovery of Ancient Treasure.—The Macon (Ga.) Messenger gives an account of the discovery of hidden treasure to the amount of forty five thousand Spanish dollars in Tatnal county, in that State. The discoverer, by blowing up the root of a tree, discovered three dollars, and in digging deeper, succeeded in exhuming the above large amount. The money was found on the land of Mrs. Gray, a widow, in needy circumstances.

— This really is a "mint drop," and ends our and-so-forthiana this week, first rate, on the cash list.

British Laws.—Among other curiosities in an old statute, we find "an act for the more easy recovery of debts in his Majesty's plantations and colonies in America, passed in the fifth year of the reign of George II." We select the following section as a text for the abolitionists, and as a trait of English humanity of long standing.

"IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from and after the said twenty-ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and thirty two, the houses, lands, NEGROES, AND OTHER HEREDITAMENTS, and real estates, situate or being within any of the said plantations belonging to any person indebted, shall be liable to and chargeable with all just debts, duties and demands of what nature or kind soever, owing by any such person to his Majesty, or any of his subjects, and shall and may be assets for the satisfaction thereof, in like manner as real estates are by the law of England liable to the satisfaction of debts due by other specialty, and shall be to the like remedies, proceedings and process in any court of law or equity, in any of the said plantations respectively for seizing, extending, selling or disposing of any such houses, lands, negroes, and other hereditaments, and real estates, towards the satisfaction of such debts, duties and demands, and in like manner as personal estates in any of the said plantations respectively are seized, extended, sold or disposed of, for the satisfaction of debts."

— This law or act is undoubtedly in full force now in all the British provinces of America, as it was in Canada but a short time ago. Look out for the negroes that are taken to Oregon—John Bull does not believe in Slavery; O not not he; he would much rather sell the poor wretches to the Spanish and get money to further his conquest north.

Huzza for Great Britain, the "negroes and other hereditaments!"—This is perfectly right: no hypocrisy in it. Not so with the United States, for she holds out the temptation that all men are created equal, and then holds the unfortunate colored man in bondage. All we can say of the United States, and Great Britain, is, like father, like son: the old mare paces and the colt racks, and time only will determine which is the nimblest.

The Rapid Flies are here again, cutting all manner of twifications before a rain storm. The mosquitoes will come a courting next, and then look wild for dunning, men, women and children, they have a long bill for all of you!

Grand.—The attic story on the Temple was raised during last week, and it looks grand. When the belfry and tower rise in splendor upon the top of that it will look grander; and when the whole structure and steeple are completed it will look grandest.

Corn.—The Ottawa, (Ill.) Free Trader says: The farmers in this vicinity are much troubled with the black birds, who visit the corn fields in such numbers as to completely cover whole acres, and destroy every hill of corn within their reach. Several farmers have re-planted once or twice, and many are at this time going over their fields and repairing the damages of this little troublesome visitor.

— It must be that the black-bird practice upon "civilized" or "christianized" principles; that is majority rules. The British nation copes with every nation weaker than itself, and the United States Yankee the world. The ant draws fire to his little heap; the sparrow swallow the ant and fly; the hawk gulps down the sparrow, ant and fly; the fox makes a meal of the hawk, &c.; the panther slakes his appetite with a fresh fox and his stuffing, and while the monster is licking his chops, the Indian makes game of the panther, by a pop from his rifle.—And the white man, with all his boasted knowledge, religion, "civilization," and wisdom, soft soaps the poor Indian out of his panther skin with German silver broches, buckeye ribbands, or a small sack of whiskey—and Jimmy diddles his squaw into the bargain! Go on black-birds—you have a right to the good things of the earth, for your heavenly Father feedeth you, as one of his family: He feeds all, from the mite to the mammoth; the cattle upon a thousand hills are his, and when he needs he takes.—Man has no right to steal.

Let the Christian nations far and near, Cease their pulling wealth both night & morn; Then the merry black-birds, every where, Wisely "quit the game of pulling corn."

Signs of Parting.—Some of the newspapers have begun to discuss the merits of the case to divide the Union. The abolitionists are in for it, and such cancer worm journals as the Alton Telegraph fan the flames. The times are big with events. From the proceedings of the Abolition convention held in New York recently, Davis of Abolition, this quotation:—

"Among their proceedings we notice a resolution offered by Wendell Phillips, of Boston, to the effect,—that, as the only exodus for the slave population of the United States from their bondage, was through a dissolution of the Union, and the overthrow of the organization called Christian churches, the American Anti-slavery Society rejoice in the signs, and would co-operate in the production of both these most desirable events!"—And then carries the idea that the Christians rejoice in the signs that threaten this dissolution, &c.: Davis, the abolitionist, Vicksburg murderers, Philadelphia rioters, and all other murderers, will go in for such a faction, but the Mormons will stick together, and stick to the Union.

"While the earth bears a plant Of the sea rolls a wave."

A Cold Snap.—The frost on the Danube was so severe last winter, that it bursted rocks at Linz which had obstructed the navigation for ages, and they have been removed.

Dangerous.—Gas manufactured from electricity and burned, is pretty near setting fire to lightning.

The Flood in Germany.—The accounts by the last steamer, are tremendous. No adequate amount of the loss of life and property can be estimated. A year of horrid war in the heart of the country would not be as devastating as one month of flood has been throughout the low lands of Germany.

Post Office credit.—We received our foreign newspapers from London, Liverpool, and Edinburgh, this week ahead of the Boston and New York papers, containing the same news. Heretofore they have been forwarded by Harnden & Co's. fine.

Fine Arts.—We have two portrait painters in the city, Mr. Major and Mr. Van Sickle. They are both good workmen, and as the saints generally are men greatly wondered at, it will be no more than justice to increase the wonderment by excellent likenesses.

Tokens of respect.—About 160 tons of cannon balls, with powder answerable, passed Wheeling, (Va.) last week for the Gulf of Mexico. The British are preparing fire-works for the north, and the Yankees for the south, and between two fires—you all know the rest.

Vot or 21.—A correspondent writes, says the St. Louis Reveille, in great alarm, to the Warsaw Signal:—"I take this method to inform you that your good friends, the 'Nauvoo Legion,' are at this time having a set of heavy ordnance cast at a foundry in an adjoining county, (Cayahoga,) I conversed with a gentleman, a few days since, who saw some that were already cast and marked 'Nauvoo Legion.' If I recollect correctly, the number contracted for is twenty-four."

— A pretty good hoax for alarm guns. There is no "Nauvoo Legion," and whenever Nauvoo needs cannon to celebrate Independence or any other great day, it will cast its own ordnance. There is no law to the contrary—and no charter will suffer, whenever Nauvoo wants a real big yankee gun, in stead of hiring old Dady Bull or Ohio to make it, they will make it themselves,—big as all creation.

Four tons of iron will make a load, With one of Dupont's powder; One storm of noise and little grapes, Will make a sea of chowder! Twenty four cannon, marked Nauvoo Legion,—as Virgil said Procul, O procul este profani!

The small pox is troubling New York.

Beautiful.—Nauvoo, and the adjacent land look like a "Union of Gardens." Every nook and corner is being fenced and cultivated.

Sheep.—It has been proposed to hand all the "loose sheep" about Nauvoo, over to the bishops as a kind of peace offering. The hogs and cattle, if unruly, may need to be "offered," also.

O Manstrous!—An apple woman, says the St. Louis Organ, on her way to the race course in a cart, Tuesday morning, requested the driver to let her walk a short distance, as she was too much crowded. She had hardly reached the ground when she was delivered of a fine boy, and a few minutes afterwards of a hearty girl!

Where has the propriety, decency, and self-esteem of the world fled to? Leaders of young ones dropped in the road like pigs from a sow, and worse, for the sow remains in her nest. "O shame where is thy blush!"

Spots of Speculation.—The British troops are moving into western Canada, near Michigan, and a naval officer of the Red Lion has come on to build five steamers of war for the Lakes.—Go it Vic; iron dogs are plenty.

A duel was fought on the island opposite the city, yesterday morning, between Mr. John Barr and Mr. J. B. Colt; the former was the challenger. Mr. Colt was wounded in the lower part of the abdomen, but not seriously; he himself did not fire at his adversary. The cause of the difficulty is said to have been of a delicate nature, and the numerous friends of the parties must deeply regret the result consequent upon the affair.—St. Louis Reveille, May 21.

You ought to "polish" your troops better Mr. Reveille; and then they would not "cut up" such dark "shines" over there.

Ohio has a population of about 1,300,000, and Virginia has about 1,250,000. The former produces 6,000,000 bushels more of wheat than the latter—more than twice as much barley, and one-third more of oats.—Lx. Pap.

Ohio has better grain land, than Virginia, but still. Nauvoo and suburbs, with 20,000 population, in a suitable season, can beat that in grain and manufacturing, thirty per cent. Peace and industry multiply we'll.

The Mormons.—His Excellency, Gov. Owsley, has received a memorial from the "Quorum of Twelve" and the Trustees of the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints," despatched from Nauvoo by a special messenger, in which the Mormons appeal most earnestly to His Excellency to interfere and by his personal influence and official rank, shield them from threatened dispersion and destruction. They implore the Governor to "convene a special session of the Legislature" and "furnish them an asylum" from oppression. They conclude their memorial by a general prayer to the Governor to "lend his immediate aid to quell the violence of mobocracy, and to exert his influence to establish them, as a people, in their civil and religious rights, where they now are, or in some part of the United States, or at some place remote therefrom."

We understand the Governor to be decidedly in favor of "some place remote therefrom," and that he declines for the present issuing his proclamation for a special session of the Legislature, to provide the Mormons with an "Asylum" in Kentucky.—[Frankfort (Ky.) Commonwealth.

We feel much obliged to the "Commonwealth" of Kentucky for the above fresh news, and the Governor's favor. The scripture says, "A soft answer turns away wrath."

Oregon Emigrants.—In a conversation with Captain T. M. Adams, who arrived last evening on the steamer Mary Tompkins, we were informed that the large portion of the Oregon emigrants, numbering altogether upwards of three thousand souls, had crossed the Kansas river and were encamped, when he left them on the 15th inst., about one hundred and twenty miles from Independence. They were all well and things looked auspicious for a happy termination of their journey.

The recent warlike news from England and Mexico had been ascertained, by the several commands, while they were en route and on the prairies. To use Captain Adams' own words, the only consequence of the news was, a general expression "to save ammunition for such foes."

It will be remembered, that Captain Adams, before any of the detachments started out, had been elected Captain of the whole emigration—the duties of which office, he had discharged to the best of his abilities—had crossed and camped the principal part of them on the other side of the Kansas, where they proceeded to a new organization, and elected Stephen W. Meek pilot of the emigration. Captain Adams, for private reasons, threw up his command and returned. Before leaving, however, he gave them every facility in his power towards ensuring them a safe and expeditious journey across the mountains.—St. Louis Reveille.

This is only one company; it is thought by those concerned that from seven to ten thousand will emigrate this season. Pioneering is the order of the day, and self-importance is the governor.

A NEW SPECIES OF LYNCHING.

The Mormons have a new species of lynch law, less cruel than the hanging and shooting process prevailing in some parts of the extreme West, and not quite so disgusting as flogging and feathering. When they wish to drive an obnoxious person from among them, they whistle and whittle him out. Finding that the natural way of whistling by puckering the lips was rather tiresome and not sufficiently annoying, they have procured tin whistles for the purpose of serenading all who happen to be so unfortunate as to have given offence to the holy brotherhood. On a recent occasion they surrounded one Green, and compelled him, with all kinds of whistling, whittling and yelling, to leave the place.—Phil. Dollar Newspaper.

Thank's sir—but one thing further is necessary. Without a charter, we have no alternative, but a mild one, to keep our city, (as we have done,) clear of gamblers, debauchees, drunkards, &c. We show men their crimes and sins, by innocent amusement.

FANATICISM.

How to Treat it Successfully.

The sect of Mormons and anti-Mormons are again at war, and threaten to disgrace Illinois, as they have disgraced Missouri, with riot and murder. We advise the Governor and other authorities of Illinois to take effectual measures for preserving the peace, and for punishing all who attempt to break it; and we advise all good citizens, without distinction of politics or religion, to aid them. And beyond this, we advise all authorities and citizens, to pay not the slightest regard to the disputes or other affairs of the fanatics. Any interference with them, especially in the spirit of prosecution, will merely make them stronger.

In religion, nothing is too absurd to believe, and under religious persecution, nothing is too weak to grow. In our day and generation, we have had Irvinism, Mormonism, Millerism, and all sorts of isms; and in the next ten or twenty years, we expect to have as many more. And those who succeed us will witness the rise and fall of as many sects as any of their predecessors. The Anglo-Saxons are the best depositories of religious absurdities in the world. The sun never shone upon a people with such cautious throats for wonder, as those from which English is spoken; and among all the tribes of the race, the Yankees, the New Englanders, will probably swallow the most without choking. The race possess several qualities which admirably fit them for fanatics. They have curiosity, excitability, credulity, and love of freedom; and these are the very soil in which religious absurdity most readily takes root, and of which persecution is the best fertilizer. If some one comes along with a new faith, every Anglo-Saxon ear is pricked up with curiosity. So soon as the faith is stated, the Anglo-Saxon blood is up, and parties are formed upon it; for a speculative question without parties, is something beyond Anglo-Saxon comprehension. Some regard it as a damnable heresy, leading to the gates of hell, and others as the one thing needful, leading to those of heaven.

Those who regard it as sin and death declare war against it, crying out that true religion is in danger; and by true religion they always mean their own notions, their own sect, whether adopted as an affair of conscience or profit. And those who regard it as salvation, at once resist the war, crying out in defence of freedom of conscience and worship, and the right of opinion; ground upon which they are certainly right. The lookers on soon become excited, and take sides, some of them believing out of spite, and some rejecting out of spite. And thus, out of spite, they go from one step to another, till riot, and perhaps murder, are the result.

And all this mischief ensues, from the interference of one man with the belief of his neighbor. So long as people do no mischief in this world with their superstitious and fanatical, other people have no concern with them, and are morally and legally bound to let them alone. We admit that when such fools as Miller and Himes are seducing people into neglect of their families and other worldly duties, and into insanity, the press and the pulpit are bound to expose the imposture, and warn the insect against rushing into the candle. But when such other fools as Irving get crazy, how like wild beasts, and call it the gift of tongues, or such rogues and fools as Jo Smith and Rigdon talk about their revelations and their new books, the surest mode of preventing them from doing any mischief is to let them alone. All fanatics are vain for love of approbation is one of the organs unduly excited by fanaticism. Hence, every fanatic plays his tricks before company, and seems to say, like the fly on the wheel, "what a dust I make!" If nobody looked on, they would soon become cool.—Phil. Dol. News.

Santa Anna.—The decision of character of the Mexican government may be estimated by the fact, that after having captured Santa Anna, imprisoned him, and heaping every indignity upon him, they now offer to suspend proceedings, and give him his passports if he will leave the country. He refuses very naturally, and says "they can't get on in a war on the Texas question without me; the priests are with me, and I'll put myself again at the head of the government." It is not unlikely that he will—and this is the people and the government which threaten war with the United States!—N. Y. Sun.

Sandwich Islands.—In organizing a civilized government for the Sandwich Islands, it is evident that some experienced white men must have prepared a code of laws. We should like to hear the name of the man who proposed the following pains and penalties:—"Any captain landing a passenger without permission $1000; adultery, $30; a breach of the Quarantine laws, $1000; lewd and lascivious conduct, $10; the violation of the Quarantine laws, by which a contagious disease is introduced, hanging as a murderer; the violation of a woman, $50; &c., &c."

Pretty well for the revenue, but meagre protection for morality and virtue.—N. Y. Sun.

The population of Canada at the present time is 693,649. Of these there are, natives of the country, of French origin, 518,565; natives of British origin, 85,075; England, 11,886; Ireland, 44,012; Scotland, 13,341; Continental Europe, 2,353; United States, 11,941. The proportion of deaf and dumb to the whole population is greater than in all other countries, except Switzerland and Baden. In Canada it is one to about every nine hundred and fifty-seven; in Europe one in one thousand five hundred and thirty-seven; in the United States one in every two thousand and five hundred; so far as known, one in every one thousand five hundred and fifty-six.—Pitts. Amer.

The Michigan, or Eglantine Rose, as it is called, may be planted by the side of a dwelling, at the base of a column or at the foot of a tree. From a single root it will spread out its branches to the length of twenty-eight or thirty feet in one season. Its foliage is beautiful, but what renders it most pleasing is its numerous clusters of flowers, white, pink and black, which may be frequently seen in one cluster.

MAIL LETTINGS.

The mail lettings for the following States, has resulted in this great saving to the Post office Department:

In Maine the saving is	$28,836
New Hampshire	20,000
Vermont	22,727
Massachusetts	19,121
Rhode Island	3,600
Connecticut	11,621
New York	91,722
Total	$195,091

There was 11,000 bids opened, read, endorsed, and recorded in books prepared for the purpose in the short space of fifteen days.

SEXTON'S WEEKLY REPORT.

June 3rd, 1841.
Ruba Sophrona Frank, 25y.
Rachel Thomas, infant.
Mary Ann Thomas, 33y, 2m; child birth.
Abel Wyborn, 4y, 2m, 9d; fits.
William James Bird, 8y; drowned in St. Louis, May 25th.
John Mosier, of Iowa, 45y, 2m, 21; quidzy.

W. D. HUNTINGTON.

TO THE PUBLIC.

I TAKE this method to warn the public against purchasing two notes, of fifty dollars each, bearing my signature, and payable to Wm. M. Daniels; each dated, I think, on the 23d of November, 1841; one due three months after date, with an endorsement of fifteen dollars; the other due six months after date. I shall not pay either of them, as I have not had value received. I have also got value accounts against Wm. M. Daniels, sufficient to overbalance the amount due on the notes.

L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

Nauvoo, June 4, 1845-5-3w

NOTICE.

IS hereby given, that all persons having claims against the estate of Morris Whitesides, deceased, are requested to present their claims to the court of Probate, in and for the county of Hancock, within one year from this date, and all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment to the administrator of said estate.

MARGARET WHITESIDES, Administrator.
Nauvoo, June 2d, 1845-5-4w

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

PURSUANT to a decree of the Circuit Court of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, made the May term thereof A. D. 1845, in the matter of the petition of the Administrator of the Estate of Joseph Smith deceased, to sell the real Estate of said Joseph Smith, I shall proceed on the 4th day of July, A. D. 1845, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, to sell by public vendue, in the city of Nauvoo, to the highest and best bidder thereof the real Estate of said Joseph Smith deceased.

Said real Estate is known and described as follows to-wit: A portion of section 8, town 5 n range 8 w; also a portion of section 19, 6 n range 8 w; also a portion of section 26, town 7 n range 8 w; also a portion of section 25, town 7 n range 8 w; the same being in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois.

Said sale is to be made on a credit of six months by the purchaser giving bond with approved security for the payment of the purchase money, together with a mortgage on the premises as further security therefor.

JOSEPH W. COOLIDGE,

Administrator of the Estate of Joseph Smith deceased.

June 4th 1845-5-4w

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware on hand, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts, Nappes, Mugs, &c., which will be sold wholesale and retail for Cash or Country Produce cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen in the United States can afford, being English Pottery and having worked in the most extensive Manufactory in England.

ELIJAH K. FULLER, President.
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM FOX,
RICHARD RALPHS,
JOSEPH RALPHS,
THOMAS RALPHS,
ALFRED GORDON,
JOHN BOURNE, Clerk,
June 4th 1845-5-4w

TURNING & CABINET MAKING.

THE subscriber, having returned to this city is prepared to manufacture all kinds of furniture of the best quality on as low and reasonable terms, as cheap as the same articles can be purchased in St. Louis.

He is also prepared to do all kinds of turning in the most fashionable style, and having had an extensive experience in both the above branches, he flatters himself that he will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with their custom.

To his friends in the surrounding country who have heretofore patronized him, he would state, that he should feel obliged by a continuation of their favors. Shop on Main street, a few doors below the post office.

JAMES BIRD.
Nauvoo, June 4, 1845-5-3m

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN.

THAT Emma Smith, guardian for the minor heirs of Joseph Smith, deceased, will present a petition to the judge of the fifth Judicial Circuit, at the special term, to be holden in Hancock county, or an order to sell lot four, (4) in block one hundred and forty two, (142) in the city of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Illinois, or the support of said heirs, all persons interested will appear at the said term of the court, and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

EMMA SMITH, Guardian.

Nauvoo, June 2d, 1845-5-4w

WANTED.

TURLEY wants to employ a first rate gunsmith, to work at stocking and finishing. Apply soon.

Nauvoo, June 3, 1845-5-3w

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.

E. D. and J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened in the house formerly known as the NAUVOO STORE, now JOSEPH CITY STORE, situated on Mulholland Street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles so essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry Goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware and Crockery, in short all things that are really wanted in our line of business. And having been engaged in the business, for years, we flatter ourselves competent to give satisfaction in quality, and also in price, we would invite the inhabitants of the city of Joseph and vicinity to call and see.

Country produce will be received for goods.

May 27th 1845-4-3n

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.

BYNDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGEMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends, can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans.

Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from on board steaming upwards, all the particulars of which can be ascertained by enquiring of JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent, Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing Office.

Nauvoo, May 1845-4-1f

J. H. & W. RALSTON,

Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.

WILL attend to all business in their charge, & upon that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.

W. H. RALSTON's Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.

Warsaw, May 14th, 1845-2-1f

TRUTH.

WHEREAS John Gribble has taken off my bed and board, contrary to the decision of said court, without any just cause, and having had to pay his debts up to this date, Notice is hereby given, that I will pay no more of his contracting after this date, and he will be responsible for his past and heretofore or hereafter, and solicit him to return what he has taken away, and save for his trouble.

SABRA GRANGER.
May 19th, 1845-3-3w

NOTICE is hereby given that Howard Egan, Conservator for Joel Ballard, an insane person, will present a petition at the next Term of the Hancock Circuit Court, praying for an order of said Court to sell so much of the real estate of the said Joel Ballard, as will satisfy the claims against said estate. All parties interested will appear at said Term of the court and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

HOWARD EGAN, Conservator of the estate of Joel Ballard Insane.
Nauvoo, April 17, 1845-5-1f

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Sabra Gribble, has left my bed and board without any just cause or provocation, this is to caution all persons against trusting her on my account, as I will pay no debts of her contracting; neither will I be responsible for any of her acts, after this date.

JOHN GRIBBLE.

Nauvoo, May 12, 1845-2-3w

TAILOR'S ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis's store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells. This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.

N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association, which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be holden for the debts of said association.

JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
C. B. THOMPSON, Counselors.
WM. P. McINTIRE, Counselors.
ROBT. RUSSELL, Superintendents.
J. H. GLINES, Superintendents.
WM. K. PARKER,
ALEXANDER MULLINER,
C. BELLARBY,
WM. STRINGHAM,
JABEZ BOTSFORD,
B. CHAPMAN.
Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845-47-3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and on motto is quick and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.

Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to give us a call.

Feb. 7:49f W. & S.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845-49.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.

THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market. In the latest and most fashionable style.

Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN.

No 52 Main street, St. Louis.

April 8th, 1845-5-3m

LIME, LIME!

FOR the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate Lime, at their kiln near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Pe & Smith. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.

JOSIAH BOYCE,

O. M. ALLEN,

EDMUND NELSON.

May 7, 1845-No 1-6m

NOTICE.

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county, Mo. For further particulars enquire of

LEVISTEWEAT.

Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52-1f

NAUVOO TANNERY.

NOTICE.—The Tanners and Shoemakers association, will pay in goods or Bots and Shoes, from four to five cents for calfskins, and from three to four cents for hides, delivered at their tannery, situated on Hubbard and Rich streets, near Colton's brick yard, or at the Queens city store; we will also tan a share. We also want a large quantity of White and Black Oak bark and Sumach, for which we will pay the highest Nauvoo prices.

G. W. ROSEGRANS,

April 1-48-8m Superintendent.

LIME, LIME!

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.

JOSEPH OWENS,
THOS. MENDENHALL.

April 13th, 50-3m

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS.

GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, Mo. or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a minutely written description thereof, post paid, with the real cash value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.

Also members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this country, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact this business. No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a moderate or reasonable compensation will be expected.

Nauvoo, May 5th, 1845-13m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.

BRETHREN wishing to purchase Lands, Houses or cities, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's office, Mission.

WILLIAM SMITH.

ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this country, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.

May 6th, 1845-1f

LAND FOR SALE, CHEAP!

160 Acres s.e. q. sec 27; 6 n 8 w the best of land in the Big Field, good title.

ALSO—160 Acres n.w. q. sec 36; 7 n 8 w on the Ia. hwy road.

ALSO—160 Acres s.w. 27; 7 n 6 w. Will take trade for this last gr.

ALSO—148 Acres of the e. q. of sec 14; 3 north of w. hwy, with a new house not finished, some timber; price $1 50 per acre, part cash part trade.

Enquire of

EDSON WHIPPLE.

May 5th 1845-11f

PHONOGRAPHY.

GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in Thirtieth Lesson, which will give the necessary instruction for a minimum practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.

May 2d, 1845-1f

LOOK HERE.

THE subscriber having been appointed agent for Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, to make sales, and lease their real estate, as he may think proper and convenient, he therefore gives notice to all who wish to purchase of cash or property in any part of the State, that he has for sale, 17 tracts in the city, also the large house and soap manufactory near the river, and a number of lots unim

POETRY.

THE SHOEMAKER.

"Act well your part, there all the honor lies."
The shoemaker sat amid wax and leather,
With lip-stone over his knee,
Where, snug in his shop, he defied all weather.
Drawing his quarters and sole together—
A happy old man was he.

This happy old man was so wise and knowing.
The worth of his time he knew;
He hasted his ends, and kept them going.
He felt to each moment a stitch was owing.
Until he got round the shoe.
Of every deed his wax was sealing.
The closing was firm and fast;
The prick of his awl never caused a feeling
Of pain to the toe, and his skill in healing
Was perfect and true to the last.

Whenever you gave him a foot to measure,
With gentle and skilful hand
He took his proportions with locks of pleasure,
As if you were giving the costliest treasure,
Of dubbing him lord of the land.

And many a one did he save from getting
A fever, or cold, or cough;
For many a foot did he save from wetting,
When, whether in water or snow 'twas sitting.
His shoeing would keep them off.

When he had done with his making and mending,
With hope and a peaceful breast,
Resigning his awl, as his thread was ending,
He passed from his bench, to the grave descending,
As high as the king to rest.

SONGS FOR THE MILLION.

BY ONE OF THEM.

NO. 1. LABOR.

Up brothers to your toil to day,
Let fools the burden shirk,
Though idle hands may snatch the pay,
Thank God they leave the work.

Let purse-proud, bloated sluggards preach
Of labor as a curse;
Their rotten flesh and morals teach
That idleness is worse.

Who labors, lives, though but a slave,
And reaping not the fruit;
His loyal lord, in ransomed grave,
Is but a wailing brute.

Then ply the hoe, and ply the plough,
And ditch the drowsy bog,
And if it must be, wive, allow,
Your lord to play the hog.

Then ply the spindle, ply the loom,
Though ransomed take the cloth;
Your happy limbs they cannot doom
To feel the pains of sloth.

While life is left, they can't Let idleness be play;
That glorious spark, creative joy,
They cannot take away.

From the Weekly Union.

TONE OF THE BRITISH PRESS.

The "Philadelphia Inquirer" remarks that the tone of the press with regard to Oregon, Texas, and this country, is less violent than we had reason to expect considering the recent declarations of Lord Aberdeen and Sir Robert Peel. There are, however, exceptions to this remark. We give an article upon the subject from the Dublin Freeman's Journal:

"The receding of England from the position she had taken about Texas is deeply significant, and history may hereafter use it to mark the point at which the flood of fortune began to ebb. America is no ordinary power. Her greatest strength can be put forth upon England's own ocean domain. A quarter of a century ago, when England was supposed capable of annihilating the little marine of America by a single stroke of her fin; and the relative dimensions of her navies justified the supposition—the younger nation seized the knife between her teeth, dashed to meet her enemy on her enemy's own element, and many a spouting ruin of the monster of the seas crimsoned the deep on which they struggled.

America is better grown now. Her commercial navy covers every sea, and in its qualities leaves all rivalry far behind. Great as have been her advances in population and in wealth, her progress in commerce has outstripped even these. The maritime strength of nations is no longer measured by counting their ships of war, but by sounding the depths of that source whence the military marine is to be supplied—their commercial navies. England is mightier at sea than France, not because that for every 100 tons of Louis Philippe's royal navy, Victoria's navy numbers 120—or whatever else may be the proportion of the excess—but because the commercial tonnage of France being but 500,000, that of England amounts to 3,000,000. By the same standard the maritime strength of England and that of the United States may be compared; and they stand thus—England has 3,000,000—America has already 2,000,000. This is the relative position, not of countries whose distance has long maintained a stationary proportion, but of countries, the second placed of whom is gaining upon the first by strides almost incredible. Fifteen years, perhaps—twenty years certainly—will reserve their position in the race.

England will not go to war with America on account of Texas, nor on account of Oregon; and scarcely on account of any thing else that the new world contains. England will be especially cautious of going to war with America, or dashing herself against the compact constitution of her States, when she reflects that America is a country with whom foreign nations are ambitious to become united, while she herself is a country from whose merciless gripe kindled nations struggle to be released.

England! keep cool—don't go to war. Be content to show your abhorrence of slavery by robbing your people of two annual millions at home, to put them into the pockets of the ex-slave drivers of the West Indies. Do not exhibit your philanthropy by dashing your brittle empire against the iron-clamped federations of America."

Thanks to the Freeman's Journal for the picture which it draws of our real strength, and our increasing resources. Let us preserve our glorious Union; augment our resources; strengthen our frontiers, both on the seaboard and on the West; enlarge our steam power on a scale somewhat suitable to the augmentation of the maritime nations of Europe, and we may defy a world in arms.

Great Britain had better pursue the advice of the scriptures—take the beam out of her own eye, before she spies the mote in ours. Her illiberal press is constantly complaining of our progress, our territorial acquisitions, and our alleged ambition. She forgets that we but wish to reacquire Texas, which was once ours; and to assert our just rights over Oregon. She remembers to forget, too, her own ambitious and insatiable thirst for power; the commercial points she has acquired; the territory she is constantly acquiring in the East. In that quarter of the globe, her spirit of aggrandizement is forever at work, and year after year, adding state after state and kingdom after kingdom, to the circle of her extensive dominions. She acquires Afghanistan, Scinde, Panjab, &c., &c., to her extended possessions, and at the same time, she affects to be horrified at the annexation of Texas to the United States. We shall republish the portrait which is drawn of her Carthaginian spirit of acquisition, by Mr. Cushing, and in the meantime, we repeat the striking view presented by Mr. Bowlin, of Missouri, in his speech in Congress. By means of Gibault, she commands the entrance to the Mediterranean, southern Europe, and northwestern Africa; by Malta and the Ionian Islands, the Archipelago, Egypt, and a portion of the Turkish empire; by St. Helena, the South Atlantic; by the Cape of Good Hope, the south and southeast coast of Africa up to the Red Sea. Thus, in the words of Mr. Bowlin, "surrounding this whole continent at every available point, with her fortifications from Malta to Capetown," by the Isle of France, the Indian ocean; and by Hindoostan and the island of Ceylon, the destiny of southern Asia, from Persia to China, and the Indian ocean to the Black Sea; by her possessions in the bay of Bengal, the empire of Burmah; by Australia, she has a key to the whole commerce of the Indies. Upon our own coast, she surrounds us with a chain of military possessions extending from Nova Scotia to Bermuda, in the latitude of Savannah and Trinidad, near the continent of South America. To complete her power over North America, she endeavored to obtain the Sandwich Islands; and some century before, under Drake, a foothold upon the possessions of Spain on the shores of the Pacific.

But more anon.

Curious.—At Croydon, N. H., on Monday week, a phenomenon occurred, if correctly reported, which is somewhat rare. The Newport Argus says: "We learn from a gentleman of Croydon, that a mysterious natural phenomenon was noticed near the centre of that town on Monday evening. The atmosphere was filled with minute particles of light for a space of nearly half a mile in breadth, and extending as far above as the eye could reach, having the appearance and odor of phosphorus in an ignited state. It created an illumination sufficient to enable our informant to recognize objects within its range, which were invisible in the darkness that preceded it. Its appearance was instantaneous, and was visible for a space of half an hour. The ignition was increased, and the illumination made more vivid by motion. Our informant was convinced of this fact by whirling his whip in the air, which, after a few revolutions, would become entirely covered by the ignited substance, and to appearance flashed with vivid light. The phenomenon is singular and unusual, if not unprecedented, and is well worthy the investigation of scientific men."

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.

The Coopers of the city of Nauvoo wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that they are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyrum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets; who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West-rn prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.

WM. EARL, President.
HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counsellors
CYRUS WINGATE,
HUGH LITTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANGDAGE, Secretary.

May 18, 1845—3m

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois. said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50tf

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses. —Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 105 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3 1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI, FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 10 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs, situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Lines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—49tf

ALSO: A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie town, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulston, of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15-50tf

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE SUBSCRIBER having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river, between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.
March 24,—47tf

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinet ware, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch forks, &c. Any thing that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buckwheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-43tf

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845-14tf

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale or retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845-43tf

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere. N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19-42tf

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the great prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18-46tf

EARTHENWARE! EARTHENWARE!!

J. GROUETT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity; that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844. no41-1f.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparation for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended; ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Insipidity and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The her Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER. This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

KEYSTONE STORE.

A. A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearsley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints, his friends and the public, with DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES; as they may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.

Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle: our interest; our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.

One man is not every body, but he may do much good by turning a penny when he sells Goods, Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c., CHEAP for cash, produce, and truck, or exchanges fairly. Call and try.

NOTICE.

PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the old numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

A. W. BABBITT,

Attorney at Law.

HAS removed his office to the city of Nauvoo and has taken the office occupied by the late General Joseph Smith, where he will be ready to attend to any, or all business committed to his trust.

Oct. 9, 1844-23tf

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his prices:

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	do	plain	2.50
do	do	do	neat	3.00
do	do	do	neat	3.50
do	do	do	neat	4.00
do	do	do	extra	4.50
do	do	do	neat	5.00
do	do	do	neat	5.50
do	do	do	neat	6.00
do	do	do	neat	6.50
do	do	do	neat	7.00
do	do	do	neat	7.50

A. other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1844.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH, ATHERTON, MASTER, WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Rock Island, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. On her upward trip, she will leave Nauvoo for Rock Island every Wednesday at six P. M. Returning will leave Nauvoo for St. Louis every Saturday at 6 A. M. In proof of accommodations the Amaranth is surmounted by no boat on the upper Mississippi; and her officers will spare no pains to render her worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to A. MORRISON, Agent.

Nauvoo, April 30th, 52tf

MERMAID:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, GLEIM, MASTER, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings; and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as plausibility was more gold, than tricks and ferocity. For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent.

for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-1f

OSPREY:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, ANDERSON, MASTER, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip, she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Mondays; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive at St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evans' Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.

Jan. 1, 1845-53tf

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be exceeded in the Western States; we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Chariottes, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Buggy Wagons, Hearsees, Spotters, Frosting Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also, Ploughs, Scythes, Rakes, &c., &c., which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Waer street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices, for we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Prest.
ELIJAH FORDHAM, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
BURN FROST.
DAVID DE VOL.
JOSHUA SMITH.
DAVID W. FOX.
SHADRACH DRIGGS.
DWIGHT WEBSTER.
JESSE H. ATHERTON.
WM. LISK.

Jan. 15th, 1845-37-1f

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, June 11, 1845.

Whole Number 162

Volume 3.—No. 6.

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Editor and Proprietor.

At the residence of Miss and Mrs. K. A. Street,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 annually in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal discount will be made to regular subscribers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor) Post Paid, to receive attention.

EXTRACT

FROM AN ESSAY OF MR. JONES.

On the Duty of Parents and Teachers.

and the Rights of Children.

Men have used a variety of similes to convey to us their ideas of the infant mind. Some compare it to a piece of unfaded ground; others to a sheet of white paper, &c., meaning thereby its susceptibility to any kind of vegetation, or as a sheet of paper, of receiving any characters on its surface that men are pleased to imprint there. This represents my idea of the mind of an infant in the earliest stage of its existence. But it is no more of this simple idea than it begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

begins to combine and compare. It

laws and usages of society his cast, grade and respectability of standing before he had taken his place in it; and wholly irrespective of his just claims or merits—What has he had to do with the alteration of his rights or with the usurpation of the rights of others? If claims to be equal to the son of a prince, and is content to be considered no way superior to the child of the leech. The bare contemplation of his character in view of the fact that all men are born free and equal.

The infant finds itself surrounded by its parents, and others of its own species, from whom it at first receives (passively) impressions, which indelibly fix themselves on its memory. It soon becomes capable of imitation. Its character becomes a transcript of that of its parents and others about it, who are often delighted at seeing even their voices, reflected from the pure mirror of the infant mind. Their acts, words and even looks, are treasured up in the memory, to be repeated whenever an opportunity occurs. Almost all parents are desirous of cultivating amiable and honest dispositions in their children, however indifferent to be about their own characters; but it is to be feared that there is a greater amount of bad than good example in most families. There are few children on whom there have not been told falsehoods, unmanly, either in sport, or to answer some present purpose. Such a child must be a dull scholar if he does not instinctively become a liar and a villain in a considerable degree for there is a kind of necessity for adopting such a character. Children believe implicitly all that is told them by older persons, and finding their credulity repeatedly abused they are induced to withhold confidence in all cases, become suspicious and acquire a habit of contradiction. The confidence of children would be as invariable a course in the rising of the sun if the integrity of those with whom they have to do were as invariable. Many gentlemen of my acquaintance, who are apparently of the most affable and pacific tempers and dispositions when abroad, among their neighbors, if followed home, will be found upon crossing their own threshold to be wholly transformed. The countenance assumes a stern and their language and actions are anything but kind and pleasant and all this is without any apparent cause. Surrounded by a family, consisting of a lovely wife and a number of children, in whose smiling faces are delineated to the best advantage the outlines of his own features, one would suppose, here, if any where on the face of the wide world, all discord and peevishness would vanish. But this disposition (if it be a disposition) is not thrown off until they merge again into the world.

Is this so bad an example? Is the worst side of their character a fit pattern for the imitation of their children? Good precepts come with a bad grace from a parent in such a mood.

Advice to Husbands.—In the slightest case of sisterly frailty, (says Panché) be an indulgent man. It is the easiest and cheapest way of firing your own excessive gold stars. Now and then too, you can, with great profit to yourself, of course, hazard suspicions of some of your neighbors.

Suspicion, skillfully used, is an excellent thing.

Like dust of rouge, if very tenderly laid on, it throws in fine relief the natural beauty of the wearer. Rouge is a harmless little fib, that lies, as somebody says, like truth, and so I like it, is, if properly applied, a slight suspicion; they may both color false modesty.

There is too, a sort of side-wind way that will enable you at once to please and tease your husband.

Jehonny, that is, a happy affection of the passion, is a wonderful weapon in a skillful hand.

Therefore, when walking with the poor man, declare that he looks at every woman he meets and stalks accordingly. Some times after the accusation, and declare that every woman he meets looks at him.

From this assumed fact you can make any deductions, and endeavour, in a torrent of words to declare how very, very miserable you ought to be.

The man, of course, must think himself dear to you, or wherefore such fantastic jealousy? He must feel, though with a feeling of wretchedness, that you love him, or wherefore show that you love him, or wherefore show the love with so much misery to him? Does not pass love to live, yet wounded mouse who bites and scratches? Again as to temper, never let it be certain. Husbands I know them, presume upon evenness of temper. Now let your husband feel that he is never safe. He will accordingly be gentle, watchful in his manner. Hence, be at times in the most exuberant spirits; and then, with a thought, at some unconscious look of your husband, some playful word, have a mute tongue and brows of threatening thunder. In your very gayest moments let your helpmate feel as if he is called upon to admire some curious gun, very beautiful, but to be most carefully handled lest it go off and destroy him.

The New York Evening Mirror, translates the following from a French paper. It describes a ball which it would have been pleasant to attend:

A firebrand has been thrown among the belles of Paris in the shape of a royal decree, "that the twelve new statues, ordered to complete the establishments of the gardens of the Luxembourg, be modelled from the twelve most beautiful women now reigning as belles in Paris!"

It was thought by the King that marble enough had been devoted to the heathen gods and goddesses. But his Majesty, with all his knowledge of the world, had little foreseen the frenzied emulation he was now exciting. The applications—the certificates of beauties undecorated except in marble, the heaped up influence for one beauty and another, the revelations made to the sculptors likely to be employed; and the plotting and counterplotting to be recommended by influential persons—have exceeded all the competitions by which the court was ever before made busy and bitter.

The selection was at last delegated to the Duchess of Decizes, and her recent ball presented a most unexpected character. Her invitations had been for a modern assembly, in plain dress, but it turned out to be a fancy ball of the most extraordinary varieties of the statuette and classical! Scarce a woman under fifty came without some symptom of one of the heathen goddesses. Minerva of all ages, Venuses, Dianes, Junos, Graces and Muses, it was like a scene at Jupiter's!

Towards the close of the evening, the excitement became so great that there was a general demand for an immediate decision by votes thrown into an urn. The goddesses were attitudinizing about the room, their eyes flashing fire, and their most sculpture-like proportions swelling into the lines of beauty—but the Duchess feared the reaction. It was wisely and firmly resisted, and the celestials went home to their nominal goddesses. It has since been decided that the rivalry was too exasperating, and the project of modern goddesses has been abandoned.

Money Digging.—The Hampden (Mass.) Post tells a story about the jail at Springfield, who was persuaded by a negro in prison to take him to Westfield, where he (the negro) had concealed a large amount of treasure. They went in the night, dug in two or three places, of course to no effect, and at length came to a place where the negro measured off a given distance from a certain tree, and striking his spade into the ground, he exclaimed in a tone of triumph—"Here it is! I am mistaken this time, no how!"

Now take off my handcuffs, Boss Day, and I'll show you something worth looking at.

The handcuffs were removed, and in an instant, instead of feasting his eyes on sparkling gems and uncouth treasures, Deputy Day found himself lying upon his back and surveying the stars.

When he regained his feet, there was the spade, there the handcuffs, and there, too, stood Deputy Day; but the prisoner had fled, leaving his old hat as security for his return. The deputy returned to Springfield a wiser man.

Banditti in Bohemia.—Recently, says a late English paper, a party set out from Breslau on an excursion of pleasure to the Kitzschebirge, on the Bohemian frontier, and arrived among the Giant mountains just in time to take their part in a fierce conflict between a gang of banditti and the host of the mountain inn, bravely supported by his servants. The banditti, it appears, had made an inquiry at St. Peters, respecting the property contained in the inn keeper's house, and had ascertained at what time they were least likely to meet other visitors there. Had it not been for the unexpected arrival of the strangers, there is little doubt that the greater part of the inmates would have been murdered. The arrival of the reinforcements did not, however, put the miscreants to flight; on the contrary, it was not until they had wounded several of the party, and were themselves covered with wounds, that they were induced to surrender. They were then secured, and delivered over to the police at Hohenelbe.

One of the bravos proved to be a travelling journeyman baker, another was a man who keeps a shop for the sale of fancy goods in a town not far from the place, and a third appears to be a man of independent property. One of them attempted to escape by a stratagem, which is frequently practised by the Italian banditti. He pretended to be dying, and demanded priestly consolation in his last moments. The good-natured mountain-men, moved by his penitence, released him from his bonds, whereupon he started up, stabbed several of those who were standing near him, and attempted to rush out of the house. He was caught, however, and re-secured.

Agricultural

POTATOES.

The malady which has prevailed for a year or two, among potatoes, may operate as a discouragement to planting them as extensively as formerly. We venture not to give an opinion, from the little that is yet known in regard to the origin of this disease, or to recommend any specific remedy; but, from what we have seen, should not hesitate to adopt the following rules in planting, cultivation, &c.

1. To plant on loamy soils, of medium dryness. 2. If stable manure is used, let it be well mixed with the soil, and not left (especially if unfertilized) in too great a quantity in the hill. 3. Plant good sized, sound potatoes, cutting only the largest ones. Very small potatoes, or small pieces, are not likely to sprout vigorously as large ones. The first food of the young plant is the substance of the old potato, and the greater the supply of this food, the more rapid, of course is the early growth of the shoot. It is true, that under entirely favorable circumstances of soil, season, &c., the shoot from a small potato or small pieces, may succeed, and the product from them in such cases, may not be much less; but it is reasonable that the shoot from a good sized sound potato would be stronger, and less disposed to suffer from any unfavorable influences belonging either to the soil or atmosphere.

4. Plant as early as the ground is in a proper state. Many cases might be cited where early planted potatoes escaped the blight or disease, and produced a crop, when the same variety, planted later on a piece immediately adjoining, were much injured.

5. Plant only varieties of known hardiness. Much depends on this. Some kinds have always been remarkable for their healthy, hardy constitutions; at the same time producing more than others under the same circumstances. Of the feeble sorts, there is the Merce, called also Chenango, Mesmaie, (corrupted from Neshannock) which from its supposed or acknowledged good qualities for the table, has been widely cultivated for several years past; but which has always been subject to blight—more so than most other kinds. We are not aware of any good qualities possessed by this potato that are not to be had in several other kinds, which have the advantage of greater hardiness and productiveness as well as soundness.

6. In cultivation, keep the crop clean from the "first start," but avoid ploughing or working it when the ground is so wet as to be in the least muddy, and do not use the plough or cultivator after the blossoms appear; as a mutilation of the roots after this may damage the setting of the tubers. Having used all these, and other reasonable precautions, we may say in the language of a witty disciple of Esculapian—

"If after that they choose to die,

Why, verily, I let 'em."

[Albany Cult.]

CORN STALK SUGAR.

The various experiments made the past season in the manufacture of this article, were attended with very different degrees of success. In one instance a farmer in Indiana succeeded in producing at the rate of 500 lbs. of fair sugar of fair quality to the acre. In other cases the experiments failed to make crystallized sugar. It is due to truth to say, that the greater number of the experiments resulted in either partial or entire failure, or at least in such a limited measure of success as would make the production of it unprofitable. Still the fact that in some instances the result was otherwise, shows that the profitable manufacture of sugar from the corn-stalk is possible—and the failures may well be attributed to those imperfections in the process which always accompany the infancy of an art, and which subsequent experience will remove.

It is the opinion of Dr. Jackson that the sugar in the corn stalk exists in two different states, in different periods of its growth. At first in a state not admitting of crystallization—that of grape sugar. Afterwards, when it has attained the proper degree of maturity, in the state of crystallizable or cane sugar. He thinks that the great point is to ascertain precisely the right period to cut the stalk; and to determine this, experiments are to be instituted the ensuing season, and conducted with great care.

He further suggests that it may be the preferable way to dry the stalks, and reserve the manufacture of the sugar until winter; which, if feasible, would have the obvious advantage of deferring the work until the farmer has a season of leisure. This drying process is extensively pursued by the French, in the manufacture of sugar from the beet.

In an experiment made by him, to test the comparative purity of corn stalk and cane sugar, the result of a careful analysis was, that the two specimens, one from the corn stalk, and the other fair Havana sugar were precisely equal.

The inference derivable from the facts thus far developed relating to this subject, would seem to be, that while the art is not yet sufficiently advanced, to enable us to recommend the extensive culture of corn for this purpose as a source of profit, enough has been done to make it an interesting field of experiment, and to lead without extravagance to a hope of ultimate success.

In preparing a field for this purpose, plant very closely—say, hills three feet apart one way, and one and a half the other; or better, plant in drills with a corn-planter—dropping a seed every six inches. Cultivate in the usual manner, and when the ears form pull them off. It is recommended to cut the stalks when the leaves are dead about one-third up. Press out the juice and boil immediately.

A Man a Mesmerizer in spite of himself.—In the Christmas of the year 1842 we dined at a friend's house with a party of eight, (numeric perfection for a dinner party, according to the ingenious author of the original) in the evening. Mackay's book on popular delusions being on the table, some one asked if the author had treated on Mesmerism. Upon this, one of the party who had recently returned from London—a man who had lived a studious life, and of a highly nervous temperament—said he had lately witnessed a Mesmeric exhibition, and he would undertake to mesmerize any one present. Upon this, two or three ladies volunteered as patients, and he commenced experimenting upon a lady of some twenty-five years, whom he had known intimately from childhood, clever and well-read, but rather imaginative. To make the thing more ridiculous he knelt on both knees, and commenced making passes with both hands slowly before her eyes, telling her, when ever she took her eyes off, to look fixedly at him, and keeping a perfectly grave face when every body round was laughing unreservedly. After this had endured some three minutes, the lady's eyes gradually closed, she fell forward and was only prevented further falling by being caught by the Mesmerizer. He shook her and in a rough manner brought her to her senses; then, fearing she had been purposely deceiving him, questioned her seriously as to whether her sleep was feigned or real. She assured him it was not stimulated, that the sensation was irresistible, different from that of ordinary sleep, by no means unpleasant, and that the only disagreeable part was the being roused. Upon this the gentleman declared he knew nothing of Mesmerism, and that had he believed there was anything in it he would not have attempted the joke. Another lady present, married and having a family, was now most anxious to have the experiment repeated upon her. She said she had before sat to an experienced Mesmerizer who had failed, and she was still incredulous and believed that M— had merely given way to an imaginative temperament. It required considerable persuasion to induce the gentleman who had before operated, to try any more experiments. He protested that he knew nothing about it—that he had once seen a person said to be in Mesmeric state, but that if he succeeded again in inducing coma, he knew not at all how to awake the patient. Curiously enough, he was instructed with manipulation by the sceptical patient, who had previous seen public Mesmeric exhibitions. After some further persuasion, and with permission of the other lady's husband who was present, he commenced again the same passes as with the former patient, the only difference being, that he was in this case sitting instead of kneeling.

The patient kept constantly bursting into fits of laughter, and as constantly apologizing, telling him that his gravity of face was irresistible. Of the other persons present, some laughed—others were too much frightened to laugh, but they kept a constant running fire of comment, satirical and serious upon the Mesmerist. In four or five minutes the fits of laughter of the latter assumed a rather unnatural character. It was evident she forced herself to laugh in spite of the strongest disinclination, and in a minute or two more she became fixed—the features all rigid (except the lower lip, which was convulsed,) and pale as a corpse. The by-standers now much frightened, interfered, and laid hold of the Mesmeriser. After some time, water being given her to drink, she came to herself, and appeared not to have suffered from the experiment.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Earthquakes at Mexico.—A brief account of the dreadful effects of an earthquake experienced on the 7th April, at the city of Mexico, was given in our last. Another occurred there at 10 A. M. on the 10th April, which lasted 40 seconds, prostrating many buildings which had escaped the previous visitation, and completing the ruin of many that were then injured. The frightened inhabitants fled to the open fields as the safest resort. The "Hesperian" of the 12th, states that the earthquake of the 10th completed the destruction of the cupola of Santa Teresa, and increased the damage done to the churches of Santo Domingo and San Francisco. But for the shortness of its duration, the entire city would have been laid in ruins. Mexico did not suffer alone. The shock was felt in a number of towns and villages within a radius of several hundred miles. At Puebla, the earthquake was experienced on the 7th, about 4 o'clock, P. M., but its effects were comparatively slight. Several churches were injured and many private edifices were greatly damaged; though none were absolutely destroyed. A Acapulco and Toluca the effects of the shock were more considerable. At Guadalupe, Morelia, and Vera Cruz, the earthquake was experienced both on the 7th and 10th, but on neither occasion was the damage very serious.

Mineral Resources.—We learn from the report of the committee on agriculture, made at the last session of the Legislature of this state, and there are five principal, and several other minor mines of gold and silver, in Randolph county, Alabama, producing about $125,000 annually and employing from three to five hundred people. There are inexhaustible beds of fine iron ore in the same county. There are also rich mines of gold and silver in Tallapoosa, and gold has also been found in Coosa, Talladege, and Chambers. Iron foundries have been established in Benton and Talladege. Nitre is found in abundance in Blount. There are immense quantities of coal on this side of Tuscaloosa, and in many other places. Salt can be manufactured near Jackson, in Clarke county; iron ore, marble granite, limestone, &c. are also found in this county. Lead ore, in large quantities, and of excellent quality, is found in the bed of the Tennessee on the Muscle Shoals.

Henri Honore Janvier de Grenier. D'Audouard St. Paul, Marquis de Fegers, was yesterday arrested by the sheriff's officer, on the charge of accepting a challenge to fight a duel. He gave bail in the sum of $2000—as he was required to do by the Judge of the Criminal court—to keep the peace and was discharged. From his title, our readers will perceive that he is a foreigner—a Frenchman, we understand. The party who sent the challenge has not been arrested.

For ourselves, we are not anxious to know where he came from, but if it was not to be considered impertinent, we should like to know where he got such a name, and who were his sponsors. It is a name by St. Paul, under which any man but a Count or a Marquis must sink with exhaustion from its weight.—[N. O. Pic. of the 20th.]

Salt Plain.—An officer of the U. S. dragoons, writing to the New Orleans Tropic an account of the incidents of an expedition across the prairie, makes mention of a vast plain, miles in extent and level as a table entirely covered with a thin cake of salt, which shone in the sun like a vast mirror. Little pools were found on the plain, strongly impregnated with salt and very offensive to the taste.

Russia.—Population Statistics.—It is ascertained by a recent census, that Russia possesses 62,500,000 inhabitants. Of this number the serfs are put down at 49,734,000. There are also 300,000 Germans, two millions of Tartars, (Machomedans,) 2,182,000 Jews, 5,000 foreigners, consisting of Italians, French, or Greeks, and 25,000 Bohemians.

LATE FROM AFRICA.

The barque Adario, Brown, arrived at New York on Monday morning from Sierra Leone, after a passage of 36 days.

A brigantine, with four hundred and seventy-five slaves on board, a prize to H. B. M. ship Wasp, arrived at Sierra Leone on the 11th of April. A large Brazilian brig, having on board more than six hundred slaves, a prize to H. B. M. ship Albatross, arrived at Sierra Leone on the 15th of April. Since the capture of this vessel more than one hundred of the slaves had died.

Mrs. C. A. Connelly, a member of the Presbyterian mission in Africa, came passenger in the Adario.

The barque California left Monrovia on the 7th of February for Cape Palmas, with the Rev. G. Perkins and family, and Rev. Mr. Appleton and lady.

The U. S. ship Jamestown, Commander Cunningham, arrived at Monrovia on the 1st of March from Port Praya.

The U. S. brig Truxton, Commander Bruce has left Monrovia for the coast.

Capt. Brown has favored us with the Liberia Herald of March 15, from which we gather the following:

His excellency the Governor returned to Monrovia on the 7th of March, from a visit to the leeward settlement. While at Sinoe he completed the purchase of the entire Sinoe country.

The Commissioners appointed by the Governor to settle a dispute between the chiefs of Little Bassa, and to complete the purchase of the whole country, succeeded fully in carrying out their instructions. The whole Bassa country is now the bona fide property of the colony. The chiefs also agreed to have no more derby parties.

U. S. ship Preble.—The Herald says that the U. S. sloop of war Preble has been most unfortunate as regards the health of her crew. The last intelligence from her gives seventeen as her loss by death, and seventy in the sick list.

Electricity Applied to Vegetation.

Some very interesting experiments have recently been made in the north of Scotland, to test the effects resulting from the application of galvanism to the growth and production of plants, and applied upon an extensive scale. The experiment was tried, says the New York Gazette, upon a portion of a field of barley, which produced at the rate of thirteen quarters and a half to the acre, while the surrounding land, similarly treated in all other respects, produced the usual quantity of five or six quarters to the acre, the electric barley weighing, moreover 2 lbs. to the bushel more than the other.

The mode in which the fluid is collected and applied, to influence the seed, as detailed by the Gazette, is very simple. The field is divided into oblong squares, 70 yards long, and 40 wide—containing, therefore, just one acre. At each of the angles of the square, pegs are driven into the ground and four strong iron wires are attached—communicating with each other—so as to form a square of wire, and sunk three inches below the surface, at two points, directly opposite, in the centre of the short sides of the oblong, poles are fixed in the ground fifteen feet high, and a wire, communicating with the cross wire beneath the surface, is carried up one of the poles, and along the centre of the square to the other, down which it is conducted, and attached to the cross wire beneath the surface at that point—the square being so formed as to run from north to south, so that this upper wire shall be at right angles with the equator. As a considerable body of electricity is generated in the atmosphere, and travels constantly from east to west, with the motion of the earth, thus electricity is attracted by this upper wire, and communicated to those forming the square under the surface of the ground.

It is suggested, however, that any quantity of electricity can be generated by placing under the ground, at a point, in the centre of one of the longer sides of the oblong, a bag of charcoal, and plates of zinc, at the point directly opposite on the other side, connecting the other two by a wire passing over two poles similar to those mentioned in the preceding account, and crossing the longitudinal wire passing from those poles.

The cost at which this application can be made is computed at one pound per acre, and it is reckoned to last ten or fifteen years—the wires being carefully taken up and replaced each year.

This discovery, continues the Gazette, is certainly one of the most important of modern days, and would compensate fully for the giving out of chocolate, even were poudrette, and other methods of manuring the ground, also exhausted.

An Ingenious Balance.—The Tomahawk Balance is said to be an ingenious article of weighing letters. It is made of cast iron. The handle of the tomahawk, which extends only about two inches above the blade, is hollow, and contains a spiral spring, to which is attached a steel rod, which extends up above the handle, through an aperture being provided with friction rollers, to prevent variation from friction. On the top of this rod the plate to receive the letter is placed. To the bottom of the rod is attached a lever, (the fulcrum being close by,) which extends out into the blade of the tomahawk, (which is also hollow,) and at the edge is a brass plate, graduated to show weights from a half ounce to eight ounces. A letter being then put upon the plate, it depresses it accordingly to its weight, which is indicated by the motion of the lever, pointing out the weight of the brass plate. The whole concern is very compact, and does not occupy more than about six inches square by two deep.—Organ.

The Gathering of the Huguenots.—A new French, or Huguenot church, recently erected in Charleston, S. C., was dedicated, Sunday before last, with religious solemnities of the most interesting character. The dedicatory sermon was preached by the Rev. Charles Wallace, which was said to have been an effort of great eloquence.

It is surprising to us no little that the descendants of the Huguenots have suffered the anniversary of the arrival of their forefathers in this country to pass, year after year, without any mark of respect for the day or token of veneration for the virtues and hardy daring of their ancestors. Whilst the New Englanders celebrate with great fervor the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, the Southerners make no ado over that of the coming hither of the men who exiled themselves, on account of religious persecutions, from the continent of Europe. And yet the Huguenot was as proud a specimen of nature's noblest work as the Pilgrim. He was borne to this hemisphere upon the wings of a faith equally pure. He exiled himself from his native land from impulses as lofty, and his descendants have been equally conspicuous for patriotism in the wars that established and those that sustained the Republic. In council they have been quite as distinguished and in enterprise as worthy members of society. A large portion of the Huguenots who left France, about the time of the repeal of the Edict of Nantz emigrated to South Carolina. Their descendants are numerous in the Palmetto State, and we suggest the propriety of their establishing an annual festival in commemoration of the event. The people of New England, in whatever State of the Union they may be, hold a fête on the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims—the landing of the Huguenots presented an occasion equally interesting for future commemoration.

[N. O. Picayune.]

Napoleon and the Twelve Apostles.—Napoleon having entered one of the cities of Italy, the holy fathers recommended to him the relics of their church. "Sir, will you deign to take our Apostles under your protection?" "Your Apostles!—Are they of wood?" "No, sir." "Of what are they then?" "Of silver, sir—of solid silver!" "Of solid silver!" replied Napoleon quickly; "yes, I shall help them to fulfill their mission; it is ordained that they should go throughout the world and they shall!" Having said so, the Emperor sent the Twelve Apostles to the mint at Paris.

[N. O. Picayune.]

GENERAL JACKSON.
Extract of a letter from General Jackson to the President, dated 9th May:
"I must close. I am greatly afflicted. I am swollen from the toes to the crown of the head, and in bandage to my hips. What may be the result God only knows. I am prepared calmly to submit to his will. My whole house salutes you and lady; and may God preside over and give you a successful and beneficial administration to our beloved country."
Your friend sincerely,
ANDREW JACKSON.

Heroic Nigger.—A tall Ehiopcan, says the New York True Sun, got "corned" the other afternoon in the lower part of the city, and hired two boys for a dollar to row him out in a boat, about half a mile, beyond Governor's Island. When they had arrived there, he ordered the boys to stow their oars, paid them the promised dollar, and proceeded to tie round his neck a rope, to the end of which was attached a bag of sand, weighing some twenty or thirty pounds. The boys became alarmed and began to row ashore, upon which he threatened to throw them overboard. "I am going," said he, "to see how they treat nigger souls down below;" and these words were hardly spoken when he plunged into the water. Fortunately he spilled the sand bag, and the adventurous ducky came to the surface of the water. The water cooled his curiosity, and he roared lustily for assistance.

Running Dog Expresses.—The French Courier of New York states, that two Englishmen in Belgium have formed a company to run a letter express on the rail road, by harnessing greyhounds to light cars and suspending bits of meat before them by a rod extending forward from the carriage! They travel it is said, with prodigious velocity, and have the advantage over engines of giving out no cinders to the eyes of passengers.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1845.

RE-ANNEXATION OF THE MORMONS.

Notwithstanding the cowardly, and mean course of the State Register, and some others in trading off the Mormons as they "foolishly" thought, still we understand the upper ten thousand at a recent council in Springfield, have determined not to run a democratic candidate for the next governor, unless a law abiding man, and one too, who will be worthy of the Mormon vote. We also understand the whigs have come to the just conclusion that they will oppose mobocracy, and go in for the supremacy of the law.

So, as a matter of course, we shall see the wisdom of the whigs throughout the length and breadth of the land, by their works, and the world knows that we appreciate good works.

As to the re-annexation of the Mormons to the democrats, we will tell Martin Van Buren's old Jack story. The dutchman, after old Jack died, went to a painter to get the old negro drawn to the life. The painter went at it, painted a fine hickory tree with a squirrel out upon a limb nibbling at a nut; the negro's dog Jowler at a proper distance off, watching him; and old Jack's gun leaning up against the tree; and then carried the picture to the Dutchman. Mat viewed it closely and giving a significant whiff of his pipe, he said, dre is de tree, de squirrel, de little tog, and; old Jack's gun leaning up against de tree, but where is old Jack?

"O he is behind the tree!" says the painter. "Wall wally!" says Mat, ole Jack always us'd to get behind de tree, when he wanted to make a good shot.

Iana.—There is a paper in New York, called the "young America." The object of the paper is to bring the land out of monopolists hands and distribute it "equally" among all classes of people. The object is a good one, but when the land becomes what it should be, the whole earth may sing blisiana.

The Fire continued.—York in Livingston county, N. Y. a few days since, was pretty much destroyed by fire. Peoria, (Ill.) was visited recently by fire, which devoured 10 or $12000 worth of horses and property.

The Art of Navigation.—Secretary Walker, says the Chicgo Democrat, wants the general government to construct a ship canal from lake Michigan to the Mississippi river, for sloops of war and vessels of commerce. Good, walk ahead.

Sleek and long-headed.—Ned Crosswell of the Albany Argus, it is said, is to assist old father Ritchie in the "Union" at Washington. Now look out for "sol emu" (no, marble) "Temples" as well as "cloud capt towers." Crosswell is a sleek, long-headed patriot for his pocket.

Horse Racing.—There has been much racing, the past season, at the various courses in the United States, but as horse-racing, gambling, swearing, drinking and the other thing, have so little respectability connected with them, in point of honor and virtue, we have not thought it advisable to chronicle the results.

Unique.—Mr. Wright, write rite right! yes, says Mr Payr, because I pare a pear with a pair of scissors. Why Mr Wair, were I you, I guess they would beware that I wear ware from Waire.

Great Improvement at Carthage.—The total eclipse at Carthage, during the past year, since the cavillari of the late court has been succeeded by the commencement of a stable within a quarter of a mile of town:—So says a friend. Ain't that great.

Trip to St. Peters.—The War-Eagle, on the 25th inst, at 4 P. M. will leave this place on a pleasure excursion to St. Peters and the Falls of Anthony. The officers are first rate fellows; the boat is a seifier, the country is romantic, and it must be a pleasure trip, sure enough! Good music, good company, and a few good news-papers, will cure the dyspepsia enui, and the gold quake. Go, you that can.

Money.—The Buck-eyes, have so many nick-names for paper money, that a common man needs a patent dictionary to keep pace. They have the "yellow dog," "red cat," "smooth monkey," "blue pup," and the "sick Indian"—all kept alive by a promise that it will turn into "rhino."

AND SO FORTHIANA.

During the last two months, between twelve and thirteen millions of dollars worth of property has been consumed by fire in the United States. Oil losses and damages not estimated.

Earthquake.—On the 29th ultimo, the inhabitants of Montreal experienced a shock of an earthquake. It occurred at about half past four o'clock in the afternoon, and was felt principally in the suburbs. The concussion lasted about a second, and was sufficiently strong to cause houses to vibrate sensibly, and throw down heavy articles of furniture. The shock was felt in several other places at the same time.

A Comet was discovered at Princeton, N. J. the 6th ult., by Professor Alexander of the College, while looking at the eclipse of the Sun. It is thought to be the comet discovered at Rome in February last.

Fire in Zanesville.—We find the following letter in the Cincinnati Enquirer:

Zanesville, May 27, 1845. We had a most disastrous fire at this place last night, and what adds to the terror of it, it was the work of an incendiary, the lower bridge, together with all the buildings attached to it on the Putnam side, was destroyed: the bridge was an entire loss.

A Jew named Harvey, was fined $4 and costs, in Philadelphia, recently, for doing business on the Christian Sabbath.

Ordered to Quit.—Mr. Alexander Atocha, a citizen of the United States engaged in commercial pursuits at the city of Mexico, was ordered a short time since to quit the Republic in eight days. A remonstrance was despatched by the American Minister to the Mexican government, but the allotted period allowed to Mr. Atocha expired, and he was forced to depart for Vera Cruz, from whence he sailed for New York.

Latest News.—A new paper has just started at Milwaukee with the motto—"devoted to the removal of J. A. Nooman as Postmaster of Milwaukee, and to be continued until that object is effected."

A Priest with money!—Drum him up!—The Galena Gazette, of the 23rd ult., says:—"One hundred dollars were stolen from the carpet bag of a passenger on the steamer Reville, while lying at the wharf, the early part of this week. The person robbed was a Presbyterian preacher."

Rub-a-dub!—Says the Reville, an kouli-khan, says the Neighbor; the Scripture says: "Provide neither gold nor silver, nor brass in your purses, nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves: for the workman is worthy of his meat."

Hark!—Benton's bob-tailed proph-et No. 6, of the Reporter, says:—"The Missourian repudiates the lead of Col. Benton. This is a strange move in that quarter."

Sure enough! what is a lead Penn good for?

Hellish.—A wicked boy set fire to a little girls' clothes in Baltimore, with a Lucifer match. A gentleman extinguished it, but not until both were severely burned. That boy should be put into the Navy under McKenzie.

Weighty.—About 47,000,000 lbs. of lead were shipped from Galena last year. Nothing, according to bulk, is heavier, except Congress speeches, the sin of Davis of Alton and the mob, and the wit of Penn of the Reporter.

A Female Pickpocket.—The New York Gazette says that a dashing lady, who keeps a millinery store in that city, was on Wednesday week taken before the sitting magistrate to answer to a charge of picking the pocket of a pretty little demoiselle, calling herself Miss Catharine Falk. The charge was denied, but the milliner was committed.

Hooking.—John Hooker was hooked into court at St. Louis for hooking; plead guilty, and was hooked into the penitentiary for two years.

Embargo on News.—Lord Denham has decided upon the Queen's bench, that "an editor has no right to publish any paragraph before he has ascertained, that the assertion made in it is absolutely true." With equal propriety, we say a judge has no right to decide a case unless he saw the fact himself. Tale bearers, and false witnesses are as plenty as gooseberries.

A fire occurred at Wallabout, on the 21st ult., in the stables of Anson Powell & Co., proprietors of the line of stages between Fulton Ferry and East Brooklyn, New York. They were entirely consumed, together with eleven fine horses.

The weather of New York.—Flakes of snow fell in New York, on Sunday the 25th ult. At Macomb's dam the snow fell in such quantities that the ground appeared white for some minutes. At Harlem, also, snow fell in quantities; and the cucumber vines and early beans were destroyed by the frost on Saturday night. The Courier says, in the city, the thermometer fell to 33 deg. on Saturday night, and stood at 40 at sunrise. This rather exceeds anything in the memory of "the oldest inhabitant."

A Wholesale Murderess.—A Mrs. Reed, under sentence of death at Lawrenceville, Ia., for the murder of her husband, after several ineffectual attempts to hang herself, has confessed, not only the poisoning of her husband, for which she was condemned, but two other persons before, as well as the murder of a nephew for his money; and as though those enormities were not enough, she has also confessed having caused the death of two children by starvation!

Another great Fire at Pittsburgh. We are pained to be called on to announce the occurrence of another fire, not so much because of the destruction of property, as the distress it inflicts upon the poor, who, with few or no exceptions, are the sufferers. The fire broke out about 9 o'clock last night in the stable of Mr. Samuel Young, a drayman. The origin, we believe, was accidental. A very respectable physician, who at the moment of its breaking out, was in attendance on a patient within two or three doors of the stable, assures us it must have originated from some person taking a candle into the stable, as it was scarcely dark, and so many persons were about. The horses in it were got out. The stable was merely a rough board concern. Others near the stable say the same.

It immediately spread across a narrow alley, and the whole neighborhood being composed of small frame houses, dry as tinder, it spread rapidly. A soft breeze was blowing from the south east at the time, but not of any moment. To understand the situation, we must mention that the space burned over was just upon the edge of a steep bank and difficult of access from below. The stable was on an alley running from Prospect street to Cook Lane.

When the fire companies arrived they could not get near it from the lower side, and it required some time to get above it and get their apparatus in order. Two of them went up to the basin of the water works or near it, and by suction got water. By this time the fire was fairly under headway, it spread across Prospect street, and took the houses on both sides up to Washington street, where it was stopped.

On the side of the bank it took all the back buildings, sheds, &c. Thirty houses or more were burned; but with few exceptions they were of very trifling value—nearly all were frames of one and two stories high, none more than the latter.

The loss in value of property being so small, the fire at any other time would be thought very little of; but what makes it felt is the unsheltering of so many families belonging to the laboring men, draymen, and others of like occupations, when houses are so difficult to be got. Their furniture, &c., being easily moved was mostly saved, except in the houses first burned. Our citizens, we have no doubt, will be prompt in aiding their necessities.—Pittsburgh Gaz.

67 Hippopotamus, by some supposed to be the Behemoth of Scripture, has arrived in New York, it was captured not long since, by a boat's crew from a New Bedford vessel, at the mouth of a river in Africa.—Retraile.

67 To satisfy such as may wish to know what the scripture says about the Behemoth or properly called in Hebrew ne-ma-more, (the largest beast) we give Job's history of him as follows:

Behold now behemoth, which I made with thee; he eateth grass as an ox.

Lo now, his strength is in his loins, and his force is in the navel of his belly.

He moveth his tail like a cedar: the sinews of his stones are wrapped together.

His bones are as strong pieces of brass; his bones are like bars of iron. He is the chief of the ways of God: he that made him can make his sword to approach unto him.

Surely the mountains bring him forth food, where all the beasts of the field play.

He lieth under the shady trees, in the covert of the reed, and fens.

The shady trees cover him with their shadow; the willows of the brook compass him about.

Behold, he drinketh up a river, and hasteth not: he trusteth that he can draw up Jordan into his mouth.

He taketh it with his eyes: his nose pierceth through snares.

Now, gentle reader, if a Hippopotamus has any more resemblance to Job's great animal, than an Indian's snow shoe has to a railroad locomotive, then our Hebrew bible is a banjo, and our English one a Jew's harp.

Mr. Clay.—The old "sing song," of a letter from "Mr. Clay" on this subject, and a letter from "Mr. Clay" on that subject, is beginning to go the rounds again. The Methodist, on the subject of slavery, have his "sentiments of profound esteem and regard," and probably every faction in the country will obtain his "profound and grateful sense." It is the old song of—

"Lullaby baby upon the tree top,
And when the wind blows the cradle will rock;
And when the bough breaks the cradle will fall,
And down will come baby, and land of all!"

English Wit.—The British press says, if the new President brings America into war, they may find they have got a pig in a Polk.

Yankee Cunning.—And while great Britain is being flogged, the yankee may make the world cry—how they Peel Victoria.

June.—The weather is beautiful; just warm enough, and just mild enough, to make vegetation smile in silence and grow—"like all nature."

The people of Nauvoo, (we speak of ourselves because it is the fashion,) are as busy as bees; building houses, mowing clover, hoing corn, weeding gardens, manufacturing all manner of implements for farming, convenience, and pleasure.

Strangers occasionally call, and seem surprised to find men and women laboring "just as any body would," no lawing going on; no courts sitting day after day, to try criminals, or sentence topers and gamblers,—and give them special favor to meditate "among the tombs."

Mormon stealing, Mormon starving, and Mormon vengeance, have come out something like the Devil's offering Jes a Christ all the kingdoms of the world to worship him—Get behind me Satan.

An Editor.—The fact is an editor is one of the most consequential men on earth. He is a policeman; a flying watchman; a reporter; a carrier pigeon; a locomotive; a library; an exchange; the door handle of the past present and future, thumbed by doctors, lawyers, priests and people. Is there evil in the city, and he not know it? Is there speculation in the land and he let it slip?—Rumors, and he not see it? O hush! an Editor ought to know every thing, or else how can he tickle the ears of the people with some thing that will please every body?

He writes away for lots and lots of glory. And now and then a given lick at him imparts, And plays his game like a clown that hides and coops.—

Then feathers his nest with flowers from Florida.

Fish.—To morrow (Thursday) has been set apart as a day of fasting and prayer for the benefit of the poor, and to supplicate our Father in Heaven for such blessings as we need to carry on his work according to the revelations.—"Blessed are the meek."

Rain.—Such a mellowing rain as fell upon Nauvoo on Monday fore noon, gave great joy, besides enlarging the prospects of the farmer four fold. The Lord knows what is best for man—if he did but know it.

Straw Bonnets.—A beautiful article in the line of Straw Bonnets was presented at our office this week.

These bonnets do honor to the skill, industry, and ingenuity of the ladies of Nauvoo. They were offered cheap and were disposed of "instantly." Any Lady that purchases "foreign" manufactured bonnets, hereafter ought to think how the Lord scorches Pittsburgh for harboring transgressors.

Home religion, home manufactures, home ladies, and home gentleman, will make a home city of Saints.

Where the loud swelling fame of their story,
Will under the curtain of bigotry's right;
And the high blazing flame of their glory,
Illumine the globe as a triumph of right."

Fire.—There has been consumed by fire in the United States, says the St. Louis Organ, during the two months, property to the amount of twelve millions of dollars!

"Green says that the game of Faro is 20 per cent stronger than stealing."

67 What a super-ang-dang-lous "Cal-lithumpian band," fire and fero are to play an organ!

The river.—The water has fallen very fast for the last week. The larger class of boats, will soon find the "mark above water" for them.

A WORLD'S CONVENTION

Robert Owen, who has been paying a visit to this country, intends to return to England on the first of next month. He has published an address to the American people, recommending them to call a convention of delegates from every state and territory in the Union to consider what practical measures can be immediately carried into execution to apply the enormous means to secure prosperity for all the people of these States, that they may become an example to the world of what, with sound judgment, in peace, with order and with the least injury, and the most benefit to every one from the highest to the lowest, may be done.

He also recommends a "World's convention," to be called at New York next October, to emancipate the human race from ignorance, poverty, division, sin and misery. This is a great amount of work for any convention to accomplish. For the last six thousand years of time, ignorance, poverty, sin and misery have existed in the world, in spite of all the efforts of pious men, and reformers of every kind and character, and what is more disheartening still to philanthropists, increase of knowledge does not seem to diminish crime and evil in the world. But perhaps the cause of it is in stating wrong, and continuing upon false principles ever since. In this age of universal discovery, when the mind of every individual is deriving into ancient error and prejudice, and constantly turning up new truths to the light it is not unreasonable to expect that the true principles of social progress and the improvement of the human race, may also be revealed, and perhaps, as Mr. Owen believes, he has discovered the grand secret for the eradication of a political and social evil, and the permanent establishment of a sound, prosperous, virtuous, and happy condition of society. All must admit the truth of the following remarks. "The principle contained in them is certainly correct; the only difficulty is in carrying it into effect."

It will be found, on full investigation, that there is but one interest among all the human race, and that is, that each one should be the best that in birth the best employed through life, and that the inferior circumstances of man's creation should be replaced from around all by those only of a superior and permanent character, whether animate or inanimate, for as these are so will man become.

If the "World's Convention," or indeed any Convention of less magnificent dimensions, may be able to accomplish as desirable an object as removing ignorance and poverty and their attendant evils, and indeed necessary consequences, sin and misery, we say by all means let it be held at as early a period as possible. Man's life is short, and if there is to be a state of perfect happiness and content in this world, we should like to enjoy a share of it before we die.

We copy the above from the Philadelphia Newspaper, and would just remark, that as to the redemption of the world, the man and the means are on hand. Jesus Christ died to accomplish that very thing, and left Mormonism (which is a great truth) as the means by which after many days it will be done.

NOTICE.

Dear Brethren and sisters:—After having been for so long a time suffering from the war of affliction, after having suffered for so long a time, after having sacrificed all of this world's goods, by making all that I possessed, I have suffered so much sorrow and affliction from the loss of friends and relatives, I am now ready to resign to the will of God who knows what is best for his Saints.

And I hope that my brethren and sisters will remember their old and tried friend, (William Smith.) I am now ready to see the end of the suffering, and confide upon their spiritual blessings as they may desire. Residence on Water street, house formerly occupied by Mr. William Marks.

WILLIAM SMITH.

The office of Patriarch over the whole church is to be a father to the church, and to confer blessings on its members, according to the order handed down from the first of Patriarchs to the present. By some of these, great and most marvellous events have been predicted, which have received their fulfillment after many generations have passed away: first, Isaac blessing his son Joseph; Moses blessing the tribes of Israel, &c., &c.

Father Smith, the first Patriarch and Hyrum, his successor, conferred many blessings upon the Saints that made their hearts glad. But they, in the wisdom of God, have been called away, and William the son and brother succeeds them. How many, now will say, I wish I had my patriarchal blessing! This has been the lamentation of many since the death of Joseph and Hyrum. William is the last of the family, and truly inherits the blood and spirit of his father's house, as well as the priesthood and patriarchal office from his father and brother, legally, and by hereditary descent. [Etc.]

Rio Grande.—A letter from Rio Grande, of the 13th March, in the Salem Register, states that peace has been made with the rebels in the province, after nine and a half years of civil war. The Government troops, 8000 strong, were marching to the frontier to watch Rosas, as war with Buenos Ayres was very confidently anticipated by the Brazilians, and a peace with the rebels was consummated, therefore, on very favorable terms for them, for the sake of making due preparation for such an event.

Accident.—On Friday last two boys, Joseph Gates and Rialto Alphonzo Wait, the former 7y 9d old; the latter 4y 11m, were playing in the sand a little south of the Temple; the bank caved in upon them, and they were instantly killed. They were found next day by some persons who were hauling sand from the said bank.

For the Neighbor.

The flowers of the field
That quickly fade away,
May well be to us instruction yield,
Who die as soon as they.

The pretty rosebud, too,
Decaying on the stalk;
A storm came sweeping o'er the tree,
And broke its feeble stalk.

Just like an early rose,
I've seen an infant bloom;
But Death perhaps before it blows,
Will lay it in the tomb.

Then let us think on Death,
Though we are young and gay;
For God who gave our life and breath,
Can take them soon away.

To God who loves them all,
Let children humbly cry;
And then when Death may call,
They'll be prepared to die.

A LAYER OF TRUTH

Arctic Expedition.—An eminent house in the neighbourhood of the Custom house has received an order from the government, to supply the Admiralty department with 3000 gals of extra strong West India rum, 35 per cent over proof, for the use of her majesty's ships Erebus and Terror, about to proceed on a voyage of discovery; and the lords of the treasury have issued directions to the proper authorities to permit the said rum to be removed from the bonded vaults of the docks to the retailing stores at Deptford without payment of the accustomed duty.

A Curious Animal.—A letter was read before the Geological Convention, giving a description of a curious animal found in the Mammoth Ravine as it is called near Natchez, which is styled the non-descript; its head was eighteen inches long and eleven inches wide; there was a place for a trunk like that of an elephant; the tusks were eleven inches long; there were no traces of any eye-sockets; no foaming for the passage of an optic nerve; no place for eyes at all; it was a blind animal; had sixteen teeth; its fore leg was five feet long, and very powerful; the bones were completely fossilized, and were very ferruginous.

Glass.—It is difficult to foresee what perfection the manufacture of glass may be brought, and to what purposes the article may yet be applied. The balance-print of a chronometer is now made of glass, a substitute for steel, and possesses a great degree of elasticity and a great power of resisting the alterations of heat and cold. A chronometer with a glass balance spring was sent to the North Sea and exposed to a competition of nine other chronometers, and the result of the experiment was a report in favor of the chronometer with a glass spring. In a manufactory in France, they are now making glass pipes for the conveyance of water, which cost nearly 30 per cent. less than the iron pipes now used, and will bear a far greater external pressure.

Texts.—The last advices from Texas, according to the Washington Union, remove every shadow of doubt upon the acceptance of the terms of our resolutions, and the annexation of Texas to the United States.

A private letter from a high quarter in Galveston, dated May 6th says: "Texas will accept the terms, and that promptly, and she will have, on the 1st Monday in December next, knocking at the doors of Congress, two senators and two representatives, with a good constitution in their hands."

A Great Battle.—Buenos Ayres dates to the 2d ult., says a Philadelphia paper, have been received. They bring intelligence that Rivera has been completely routed, about one thousand of his men killed and 500 taken prisoners. Rivera himself escaped with only eight men. Admiral Lane, by advice of the French Charge d'Affaires, will now recognize the strict blockade of Montevideo by the Buenos Ayrean squadron.

Steamboat Sunk.—The steamboat South Western, which left Shreveport on the 15th instant, arrived here yesterday, and reports that the steamboat Cotton Plant, Captain Sylvester, with a full cargo, bound for the Upper Red river, sunk in Twelve Mile Bayou on the 17th, at 3 o'clock P. M. By this disaster three lives were lost; a soldier and two children. The passengers of the Cotton Plant were taken from the wreck by the steamer Frontier, and landed at Shreveport. The Cotton Plant and cargo are a total loss. A high rise of water at and above Shreveport is reported.

When the South-Western left, two miles more of raft had been formed in the old bed. The body of a drowned man was found on the raft, and from some papers found upon the corpse, it was supposed to be that of Capt. C. A. Phillips. The body was buried by the captain of the South-Western, at Christian's plantation. N. O. Pic., of the 23d.

SEXTON'S WEEKLY REPORT.

June 9th, 1845.

Joel L. Mosier, of Iowa, 50y, 2m, 20d; lung fever.
Wm. Henry Smith, 7m; croup.
Hannah Casson, 1y, 5m; diarrhoea.
Joseph Gates, 7y, 9d; fall of a sand bank.
Rialto Alphonzo Wait, 4y, 11; fall of a sand bank.
W. D. HUNTINGTON.

NO WAR BUT A STRONG OPPOSITION TO FOREIGN MANUFACTURES.

THE undersigned would beg leave to inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general that they have removed the Old Connecticut pottery from Iowa to the City of Joseph, one block east of the Temple, where they have on hand a large assortment of red and mottled colored ware of the best quality, viz. churns, milk pans, crockers, jars of all kinds, with covers, pie dishes, pudding pots, caps, bowls, pitchers, stoves, chimney tops and furnaces, with a multitude of other articles too numerous to mention; all of which will be sold at wholesale or retail for all kinds of country produce, dry goods and groceries—cash not refused. All bills and orders will be filled on the shortest notice.

MOSES MARTIN.
E. K. FULLER.

June 5, 1845. 6 3m

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE & SALE.—The subscriber, administrator of the estate of Joseph R. Ball deceased will sell at public vendue on Saturday the 5th day of July next, the personal property of said estate, viz: one cow, one Franklin stove and pipe, and a variety of household furniture, at the dwelling house of the said deceased.

TERMS OF SALE. All sums over five dollars six months credit with security; approved by said administrator. Under five dollars cash down.

SAMUEL BRINT, Adm.
Nauvoo, June 9, 1845-6 3m

Hancock Circuit Court,
May Term A. D. 1845

Ordered that a special term of the Circuit Court of Hancock County and State of Illinois, be held at the court house in Carhage, on the first Tuesday after the 4th Monday in the next June next, (A. D. 1845) for the trial of all criminal causes as well as civil, common law and chancery causes—and suits may be instituted and process made returnable on such special term in the same manner and with the like effect, as at a regular term of said Court. And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be certified to the County Commissioners of said County.

A true copy from the record.
Attest—
DAVID E. HEAD, Clerk.

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor.

WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop a few rods south of the Temple, near the New York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coats cut and made for $1.00. Pants and vests " " 50. Coats cut for " 25. Pants and vests for " 1 1/2. and other work in proportion.

Ladies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms.

N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style.
June 11, 1845. 6 3m

LAW NOTICE.

A. W. BABBITT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WOULD give notice that he has removed his office to the corner of Carlin Parley streets, where he will always be found ready to give the strictest attention to business which may be entrusted to his care.

He would also give notice that he has the agency of large amounts of good farming lands, in the counties of Hancock, McDonough, Adams, Warren and Knox, which he will sell very low for cash or exchange for property in the North Eastern States, or he will sell the same on a credit of three or four years, to those who wish to settle on the same.

He will also give one of the best bargains to any one who would wish to purchase the large brick cottage and mills formerly owned by W. & W. Law, in the city of Nauvoo; said property must be sold and will be sold at a sacrifice; those who would wish to make a good investment of their money, would do well to call soon and inquire as to the terms.
Nauvoo, June 11, 1845-6 1/2

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.
HARDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGEMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends, can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans.

Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from on pound sterling upwards, all the particulars of which, can be ascertained by enquiring of
JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent,
Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office.
Nauvoo, May 1845-4 1/2

WANTED.

TURLEY wants to employ a first rate gunsmith, to work at stocking and finishing. Apply soon.
Nauvoo, June 3, 1845-5 3/4

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

PURSUANT to a decree of the Circuit Court of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, made at the May term thereof A. D. 1845, in the matter of the petition of the Administrator of the Estate of Joseph Smith deceased, to sell the real Estate of said Joseph Smith. I shall proceed on the 1st day of July, A. D. 1845, between the hours of nine o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the Nauvoo Mansion, in the city of Nauvoo, to sell at public vendue to the highest and best bidder the real Estate of said Joseph Smith deceased.

Said real estate is known and described as follows to wit: a w. & s. q. section 6, town 5 n range 8 w; also a w. & s. q. section 6, town 10 n range 8 w; also a w. & s. q. section 2, town 7 n range 8 w; also a w. & s. q. section 25, town 7 n range 8 w; also a w. & s. q. section 26, town 7 n range 8 w; the same being in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois.

Said real estate is to be sold on a credit of six months by the purchaser giving bond to pay the same money, together with a mortgage on the premises as further security therefor.

JOSEPH W. COLLIDGE,
Administrator of the Estate of Joseph Smith deceased.
June 4th 1845-5 1/2

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts. Napkins, &c., which will be sold whole or retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best work in the United States and all rights being extensive Manufacturers in England.

ELIJAH K. FULLER, President.
RICHARD ST. ELLI,
WILLIAM W. RICHARD RALPHS:
JOSEPH RALPHS:
THOMAS RALPHS:
ALFRED GORDON.
JOHN B. JONES, Clerk.
June 4th 1845-6 1/2

TURNING & CABINET MAKING.

THE subscriber, having returned to this city is prepared to manufacture all kinds of furniture of the best quality, and on the most reasonable terms, as cheap as the same articles can be purchased in St. Louis.

He is also prepared to do all kinds of turning in the most fashionable style, and having had an extensive experience in both the above branches, he flatters himself that he will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with their custom.

To his friends in the surrounding country who have heretofore patronized him, he would state, that he should feel obliged by a continuance of their favors. Shop on Main street, a few doors below the post office.

JAMES BIRD.
Nauvoo, June 4, 1845-5 3m

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN.

THAT Emma Smith, guardian for the minor heirs of Joseph Smith, deceased, will present a petition to the judge of the City Circuit Court, at the special term, to be holden in Hancock County, for an order to sell to four, (4) in block one hundred and forty two, (142) in the city of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Illinois, or the support of said heirs, all persons interested will appear at the said term of the court, and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

EMMA SMITH, Guardian.
Nauvoo, June 2d, 1845-5 1/2

J. H. & W. RALSTON,
Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.

WILL attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.

W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.
Warsaw, May 12th, 1845-3 1/2

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.

D. and J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened in the house formerly known as the NAUVOO SEED STORE now JOSEPH CITY STORE, situated on Mulholland Street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles so essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Crockery, in short all things that are daily wanted in our line of business. And having been engaged in the business, for years, we flatter ourselves to be able to give a satisfactory quality, and also in price, we would invite the inhabitants of the city of Joseph and its vicinity to call and see.

Country produce will be received for goods.
May 27th 1845-4 3m

TO THE PUBLIC.

I TAKE this method to warn the public against purchasing two notes, of fifty dollars each, bearing my signature, and payable to Wm. M. Daniels; each dated, I think, on the 23d of November, 1844; one due three months after date, with an endorsement of fifteen dollars; the other due six months after date. I shall not pay either of them, as I have not had value received. I have also got valid accounts against Wm. M. Daniels, sufficient to overbalance the amount due on the notes.

L. O. LITTLEFIELD.
Nauvoo, June 4, 1845-5 3/4

NOTICE.

I hereby given, that all persons having claims against the estate of Morris Whitesides, deceased, are requested to present their claims to the court of Probate, in and for the county of Hancock, within one year from this date, and all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment to the administrator of said estate.

MARGARET WHITESIDES,
Administrator.
Nauvoo, June 2d, 1845-5 1/2

NOTICE is hereby given that Howard Egan, Conservator for Joel Ballard, an insane person, will present a petition at the next Term of the Hancock Circuit Court, praying for an order of said Court to sell so much of the real estate of the said Joel Ballard, as will satisfy the claims against said estate. All parties interested will appear at said Term of the court and show cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

HOWARD EGAN, Conservator
thof e estate of Joel Ballard Insane.
Nauvoo, April 17, 1845-5 1/2

NOTICE.

WHEREAS my wife Sabra Gribble, has left my bed and board without any just cause or provocation, this is to caution all persons against trading her on any account, as I will pay no debts of her contracting; neither will I be responsible for any of her acts, after this date.

JOHN GRIBBLE.
Nauvoo, May 12, 1845-2 3/4

TAILOR'S ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis's store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells. This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefor to all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.

N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be holden for the debts of said association.

JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
C. B. THOMPSON, Counsellors.
WM. P. MONTGOMERY,
ROBT. RUSSELL, Superintend.
J. H. GLINES, depts.
WM. K. PARKER,
ALEXANDER MULLINER,
C. BELLARBY,
WM. STRINGHAM,
JABEZ BOTSFORD,
B. CHAPMAN.
Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845-47 3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH,
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
Feb. 7 49:6 W. & S.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845-49

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.

THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street.) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style.

Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap, but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN,
No 52 Main street, St. Louis.
April 8th, 50-3m

LIME LIME.—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate lime, at their kiln near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Smith. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.

JOSEPH BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845-No 1-6 1/2

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of

LEVI STEWART,
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52 1/2

NAUVOO TANNERY.

NOTICE.—The Tanners and Shoemakers association, will pay in goods or Boots and Shoes, from four to five cents for calf-skins, and from three to four cents for hides, delivered at their centers, situated on Hubbard and Rich streets, near Clinton's brick yard, or at the Queens city store; we will also tan on shanks. We also want a large quantity of White and Black Oak bark and Sumach, for which we will pay the highest Nauvoo price.

G. W. ROSECRANS,
Superintendent.
April 1-48-3m

LIME, LIME!

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.

JOSEPH OWENS,
THOS. MENDENHALL.
April 13th, 50-2m

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS.

GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, for lands or farms in other parts of this State, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a minute written description of them, post paid, with their real cash value, to Mr. LORANZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.

All members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this country, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact this business.

No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a moderate or reasonable compensation will be expected.

Nauvoo, May 5th, 1845-1 3m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.

BRETHREN wishing to purchase Lands, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's or the Mansion.

WILLIAM SMITH.
ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this county, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.

May 6th, 1845-4 1/2

LAND FOR SALE, CHEAP!

1 1/2 Acres or more 27 1/2 n s w the best gr of land in the Big Field, good title, &c. ALSO—163 Acres n w q sec 36; 7 n s w on the Big Field road.

ALSO—180 Acres n w 2d; 7 n s w. Will take trade for this last gr.

ALSO—119 Acres of the n w q of sec 14; 3 north 1/2 sec, with a new log house not finished, some timber; price $300 per acre, part cash part trade.

Enquire of
EDSON WHIPPLE.
May 5th 1845-4 1/2

PHONOGRAPHY.

G. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.

May 2d, 1845-1 1/2

LOOK HERE.

THE subscriber having been appointed agent for Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, to make sales, tent, and lease their real estate, as he may think proper and convenient, he therefore gives notice to all who wish to purchase or exchange property in any part of the county of Illinois, Ohio, Iowa, territory, or the Eastern States, that he has for sale, 11 houses in the city, also the large house and soap manufactory near the river, and a number of lots unimproved, handsomely located in different parts of the city, and places that he has for collection, the accounts, notes, bonds, and mortgages of Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, and that all persons indebted will please call at the office of E. R. Rynd, or call having legal demands will please present them properly authenticated for settlement on the 17th instant, after which date they will be collected according to law.

JOHN A. FORGEUS,
May 13, 1845-2 1/2

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR.

WARE HOUSE, general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo. The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try, ere you buy. Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

POETRY.

ROOM, BOYS, ROOM!

By C. F. HOFFMAN.
There was an old hunter
Camp'd down by the till,
Who fished in this water
And shot on that hill.
The forest for him hid
No danger nor gloom,
For all that he wanted
Was plenty of room.
Says he, "The world's wide"
There is room for us all;
Room enough in the green wood,
If not in the hall.
Room, boys, room, by the light of the moon!
For why shouldn't every man enjoy his own room?

He wave his own net,
And his slanty was spread
With the wings he had d'ess'd
And stretch'd over head;
Fresh branches of hemlock
Made fragrant the floor
For his bed as he sung,
When the day light was d'ar.
"When the world's wide enough,
There's room for us all;
Room enough in the green wood,
If not in the hall.
Room, boys, room, by the light of the moon!
For why shouldn't every man enjoy his own room?"

That spring no half choked
By the dust of the road
Under boughs of old maples
Once limpidly flowed;
By the rock whence it bubbled,
His kettle was hung,
Which thrice a day often fill'd,
While the hunter he sung.
"The world's wide enough,
There is room for us all;
Room enough in the green wood,
If not in the hall.
Room, boys, room, by the light of the moon!
For why shouldn't every man enjoy his own room?"

And still sang the hunter—
When one gloomy day,
He saw in the forest
What sadden'd his lay:
A heavy wind and woe
Its black rattle made,
Where far grew the green sward,
In the land of the dead—
"The world's wide enough,
There is room for us all;
Room enough in the green wood,
If not in the hall.
Room, boys, room, by the light of the moon!
For why shouldn't every man enjoy his own room?"

[From the Cincinnati Gazette.]

SEPARATION.

We suppose the Methodist church is rent in twain. The decree, if not sent forth, is unalterably fixed. Men disposed to avoid fanaticism on either side—to stand on common sense ground—Independent and decided, may regret the geographical cause of separation, and fear the consequences to the country. But it will avail nothing. Regrets are useless and all fears idle. The difficulty is upon us, and we have to meet it as regards the union, as if it could and must be overcome.

We are not over apt to look backward for instruction, or forward with wisdom either in our private or public capacity. Were we, these church divisions, might have been avoided. They were unquestionably, the result mainly of political action. And for the first time in our history, the churches, North and South, have been made, in part, whether willing or not, the instrument of political parties—and the use of their power on one side or the other, has centered as calculatingly into the schemes of politicians as any other common means.

Look back. In 1830 the country was at peace within. No discord broke its harmony. No internal, geographical cause threatened it with division. Slavery was talked of all over the South and North calmly; it was discussed fearlessly and fully in the border states; and in 1832 both Virginia and Kentucky prepared to take steps for its gradual emancipation. Ultra Southern men, wanting topics of excitement, and alarmed at the home movement on the subject, determined to agitate it. For this end, they took advantage of the ultra movements of a small band of ultra fanatics at the North as ever lived. The principles of countermeasures was adopted. If this handful of Northern men were in extremes, leading Southern men became more so, on the other side. Nullification in states; violent state laws—gag laws in Congress—an insulting tone there; and a spirit at once rude and harsh and tyrannical towards the labor, character and policy of the free States—these were the means used. They had their desired immediate effect. The public mind at the North was agitated and excited; at the South alarmed and inflamed; and both sides grew stronger and stronger, until at length they were measurably set in array against each other. There was on ly this difference. In the slave states, from causes apparent to all, there was unity of action and feeling. In the free states, from the absence of these causes, there has been no such unity of action or feeling.

Now if the churches had possessed that moral courage—that Christian wisdom—which would have enabled them to stem public opinion, and to do what was right in the premises, independent of it, we should have had no divisions—no separations. They possessed neither. They have fallen, therefore, a prey to this outward pressure; to the effect of this political action concocted and gotten up to sustain parties, to put ambitious men into station, to gratify a selfish lust of power. Does a Northern man in conference or Synod refer to slavery? He looks at the state of the public mind within his district, and seeks to meet its demands. Is a Southern minister called upon to act in convention or assembly on the subject? He simply regards the home decree of his own people and resolves to satisfy it. And who created this public mind—who wrote out this home decree? Not the churches—not the Christian spirit of the churches—for never have any set of men labored harder, in the first instance, to avoid any such position, to stave off the slavery issue on both sides, to keep their societies free from its bitter and perilous excitement. They were driven into it; they acted because they knew not how to meet and overcome the apparently strong, unyielding, fierce decision of the primary assemblies of the people. The power their master possessed to say No! when the mighty voice of the multitude, like oceans roar, demanded another response, was not given them, and they fell.

The great question, then, is—for the evil of these divisions are upon us, and cannot be done away with—how shall we avoid any bad consequences likely to result from these church divisions, to the country? That they may temporarily weaken the ties which bind together the Union, we must deem. They will add strength to the Southern movement; they will increase, for a time at least, the proselyting power. This fact, of course, will give new vigor and concentration to Northern action, and the contest will grow sharper and sharper, until the force of both is spent, and the country settled down upon a settled life of policy. Now can any permanent injury be prevented? We hope it can. We believe it will. And we rest our hope and belief—first, on the well known fact, that the voters of the free states, without exception (the minority holding different views, we think, only proves the rule) hold slavery, oppose it and think of it as they may, to be a state institution, over which they have no control, and with which they have no right whatever to meddle; and second, that the interest of the South, in maintaining the integrity of the Union, is so immediate, so overwhelming, that it cannot—dare not—seek to sever it, let its excitement on this subject, tower even to a maddening passion. We may have threats. We shall have an increase of excitement on both sides. But the law-abiding spirit of the free—the very existence of the slave states—the common interests of both—the common affection of both for the Union—the patriotic, religious, American spirit of both—these operating, overruling causes, will so control it, we hope and believe, as to bring the country out safe, amid all our difficulties, and leave this vexed and harassing question of slavery better understood, and more likely to be wisely settled, whether reference be had to the safety and elevation of master or man.

Results of the Fire at Pittsburgh.—New and unexpected results of the fire are daily developed. Boxes of sheet tin, were so far dissolved as to have their different parts firmly and solidly united, forming a mass of white iron which exhibited the layers, as in the case of the glass, like growths of timber.

But the most stupendous exhibition of its power appears in the cellar of Messrs. Lorenz, Sterling and Cuddy. Upon enquiry we find that they had in the warehouse at the time of the fire, 3,000 kegs of nails. These were melted into a solid mass of iron. We were looking at the workmen yesterday employed in clearing away. We found two man-size masses of solid iron from 9 to 30 inches thick, weighing from 10 to 30 tons, which was found hopeless to break or to remove and the workmen were digging graves for them in the cellar, beneath the floor of which they are to be buried by taking the earth from under them as they prove too ponderous to put in motion.

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.

THE Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best of workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyatt Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets; who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times. We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest Western price. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above. Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.

WM. EARL, President.
HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counselors.
CYRUS WINGATE, Secretary.
HUGH LYTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845—2-3m.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50f

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses;—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 15 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 105 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneyville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO:

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneyville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3-1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, good springs and branch pear by—would exchange horses, cattle, and hogs, situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Hinds county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—49f

A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulston, of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15-50f

NOTICE. A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAVUOO AND MONTROSE FERRY. THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 qt. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 21-47f

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinetware, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch forks; finally, anything that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Fowls, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buckwheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wood, Hides, and finally anything that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43f

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvement, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845—44f

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43f

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chaffs, lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere. N. B. St. Louis prices paid for the hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19-42f

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18-46f

EARTHENWARE EARTHENWARE.

J. GROGOTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844. no41-1f.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended; ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are debilitated for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dinner, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases, guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

KEYSTONE STORE.

A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearsley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints his friends and the public, with DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES, as they may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.

Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle: our interest, our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.

One man is not every body, but I may do much good by turning a penny when he sells Goods, Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c., CHEAP for cash, produce, and truck, or exchange fairly. Call and try.

March 17th, -40-3m

NOTICE.

ELSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the old numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

A. W. BABBITT,

Attorney at Law.

HAS removed his office to the city of Nauvoo and has taken the office occupied by the late General Joseph Smith, where he will be ready to attend to any, or all business committed to his trust.

Cet. 9, 1844-23f

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his

QUARTOS	HALF	BOUND	PLAIN	PRICE.
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
do	do	do	neat	3.00
do	do	do	neat	3.50
do	do	do	neat	4.00
do	do	do	neat	4.50
do	do	do	neat	5.00
do	do	do	neat	5.50
do	do	do	neat	6.00
do	do	do	neat	6.50
do	do	do	neat	7.00
do	do	do	neat	7.50
do	do	do	neat	8.00
do	do	do	neat	8.50
do	do	do	neat	9.00
do	do	do	neat	9.50
do	do	do	neat	10.00

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Nauvoo, Jan 1, 1844.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET.

AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH, ATHERTON, MASTER, WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Rock Island, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. On her upward trip, she will leave Nauvoo for Rock Island every Wednesday at six P. M. Retaining will leave Nauvoo for St. Louis every Saturday at 6 A. M. In point of accommodation the Amaranth is surpassed by no boat on the upper Mississippi; and her officers will spare no pains to render her worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to

A. MERRISON, Agent.

Nauvoo, April 30th, 50f

MERMAID.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET

FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERRMAID, GLEIM, MASTER, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings;—and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Retaining leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity. For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent.

For Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-4f

OSPREY.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger ship, OSPREY, ANDERSON, MASTER, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Port Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evans' Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case this Osprey, can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.

Jan. 1, 1845-35f

THE NAVUOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and willing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Chariots, Chairs, Barouches, Buggies, Buggy Wagons, Horses, Spotons, Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also, Ploughs, Seythe snaths, Rakes, &c. &c. which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Water street opposite Genl. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices, for we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in

Foreign News

By the arrivals of the Great Western on the 17th at New York and the Acadia at Boston on the 20th ult., we have, as usual, our foreign files. There is, however, very little to interest the American reader.]

As to the Oregon question, with the ministers of Parliament, Congress may take a hint, a wise head keeps a close mouth. Were we to express our mind, according to the "seeming appearance" of both parties, we should say—"the mother and daughter are both vexed at the extravagant conduct and popularity of each other, and will secretly prepare the dagger and the bowl against the time of need!"

We cull a few items:

FRANCE.

The exciting topic of the Jesuits has occupied the attention of the Chamber of Deputies. It originated with M. Thiers, who described the vicissitudes the order of Jesuits had experienced since its foundation; the motives of its condemnation in France in the 18th century, and those which had induced the pope to pronounce the dissolution of a community that Frederick the Great alone, in all Europe, did not consider dangerous.

M. Thiers, in concluding, called on the cabinet to execute the laws, and dissolve the Society.

The fortifications of Paris are to be armed with 2208 mortars, cannon or howitzers, of which 50 are to be Paixhans guns, 5350 muskets for the ramparts, 200,000 infantry muskets, 1500 fusces, 1,000,000 projectiles, &c.

SWITZERLAND.

By the 20th instant, Lucerne had suffered all the prisoners made by the troops to depart, under the stipulations for ransom. A letter from Lucerne gives an account of a curious sentence, the Nidwald, upon a Lieutenant Nermann, who had joined the Free Corps in the attack upon Lucerne. He is condemned to stand in public for four hours, with a rod in his hand, then to be flogged with it, and afterwards imprisoned for six months, during which he is to receive "religious instruction."

The accounts from Switzerland to the 7th instant, state that all the prisoners who are natives of Lucerne had been released, and the only captives remaining, 584 in number, belonged to the Canton. The government of Bern had sent a delegate to Lucerne to make a last attempt to induce that Canton to abandon its intention to recall the Jesuits. The Bernese Envoy was said to be the bearer of a pressing recommendation to that effect from several influential members of the corps diplomatique.

TURKEY.

The Ottoman government, being determined to carry out its plans for the moral and physical melioration of the country, has organized ten itinerant commissions, destined to set out and visit in detail various portions of Asiatic and European Turkey, for the purpose of reporting upon the improvement that can, without too heavy a charge on the national resources, be introduced to further public instruction, advance agriculture, commerce, trade, the means of communication, the establishment of hospitals and places of refuge for the poor, &c.

ENGLAND.

On the 10th of May the city of Bristol was visited by one of the most appalling thunder storms ever remembered. The clouds hung close down like a funeral pall, the gloomy darkness being so great that it was nearly impossible to discern objects at a short distance. The hail and rain descended in torrents, or rather in sheets, whilst the vivid flashes of lightning, with their unearthly glare, followed instantaneously by the loud crash of heavens dread artillery, added to the awful sublimity of the scene. It was just such a visitation as what, in the tropics, is the precursor of an earthquake or other convulsion of nature. The storm burst directly over the centre of the city; indeed, such was its immediate proximity that the mast of a vessel (the Joseph of Kinsale) lying on the quay near the Swivel-bridge, was struck by the lightning, and split from top to bottom. The windows in some of the houses adjacent were shivered to atoms, but we are glad to state that no more serious damage was done. The storm passed off in about half an hour, and appears to have been quite local, as we find no mention of it in the London or country papers.

VAN DIEMAN'S LAND.

The Holart-town and Launceston papers to the 10th of February state that the harvest had commenced, but the crop was expected to be limited. The drought and winds had injured the wheat and barley. Wheat was as before 3s. to 3s. 6d. per bushel. The accounts of the general condition of the colony are not favorable, and the increase of crime is said to be a great drawback to the prosperity of the inhabitants.

From the New York Sun.

The Oregon—British Government.

Cincinnati, May 12, 1845.
Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson Bay Company, has passed down the river in disguise, with a company of Englishmen, on his way to the Oregon territory. They are travelling under assumed names, and I am informed that on arriving at the head of navigation of the Upper Missouri, or Yellow Stone, they will start expresses to the mountains for the Company's traders to concentrate a large Indian army at the western outlet of the South Pass so as to cut off the American emigrants. I give the story as I received it. I do not believe it myself. The emigrants are five or ten thousand strong, and from all I can learn of the Indian tribes, I am inclined to think that there is not that harmony between any two or more tribes necessary to the accomplishment of the diabolical project alluded to. The rumor has probably arisen from an acknowledgement said to have been made by one of Simpson's party, to the effect that two large frigates sailed from England about the middle of April, for the Columbia river.

The above comes from a respectable source in Cincinnati. Our government has been prepared for such a movement, as will be seen by the following paragraph from the Washington Union.

Col. Kearney, with several troops of his regiment of dragoons, and in pursuance of standing orders from the General-in-chief of 1842, will set out from Fort Leavenworth (on the Missouri) some time in this month (May,) to make an extensive tour of the prairies beyond. He is to visit numerous tribes of Indians, to counsel them to respect our fur traders, and Oregon emigrants, to maintain peace among themselves, and to impress all with the friendship, the vigilance, and the power of the United States. If his horses should be able to maintain themselves on pasture alone, he may go as far as Fort Laramie, a trader's fort in the South Pass of the Rocky Mountains. The expedition will make a wide sweep, advancing by one route and returning by another. Two other companies of the same regiment, (the first dragoons,) are about to make a tour, with similar objects, along the Mississippi, and high up the St. Peter's river, which has its mouth near the Great Falls. (St. Anthony,) also returning by a different route.

PAPERER, (TAHITI), Jan. 3, 1845.

I have now been on shore about six weeks, but cannot as yet realize that I am on the Island of Tahiti; for you cannot imagine the alteration that has taken place here in my absence. The French are now in full possession of the town, and the garrison, which is strongly guarded. They have built four forts and ten blockhouses to protect the harbor and town. Their garrison on shore consists of about one thousand men. Their ships in port consists of three 62 gun frigates, three corvettes, and one steamer. They keep all their forces confined to the town, which is under martial law, and therefore make us behave like good citizens, as we are obliged to be in our houses by eight o'clock in the evening, at the tap of the drum; for there are large parties of the natives encamped on both sides of the town, who are only waiting some definite news from France to commence hostilities. They have been so in all, in which the natives have suffered severely, though they fought bravely, and did considerable execution among the French in the third battle. At Mahina the natives left 110 of their number dead in their trenches, among whom were three chief men. Two Sundays ago I rode out to one of their encampments, about twenty miles from this place, and found a party consisting of about six hundred men in the camp, and they are as sanguine as ever that they can flog the French; but they never can, for they are too much split up among themselves to make any decided stand.

The Queen is now on the Island of Roitea, and refuses to hold any communication with the government officers here, either by letter or otherwise. Mr. Hemelin, the French Admiral, arrived here about a week since, direct from France. Two days after his arrival, the steamship was despatched to the Island of Roitea, it is said, to demand of the Queen to accept of the Protectorate of France, and return in the steamer to Tahiti, where she is to be installed in all her former possessions, which are now confiscated to the government here; but, in case of her refusal, (of which there can be no doubt,) the whole group are to be declared possessions, and measures are to be taken immediately for subjugating them to the disposal of France—peaceably if they can, forcibly if they must. If such are the facts, (and I have the whole statement as truth,) we shall have some smart fighting in these "digging" before long, as the natives are not inclined to yield up their rights peacefully, as yet.

On the night of the 20th of last month, we observed here a most magnificent comet, the nucleus of which was as large and bright as the planet Jupiter—the tail was full as large and more brilliant than that of the one we saw here two years ago. When first seen, it bore SSW. true, and it has been visible nightly since, and appears in a SE. direction.

Field Mice.—The farmers of New England suffer serious loss from the depredations of the field mouse. Aristotle says: "That one field mouse, which he had confined in a vase, became the mother of one hundred and twenty! And in fifteen days after their birth, they are able to provide for themselves!" They burrow just beneath the surface of the ground; and the paths which lead to their retreat have a thousand windings—therefore they are seldom seen, and still more seldom destroyed.

Mutiny in a Liverpool Ship.—Christopher Kne, of the ship Essex, Captain Welch, charged with mutiny and revolt, during the passage of the vessel from Liverpool to New Orleans, was committed for trial at the latter port, on the 6th of May.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1845.

Visitors at the Temple.—For some time many distinguished persons, from all parts of the United States and other places, have given Nauvoo a call and visited the Temple, now in such a rapid train of completion. Those who have waited upon these visitors inform us, that they all go away satisfied. Mormon glory speaks for itself.

Notwithstanding the malevolent persecution, which has followed Joseph Smith and the church, of which he, as an instrument in the hands of God, was the founder, yet, his own works, and the continuation of them by his meritorious successors, and unyielding adherents, show to the world, and honorable men, as has ever been the case with others, acknowledge the fact, that he was a great man.

The finishing of the Temple, than which there is not a nobler specimen of architecture in the United States, blazes forth Joseph Smith's greatness as a man, and trumpets aloud his glory, as a prophet, as perceptibly to a wondering world, as if "seven thunders uttered their voices."

Nor does the fame of the Twelve depreciate any by noddily walking in his tracks, to carry out his great measures.

It may be set down as a safe rule, that the second generation can look back upon the glory of the first's greatness and wisdom; erect monuments of stone upon the mountains, while wickedness and folly are swept into the gulf of oblivion without a pillar.

Cognoscibility.—To be well versed in every thing, is certainly, like old Saul, a head and shoulders above the rest of the crowd; and we are not exactly up to that—but at the same time, may advance an idea, that would help "snatch a glimpse" beyond the scope of vision. Cognoscibility, cognomen, and adjectives to represent proper names, ought to be significant, pertinent, and pleasant. When we meet the word "Bostonian," we foresee, foretaste, forestall, and fore guess, the meaning to be, a sleek, cunning wise, witty, sharp, keen, learned, unlearned, on hand, on hand, gentleman, full of notions, and, in all probability, a Yankee.

Now, this is the sort of cognoscibility;—give us a significant adjective to represent a whole character at once: Philadelphians for instance;—loving brothers—nothing ever raises the passions there: thee and thou art very good people.

The Knickerbockers of New York; (which means the dutch in a new retreat from wild boars,) harmless, honest, faithful and friendly, carry a great sway among the elite, punctilious, and debonnaire.

Enough said: fortune and good luck have placed us in the valley of the Mississippi, and what need we care about Buffalonians, Pittsburgers, Queen citizens, Louisvillians, or the "moundoons" of Saint Louis, so long as a saint from the city of Joseph means a volume. Nauvoo is full of meaning, but "Joseph" is fuller: because the blessing says, "Joseph is a fruitful son; a fruitful son by a fountain."

Crime and Comfort.—The St. Louis New Era of June 10, one of the misereblest sheets on the earth, now, (not the dullest, Penn's Reporter fills that post, being as dull as a bass wood axe, handled by Benton,) in a half column hints at about the following summary, to wit:—The rain of Monday spoilt the business that day; a private letter from Ohio, shows that rain may raise the river there, and that they want 8000 bushels of wheat; W. C. Johnson of Md. has come among the Moundoons; the Alex. Scott brought a marble bust of H. Clay, (stone lasts longer than clay,) six hinds of Missouri Tobacco sold yesterday for $6.50 per 100 lbs.; several military companies were out yesterday with bands of music, and both in uniform; 648 German emigrants arrived within a day or two; (they make first rate democrats,) a thief broke open a passenger's trunk on the White Cloud, and stole $50 in gold, leaving undiscovered $400; a jury returned a verdict of "crazy" against M. Wakefield, grocer, (might do the same to a large number more, three miserable loafers were arrested yesterday for stealing screws, (apply the screws,) there were EIGHTEEN cases before the Recorder yesterday for violating the city ordinances, ("Repealing the city charter would save all that fuss,) by the bye Nauvoo did not have as many cases in six months; six of the eighteen were sent to purgatory; a tailor was forked up night before last, for attempting to shoot a dutchman, (all right protect the dutch and they will go the "half hog" for demic-rats; and the body of a Catholic priest was yesterday found floating opposite Jefferson barracks; he was drowned a few days before from the Levant;—so the end cometh.

Now if Ramsey of the Era, could be sent to a good school where he could learn quid pro quo; keep a photographic reporter, (not a lead pointed Penn,) he would make a perfect saddle bag of words for the world, and help to flourish the eternal truth of Mormonism, figuratively speaking, like the highest lamp in the high tower of Freedom.

That Fence.—The wall enclosing about eight acres for the Temple Square, is now going up.

Don't Marry.—The Legislature of Alabama, at its last session, divorced thirty-two couples. The offending party cannot marry again. [Reveille]

What an easy way to throw away the "sugar stick!" But that "not marrying again"—how is that stopped? "old trees bear sweet apples."

"Why you no come afore?"—Sometimes our papers arrive from New Orleans in fifteen days;—sometimes in nine; sometimes in twenty; and sometimes from New York, in fourteen days; sometimes in twenty one; and sometimes the papers of two or three mails come tumbling in upon us like a load of hay. Rather loggy for such a sprightly government. Without speedy reform, we shall be under the necessity of forming a combination with the New Orleans Picayune, (because it wishes to enjoy life) the New York Herald, (if Bennett gets sober from his drunken fit upon the "wine of the wrath of the fornication of the mother of harlots," and Cunard's line of Liverpool steam packets, to hire f. m. c. to run on dragons for "extras," guarded by w. m. c. at night and day they would "Push along—keep moving!" And when asked, "why they no come afore"—could answer, "cause we come now!"

* Free men of color.

 White men of character.

Submission.—A woman observed in a prayer meeting the other day, that she would "submit to the authority of the priesthood;" continuing her talk rather long, however, the elder in attendance requested her to stop; but she replied that she was not quite through: "sit down" said he—and like Peter who heard the cock crow, she remembered the promise "submit." Wain't that clever for a woman!

Pilate saith unto him, What is truth?—The voice of Truth, containing the "public writings, portrait, and last sermon of President Joseph Smith, has just been issued from the press, and is for sale. He that hath ears to hear let him hear what the spirit saith of this generation. It also contains the hymn, called the CAP-STONE.

Pox.—One of our exchanges says the "small-pox prevails at Pittsburg. We think that "Rigdonism and fire" is a "sort o' large pox."

New Dictionary.—William Bolles of New London, Ct., has just published a phonographical dictionary containing 85,000 words.

Masonic.—The Freemasons laid the corner stone of a new Hall, in Cincinnati, on the 5th inst.

The Alex. Scott, last week, came from New Orleans to St. Louis, in four days and twenty hours!

Showers and Rain.—On Wednesday night, we were again blest with invigorating showers of rain. These timely rains with very growing weather of about 90 degrees Fahrenheit, in the shade, present one of the most promising harvests we have ever experienced in this section of country. Should nothing impede the wheat crop, flour can be afforded at $2.50 per barrel after harvest. Corn, besides the abundance seems to be two or three weeks ahead of last year. Potatoes, beans, oats, and every thing else in the Farmer's line, exhibit evident signs of a good season and great vigor.

Iowa.—The crops in Iowa, as far as our knowledge extends, will be "very good."

A shaft, for the J. M. White, weighing 12,000 pounds, is considered a weighty concern in St. Louis, because it was cast there. In Warsaw it would be but a walking stick for the Philistines; it could only be secreted from the propensities of Samson.

Nahum 1: 6.—So far as knowledge has come to us, every city or place, (almost) visited by a Rigdonian, is—the way of the transgressor is hot.

Death Conquers the Hero.—A friend informs us that General Jackson died at the Hermitage, on Saturday the 7th inst. at 4 P. M. Sic transit gloria hominis.

Frost.—The eastern papers continue to complain about the May frost which killed the beans, corn, &c. We have a hard Frost here but it does not often meddle with gardens or cornfields.

A Whapper of a Letter.—The Emperor of the Celestial Empire, (China,) has sent by J. B. Peters, a letter six feet long by three feet wide on yellow paper, to the President of the United States. It is enclosed in a silk case. Dr. Parker is translating it from the Chinese Characters.

A Prophet.—G. T. M. Davis, of the Alton Telegraph. He prophesied at least a hundred times within the last six months that the negotiation for the canal loan would all come to naught, and any body that believed otherwise he denounced as little better than a fool. If prophecies could be made to avail by swearing to them, like affidavits, Davis would rank higher as a prophet than Mahomet or Joe Smith.—Ottawa Free Trader.

Davis' spirit of prophecy comes from one of the "three frogs," that is the reason probably; that he is such a lying leatherhead.

Early Harvest.—The wheat harvest commenced at Edenton N. C. on the 22d, of May.

Thanks.—The War Eagle has our thanks in advance for papers as long as she favors us as she has done.

Brick.—For the erection of the Nauvoo House and private dwellings, there will be made about 4 millions of brick in this city the present summer. These brick at $4 per M. will amount to $16,000. This, with what chimneys are pocketed from Warsaw, ready-made, will answer for one season.

Bud Luck.—Mr. Clay started from Louisville to St. Louis on a Steamer, which ran aground; he changed his boat for another, which kept him on a sand bar several days, when, mirabile dictu HE WENT BACK. Want that bud luck!

Algonia, is said to be the Indian name for Lake Superior. The State of Algonia, will sound well.

Hard Run.—The Chicago Democrat offers to take State Script (auditor's warrants,) for debts and job-work. We wonder what the discount is! and wonder if that paper nint hard run? By the bye, the Democrat is pricking up a little on the score of humanity.

THE CROPS.

We regret to learn, from various sources, that the crops, which were very promising in the early part of last month, have suffered severely from the great prevalence of cold and drought for some weeks past. An intelligent gentleman of Jersey county informs us, on the authority of the Assessor, that there are thousands of acres that will not return the seed; that the early planted Indian Corn has been cut down twice; and that "Oats and Barley will be very light." A Mr. Johnson, of Island Grove, Sangamon county, who has 600 acres of Wheat, will, it is apprehended, lose the whole, except about 40 acres, in consequence of the late frosts. In sundry places, the Corn has been cut down three times; and the Wheat, where not totally ruined, will be generally short. The same causes have operated very unfavorably upon the Hay crop, which will not come up to the ordinary average; and, although the hope may be indulged that, should the remainder of the season prove propitious, the damage will not be as great as has been apprehended, yet the partial failure, following as it does the great injury inflicted by the floods of last year, will very injuriously affect the farming interest throughout the Western country, and especially in the States of Missouri and Illinois.

The Alton Telegraph of last week, brought us the above unpromising account of the farming interest in that quarter. Were it not, that it "rains on the just and on the unjust"—we should think the frost had trespassed upon the grain in that section; but as the Lord never errs, it will all be right.

AND-SO-NORTHWARD.

Destructive Fire.—One Hundred buildings and twenty-five horses burnt.—Four Hundred destitute families.—About half past twelve o'clock on Saturday night a fire broke out in the stables of Messrs. Palmer & Peters, on the corner of Sixth Avenue and Eighteenth-street, more distressing in its effects than any that has occurred in the city for a long time. The actual amount of property destroyed is comparatively inconsiderable, although nearly two of those very large blocks between the Sixth and Seventh Avenues were entirely swept, and over one hundred buildings, of all sorts, were consumed—leaving more than four hundred families entirely destitute, many of them even of their clothes. Not fifty dollars' worth of furniture or property of any kind, so far as can be ascertained, was saved by any of these poor creatures, and not twenty individuals were insured at all.—N. Y. Tribune June 3.

Great Fire at Quebec.—A fire broke out in Richardson's Tannery in Quebec on Wednesday last. The Quebec Gazette supposes that a population of about ten thousand would be without a home. Nearly all Saint Roch Suburbs were destroyed. The fire was still raging, threatening an awful destruction of property. When the fire commenced, the wind was westerly, and about one o'clock shifted, carrying the flames in an opposite direction, and in a line with the General Hospital; in one hour all the streets on the right, towards the city, were consumed, as far as the Queen's Wood Yard, including the block of houses on the south, and as far as Clearhue's bakery.

Half an hour more and St. Charles street, North and South, St. Paul's Market, and the Square, were consumed—the fire extending to McCullum's brewery, including Lloyd & Lepper's Dining & Co's and McCullum's Wharves. At half past 4 the fire continued to rage, the wind blowing from the north-east—the houses inside the Palace Gate, including the Engineer's Office, Artillery Barracks, in imminent danger—the powder Magazine is by no means safe, and burning shingles being blown into St. John street.

We have not heard of any lives having been lost, but the misery which must ensue from so dreadful a calamity—of the extent of which we are still ignorant—cannot be exaggerated.

Since the above was in type, we have received further particulars. 6000 houses were destroyed; about 12,000 people left homeless. The number of lives lost is supposed to be 100. The sick in the hospital, unable to help themselves, perished. Twenty schooners and vessels were burned. Loss supposed to be near $3,000,000.

Another Fire.—The large hat store 109 John street was set on fire Saturday night and injured to the amount of $1000 before it could be stopped.

The Latest.—At half past 1 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the Chair and Sofa Factory, 332 Broadway, which was arrested in fifteen minutes, after having done considerable damage.—ib.

Arming.—The Providence Journal says that orders have been received at Newport to mount the guns at Fort Adams, and the men were busily engaged in the work last Sunday.

California.—A letter from Mazatlan, published in a late Vera Cruz paper, says:—The insurrection in California against General Michol Torano has succeeded—the holy cause of liberty is triumphant, we are independent.

Dogs for War.—At Chippewa and Kingston, Canada, Iron war steamers are in progress of building. Old John Bull always likes plenty of dogs to bark.

Antient disturbances continue in some of the counties of New York. Accounts from Hudson state that in attempting to dispossess a man named Freeman Ham, two officers were shot and seriously though not dangerously wounded. They narrowly escaped with their lives.

FRANCE.

The statistics of deaths and suicides in France show that in 1844 there were 7,767 accidental deaths, of which 3,500 were by drowning, 15 by railroad accidents, 175 died from hunger, want, and exposure, &c. The number of deaths by suicide amounted to 3,020, of which 2,291 were men and 729 females. Among the causes that led to suicide, we remark 154 attributed to general misery, 238 to the effects of drunkenness, 116 to a disgust of life, and 805 consequent on cerebral diseases. One little child of nine years of age was among the number who killed itself in consequence of grief at having lost some favorite bird.

An Avalanche in South America.—Twelve hundred lives lost!—The Jamaica (W. I.) papers report, on the authority of travelers by the Panama route from

POETRY.

For the Neighbor.

Long darkness and error like midnight's thick gloom,
Hung over erration as dark as the tomb;
While priestcraft unbounded o'er earth bore the sway,
And base superstition and blood marked their way.

With power supreme from the pope in his chair,
To the monk with sustenance bleeding and bare;
No one was exempted, all wander'd astray,
And groped in the dark like the blind at noon-day.

Thus error prolific has spread far and wide,
Till it deluged the earth with life's crimson tide;
While sect after sect sprang up and increased,
Till they filled up the number and name of the beast.

Amid all those scenes of confusion and blood,
None followed the right way, none knew the true God;

All grovelled in error from first to the last,
And priests ruled the people as men do an ass.

No priest hood nor prophet Jehovah would own,
To give revelations and make his will known,
They walked in the ways of their own evil hearts,
And worship'd a God without body or parts.

Thus system on system and party arose,
And each in their turn did the other oppose—
To pluck out the mote each party would try,
Not seeing the beam that was in their own eye.

The noted reformer, called Luther by name,
Arose in his wisdom, and played them a game;
Though hard was the conflict, and fierce was the blast,
On the card he turned up there was error at last.

Soon Calvin appeared, prepared for the fight,
Emerging from college with marvellous light,
But his wondrous rays like the fire-fly's spark,
Could never be noticed, except in the dark.

Then likewise stepped forward the Wesleys of fame,
Who thundered damnation with might and with main;
They poured forth a volley of threats like a storm,
And a God conjured up without body or form.

At last arose Campbell, a Scotchman by birth,
Who figured quite largely on this little earth;
But the figure he formed just fitted so near,
That it made for the beast its number complete.

All nations and kindreds that dwell on the land,
Have drank from the cup in old Babylon's hand;
While error and priestcraft have held their dread reign,
Till the earth has been streaked with the blood of their train.

So base and degraded is ignorant man,
And blind to the scheme of salvation's great plan;
That truth from the heavens would mortal deny,
I thought wrote with a sunbeam all fair on the sky.

S. HULET.

Lima, June, 1845.

From the Ministry of the Cross.

FAITH IN GOD.

BY REV. BISHOP HAWKS.

I knew a widow, very poor,
Whose small child died;
The oldest was but six years old—
A gentle, modest lad.

And very hard that widow toiled,
To feed her children four;
An honest pride the woman felt,
Though she was very poor.

To labor she would leave her home—
For children must be fed;
And glad was she when she could buy
A shilling's worth of bread.

And this was all the children had,
On any day to eat;
They drank their water, are their bread,
But never tasted meat.

One day the snow was falling fast,
And perching was the air;
I thought that I would go and see How these poor children were.

Err long I reached their cheerless home,
'Twas searched by every breeze;
When going in, the old child
I saw upon his knees.

I paused to listen to the boy—
He never raised his head,
But still went on, and said—"Give us
This day our daily bread."

I waited till the child was done,
Still listening as he prayed—
And when he rose, I asked him why
The Lord's prayer he had said.

"Why, sir," said he, "this morning, when
My mother went away,
She wept, because she said she had No bread for us to-day."

"She said we children now must starve,
Our father be no dead;
And then I told her not to cry,
For I could get some bread."

"Our Father," sir, the prayer begins;
Which makes me think that He,
As we have no kind father here,
Would our kind Father be."

"And then, you know, the prayer, too,
Asks God for bread each day;
So in the corn, sir, I went—
And that's what made me pray."

I quickly left that wretched room,

And went with hasty feet;

And very soon was back again,

With food enough to eat.

"I thought God heard me," said the boy,

I answered with a nod—

I could not speak—but much I thought

Of that boy's faith in God.

HUDSON BAY COMPANY.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer gives the following sketch of the above named company. As Oregon is embraced in it, we copy for the benefit of all concerned.

"A hundred and forty years ago, or more, Charles H. chartered the Hudson's Bay Company, and gave it exclusive privileges of establishing trading factories on Hudson's Bay and its tributary rivers. It took possession of the territory and enjoyed its trade, without opposition, till 1787, when a rival company—the North American Fur Company of Canada—sprang up. This latter was composed entirely of Canadians, and was noted for its energy and enterprise. The jealousies naturally arising between rivals, led to the most barbarous battles, and the sacking and burning each other's posts.

In 1821, Parliament interfered and consolidated them into one, under the title of the Hudson's Bay Company. They occupy a vast monopoly. All the British possessions north of the Canada, to the Arctic Ocean, are their hunting and trapping grounds. They have leased for twenty years from 1840, all of Russian America, except the post of St. Petersburg. This powerful Company control more than one-ninth of the soil of the globe. Its capitalists are in England, and its board of managers transact their business at the Hudson's Bay House, in London. This board buy all the goods, and ship them to the territory—sell the furs, and transact all the affairs of the company, except the actual business of collecting furs in their territory. The annual value of their peltries is about a million of dollars. The net profit of the fur trade is immense. The shares of the company's stock, which originally cost one hundred pounds, are at one hundred per cent. premium, and the dividends range from ten per cent. upwards, and this, too, while they are creating an immense fund, to be expended in keeping other persons out of the trade.

In 1811, the American Pacific Fur Company, of whom John Jacob Astor was the prime mover, built Fort Astoria, near the mouth of the Columbia. In 1813, during the last war, this American company sold all its establishments in Oregon to the British company—now the Hudson's Bay Company. In the same year, a British sloop of war entered the Columbia, and formally took possession of Fort Astoria, and changed its name to Fort George. In 1814, by the treaty of Ghent, England surrendered this Fort to our Government. Then it was by the same treaty, that British subjects were granted the same rights of trade and settlement in Oregon as belonged to the citizens of this Republic. For ten years, in 1827, this stipulation was indefinitely extended, and cannot cease to be in force till after twelve months notice.

This is the manner in which the Hudson's Bay Company came into Oregon. The value of furs which are annually collected in Oregon by this Company, is about $140,000 in the London market. Parliament extended the jurisdiction of the Canadian courts over the country occupied by these fur traders, whether it was owned or claimed by Great Britain. Under this act, certain gentlemen of the Fur Company were appointed Justices, and empowered to entertain prosecutions for minor offences—arrest and send to Canada criminals of a higher order; and try, render judgment, and grant execution in civil suits, and to imprison debtors in their forts and jails.

So it is that the trade, and the civil and criminal jurisdiction in Oregon, are held by British subjects—that American citizens are deprived by a monopoly of their commercial rights—that they are liable to be arrested on their own territory by officers of British courts, tried in the American domain by British judges, and imprisoned or hung, according to the laws of the British Empire, for acts done within the territorial limits of the Republic.

Pistols for Two.—Mrs. Gunn of Vermont recently presented her duel-hating husband with a brace of little pistols. Oil blades; says an old bachelor editor.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15, 1845

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.

THE Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an association, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that they are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and inasmuch as we have some of the best workmen in the city, we merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyacinth Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West-ru prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.

WM. EARL, President.

HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counselors.

CYRUS WINGATE, Secretary.

HUGH LYTLE, Superintendent.

U. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.

HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.

May 18, 1845—3—3m

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50tf

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 60 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses;—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO: ONE farm containing 155 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock, for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3-1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs.—Situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply to this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road, leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—49tf

ALSO:

A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 miles from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie town, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulston of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15, 1845

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.

THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes. Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 24—47tf

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinet-ware, Chairs, Hoops, Pitch-forks; finally, any thing that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity; that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Fowls, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buck-wheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wood, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43tf

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvement, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845—44tf

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43tf

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned, having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, clinch-lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19—42tf

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18—46tf

EARTHENWARE! EARTHENWARE!

GROUETT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring; at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844.

no41—1f.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West as the best preparations for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended; ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, flatulence and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lamberg, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

KEYSTONE STORE.

A. A. LATHROP has purchased the store of D. D. Yearsley, on Mulholland st., a little east of the Temple, where he will accommodate the Saints, his friends and the public, with DRY GOODS AND GROCERIES, as they may need, suitable for the season. Receiving fresh supplies occasionally.

Being a Mormon, he goes on the principle: our interest; our cause, and Nauvoo for ever.

One man is not every body, but he may do much good by turning a penny when he sells Goods, Wares, Crockery, Hardware, &c., CHEAP for cash, produce, and Truck, or exchanges fairly. Call and try.

March 17th. —46-3m

NOTICE.

PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his

QUARTOS	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	do	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
do	do	do	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	do	do	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	do	do	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1844.

LATELY DEPARTED.—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate Lard, at their Kitchen near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Smith.

All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.

JOSHUA BOYCE.

O. M. ALLEN.

EDMUND NELSON.

May 7, 1845—1—6m

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAGLIFT STEAMER AMARANTH, AT HON. MASTER, WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Nauvoo, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. She will leave St. Louis every Friday, and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning. On her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday at 7 o'clock a.m. previous to her departure at the upper Mississippi, and her friends will spare no pains to render her worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to

A. MERRISON, Agent.

Nauvoo, April 30th, 50tf

MERMAID!

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Glean, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis on Wednesdays at 4 P. M. arrive at Nauvoo on Friday mornings; and at Bloomington on Saturday mornings. Returning leave Bloomington on Saturday evenings; and Nauvoo on Sunday mornings. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as 'plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity.' For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent.

for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845—4f

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 8.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, June 25, 1845.

Whole Number 164

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Street,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

(One square, one insertion, 5¢)

Every subsequent insertion, 3¢ 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,

(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

CAPTAIN WILKEYS' NARRATIVE

OF A VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD.

EXTRACTS.

Customs of the Feejee Group.—1840.

Before proceeding to the narration of the operations of the squadron in the Feejee Group, it would appear expedient to give some account of the people who inhabit the islands of which it is composed. A reader, unacquainted with their manners and customs, can hardly appreciate the difficulties with which the performance of our duties was attended, or the obstacles which impeded our progress. Our information, in relation to the almost unknown race which occupies the Feejee Group, was obtained from personal observation, from the statements of the natives themselves, and from white residents. I also derived much information from the missionaries, who, influenced by motives of religion, have undertaken the arduous, and as yet unprofitable task of introducing the light of civilization and the illumination of the gospel into this benighted region.

Although, as we shall see, the natives of Feejee have made considerable progress in several of the useful arts, they are, in many respects, the most barbarous and savage race now existing upon the globe.

The intercourse they have had with white men has produced some effect on their political condition, but does not appear to have had the least influence in mitigating the barbarous ferocity of their character. If this group, therefore, may be seen the savage in his state of nature, and a comparison of his character with that of the natives of the groups in which the gospel has been profitably preached, will enable our readers to form a better estimate of the value of missionary labors, than can well be acquired in any other manner.

The Feejeans are generally above the middle height, and exhibit a great variety of figure. Among them the chiefs are tall, well-made, and muscular; while the lower orders manifest the meagreness arising from laborious service and scanty nourishment. Their complexion lies, in general, between that of the black and copper-colored races, although instances of both extremes are to be met with, thus indicating a descent from two different stocks. One of these, the copper-colored, is no doubt the same as that whence the Tonges are derived.

None of them equal the natives of Tonge in beauty of person. The faces of the great number are long, with a large mouth, good and well-set teeth, and a well formed nose. Instances, however, are by no means rare, of narrow and high foreheads, flat noses, and thick lips, with a broad short chin; still, they have nothing about them of the negro type. Even the frizzled appearance of the hair, which is almost universal, and which at first sight seems a distinct natural characteristic, I was, after a long acquaintance with their habits, inclined to ascribe to artificial causes. Besides the long bushy beard and mustaches, which are always worn by the chiefs, they have a great quantity of hair on their bodies. This, with the peculiar proportion between their thighs and the calves of their legs, brings them nearer to the whites than any of the Polynesian races.

The eyes of the Feejeans are usually blue, being black and penetrating. Some, however, have them red and bloodshot, which may probably be ascribed to a drinking habit.

The expression of their countenances is usually restless and watchful; they are observing and quick in their movements.

The hair of the boys is cropped close, while that of the young girls is allowed to grow. In the latter it is to be seen naturally arranged in tight cork-screw locks, many inches in length, which fall in all directions from the crown of the head. The natural color of the hair of the girls can hardly be ascertained, for they are in the habit of anointing upon it by lime and pigments, which make it white, red, brown or black, according to the taste of the individual. Mr. Drayton procured a very correct camera-lucida drawing of a girl about sixteen years of age, which will give the reader a better idea of the females of that age than any description.

When the boys grow up, their hair is no longer cropped, and great pains is taken to spread it out into a moplike form. The chiefs, in particular, pay great attention to the dressing of their heads, and for this purpose all of them have barbers, whose sole occupation is the care of their master's heads. The duty of these functionaries is held to be of so sacred a nature, that their hands are tabooed from all other employment, and they are not even permitted to feed themselves. To dress the head of a chief occupies several hours, and the hair is made to spread out from the head, on every side, in a distance that is often eight inches. The beard, which is also carefully nursed, often reaches the breast, and when a Feejean has these important parts of his person well dressed, he exhibits a degree of conceit that is not a little amusing.

In the process of 'dressing the hair,' it is well anointed with oil, mixed with a carbonaceous black, until it is completely saturated. The barber then takes the hairpin, which is a long and slender rod, made of tortoise-shell or bone, and proceeds to twirl almost every separate hair. This causes it to frizzle and stand erect. The bush of hair is then trimmed smooth, by singeing it until it has the appearance of an immense wig. When this has been finished, a piece of tapa, so fine as to resemble tissue-paper, is wound in light folds around it, to protect the hair from dew or dust. This covering, which has the look of a turban, is called sala, and none but chiefs are allowed to wear it; any attempt to assume this head-dress by a kaisi, or common person, would be immediately punished with death. The sala, when taken care of, will last three weeks or a month, and the hair is not dressed except when it is removed; but the high chiefs and dandies seldom allow a day to pass without changing the sala, and having their hair put in order.

The Feejeans are extremely changeable in their disposition. They are fond of joking, indulge in laughter, and will at one moment appear to give themselves up to merriment, from which they in an instant pass to demon-like anger, which they evince by looks which cannot be misunderstood by those who are the subjects of it, and particularly if in the power of the enraged native. Their anger seldom finds vent in words, but has the character of sullenness. A chief, when offended, seldom speaks a word, but puts sticks in the ground, to keep the spirit of his anger constantly in his recollection. The objects of it now understand that it is time to appease him by propitiatory offerings, if they would avoid the bad consequences. When these have been tendered to the satisfaction of the offended dignity, he pulls up the sticks as a signal that he is pacified.

According to Whippy, who had an excellent opportunity of judging, the Feejeans are addicted to stealing, are treacherous in the extreme, and, with all their ferocity, cowards. The most universal trait of their character, is their inclination to lying. They tell a falsehood in preference, when the truth would better answer their purpose; and, in conversing with them, the truth can be only obtained, by cautioning them not to talk like a Feejee man, or, in other words, not to tell any lies.

Adroit lying is regarded as an accomplishment, and one who is expert at it is sure of a comfortable subsistence and a friendly reception wherever he goes. Their own weakness in this respect does not render them suspicious, and nothing but what is greatly exaggerated is likely to be believed. In illustration of the latter trait, I was told by Paddy Connel, that he never told them the truth when he wished to be believed, for of it they were always incredulous. He maintained that it was absolutely necessary, to tell them lies in order to receive credence.

The religion of the Feejeans, and the practices which are founded upon it, differ materially from those of the lighter-colored Polynesian people.

The tradition given by the natives, is not very flattering to themselves. All are said to have been born of one pair of first parents. The Feejee was first born but acted wickedly and was black; he therefore received but little clothing. Tongo was next born; he acted less wickedly, and had more clothes given him. White men, or Papalangs, come last, they acted well, were white, and had plenty of clothes.

They have a tradition of a great flood or deluge, which they call Walawa-levu. Their account of it is as follows: after the islands had been peopled by the first man and woman, a great rain took place, by which they were finally submerged; but, before the highest places were covered by the waters, two large double canoes made their appearance; in one of these was Rokora, the God of carpenters, in the other Rokola, his head workman, who picked up some of the people, and kept them on board until the waters had subsided, after which they were again landed on the island. It is reported that in former times canoes were always kept in readiness against another inundation.

The persons thus saved, eight in number, were landed at Mbenga, where the highest of their gods is said to have made his first appearance. By virtue of this tradition, the chiefs of Mbenga take rank before all others, and have always acted a conspicuous part among the Feejees. They style themselves Ngali-duva-kilangi (subject to heaven alone.)

The Pantheon of the Feejee Group contains many deities. The first of them in rank is Ndengei. He is worshiped in the form of a large serpent, alleged to dwell in a district under the authority of Amban, which is called Nakauvadra. To this deity they devote the spirit goes immediately after death, for purification or to receive sentence. From his tribunal the spirit is supposed to return and remain about the number or temple of its former abode.

All spirits, however, are not believed to be permitted to reach the judgement seat of Ndengei, for, upon the road it is supposed that an enormous giant, armed with a large axe, stands constantly on the watch. With this weapon he endeavors to wound all who attempt to pass him. Those who are wounded dare not present themselves to Ndengei, and are obliged to wander about in the mountains. Whether the spirit be wounded or not, depends not upon the conduct in life, but they ascribe an escape from the blow wholly to good luck.

Stories are prevalent of persons who have succeeded in passing the monster without injury. One of these, which was told me by a white pilot, will suffice to show the character of this superstition.

A powerful chief, who had died, and been interred with all due ceremony, finding that he had to pass this giant, who, in legend, is stationed in the Moturiki channel, loaded his gun, which had been buried with him, and prepared for the encounter. The giant seeing the danger that threatened him, was on the look out to dodge the ball, which he did when the piece was discharged. Of this the chief took advantage to rush by him before he could recover himself, reached the judgement seat of Ndengei, and now enjoys celestial happiness!

Besides the entire form of a serpent, Ndengei is sometimes represented as having only the head and half the body of the figure of that reptile, while the remaining portion of his form is a stone, or a piece of wood.

No one pretends to know the origin of Ndengei but many assert that he has been seen by mortals. Thus, he is reported to have appeared under the form of a man, dressed in masi (white tapa), after the fashion of the natives, on the beach, near Ragragi. Thence he proceeded to Mbenga, where, although it did not please him, on account of its rocky shores, he made himself manifest, and thence went to Kantavu. Not liking the latter place, he went to Rewa, where he took up his abode. Here he was joined by another powerful god, called Warua, to whom, after a time, he consented to resign this locality, on condition of receiving the choicest parts of all kinds of food, as the heads of the turtle and pig, which are still held sacred. Under this agreement, he determined to proceed to Verata, where he has resided ever since, and by him Verata is believed to have been rendered impregnable.

Next in rank, in their mythology, stand two sons of Ndengei, Tokfairambo and Tui Lakomba. These act as mediators between their father and inferior spirits. They are said to be stationed, in the form of men, at the door of their father's cabin, where they receive and transmit to him the prayers and supplications of departed souls.

The grandchildren of Ndengei are third in rank. They are innumerable, and each has a peculiar duty to perform, of which the most usual is that of presiding over islands and districts.

A fourth class is supposed to be made up of more distant relatives of Ndengei. These preside over separate tribes, by whose priests they are consulted. They have no jurisdiction beyond their own tribe, and possess no power but what is deputed to them by superior deities.

In addition to these benignant beings, they believe in malicious and mischievous gods. These reside in their Hades, which they call Mbulu (underneath the world.) There reigns a cruel tyrant, with grim aspect, whom they name Lothia. Samualo (destroyer of souls) is his colleague, and sits on the brink of a huge fiery cavern, into which he precipitates departed spirits.

These notions, although the most prevalent, are not universal. Thus, the god of Muthuata is called Radindina. He is considered as the son of Ndengei. Here also Rokora, the god of carpenters, is held in honor; and they worship also Rokavona, the god of fisherman.

The people of Lakomba believe that departed souls proceed to Namuka-iwa, a place in the vicinity of the sea. Here they for a time exercise the same employment as when in this life, after which they die again, and go to Mbulu, where they are met by Samualo. This deity is empowered to hurl into the fiery gulf all those whom he dislikes. On Kantavu they admit of no good appointment to receive departed souls, but suppose that these go down into the sea, where they are examined by the great spirit, who retains those he likes, and sends back the others to their native island, to dwell among their friends. Another belief is, that the departed spirit goes before the god Tareta, who, as it approaches, darts a spear at it. If the spirit exhibits any signs of fear, it incurs the displeasure of the god, but if it advances with courage, it is received with favor.

On Vanua-levu it is believed that the ba-dimba, a point of land which forms Amman Bay. Here they are supposed to pass down into the sea, where they are taken into two canoes by Rokavona and Rokora, and ferried across into the dominions of Ndengei. When it blows hard, and there are storms of thunder lightning and rain, the natives say that the canoes are getting ready.

Some few of the natives worship an evil spirit, whom they call Ruku-badinda (the one toothed Lord.) He is represented under the form of a man, having wings instead of arms, and as provided with claws to seize his victims. His tooth is described as being large enough to reach above the top of his head; it is alleged he flies through the air emitting sparks of fire. He is said to roast in fire all the wicked who appertain to him. Those who do not worship him call him Kaloukaka, or Kalou-du.

At Rewa, it is believed that the spirits first repair to the residence of Ndengei, who allots some of them to the devils for food, and sends the rest away to Mukala, a small island off Rewa, where they remain until an appointed day, after which they are all doomed to annihilation. The judgements thus passed by Ndengei, seem to be ascribed rather to his caprice than to any desert of the departed soul.

This idea of a second death is illustrated by the following anecdote, related by Mr. Vanderford. This officer resided, for several months after his shipwreck, with Tanoa, King of Amban. During this time there was a great feast, at which many chiefs were present who remained to sleep. Before the close of the evening amusements, one of them had recounted the circumstances of his killing a neighboring chief. During the night he had occasion to leave the house, and his superstition led him to believe that he saw the ghost of his victim at which he threw his club, and as he asserted, killed it. Returning to the house, he aroused the king and all the other inmates, to whom he related what he had done. The occurrence was considered by all as highly important, and formed the subject of due deliberation. In the morning the club was found, when it was taken, with great pomp and parade to the mbure, where it was deposited as a memorial. All seemed to consider the killing of the spirit as a total annihilation of the person.

Among other forms of this superstition regarding spirits, is that of transmigration. Those who hold it think that spirits wander about the villages in various shapes, and can make themselves visible or invisible at pleasure; that there are particular places to which they resort, and in passing these they are accustomed to make a propitiatory offering of food or cloth. This form of superstition is the cause of an aversion to go abroad at night, and particularly when it is dark.

It is also a general belief, that the spirit of a celebrated chief may, after death, enter into some young man of the tribe, and animate him to deeds of valor. Persons thus distinguished are pointed out as highly favored; in consequence, they receive great respect, and their opinions are treated with much consideration, besides which, they have many personal privileges.

In general, the passage from life to death is considered as one from pain to happiness, and I was informed that nine out of ten look forward to it with anxiety.

A order to escape from the infirmities of old age, or the sufferings of disease. The deities whom we have named are served by priests, called ambai, who are worshipped in buildings denominated mbure, or spirit houses. Of such buildings each town has at least one, and often several, which serve also for entertaining strangers, as well as for holding councils and other public meetings. In these houses, images are found; but these, although much esteemed as ornaments, and held sacred, are not worshipped as idols. They are only produced on great occasions, such as festivals, &c.

THE REVOLUTION IN CALIFORNIA.

Letters from Monterey to the Washington Union furnish the following information respecting the Revolution in California: About eight years ago Don Juan Alvarado, Don Jose Castro, and other Californians by birth, aided by several foreigners, took possession of Monterey, the archives and Government property, chartered an English vessel, and at the Mexican General, his officers and their families, to Lower California, and left them there, to find their way to Mexico as they could. The Californians then proceeded to take possession of every part of California, with the different missions, and the many cattle belonging to the missions, and the different offices of honor and profit within this department. The Mexicans remaining in the country made an effort to put them down, but failed.

President Bustamante, the second year after this revolution, confirmed the Californians in their different employments. During the time they held command, they ordered almost every Englishman and American to be arrested. Over one hundred were imprisoned in Monterey at one time—some in a room which was a damp room, less than 20 feet square, without floor or windows. In May, the same year, many of the men were chained, six and eight to a bar, put into the hold of a vessel, and sent to San Blas. Fifteen months afterward the Government of Mexico sent part of them back to Monterey, several dying from fatigue and privations.

In the year 1843, General Manuel Micheltorena arrived in California with some three or four hundred officers and soldiers, and by orders of President Santa Anna took command—putting out of office some of the Californians. Last November, Senors Castro, Alvarado, and many of their countrymen, again arose with the determination of sending out of their country the Mexican troops. The two parties met and made a treaty. Within a month they each denied the treaty and again took up arms.

The Californians, to the number of one hundred and fifty, went to the town of Angels, one hundred miles north of Monterey, and stormed it in the night, with the loss of about two men. They were soon joined by the Californians at that place. On the 10th or 12th of January, Gov. General Micheltorena left Monterey with his officers, one hundred and fifty Mexican soldiers, some citizens of old Mexico, sixty or eighty wild Indians, trained to arms by Captain Sutter, (a Swiss settler on the river Sacramento,) and one hundred foreigners; a part of whom are settled on the same river.

On the 20th of February, the two parties (consisting of about six hundred men altogether, Mexicans, Californians, foreigners, and Indians,) got into action. Castro commenced the fight with cannon, firing large shot; and the Governor General, on his side, returning his fire with grape. Both parties remained so apart all that day as not to lose a man. On the next day, (the 21st,) the battle again commenced, and was continued in a warm and desperate contest. The Governor General, however, soon surrendered;—for forty or fifty foreigners having left him some time before, the remainder refused to fight against their countrymen in the insurgent ranks. After the battle, a treaty was made, by which was agreed that every person on either side might go where he wished—the soldiers to go to San Blas or remain citizens of California.

California, from Bodega to San Diego, is now once more under its own command—the Russians having left Bodega, which now belongs to Capt. S. Smith of Baltimore, (United States of America,) who is a naturalized citizen of California. Whether the natives of this country will keep among themselves, or be again conquered for a year or two by Mexico, remains to be seen. If allowed to govern themselves, they acknowledge the Mexican flag, and their laws, when they please them. Don Piez has become Governor, as he is leading member of the House of Deputies or State Legislature; and Don Jose Castro has become Commandment General of California, at the town of Angels, near San Pedro. They received this command, by treaty with General M. Micheltorena, and they have chartered the American bark Don Quixote, to bring the General and forces to Monterey.

The General and his officers are allowed six days to arrange their business and take on board their families; they then proceed to San Blas, thence to the city of Mexico. Captain Sutter and all the foreigners who joined the Government forces have returned to their farms on the head waters of the San Francisco, as they found many of their countrymen with the insurgents. Both parties withdrew from the field of battle. Although the Mexican troops and Californians were firing several cannon with grape and ball at each other a part of two days, it is ascertained that not one man is even wounded—their respective situations being too secure, and the distance very great.

Affairs are now apparently quiet in the department of Upper California. The natives now hold the reins of government under the expectation that the supreme government of Mexico will confirm their different acts and appointments. At the same time many have their fears that some Commander, more severe than the former one, will arrive to punish them during the next year.

A Secret.—How do you do, Mrs. Tomes? Have you heard that story about

Mrs. Lady! 'Why, no, really, Mrs. Gad; what is it? do tell!' 'O, I promised not to tell for all the world! No, I must never tell on't, I'm afraid it will go out.' 'Why, I'll never tell on't as long as I live, just as true as the world;—what is it? come, tell.' 'Now you won't say any thing about, will you?' 'No, I'll never open my head about it—never;—hope to die this minute.' Well, if you'll believe me, Mrs. Funday told me, last night, that Mrs. Trot told her that her sister's husband was told by a person who dreamed it, that Mrs. Trouble's old daughter told Mrs. Nighens that her got from her third sister's second husband's oldest brother's step-daughter, that it was reported by the captain of a clambot just arrived from the Feejee Islands, that the mermaids about that section wore sharkskin bustles stuffed with pickled cels' toes!

Capt. Coffin, late of the whale ship 'Thule,' of Nantucket, arrived at New Bedford on the 25th, relates the following particulars of the loss of his ship:

The Thule had been 27 months out and obtained 1050 blbs. oil, when, at 20 minutes past 4 o'clock, on the morning of the 11th September, she struck on a shoal not laid down on the chart, 30 miles W. N. W. from the Booby Shoals. The officers and crew immediately took to the boats for safety, lay off until daylight, and at 7 boarded the ship through the breakers with much difficulty, and got a small quantity of bread.

The provisions were equally distributed among the boat's crews, affording about 20 ounces of bread and 10 gills of water to each man—24 in all. At 9 A. M. the boats put away from the reef, steering W. S. W. in lat. 20 52 S. long. 153 30 W. The mate's boat had previously during the night been kept in tow by the captain's boat, in order that mutual assistance might be rendered in case of accident, but on the night of the 14th, owing to the strong wind, it was found impossible, after repeated attempts, to keep her in tow, and Capt. Coffin therefore arranged with the mate to set a light hourly.

This plan was successful, and was answered by the mate's boat until 12 o'clock, when the other boat under the command of the 2d mate got into the breakers on Cato's bank; and from the direction of the mate's boat when last seen, it is supposed that it ran into the breakers, and nothing has since been seen or heard of those on board. The 2d mate's boat subsequently arrived at Brisbane river, New South Wales, and afterwards at Sydney, whence her crew re-embarked in various ways, and some of them have returned home. The captain's boat arrived at Brisbane on the 20th. The persons in the mate's boat were:—Edward B. Nicholson, of Nantucket, 1st officer; John Seabury, colored, of Nantucket, boat-steerer; John Little, colored, of New York; Alonzo O. Hatch, of Kennebeck; John Huntley of Maine; Wm. Shaw, England; and two natives of King's Mills Island; all of whom have probably perished.

Remember it.—Ardent Spirits is not a source of Strength, but of Weakness.—The celebrated English physician, Dr. Hunter, took an admirable method of enforcing this important truth. A strong, ruddy-faced farmer, had a disease, which induced the Doctor to enjoin total abstinence from fermented liquors. 'Sir,' said the farmer, 'I assure you, I am a very temperate man; I scarcely ever exceed three pints of ale in the day, and I never touch spirits.' 'But,' said the Doctor, 'you must now drink nothing but water.' 'Sir,' said the farmer, 'that is impossible, for I cannot relinquish my employment; and you know, Sir, it is impossible to work without some support.' Dr. Hunter perceiving that his patient was not likely to be readily convinced, inquired how many acres of land he cultivated, and what number of them was arable? He then asked how many horses were employed upon the farm? And then boldly asserted they were too few in number for the quantity of land. The farmer maintained they were sufficient; but was, at last, brought to confess they were worked rather hard. 'Allow me, then,' said the Doctor, 'to ask what it is you give them to drink?'

Content with an Eagle.—The Nashua Telegraph says that a few days ago, a lad fourteen years old, John Bartley, son of Robert Bartley, Esq., of Windham, killed a white-headed Eagle which measured 7 feet from tip to tip of his wings. The Eagle had pounced upon a rabbit, in a swamp, and owing to the brush or something else, he was unable to rise. The boy was after him and soon had him by the neck, when a severe contest ensued; the Eagle struggling with his might, and tearing the boy pretty badly with his claws, but he held on, till he finally succeeded in getting his jackknife from his pocket, and cutting the throat of his antagonist.

THE CATASTROPHE AT YARMOUTH.

The Great Western brought the painful intelligence that the wire bridge at Yarmouth had given way, under the pressure of a large number of persons collected to see Cook's equestrian company perform some folly on the river at that place. The subjoined particulars of his said accident we copy from the London Watchman. The Spectator says that seventy-five bodies had been identified, and the number lost is estimated at one hundred and thirty, or one hundred and forty.

The bridge was observed to give way. It lowered on one side; the chains snapped asunder, one after another, in momentary succession; and, almost before the gaze of the thronging multitude could be drawn from its object of worthless interest, it was riveted to the half-sunken bridge—suspended on one side by its unbroken chains—cleared of all its occupants—every one of whom was plunged into the stream, and over them the waters were flowing. Those who witnessed the fearful tragedy, assert that not a scream was heard, nor a sound emitted, from the unfortunate victims. A fearful splash and a few gurgling struggles only indicated the spot which had swallowed such flagging by the broken chains were earnestly entreated to maintain their hold; but it was soon observed that in consequence of the obstruction of the stream by the fallen bridge, and the human bodies below, the advancing tide would soon bury even them from sight.

Every boat was immediately in requisition, and as many as twenty-five were seen on the spot, and rendered active and gallant service. The scene at this moment beggars description—husbands and wives, parents and children, were excited with the deepest anxiety. The efforts to save the victims were noble and praiseworthy. One man who was precipitated from the bridge caught a hold and maintained it—a female made a desperate clutch at his ankles, and succeeded in reaching them. The brave fellow looked down, and though in fearful peril himself, encouraged her to hold tight, and she was rescued. The man refused to get into the boat, telling the occupants to pick up those who were floating about the river—subsequently, however, he was obliged to release his hold, and he fell into the stream. We are happy to say that a rope was thrown to him immediately, and he was brought safely ashore.

The bodies were picked up in quick succession, most of them dead. Among the number was a woman—doubtless a mother—who had in her arms an infant, and in one hand a little girl, three or four years old; she had firmly grasped both, and her firm hold had not been broken by the struggle of death, for it was with difficulty they were separated. The various incidents of the tragic scene are some of them very touching. The children were many of them found with their hands fast in the railing, (which on the bursting of the chains lapped over into the water,) doubtless fixed in that position in their anxiety to feast their eyes on the expectant sight. Many were restored by active means. Barrels of hot water were sent from the brew office of Messrs. Lacey to Mr. Laws, of the Norwich Arms Inn, where the scene was most dreadful. The kitchen, the tap room, and other rooms, with the stables, were filled with victims.

As many as ten or a dozen were ultimately recovered, but no less than fifty-three corpses were brought into that house, which defied all the means of restoration; others were taken to other public houses in the neighborhood, but not in very considerable numbers. The great majority of the sufferers are women and children.

Workmen were employed on Saturday with heavy cranes in raising the bridge, but had not succeeded when the accounts left. It is thought that a number of bodies are still under the bridge, fastened by the rails being crushed together. One hundred and thirteen bodies have been taken out, and more, it is said, are still in the water.

THE ISLAND OF SUMATRA.

A communication to the Navy Department, from Captain Percival, of the U. S. frigate Constitution, under date of Singapore, February 7, 1845, in which he states that a short time previous he had visited the Island of Sumatra. In an interview with the rajahs and head men of the island, held on board the Constitution, he informed them that he was directed by the President of the United States to assure them, that if they let the quiet traders alone without robbing or murdering them, there never would be a shot fired at them in hostility from under the American flag. But he assured them that if another American or a man belonging to an American ship, should be killed, or maltreated, or a ship be cut off and plundered, a small vessel would be sent to cruise around the Island of Sumatra, with general orders to burn their towns, destroy their forts, and wage an exterminating warfare. To this they replied, "that peace was their object, and the commerce of the United States of America." There are annually employed on the coast of Sumatra, from the United States, about 5,000 tons of shipping, the value of which, at a moderate calculation, would be $225,000.

HE IS ONLY A MECHANIC.

How frequently is this remark made by aristocratic upstarts, who have no thing to recommend them save their money and impudence, when the name of an honest and intelligent mechanic happens to be mentioned in their presence. They consider it degrading to associate with those who do not, like themselves, possess wealth, even though that wealth was obtained by the most rascally means. Nothing is so disgusting to well-bred, well-informed people, as to hear an ignorant, conceited, puffed-up, long-haired, brainless, impudent dandy, talk about mechanics, as if they were no better than brutes.

No true lady or gentleman would be guilty of such littleness. It is only the ignorant spoiled beauty; the worthless, contemptible soap-lock who would do so. Show us the man or woman who would consider it a disgrace to associate with honest, well-informed mechanics, and we will show you a poor, worthless, ignorant, conceited creature, useless to himself and the world, and a disgrace and encumbrance to his friends.—West. Let. Mes.

Meteor Shower.—The last number of Silliman's Journal contains a paper by E. C. Herrick, Esq., of New Haven, from which it appears that the August exhibition of meteors, as seen in that city, was last year fully equal to that of any former year since 1837. In three hours on the night of the 10th, 11th, and 12th, 622 meteors were seen, and on the night of the 10th-11th, in six hours, 622 meteors.

MINISTERS DEAD.—The Black Tongue.—The Rev. B. Westlake, of Peru district, and Rev. Mr. Buckingham of Longport district, Indiana, died a few days since of erysipelas or black tongue. It is also said that Rev. R. Hargrave died recently in a fit. During a few months past the deaths of the following ministers have been recorded in Indiana, to wit: Clippenger, Patrick, Cuthrie, Eldor, Crouch, Games, Ballingall, Westlake, Buckingham, and Hargrave, all belonging to the Methodist Church.

Money answers all things.—"The young man who was seduced by a gay married lady of Troy, N. Y. eloped with her, has been arrested at New Orleans, and compromised with the injured husband by paying $5000—about one half the patrimony of which he had just come into the possession."

Butchery.—News from Central America gives an account of the seizure of the Capital of Nicaragua by Gen. Malespin, who, it is said, burnt about a thousand of the aged women, children and friends of Leon. The people of Salvador, of whom Malespin is Governor, rebelled against him during his absence. Malespin, at the last dates, was marching against the rebels.

Revenge is the order of the day.

"Doctor," said an old gentleman, who was an inveterate snuff-taker, to a physician, "is it true that snuff destroys the olfactory nerves, clogs, and otherwise injures the brain?" "It cannot be true," was the caustic reply, "since those who have any brains never take snuff at all."—Punch.

Too many lawyers.—It appears by an article in a Madrid journal that there are nearly 800 lawyers and advocates in Madrid, and that in all the other towns in Spain they are quite as numerous in proportion to the population. If one fourth of those persons get their bread by their profession, the Spanish people must be the most litigious in the universe.

GUN AT SUNDOWN.—It is well known to our readers, says a paper in the vicinity of West Point, that it is the practice to give a morning and an evening gun at this military station, the reports of which are plainly heard.—A few days since, a gentleman on the Point took into his service a verdant son of the Emerald Isle. On the first day of his service he was startled by the report of the evening gun, as it reverberated through the highlands, awakening the mountain's slumbering echoes, and anxiously enquired of his employer the cause of this explosion. And was told that it was the "sundown gun."—"Och, bless me, and does the sun make a devil of a big thunder as that on going down in Amerika—I never heard the like of it in the old country."

IN CHARACTER.—Within three minutes' time after the terrible crash of the stand building on the Camden race course, on Wednesday last, and long before it was ascertained whether there were not scores of mangled human beings buried beneath the ruins, the gamblers who had escaped with their "sweat-cloths" and roulette tables, which had been located underneath and in the immediate vicinity of the building, and the rear, having placed their table and apparatus, were busily at work again at their vocation, throwing the dice and slipping the ball.

THE FORCE OF TRUTH was remarkably exemplified recently in Kentucky, on the occasion of a funeral.—The bereaved wife and a few neighbors, sat waiting the arrival of the people, all solemnly idle. The widow, becoming very uneasy, after sitting idle a few minutes, cried out, "Betty! bring my knitting, I may as well take a few stitches while the crowd is gathering."

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25, 1845.

Be one, mechanics!—A communication from the shoe makers association has been sent to us for publication, but upon mature reflections, we shall not publish it now.

The objects of associations among the various mechanics of Nauvoo, are, in the first place, to afford each individual a channel of support; in the second, to employ men and women who are idle; and thirdly to build up the city from its own resources. In order to effect these laudable objects, we need a unity of effort, and an obedience to the common rules by which all trades, and cities, and even associations, are governed.

In order, then, to attract the attention of buyers, and compete with foreign manufactured articles, it is necessary to sell the same commodities as cheap as your neighbors. There is, then, no excuse, if a person brings foreign goods, or wares, (when the same can be afforded as good and as cheap) and disposes of them in Nauvoo, the vender and buyer are both to blame; and if connected with the church, must be set down, as weak in the faith, transgressing counsel.

The unanimous resolution of the last April conference was, to go work and maintain ourselves both agriculturally and mechanically, like other cities, and so far, that resolution has been sustained manfully. Now what shall we say? If men go to St. Louis or other places to buy, when they could do as well here, public spirit and perfect union, will rebuke such a course, and leave them to speculate upon bad policy, like many others who have tried the same game with the Mormons before.

Merchants, mechanics, doctors and lawyers, who come into Nauvoo to reside with the saints, must be governed by the same rules and circumstances as other cities,—the majority governs, and the saints will not break the law of the land by withholding support from everything that would disgrace the city.

Foreign goods when we have as good, are not needed. Law-suits, drunkenness, and debauchery, will miserably bring on such awful scenes as we have passed through in Missouri, or witnessed at Carthage. By wisdom we stand, by folly we fall.

It is an old saying that "goodness will be rewarded," and, seemingly, every effort by the industrious citizens of Nauvoo, has been crowned with complete success. The apostates in their wickedness, fled to Pittsburg &c. The honest in their sincerity went to work, and the temple and the smiling fields and gardens, give the surrounding world a most charming specimen of the promise, blessed is he that trusteth in God, for he shall be rewarded.

Were we to say any thing on the subject, it would be:—Patronize your friends; go for the interests of Nauvoo, and carry out the great plans of the martyred prophet, Joseph Smith. Treat strangers civilly and entertain them according to scripture. Beware of law-suits; beware of strong drink, and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees.

Robbery.—An attempt was made on Thursday night last, to break into the house of Rufus Beach in the east part of this city, for the purpose as is supposed, of robbing it of a few thousand dollars. The thief was discovered, the "caps" put at him, alarmed him, and he escaped with the loss of a shoe. Citizens ought to be ready to give such "visitors" a habeas corpus.

SHOCKING MURDER.

On Monday evening last, at about half past 10 o'clock Irvine Hodges of Mechanicsville in this county was inhumanly murdered, in this city, about 35 rods west of this office. He had been to Burlington Iowa, to witness the trial of his two brothers who were tried for the late murder in that Territory, and returning stopped at Nauvoo for the night. Although the blows and shrieks were heard at a little distance, yet no track of possession of, broken up and thrown of the assassin or assassins have been found. The Sheriff has offered a reward of $200, for the apprehension of the murderers.

An inquest was held immediately over the

the body and a verdict found as follows to wit:

"That the deceased came to his death by violence, but by some person unknown to the jury, and the said body has upon it the following marks and wounds inflicted by some person unknown to the jury, and which this jury find to have been the cause of his death, to wit: with two or three cuts and bruises on the head supposed to have been inflicted by a club, also four cuts on his left side measuring from one inch to one inch and a quarter, supposed to have been inflicted by a bowie knife."

Concition.—We are informed by persons who have returned from Burlington, that the two young Hodges were convicted of the crime of murder, and will be executed in July, if not reprieved.

AND SO FORTHIANA.

AT BURLINGTON it is currently said the fire at various places makes fearful havoc of property; and what is most singular in the most alarming cases, is, that the fire catches accidentally. Joseph Smith once said, in great earnest, that if this nation refused to restore the church of Jesus Christ of Latter day Saints to their rights and property, "God would send his hot wrath through the nation like a whirlwind,"—and who can doubt the commencement? Many people have ridiculed the Mormons for believing that judgments and calamities were about to vex the nations of the earth, but now they come and who is prepared to enter his closet till the indignation is passed?

Fire in Birmingham.—An Extensive Rolling Mill Burnt.—An extra of the Pittsburgh Gazette, of Saturday, 7th inst., has the following:

About half past three o'clock on Saturday morning, June 7th, a fire broke out in the iron works of Woods, Edwards, and McKnight, which was totally consumed. The firemen of the borough with almost superhuman efforts, confined the flames to the rolling mill. Through their exertions, aided by the citizens and hands, the nail factory, which is a large brick building attached to the mill, was saved though somewhat damaged. The warehouse, containing a large stock, and separated from the mill by only a narrow passage, was also saved, though frequently on fire, and by many, frequently given up as lost. The Eagle engine and hose was the only Pittsburg company on the ground, and the mill burned down before they arrived.

More than 100 hands, by this fire, are turned out of employment, and will feel the loss of the mill more severely than the owners, who are insured.

Fire at Ann Arbor. June 5.—The Depot at this place took fire yesterday, between four and five o'clock, and was entirely consumed, together with the large warehouse belonging to Mrs. R. C. Fuller, and the yellow storehouse belonging to T. H. Powell, Esq., and a house belonging to Messrs Page and Ornsby, which was occupied as a dwelling by V. H. Powell, whose furniture was mostly destroyed. The loss is nearly as follows: Loss to the state, from $7,000 to $8,000; Mrs Fuller $3,000; V. H. Powell, Esq., from $1,200 to $1,500; Messrs Page and Ornsby about $400, N. Bennett damage to house and furniture, $100 to $150.—Detroit Free Press.

Large Fire at Cambridge.—The Atheneum building with Alston's panorama of Athens on which that great artist was engaged for sixteen years, and which has been valued at $10,000, three carpenters' shop, and several other buildings destroyed. The whole damage cannot be such less than $40,000. Cinders from the fire flew in large quantities as far as Cambridgeport.

Steamer Burned.—The steamer Imperial (says the Cincinnati Enquirer of 12th inst.) lying a little below the mouth of Deer creek, was discovered to be on fire about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Before the flames could be arrested she was burned to the hull. A small portion only of her furniture was saved.

They will kill one another.—A family in which there are two brothers, and their father reside at West Utica. On Friday week, one of the boys and the other had a fight, and the other boy, to protect the father, stabbed his fighting brother so that he died in consequence.

FIRE—ANOTHER OUTRAGE.—GREAT EXCITEMENT.

Correspondence of the Tribune.

Philadelphia, June 8—P. M. A fire broke out about 10 o'clock last evening in Wainwright's lamp-black manufactory, corner of Callowhill and Shuylkill Second streets, which was destroyed with its contents. During the night and this morning, the fire broke out again among the ruins several times, and the firemen were called out. The old difficulty between the Good-Will Hose and Fairmount Engine Companies was again revived, and a dreadful fight ensued.

The members of the latter company were severely beaten; their apparatus taken possession of, broken up and thrown into the Schuylkill river. During the fight, all sorts of weapons were used, and it is said one or two persons were shot, the life of one being despaired of. A tremendous excitement now prevails in the district, hundreds of people to be seen in various parts of the turbulent neighborhood. A fearful riot is anticipated to night. A large police force is assembled to prevent the same, but I doubt its success. The remains of the Fairmount were brought to Menich and Agnew's establishment, about 2 o'clock this forenoon, when an old engine was furnished the "Fairy boys" by Mr. Agnew. A man named Wilbank is severely injured.

Postscript.—An alarm of fire has just sprung up; what its result may be, I cannot tell, but fear trouble. The house of the Good-Will is threatened with demolition. There will be terrible work yet. The Good-Will is composed principally of Irish: the Fairmount of Locofocos.

Fire.—As we go to press the bells ring the alarm of fire which has broken out in a house, 66 Washington street, occupied by a number of Irish families. The efforts of the firemen will confine the flames to the upper story.

A little child was burnt in the confusion before assistance could reach it.—N. Y. Times.

Earthquake.—During the prevalence of the earthquake in Mexico, last month, one town, called Valle de Rio Blanco, in Guanajuato, was entirely swallowed up leaving only a large cavern where it stood. Upwards of sixty persons perished in this awful gulf. In Zacatecas, the oscillation of the earth produced the explosion of a powder mill, which did considerable damage, besides loss of life. On the 10th ult., the capital was visited with two more shocks, which lasted each several seconds.

Fire.—A fire broke out at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, in a block of frame buildings, at the corner of Court and Main streets. Mr. S. Bardsell's drug store, at the corner, and several adjacent buildings were more or less burned and injured by the fire, though not wholly consumed. The buildings were of little value. The owners on each side of them had taken down the old frames, and we understand it was contemplated to take down the stores which were burnt. We are not advised of the amount of personal property destroyed.—Cin. Atlas.

Fires in May.—The monthly report of the Civil Engineer, exhibits a list of 32 fires in the city during the last month, besides 15 distinct alarms. At five of the fires the destruction of property was large; the residue small.—N. Y. Morning News.

Schockack Landing, June 6.—Yesterday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, the numerous buildings with the dwelling house of Mr. Abraham D. Van Valkenburgh, were consumed by fire. Barn-thrashing machine and power, shed, wagon-house, corn-house, wood house, and then the dwelling-house were levelled and consumed in less than two hours: two horses were taken out of the barn and two left; two hundred bushels of corn, a number of sets of harness, wagons and sleigh wood in the wood-house, and all that of course would be accumulated by a large farmer, was destroyed.

[Correspondence Albany Eve. Jour.]

A fire, on Saturday, destroyed the extensive sawmill of William Carman & Son, situated on the bank of the Delaware, between Camden and Cooper's point, N. J. Loss $15,000. It was one of the most brilliant conflagrations ever witnessed. The city of Philadelphia, opposite Race and Arch streets, was lighted up for squares, and the effect upon the shipping and houses, it is said, was truly beautiful.

Whaling.—The barque Pantheon, returned to Fall River Mass., after a cruise of 2 1/2 years, with a manifest of 4,700 bbls. of oil; (a part had been sold) this cargo is worth high to $100,000, which is pretty strong testimony that "oil and water will mix" in making fortunes.

Concert.—There will be a concert given at the Music Hall, in this city, on the 4th of July next, for the benefit of the "old police." We shall expect Master Pitt, Monsieur Kay and company to give some of the fine touches and rich licks. "Music bath charms," &c.

Strayed from the Owner.—The captain of a wild boat a few days since, offered to Hudson for 35 cents per barrel, Rochester way, however, the Captain sold 130 bbls. and decamped, leaving the boat and the balance of the cargo to find their way to the water under other auspices.

A paddy said, the pable in New York live by cheating strangers, and when there are no strangers to cheat, they cheat one another.

A young gentleman says to a young lady he was courting for a wife, "if you should not get married, what then?" She replied, "I shall still be Missed."

Wet Weather.—For several days the weather has been lowering and rainy. At the same time, however, every thing grows as if nature was doing her perfect work.

Conventions.—America is a great place for combinations, assemblies, anniversaries, and conventions. Missionary conventions, Deist conventions, Teachers conventions, College conventions, and what not, together with the associations, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Methodist,

Baptists, Unitarian, Quaker, Evangelical, Tract, Sunday school, &c., have agitated many of our large cities, for the past two months, almost as much as the fires. It is all well enough, but might be a little better by taking a majority of the funds and needless expenses, and applying them to the wants of the poor in each vicinity.

"Religion" is the "ruling passion" of all these oceans of people, and the great hub end, and perfection of all of it can be solved, answered and made serviceable, and sanctified by James' rule as follows, to wit:

"Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father, is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep himself unspotted from the world"—and administer to their necessities according to the requirements of the gospel. Amen.

Sacerdotal arrears.—One of our exchanges says, the "Rev. Mr. Pierpont, on quitting his congregation at Boston, was paid up his arrears of $14,000. Horrah for that!"

Hophni and Phinehas were paid up, for putting their "flesh hooks" into pot, too.

Hush my dear!—The Missouriian of St. Louis, because Van Antwerp has been appointed receiver at the land office in Fairfield, Iowa, is wonderfully tickled, and makes sport of his friends and neighbors. In old times, when children "mocked the prophets," the bears killed them.

The River.—The water, for the past week, has risen almost to the common "high water mark." The mountain rise always does something, towards improving the "Rapid," (which our "long winded" Congress fails of performing;—i. e. hoists the top of the river. True! Mormonism this—perfect elevation for the good of mankind; but alas! sixteen miles below, such logic is branded as felony or treason. Well, says the pope, men differ in opinion, if congress should lower the bottom of the river it would be higher their understanding of gravitation.

Take care.—An old building at the Capden race course near Phil. rent and scared and hurt a number of persons on the day of the late races.—Curiosity can frolic as well as fashion.

Ice.—Last week ice was formed at Utica and Albany, New York, and in the suburbs of Philadelphia.—Reveille.

Reform from heaven, all in time; it will reduce the price of winter ice.—"Strange work" in the last days.

Dog eat dog.—In a Hungarian paper, there appears an announcement, that two hundred Bohemian families are to be sold, in parcels of not less than five families in a lot. The sale is to take place at Bochester.

In the United States hundreds of families are sold yearly at wholesale or retail, viz:—

FOR SALE.—A negro girl, Zelina, aged about 17, a good cook, washer and ironer, seamstress and hair dresser. Also, a mulatto woman, Maria, aged about 30, a first rate washer and ironer, and a good cook. Apply to JUNIUS AMIS & Co, 19 Camp st. New Orleans' Tribune, May 13.

NEGROES WANTED.

Any person having likely negroes, for sale, male or female, can find a purchaser by inquiring at the Register office, Boonville, May 10.—Missouri Register.

"Huzza for the land of the free, And the home of the brave!"

Duelling Extra.—As it has become important cases with pistols, we will give a specimen that occurred in our borders.

A young sprig, (not a Mormon) was seized with the tender passion for a lady; and another young man was "also," and did "likewise" pay some attention to the lady. This highly inflamed the choler of our sprig. At this juncture our "fourth Devil" tipped the wink to Sprig to challenge his "foe"—which he did. Matters were arranged and our "fourth" acted as second. The first round did not go off, but the second being perfectly arranged according to the points of honor,—"bang!" cracked Spriggy's pistol, and the "foe" fell.—The seconds shouted, "run—run! you've killed him,"—and horrible to think! Spriggy stormed, first for home, then for Texas, or some where else, while his "foe" and the seconds enjoyed the sport of a blank shot, wherein a fool's bolt was shot, first rate, anticipating, that some of the neighboring printers would charge the boys with barefaced stealing duels ready made.

Special Court.—A special Term of the circuit court for Hancock County, for the trial of the indictments in the murder of Hyrum Smith, commenced at Carthage yesterday. We have received nothing of what was done.

Health.—Great care should be taken to preserve health. It has been very wet for the past week, and the water in cellars and holes will soon stagnate. Take care of thy health. The sweeper is always handy.

Texas.—There is much figuring in high places about the annexation of Texas, and will be more. As soon as the Congress, called by President Jones of Texas, shall have decided on the resolutions of our Congress last session, then the fun of enlarging our borders by legislation, will commence. So our readers will have to be patient yet a little season.

John Bull is very graciously mysterious: the French would play 'Bob & Josephus,' if they dare; Mexico would 'cut mahogany,' bless Santa Anna, and lick skillets, for tribute till the sky falls, if they could call the dog back, while the Yankees will not only be taming Texas, but will be trapping Oregon, California, and Mexico, too, with artificial flies. Go it, gold hunters; guineas, guinea hens, and glory—are marketable commodities.

The Old Hero.—We correct our last week's statement, by publishing the following:

"Gen. Andrew Jackson died at the Hermitage, at 6 o'clock, P. M., on Sunday, the 8th inst. He breathed his last quietly, calmly, and with entire resignation, amidst the beloved members of his family and a few intimate friends who were present. Death had no terrors for him—the met him with composure, and with a full confidence that he was prepared for a better world. Death could not have taken him by surprise at any moment for more than a year—he has been ready at all times to obey the dread summons."

It appears that Gen. Houston from Texas, was a half-hour too late to see the hero alive. He shook his hand, but it was cold in death.

PATRIARCHAL.—Since the publication of the last Times and Seasons, we have frequently been interrogated about the meaning of some remarks made by E. D. Wm. Smith in an article headed 'Patriarchal,' and also concerning some expressions in the editorial connected therewith; and as the nature of the office of Patriarch, does not seem to be fully understood, we thought a little explanation on this point might not be amiss.

So far as the editorial is concerned it was written rather hastily by our junior editor, W. W. Phelps, and did not come under our notice until after it was published. There are some expressions contained in it, which might have been worded better and have rendered it less subject to criticism; but he assures us that no such intention was intended to be conveyed as that which is conceived by some. And concerning Brother Wm. Smith, we are better acquainted with him, and with his views, than to believe that he intended to convey any such idea as the one which some persons would put upon, or gather from his sayings.

In regard to the office of Patriarch, William Smith has been ordained Patriarch to the church; but he is not the only Patriarch, but would act as a senior Patriarch, holding the keys of that priesthood; and his labors would be more especially connected with the church in Zion, and he would take the lead, priority, or presidency of the Patriarchal office in this place; and in this capacity if there should be a council of Patriarchs, he as a matter of course would preside by right of office. But every legally ordained Patriarch has the same right to bless that he has, and their administrations are just as legal as his. Every ordinance that is administered by a legal administrator, is legal. A priest has just as much right to baptize a person for the remission of sins as an elder, a high priest, or an apostle; but he cannot lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, because he does not possess the authority to do it; but an elder does, and an elder's administration would be just as legal as the administration of any of the beforementioned persons, or as that of the president of the church.

Every blessing is a Patriarch to his own family; and has the right to confer patriarchal blessings upon his family; which blessings will be just as legal as those conferred by any Patriarch of the church; in fact it is his right; and a Patriarch in blessing his children, can only bless his mouth-piece.

A Patriarch to the church is appointed to see those who are orphans, or have no father in the church to bless them. Not as stated in the editorial above alluded to, "to bless all, and such as have no father to do it," for this he could not do, where the church is so extensive; the burthen would be too onerous; hence other Patriarchs have been ordained, both in this country, and in England, to assist the Patriarch to the church, and hence the provision made in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants: "It is the duty of the Twelve, in all large branches of the church, to ordain angelical ministers (Patriarchs) as they shall be designated unto them by revelation." Page 101. And should any of those Patriarchs remove here, they have just as much right to administer in their patriarchal office under the direction of the Patriarch to the church, as an elder or priest would, who should remove from one of the branches to this place, under the direction of the presidency. Brother Wm. Smith however, "holds the keys of the patriarchal blessings upon the heads of all my people," and would of necessity have the seniority, and of course the priority and presidency; yet it would be left for those who wished to be administered to; to make their choice; just as much as it would for a candidate for baptism to choose who should administer to him.

The above is the true doctrine of the church in regard to this matter, and we speak of it for the information of the brethren at large, lest those who may have received their patriarchal blessings from other sources, or from their fathers, might be tempted to think they were of no avail, and also, to set at rest this agitated question.

We now proceed to answer some of the remarks which we have heard:

We have been asked, "Does not patriarch over the whole church?" place Brother William Smith at the head of the whole church as president?

Ans. No. Brother William is not patriarch over the whole church; but patriarch to the church, and as such he was ordained. The expression "over the whole church," is a mistake made by W. W. Phelps. He is patriarch to the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The Twelve are commanded to ordain angelical ministers in all large branches of the church abroad, and who have charge over them, the patriarch! No. Those who ordained them, and to whom is committed the power and authority to regulate all the affairs of the churches abroad. And who has the charge of the whole priesthood here? Ans. The presidency of the church; and not the patriarch.

But does not the Book of Doctrine and Covenants say:

"First, I give unto you Hyrum Smith to be a Patriarch unto you to hold the sealing blessings of my church, even the Holy Spirit of promise whereby ye are sealed upon unto the day of redemption, that ye may not fall."

Yes. But that is in regard to seniority not in regard to authority in priesthood, for it immediately follows, "I give unto you my servant Joseph to be a presiding elder over all my church." In page 110, D. C. we read "the duty of president of the office of the high priesthood, is to preside over the whole church, and to be like unto Moses." And from this it is evident that the president of the church, not the patriarch, is appointed by God to preside.

But does not the Patriarch stand in the same relationship to the church, as Adam did to his family, and as Abraham and Jacob did to theirs? No. This is another mistake which is made by our junior, and one that may be very easily made inadvertently. Adam was the natural father of his posterity, who were his family and over whom he presided as patriarch, prophet, priest, and king. Both Abraham and Jacob stood in the same relationship to their families. But not so with Father Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, or William Smith. They were not the natural fathers of the church, and could not stand in the same capacity as Adam, Abraham, or Jacob; but inasmuch as there had been none to bless for generations past, according to the ancient order, they were ordained and set apart for the purpose of conferring patriarchal blessings, to hold the keys of this priesthood, and unlock the door, that had long been closed upon the human family; that blessings might again be conferred according to the ancient order, and those who were orphans, or had no father to bless them, might receive it through a patriarch who should act as proxy for their father, and that fathers might again be enabled to act as patriarchs to their families, and bless their children. For like all other ordinances in the church, this had been neglected; and must needs be restored. But Father Joseph Smith was not president of the church, nor the president's counsel. Nor was Hyrum Smith either president or president's counsel. He was once counsel but when he was ordained patriarch he gave it up and another was ordained in his stead, (Wm. Law) and in all probability if Dr. William magnifies his calling he will not be able henceforth to attend to the duties of an Apostle; but officiate in the same capacity in regard to blessing as his brother Hyrum did. Not as president of the church; but as patriarch to it.

The president of the church presides over all patriarchs, presidents, and councils of the church; and this presidency does not depend so much upon genealogy as upon calling, order, and seniority. James and Joseph were the brothers of Jesus, and John was his beloved disciple, yet Peter held the keys and presided over all the church. Br. William was in the Quorum of the Twelve yet he was not president of the Twelve during his brother's lifetime, nor since; and if being ordained a patriarch would make him president of the church, it would have made Father Joseph Smith and Hyrum Smith, presidents over the church, instead of Joseph. Br. William understands the matter, and were it not for the fact that he is a man there would be no necessity for these remarks.

A Patriarch is what is termed in scripture an evangelist, and Br. William acts in that capacity, and God placed in the church "first, apostles," not first evangelists, but the president stands in the same relationship to the church as Moses did to the children of Israel, according to the revelations.

Again, who ordained Father Smith to the office of patriarch? His son Joseph; and Father Smith ordained Hyrum, and the Twelve (of whom Br. William is one) ordained him. Who are appointed to ordain angelical ministers? (See page 104 D. C.) Can a stranger rise higher than his fountain? No. Says Paul, "verily the less is blessed of the better."

We think that every one will see that Br. William Smith's patriarchal office will not exalt him higher in regard to priesthood than he was before, as one of the Twelve; but will rather change the nature of his office.

But will it take any thing from his priesthood? it may be asked. No. You cannot take any man's priesthood away without transgression. Br. William will still retain the same power, priesthood and authority that he did before, and yet will hold in connection with that the patriarchal office and the keys of that priesthood, and as one of the Twelve must maintain his dignity as one of the presidents of the church, of whom President Brigham Young is the president and head, and presides over all patriarchs, presidents and councils of the church.

Postscript.

Excusable homicide.—We learn from a gentleman directly from Carthage, that on yesterday afternoon, between 2 and 3 o'clock, Sheriff Deming shot Dr. Marshall, in an affray concerning the sale of some land sold for taxes. Particulars hereafter.

* * Sheriff Deming has issued a proclamation, saying:

"I throw myself upon my God and country for justice; and whatever may be the result, I shall cheerfully and unresistingly submit to the verdict."

Further Particulars.—Mr. Hodges was asked by the bystanders, before he died, if he knew who had stabbed him. He answered, "It was, as I supposed, my best friend." This was repeated four or five times, but he refused to give the name till he died. Where he was assaulted are evidences of broken slivers from the rails on the fence, as if they had been earnestly engaged in conversation.

It also rumored that a dispute was overheard, wherein Hodges claimed a portion of a large sum of money, (to pay his brothers' expenses at Burlington,) which money, it was understood, was buried in the ground at or near the mouth of the Illinois river. This may lead to something further.

Every exertion is making to ferret out the mysterious tragedy.

MARRIED.—In Quincy, Ill., June 2, by Elder J. L. Heywood, Mr. M. R. Bennett to Miss Abigail Jones, daughter of Moses Jones.

MURDER!

$200 reward!

MURDERED on the eve of the 23d inst., about 10 o'clock, in the streets of Nauvoo, Irvine Hodges of Mechanicsville in this county. The above reward will be given by me for the apprehension of the murderers.

M. R. DEMING, Shif. Hancock Co.
Nauvoo, June 25, 1845:8f

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NAUVOO AND VICINITY.

SHOES! SHOES!! SHOES!!! The subscribers having recently opened a shop for the above business; would respectfully solicit of the inhabitants of Nauvoo and vicinity, a share of their patronage. They for the present, design to confine themselves exclusively to the Manufacturing of Ladies and Children's shoes, and having had long experience in said business, have no hesitation in recommending their work as being as good as the best. They have on hand the best assortment of Morocco and Kid that has ever been in the city—prices moderate, and a reasonable deduction for cash. Their stand may be found corner of Parley and Warsaw streets, about one half mile east of the Mansion.

Also, an assortment of Leather, Calfskins, Goat skins, Lining &c., &c., for sale, on reasonable terms.

MEAD & RAGER.
Nauvoo, June 16th, 1845-8:3m

WHEREAS, my wife Mary Smith has left my bed and board [?] without any just cause or provocation, this is to caution all persons against trusting her on my account, as I will pay no debts of her contracting, neither will I be responsible of any of her acts after this date.

DANIEL SMITH.
June 22th, 8-3w

TINNER'S ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned having associated themselves together for the purpose of carrying on the tin-plate and sheet-iron business in all its various branches, have taken the shop formerly occupied by Dennis Amy, corner of Young and Mulholland streets, where they are prepared to manufacture tin and sheet-iron ware at wholesale or retail, as low as can be bought in St. Louis or elsewhere.

N. B. For the accommodation of persons living on the flat, we have deposited a quantity of tin-ware at Messrs Oakley's store, where those in want can be accommodated at all times.

PHILIP B. LEWIS,
DUSTIN AMY,
JOHN MILLS.
Nauvoo, June 25, 1845:8f

WEEKLY PASSENGER STEAMER.

WAR EAGLE.

THE splendid, light draught, passenger steamer, War Eagle, D. S. Harris, master, will run weekly from St. Louis to Galena and Du Buque the present season, leaving Nauvoo every Wednesday afternoon on her upward trip, and on her downward trip, she will leave Nauvoo every Saturday afternoon.

For freight or passage, having splendid accommodations, apply on board or to C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.
June 18, 1845-7f

ADMINISTRATOR NOTICE.

PURSUANT to a decree of the Circuit Court of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, made at the May term thereof A. D. 1845, in the matter of the petition of the Administrator of the Estate of Joseph Smith deceased, to sell the real Estate of said Joseph Smith, I shall proceed on the first day of July, A. D. 1845, between the hours of nine o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the Nauvoo Mansion, in the city of Nauvoo, to sell at public vendue to the highest and best bidder the real Estate of said Joseph Smith deceased.

Said real estate is known and described as follows to wit: a w. q. of a q. section 6 town 5 n range 8 w; also a w. fractional q. of sec. 10 town 7 n range 8 w; also a w. frac. q. of sec. 19, 6 n range 8 w; also a w. q. of a q. sec. 26, town 7 n range 8 w; also a w. q. of a q. sec. 25, town 7 n range 8 w; also a w. q. of a q. sec. 35 town 7 n range 8 w; the same being in the county of Hancock, and State of Illinois.

Said sale is to be made on a credit of six months by the purchaser giving bond with approved security for the payment of the purchase money, together with a mortgage on the premises as further security therefor.

JOSEPH W. COOLIDGE,
Administrator of the Estate of Joseph Smith deceased.
June 4th 1845-5-4w

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts, Nappies, Mugs, &c., which will be sold whole and retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufactories in England.

ELIJAH K. FULLER, President.
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM BOX,
RICHARD RALPHS,
JOSEPH RALPHS,
THOMAS RALPHS,
ALFRED GORDON,
JOHN BURNE, Clerk,
June 4th 1845-5-6m

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN.

THAT Emma Smith, guardian for the minor heirs of Joseph Smith, deceased, will present a petition to the judge of the fifth Judicial Circuit, at the special term, to be holden in Hancock county, for an order to sell lot four, (4) in block one hundred and forty two, (142) in the city of Nauvoo, Hancock county, Illinois, for the support of said heirs, all persons interested will appear at the said term of the court, and shew cause, if any, why said order should not be made.

EMMA SMITH, Guardian.
Nauvoo, June 2d, 1845-5-4w

NOTICE

IS hereby given, that all persons having claims against the estate of Morris Whitesides, deceased, are requested to present their claims to the court of Probate, in and for the county of Hancock, within one year from this date, and all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment to the administratrix of said estate.

MARGARET WHITESIDES,
Administratrix.
Nauvoo, June 2d, 1845-5-4w

NO WAR BUT A STRONG OPPOSITION TO FOREIGN MANUFACTURES.

THE undersigned would beg leave to inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general, that they have removed the Old Connecticut pottery from Iowa to the City of Joseph, one block east of the Temple, where they have on hand a large assortment of red and mottled colored ware of the best quality, viz: churns, milk pans, crocks, jars of all kinds with covers, pie dishes, pudding pots, cups, bowls, pitchers, stoves, chimney tops and furnaces, with a multitude of other articles too numerous to mention; all of which will be sold at wholesale or retail for all kinds of country produce, dry goods and groceries—cash not refused. All bills and orders will be filled on the shortest notice.

MOSES MARTIN,
E. K. FULLER.
June 5, 1845. 6-3m

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE & SALE.—The subscriber, administrator of the estate of Jonah R. Ball deceased will sell at public vendue on Saturday the 5th day of July next, the personal property of said estate, viz: one cow, one Franklin stove and pipe, and a variety of household furniture, at the dwelling house of the said deceased.

TERMS OF SALE. All sums over five dollars six months credit with security, approved by said administrator. Under five dollars cash down.

SAMUEL BENT, Admr.
Nauvoo, June 9, 1845-6:3w

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor.

WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop, a few rods south of the Temple, near the New-York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coat cut and made for $1.00
Pants and vests " " " 50
Coats cut for " 25
Pants and vests for " 12 1/2
and other work in proportion.

Indies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms.

N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style.
June 11, 1845. 6-3m

NOTICE.

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county, Ills. For further particulars enquire of

LEWISTEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52-4f

TAILOER'S ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis's store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells. This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.

N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be holden for the debts of said association.

JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
C. B. THOMPSON, Counsellors.
W. M. McINTIRE,
ROBT. RUSSEL, Superintendents,
J. H. GLINES,
W. H. PARKER,
ALEXANDER MULLINER,
C. BELLARBY,
W. M. STRINGHAM,
JABEZ BOTSFOED,
B. CHAPMAN.
Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845-47-3m
CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEDD & SMITH,
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.
Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
Feb. 7, 49f W. & S.

NOTARY PUBLIC.
THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.
April 7 1845-49.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.
THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style.

Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN,
No. 52 Main street, St. Louis.
April 8th, 50-3m

LIME: LIME:—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate Lime, at their kilns near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Shirle.

All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.

JOSEPH BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845-No 1-6m

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.
E. D. and J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened in the house formerly known as the NAUVOO SEED STORE near JOSEPH CITY STORE, situated on Mulholland Street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles so essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Crockery, in short all things that are daily wanted in our line of business. And having been engaged in the business, for years, we flatter ourselves competent to give satisfaction in quality, and also in price, we would invite the inhabitants of the city of Joseph and its vicinity to call and see.

Country produce will be received for goods.
May 2th 1845-4-3m

J. H. & W. RALSTON,
Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.

WILL attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.

W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.
Warsaw, May 12th, 1845.-3-4f

TURNING & CABINET MAKING.
THE subscriber, having returned to this city is prepared to manufacture all kinds of furniture of the best quality, and on the most reasonable terms, as cheap as the same articles can be purchased in St. Louis.

He is also prepared to do all kinds of turning in the most fashionable style, and having had an extensive experience in both the above branches, he flatters himself that he will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with their custom.

To his friends in the surrounding country who have heretofore patronized him, he would state, that he should feel obliged by a continuation of their favors.

Shop on Main street, a few doors below the post office.

JAMES BIRD,
Nauvoo, June 4, 1845-5-3m

LIME, LIME!

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.

JOSEPH OWENS,
THOS. MENDENHALL,
April 13th, 50-3m

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS, ATTENTION!

GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, for lands or farms in other parts of this State, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a minutely written description of them, post paid, with their real cash value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.

Also members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this country, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact this business.

No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a moderate or reasonable compensation will be expected.

Nauvoo, May 5th, 1845-1-3m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.

BRETHREN wishing to purchase Lands, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Emma Smith's or the Mansion, WILLIAM SMITH.

ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this country, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.

May 6th, 1845-1f

LAND FOR SALE, CHEAP!
61 Acres s. e. q. sec. 27, 6 n 8 w the best q. of land in the Big Field, good title.

ALSO—160 Acres n. w. q. sec. 36; 7 n 8 w on the La Harp road.

ALSO—160 Acres s. w. 25; 7 n 6 w. Will take trade for this last q.

ALSO—140 Acres of the s. e. q. sec. 14; 3 n 8 w west, with a new log house, not finished, some timber; price $1.50 per acre, part cash part trade.

Enquire of
May 6th 1845.—1f

PHONOGRAPHY.
GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instructions for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.

May 2d, 1845-1f

LOOK HERE.
THE subscriber having been appointed agent for Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others, to make sales, rent, and lease their real estate, as he may think proper and convenient, he therefore gives notice to all who wish to purchase or exchange property in any part of the State of Illinois, Ohio, Iowa Territory, or the Eastern States; that he has for sale, 11 houses in the city, also the large house and soap manufactory near the river; and a number of lots unimproved, handsomely located in different parts of the city, and also that he has for collection, the accounts, notes, bonds, and mortgages of Ebenezer Robinson, Wm. Richards and others; and that all persons indebted will please call at the office of Esqr. Reynolds, or all having legal demands, will please present them properly authenticated for settlement on the 17th inst., after which date they will be collected according to law.

May 13, 1845-2f

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WARE HOUSE. general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo.

The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try, you will say, "Ere you buy."

Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7-49f

SEE HERE.
20 TON of hay, wanted immediately at the Nauvoo coach and carriage manufacturing association, for which good pay will be given.

</

POETRY.

THE CAPTIVITY AT BABYLON.

By MISS A. L. B.

The dark Euphrates rolls its swelling tide,
Still bringing wealth to nourish Israel's pride;
But stores, her wealth, can make those cease
To mourn.

Who are from home and sacred worship torn:
The wealth of nations will give power to those Who are of Judah's house the deepest foes,
While the sad captive's tears bedew the ground:
Nor hope of happiness for them is found.
The Jewish captives sit, nor cease to weep;
While they no feast of Israel's God can keep;
That God who with his own Almighty hand
Brought forth their sires from Egypt's hated land.

And cannot God, who is the same as then,
Release his children from their bonds again?
Yes, he can bid their sufferings ever cease,
And give the mourning heart eternal peace—
Our captives called for one of Zion's songs:
But ne'er while heaven may feeble life prolong,
This voice shall sing of Judah's mighty God,
Before the idol worshippers to the dust are trod.
Than raise in songs of joy a cheerful voice
When neither land nor people can rejoice.
Our harp divine, the willows now sustain;
To us their sweetest notes would be but pain:
Still calling up before our mental eyes
Fond visions of our distant paradise.
When I profane the name of Salem's king,
His sacred hymns before vile pagans sing;
May this right hand forever lose its power,
And helpless be from that unholy hour.
Our dreams Jerusalem, are still of thee:
Thy worship pure, we vainly once would see,
Would that our hearts had slumbered with the dead.

Else we to Babylon were captive led!
His office may my tongue perform no more,
When other God than Zion's I adore;
And these eyes, close to the light of heaven,
If my soul's worship be to idols given.
The homage of our hearts, O God, is thine.
Our knees shall bow before no pagan shrine:
And if Jerusalem no more we see
Our prayers, and praise, Jehovah, are to thee.

FROM OUR OREGON CORRESPONDENT.

Bank of the Nebraska.

May 13, 1845.

We have crossed the Nebraska and Kansas rivers. It is now the 13th of May, and we are encamped on the north bank of the Platte river, where we shall organize preparatory to our arduous journey to the West.

My teams, wagons, cattle and all concerned, have stood the trip, so far, (all things considered) better than I expected. My cattle are thriving. I kill all my calves.

The present emigrating party consists of about five hundred wagons—one hundred and seven are in our company—thirty-five are a few miles ahead, and some seventy are a few days behind. But it is impossible to speak definitely as regards the number of teams. The number of souls is said to be between six and seven thousand. The number of cattle is immense—exceeding in all probability ten thousand head. Our teams, horses, mules, ponies, cattle and wagons, stretched out in procession some three miles in length on the broad prairies, present a grand spectacle. The Paw Indians flock round us like crows. Their business is to 'swap' ostensibly, but in reality it is begging and stealing. More or less cattle are stolen every night. These Indians are great cowards, poor and faithless. They meet you with an air of courtesy; extend the hand of friendship in graceful waving circles to all, and shake hands most heartily with any one of the company who notices them most; and the next business is 'swap,' 'swap.' In this traffic the supplying of their present wants is the standard value they attach to their money. To all appearances these Indians are in a wretched, starving condition.

The soil and face of the country from Independence to the Nebraska river, is equal in point of beauty and fertility, to any I have seen. Timber is very scarce. Small groves, however, of an excellent quality, are found along the streams. The prairies are beautifully rolling—the soil rich and deep. The Nebraska river has shallow banks, and its bottom is quicksand. The creeks which we have crossed, however, that empty into the Nebraska, have deep banks and muddy bottoms—on some the soil is more than fifteen feet in depth. These deep channels and muddy bottoms, have given us much trouble. Quite a number of cattle in crossing them, get mired, and sometimes we have had to haul from fifteen to twenty out by their horns.

Lime stone is abundant on the prairies. A stratum of rock lies on a level, showing itself above ground in almost every locality which passes its level. Our road so far, has been very good, although apparently not very direct in its course. I can say but little of the prospects of the Oregon emigration. I can now only give you a faint idea of its magnitude, and the character of the people who compose it. From the best information I can obtain, the number of emigrants will be five-fold to what it was last year;—but you must bear in mind that it was then greatly exaggerated. Of its character, I assure you so far as I can judge, I can speak in the most flattering terms. Agreeable acquaintances are every day formed. Gentlemen and ladies too, of liberal minds and means are in the midst of our social circle. Finally, there is something engendering in the very idea of an expedition so fraught with consequences, so self-developing in its effect. No narrow-minded soul is fit for Oregon.

If such embark, discord and confusion follow—they will shrink from the undertaking and escape to the states. But those whose minds are congenial to the enterprise, presents their shoulders to its hardships, their breast to its dangers, and their means and talents to the accomplishment of its purposes, will, I doubt not, be well rewarded.

I have written this in a great hurry. The country as we advance becomes more interesting, and in my next I hope to be able to give some information in regard to 'fitting out.' I fear we have more cattle than we can protect. We are now obliged to have one hand to every twelve head.

The emigrants are all in good health and spirits.

Respectfully yours, W. B. IDE.

Sad News from Central America.—By the packet Guatemala, from Honduras, on Monday, the New York Express, has received papers and dates to the middle of March.

Leon, the capital of Nicaragua, which had been in a state of siege by Gen. Malespin, was taken by force of arms after a bloody contest; and acts of cruelty were perpetrated by the conquerors equalled only in the wars of Buenos Ayres. The Guatemala Gazette states, that more than a thousand persons were assassinated or burnt by Gen. Malespin, without distinction of the aged, women, children and priests.

While the besiegers abandoned themselves to these excesses, Gen. Cabanas and the other defenders of Leon retired with a few arms and the military chest; and on reaching the province of Salvador, of which Malespin is Governor, the man who had the command in his absence, and the people rose against Malespin. The chambers have declared his election null, as the result of military violence, and instituted proceedings against him, ordered his property to be seized, and that, in case of his refusing to appear on trial, he should be held and treated as a traitor. He was afterwards excommunicated by Bishop Viteray, with all the ceremonies of the church, for the assassination of the priests of Leon.

Malespin, on his part, was marching for San Salvador, at the head of his troops; and his position is exactly like that in which Gen. Santa Anna lately placed himself in Mexico.

Bishop Comboy, of Camayagua, on his return from his consecration in Guatemala, stopped within the limits of his diocese, and told the people not to proceed while Gen. Malespin had arms in his hands.

The Government of Guatemala had prohibited the admission of the Jesuit fathers, who were in the city on their way to that state, and did not permit them to land in the port of Izabel. It appears that this was done because the President Gen. Carera, had received information that they were going to exert themselves to secure his overthrow. We are assured, however, that he has paid their passage, although he does not admit them.

Isle Royale, Lake Superior.—We see it stated that the Hudson Bay Company have taken possession of the Isle Royale, Lake Superior. This island belongs to the United States, and contains two fine harbors. Whoever has possession of this island in time of war, commands the lake. If the statement be correct, it is manifestly the duty of our Government to despatch a small force to Isle Royale, immediately, to oust the intruders of the Hudson Bay Company.

Riot in a Factory.—The print works of Hunt and Taylor, in Dry Brook, Rhode Island, were taken possession of by the workmen on Wednesday afternoon. One of the proprietors having left for parts unknown, and the establishment being largely indebted to the workmen, they seized the building with a view to the protection of their claims should the Sheriff attach the property for other creditors. At last, however, the Sheriff was on his way to the factory with an armed force.

The screw Paddle Wheels.—In the trials instituted by the admiralty, to test the qualities of the screw propeller, Rattler, and the Paddle wheel Alecto, the superiority of the Rattler has been fully shown. The two vessels being fastened to each other, with their heads in opposite directions, the Rattler towed the Alecto in spite of all her attempts to run away astern at the rate of two miles and a half an hour.—London paper.

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.—The Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyrum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest Western price. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.
WM. EARL, President.
HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counselors.
CYRUS WINGATE, Counselors.
HUGH LYTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845—3m

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois: said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 501f

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses:—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Belleville, and 7 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 105 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneyville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock; for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneyville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3.12 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs, situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Lines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

BENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—491f

ALSO:

A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie town, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber, proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulson, of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15:501f

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.

THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 qrs. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orion Hyde.

March 24—471f

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats, Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinet-ware, Chairs, Hoes, Pitch-forks; finally, any thing that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Fowls, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buck-wheat, Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, Hides, and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—431f

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburg, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Oquaka, and twelve miles from Moomouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry and of a very excellent quality, which the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845—441f

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beech's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—431f

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the old stand formerly occupied by H. Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk-lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to call and see before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19—421f

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18—461f

EARTHENWARE EARTHENWARE!

J. GROCOTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Sauces, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one Block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo, and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The ber Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, over prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

NOTICE.

PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his

QUANTITY	BOUND	PLAIN	PRICE
Quartos	half	bound	1.50
do	do	do	2.00
do	whole	bound	2.00
do	do	do	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	1.00
do	do	do	1.50
do	hf.	bound	0.75
do	do	do	1.00
do	do	do	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	62
do	do	do	87
do	hf.	bound	50
do	do	do	75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and at the most reasonable terms.

Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1844.

LAW NOTICE.

A. W. BABBITT, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery, WOULD give notice that he has removed his office to the corner of Carlin Parley streets, where he will always be found ready to give the strictest attention to business which may be entrusted to his care.

He would also give notice that he has the agency of large amounts of good farming lands, in the counties of Hancock, McDonough, Adams, Warren and Knox, which he will sell very low for cash or exchange for property in the North Eastern States, or he will sell the same on a credit of three or four years, to those who wish to settle on the same.

He will also give one of the best bargains to any one who would wish to purchase the large brick cottage and mills formerly owned by W. & W. Law, in the city of Nauvoo; said property must be sold and will be sold at a sacrifice; those who would wish to make a good investment of their money, would do well to call soon and inquire as to the terms.

Nauvoo, June 11, 1845—61f

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET, AMARANTH.

THE NEW LIGHT DRAUGHT STEAMER AMARANTH, Atchison, Master.

WILL run as a regular packet between St. Louis and Nauvoo, during the season, touching at all the intermediate ports. She will leave St. Louis every Friday, and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning. On her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday at 7 o'clock a.m. precisely. In point of accommodations the Amaranth is surpassed by no boat on the upper Mississippi; and her officers will spare no pains to render her worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

For freight or passage apply to A. MORRISON, Agent.

Nauvoo, April 30th, 521f

MÉRMAID: REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MÉRMAID, Glen, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis every Friday and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning;—on her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as 'plausibility' wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity. For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent, for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845—1f

OSPREY: REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p.m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a.m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a.m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a.m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Egan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.

Jan. 1, 1845—351f

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability; as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kinjal Street,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to regular subscribers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

DEFERRED ARTICLES.

Slavery and Cotton.—On the great topics of this day, slavery and cotton, as connected with the annexation of Texas. The London Herald says:—

We avow it frankly, and invite our friends of France to avow it with us. We desire to abolish slavery in the United States from philanthropic commercial, and still more from political reasons. As long as the United States preserves the monopoly of cotton, they hold the manufactory of Europe in check, and dictate laws to them; and they will preserve the labor of the blacks. If, on the contrary, England were to prevent annexation, she might, at some future day, with India and Texas [mark, India first, and Texas afterwards], and in her turn dictate laws to all the manufacturing in the world. Another government paper, the Standard, in the confidence of Sir Robert Peel says:—

The Republicans of America seem to be little concerned about slavery; but it must be admitted that, without the labor of the blacks, they could not produce cotton; that cotton which plays so important a part in their exports! In just recompense to her disinterestedness, England might soon render the cotton producing labor of the slaves useless, and thus abolish slavery by transporting the production of cotton, through the aid of free blacks, to another hemisphere.

The English would like to govern the world, and then they could control the commerce; but the day of greatness has gone by—jealousy, indignation, and wrath, are now filling the cup that will make all nations drink, and then, between rogues, honest men will get their due.

A Year of Summers.—A voyage of pleasure round the world, says a Philadelphia paper, is advertised in Hamburg, to leave that city on the 15th August. The route has been so arranged as to secure a continual summer to the voyagers.

A better project would be, to construct some kind of vehicle of sufficient speed to keep pace with the sun; and then, on the 22d of June, follow its shadow which would make always day and always summer. O roast beef and pine apples, with wine and women, but wouldn't that beat the Dutch?

New London Bridge, connecting Surrey and Middlesex, on Sunday the 14th May, received $800 from 40,000 passengers. That was turning pennies.

The Pittsburgh papers, says Noah's Times, are complaining of the disposition made of the relief fund. It seems that the property holders are to get the money, on certain favorable terms and for a paying percentage, whilst the poor creatures who lost their all are fobbed off with an occasional basket of potatoes or a pint or two of meal. So, the charitable of this city and other places have contributed their money to keep the rich men rich and feather the nests of property-holders, while the real sufferers, the poor creatures deprived of everything, are to get nothing; but insult. This is a hard case, and a disgraceful proceeding.

Never grumble, at the 'art of navigation,' Pat can beg of Dietrich; and Dietrich can scamp a little from Jonathan, and Jonathan can jockey the yellow boy's masters, and its all in the family. Noah has nothing to brag of; the only reason why his city of 'Arrarat' on Grand Isle, was not burnt, was because it was not built.

Death by Quackery.—A coroner's jury at Newburg (New York) has returned a verdict of 'death by lobelia,' in the case of James Rog, who died at that place a few days since, under the treatment of a man named Calkins. It was proved that the 'doctor' gave the patient lobelia, and that he died under its operation—two respectable physicians testifying that to be their opinion.

Had the man died by taking calomel, nothing would have been said.—Very few persons except the Latter-day Saints die a natural death; and some of them are 'martyred.'

Great Novelty.—An iron house has been constructed in the short space of six weeks by Mr. Wm. Laycock of Liverpool, for Mrs. Brown, of Nova Scotia. The length of the house is 35 feet and its depth is 31 feet. It consists of four spacious apartments, besides the entrance hall.—The apartments are fitted up with wrought iron grates and chimneys, in such a manner that they can be taken down at any time and put up again. The outside walls are double sheeted, and the roof, which is impenetrable to wet, is single sheeted. There are six windows of wrought iron.—Exchange paper.

A great novelty truly, wrought iron windows! Rather dark.

Fragas at Washington.—John C. Rives, late editor of the Globe, and Cunningham, editor of the Portsmouth Old Dominion, have had a fight at Washington—a 'knock down' one. Rives is said to have laid in wait for his friend, with a stick.

Agree with thine adversary quickly whilst thou art in the way.

Cold Snap.—On Saturday night week snow fell on the mountains in the neighborhood of Wilkesbarre (Pa.) to the depth of nearly two inches. Gentlemen who were upon the mountains at the time say it was a regular winter storm. Nat. Intel. June 3.

As snow in summer and gain in harvest," so has the displeasure of God come upon this nation. Solomon corrected.

THE FLOOD.

By boats down from the Missouri, and Upper Mississippi we learn that both streams have overflowed their banks and are doing a great amount of damage. The new bridge, recently constructed at Hannibal, which cost nearly a thousand dollars, was carried away on Saturday night last; mills in various sections of the upper country have been completely destroyed by the flood. The river at this point, is rising at about the rate of one foot in twenty-four hours. The freshest is not yet high enough to have made its way into the Illinois bottom land. Back of Illinois town, between that place and the bluffs, as is well known, it is lower than any other portion of the "American bottom;" it will probably take about two feet more of the rise to do any material damage opposite this city. We were across the river yesterday for a few minutes, and conversed with some of the 'oldest inhabitants' of the place, and singular as it may seem, although the water is within twenty inches or so of their door-sills, they do not think that there will be much of a rise. It is a happy feeling to be privileged to enjoy in the midst of danger—may it prove true, but for ourselves, as far as we can learn, there is something like three or four feet of water yet to reach us, and half of this quantity will do as much, or all the damage, which the full amount can. Our merchants on the landing are making, or have made preparations to receive the flood; merchandise of all description is being removed from the cellars and ground floors to the upper stories. It will greatly depend upon the nature of the weather to come, when this flood of water is to stop; we have had nothing but rain, rain, rain, for a period of days—may we have sunshine soon.—St. Louis Herald.

RUNAWAY SLAVES.

A BATTLE.

The Hagerstown News publish accounts of a grand battle that came off on Monday morning last, between twelve runaway slaves from Leesburg, Va., and eight citizens of Smithsburg, Md. They were passed on the road to Smithsburg by Mr. Adam Shank, Jr., at three o'clock in the morning, and supposing them to be runaways, he alarmed the citizens of Smithsburg, and a party, consisting of Mr. Shank, Constable Flora, Jos. Walmyre, H. Lyday, Jr., Calvin Shoop, Wm. McCoy, Jos. D. Price and John Diamond, started in pursuit. Upon overtaking the negroes they were commanded to halt, when they drew themselves up in battle order, their leader exclaiming to them, "Now boys, fight!" They were armed with pistols and tomahawks, and immediately commenced an attack upon the whites, felling several of them to the earth at the onset. The whites being unarmed, except with bludgeons, found themselves engaged in rather an unequal and hazardous contest. Repeatedly the negroes were knocked to the earth, but they returned to the contest with redoubled fury, and being all stout and very athletic men, were rather hard to handle. Constable Flora was twice knocked down, Price had his arm nearly severed and the bone broken, by a blow from a tomahawk; he also had a pistol snapped in his face, which very fortunately failed to go off; McCoy had his shoulder dislocated; Lyday received a wound in the shoulder from a tomahawk; Shank was several times felled to the earth, and the whole party more or less injured. However, after a desperate contest, the whites succeeded in carrying off one prisoner, in an almost hopeless condition, with two pistols and two tomahawks, which were wrested from the hands of the negroes. Another negro, badly wounded, after following his companions a mile or two upon their retreat, gave himself up. Two more of the gang were arrested near Leitersburg.

An Industrious Editor.—The industrious editor of the Alleghany County Advocate recently exhumed, from among his list of exchanges, accounts of six persons killed by horses running away; two badly injured by carelessness in the use of fire arms; four narrow escapes from instant deaths, their exposure being the result of carelessness; two men badly injured by railroad accident; five men injured by the upsetting of stages; two children burnt to death; two men thrown from wagons and badly injured; two females committed suicide in consequence of having been abandoned by their seducers; four skeletons found in making excavations; three men killed by being run over by the railroad cars; two dead bodies found under mysterious circumstances; five suicides; two murders; three robberies; two forgeries.

Important Discovery.—The Wheat Insect.—In a late number of the New York Mirror, a correspondent gives an experiment made by himself which will serve to throw some light upon the nature and character of the insect. He says, "In the spring of 1844, I placed a bag containing half a bushel of white flint wheat, in a seed drawer, under glass, and near the furnace of my green-house. On the 6th of March, 1845, I opened the bag, and to my surprise, found thousands of living insects, such as are now presented you; some were on the point of leaving the kernel, others were just commencing to eat through, and many were perfectly formed, and running about in all directions. Six years ago, I was in the habit of soaking my early grains in salt brine, for the purpose of destroying the egg of the insect, which I assured my neighbors, much to their amusement and disbelief, was encoined in the kernel. Now by accident the fact is made manifest. The insect would not have appeared until June, perhaps, had the wheat been sown. The warm situation it occupied in the greenhouse brought it thus early to maturity.—Boston Cultivator.

From the Boston Commonwealth, of 1801.

Mr. William Dowst, who lately died at Salem, was a man of uncommon size and strength. He was nearly 7 feet high, and weighed 300 weight. The following instances will prove his great degree of strength. He was on board a privateer in the last war, which got among the breakers off Cape Breton; when it became necessary immediately to cast anchor; but there being none upon deck, as many hands laid hold as could get at it, but could not start it; Dowst pushed them aside seized it himself, brought it upon deck, carried it forward, and held it upon the timber heads while a cable was bent to it, when he threw it over, and saved the vessel and lives of the crew as they were on the point of dashing upon the rocks; the anchor weighed 700 weight. At another time, eight or ten hands were sent up to Becker's ship-yard from the well known privateer ship, Grand Turk, to bring up a fore-yard for the ship; Dowst was among them, but naturally dilatory, he did not at first take hold; the others shouldered it, but began to stagger under it, and complained that there were not enough to carry it; Dowst laughed at them, told them that he would carry it alone, on which they threw it down, and he took it up and carried it to the ship, without assistance. At another time, when he attended the fish stakes at Windmill Point, he was directed by his employer, to go for a jack-ree which was in an adjoining field; when Dowst got him to the partition fence, being in rather a lazy mood, to save himself the trouble of letting down the bars, he took the beast and lifted him over, and then got upon his back, and rode him to the place where he was to be employed. He once raised from the ground the anchor of the prize ship Rochampton, which weighed 1700 and which four men had immediately before endeavored in vain to lift upon a bat. Being at Bilbao, in the last war, in a privateer, an English vessel came in, which had in its crew a professed bully, who was challenging every one to combat, and hearing of Dowst, sent a particular challenge to him—they met, and the Englishman, who was superior to our Samson in the art of boxing knocked him down three times and the first time twisted his fingers into his hair, to gouge him; when Dowst gave him a blow upon his arm which broke it, and with another blow he broke in three of his wounds. Dowst, with his amazing strength was good natured, and tender in his feelings and rather of an indolent habit; but when he was aroused to anger, or exertion, his efforts were irresistible.

He enjoyed through life a large share of health. For three months previous to death, he had been afflicted with the dropsy, but appeared to have considerably recovered; and the last day of his life he walked the greater part of the day, according to his usual habit; but the next morning his wife found him dead in the bed.

Children Among the Osages. We learn from a gentleman who resides on the State line, near the Osage Indians, and whose word may be relied upon, that the Osages have now in their tribe about twenty white children. These children the Osages purchased from the Camanches, by whom they were stolen from their parents in Texas and New Mexico. Our informant states, that such of them as have been seen by the whites are said to be brightly and intelligent children, of both sexes, but generally, have been taken when so young as to have lost all recollection of their parents, homes, or of the place from which they were taken. The Osages will only sell them for horses or goods. Occasionally, they bring one into the settlement to barter off. A few days since, a gentleman of Newton county purchased, for a horse, a pretty girl, about eleven years old. A few days before our informant left, another Osage brought in a boy, about eight or nine years old, which he, however, did not succeed in selling.

Should not the United States officers look to this, and is it not the duty of the Indian Agent to inquire into it? The Osages have purchased them; the tribe is poor, and they should be paid for the restoration of them. The subject is important enough to enlist the early attention of the proper officers. [Republican.

The Home market for Bread Stuffs.

After all, says a writer in Hunt's Magazine, the home market is the great market for our bread stuffs. What becomes of the vast amount of wheat that is grown in the country? The product we have already seen, is about 100,000,000 bushels, and only about 6,300,000 bushels are sent abroad. The State of Ohio alone produces three times as much wheat as we export annually; and the little State of Delaware produces twice as much Indian corn as our annual export. It is not possible to state the exact amount of wheat which is consumed in the country by those engaged in other pursuits than agriculture. If we take those engaged in manufactures and trades, in mining, in the fisheries, in all their forms in commerce and navigation in all their varieties, and the learned professions, with their families and dependants, it would amount to one quarter of our population, viz: 5,000,000 persons, who are not producers, but consumers of bread stuffs. These will consume one barrel of flour, or five bushels of wheat per head; making a constant market for 25,000,000 bushels of wheat, equal to about one fourth of our whole product. The New England States alone consume annually 1,400,000 barrels of flour, or 7,000,000 bushels of wheat more than they produce; which is about 700,000 bushels more than our entire export.

TERRIBLE AND BLOODY TRAGEDY.

On Sunday morning last, just at day break, Mr. Chittenden, overseer on the plantation of C. N. Rowley, Esq., five or six miles above Vandalia, was very much startled by a loud report sounding like cannon, in the river opposite the plantation; upon examination a flat boat was discovered close in shore on fire;—Mr. Chittenden ordered the negroes to wade into the river around the boat, and throw on water to quench the flames.—Upon nearer examination it was discovered, that the boat was filled with the remains of goods and groceries. The flames were extinguished, and the corner, Thomas Edwards, Esq., sent for, together with a number of citizens as a jury upon examination, to the astonishment of all present, there was discovered the evidences of one of the most brutal and terrible scenes of blood and crime.

There was found in one berth, partially consumed, the body of a person past middle age, since known to be a man called Dorsey, with a wound upon the face with an axe. On the opposite side of the boat, in a berth, was seen two bodies, with their feet and hands burnt off, the head of one reposing upon the breast of the other, upon removal they were found to be two young girls, the oldest eighteen or nineteen years of age, the youngest about fifteen, both were killed by a single blow from an axe, from the position of the bodies it is presumed the youngest was struck last, and killed in the act of rising, an axe was lying on the breast of the oldest girl who was in the front side of the berth.

All this scene of horror was seemingly involved in mystery, when one circumstance after another, trivial in themselves, began to give a clue to the mystery, and on the following day by 12 o'clock, a description of the supposed murderer was circulated, and is presumed that justice will be meted out to this terrible tragedy. Upon a reward being offered by some of the citizens of the parish, one or two gentlemen started up the river, and returned on Wednesday morning with the supposed murderer, having captured him at Vicksburg. An examination of the prisoner was had before Thomas Edwards, Esq., and from the evidence that had been previously taken, of circumstances transpiring with the boat up to the night previous to the morning of the discovery of the murders, the prisoner was fully committed to stand his trial before the next term of the District Court. The prisoner is known in the country, and says his name is Thomas Stoger.

The prisoner stated that he first became acquainted with Dorsey at Rodney and it seems bargained for the purchase of the boat and part of the stock, here it seems he became a sort of champion of these girls, and charged the old man with abusing them, a thing that only appears from the declaration of the prisoner.—The prisoner left the boat a few miles above where the murder was committed, and some two hours afterwards, followed it down the river in a skiff, the flat had tied up for the night, where the murders were committed. On the morning of the same day of the murders, prisoner left for Vicksburg on the Luda. Great credit is due to the efficiency of Messrs. Carolan & Lumm, for pursuing and arresting the prisoner at Vicksburg.

In the contemplation of the horrid transaction, the mind is left to speculate upon what cause could prompt such a deed, and upon the mysteriousness of providence that unfolds such tragedies. This case illustrates most forcibly that 'murder will out,' for a successful accomplishment to hide this deed seemed almost easy of consummation; after the murders were committed, the boat was set on fire, and cut loose and pushed into the stream, that it might burn and sink and thus hide all traces. But the boat was providentially in an eddy, and could not be pushed into the river, the fire seemed to be remarkably slow in its progress, consuming nothing that was material for the evidence of the murders!

Proper persons were busy collecting evidence, the community that has been so outraged by this bloody deed, will leave undone to bring the guilty to punishment; many things calculated to throw light on the murder have transpired, but, at present, they would add nothing to the ends of justice to lay them before the public.

Further particulars.—Upon further investigation, a trunk was found near the boat, which had been rifled and thrown into the river and then washed ashore, which proved to contain a vast number of papers, and it appears, upon examining the same that the murdered man's name was Oliver C. Dorsey—the trunk contained several letters addressed to him from Booneville, Illinois, from Scott county, Missouri, from Jeffersonville, and New Albany, Indiana, also, from Louisville, Kentucky, but none of a later date than 1842. There were numerous other papers in the trunk, which consists of receipts, &c., any clue as to the names of the females, or what point they or their boat started from has not as yet come to light—we are in hopes to be able to give their names in our next issue.—[Concordia Intelligencer, June 1st.

The Rothschilds brothers, of Paris, have made a donation of $250 to the sufferers by the Pittsburgh fire. Such charity, though bruited abroad by thousand tongued fane, comes not the less from magnanimous hearts. An anecdote is related of Baron Solomon Rothschild, which we cannot help inserting here.

A merchant named Joseph Rothschild resided at Pesth, in Hungary. His business was small, and became quite unprosperous. His wife grew sick, and every thing seemed to be going badly in his little establishment. Notwithstanding his intelligence and his industry, he was not able to supply the wants of his family, and he resolved to go to Vienna, and try to obtain from some of his fellow countrymen some articles of trade, upon credit. Two days after his departure, his wife gave birth to a son. The child was flourishing, but the mother, alone and destitute, wrote to her husband to beg him to return to her, and not knowing where he lodged in the great city, she addressed her letter merely to Joseph Rothschild, Vienna. Chance, which has overthrown many well laid plots, and sometimes causes miserable ones to succeed, was this time favorable to the unfortunate.

The letter was carried to the banker, Baron Solomon Rothschild, who having accidentally opened and read it, moved by the complaints of the poor woman, sent her immediately a bill at sight for a hundred florins, and afterwards caused search to be made in Vienna for Joseph Rothschild, of Pesth. The latter was soon found, and desired to go to the house of his namesake. The poor merchant was not a little surprised to be summoned to visit a man whom he did not know, and with whom he had never had any intercourse. He went, however, and was received by the banker in the most friendly manner, and Baron Rothschild congratulated him on the birth of his son. The merchant was much astonished, and hardly knew what to say. Mr. Rothschild then gave him the letter from Pesth, and said to him, laughing, 'you now want a godfather; take me, if you please, and have no anxiety for the future support of the little citizen of this world, who has just seen the light; I will take charge of it myself.' A considerable present crowned the good work.

Late from Jamaica. Black troops!

An intelligent gentleman who left Jamaica ten days ago, states that several battalions of black troops had arrived there previous to our informant's departure. The number of black troops on that island were reported at twenty thousand men, they were all under severe discipline, and exercised morning and evening. Several steamers of war were lying in the harbor of Kingston, and that ten sail of the line were daily looked for from England.

We also learn that a body of black troops had lately embarked, and that more were preparing to embark; although their destination was kept secret, yet it was currently reported and generally believed that they were bound for the Gulf of Mexico.

At Wallapu, in New Zealand, the natives speak of some monstrous animal, which is called a Moa, and which in general appearance, is described to resemble an immense domestic cock, with the difference, however, of its possessing a 'face like a man,' living upon air, and being guarded by two enormous tuataras, who Argus like, keep incessant watch while the Moa sleeps. The Rev W. Colenso, in the summer of 1841—2, obtained some Moa bones, from which it is calculated that extraordinary bird must have measured in altitude, when alive, at the lowest rate of estimation, from 11 to 16 feet! Thus it must have formed an enormous feathered monster, well worthy, from its gigantic size, of being classed with the Megalosaurus, of Buckland, and the Mastodon, of Cuvier. A mechanic who had been residing at Cloudy bay, in the Middle Island, asserts that this bird now exists in the hills near Cloudy bay, and that one has been seen by two Americans who had gone to shoot it, but were so petrified with horror when they beheld the monster, that they were utterly unable to fire on it.

Tanzey.—At a meeting of the Farmer's Club at New York on Tuesday week, statements were made respecting the efficiency of tobacco solution to kill the grub and cure the 'yellows' in peach trees. One gentleman remarked that he had tried several experiments by immersing the grubs in the strongest solution, and he was satisfied it would not kill them. He had discovered, however, that the grub never would come near the tanzey plant. His tree around which he had planted tanzey, were all perfectly sound and prosperous. It was stated also, that coal ashes were of great service in preventing the grub from penetrating to the roots of the trees.

Caution to Men and Boys of Honor.

The Delaware Gazette cautions the boys, and other weak headed individuals who resort to that State to settle their petty differences with the pistol, that they had better keep out, as the punishment they will receive, if caught, will wound them dreadfully. It asks how would they like to mount a platform about fifteen or twenty feet high, with their wrists and neck fastened in holes, and thus stand an hour; and after that be fastened by iron clasps to a whipping post and receive thirty-nine lashes on their bare backs, each stroke starting the blood.—All the duels they might fight hereafter would not wash out the disgrace which such punishment would fix upon them.—Besides, to kill a man in a duel in that State is murder, and if the criminal be caught he will very probably be hung.

Important Discovery in Manufacturing Iron.

The New Haven Palladium states that Mr W. C. Green, of New Jersey, at the Boston iron works, has made an improvement in the process of puddling the iron from the pig to the bar. Instead of using the pig iron, which costs about $35 the ton, he is enabled to use a large portion of the ore which costs but $2.50 per ton, by which he effects, in labor and material, a saving of more than three per cent, and he gives a far better quality of iron than that which is obtained from the pig; as much better in appearance as China is better than earthenware. Mr. Green's secret consists chiefly in mixing a composition with his ore, and while in a molten state, by which the carbon is more rapidly exhausted than it is under the old process, and the iron is thus, in half the time, left tougher and finer.

AND-SO-FORTHIANA.

Fourth Fire in Pittsburg, &c.—There was another fire in Pittsburg on the 10th ult., on the corner of Exchange and Brewster alleys. It destroyed not quite a block, but did much damage.

Fire and Death.—The house and two barns of a Mr. Little, in Warren, N. H., were burned down on Friday the 9th inst., and a Mr. Whittier, a tavern keeper in Warren, was so badly burned in his attempt to save the property of Mr. Little that he died the same day.

Fires.—The Cincinnati, Gazette, of Wednesday last, has the following: "A fire occurred on Saturday morning, on Vine street—a dwelling house, frame, was nearly destroyed."

Another fire broke out on Sunday morning, at the corner of Court and Main streets, which consumed four or five old frame buildings, including the drug store of Mr. Birdan, the painter's shop of Mr. Baldwin, a shoe store, &c.

A fireman by the name of Harris, a locksmith, was severely injured by a hose carriage, which was run over his breast.

Fire in Ithaca.—Thirteen buildings were recently burned in Ithaca, New York. Six houses were burned, and much personal property was destroyed. A Mr. Snow was injured by a blow from a fire-hook. It was believed to be the work of an incendiary, and three young men had been committed to jail charged with the arson.

Destructive Fire—Four Men burnt—One Dead.—The fire in Orange street, New York, on Thursday night, 12th inst., originated in a stable in the rear of a carpenter's shop, occupied by Baldwin & Mills, who will suffer to the tune of $8,000. A grocer named McBride is the next largest individual sufferer; having lost all his stock, furniture, fixtures, &c., and having only an insurance to the amount of $2,500 in the Etna office. The proprietor of that well known Hall of Terpsichore, immortalized by the pen of Boz, and since known to fame as "Dickens' Place," has been burnt out to the infinite regret of all the negro aristocracy. The worst of the story, however, is the death of one poor man, a Dutchman, who died this morning at the hospital. We regret to say also that three others are severely but not mortally wounded.

In the rear of the buildings on Orange street, were, says the Tribune, some twenty or thirty small shanties, occupied by a family in every apartment, numbering, perhaps, a hundred families in all. These were swept clear and their occupants—a motley and wretched looking crew, whose like exists nowhere in the world—turned into the street. It was impossible to obtain anything like a correct list of the sufferers, as the streets were packed for many blocks with such a mass of human beings as cannot be described. —[London Court.

Fire in New York.—The famous den at the Five Points, New York, known as Dickens' place, since Boz visited it, was burned out on Thursday night week; thirty or forty small shanties, filled with all kinds of human creatures, of every complexion, were destroyed. The Tribune says: "Black, white, blue, brown and yellow, men, women and children—all were there; every cellar vomited forth monstrous masses of reeling wretches, disturbed in their disgusting orgies; the yelling, hooting, screaming, smoke, firemen's calls, the crowding, squeezing, running and fighting, mingled with the roaring of the flames and cracking of timbers, constituted such a scene as may be imagined, but which an artist would be mad to attempt delineating."

Two houses in the American Bottom were struck by lightning during the storm on Saturday last. One man was badly injured.

Hail Storm.—A destructive hail storm passed over the neighborhood of Chambersburg, Pa., on Wednesday, destroying large tracts of timber, and leveling several barns and farm houses to the ground. A man named Johnson had ten acres of fine timber completely broken down, and no excellent barn raised from its foundations.

Hail Storm.—A violent hail storm passed over a portion of the town of Jacksonville, in this state, and the adjacent country, on Thursday night of last week, causing great damage to the windmills and buildings, and to the crops within its range. The corn and hemp crops were entirely destroyed, the wheat very much injured, and the gardens almost entirely annihilated. The range of the storm was about half a mile in width, and from seven to ten miles in length. Though of but short duration, it was very violent, and the hail was the largest we ever saw. —[Alton Telegraph.

Severe Hail Storm.—The Hesperian Herald states, that a tremendous storm of wind and hail occurred in that part of Illinois. It extended over a space of 20 miles square. A barn was blown down which killed a man and a horse, and a house was blown down which killed a woman, and a young man in the parlor was pelted almost to death by the hail. —[Era.

Fires.—The paper mill of Norton & Co., at Hampden, Me., and five dwelling houses connected with the mill were destroyed by fire on Sunday the 8th inst. The mill was a large and costly one, doing a heavy business. Loss $20,000—insured for $10,000. Origin of the fire not known. Moor's mill in Gardner, Me., was on fire when the steamer John Marshall touched there on Monday afternoon.

Fire and Loss of Life.—The dwelling house of Mr. Printup, a farmer, three miles this side of Fultonville, Mont. county, New York, was burned on the night of the 9th inst., between 10 and 11 o'clock, and two of his children perished in the flames! Mr. P. was also severely burnt, and was hardly expected to live.

Fire in Malden.—This morning at 4 o'clock, the new Steam Nail Factory owned and occupied by J. Robinson was entirely destroyed by fire with all its contents. Loss about $3000. Insured in New York for $2000. —[Boston Transcript, June 11.

Fire.—A destructive fire occurred at Danvers, Massachusetts, on Tuesday afternoon week, which is said to have been occasioned by the carelessness of children playing with friction matches. The fire spread with great rapidity and destroyed eighteen buildings before it was subdued.

Fires.—The buildings of the Otis Manufacturing Company, at Ware, Massachusetts, took fire on Tuesday afternoon, June 10, about 3 o'clock, and were burned to the ground. Loss not ascertained. Insured in State street, Boston, for $44,500.

We also learn that the Middlesex Hotel, in Concord, Massachusetts, took fire at 11 o'clock, Tuesday forenoon, and was entirely destroyed. Loss $5,000. Insured for $4,000. Caused by defect in the chimney. The hotel was owned by T. D. Wesson.

Eleven Persons Poisoned.—A family of eleven persons were poisoned in Philadelphia, on the 30th, and narrowly escaped death, from eating biscuits in which lard was used, supposed to have been rendered from diseased pork.

Storm in Washington County, Md.—The Hagerstown News of the 14th inst. says:

"On Thursday afternoon our county was visited by a most severe thunder storm, which continued for several hours with unabated violence. We understand that the high wind which accompanied the rain, completely prostrated whole acres of wheat, much timber, and in several instances unroofed barns and other buildings. As the storm was very extensive, we fear that our country has suffered much."

Burning Fields of Grass and Grain.—We learn that on Saturday last the sparks from a locomotive on the state railroad set fire to a field of standing clover, in Lancaster county, which was entirely consumed, and the fire only arrested by cutting down a strip of wheat in the adjoining fields.

We see it stated that a spark from a locomotive on the Winchester and Potomac railroad, on Monday week, set fire to a field of green wheat, which by the most active exertions could not be subdued until about ten acres were consumed. Harrisburg (Pa.) Tel. 11th.

Lightning.—The New York Commercial learns from Capt. Cliff, of steamship Florida, at that port in nine days from Apalachicola, that Key West was visited by a terrible thunder storm on the morning of the 5th inst. The government schooner Hunt was struck by the lightning, which shattered her mainmast, but hurt nobody on board. The state roof of the new marine hospital was also struck and considerably damaged.

Fire in Philadelphia.—The Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, believed to contain the best collection of paintings in the United States, was burnt on the night of the 11th inst. The United States Gazette says: "The fire originated in the cellar; and as the weather had been warm for many days previous, and there had been, of course, no fire in the building, the conclusion is irresistible that to incendiarism the deplorable loss is to be wholly attributed. The losses, in many instances, are irreparable, as several of the artists whose effects have been destroyed, are deceased. But, it gives us pleasure to state, that a large number of pictures were conveyed into contiguous dwellings, and most of them without injury."

The Artists' Fund Hall in front of the Academy, is unharmed; in this several of the most valuable paintings owned by the Academy, were on temporary exhibition.

Hail Storm.—A very destructive hail storm passed over the neighborhood of Northampton, Massachusetts, on Thursday last. The destruction of glass in that and the adjoining towns was immense, and every crop of rye that was encountered by the storm, was immediately cut down and destroyed. The hail stones were as large as pigeon's eggs, and retained their size until the next day.

Wonderful Land Slide.—Two farmers gone travelling. A correspondent writing from Ulster to the New York Evening Post says:

"On the night of the 3d May last, a large tract of land, comprising a portion of the farms of J. H. B. Dimond and J. G. Bruyn, broke loose, and was carried by the force of its own gravity about one hundred and sixty yards, carrying with it fruit trees and various others of large size; some still standing in their upright position; others from their beds and scattered in the most beautiful confusion. What has caused this rupture, no one has, as yet, ascertained. Nought was heard of the 'travellers' of this mass of matter, save as one of the neighbors says he heard the sound of a rushing mighty wind. The first intimation we had of anything uncommon having taken place, was, that the Roundpoint creek below the slide, was, on the following morning completely dry. On our arrival at the place, we found that the earth had broken loose about thirty feet from the stage road, leading from Kingston to Wurtsboro, running parallel with the road for about one hundred and twenty yards, forming a chasm at the point where it started of about one hundred feet perpendicular. The whole body containing about sixty acres of land."

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1845.

Cheap Law.—If people could live without going to law, society would be greatly benefitted, and individual pockets suffer less. In several of the States the people are up for conventions, to amend the State Constitutions; and no more prominent feature attracts public attention, than cheapening the law. This is correct, and the nearer the administration of law can be brought to the people, the better.

"According to Baird, (a late traveler in the North of Europe,) the people now elect from among themselves, once in four years, persons who sit, whenever called on, as a court of agreement, before whom all matters of difference must first be brought. The court hears and examines into every thing relating to the difference, in an informal way, and then gives its decision. So far this is a simple and cheap process, and if both parties are satisfied, the matter ends here; if not, they can appeal to a higher court."

This looks like saving money, time and animosity. How much easier it is too, to expect justice among a man's neighbors than from distant, cold-hearted gentlemen?

"Stephens, in his Central America, says that the court at the English settlement, at the Bay of Honduras, receives all kinds of testimony, and hears all the parties have to say with the least possible formality. No technical proceedings ever being admitted, there is no lawyer in the colony. Appeals can be made from this court to the legislative council; yet for more than twelve years a cause has never been carried up."

We are decidedly in favor of giving the people, in a free country, all that belongs to them, and this is right. It is justice, and this is religion: for Paul says, "Dare any of you, having a matter against another, go to law before the unjust, and not before the saints? Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?"

Millions of money go yearly for Lawyer's fees, and costs, which might be given to the suffering poor to raise them from their degradation and misery. Give the people less law and more humanity, and the world will have more honest men, and less criminals.

The tribes and heads of families, in old times, settled all weighty matters, and what hinders the honest farmers now from judging their own affairs? Let the united voice of all virtuous people, answer the question.

Harvest.—The wheat and rye crop in this section, and in Iowa, began to be harvested last week. So far as we learn, the crops are coming in better than usual. We shall have plenty of wheat, corn, oats, and the common necessities of life, for they never presented a more flattering appearance. And more than all this, the religion of Nauvoo, is first rate. Wind or weather does not affect it.

La mi!—Yesterday the new Post office law went into operation:—La mi!—only five cents to carry a letter weighing a half ounce three hundred miles, and one dime anywhere in the United States. Now, the time to write letters—Uncle Sam is able, load him down with letters, and he may learn by a "little what a great deal means."

Nauvoo Combs.—We take pleasure in giving the ladies of Nauvoo notice, that they can adorn their heads with an excellent article of Combs, by calling on Mr. William Bates corner of Granger and Parley streets. Mr. Bates' machinery, and combs will recommend themselves, and a little patronage may attract a little from abroad. We are assured that no better article of horn combs than Mr. Bates' can be manufactured. Beautiful heads, beautiful hair, and beautiful combs, are just the sort for Nauvoo.

Chicken fixins.—Mr. Collett of this city, takes the chicken fixin's purse and ill. The last of April one of his hens hatched a litter of chickens, two of which male and female, "paired off" when between 7 and 8 weeks old, and on the 25th of June, the pullet began to "scratch for a nest;" when lo! on the 27th of June only about 8 weeks old, that little chicken, not larger than a quail, "laid an egg." The egg is perfect but not quite so large as a quail's. Strange things keep happening.

Good gracious.—In the city of Washington, a woman, after having swallowed a "teaspoonful of corrosive sublimate, thro' mistake, swallowed also a tea-spoonful of Scotch snuff by mistake for vegetable physic; and it cured her. Perhaps tobacco is as good for sick folks, as sick cattle. Who knows?

What is in a name?—The greatest, sweetest, prettiest, significant est, and comprehensive est name for a news paper is, the "Herald of Religious Liberty." This paper, as a matter of course, must advocate the rights of all religions:—Pagan, Jewish, Infidel, Catholic, Protestant, pure (Mormon) and froggy (Rigdon). Well,

"He that pleases all men, each way, And not himself offend, He must begin his work to day, But God knows when 'twill end."

The President's health.—President Polk was indisposed a few days about the middle of June, but has recovered.

Lieut. Gen. R. D. Jackson, Commander-in-Chief of her Majesty's forces in North America, died suddenly at Montreal the 17th ult. of a fit of apoplexy.

Little.—The commissioners of Muskingum, Ohio, awarded to a young man for saving the Court House at the risk of his life, during the late fire at Zanesville, a medal worth five dollars and five dollars besides. Muskingum is among the richest counties in the State, and those commissioners ought to be boiled in the water of liberality and hung out to dry till another fire.

Shiriff DeWing was indicted at the special term last week for murder in the matter of Dr. Marshall, and let to bail in a recognizance of $5,000 to appear at the October term of the Circuit Court.

Yank-ero.—The London Punch says the Sentinel intimates that the bible on which Mr. Polk took the presidential oath, was very handsomely bound for the purpose in the skin of a negro. Somebody else says this is a mistake; that it was bound in British calf, taken from one of Punch's relatives, young John Bull, at the battle of New Orleans.

The Queen, and one hundred years ago.—There is to be a court gala, a grand ball, in London this summer, where the Queen directs that the same kind of clothes, fashion, customs, manners, music, and dancing, as were in vogue 100 years ago, shall be the standard. Great for some folks.

O boy the clothes are trimming! Success to wit and women:— But I'd rather fish swimming, In the river of life, For a thousand years to come,

Great Prospect for Politics.—The New York True Sun says, about 1000 emigrants from the old country, arrive there daily. "God! fill up the country:—as many of them make first democrats, and the second class whigs, and the balance, like Noah's, 'all manner of creeping things."

Hail-math-bool.—(Heb.)—The St. Louis New Era of June 24th, says, "It has rained more or less every day at this point for the last fifteen years." Our opinion, rendered, is: The great rain water.

Titillation.—Bed bugs in a hot night, a scolding wife, a flea under your inexpressibles, a crying child, a dun when you're out of money, the itch, a quack doctor, the visit of a sectarian priest, the Bray of a jack, leaky boots in wet weather, an epistle from a lawyer, and the perfume of a whisky breath from clerks, common laborers, and temperance men, are really a titillation to a sober thinking man.—Don't you think so, Joe?

Large flea.—There are more than 800,000,000 of human beings, besides an uncounted number of beasts, fowls, fishes, reptiles and insects, all dependent upon God for their provision for every meal in this world while they live.—What beautiful and eternally real directions did the Savior give in these words: "Our Father which art in heaven—give us this day our daily bread." No wonder the Savior fed so many upon a miracle, he was acquainted with the knowledge, and storehouse of God. The Christians are small minded, and the Atheists and Deists are smaller. Men have to "obtain their bread by the sweat of their brow," whereas before the transgression they were fed upon the "bread of heaven," made of the finest of wheat.

Dultery.—Parson Miller says an eastern paper, has recently been preaching at the Tabernacle at Troy, but could not gather an audience of any size. He has postponed the conflagration, says one of the newspapers, till some time in December next.

If the old man had sense enough to read the accounts of fires, storms, murders and other calamities, which waste Babylon continually, he would go into his chamber and hide till the indignation of the Lord was passed, before he spoke again.

Cost of War.—Our revolutionary war, says an Eastern paper, drew from the treasury of Connecticut alone, nearly $23,000,000; as much as $100,000,000 would be for that State now, or $200,000 for Massachusetts. Our last war, though cheap, compared with most wars cost us nearly $60,000,000 a year. Our revolutionary war cost England more than $800,000,000, and her war with Napoleon alone more than $5,000,000,000!

"The 'last war' will cost all, 'be the same more or less."

Irony.—A preacher, having remarked in a sermon, that everything made by God was perfect: "What think you of me?" said a man, rising from his seat and pointing to his own back. "Think of you!" retorted the preacher; "why, that you are the most perfect hunchback my eyes ever beheld!"

"And when the crooked is made straight," says Sambo, "he will be much perfecter."

Yank-ee.—The Eastport (Me.) Sentinel of Friday week says, that a young whale was discovered, having made his way up the Cobscook river, by Mr. Benjamin Small, who, after watching his movements awhile, ventured in a boat alongside of him, and with a boat hook put out his eye on the side, leading down the river, which forced him into a small creek where the water was shoal. With an axe he made an incision, through which he passed a strong line which kept his head in shore. After thrashing about for two hours, the tide left him and he was further secured. He was 41 feet long, and 8 1/2 feet through the thickest part. He yielded about 25 barrels of oil, and as much blubber.

"If the Yankees lived around the Pacific, and upon her islands, they would soon 'fame' the whales."

Caution to the Ladies.—The wives of a couple of Locofocos killed themselves in New York last week. We suppose the poor things had no alternative but to kill themselves or their good-for-nothing husbands. —[Pretence.

"When Pretence is spru-g he 'supposes' every body 'good-for-nothing' like himself."

Bedbugs.—Do not fail to treat these odorous marauders to mercury whenever they make their appearance. To prepare it for application, put a small quantity—say a tea spoon full—into a tumbler and break in the white of two eggs. Then make an egg-beater by splitting into the end of a stick crosswise and inserting two flat pieces of wood or goose quill. Put the wheel end of this into the tumbler, and taking the upper end of the stick into the palms of the hands, roll it in beating eggs, till the mercury is fully incorporated. Apply it in small quantities with a feather. It will remain for years; and bedbugs will sooner take another pew than endure it an instant.

Pour in the melted quick silver and eggs, for mercy's sake, till all the bugs in the country have the cramp.

A Tree Mended.—At a Mr. Frost's, Newton, New Jersey, is a large apple tree, that had the bark eaten all round by the insect some years ago, and of course would have died without some extra pains to save it. Mr. Frost set a dozen scions in the tree, one end in the green bark and wood below, and the other above the wound. They all took at both ends and grew well, excepting one, which took only at the bottom, and thus formed a little tree by itself. The scions are now about two inches in diameter, and are touching each other. The tree is in a fine flourishing condition. —[Ex. paper.

Truly men can mend any thing but themselves; i. e. in point of character.

Fashion.—In Abyssinia, a grandee sits at table and his mouth is crammed with raw beef till he chokes, by a lady on each side of him; the overplus being pared off at his lip. Why does he endure that torment? Because the Abyssinian deems it "dignity."

Death's Doings.—For a change in the awful calamities, causes, and troubles which is wasting the life, and wealth of the world, we give a chapter of suicides this week, viz:—

Horrible Suicide.—Coroner Reagan held an inquest on the body of Leonard Gullabandson in Mill Creek tp., on the 13th; verdict, suicide under insanity.

The throat of the deceased was cut with a razor in a shocking manner, with jagular veins being severed, and the windpipe cut. He was a Swede by birth, and followed the occupation of a pedlar. He left quite a variety of small notions, which are in possession of the Coroner. —[Cincinnati Enquirer.

Melancholy Suicide.—At Boston, on Sunday last, about 9 o'clock, Mrs. Sarah Maria P. Allen, wife of Mr. John Allen, formerly a Universalist minister, and more recently editor of the Social Reformer, committed suicide by cutting her with a razor. The unfortunate woman had been for several months laboring under intermiserable fits of insanity induced, by over excitement in consequence of the illness of her little boy, and during Saturday night she made several attempts to throw herself from the chamber window upon the pavement. Taking the opportunity when her husband's attention was elsewhere, she went into the bathing room and committed the act. —[Balt. Sun.

Suicide at Cumberland.—William Van Baskirk, Esq., a talented lawyer of that place, and for several years a prominent member of the House of Delegates of Maryland, and more recently Secretary of State under Gov. Thomas, committed suicide on Sunday, on account of his domestic troubles.

Suicide.—The Rochester papers state that a man by the name of Walter Chrissholm, a miller, residing in Atwater street in that city, came home intoxicated and attempted to kill his family, but being unsuccessful he cut his own throat, and was taken to the watch house. He will recover.

Love and Suicide.—A young woman named Mary Shermer committed suicide on the 13th inst., at her boarding house in Wagner's court, Philadelphia, by taking corrosive sublimate. It is said that she was disappointed in her affection for a young man, which is attributed as the cause of the act.

Murder.—The Memphis Enquirer of the 17th inst. says: On Saturday evening last a man named John Moore was killed by a boatman named Z. Mills. The particulars as we gathered them on the trial are, that Moore entered Mills' boat where after some boasting of his manhood, he commenced insulting Mills, who submitting to a little time, finally procured a stick and made him leave. Moore, in a short time returned with the end of a pistol sticking out of his pocket, according to the testimony of two of the witnesses, and requested to have some conversation with Mills in a private room, where the killing was done. Mills gave himself up to be brought to the "Square's office" immediately, and was tried at 9 o'clock yesterday, and was discharged after investigation before Justice Raso.

Shocking Outrage.—A young woman living in a tenement house at Baltimore was thrown out of the gutter window a few nights since to the ground below, a distance of 75 feet by a desperate villain who had secreted himself under her bed during the evening. She struck an awning post as she descended which "somewhat broke the force of the fall." Her hip was dislocated, her head bruised and one toe cut off. The villain was arrested.

Dreadful Accident.—Loss of Life.—On the 5th inst., as we learn from the Luzerne Democrat, a sad and fatal accident occurred, at the coal mines of George M. Holteback, Esq., near Wilkesbarre, by which three miners named Joseph Water, John Casery, and John O'Neil, were instantly killed, and another, Robert Johnson, seriously injured. The day previous two slips had been discovered by the hands, and Mr. Lloyd, the lessee, directed them immediately to be propped, but as immediate danger was not apprehended, this was neglected. On Thursday, this coal, which had been left over head, and not intended to be mined, gave way while the men were at work under it. Nearly a hundred tons came down in a solid mass, crushing the workmen under it. The bodies were taken out after more than four hours labor. Johnson was very badly injured; the others were dead, their bodies having been most horribly crushed.

Disaster and Loss of Life. The whaling ship Maria Theresa, Capt. Fisher, which sailed from New Bedford May 1, for the Indian Ocean, returned again on the 9th inst., having had her first officer, a boat-steerer, and three of her men washed overboard in a gale on the 14th ult. Captain Fisher and four of the crew were also washed overboard at the same time, but succeeded in regaining the ship.

This Side up with Care.—A live negro was accidentally discovered, boxed up for shipment, on Sunday morning, on board of Messrs. Shaw & Co's wharf boat. It was first discovered by a gentleman leaning on the box, who heard a strange groaning noise and movement within; he called the attention of others to it, which led to the opening of the box, when a live negro, half dead from suffocation, rumbled forth; he had food with him, and the box was marked to the care of John Bennett, Louisville. This John Bennett is a free negro, who has been living here

POETRY.

A DUTCH CURE.

BY BROWN.

Ven I lays myself down in my lonely bed room,
And dries for to sleep very sound,
De tremas, oh, how to mine het day will come,
Till I wish I was under the ground.
Sometimes, ven I test on pig supper, I dream
Dat mine abtomak is full of shonens,
Und on my shlep, I like de devil, I schreems,
Und kicke off de ped clothes and kroms!
Den dere, ash I lays, mid de ped-clothes all off,
I kiks my half all over free:
In de morning I wakes mit de het-ache und koff,
Und Pin schick, from mine liet to mine toes
Oh, fat shall be tan for a poor man like me—
Fat for do I eat such a life?
Some shays dere is a cure for de trouble of me—
Dinks I'll dery it und kit me a rife!

MISS NANNY HARD TO PLEASE.

I do not like a man that's fat—
A man that's lean is worse than that;
Nor do I like a man that's tall—
Nor do I like a man that's little is worse than all;
Nor do I like a man that's fair—
A man that's dark I cannot bear:
A young man is a constant pest—
An old man would my hours invest;
A man of sense I could not rule,
And yet I could not love a fool:
A sober man I will not take—
A drunken man my heart would break.
All these I most sincerely hate,
And yet I love the married state.

BEARDS.

To shave or not to shave—that is the question
Whether 'tis nobler in a man to suffer
The flings and insults of fastidious women
Or to take arms against their petty torments, And, by the razor, end them. To shave, to scrape.
No more; and, by one scrape, to say we end
Contemptuous glances, and the frowning looks That leards must bring us; 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To shave—to scrape—
To scrape, perchance to cut; say, there's the rub:
When we have lathered all our mouth and jaw,
Must give us pause. There's the respect
That makes mustachios of so long a growth.
For who could bear the scorn of lovely women,
The children's fright, the ingenuities, the tail of trimming beards, the toil of brush-ing.
The combing tangled whiskers and the spurring
That an imperial from the beard sea takes,
When he himself might safely smooth his face
With a sharp razor; why, in the summer heat,
Would grant and sweat under a heavy beard,
But dread of something in or after shaving,
(That most unwholesome custom, whose effects
No mortal has discovered,) puzzles the will,
And makes us rather bear the beard we have,
Than fly to evils that we know not of.
Thus razor blades make cowards of us all,
While every shaving brush and barber's shop
Is sickled o'er with symptoms of bronchitis,
And razor makers and the barbers' shops
With this regard their wares may throw away,
And lose their hope of custom.

CALIFORNIA.

Information in regard to the favored portion of the globe is eagerly sought after by our citizens, as it is destined ere long to be annexed to the United States.
The large number of Americans already settled and emigrating there, give assurances of the result. The following information, gleaned from recent sources, will be, we doubt not, acceptable.
No country whatever can excel, or hardly vie with California in natural advantages. Its geographical situation is such as one would select as the most favored situation in the world. Its topographical relations are also most favorable; it stretches along the shores of the Pacific Ocean, without extending much inland, and therefore enjoys all the man-ifold advantages of a maritime country.
By its great extension from north to south, settlers have also the option of selecting a climate suited to their health and views. Other countries, there are, of course, which have the same relative situation on the globe, but we think it may be safely asserted, that there is no other of the same extent which possesses so many local and natural advantages.
Some countries, although placed in the same geographical relation, are sandy deserts or mudated marshes; others are uninhabitable mountains or impervious forests; whilst others are surrounded or possessed by savages, or bordered by shoals and unapproachable shores. California, on the contrary, enjoys natural and local advantages equal to its geographical situation. Its soil is of the most fertile description, capable of producing the choicest fruits, and grains in the greatest perfection and abundance; its coasts are bold and free of danger, washed by the placid Pacific Ocean, and possessed of ports of the first order. It is also watered by abundant rivers; and there is nothing in the configuration of the surface of the country to forbid the eternal spring which its situation promises. There is found a temperature equally remote from extreme heat or cold; and the range of mountains which bound the maritime portion of California to the north-east, shelter it from the only winds which might be apprehended seriously to injure the fruits of its soil, or to incommode the inhabitants.
The situation of California for intercourse with other countries, and its capacities, should it ever be possessed by a numerous and industrious population, is most favorable. Its western shores on the Pacific possess capacious ports. The harbor of San Francisco is not surpassed by any in the world for size and safety—it has been well said the navies of the entire globe might lie sheltered therein—consisting of two bays each, about fifty miles in width, whilst the entrance is extremely narrow and can be easily fortified. It is so situated as to be myde the centre of the commercial relations which may take place between Asia and the western coasts of America. The route by which the voyage from India, China, Manilla, and other Asiatic countries, is performed to the American coast, particularly to that of Mexico, Guatemala, &c., obliges vessels to pass very near the coast of California; because in order to avoid the easterly trade winds, it is necessary to stand to the northward to get into the variable and unprevailing westerly winds, just as vessels must do when bound from the West Indies to Europe.

The vessels of the Spanish Philippine Company, on their passage from Manila to San Blas and Acapulco, generally touch at Monterey for refreshments and orders. Thus it appears as if California was designed by nature to be the medium of connecting, commercially, Asia and America, and as the depot of trade between these two vast continents, which possesses the elements of unbounded commercial interchange—the one overflowing with all the rich and luxurious commodities, always characteristic of the east—the other possessing a superabundance of the precious metals and other valuable productions to give in exchange. California for a moment at the facilities which steam will promote, and bear in mind that the day is not far distant when the Pacific will be united to the Atlantic through the isthmus of Darien. If other nations fail in its accomplishment, we shall not rest satisfied until it is done; and we verily believe it will be left for the Yankees to undertake and accomplish.

California is admirably calculated for carrying on a trade with all the new Republics bordering on the Pacific; and as its productions are of a different description from those of the countries chiefly situated within the tropics, it is capable of furnishing them with articles of indispensable necessity, which hitherto they have been obliged to procure from Europe, and at an enormous expense, and often from the length of the voyage, rendered useless by the damaged state in which they arrived. California could furnish abundantly all those countries with flour, potatoes, salted provisions, hides, tallow, butter, cheese, wine of the choicest kind, brandy, oil, olives, raisins, apples and other fruits, as also with hemp, or cordage, flax, wood, pitch, tar, &c., all of which would arrive by a short voyage, and in perfect condition, and be furnished at reasonable prices. Another commercial field is opening with the numerous islands scattered over the Pacific Ocean, with some of which, especially the Sandwich Islands, a large trade is already carried on—vessels belonging to Americans being constantly in the trade, to good advantage.

The late crop of Louisiana Sugar, as certained by careful personal inquiry on each plantation, was 194 345 hogheads, making a net weight of 204,000,000 lbs.
The crop of molasses is estimated at 9,
000,000 gallons.

Capture of Slavers. Re-capture. Butchery of the English Prize Officer and Crew.
By late accounts received from Sierra Leone, it appears that three slavers have been recently captured by British cruisers on the African coast, containing more than one thousand slaves. These poor wretches will probably be sent to the West Indies as apprentices, the name for the new system of slavery which the British Government, in its philanthropy, is establishing.
There is also an account given of the capture and recapture of a slaver, and the horrible butchery of the English prize officer and crew.

MEXICO.

Private letters received here from Mexico by the British frigate Eurydice, state as a matter almost of certainty, that before long the Mexican government will declare war against the United States.
We have seen some of these letters, and they all go to confirm the statements to this effect made in our paper of yesterday. So hostile to this country and to Texas is the tone of public sentiment in Mexico, that it is generally believed the government must either go to war, or suffer an overthrow by a new revolution.
In this pasture of affairs, it will probably adopt the alternative involving least peril to its members, trusting to the chances which the future may afford to save the republic from the consequences of a conflict with this country. N. O. Jeff. Rep.
June 3d.

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.

The Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have organized into an association, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and inasmuch as we have some of the best workmen in the city, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others who may favor us with a call.
Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Flynn St. bet.
between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.
We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOU-SAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West-tn prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.
Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.
W. M. EARL, President.
HENRY HUFFMAN, Counselor.
CYRUS WINGATE, Clerk.
LUGB LITTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845—3m

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land,
with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50tf

TWO farms one containing 180 acres,
70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved,
with a good block house, and out houses:
—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 12 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Payetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60
acres improved with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock; for further particulars
apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri.
Apply to the above.

ALSO:

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house
and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65
acres improved, with a frame house,
and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3 1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI.
FOR sale or exchange a plantation
situated 50 miles from Vicksburgh, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1030
acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and
out buildings; indisputable title given.
For further particulars apply to George
Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400
acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch bear by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs—
situated 40 miles from Vicksburgh, Lines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump
of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—49tf

ALSO:

A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well improved and well watered; with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries,
peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 miles from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie
town, near a little town called Burlington;
there are two log cabins and a stable upon
the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given.
Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulston of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15 50tf

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.
THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at
all times and with speed and safety.
From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Peardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross
at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the river far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store,
on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the
wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land,
situated in this county, which will be sold
to those wishing to settle on favorable
terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball
and Orson Hyde.

March 24—47tf

COMMISSION STORE FOR HOME MANUFACTURE.

THE subscriber having opened a commission store on Mulholland street, about fifteen rods south east of the Temple, will receive and sell on commission, any article that can be made or manufactured in this city, comprising
of Boots and Shoes of all kinds, Hats,
Bonnets, Stockings, Socks, Gloves, Cabinet-ware, Chairs, Hoos, Pitch forks; finally, anything that you can make or have on hand that will be useful in this vicinity, that you wish to sell; if you feel disposed to leave it with me I will sell it to the best advantage, for your benefit.

I will receive in exchange for the above articles, Pork, Beef, Butter, Cheese, Poultry, Eggs, Wheat, Corn, Buckwheat,
Flour, Meal, Potatoes, Beans, Wool, &c., and finally any thing that will make food or clothing.

Please give me a call as I will intend to sell cheaper than the cheapest.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43tf

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM in Knox county, three miles west of Galesburgh, eight miles from Knoxville, thirty miles from Orlinda, and twelve miles from Monmouth, containing one hundred acres—forty acres of improvements, and sixty acres of excellent timber, well watered, both for stock and house use. The cultivated land is dry
and of a very excellent quality, which
the undersigned will sell cheap, or exchange for a farm in Hancock county.

JUSTUS AMES.

March 1st, 1845—44tf

SOAP MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber having established a Soap Manufactory on Mulholland street, about two hundred rods east of the Temple, opposite R. Beccell's Tavern, where he intends to manufacture hard
and soft soap of the best quality, which he will sell much lower than has been the
customary price in this city, wholesale and retail. To be had also at the Commission Store, about fifteen rods south-east of the Temple.

ABEL LAMB.

Nauvoo, Feb. 26, 1845—43tf

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

THE undersigned having taken the
old stand formerly occupied by H.
Egan, have commenced manufacturing cordage of all descriptions, twine, chalk lines &c., which they will sell at St. Louis prices. As the subscribers intend manufacturing all their cordage from the best materials, and in the best manner, to be sold at the lowest prices; they would invite all persons wishing to purchase, to
call and see before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. St. Louis prices paid for hemp.

EGAN & SANDERS.

Feb. 19—42tf

NOTICE—THE subscribers from
the east, would respectfully inform
the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors
above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in
the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine
by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres; situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of
the grand prairie, one of the most healthy
portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality.
There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchanged it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber
on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18—40tf

EARTHENWARE! EARTHENWARE!

J. GROCOTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety
of other articles too numerous to mention,
which will be ready for inspection and
sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844.

no41—tf.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now afforded to the citizens of Nauvoo
and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr.
Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and
these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians
in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry
for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual
remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion
long and intense suffering and even death
without their ever being suspected; grown
persons are very often afflicted with them,
and are doctored for various complaints,
without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpi-
tations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find
the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dyspepsia, they will restore the tone
of the system generally, and remove all
the unpleasant symptoms arising from too
free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will
not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the
money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000
are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, &c., on the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents), brings it within
the reach of every person in the community.
A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

NOTICE.

PERSONS wishing to get the Times
and Seasons, or other books bound,
can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office,
the first, second, third and fourth volumes
of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

NOTICE—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen,
he is prepared to do work as reasonably, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment
in this State.

The following is a list of his
prices:
Quartos half bound plain 1.50
do do do neat 2.00
do whole bound plain 2.00
do do do neat 2.50
Octavo full bound plain 1.00
do do do neat 1.50
do do do plain 0.75
do do do neat 1.00
do do do extra 1.37
Twelves full bound plain .62
do do do neat .87
do do do plain .50
do do do neat .75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and
on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1844.

LAW NOTICE.

A. W. BABBITT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WOULD give notice that he has removed his office to the corner of Carlin Parley streets, where he will always be found ready to give the strictest attention to business which may be entrusted to his care.

He would also give notice that he has the agency of large amounts of good farming lands, in the counties of Hancock, McDonough, Adams, Warren and Knox, which he will sell very low for cash or exchange for property in the North Eastern States, or he will sell the same on a credit of three or four years,
to those who wish to settle on the same.
He will also give one of the best bargains to any one who would wish to purchase the large brick cottage and mills formerly owned by W. & W. Law, in the city of Nauvoo; said property must be sold and will be sold at a sacrifice;
those who would wish to make a good investment of their money, would do well to call soon and inquire as to the terms.

Nauvoo, June 11, 1845—6tf

MERMAID!

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET
FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAU-
VOO, AND BLOOMING-
TON, IOWA.

THE light draught steamer, MER-MAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St.
Louis every Friday and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning;—on her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several law is. Every attention, politeness, cleanliness and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as plausibility was more gold, than tricks and ferocity. For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent,

for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845—tf

OSPREY!

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAU-
VOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Asst. Master, has commenced running between
St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis
every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip
she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock
a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Port
Madison, Monday; Tuesday, will leave
Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely,
and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9
a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her
being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no
exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 10.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, July 9, 1845.

Whole Number 166

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Walnut Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

Liberal allowance will be made to regular advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor.) POST PAID, to receive attention.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

NOOTKA AND GHENT.

Prior to the year 1790, Great Britain and Spain had respectively asserted territorial rights over the North West Coast of America, founded on discoveries and explorations by subjects of these nations respectively. Spain, in asserting her assumed rights of sovereignty over the country bordering on Nootka Sound, had seized the property of one Meares, a British subject. Great Britain demanded reparation, which Spain at first refused, and War appeared inevitable. But this was averted by a Convention, concluded at the palace of the Escurial, in Spain, Oct. 28th, 1790, which convention, after stipulating for a just reparation, by Spain for the alleged spoliation of Meares the preceding year, proceeds to Art. 3. In order to strengthen the bonds of friendship and to preserve in future a perfect harmony and good understanding between the two contracting parties, it is agreed that their respective subjects shall not be disturbed or molested, either in navigating, or carrying on their fisheries in the Pacific Ocean or in the South Seas, or in landing on the coast of those Seas in places not already occupied, for the purpose of carrying on their commerce with the natives of the country, or of making settlements there; the whole subject, nevertheless, to the restrictions specified in the three following articles, (which restrictions do not affect the point in dispute.)

This is the essential part of the 'Nootka Treaty,' so far as it is now material; all the rest is temporary or incidental. It is claimed by Great Britain that this Treaty, never having been modified by any subsequent arrangement, nor even by an intimation from either party that its termination was assumed or desired; is obviously and in its nature an enduring, subsisting adjustment of all preexisting territorial claims of the two nations, so far as they may be affected by this Treaty. We believe this is a true and just claim, consistent with and sustained by the admitted Laws of Nations. In this faith, Great Britain has since prosecuted discoveries and explorations, made settlements upon and is now in possession of a good part of the territory known as Oregon, all which (the coast at any rate) comes directly within the purview of the Treaty stipulation above quoted. Spain has never since made a settlement in the whole region, and we believe she has never since 1795 made explorations on its coast. In 1815, she ceded all her rights in that quarter from lat. 43° Northward, to the U. States, and they are now our rights. Such is the Oregon case. It matters not how much Meares led, under what flag he went to Nootka, nor how scandalously Spain was swindled in the amount of indemnity paid him. The case in point regards only the substance and force of the Nootka Treaty. It will be seen that this Treaty says nothing of privileges granted by Spain to Great Britain or her subjects. The first and fourth articles of the Treaty promise that certain buildings and tracts of land situated on the North West Coast of America are to be restored to British subjects, from whom (it was alleged and supposed—no matter, for the present purpose, how truly) Spain had wrested them. Not a word is found in the treaty implying that this restitution or the right of making settlements was to be considered as a temporary arrangement. South of the Spanish settlements in America, (the subjects of either power Art. 6.) shall retain the liberty of landing on the coasts and islands so situated for the purpose of their fishery, and of erecting thereon huts and other temporary buildings serving only for those purposes. Mark the radical difference in the language used in the two cases respectively. Now to the case of the Newfoundland fisheries:

Great Britain, by the Treaty of Independence, 1782, conceded to us certain fisheries, not only upon the Banks of Newfoundland, but also of drying and curing fish on the barren sands of the shore, known of all men to be undisputed British territory. These privileges we enjoyed unquestioned till interrupted by the war of 1812. When the Commissioners of the two nations met at Ghent in 1814 to negotiate a Treaty of Peace, the British Commissioners at the very first meeting gave our formal notice that their Government would not renew the fishing privileges which we had enjoyed under the treaty of Paris. Our able Commissioners, in reply, maintained that any stipulation on this subject was unnecessary—that, peace being restored, on the basis of American Independence, all the privileges secured to us by the treaty of Independence revived of course. The British rejoined that they knew of no treaty stipulations which war did not put an end to—and here the matter was dropped, each party standing on its reserved rights, and neither insisting on a stipulation on the subject. Such is substantially the Ghent case in regard to the fisheries. Three years afterward, the difference was adjusted by compromise.

—Now, while we do most heartily believe that our own Commissioners were right in the main, we cannot doubt that the Nootka treaty is valid and subsisting according to the principles contended for by either party at Ghent. That the American doctrine covers this position, we surely need not argue. But that the British also does, is clear to our mind, from the fact that the Commissioners on that side felt impelled to give early and formal notice that their government would consider our rights in the fisheries thenceforth at an end. They certainly would not have given this irritating notice had they not deemed it clearly necessary to do so, in order to prevent the revival of course of our fishing privileges under the treaty of Paris. Their remarks, therefore, that war puts an end to all treaty stipulations, is plainly defined and modified by their own acts to mean only that war sets every thing at naught—renders every former stipulation, not necessarily invalid, but legitimately questionable. Thus if our Commissioners urged that the doctrine of the other party justified the non-recognition of our Independence itself, the obvious answer was, 'Yes, sir; Great Britain has the clear right, if she chose, to say no; that she will not make peace on the basis of your Independence; and on your dissent, there will be no course left but to fight on till one party or the other is brought to terms.'—But if nothing had been said about the fisheries at Ghent, who does not see that our privileges would have been revived by peace, according to the plain understanding of both parties? The Nootka case is just like this except where ever it is stronger.

THE AFRICAN CONTINENT.

The following extract of a letter to the New York Sun, dated Moravia, March 31, will be read with interest, giving, as it does, some important views and information.

'I implore you to turn your eyes towards Africa, and when you have satisfied yourself of the necessity, call upon your fellow citizens to protect the work of their hands from being contemptuously trampled under foot by the pride of England. On the coast of America they know better; but here the English cruisers treat the republican flag with no more respect than they would an old cotton hankerchief—unless, indeed, it flies over an armed deck, and then they are willing to go through the forms of politeness, and drink wine with the Yankee officers. The English government professed to see, with horror, the forcible exportation of human beings from this coast, and establish the colony of Sierra Leone, as they said, to watch over and civilize the inhabitants of this coast of Guinea. Benevolent men in America planted Liberia for the same objects, and also to afford an honorable home and an open field for those of the colored race who aspired to the character of free and self-governing men. They saw in it the means of raising Africa from the bloody mire of her cruel ignorance, and thus making reparation to her children for the terrible wrongs inflicted by the white race. We, who left our sweet homes in the United States, to sow the seeds of christian love in the rank wilderness, had no thought of encountering the spite and envy of England. She pretended to be engaged in the same cause, and was always reproaching the Americans with lukewarmness. See her sincerity, her honor, her humanity; our colonies prospered; for three hundred miles along the coast, once the dreadful centre of robbery and murder, in which no unarmed man, white or colored, was safe for an hour, all is peace, prosperity and hope. Deeper and deeper into the heart of the country, beautiful and flourishing settlements are springing up, one hundred thousand souls, each one of whom, in its way, will be a missionary of civilization to the most interior recesses of the continent, are living in cheerfulness and hope, under the shadow of the American eagle, learning the language, the promises and the spirit of republicanism, and preparing soon to return the blessings they receive by sending the fruits of their industry to enrich the markets of the protecting States. While we were too ignorant to understand the value of American generosity and friendship, and too poor and feeble to influence the savage tribes about us to honor it also, the English, in words, were kindly, (never too kindly, however, to accept for their ships, the products of our labor without return) but when they found, as we gathered strength and intelligence, we turned with more and more affectionate defence to the United States, and enlarged with increasing fondness on the practicability of building up here in Africa, through her fostering care, a republic which should imitate, no matter how humbly, the noble freedom of her institutions, they turned to enemies.

'Above all things, we wished to maintain, what even in slavery we had been permitted to enjoy, the widest religious freedom. The English always sneered at the poor colored race, pretending to understand, value, and enjoy what their highest nobility had been so slow to comprehend, what their Parliament had found too large and noble for its understanding to grasp; liberty of conscience and equality of citizen rights. We, poor benighted ones, retorted by saying that the meanest one born under the light of republicanism felt that an infant, or a crazy man, or a girl whose only thought seemed to be showy dress and theatrical display, was a government not respectable enough for emancipated men, though they were black.

'This is the real difficulty here. The English are resolved to annoy and discourage us, until we whose freedom and territory have been bought with American money, who were brought here and cherished by American enterprise until we could support ourselves, and send bread to our famished neighbors, surrender our bright prospects and pass under their yoke. Our colony is insulted, and our government set at naught, studiously, in order to encourage the barbarous native tribes to attack us, perhaps lead us prisoners down the coast to be sold to slavers, intercepted in turn by British cruisers, and carried according to custom to British colonies, there to pass into that horrid, hopeless servitude which their hypocritical guilds with the deceitful name of apprenticeship. Ask the freemen of America if they will sell us again, as their English fathers did ours, into slavery. If they will not, they have but to raise the manly voice of the Union, and the thundering lion will be too glad to leave Liberia in peace. The papers you were kind enough to send us created quite a sensation.'

Indians and Egyptians—A Scene.—A Paris correspondent of the National Intelligence of the Ottoman Porte applied to me to bring about a junction, in a soiree at his hotel, of the Iowa Indians with the forty youth and directors of the Egyptian institution in Paris formed for the finishing of two grandsons of Mehemet Ali. Mr. Catlin and Mr. Melody readily consented to the invitation. Mr. Jomard and myself went together to Reschid Pacha's splendid saloons, about 5 o'clock, and found a large assemblage of Turks, Egyptians, Greeks, Americans, and some French ladies. The Western guests did not arrive with their guide until nine, their toilette having consumed an extra hour. Before they appeared, I felt some solicitude touching their behaviour, from my American desire that these princes of the Far West should manifest a breeding at least equal to the Oriental of Egypt and Turkey.

The twelve marched in and seated themselves in a quarter circle, in perfect order, and with dignity, even grace. They seemed to understand fully the occasion, and the party. They partook of the luxurious refreshments with ease and moderation, smoked the long elegant Ottoman pipe comfortably and skilfully, along with his excellency, and they delivered short complimentary speeches, without the least extravagance of tone, gesture, or topic. Reschid answered with sense and courtesy. The evening 'passed off' with universal satisfaction, and to the constant surprise and interest of the Egyptians. I asked the elder of Mehemet Ali's progeny, whether he had conversed to his knowledge with an American before he did so with me. He replied in the negative; and it was evident that he was puzzled by his first idea that I belonged to the Indian corps, as I do not exactly correspond to what he had heard of our aboriginal colors and costume. This is an intelligent stripping, about twenty years of age, lively aspect and light complexion. The royal airs of the two boys, and the homage of their companions, chiefly noble youths, might excite a republican smile.'

GALVANIC RINGS.

Another wonderful English discovery discovered here first.—We find the following account of a wonderful English invention, in a late number of the New York Sun. The English doctor, we presume, came to this country thinking to astonish the natives with his discovery, but he is quite behind the times on this side of the Alleghanies.

The Latest Wonder.—In another column will be found an advertisement in relation to a late English invention styled the Patent Galvanic Ring. It has attracted unusual attention in Great Britain, and we learn is regarded with much favor by several of the most distinguished of the medical profession in that country. The discovery is now for the first time introduced here by Dr. A. H. Christie, a brother of the inventor, and if the testimonials we have been shown, and the remarks of the English Journals are to be credited, the invention is one of no ordinary value. The Galvanic Rings are simply worn upon the finger, and are stated to answer all the purposes for which the galvanic battery and magnetic machines are used, and in several respects of an important nature, they appear even preferable. The diseases for which Electro Galvanism has always been applied are among the most painful and universal to which we are subject, and from the high character of the inventor and the explanations with which we have been favored, we have no hesitation in recommending the Galvanic Rings to the attention of our suffering readers. The cost is so trifling as to allow an opportunity of testing their efficacy. We may be doing service to state that the only agency at present in the United States is at No. 131 Fulton street, New York, and all communications for Dr. Christie must be addressed to that place.

These Galvanic Rings are no new things here. They have been used by Mr. Jacob Walter, of this city, for at least ten or fifteen years. We have now before us the following advertisement, published in a handbill, in this city in 1842. J. Walter & Son inform the public generally, that they are at this time manufacturing in the city of Louisville, Magnetic Electric Machines, and also Electro Magnetic, together with Galvanic Rings and Magnets, used in the cure of Neuralgic complaints:

Such as rheumatic complaints of the head, ears, face, teeth, neck, in stiffness of the neck, in pains which effect one side of the face, prosopalgia, tic douloureux, migrain, toothache and jawache when caused by cold; and also cold when first seated, in chronic pains of the chest, asthma, and all purely neuralgic complaints; in cholera, cramps of the stomach, &c.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 2d, 1842.

Mr. Walter informs us that he has been in the practice, for many years, of making and applying Galvanic rings for neuralgic complaints, upon the ankles, wrists, arms, &c. according to the situation of the complaint. It is evident, therefore, that he has long anticipated this great discovery of the English Doctor, and we have not the least doubt that if the latter will take the trouble to come out here, Mr. Walter will teach him several facts with regard to Electricity and Galvanism, with which he may go back to England and astonish the natives there, much more effectually than he has done here.

DEATH FROM INTemperance, AND BRUTAL CONDUCT.

Yesterday morning we were shocked by the rumor that 'another murder was committed last night,' and immediately repaired to a house situated between Philippi and Circus streets, on Girod street, to ascertain its truth. Here, in one of those hovels which are a disgrace to the Second Municipality, we saw the remains of a woman who had been found early in the morning, in the yard in the rear of these filthy dens, quite dead, lying upon oyster shells and dirt enough to impregnate the whole surrounding atmosphere. With an infant about a year old, quite naked, and striving to get nourishment from the cold and clammy breasts of its dead mother.

The Coroner came to hold his inquest on the body, accompanied by Dr. Vignot, and a respectable jury. The principal evidence as to how the woman came by her death was a man named Henry Hartwell, an Englishman, formerly belonging to the 2d Regiment United States Infantry, and who is believed to be a deserter. He stated that four or five days ago, this woman and her child had accompanied him to his room (den, rather) on Philippi street; that he had met her near the Gas Works, as it were by accident, when they drank together; that they had lived in this place since; that the day before yesterday she was drunk all day, and she committed nuisances about his floor, that he got angry, and between eight and nine o'clock at night he turned her and her baby out into the yard, after having given her one or two slaps. On being asked by the Coroner why he did this, the fellow answered, 'Because I had a mind to do so.' No person could tell her name. The inquest was over, and the jury returned a verdict, after witnessing the post mortem examination, that the 'white woman, name unknown, had died from intemperance.' The man Hartwell, at the request of some citizens, was sent to the calaboose, to answer any charge which may be brought against him before Recorder Baldwin. When we left, the poor child remained in the arms of one of those drunken wretches who inhabit these hovels, but efforts were going to be made by some humane bystanders to provide a good asylum or home for it. For the sake of humanity we trust right soon.

This case is but another of frequent occurrence in Girod street, and those of our citizens who know nothing of the dens in that locality, would shudder if a true picture was held up to the public gaze—Potter's Field, could its inhabitants speak, would arouse public attention to such a pitch, that nothing but the razing to the ground of these dens of vice, poisonous drinks, and wickedness, could assuage the tumult of the popular clamor for reform.

We trust the proper authorities will look more seriously to these places. There are some licensed tippling houses in the neighborhood, we are informed, that drugged drinks instead of even common whiskey is sold in them, and surely the council never intended to grant a license for such purposes. The evil has been long complained of, it is now brought to full view, with the hope that we may never again have the task of putting pen to paper on so disgraceful a subject.

Since writing the above, we learn that the deceased's maiden name was Eliza Murray, an Irish woman, and that it is supposed she was married some three years since to a man named Mathews, who once kept a grocery near St. Mary's Market—but of him nothing is known.

THE CHANCES OF WAR.

Supposing that a war might possibly occur between the United States and Great Britain, for the benefit of those who shudder in their stockings we have compiled a list of the winnings of our country during the last war with Great Britain. This shows what was done by a few Yankee cock-birds with bits of striped bunting at their masts; and it affords some evidence of what could now be done by the government of 20,000,000 of free people:

English Ship.	Guns.	Captured by the following American vessels.
Guerriere frigate.	40	Constitution frig.
Macedonian do.	49	United States frig.
Java, do.	49	Constitution, do.
A new frigate.	40	Destroyed at York, Canada.
Frolic, sloop.	22	Wasp, sloop.
Alert.	26	Excess of 32 guns.
Boxer, sloop.	18	Enterprise, sloop.
Peacock, do.	20	Hornet, do.
Epervier, do.	20	Peacock, do.
Avon, do.	19	Wasp, do.
Hermes.	23	Destroyed by Fort at Mobile.
Cyane.	31	Constitution frig.
Levant.	21	both taken at once.
Penguin, sloop.	20	Hornet.
Dominica.	16	Decatur, privateer.
Highflyer.	4	President frigate.
Laura.	12	Diligent, privateer.
St. Lawrence.	15	Chasseur, do.
Pictou.	10	Constitution frig.
Belanoid.	8	Perry, privateer.
Townsend.	9	Tom, do.
Emu.	10	Holker, do.
Landrail.	10	Syren, do.
Morgania.	18	Saratoga, do.
Lapping.	10	Fox, do.
Confiance.	59	Taken by Capt. McDonough on Lake Champlain.
Queen Charlotte.	17	Taken by Com. Perry on Lake Erie.
Lady Cuvier.	10	Perry on Lake Erie.
Montez.	3	Erie.
Chippewa.	6
Caledonia.	6
Duke of Gloucester.	14	Taken by Com. Chauncey on Lake Ontario.
Melville.	3	Taken on Lake Ontario.
Julia.	4	Taken on Lake Ontario.
Groarler.	8	Taken on Lake Ontario.
Nancy.	1	Huron.

The following were British packets, generally of about ten guns each:

Gov. M'Kenzie, privateer.	Rossi, do.
Anacanda, do.	Gov. Tompkins, do.
Manchester, do.	Harold, do.
Princess Amelia, do.	Harry, do.
Express, do.	America, do.
Mary Ann, do.	Kemp, do.
Manchester, do.	Regent, do.
Ann, do.	President, frigate.
Lady Catharine, do.	President, do.
Princess Elizabeth, do.	Keese, do.
Another, do.
Little Mary Palsam, do.
Windor Castle, do.
Suslow, do.
Duke of Montrose, do.
Northampton, do.

The private marine in this country would be most seriously let in its depredations upon the commerce of Great Britain. The following were the captures made from 1812 to 1815.

354 ships.
610 barks.
523 schooners.
132 sloops.
730 various classes recaptured.
2369	2369
	59 vessels of war.
Total.	2428 vessels.

There are now over 1000 fast sailing vessels belonging to the shippers of the United States, which could at a moment's notice be constructed into armed cruisers, and a single years time would give another thousand of like vessels, and these, spread out on every sea, would nearly destroy British commerce in the first year of a war, and sweep their merchant ships from the ocean. If there comes a war, we have but to stand in our guns, and the result is not to be feared by Americans.—Eastern Sentinel, Westchester Co.

Fatal effects of Literature in China.

One of my domestics this morning was called away by the sudden death of his grandfather, an old man, nearly 80. The immediate occasion of his death was a journey of a hundred miles, in order to attend a literary examination. That such a man should attend as a candidate for literary honours, after perhaps nearly sixty years of unsuccessful application, shows at least ardour in the pursuit of his object. The present case of perseverance, which proved fatal, and similar attempts, are caused by a good-natured law made by the Emperor. Keen-lung, who was a great patron of old people: he decreed that all Sen-lung graduates of seventy, who would attend but once and go through the exercises after that age, should receive the next degree, called Keu-jin, by a special act of imperial favour, without any regard to the merit of their essays. But this law, which originated in the most gracious intention, causes annually, in different parts of the country, the death of several persons. The candidates at these examinations have to sit, whilst composing their essays, two days and two nights at a time, in little sentry-boxes, where they cannot lie down, and surrounded by the smoke caused in cooking for them; and this is repeated three, so that altogether they sit up often, in extremely hot weather, six nights! This toil and inconvenience, not at all pleasant to young men, is frequently fatal to the old persons who attempt it.

Piddings Chinese Olio.

NEW AND FEARFUL MODE OF EXECUTION.

It appears from a journal of a European traveller, that a new and frightful mode of execution has recently been adopted by the Great Mogul. The instrument and the process are thus described:

'A box, each side of which is fifteen feet square, is constructed of solid timber, about eighteen inches thick, dovetailed together, and braced with iron rods. The outside of the bottom of the box is covered with a plate of beaten iron, one inch in thickness. The interior is filled with perfect cubes of granite, weighing in the aggregate, several thousand tons. A machine is erected after the manner of an ordinary pile driver, but of course on an enormous scale, and of tremendous strength. The mass is raised, by means of a rope express purpose; though it is to be presumed that the machine by whom the work was furnished, had no idea of the horrible purpose for which it was intended. The human victim is placed upon a block of granite, of a corresponding surface, buried in the earth immediately beneath the enormous mass, and likewise covered with a plate of iron. At a signal by the vicramadook, the executioner touches a spring. The mass falls and the victim, crushed at once, is suddenly annihilated and spread out like a sheet of pasteboard. The huge weight being again raised, the flattened body is withdrawn and dried in the sun. When completely prepared, it is hung up on the walls of a public building, there to serve as a warning to the multitude!'

Very terrible, it true.

Fips and Levies. A correspondent of the Boston Courier proposes that when the new Post Office law goes into operation, a concerted effort should be made to reduce the Spanish fractions of a dollar to the same value with our coin or drive them from circulation altogether. By putting the fips and levies on a par with our dimes and half-dimes, the object could be easily accomplished. We believe they are not a legal tender, except by weight, and that portion of change, now in circulation in the United States; particularly the levies, would not, if subjected to the money scales, probably outweigh our own coin. The United States mint has already furnished an abundant supply of the fractions of a dollar in our own beautiful coin; and the old worn out levies, Spanish coin, should be banished from circulation. Give us the coin for common use which bears the stamp of Liberty, and the sovereignty of the United States. Our mints are abundantly able to supply enough, and more than is wanted for circulation.

Closing Appeal to a Jury.—Gentlemen of the jury: I quote from Shakespeare when I say to you, 'To be or not to be'—licked—that's the question. My client is a national stamp machine—he flings his wrath in part-falls; and it is dangerous to run a snag against his interest. Let me be made fiddler for a fool and chowder for a powder mill, if he is guilty, notwithstanding the criminal absurdities alleged against him in this indictment.

Do you believe that my client is so destitute of the common principles of humanity, so full of the fog of human nature, so wrapped up in the moral insensibilities of his being as deliberately to pick up a tater, and throw it at the nasal protuberance of the prosecutor?—Not not while you can discern a star in the northern sky; while the waters of the Ohio roll; and the race of buffaloes nestle on the Rocky Mountains, this immutable principle will remain that my client is a gentleman tater or no tater.

AND-SO-FORTH-IAHA.

We continue our collection of fires and such calamities as God in his providence sees fit to vex this nation with. We have not taken pains to collect many of murders and robberies, which, more or less, fill a certain portion of our exchanges.

Great Fire in Fayetteville, North Carolina.—Half the Town in Ruins.—We learn, says the Richmond Compiler, that a fire occurred in Fayetteville, N. C., on Thursday night, the 19th inst., by which half the place, principally the business portion, was destroyed. The calamity was attributed to an incendiary.

Fire in the Woods.—Loss of Life and Destruction of Property.—Fires are raging tremendously in this vicinity. The atmosphere yesterday was impregnated with dense clouds of smoke. Mr. Joseph McGuire, of Glenburn, was burned to death. The fire was raging near his house on Monday, causing him to exert his utmost energy to save it; but becoming very much exhausted and fearing that he could not save his house he went for aid, but not returning as soon as expected, his family became alarmed and search was made and his body was found. He has left a wife and four children.

Yesterday, the dwelling house and barn of Mr. Amos Emerson, in the north part of this city, were consumed. A traveler in saving furniture found his clothing entirely destroyed. There has been great destruction of wood fences, lumber, &c., as far as heard from, and as the fires rage to a great extent, we expect to hear of many other disasters.—Bangor Courier.

Heart-rending Calamity—Two Lives Lost by Fire.—On Friday night the dwelling house of Mr. John Prentup, on the canal, about two miles west of Fonda, Montgomery County, was consumed by fire, and shocking to relate, a grandson of Mr. P., a lad of 12 years of age, and a girl living in the family of about 14, was burnt to death.

The fire was first discovered by boatmen navigating the canal, who gave the alarm. Mr. Prentup hastily opening the doors of his room, the flames burst upon him, and his shirt, the only garment he had on, taking fire, he threw himself from the window, and was followed by his son from an upper window. The shrieks of the burning grandson were heard, without the possibility of rescuing him. The girl, it is believed, was suffocated, as she was in the part of the house that was first consumed. Mr. Prentup was severely burnt.

It is believed to be the work of an incendiary, as the premises, being suspected, and the circumstances being such as, after examination on Saturday, to warrant his commitment.

Steam Boat Collision on the Hudson.—Loss of Life.—Last week the steamboat Empire, six miles below Poughkeepsie, ran into a sloop with such force as to nearly sever her apart. The sloop immediately sank. A colored person was drowned.

Fish and Babies.—The Baltimore Sun (says DuSalle) will not believe that the bodies of deceased infants, &c., found in the river Delaware, without the marks upon them of a violent death, are suffered to be thrown back again to feed the fishes. But it is too true. The present law, we repeat, in the height of its silliness, will not permit the coroner to hold an inquest on bodies exhibiting no marks of a violent death; or if he do hold one, the county Commissioners refuse to pay the jury and other expenses. The result is, that no certificate can be given to authorize any sexton to inter such bodies, and the remains of the deceased must either be thrown back again into the river, or suffered to lie exposed on the wharves, infecting the atmosphere as they corrupt and decay.

Great Robbery.—Judge Baird, late receiver of public moneys at Palmyra, on the last downward trip of the steamer Di Vernon, had the bottom of his trunk cut out, and five thousand dollars in gold stolen therefrom. He was on his way down for the purpose of making a deposit of the money which he had with him, amounting altogether, to ten thousand dollars in gold, half of which was placed in the till of his trunk, which was left untouched, and the other half placed immediately in the bottom. The trunk was enveloped in a buffalo robe, and the thief or thieves, after having cut out the bottom and possessed themselves of the money, (undoubtedly aware that it was so situated,) replaced the robe, and Judge Baird knew nothing of the robbery until his arrival in this city. It is supposed that the act was perpetrated somewhere in the vicinity of Keokuk. Captain McDonough is on the "track," and we shall probably hear something further and more satisfactory in a few days.—Recette.

Infanticide.—The Louisville Journal of the 6th tells a rather strange tale, the substance of which is that a lieutenant B., of the U. S. Army, killed a new-born child, the offspring of a woman with whom he was living at a hotel in Paducah, and whom he called his wife. The child was born in the night, and the father threw it into the river, asserting that the child was still-born; but the child had been heard to cry. The father was arrested and gave bail for $2000.

The dwelling house of Mr. John Prentiss, near Fonda, New York, was fired by an incendiary, recently, and consumed. A grandson of the occupant, aged 14 years, and a servant girl of the same age, perished in the flames.

Another Disastrous Fire, and probably

Loss of Life.—About half past 2 o'clock this morning, a fire broke out in the stables fronting on Bayard street, and running into Elizabeth street, which was entirely destroyed with a number of valuable horses, carriages, wagons, etc. It next communicated to the small two-story brick building on the corner of Elizabeth, which was occupied as a grocery, was also destroyed with the contents. We are sorry to say that there was a report by those who first discovered the fire, that the occupant with his family, who slept over the store, have perished. We did not learn their names.—Jour. Com.

Fire and Loss of Life.—Yesterday morning between 2 and 3 o'clock, a fire broke out in the stables of Mr. Campbell, fronting on Bayard and running back on Elizabeth street. We learn from the Commercial that a number of carriages, wagons, &c., were destroyed, and four or five valuable horses. Mr. Campbell was not insured. His loss will probably be about three thousand. Several of the horses belonged to Mr. Raymond of the Menagerie. One of the horses was worth $500, being one of a pair for which Mr. Campbell had $900 offered only a day or two ago. The others were on livery.

From the stables the fire communicated to a small two-story brick building, at the corner of Elizabeth street, occupied as a grocery by Mr. Kosmiske. The building and its contents were entirely destroyed. Here we regret to say, there was also loss of life: The family occupied the upper part of the building, and so rapidly did the flames spread, that it was with the greatest difficulty any of them were saved from destruction. One little girl, about nine years of age, was burned to death. Her name was Jane Brian, of Irish parentage. It is supposed by some who were present at the fire, that the burning stairs fell down immediately after the others had escaped, and that thus the poor child's only chance was cut off.—N. Y. Tribune.

Northern New York.—Fires have again been raging in the woods in this county during the present week, destroying much valuable property. We learn that Col. Barnes of West Mohawk, on Tuesday, lost a valuable saw mill and a large quantity of lumber, located on a branch of the Hudson river. We are also informed that other mills and buildings were burnt.

Extensive fires have been raging northwest of this place, and to judge from the dense clouds of smoke which ascended from them, considerable property must have been destroyed.

It is said that Messrs. Rodgers, of Auburn, N. York, lost 10,000 cords of wood last week. (Essex Co.) Patriot.

Fire.—Three dwelling houses and two barns, with other out buildings, on River street (West of the river) in this village, were burned on the morning of the 10th inst. A block containing two wooden story houses, was also consumed. One of the houses and barns and out buildings belonged to O. P. Chandler, Esq., and were in the occupancy of Joel Lull. The other house was owned and occupied by Mr. Warham Miller.—Woodstock (Vt.) Age.

Fire at Chatham.—We regret to learn that on Tuesday last, the Wadding Manufacturing establishment of Conant & Rathbone, (known as the 'White Mills') near Chatham 4 engines, was consumed, with all its contents, on Monday the 7th inst., at about noon. The building was owned by the widow of the late George Humphrey. Loss estimated at $2,000 over insurance.—Hudson Gas. Tuesday.

Fire in Belgrade, (Me.)—We learn from the Kennebec Journal, that the large tannery of Southwick & Whitten, at Belgrade mills, was consumed by fire last week. Insurance $3000, which will not cover the loss.

We learn from the Calais (Me.) Advertiser, that the whole amount of property destroyed by the fire in Calais, on Tuesday morning last is estimated at from $10,000 to $12,000; on which there was but $3,600 insurance.

Steamboat Burnt.—The Lancet, which had been lying up several days at Sprinklesburg, below this place, took fire on Wednesday morning last, and was entirely consumed with its contents. The captain and crew were aroused just in time to escape. Such was their haste, that one of the men had to fly without his clothes.—Louis. Dem.

Foreign News

By the arrival of the steamship Caledonia at Boston, on the 19th ult., we have all our foreign files from London, Liverpool, Edinburgh, and other places. The latest dates is Liverpool May 4. The papers reach us in 23 days being 14 1-2 days by water, and 13 1-2 by land. Our land mails are nigh unto a century behind the generation, in point of speed.

The news by this arrival is of little consequence to us. We gather the following items:

Parliamentary.—The third reading of the Maynooth bill, in the House of Commons, on the night of the 19th May, engaged the exclusive attention of that body until Wednesday, the 21st. These three nights of protracted discussion evolved nothing new. The new treaty between England and France for the prevention of the slave trade on the coast of Africa, has been signed at the Foreign Office.—The Catholic Bishops are up in arms against the measure now before Parliament for establishing colleges in the north, the south, and the west of Ireland.

Indian Cholera in Sheffield.—It was last week stated in the public papers that ten of the children of the Sheffield Workhouse had an attack of Asiatic cholera, the most virulent kind, and that one of them had died.

Germany.—From all parts of Germany the letters we receive are occupied almost exclusively with discussions on the division now raging in the Catholic Church. The new religious sect is gaining every day numbers of adherents, and even the lower order of the clergy join it with alacrity. In Austria no pains are spared to prevent its making its way to the people; in Catholic and bigoted Bavaria it is persecuted; but in Saxony, Prussia, and the minor states, it is either connived at or encouraged openly by the Governments. The King of Hanover has declared against it, but it is believed that eventually he will tolerate and even encourage it.

Pirates in the Mediterranean.—Accounts from Messina, to the 6th of May, state, that the brig Garrett of Hull, had been chased and attempted to be boarded on the 21st ult. fifty miles west of Malta, by a schooner under Turkish colors.

Ireland.—The repeal meeting at Tara took place on the 22nd ult.—The numbers are variously estimated, at from 10,000 to 20,000. O'Connell, of course, participated largely in the proceedings.

France.—Little has been said during the last fortnight, in the Parisian journals, on American affairs; but in the few articles that have appeared, a very decided opinion is expressed, that however menacing the Oregon question may appear, it will be settled amicably, the United States and Great Britain both having an immense interest in the preservation of peace.

Turkey.—The accounts from Constantinople to the 7th of May state that the health of the Sultan is on the decline. Some even went so far as to say that on the previous Friday, in consequence of this, he did not pay the usual visit to the mosque.

Switzerland.—The accounts from Lucerne to the 25th ult., states that the influence of the three great powers (England, France, and Austria) began to make itself beneficially felt in Switzerland. The resolve of those powers to maintain intact the federal compact of 1815, the inviolability of the principle of cantonal sovereignty, and the exclusive right of the cantons themselves to revise and amend the compact by mutual friendly agreement among each other, by legal means alone, to the exclusion of all violence—regard always being had to the maintenance of the condition—sine qua non—of "the inviolability of the principle of cantonal sovereignty" above mentioned.

Spain. Abolition of Don Carlos. Don Carlos has abdicated his claim to the throne of Spain in the following letter to his son:

Letter of King Charles V. (Don Carlos) to the Prince of Asturias.—My most beloved Son—Having determined to retire from political affairs I took the resolution of renouncing in your name, in right to the crown, transmitting them to you. Consequently, I place in your hands the act of my renunciation, which you may use when you deem it opportune.

"I pray the Almighty to accord to you the good fortune to restore peace and union to our unhappy country, and thus to secure the welfare of all Spaniards."

"From this day I assume the title of Count de Molina, which it is my intention to bear hereafter."

"Bourges, the 18th of May, 1845."

"CHARLES."

ACCEPTANCE OF THE PRINCE OF ASTURIAS.—"I took cognizance, with filial resignation, of the determination, which the King, my august father and lord, made known to me to-day, and, in accepting the rights and duties which he freely transmits to me, I undertake a task which I will accomplish, God aiding, with the same sentiments and the same devotion to the security of the monarchy and the happiness of Spain."

CHARLES LOUIS.

"Bourges, the 18th of May, 1845."

The prince of the Asturias has published, in addition, a "manifesto" addressed to the Spanish nation, in which he disclaims all intention of casting amongst his country "a brand of discord." The Prince expresses his desire to prevent dissensions for the future, and to see the country prospering.

India and China.—The Overland Mail arrived in London on the 23rd ult. Intelligence has been received from Bombay to the 5th, Calcutta to the 7th, and Madras to the 14th of April. The news, in a political point of view is unimportant.

Cholera is prevalent in Calcutta, but is not of a nature to create more than customary alarm.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1845.

Q. Uaition of Justice.—It is not common for us to say much about public men and justice, unless we are concerned. Last summer, after the assassination at Carthage, very little was done to magnify the law till the October term of the circuit court; and then, when bills of indictment were found against some five or six persons, the "exits and entrances" to justice were scarcely guarded by bail. Furthermore, when the court came on in the spring, these men, charged with crime of the highest order, were able to bail themselves with very little notice about "sufficient security." So far so good, and nobody grumbled.

A good scene takes place: the sheriff shoots a man in self defence, and he is lodged in jail forthwith, and an indictment found within a day or two. When an effort to bail him out is made, the bonds are put at five thousand dollars (as much as five men were held at last spring, with as high or higher offence), and sworn security enough to satisfy the watchful honor of the conservators of Law, could hardly be had: It seemed almost like Solomon's "household with two daughters, crying: Give, give!"

We have made these few remarks to open the eyes of the American people to the position of the scales of justice. It would seem that the goddess has received her sight and so dispenses favors according to "p-p-u-r" clamor;—right or wrong. If such is the case, will not wise men exclaim: "O'haition of justice."

Independence.—So many accidents having been perpetrated upon the Latter-day Saint, for the past fifteen years, that "Independence," or, as it is commonly called, the fourth of July, had a very few charms as a nation's birthday; or as a patriotic holiday. The "extermination from Missouri," the ASSASSINATION, at Carthage, of JOSEPH and HYRUM SMITH, with impunity; and the repeal of our city charter, by might to rob us of right, gave the noise of shouting and the firing of cannon throughout the nation, the appearance of a great gun that had been fired for joy a long while ago, but now the reverberations of the explosion were heard away among the bordering mountains, as empty air.

Truly we have entered upon the seventieth year of Liberty, or republican administration of government, but from the intestine commotions, and divisions, religious and political, we may safely quote the Psalmist's words:—

"The days of our years are three score years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be four score years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

Who knoweth the power of thine anger, even according to thy fear, so is thy wrath."

The United States is, in comparison, a poor, weak, old man, in his seventieth year, adjusting his spectacles to read the fires, murders, storms, and calamities, with which a just God is vexing his prodigal sons.

It was once said, "every heart knows its own sorrow," but while we, as a people and portion of this government, are witnesses of the disease that is wasting the whole nation, who, (save the Saints) acknowledge that the Sweeper is at the door?

GREAT NEWS FROM THE SOUTH.

Santa Anna alive and banished.—The Charleston Courier furnished the following highly interesting news:

"The Dr. mail steamer Medway arrived at Havana 7th inst. from Vera Cruz, which place she left 1st inst., having on board as passengers, Gen. Santa Anna, lady and family, who were banished from Mexico, on their way to Venezuela."

The British mail steamer Dee also arrived at Havana, 7th inst., with Gen. Bustamante on board, on his way to Mexico.

It is recorded in one of the Havana papers that the French Secretary of Legation had been insulted by some Mexican soldiers. The secretary had required of the Government of Mexico prompt redress or he would demand his passports.

Blackberries.—Eldred Worley and Holman are preparing to manufacture wine from blackberries, and those who can, will do well to pick berries, for the Masonic Hall, will be paid one dollar per bushel, if delivered as soon as gathered.

Births and Deaths.—Says the Springfield (Mass.) Gazette:

"We have obtained from the Town Clerk, the returns of Births and Deaths in the town of Springfield, for the year ending May 1, 1845, as collected by him to be rendered to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, according to the requirements of the law."

The whole number of births, was 404; of which 196 were males and 208 females.

The whole number of deaths was 190; of which 101 were males and 89 females.

This shows a female gain, in life and death, of twenty-six in one year! One hundred years, at an arithmetical ratio, would raise an army of women, if they should only continue to marry and give in marriage.

The hero's draft.—Besides a general order to the Army and Navy, to respect the death of Gen. Jackson, in a suitable manner, the President issued the following:

By the President of the United States.

Andrew Jackson is no more! He departed this life on Sunday, the eighth instant, full of days and full of honors. His country deploras his loss, and will ever cherish his memory. While a nation mourns, it is proper that business should be suspended, at least for one day, in the executive departments, as a tribute of respect to the illustrious dead.

I accordingly direct that the Departments of State, the Treasury, War, the Navy, the Post Office, the office of the Attorney General, and the Executive Mansion, be instantly put into mourning; and that they be closed during the whole day to-morrow.

JAMES K. POLK.

Washington City, June 18, 1845.

Neighboring.—The Die Vernon with a pleasure party from St. Louis, made us a visit on the "fourth." The Temple attracted some attention towering up as the living monument of a martyred Prophet, and showing the united energy of a righteous people. All right: the world must witness our innocence and greatness.

Love half a tongue.—In the land of clocks, steady habits, and, where there are nearly twice as many "pretty fair maids," as there are real young Yankee blades, a lascivious, rario-rapido under the signature "Vonn," thus post-i-comes—in the Connecticut Courant:—

"With the blessings I have, my wants are but three.
Most simple and definite, nothing that's wild:
I ask for no more than is needful to me,
A husband to love, with a cottage and child.
—And our prayer is the speedful—
May God bless her with the 'needful.'"

Rare Show.—There is to be a rare show of "Foreign animals" in his city, on Monday, the 21st inst. The advertisement speaks for itself in another column. Elephants, lions, tigers, big snakes, and, O North's Ark, if we only had Job's cedar tailed Behemoth, as a specimen of old times, to drink the Mississippi off from the Rapids, we would find treasures enough to pay the shot—wouldn't we?

Office.—A letter was dropped into the Post-office in this city directed, as follows: "To Westly Seabury not knowing where he is."

The Hon. Louis McLane, has been appointed Envoy extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Great Britain.

Hay.—We are informed by a friend, that Prairie hay, cut and well secured in July, is much better for animal food, than to let it stand later, until the juices recedes. Who will go into the merits of the case and prove it?

Green Corn.—Last week the green corn began to make its appearance. Our friend Tully was just tender enough to present us with a bite, and, as Franklin said, "it was a glorious nibble."

Bennettiana.—Dr. Bennett and Mr. Devine are delightful Bennett of the New York Herald with a new species of Mormonism. This is first rate; Bennett never misses the corruptions of the times. Black mail, black religion, and the blackness of darkness, form a nucleus, out of which Bennett's spinnell eyes glare like two peeped onions nailed upon the head of a gamblers coffin.

Bang.—At the celebration of "the fourth" at La Harp, one of the cannon formerly of the Navajo Legion, was fired and burst. But one person, says an informant, was hurt. We wonder if our cotemporary will unite in saying:—"It was supposed to be the work of an incendiary?" If not, then we predict:—It was the signal, of fragments to those concerned. Let him that thinketh he is great, remember the pieces, for so shall the wicked be shivered.

Navy Slaughter.—We see by the U. S. Journal, that after our navy has slaughtered almost all the best genius and patriotism of the youth throughout the sea service, by "cat-o'-nine tails," colts, or McKenzysing on the gibbet; the Navy Department is about to discontinue flogging for petty offences. Let it be done; for we believe it is high time to save the pieces.

Married.—At Macedonia on the 29th ult. by Elder A. W. Perkins, Mr. Robert S. Butler to Miss Elizabeth Chase.

This being his fourth dear "little half," And she a maid near fifty.

What if we have a little laugh,
When old ones are so shifty

Alas!—"Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye are like unto white sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness." The indictment for the murder of Hyrum Smith, was dismissed at the late Special Term of the circuit court at Carthage, for the reason that there was no man in favor of the law to prosecute the suit. Be patient and see if the Lord dismisses the case without any judgment.

The citizens of Burlington have held a public meeting to take measures to protect themselves from the Mormons, on the occasion of the execution of the two Hodges, on the 15th inst. Sheriff McKenny passed up the river a few days since to protect a hundred stand of arms for the same purpose. We hope our friends down the creek are not badly scared. If they are, the valiant Muscatine Dragoons are at their service.

The foregoing appears in the B'olington Herald, and so far as Burlington is concerned, "protection" from her own cowards, and woodchucks may be necessary, but as to the "Mormons," it is all gammon.

The story puts us in mind of the old adage, the Deil a-shirring a hog—gr. at cry and little wool. The Hodges are not Mormons, and no Mormon has ever impeded the execution of justice, in the line of their duty, as we have learned, nor will they. So button up your clothes Sammies, and run into the house: them sheep n't dogs they want life.

From the Illinois State Register.

FATAL AFFRAY AT CARTHAGE.
A most unfortunate affray occurred in Carthage, on the 25th ult., between Mr. R. Deming, sheriff of Hancock county, and a Dr. Marshall of Warsaw, which resulted in the death of the latter. The following letter, detailing the particulars, is from a gentleman of excellent character:

Carthage, June 29th 1845.
I am at unfortunate affray occurred in Carthage, on the 25th ult., between Mr. R. Deming, sheriff of Hancock county, and a Dr. Marshall of Warsaw, which resulted in the death of the latter. The following letter, detailing the particulars, is from a gentleman of excellent character:

It seems that the sheriff had sold a tract of land in the early part of June, for taxes. Mr. Marshall had purchased it. The owner of the land had paid the taxes and had the receipt of the deputy sheriff, but without description so different from that under which it had been sold, as to raise the question of their identity. Mr. Marshall demanded that the sheriff instantly order on the record of the clerk the error of the sale, when the sheriff replied, that he believed the land sold in error, but begged the Dr. would wait a moment—that he had sent for his books—that they would be there in a moment, and that he would ascertain the source and correct the error. The Dr. became greatly enraged, and used the most insulting and abusive language to the sheriff, who replied to him "Dr. don't get into a flurry, or why this flurry, Dr.?"

The Dr. upon this gave signs of violence, whereupon the sheriff withdrew several steps, saying, "Dr., don't you despair now, and lend me your umbrella against a table." While straightening himself from this last act, the Dr. sprang forward, and seized him by the collar, and near the throat. It was, however, testified by two or three of the witnesses on the part of the prosecution, that the sheriff advanced towards the Dr. and seized him by the collar at the time of the assault. But this was proved to the contrary by other witnesses, and every circumstance is against it. The Doctor was a man of uncommon physical powers. The sheriff was forced back across the room, the Dr. still retaining his grasp, and the sheriff, with his left hand raised, as if to keep him off, and his right hand resting on or near his hip. He was thus forced, first, against one, and then against another, and then through it. The Dr. meantime pressing on the sheriff with both hands clenched in his collar, and the sheriff's left arm extended and holding to the Doctor's arm, when the sheriff discharged a pistol at the Doctor, who instantly relinquished his grasp, and said "I am a dead man."

The sheriff at once gave up his pistol, (Allen's pat. six shooter), and surrendered himself to the coroner who was there. He was immediately put under guard in one of the offices of the court house.

There were ten or fifteen persons present in the clerk's office at the time of the occurrence, and many about the court house collected to attend the trial of those indicted for the murder of Hiram Smith. A great majority of those were the bitter enemies of the sheriff—occasioned by his strict adherence to the principles of law and order. Dr. Marshall died in half an hour. A coroner's inquest was held on his body. The sheriff then requested the court to order the summoning of a grand jury, which was done, and on the next day, a bill was found against him for murder.

There was a general impression that it was determined to murder the sheriff, that night. The guard placed over him by the coroner treated him with the utmost severity. The first night, they tried to detain him in the court house, contrary to the order of the court. He was denied the privilege of seeing his wife and family, or of speaking to a friend or his counsel, except under the inspection of the officer of the guard. After his commitment to the jail, he was not at first permitted to speak to his wife, except in the presence of a sentinel. He was held to bail in the sum of $5,000, and discharged from custody on Saturday morning.

Immediately after his self-surrender, to the coroner, he addressed the following notice to his fellow citizens, but which was not quite circulated, from the numerous mistakes in its publication:

NOTICE.

To the citizens of Hancock county.
An act of manly and unimpaired nature has overwhelmed me with distress, and now prompts me to call upon you in this public manner to extend to me, and the consideration of this deplorable event, that calmness, which our unhappy county difficulties may make desirable for each of you. I desire not to appeal to you for sympathy, or even to abate, for myself the pang of those whose hostility is perhaps honestly felt, and which the unhappy death, by my hands, of a man once deserving sympathy and popular esteem, will naturally tend to inflame.

While I more deeply deplore this event than either of you possibly can, I should do injustice to myself, and those endeared to me more than life, if I withheld from you the assurance, that I feel sustained by the conviction of my justification in this act of self defence. I do not wish by this address, even to controvert the statements prejudicial to the truth that I throw myself upon my God and country for justice, and whatever may be the result, I shall cheerfully and unreservedly submit to the verdict.

MILNER R. DEMING.

Carthage, June 24, 1845.

After Gen. D's discharge from custody, he briefly addressed the audience, saying he felt it due to the people who had conferred it, as well as to the respectability of the trust, and to himself in his present unhappy relations to the court and public, to say he did not seek the influence of office to aid him in his coming trial, and that he should resign the office of sheriff as soon as his business and obligations to the State would permit, and which would be in a short time.

Dr. Marshall and the sheriff were both old citizens of the county. The Dr. had filled the office of magistrate, and clerk of the county court. He was remarkably independent in his opinions, and honest and punctilious in his business transactions. But with all these estimable traits, I believe he was every where known to have been subject to the most violent and uncontrollable passions. He was a widower and without children. He was wealthy, and though he mingled little in society, he was generally esteemed.

Gen. Deming's position before the public for the last year has been one of unspeakable trial, vexation and responsibility, that needed a patience, prudence, energy and forbearance that few men possess to so great an extent as himself. He has been assailed by enemies who have threatened to commit indignities of the most glaring kind upon his person for attempting to execute official duties when placed in his hands, and yet his worst enemies have never been able to establish any thing against his character in a moral or religious point of view, excepting that he is a Jack Mormon, or a man opposed to illegal violence against the Mormons.

No man ever received more in ults with more forbearance—the forbearance of religious principle, not that of fear. Courteous to all, he never provoked a quarrel. He has lost no friends, who were his friends before.

Time forbids a longer communication at present, though I feel that there are some reflections that ought to be set forth, who, in Hancock county, have violated law, and compelled peaceable citizens to bear secret arms to protect their persons and lives from violence.

These reflections and remarks have originated from my own observations in Hancock, and I submit them to you for publication as

ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

SIX DAYS LATER FROM TEXAS.

By the steamship New York Capt. Wright, which arrived yesterday afternoon, we have received dates from Galveston to the 3d inst. The New York had a pleasant passage and brought over twenty-five passengers.

Mr. Henderson, U. S. Consul at Galveston, and Judge Baldwin of New York, were among the passengers.

Soon after the arrival of the New York, a letter from a source entitled to the most unlimited confidence was placed at our disposal. From it we make the following extracts:

Look out for war with Mexico. Since Elliot's arrival from Vera Cruz, this is all the talk. It is said, too, that Mexico is concentrating a large force on the Rio Grande, which is to move against Texas if she rejects Elliot's treaty. I believe war will be the effect of the steps recently taken by the British government.

Elliot has a set of proposals for the independence of Texas, if she rejects annexation. These proposals will be rejected. Of course the intimation of war is thrown back upon Mexico, but in my judgment Elliot will contrive to send secret intelligence to the Mexicans on the Rio Grande, and that they will not wait for new orders from the Mexican capital.

The U. S. Squadron, under command of Com. Stockton, were lying off Galveston when the New York left. No British ships of war were in sight.

Captain Elliott, the British Charge d'Affaires, had arrived in Galveston with a treaty from Mexico, acknowledging the independence of Texas, and set out for the seat of government immediately. The Galveston News on this subject says: The purport of the treaty according to Elliott's statement to a friend of ours, is simply the recognition of our independence, without regard to limits, upon condition that we refuse annexation to the United States, leaving us at liberty to be annexed to England or any government, and comments very strongly against the meddling of this official Minister.

On the other hand the official organ denies that President Jones has sent or authorized any person to go to Mexico and treat for the independence of Texas, and affirms that he is favorable to the measure of annexation.

Most Unfortunate! One of the most worthy citizens (says the Pittsburgh Post) has been burnt out no less than four times within the last two months. He was one of the many hundreds who suffered on the 10th of April; on the 27th of May he was again caught in the fire on 7th street; from there he moved to Brighton, Beaver Co., where his ill luck appeared to follow him, and he was again burnt out by the fire that occurred in that place. Since then he has been purchasing things to make another start, and we understand they were all consumed in one of the buildings that was burnt on Penn street on the morning of the 10th inst.

More Lynch Law in Montreal.—With grief and indignation we have to record another of the cowardly and ferocious assaults to which Protestant ministers, Sunday school teachers, and religious tract distributors are constantly exposed in this city, when peaceably pursuing their benevolent labors in the open air. On Sunday afternoon, the 25th ult., a respectable young man (a worthy member of the Wesleyan Church) was engaged at the upper end of Griffintown in distributing tracts and inviting children to attend a Sunday School. While calmly speaking to some boys who were pitching coppers, a man, or rather a monster in the shape and form of a man, came behind him and felled him to the ground by a blow from a loaded gun, (which he afterwards fired over him) breaking his jaw bone and knocking out several of his teeth. He was then most brutally treated while lying upon the ground, and left in a state of insensibility.

Art of Floating. Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind the back and turn the face toward the zenith, may float at ease, and in perfect safety, in tolerably still water; and sleep there, no matter how long. If not knowing how to swim, you would escape drowning, when you find yourself in deep water, you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher; let your mouth and nose, not the top part of your heavy head; be the highest part of you, and you are safe; but thrust up one of your bony hands, and down you go; turning up the hand tips over the pitcher. Having had the happiness to prevent one or two drownings, by this simple instruction, says an exchange, we publish it for the benefit of all who either love aquatic sports, or dread them.

The great mound at Grave Creek, twelve miles below Wheeling, is described in a letter from Professor Locke to the Cincinnati Gazette. It was thoroughly opened several years since, and a great quantity of curious relics were discovered. Its entire height was about sixty feet.

The most extraordinary discovery was that of a small stone inscribed with characters, copied by the Antiquarian Society of Copenhagen to be Runia. The works originally prepared to facilitate access to the mound, are quite decayed, and the mound itself is threatened with destruction. On entering the gallery which has been built, Professor L. says he came to where the earth supports itself, exhibiting a naked and perfect section of the earth work, showing that the natural surface of the original soil on which the mound was built, was slightly raised. Professor L. states, as the most interesting observation made, that the section above this line of soil shows the separate loads of earth as they had been successively carried up and poured down by the mound builders of old, in a kind of mottled marbling.

how long. If not knowing how to swim, you would escape drowning, when you find yourself in deep water, you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher; let your mouth and nose, not the top part of your heavy head; be the highest part of you, and you are safe; but thrust up one of your bony hands, and down you go; turning up the hand tips over the pitcher. Having had the happiness to prevent one or two drownings, by this simple instruction, says an exchange, we publish it for the benefit of all who either love aquatic sports, or dread them.

The great mound at Grave Creek, twelve miles below Wheeling, is described in a letter from Professor Locke to the Cincinnati Gazette. It was thoroughly opened several years since, and a great quantity of curious relics were discovered. Its entire height was about sixty feet.

The most extraordinary discovery was that of a small stone inscribed with characters, copied by the Antiquarian Society of Copenhagen to be Runia. The works originally prepared to facilitate access to the mound, are quite decayed, and the mound itself is threatened with destruction. On entering the gallery which has been built, Professor L. says he came to where the earth supports itself, exhibiting a naked and perfect section of the earth work, showing that the natural surface of the original soil on which the mound was built, was slightly raised. Professor L. states, as the most interesting observation made, that the section above this line of soil shows the separate loads of earth as they had been successively carried up and poured down by the mound builders of old, in a kind of mottled marbling.

The Houston Star of the 24th inst., seems to have received intelligence, which if well founded, seems to be of much importance. We extract from that paper the following:

Within a few days we have received intelligence from a respectable source that these troops have approached the Rio Grande, and that it is now currently reported in Mexico that they are to be stationed east of that river. It is stated that the Mexican government is determined to take possession of the country west of the Nueces, and when the measure of Annexation is consummated, she will appeal to the world and declare that as the territory west of the Nueces is in possession of her troops the claim of Texas to it is void. Information has recently been received at Corpus Christi that indicates that Mexico is playing a deep scheme of treachery. We are happy to state here that arrangements have been made to obtain accurate information of the movements of the Mexican forces, and it is believed that our Government will be prepared to repel any incursion of Mexican troops into the disputed territory.

Our space obliges us to omit several items of a local nature.

New Invention—Wonderful Engine.—A London paper says that "a wonderful engine has been lately constructed by Professor Reinagle, who is securing patents in every civilized country on the earth. The power, which is self-produced in the engine, is obtained from condensed air, which, though easily manageable, begets an immense force; the present engine, which stands on a space not exceeding two feet square, having a power equal to five hundred and sixty-eight horses. For pumping out of mines, it is gravely proposed to use a 10,000 or 20,000 horse power, in order to do the work promptly. It is stated that, with the present small engine, two hundred and twenty tons can be propelled at a rate of twenty-five to thirty miles per hour. The description of the action of the machine is very vague, but it is said that several very eminent and scientific men have examined it and expressed their astonishment. Professor Faraday having seen the drawing and heard the theory explained, complimented the inventor by declaring, that he had discovered perpetual motion of the most terrific description.

What the North does for the South.—The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, makes the following amusing summary of the means which the North furnishes to the South:

They build our houses, they adorn them with every comfort and convenience of which we have ever conjectured. They educate our children, and cover our nakedness from head to foot, with hats and shoes, coats and shirts; we eat their flour, cheese, butter, apples, codfish, potatoes, peckles, pork and onions; we feed our cattle with their hay, drive their horses in their harness to their hay, drive their horses in their carriages with their whips; we walk with their sticks, ride on their saddles, write on their paper, wash with their soap, scrub with their brushes, sweep with their brooms, milk in their pails, cook in their pots, strike with their hammers, blow with their bellows, cut with their axes, sow with their seed, reap with their hooks, pull with their leather, whitewash with their lime, paint with their paint, march by their tunes, road by their lights, drink their Congress water and rum, smoke their segars; and last and best of all these blessings, we marry their pretty girls, who make the best of wives.

Married on the 18th May, by Elder Wm. O. Clark, Mr. Ezra T. Clark to Miss Mary Stevenson. Also by the same, on the 20th of June, Mr. Henry C. Markham to Miss Hannah Remington. Also by the same, on the 29th of June, Mr. Job Bailey, to Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, all of Lee Co. I. T., besides others too numerous to mention. n. k.

NOTICE. The Seventeenth Quorum of Seventies will meet on Sunday the 20th inst. at 8 o'clock A. M. with the general conference, at the Seventies Hall. General attendance is desired. D. M. REFSHER, S. n. Prest. July 13th 1845.

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN. HARNDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends, can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans. Also, those wishing to rem't money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from one pound sterling upwards, all the particulars of which, can be ascertained by enquiring of JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent, Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office, Nauvoo, May 1845—4-1

Anti-Ring War.—We have a slip from the Scholastic Patriot, dated Monday, in which we find a regular journal of the campaign of Under Sheriff Barker, and his guard of 90 men, who left that village on the 10th under the command of Col. A. Matrice. The field of their operations was Scott's Prairie, which includes within its boundaries The Fly, or Fly Summit in the town of Broome. On Wednesday the Sheriff succeeded in serving one or two writs in the neighborhood, but the guard, on their way back to head quarters, were fired upon twice by some person out of sight. Several of them discharged their guns in the direction of the fire. On Thursday, while the guard had halted near a field, where the Sheriff had a writ to serve, the report of five or six rifles was heard. Two or three balls struck the ground but a few feet from A. G. Miller, one of the guard and about two rods in front of the line. About 40 guns were immediately fired in the direction of the smoke then visible, and Col. Matrice ordered a file of ten men to march to the right and ten to the left to a line of woods as an advance guard in case of an attack. The Sheriff in the mean time having executed his process, the detachment was recalled. At the house of Abraham Vought the guard were hospitably treated, and the Sheriff adjusted his business with Mr. Y., with out difficulty.

On Friday morning the guard left Livingstonville about 8 o'clock, to go on a hill about six miles distant. After having proceeded about a mile, and when a little above Cherrytree's stone store, about forty shots were fired upon them. The guard were in the road and near a stone wall fence, which protected them from the shots of their assailants, having on the first report of guns dropped behind the wall. This circumstance, no doubt, saved the lives of many of the number. A portion of the guard immediately after the report of the first gun, discharged their guns in the direction of their enemies' fire, and a general rush was made for the woods towards their assailants. The hill they had to climb was steep, abounding with precipices and rocks. This gave their assailants time to escape or hide themselves among the rocks and thick underbrush. Col. Matrice, with a detachment now proceeded to scour the woods, but met with no success, except to discover a few tracks of men, one of which being peculiar, was traced to the house of Cornelius Dicker. They searched his house, but found no one. Mrs. D. said that six men had just passed there with guns—Mr. D. was not at home.

The Sheriff, during this time had proceeded with his detachment up the Mace Road, to the house of Anthony Snyder, on searching which he found two men behind a door, whom he took into custody. The men taken, were two of six men, who had followed the guard about six miles the day previous. They confessed they had been secreted in the garret of the house in which they were taken, only a few moments previous to their discovery. They said they had been peeling bark—but in the pain of the hand of one of them, and under his eye, were discovered grains of powder, which, owing to the moisture of the skin, adhered to it. Their names are Couchman and Cook.—An examination of said persons, conducted by P. S. D. north, Esq. District Attorney, was commenced in Scholastic on Saturday before John G. Beard, Jr. Esq. and was resumed on Monday.

GUANO.

The Cape Town Gazette of the 4th of April, contains the following item:—

We are happy to announce that a new island of guano, called Sala Island, has just been surveyed in False Bay; the quantity upon it is estimated at not less than 10,000 tons, and that a stage 150 feet long is to be forthwith erected by government.

Death from Tobacco.—A little boy of six years old, a son of Mr. Lewis Cobbett, of West Dedham, Mass., came to his death last week, in consequence of taking some tobacco into his stomach. The child went to the store of Mr. Jason Ellis, Jr., in that place, and asked the clerk, a boy of the name of Hank, for some kind of confectionary. He was told they had no sugar plums, but he could have some tobacco. The child replied, that tobacco would make him sick. The clerk argued that it would not, and took a cracker, and put on some butter and molasses, and tobacco and succeeded in some way in getting it down the child. The little fellow was taken vomiting soon after, and continued so to do for several days and at length went into fits, and finally died on Thursday, the 5th inst. Mr. Ellis promptly discharged the clerk as soon as it was known that he had committed the infamous transaction.—Whether any further notice will be taken of it, we know not, but certainly if there is any punishment that can reach him, he should not be permitted to escape "unwhipt of justice."

Married on the 18th May, by Elder Wm. O. Clark, Mr. Ezra T. Clark to Miss Mary Stevenson. Also by the same, on the 20th of June, Mr. Henry C. Markham to Miss Hannah Remington. Also by the same, on the 29th of June, Mr. Job Bailey, to Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, all of Lee Co. I. T., besides others too numerous to mention. n. k.

NOTICE. The Seventeenth Quorum of Seventies will meet on Sunday the 20th inst. at 8 o'clock A. M. with the general conference, at the Seventies Hall. General attendance is desired. D. M. REFSHER, S. n. Prest. July 13th 1845.

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN. HARNDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends, can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans. Also, those wishing to rem't money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from one pound sterling upwards, all the particulars of which, can be ascertained by enquiring of JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent, Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office, Nauvoo, May 1845—4-1

GRAND ZOOLOGICAL EXHIBITION.

The Proprietors respectfully announce that their Extensive Collection of LIVING WILD ANIMALS will be exhibited at Nauvoo, on Monday the 21st of July.

This Establishment embraces the interest of the New York and Philadelphia Zoological Institutes, making it the LARGEST OF THE KIND NOW IN THE U. STATES.

The famous Daboise will appear with his trained animals in some of the most beautiful scenes, and among other interesting performances, will harness and drive a large NUMIDIAN LION. On the entrance into Nauvoo, on the 21st, TWO LARGE ELEPHANTS will be harnessed to the Band Car and precede the whole retinue of Horses, Wagons, &c., to the place of exhibition. Doors open at 1 o'clock, A. M. Admission 50 cents—Children, ten years of age, half price. July 9, 1845. 10-2w.

COOK & PETERSON, DEALERS in Hides, Leather and Findings, No. 71, Main Street St. Louis. July 9-11 6m

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, BOOT, AND SHOE MANUFACTORY. The Association is now prepared to supply the citizens with Boots, Shoes, Saddles and Harness upon the short at notice and the most reasonable prices. We invite a call from those who want to purchase such articles, because we will not be undersold by any shop in the city when the cash is presented. The fact is we cannot be undersold because we manufacture our own leather and that of the best quality, and the workmen both in the tannery and shoe shop, are the best in the western country, being principally from the Eastern and Southern cities and from Great Britain. We will pay the highest price for hides in leather, boots, shoes, harness, and cash occasionally. Remember the counsel to keep your hides in Nauvoo. We will tan hides on shares. Gen'l depot, three blocks east of the Temple, Mulholland street.

SAMUEL MULLINER, President. ZENAS H. GURLEY, Superintendent of the Tannery. July 1, 1845-9m

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NAUVOO AND VICINITY. SHOES! SHOES!! SHOES!!! The subscribers having recently opened a shop for the above business; would respectfully solicit, of the inhabitants of Nauvoo and vicinity, a share of their patronage. They for the present, design to confine themselves exclusively to the Manufacturing of Ladies and Children's shoes, and having had long experience in said business, have no hesitation in recommending their work as being as good as the best. They have on hand the best assortment of Morocco and Kid that has ever been in the city—prices moderate, and a reasonable deduction for cash. Their stand may be found corner of Parley and Warsaw streets, about one-half mile east of the Mansion. Also, an assortment of Leather, Coll skins, Goat skins, Lining &c., &c., for sale, on reasonable terms. MEAD & RAGER. Nauvoo, June 16th, 1845-8-3m

TINNER'S ASSOCIATION. THE undersigned having associated themselves together for the purpose of carrying on the tin-plate and sheet-iron business in all its various branches, have taken the shop formerly occupied by Dustin Amy, corner of Young and Mulholland streets, where they are prepared to manufacture tin and sheet-iron ware at wholesale or retail, as low as can be bought in St. Louis or elsewhere. N. B. For the accommodation of persons living on the flat, we have deposited a quantity of tin-ware at Messrs Oakley's store, where those in want can be accommodated at all times. PHILIP B. LEWIS, DUSTIN AMY, JOHN MILLS. Nauvoo, June 25, 1845-8-1

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor, WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop, a few rods south of the Temple, near the New York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coats cut and made for $1.00. Pants and vests " " 50. Coats cut for " 25. Pants and vests for " 12 1/2 and other work in proportion. Ladies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms. N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style. June 11, 1845. 6-3m

SEE HERE. 20 TON of hay, wanted immediately, at the Nauvoo coach and carriage manufacturing association, for which good pay will be given. Nauvoo, March 25-45-3m

TAILOR'S ASSOCIATION. WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis's store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley sts., two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells. This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms. N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be held for the debts of said association. JOHN W. BELL, Pres. C. B. THOMPSON, Counsellors. WM. P. MCINTIRE, ROBT. RUSSEL, Superintend. J. H. GLINES, depts. WM. K. PARKER, ALEXANDER MULLINER, C. RELLARBY, WM. STRINGHAM, JABEZ BOTSFORD, D. CHAPMAN. Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845-47-3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS. WE offer to our friends in Illinois as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits. WEBB & SMITH. Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo. Country merchants will do well to give us a call. Feb. 7, 49tf W. & S.

NOTARY PUBLIC. THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street. W. W. PHELPS. April 7 1845-49

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING. THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style. Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere. M. BROWN. No. 52 Main street, St. Louis. April 8th, 50-3m

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP. D. and J. M. WOOLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened in the house formerly known as the NAUVOO SEED STORE now JOSEPH CITY STORE, situated on Mulholland Street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles as essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Crockery. In short all things that are daily wanted. In our line of business, we have been engaged in the business, for years, we flatter ourselves competent to give satisfaction in quality, and also in price, we would invite the inhabitants of the city of Joseph and its vicinity to call and see. Country produce will be received for goods. May 27th 1845-4-3m

NOTICE. FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of LEVISTEWART. Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-32-1f

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION. THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts, Nappies, Mugs, &c., which will be sold wholesale and retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Misses' app'l, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufories in England. ELIJAH K. FULLER, President. RICHARD STEELE, WILLIAM BOX, RICHARD RALPHS, THOMAS RALPHS, ALFRED CORDON, JOHN BOURNE Clerk, June 3th 1845-5-6m

LIME, LIME! THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce; at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-3 of a mile north of Young street. JOSEPH OWENS, THOS. MENDENHALL. April 13th, 50-3m

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS. ATTENTION! GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange lands or farms in Hancock county, for lands or farms in other parts of this State, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a minutely written description of them, post paid, with their real cash value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion. Also members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this county, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact his business. No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a moderate or reasonable compensation will be expected. May 25th, 1845-13m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS. BRETHREN wishing to purchase Land, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's or the Mansion. WILLIAM SMITH. ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and other offices, in the interior of this county, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city. May 6th, 1845-1tf

COOPERS ASSOCIATION. THE Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best of workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call. Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Herum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times. We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest Western prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above. Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association. WM. EARL, President. HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counsellor. CYRUS WINGATE, HUGH LYLE, Superintendant. H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer. HENRY STANDAAGE, Secretary. May 18, 1845-3-3m

PHOTOGRAPHY. GEO. D. WAGG, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Photography in "Fifteen Lessons," which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar. May 23, 1845-1tf

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WAREHOUSE, general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo. The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices. Call and try. Ere you buy. Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves. STRACHAN & NICHOLSON. April 7, 49tf

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE. ALL persons having claims against the estate of Joseph R. Ball, deceased, are hereby notified and requested to present the same for settlement to the undersigned in the City of Nauvoo, or to the Probate Justice for Hancock Co. within nine months from the date of this notice, in order that the amount of claims against said estate may be known, preliminary to their liquidation if the estate be solvent. SAMUEL BENT, Administrator. June 20, 1845-9-4w

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION. Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association, on Water Street in the City of Nauvoo, opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's store, the following articles to wit: Coaches, Omnibuses, Chaises, Caddies, Cabs, Broughams, Politanes and Buggies, Wagons, Horses, Harnesses, Trapping Wagons, and one Horse Lumber Wagon, (ok and Horse Carriage), Sleighs, Icebergs, Pitch Forks, Rakes, Carding Machines, and Trussing Machines, Horse Powers, Railroad Cars and many other articles too numerous to mention. All orders may be sent by mail, or in any manner desired. GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq., Pres't. of the Association.

J. H. & W. RALSTON, Attorneys & Counsellors at Law. WILL attend to all business in this profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts. W. H. Ralston's Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois. Warsaw, May 12th, 1845-3-1f

TURNING & CABINET MAKING. THE subscriber, having returned to this city is prepared to manufacture all kinds of furniture of the best quality, and on the most reasonable terms, as cheap as the same articles can be purchased in St. Louis. He is also prepared to do all kinds of turning in the most fashionable style, and having had an extensive experience in both the above branches, he flatters himself that he will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with their custom. To his friends in the surrounding country who have heretofore patronized him; he would state, that he should feel obliged by a continuation of their favors. Shop on Main street, a few doors below the post office. JAMES BIRD. Nauvoo, June 4, 1845-5-3m

NAUVOO NEIGHBOR.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 11.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, July 16, 1845.

Whole Number 167.

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY.

JOHN TAYLOR,
Editor and Proprietor.
At the corner of Main and Kinball Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 annually in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, 37 1/2 cents.
Every subsequent insertion, 25 cents.
A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor.) POST PAID, to receive attention.

POETRY.

For the Nauvoo Neighbor.

Ye saints of God on whom all earth may gaze,
Ye gospel heralds of the latter day;
Well may ye sing your hymns of joy and praise;
Well, in each hour of life ye may say,
Hail! tribulation, persecutor, hail!
To us a token of salvation show;
Before thy shafts, our faith shall never fail.
We bow to heaven, to thee we never shall bow,
Though persecutions spill the martyr's blood;
Till earth is crimsoned with the vital flood;
Each drop, by vile oppression basely shed,
Shall call forth souls to fill the martyr's stead.
The plan of those who in their maker's cause
Died, unprotected by their country's laws;
Thousands shall leap with joyful zeal to fill,
Glorious to him, and do their master's will.
The blood of saints which cries from earth to heaven,
Shall summon myriads to the cause of God;
Who, when his prophet's unto death are given,
Shall tread the path our slaughter'd brethren trod.
Your blood, ye self-devoted martyrs' slain,
Shall freely shed, has not been in vain;
Each drop, a fearless champion shall inspire,
Who will contend for truth, in blood or fire.
The wicked toy the saints and prophets slay,
Their rights invade, or charters wreathe away;
But nought, the eternal work of God can stay;
This is above legislative control.
This, as a mighty flood, o'er earth shall roll,
While loftiest empires, humbled all their pride,
Have, as the hands who ruled them, fallen and died.
But who, those clouds of war can ever disperse?
Who can remove the murderer's curse?
Or what efface the memory of that crime,
Which haunts the soul through all succeeding time,
Sharpening those arrows conscience aims as well,
Filling the guilty soul on earth with hell?
On! who would live beyond the law's control,
With the dark crime of murder on the soul;
Or who would wish in worldly fame to rise,
Stung by the torturing worm that never dies;
While helpless widows' never ceasing sighs,
And orphaned and plaintive cries,
Rise to the throne of Him who rules the skies;
While to high heaven they raise their tearful eyes;
Calling on God for vengeance on the men
Who trod
Beneath their feet, the laws of man and God!
Ye s'w the prophets of the God Most High
Condemned the guileless, without law, to die,
Doming yourselves to everlasting shame;
And by the deed immortalized their name.
Which still shall live, age after age the same.
Embodied on the proudest page of fame!
God's work now hastens swifter than before,
Because is onward, still, forevermore.
Rise, infant city of the mighty west!
The first of the Almighty bids thee rise;
Extend thy glory, bid the sun be blest,
Thou highly favored, blest Columbia's skies!
If thou oppress thee, thy oppressor vain.
Thy rising greatness, none can overthrow;
Though earth beholds thee now with proud disdain,
Thy spreading grandeur, all the world shall know.
Thy streets will soon be filled from every clime;
E'en distant nations now thy dwelling tread,
Hastening to thee, to learn the truths sub-
lime,
Which God's decree, throughout the world shall spread.
Gird on your armor, every chosen one,
The gospel of the kingdom to restore,
Not erst it from you till the work is done,
Which bids great Babel fall to rise no more.
Heaven bless thee ever, beautiful Nauvoo;
And may thy God, most holy, just, and true,
With power divine, his servants all endue;
Till his true gospel is through earth restored.
City of Joseph, June 21st, 1845. A. L. B.

For the Nauvoo Neighbor.

Ye saints of God on whom all earth may gaze,
Ye gospel heralds of the latter day;
Well may ye sing your hymns of joy and praise;
Well, in each hour of life ye may say,
Hail! tribulation, persecutor, hail!
To us a token of salvation show;
Before thy shafts, our faith shall never fail.
We bow to heaven, to thee we never shall bow,
Though persecutions spill the martyr's blood;
Till earth is crimsoned with the vital flood;
Each drop, by vile oppression basely shed,
Shall call forth souls to fill the martyr's stead.
The plan of those who in their maker's cause
Died, unprotected by their country's laws;
Thousands shall leap with joyful zeal to fill,
Glorious to him, and do their master's will.
The blood of saints which cries from earth to heaven,
Shall summon myriads to the cause of God;
Who, when his prophet's unto death are given,
Shall tread the path our slaughter'd brethren trod.
Your blood, ye self-devoted martyrs' slain,
Shall freely shed, has not been in vain;
Each drop, a fearless champion shall inspire,
Who will contend for truth, in blood or fire.
The wicked toy the saints and prophets slay,
Their rights invade, or charters wreathe away;
But nought, the eternal work of God can stay;
This is above legislative control.
This, as a mighty flood, o'er earth shall roll,
While loftiest empires, humbled all their pride,
Have, as the hands who ruled them, fallen and died.
But who, those clouds of war can ever disperse?
Who can remove the murderer's curse?
Or what efface the memory of that crime,
Which haunts the soul through all succeeding time,
Sharpening those arrows conscience aims as well,
Filling the guilty soul on earth with hell?
On! who would live beyond the law's control,
With the dark crime of murder on the soul;
Or who would wish in worldly fame to rise,
Stung by the torturing worm that never dies;
While helpless widows' never ceasing sighs,
And orphaned and plaintive cries,
Rise to the throne of Him who rules the skies;
While to high heaven they raise their tearful eyes;
Calling on God for vengeance on the men
Who trod
Beneath their feet, the laws of man and God!
Ye s'w the prophets of the God Most High
Condemned the guileless, without law, to die,
Doming yourselves to everlasting shame;
And by the deed immortalized their name.
Which still shall live, age after age the same.
Embodied on the proudest page of fame!
God's work now hastens swifter than before,
Because is onward, still, forevermore.
Rise, infant city of the mighty west!
The first of the Almighty bids thee rise;
Extend thy glory, bid the sun be blest,
Thou highly favored, blest Columbia's skies!
If thou oppress thee, thy oppressor vain.
Thy rising greatness, none can overthrow;
Though earth beholds thee now with proud disdain,
Thy spreading grandeur, all the world shall know.
Thy streets will soon be filled from every clime;
E'en distant nations now thy dwelling tread,
Hastening to thee, to learn the truths sub-
lime,
Which God's decree, throughout the world shall spread.

For the Nauvoo Neighbor.

Ye saints of God on whom all earth may gaze,
Ye gospel heralds of the latter day;
Well may ye sing your hymns of joy and praise;
Well, in each hour of life ye may say,
Hail! tribulation, persecutor, hail!
To us a token of salvation show;
Before thy shafts, our faith shall never fail.
We bow to heaven, to thee we never shall bow,
Though persecutions spill the martyr's blood;
Till earth is crimsoned with the vital flood;
Each drop, by vile oppression basely shed,
Shall call forth souls to fill the martyr's stead.
The plan of those who in their maker's cause
Died, unprotected by their country's laws;
Thousands shall leap with joyful zeal to fill,
Glorious to him, and do their master's will.
The blood of saints which cries from earth to heaven,
Shall summon myriads to the cause of God;
Who, when his prophet's unto death are given,
Shall tread the path our slaughter'd brethren trod.
Your blood, ye self-devoted martyrs' slain,
Shall freely shed, has not been in vain;
Each drop, a fearless champion shall inspire,
Who will contend for truth, in blood or fire.
The wicked toy the saints and prophets slay,
Their rights invade, or charters wreathe away;
But nought, the eternal work of God can stay;
This is above legislative control.
This, as a mighty flood, o'er earth shall roll,
While loftiest empires, humbled all their pride,
Have, as the hands who ruled them, fallen and died.
But who, those clouds of war can ever disperse?
Who can remove the murderer's curse?
Or what efface the memory of that crime,
Which haunts the soul through all succeeding time,
Sharpening those arrows conscience aims as well,
Filling the guilty soul on earth with hell?
On! who would live beyond the law's control,
With the dark crime of murder on the soul;
Or who would wish in worldly fame to rise,
Stung by the torturing worm that never dies;
While helpless widows' never ceasing sighs,
And orphaned and plaintive cries,
Rise to the throne of Him who rules the skies;
While to high heaven they raise their tearful eyes;
Calling on God for vengeance on the men
Who trod
Beneath their feet, the laws of man and God!
Ye s'w the prophets of the God Most High
Condemned the guileless, without law, to die,
Doming yourselves to everlasting shame;
And by the deed immortalized their name.
Which still shall live, age after age the same.
Embodied on the proudest page of fame!
God's work now hastens swifter than before,
Because is onward, still, forevermore.
Rise, infant city of the mighty west!
The first of the Almighty bids thee rise;
Extend thy glory, bid the sun be blest,
Thou highly favored, blest Columbia's skies!
If thou oppress thee, thy oppressor vain.
Thy rising greatness, none can overthrow;
Though earth beholds thee now with proud disdain,
Thy spreading grandeur, all the world shall know.
Thy streets will soon be filled from every clime;
E'en distant nations now thy dwelling tread,
Hastening to thee, to learn the truths sub-
lime,
Which God's decree, throughout the world shall spread.

For the Nauvoo Neighbor.

Ye saints of God on whom all earth may gaze,
Ye gospel heralds of the latter day;
Well may ye sing your hymns of joy and praise;
Well, in each hour of life ye may say,
Hail! tribulation, persecutor, hail!
To us a token of salvation show;
Before thy shafts, our faith shall never fail.
We bow to heaven, to thee we never shall bow,
Though persecutions spill the martyr's blood;
Till earth is crimsoned with the vital flood;
Each drop, by vile oppression basely shed,
Shall call forth souls to fill the martyr's stead.
The plan of those who in their maker's cause
Died, unprotected by their country's laws;
Thousands shall leap with joyful zeal to fill,
Glorious to him, and do their master's will.
The blood of saints which cries from earth to heaven,
Shall summon myriads to the cause of God;
Who, when his prophet's unto death are given,
Shall tread the path our slaughter'd brethren trod.
Your blood, ye self-devoted martyrs' slain,
Shall freely shed, has not been in vain;
Each drop, a fearless champion shall inspire,
Who will contend for truth, in blood or fire.
The wicked toy the saints and prophets slay,
Their rights invade, or charters wreathe away;
But nought, the eternal work of God can stay;
This is above legislative control.
This, as a mighty flood, o'er earth shall roll,
While loftiest empires, humbled all their pride,
Have, as the hands who ruled them, fallen and died.
But who, those clouds of war can ever disperse?
Who can remove the murderer's curse?
Or what efface the memory of that crime,
Which haunts the soul through all succeeding time,
Sharpening those arrows conscience aims as well,
Filling the guilty soul on earth with hell?
On! who would live beyond the law's control,
With the dark crime of murder on the soul;
Or who would wish in worldly fame to rise,
Stung by the torturing worm that never dies;
While helpless widows' never ceasing sighs,
And orphaned and plaintive cries,
Rise to the throne of Him who rules the skies;
While to high heaven they raise their tearful eyes;
Calling on God for vengeance on the men
Who trod
Beneath their feet, the laws of man and God!
Ye s'w the prophets of the God Most High
Condemned the guileless, without law, to die,
Doming yourselves to everlasting shame;
And by the deed immortalized their name.
Which still shall live, age after age the same.
Embodied on the proudest page of fame!
God's work now hastens swifter than before,
Because is onward, still, forevermore.
Rise, infant city of the mighty west!
The first of the Almighty bids thee rise;
Extend thy glory, bid the sun be blest,
Thou highly favored, blest Columbia's skies!
If thou oppress thee, thy oppressor vain.
Thy rising greatness, none can overthrow;
Though earth beholds thee now with proud disdain,
Thy spreading grandeur, all the world shall know.
Thy streets will soon be filled from every clime;
E'en distant nations now thy dwelling tread,
Hastening to thee, to learn the truths sub-
lime,
Which God's decree, throughout the world shall spread.

For he was a scandalous glutton,
To-morrow I'll kill my fat pig;
For I'm sure he'll make illigant motion;
So then he goes into the howl,
And he hangs the pig up by the heel,
Cut his throat all so neat with a shovell,
Saying, "this is the way to dress veal!"
One day Paddy Mulligan swore
He had scald his mouth to a blister,
While at dinner the morning before—
"And what was it wid?" asked his sister, Says Paddy, "just try for guers!"
"Oeb, I can't!"—then I'll tell ye, my swate O,
"Twas nothing at all more or less,
Than a raw roasted frozen potato."

WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?

Thy neighbor? It is he whom thou Hast power to aid and bless;
Whose aching heart and burning brow
Thy soothing hand may press.
Thy neighbor? 'Tis he fainting poor,
Whose eye with want is dim,
Whom hunger sends from door to door;
Go thou and succor him.
Thy neighbor? 'Tis the weary man,
Whose years are at the brim,
Bent low with sickness, cares, and pain;
Go thou and comfort him.
Thy neighbor? 'Tis the heart bereft
Of every earthly gem;
Widow and orphan he's left;
Go thou and shelter them.
Thy neighbor? Yonder tolling slave,
Fettered in thought and limb,
Whose thoughts are all beyond the grave;
Go thou and ransom him.
Whose thou meetest at a human form
Less favored than thine own.
Remember, 'tis thy neighbor worm,
Thy brother, or thy son.
O pass not, pass not, heedless by;
Perhaps thou canst redeem
The breaking heart from sin;
Go share thy lot with him.

Agricultural.

From the Southern Cultivator. CORN STALK SUGAR.

With regard to the culture, it is stated that corn should be planted in Brown-corn is commonly planted, very close in the row, probably a stalk every three or four inches. The tillage will be the same as for Brown-corn. When the young ears begin to appear, it is necessary to pick them off carefully, and to repeat the gathering as often as necessary, so as to prevent the formation of any grain, because, if grain be allowed to form, it takes all the sugar from the stalk. About the time the corn begins to harden, the making of sugar should be begun.
It is not necessary to say anything about a proper mill to crush the stalks and separate the juice, because mills of the cheapest kind only should be employed now, until the business would fully warrant an expensive outlay. It would probably be found that the common cilinder mill, with plain cylindrical nuts, would be quite sufficient for the farmer who would raise a fourth or half an acre of corn for sugar, for his family, and this quantity would be quite sufficient for satisfactory experiment.
When the juice is separated from the stalk, about a table-spoon full of white wash, made of the best quick lime, and about the consistency of thick cream, should be added to each gallon of the juice, and then the boiling should be carefully removed; and the juice, if this process has been properly conducted, will be quite clear, nearly colorless. Then commences the process of evaporation; and when the juice has boiled down about the proportion of eight gallons to one, the boiling will be completed, and it may be poured out into a shallow, tight wooden box to drain.

It has been a certain d, although as yet the reason is not known, that if the juice be boiled in a deep vessel, like the common cooking vessel, sugar will seldom be obtained; while, if it be done in a shallow vessel, so that the juice at the corners of the vessel is not more than three inches deep, the boiling will be completed, and the sugar will be obtained without difficulty. It has been ascertained, also, that the sugar from corn will not grain so readily as that from the sugarcane; and in some instances, it has remained clear a week or a fortnight, before the sugar was formed, and yet excellent sugar was made.

It should be particularly remembered, that the juice should be boiled as soon as separated from the stalk. It becomes acid very soon, and no sugar can be made if the juice be allowed to stand two or three hours before it is boiled. The juice will even spoil in the stalk before it is ground; if the stalks be cut off a few hours before grinding. It is necessary, then, that every part of the process should be done with the greatest despatch. The stalks should be brought to the mill as soon as cut, and ground immediately. The vessel for boiling ought to be properly fitted in two hours grinding, and the process of boiling done immediately completed.

Excellent syrup, superior to the best molasses, will be obtained by observing the above directions, and boiling five gallons of juice to one gallon.

The juice of the corn-stalk is very rich in sugar, when cultivated in the manner suggested. Tested by Beaume's Saccharometer, the instrument used to measure the strength of syrups, the juice of the corn-stalk weighs 10 to 10 1/2 degrees, which is about the weight of the best cane in the West Indies, and is richer than the juice of the cane in Louisiana, which is seldom heavier than 8 1/2 degrees.

One gallon of juice will produce nearly 1 1/2 pounds of sugar; and one acre of good corn will yield, if carefully expressed, from 700 to 1000 gallons of juice.
I have but little information to add to the above article. My kettle holds eighty gallons, though a sixty gallon kettle might answer the purpose, but probably it would be best to procure a shallow vessel, as above recommended for making sugar. I made three boilings before I made good syrup, not boiling down sur-ficiently the two first boilings. Prepare yourself with a skimmer, a gourd with a long handle will do, to remove the scum when it begins to boil, and for a short time after. Leave off skimming when you see the dark glutinous scum is pretty well removed. Also, prepare yourself with an iron ladle, with an iron handle attached to it about three feet long, (which any blacksmith can make,) perforated with small holes. Whoever attends the kettle, must use this ladle, in raising the juice with it, when likely to boil over. When the juice boils down considerably, you will see the bubbles begin to show and burst on the surface. When you see a few such bubbles, if it be your object to make syrup, I think then is the time to take it out; but if you wish the syrup to granulate, boil till the bubbles become general on the surface. You can also test it, by dipping out some syrup with a table-spoon, and when it cools sufficiently, by taking it between your thumb and fore finger; and if it inclines to tear, it is syrup; but if it will snap about an inch it will granulate. You can boil rapidly a little, but with more moderation. If you boil too rapidly after the bubbles begin to burst on the surface, you will certainly burn it, and it will give it a candy taste. Throw in the white wash made from the lime, immediately after you quit removing the glutinous scum.

When you have boiled to satisfy yourself, take out the syrup and put it in some shallow vessel to cool. I am inclined to think, when the juice has been extracted from the stalks by a wood mill, that if they were chopped up and boiled in water, good vinegar could be made from them.

From the Alleghenian.

THE MOUNTAIN-PEOPLES OF NORTH AMERICA.—
One hundred and fifty years ago, the Alleghenians do not leave us in doubt, that this ancient people, who occupy the foreground of our remote aboriginal history, were a valiant, noble and populous race, who were advanced in arts and the policy of government, and raised fortifications for their defence. While they held a high reputation as hunters, they cultivated maize extensively, which enabled them to live in large towns and erected those unique fortifications, which are extended over the entire Mississippi valley, as high as lat. 43 deg., and the lake country, reaching from Lake St. Clair to the south side of the Niagara River, (the old shore of Lake Ontario,) and the country of the Onondagas and the Oneidas.
Towards the south they extended as far as the borders of the Cherokee and Muscogees.
From the traditions of Father Raymond, they were worshippers of the sun, had an order of priesthood, and exercised a sovereignty over a very wide area of country.

At what era the Alleghenian confederacy, that shadowed forth, existed and fell in North America, we do not know. Our Indian nations have no certain chronology, and we must establish data by contemporaneous tradition of the Mexican nations, or by internal antiquarian evidence.

The "Old Fort" discovered by Dr. Locke in Highland county, Ohio, in 1738, denoted a period of 600 years from its abandonment, that is, 284 years before Christopher Columbus first sailed boldly into the western ocean. The trees on Grave Creek mound, denoted the abandonment of the trenches and stone look-outs in that vicinity to have been in 1338. The ramp parts at Marietta had a tree decayed in the heart, but the concentric outer circles, which could be counted, were 402. The live oaks on the low mounds of Florida, where one of the Algonquin tribes, namely, the Shawnees, aver that they once lived and had been preceded by a people more advanced in arts, denote their abandonment about 1145. But even these data do not, probably, reach sufficiently far to denote the true period.

If we fix upon the twelfth century as the era of the fall of the Alleghenian race, we shall not probably over estimate the event. They had probably reached the Mississippi valley a century or two before, having left, in their original position west and south of that stream, the great revolutionary movements which preceded the overthrow of the Toltec, and the establishment of the Aztec empire in Mexican America.

There are but two words left in our geography, supposed to be of the ancient Alleghenian language; the latter, being the name of a stream which falls into the Monongahela on its right bank, about twenty miles above Pittsburgh.
Tradition, not of the highest character, gives us the word "Allegheny," or "Alleghaw," as the name of this ancient nation, although it is nearly identical in sound with the existing and true name of the Cherokee, which, according to the late Elisha Boudinot, (a Cherokee) is "Tlalache." Col. Gibson, a plain man, an Indian trader and a philologist, who furnished Mr. Jefferson with the Indian vocabularies of the dialects of his day, to be used in answer to the inquiries of Catherine the Great, expressed an opinion that this ancient people did not use a T before the epithet, but were called Alleghew. T. a demon has, however, strictly speaking, preserved neither of these terms, although both appear to have strong affinities with them. The word Allegheny has come down to us from the earliest times, as the name of the great right hand fork of the Ohio, and also as the name, from the same remote period of antiquity, of the chain of mountains of which the stream itself may be said to be the most northeastern tributary. In this form it is evidently a local term, applied geographically according to the general principle of the Indian language, like hawa in Susquehanna, and hawa in the Rappahannock, which appears to denote, in each case, a river or term of water. By removing this local affection, we have Alleghen as the proper term for the people, and I have felt sustained, by this inductive process, in regarding Alleghen as the original cognomen of the "mound builders" of North America.

Whatever may appear as obscure in the following sketch, can be made "plain" from a perusal of the Book of Mormon. The author that now pretends "mystery" as to the aborigines of this country, may be set down as a "blind leader of the blind."

BREAKERS AHEAD.—THREATENED DIS-

SOLUTION OF THE UNION.

A dissolution of the Union is an idea which every philanthropist ought to regard with horror. It involves all the iniquities of past ages, and under whose shadow has been so often developed, and under whose baneful effects it still suffers and is destined longer to suffer. History is philosophy teaching by example; and the history of Europe and Asia, from the earliest records to the present day, teaches that all the political crimes which have so often laid them deep in blood, have flowed from one bitter fountain, the rival ship of contiguous nations.

What then is the philosophy whose lessons are taught in Asiatic and European history? It is that crime is always proportionate to nationalism, and that human happiness is always proportionate to national subdivision; and that human happiness is always proportionate to the extent of human union. We start with this position, and all history to prove it, and challenge refutation. What then is the conclusion that must be reached by every far-seeing of our country? That the American Union should be deemed sacred; that every American should regard its maintenance as a religious duty, a fundamental principle of his household faith. Every American should see, should feel that our country has a mission; that in the progressive order of the great moral government, it was designed as a refuge, a substitute for the subdivision, the crime producing rivalships of the old world; that it when the Lord of Hosts willed that our country should be independent. He designed that it should extend over the whole continent, and thus serve as an example to all other countries, of the blessings conferred by liberty and union, by the fraternity of a multitude of states under one allegiance.
He has given to this nation a continent for its inheritance, has spread that continent before it a wilderness, inviting the hand of civilized cultivation; and He has raised no obstacle to the extension of this nation over the whole, which will not fall before the peaceful operation of natural laws. Reason proclaims in all around us, from the first landing at Jamestown and Plymouth, through the revolution, he has led us down to the present day; that God has sent this nation to this continent on a mission, that this mission is to cover the whole of it under one banner, one constitution, one government, one union, and thus to demonstrate to the crime-work, blood-steeped old world, that all mankind are of one family, and that universal empire on each continent under the Federal system, is God's great ordinance for human happiness. With these opinions, which, with us, are religious faith, we shall ever protest against ever denounce to the reprobation of all philanthropists, any attempt, any thought against this Union. Palsied be the arm that would raise a paralytic blow against it. Such blow would be a deep and lasting crime against human happiness, a sacrilege against our country's divine mission, a war against Heaven.

Thus determined upon all attempts against this Union, we shall give no quarter to any man, combination, sect or school that encourages such a thought. We wage no war against elites or parties. We are more politicians, in reference to the Presidency or other official station, or to prevent any man from reaching any public elevation. In our estimation, men are public servants, are but instruments for the good government of our country; and we care not who they are while they faithfully and effectively fulfill their trust. But when any man or set of men, however distinguished for talents, however high in popular favor, manifest the least infidelity to this Union, we shall not cease to denounce them as traitors, and to call upon all true Americans to watch and beware of them.
We have had such men; we have them now.
Long ago, before the close of the last century, even during the presidency of Washington, such teachers of mischief appeared in New England.
The essays of John Allen, a leading politician of Connecticut in Hartford, and a leading organ of a political party then existing, have not yet passed from the recollection of our old patriots, and will ever remain as monuments of the most deeply mischievous designs. The same spirit died in Massachusetts during the last war; and it still speaks out boldly, defying disguise, and the mouth of Abolition. The same fanatical spirit hath long spoken, and still more venomously, more rancorously, in the nation-revolutionary proposed to draw its traitorous sword, the fact that would sooner reign in hell than serve in heaven, openly calculated the value of the Union? The master spirits of this mischief are still at their fiendish work, while a hope remains of demolishing the fabric raised by Washington and his companions in arms and council, and cemented by the blood of the Revolution. We shall give no quarter to these plotters against the hopes of mankind.—Phil.
Newspaper.

If there be any foundation for the rumors repeating the warlike demonstrations of the Cumanche and other tribes against Mexico, it is not at all improbable that the government of the latter may soon have fighting enough at home without going abroad to seek for enemies.
The removal of our American Indians west of the Mississippi has tended to drive the roving bands that range the prairie father towards the Pacific and they are now accumulated in large numbers on the western frontier of Mexico.
These nomadic tribes are, perhaps, stronger and more formidable than they ever were.
Their numbers must of late years have received a large increase from refugees who have gone over to them from the Cherokee, Creek, Shawnee, and other fierce and warlike nations that have recently settled on the Arkansas and its tributaries. The neighborhood of these half civilized Indians, by circumscribing the hunting grounds of the roving savages, and occasioning a scarcity of game, will contribute to render them more restless, and may compel them to encroach on Mexico and seek for subsistence by plunder. This is a mode of life quite congenial to the nature of the Cumanche.
An incursion upon the defenceless provinces of Mexico has ever been a favorite pastime for the Cumanche warrior. Now, however, when stern necessity is pushing these predatory rovers upon the Mexican settlements, it may be expected that their forays will occur more frequently than hitherto, and will penetrate farther into the interior. Late reports lend strong confirmation to the supposition.

Considering the unusual magnitude of Indian forces accumulated on the line of the Rio Grande
—the temptation that the rich but enervated and helpless population of Northern Mexico holds out to the wandering propensities of the savages; and the irresistible impulse that is propelling migration towards the Pacific, it would not be at all surprising, to hear of an Indian war raging along the whole Mexican frontier, and spreading its ravages far into the interior provinces. Such an event may have an important bearing upon political relations. It must influence in a greater or less degree, the foreign policy of Mexico; and it may be counted a new element in the calculation of diplomacy.
N. O. Union.

German Settlement.—A few days since, we visited the German settlement now being established in Shelby County, in this State. The site is located on North River about six miles north of Shelbyville. They will number about two or three thousand, and appear to be working on the common stock principle. We saw in one field 25 or 30 acres of Irish potatoes.
When they begin business houses, they put up a frame from one to three hundred feet in length, and fill between the standing with a mixture of mud and straw, cover all in with one common roof, and then partition off rooms to suit their convenience. They have an extensive farm, mostly fenced in the common way; they ditch some instead of fencing.

Their farm extends into a beautiful rich prairie.
They appear to be industrious and neat; and are said to be mostly from Pennsylvania. They have amongst them their own mechanics and professional men, and we think they will secure for their own body their representatives and county officers, as they will act unitedly, and outnumber the other citizens of Shelby.
We would rejoice to see such a colony planted in Missouri.—Paris [Mo.] Mercury.

An Important Question.—A Millerite returned to his residence.—A Millerite in Boston, engaged in a large manufacturing business, at the time the delusion raged the greatest, conveyed all his property to his oldest son, binding him to pay to his other children their proportionate shares, and taking for himself one thousand dollars, to defray his expenses for the short time the world had then to endure. The gentleman commenced preaching until the doctrine of Miller exploded, and he then retired, and he found out his delusion. He tried then to recover his property, but failing, commenced a suit against his son; his plea being that at the time he made the sale he was laboring under a delusion, and was therefore not in a sound state of mind. The case will excite a good deal of interest. Both Mr. Webster and Mr. Choate are engaged as counsel.

Interesting Incident.—A young lady of Clarksville, Tenn., recently became insane from reading novels. She fled from her home, not without a man, as young ladies devoted to such studies usually do, but in the garb of one of the masculine gender, and obtained employment as a journeyman tailor in a neighboring town, where her friends found her and transported her to a Lunatic Asylum.

Revolution in Tabasco.—The Mexican schooer Atrevida, at New Orleans, from Campeche, reports that a revolution broke out at Tabasco, Mexico, on the 12th of June, which resulted in the overthrow of the constituted authorities and the Central system. The only particulars are contained in a letter, which states that the garrison at Tabasco, headed by Gen. Martinez, and Colonel Montero and Bruno; declared in favor of the Federal government and for the authorities that figured in 1844, with the exception of Santa Anna, who put down said system at that time. They were successful in the movement, meeting with little or no opposition. The people remained quiet, but the commercial community were dissatisfied with the movement, fearful of its consequences and of the losses they might sustain.

The Atrevida sailed from Campeche on the 24th of June. She brought no news of importance other than the above.

Extraordinary Delinquency.—We copy the following from a late Boston paper:

In the Boston police court, on Wednesday, Sarah Libbey was brought up on a charge of ab-ducting her sister, Helen Libbey, who is not quite fourteen years of age. In default of bail of $1,000, the prisoner was committed to answer at the next term of the municipal court.
Phoebe Libbey, sister of the preceding prisoner, was brought up for keeping a house of ill-fame,
where Sarah effected her purpose of running Helen, and for want of bail of $200, she was committed. She is not yet seventeen years of age. The case was brought to the knowledge of the police authorities, to whom the mother of the girls communicated the facts, with a request that they would take measures for the rescue of Helen from her abandoned sister. She was abducted on the very day her mother and father, who had been living a few weeks in this city; took passage for Hallowell, Me., where they now reside.

Great Italian Council.—The Creeks were holding a Council on the 24th ult., at which 11 of the wild tribes were represented, but the Ca-manches and Pawnees, refused to meet with them. The Council was composed of delegates from the Creeks, Seminoles, Chickasaws, Delawares, Shawnees, Pinksaws, Potties, Choctaws, Kickapooes, Ojags and Nottaws. The Nottaws are from beyond the Rocky Mountains, who brought in an enormous pipe, to smoke in Council with the Creeks. The principal object of the Council is stated to be to clear the white path and cover over the blood that has been recently spilled by the Creeks and Pawnee Mahaws.

Immense Natural Bee-Hive.—In a cavern on the right bank of the Colorado about seven miles from Austin, there is an immense hive of wild bees, which is one of the most interesting natural curiosities in that section. The entrance of this cavern is situated in a ledge of limestone, forming a high cliff which rises almost perpendicularly from the river bank to the height of about one hundred and fifty feet from the water's edge. This cliff fronts partly on a small stream named Bill Creek. The mouth of the cavern is about ten feet from the top of the cliff. In a warm day a dark stream of bees may be constantly seen winding out from the cavern like a long dark wreath of smoke. The stream often appears one or two feet in diameter near the cliff, and gradually spreads out like a fan, growing thinner and thinner at a distance from the cavern

to repair thither, and to treat him with courteous attention.

Moreover, they having negotiated and settled all things proper, the said minister took the letter, and presented it for my inspection; and your sincerity and friendship being of the highest degree real, and the thoughts and sentiments being with the utmost sincerity and truth kind, at the time of opening and perusing it, my pleasure and delight were exceedingly profound.

All and everything they had settled regarding the regulations of commerce, I, the Emperor, further examined, with the utmost scrutiny, and found they are all perspicuous, and entirely and perfectly judicious, and forever worthy of adherence.

To Kwang Chou, Hen Mun, Fan Cien, Ning-Po, and Shang Hae, * it is alike permitted the citizens of the United States to proceed, and according to the articles of the treaty, at their convenience to carry on commerce.

Now, bound by perpetual amity and concord, advantages will accrue to the citizens of both nations, which, I trust, must certainly cause the President also to be extremely well satisfied and delighted.

Taoh Kwang, 24th yr. 11th m. and 7th d. (16th Dec. A. D. 1844.)

Great seal of the empire in Chinese and Tartar.

[Signet of the imperial will.]

(Signed) PETER PARKER, Late Chinese Secretary to the Legation.

* The five ports in the Chinese empire which the treaty opens to the commerce of the United States.

[Copy.]

Tsi Ying, of the Imperial House, governing Kwang Tung and Kwang Se, a director of the board of war, a viceroy of the board of revenue, minister and commissioner extraordinary of the Tsi Tsing empire makes this communication, &c.

Whereas, on a former occasion, I, with the honorable Envoy, negotiated and settled a treaty of amity and commerce, and fortunately received the august Emperor's injunctions to the operative boards who have ratified the same, a due notice whereof has been given by me, the minister. This is on record.

I have now received the august Emperor's reply to the presidential letter of your honorable nation's august President, and, as behooveth me, I, the minister appoint two high officers, (Hwang), the provincial treasurer, and (Chow) the commissary, to take it and deliver it to (Dr.) Parker, the officer whom your excellency deputed to receive and transmit it.

After your excellency shall have received it, I request you will, without delay, respectfully present it to the President, in order to manifest perpetual amity and concord; on this account, I make this communication, and take the opportunity of presenting my regards for your daily increasing happiness. As is requisite, I make this communication.

The foregoing communication is to Caleb Cushing, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to China.

Taoh Kwang, 24th yr. 12th month. 16th day. (23d January, 1845.)

(Signed) PETER PARKER, Late Chinese Secretary of the Legation.

AND-SO-FORTH-IANA.

We continue to collect a few of the many calamities with which Providence curses this nation, or, at least chasten it for suffering the blood of the innocent to cry from the ground to be avenged!

An Unprecedented Fire.—Near Lake Champlain, last week, destroyed some $30,000 worth of property. It commenced in a bit of turf on the farm of Col. Barnes, at West Moria, New York, and while the men were at dinner, spread through the grass into the woods, and swept over an immense tract with great rapidity. On the road from East to West Moria it burned down two double sawmills, a dwelling house, a barn, 16,000 pieces of lumber and 3,000 logs belonging to Messrs. Barnes & Travis, whose loss is about $1,000; and in a few hours after had traveled eight miles and swept away the saw mill, dwelling, and barn, with 6,000 pieces of lumber, and 200 logs of Hon. N. S. Storrs, whose loss is $2,000. Thence it extended to the two miles dwelling and barn of John Ensign, whose loss is $2,000, and swept away five other mills in West Moria and Scroon, of which the value is not ascertained. The entire loss is estimated at over $300,000. The swiftness with which the flames swept along over the country, gave rise to some exciting scenes.

Ten or twelve men were intensely engaged at Ensign's Upper Mill, and in a few moments the fire had passed them, surrounding them on all sides, so they could not leave. Many had left them; and some of the ten would have been glad to leave, but being hemmed in, they fought like brave men, long and well, and though at times ready to sink from fatigue, the mill and lumber were finally saved. During the hottest of the fire, young Storrs and William Foster, left from what was called Ensign's lower mill, to cross the hills to the other mills belonging to Judge Storrs. They passed in safety, and with three other men, by dint of hard labor, saved the mills, being also providentially favored by a change of wind.

Leaves carried by the smoke and wind, fell at Middlebury, Vermont, about twenty miles distant. Near the fire the wind blew a perfect hurricane, and the roaring of the fire is said to have been heard at a distance of several miles.

First in Troy and Serious Accident.—About 3 o'clock this morning, says the Troy Budget of Saturday, a fire broke out in the rear and upper part of building No. 249 River street, occupied by E. Galusha, in connection with his cabinet warehouse, next door. When the front wall gave way, it carried down three men belonging to Franklin Hose Co., who were very seriously injured.

Mr. Myers, a saddler in the employ of J. B. Townsend, had his leg broke in several places, and was otherwise badly injured, but there are hopes of his recovery; Mr. Coss, a tailor, was dangerously injured, but hopes are entertained of his recovery; Mr. W. Reynolds, cabinet maker, badly injured. Several others were injured by the falling of the brick, balustrade, &c.

Fire in the Woods.—We learn from the North Adams Transcript that on the 9th inst. a fire was raging in the woods at the north of that place, in Vermont. It spread from a piece of fallow ground that had been intentionally burnt over, in the west part of Stamford, and consumed a tavern and some extensive tan-works in Seaburgh. Three barns, with some farm-stock, lumber and fire-wood were consumed in Stamford.

Disastrous Conflagration.—This morning the extensive Planing Works, on Fox Point street, owned and run by Mr. Nathan Mason, were discovered to be on fire, by the watchman, who states that the fire took near the boilers, occasioned, he supposes, by the friction of the judgones of the second main drum. There were in the building, several planing machines, many carpenter's tools, and a large lot of planed boards. A large quantity of boards, near the building was also destroyed. The fire communicated to the rear of the Steam Boiler Manufactory of Messrs. Thurston, Greene and Co., which was, with its contents, destroyed. The front part, by the active exertions of the firemen, who almost outdid themselves, was saved, with much valuable machinery, which it contained. A barn occupied by Mr. S. S. Salisbury, was destroyed. A dwelling house, also occupied by Mr. Salisbury was much scorched and injured. The loss of Mr. Mason is estimated at $20,000. Insured for $5,000.

Messrs. Thurston, Greene & Co.'s loss is very heavy, being, at a rough estimate, $40,000; it is probable, however, that the amount will exceed that sum. The loss mostly in their tools, machinery, and finished work. About $1500 worth of the latter was to have been delivered to day. Much work in progress of completion was also destroyed.

Loss of twelve hundred lives.—The Falmouth Post confirms the 1200 lives being lost in New Grenada, by an avalanche of snow. Great damage was done to property.

Killed by lightning.—Rev. Benner Hart, a Baptist clergyman, in McDonough, Chenango county, New York, was struck by lightning during a heavy storm, on Thursday evening the 14th ult., and instantly killed him. The lightning struck him directly on the head, tearing his hat in fragments, and passing down his body, forced it away out through his boots. He was from sixty-five to seventy years of age.

The details of the famine now raging in part of Hungary, are truly horrible. Man and beast live on the same aliment, and lately a surgeon, who dissected the corpse of a young man who died from starvation, found a portion of hay still in his stomach.

Reveille.

Dreadful Catastrophe.—By the papers received by the Missouri, we learn that a most disastrous explosion took place in the port of New Orleans on the 1st inst. As the steamer Marqueth, for Louisville, was backing out to start on her trip, one of her boilers burst with a tremendous explosion, carrying upward the boiler deck, and several persons standing thereon.

Some 14 lives are known to have been lost, and many persons were taken to the hospital, wounded supposed mortally. The cause of the disaster remains a mystery.—Organ.

From the New York Tribune.

New Brunswick, June 27th, 1845.

Incendiary Fires.—The central part of our city was visited with a destructive fire last evening, commencing upon the premises of J. Hatfield, merchant destroying his large store house, containing some $2,000 worth of produce—together with the entire stock of lumber in the spacious yard of Ross & Roll, and some outer buildings of J. C. Griggs. The fire is doubtless the work of an incendiary, as was that of Monday night, which destroyed the store house of W. Griggs, adjoining premises.

The conflagration, immediately after the outbreak, was truly awful. Hatfield's store house was known to contain three kegs of powder, and the fireman and citizens deemed it imprudent to make a vigorous attack until after the explosion. This most fortunately soon took place without the loss of life. Our noble firemen now encountered the great enemy with their usual daring and self-possession. The whole area of the lumber yard, the store house and the outer buildings were surrounded, and most providentially the entire range of stores and houses were saved. The store of J. & D. Bishop, containing a large quantity of powder, created the most anxious solicitude. The powder was, however, safely conveyed down the basin by the schooner Robert Roney, Capt. Campbell, who deserves great praise for his manly conduct. This is the third fire in a week, all commencing in outer buildings. Incendiaries are prowling amongst us; but from this time onward, the town will be well "manned," and wo to the wretches that may be discovered.—Mr. Hatfield's loss is considerable, with a trifling insurance. Ross & Roll's about $4,500; the insurance effected the day previous is $3,000 in the New Brunswick office.

Yours, II.

Destructive Flood.—The Cherokee Advocate of the 28th ult. states that the late excessive rains have caused the streams in the nation to rise to an unusual height for this time of the year. The Arkansas, the Grand river and other streams, north of us, are booming. It is represented that the Grand river lacks but three or four feet of being as high as it was at the great flood last year, and that it has swept away the fences and destroyed entirely the rich fields of corn growing on its banks. The destruction of property, if such as reported, is very great, and has ruined the prospects for another year, of many, who, but a few days since, hoped soon to reap an abundant harvest.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1845.

Dinner to the Smith Family.—On Wednesday last, the 9th inst., the church, through Bishops Whitney and Miller, gave the Smith family a public dinner at the Mansion. The families and 'remnants' were about as follows:—

Lucey Smith, (widow of Joseph Smith, Sen.) Mary Smith, (widow of Joseph Smith) John Smith, Jeremiah Smith, Sarah Smith, Joseph F. Smith, Martha Ann Smith.

Lorens Walker, Lavinia Walker.

Emma Smith, (widow of Joseph Smith), Julia Smith, David Hyrum Smith.

Lavira Smith, (widow of Samuel H. Smith), Samuel Smith.

William Smith, Mary Jane Smith, Mary Jane Smith, Caroline Louisa Smith.

Agnes Smith, (widow of Don Carlos Smith), Agnes Smith, Josephine Smith.

William McLery, Sophronia McLery, Maria Stoddard.

W. J. Salisbury, Catharine Salisbury.

Arthur Miliken, Lucy Miliken.

Asahel Smith, Betsey Smith, Elias Smith, Martha Smith.

Silas Smith, Elizabeth Smith.

Amos B. Fuller, Esther Fuller.

Mary Jane Gee, (widow.)

Moses Martin, Julia P. Martin.

Mary Smith, (widow of Silas Smith), Silas Smith, Jesse Smith.

John Smith, Clarissa Smith, Caroline Smith.

George A. Smith, Bathsheba Smith.

John L. Smith, Augusta Smith.

A few of the children present, were not named.

At about 2 P. M. the families were seated at the table, and served by the "Twelve," the bishops, above named, and some other invited friends: Elder Young at one table, and Elder Kimball at the other, &c. "Mine host," (Mr. Pack,) from the abundance of the season, had done his part well, and every thing concerning the matter, was "first rate." Thanks were offered to our Father in heaven, by Elder William Smith.

After dinner, under the favor of the church, Elder Smith said he would propose the following sentiment in pure water.

"To the President and Bishops of the Church.

May their kindness be rewarded, may their power be increased, their purses never fail, their good will continue, their desires be accomplished, and their faith and knowledge increase, until they shall shine forth as suns in the firmament, and give light to other systems of their own creation."

In the name and in behalf of all my relatives here assembled, the whole Smith family, I present my thanks to the President and Bishops for the kind manifestation of their good feelings towards the remnants of that family."

It was drunk standing with great applause. At the next table Judge Phelps responded as follows:—

"The church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and all the Smith family in it; and her spiritual authorities: perfect union; unceasing vigilance; increasing power, and eternal lives, in 'eternity now,' and 'eternity then.'"

The band, which had been especially invited, delighted the guests with some charming melody; and Master Kay and others, with a few "spiritual songs,"—at once touching and sublime.

In the midst of "this brotherly love," Elder Smith proposed that the company arise and drink in pure water the following:—

"The Ladies and the Music.—The charms of the former, and the harmony of the latter, give additional zest to our enjoyment:—May the society of the one and the sound of the other accompany us to the realms of eternal bliss, and add as much to our felicity there, as they do to our pleasures here: whereby they have rendered our beautiful place of rest as far famed for its exquisite music, as it already is for its great beauty."

Judge Phelps again responded in the following laudable "Life, love, and liberty." Several short toasts and sentiments were drunk, but were not furnished to us.

"Mother Smith" addressed her kindred and her audience in a feeling and pathetic manner. Several other addresses were made, and it was worthy of remark, that at this "feast," where there was "wine," and every latitude given to the propensities for indulgence, there was no profane swearing, no abuse, and no one drunken; but upon the contrary they were all brethren and sisters, enjoying life, in the civil and polite custom of Saints, whose best men's blood now stains the robes of hypocritical freemen, in high places, and the government quakes for fear of their reward. Let them assemble, but we will serve the Lord, and let brotherly love continue.

About sundown the guests retired, to meditate upon the felicity of the "family feast."

The Contrast.—While the newspapers abroad, have been pouring out the distress, poverty and starvation of the Mormons at Nauvoo, God has been blessing the Saints, not only in the city of Nauvoo, but in her borders also, so that, for miles around the fields of wheat, corn, and other grain are smiling:—"a harvest of plenty awaits the people of God." And this is not all: while the Lord is giving the earth strength to yield her increase," he is also warming the hearts and nerveing the arms of the children of Israel, to finish Him a Temple worth two or three millions of dollars.

God and the people in union, can do wonders.

Chancellor Kent on Medicine.—Chancellor Kent, in a letter to Dr. Turner, returning thank for a medical book sent him, says: "He is one of that class of persons who never have much faith in physic, and has rarely permitted himself to be subject to its discipline, and has always had great horror at the pernicious effusion practice of blood letting, and prefers cold water effusion, simple diet, temperance, exercise and cheerfulness to the whole materia medica. By this means, and with the blessing of providence, he has enjoyed uninterrupted health from early life to this day, and he will be 82 in July."

"We," (that is the Junior,) can bear witness to the correctness of the above, having practiced on the same principles for about fifty years.—Bleeding is undoubtedly a life waiting custom. How many thousand children are sent back to the world of spirits, by Death and the Doctors, yearly? Human beings, like vegetation, will grow themselves, only prepare the ground and keep away the Varmints.

We were travelling in company with a gentleman in the western part of Missouri, some years since, and feeling a desire to inquire the way to "home house," distant a few miles, rode up to the door of a cabin, to interrogate the good lady on the subject. She appeared to be ignorant of the direction and distance. While we were talking, there came up a flock of children, and my friend observed, that he had never seen so many hearty children look so near alike and of a size, and enquired how many families they belonged to. "They are all mine," replied the lady. "How many have you?" said he. "Eighteen," she answered quickly, "all as hearty as coons." We then asked her several questions, which she readily and unreservedly answered. Saying, "I am about thirty-six years of age, have been married near eighteen years; my oldest child is about seventeen, several of my children are twins; the one in my arms is about six weeks old. I have never lost a child; they all do well enough when we have plenty of corn bread and bacon." "But," said I, what do you do for a Doctor?" "O," says she, "we live so far off we never need one."

Now if all people, in towns and cities, would consider they were a little too far from the doctor, they would never need one.

The Mormons.—"A Springfield, (Ill.) paper expresses considerable alarm at the recent movements of the Mormons, who are collecting arms and other munitions of war from all parts of the country where they have settlements, and depositing them in their holy city of Nauvoo to which notable metropolis, the disciples themselves are gathering as fast as they can. It is not very likely that these creatures can ever muster strength enough to do any thing very alarming to the peace of the whole country, but they are likely enough to make mischief to their nearer neighbors, and we are ourselves of opinion that they will never rest quiet till they commit some overt act of outrage, formidable enough to earn for themselves a sound thrashing by military force—the only force, probably, that will ever have much effect upon them, for they seem to entertain very loose notions on every thing in the shape of merely civil and legal authority. The language which we have recently seen extracted from their newspaper organ at Nauvoo, manifests a very sturdy independence of all law but that of their own making; and an exceedingly remarkable absence of all proper knowledge of the objects which civil law professes to aim at. A band of ignorant and furious fanatics like these Mormons, ought to be well watched, and not be permitted to gather too dangerous a head in the very mid of a more rational and civilized society. We have no doubt that they have in some instances been misused by those who surround them, but making the best estimate that can be made of their character, they are a disgusting and a troublesome band of absurd fanatics, and we do not wonder at the feeling that is enlisted against them by their neighbors."

So discourteous Webb, of the N. Y. Courier and Enquirer, and "manifests a very sturdy independence of all law but that of his own making." The cowardly sneak run from Duff Green's mahogany stocked pistol, was shot in the calf of his leg in trying to murder a man in a duel, and then took the benefit of the Bankrupt act, and we do not wonder at the feeling that is enlisted against him by his neighbors." A poor coot he, having neither friends at home, nor in the "regular army." Va!

Another Murder.—For the lack of particulars in time, we did not mention the murder of Gen. Davenport, of Rock Island, last week. The account from one of our contemporaries, is:—"Gen. George Davenport was murdered at his residence on Rock Island, on the fourth instant about 1 o'clock. Five persons entered the house during the absence of the family, and shot him through the thigh, mortally wounding him; and then dragged him through the house until he told where his money was, which they took with his watch; they then tied him to a straw chair and decamped, with some $400 in Missouri bank paper. One of the persons named Duff, was known to Gen. Davenport, and had been prowling about Rock Island with several others for four or five weeks. The General lived until 9 o'clock on Friday night, when he expired, after having given full particulars of the robbery and murder.

One, or all of the murderers have been apprehended and conveyed to Davenport, for examination."

This Gentile world, as they have it at the point, is becoming quite blood thirsty.

What's the News!—Wilson Shannon has returned from Mexico; there is an electrical telegraph now constructing, which will transmit news at the rate of 96,000 miles per hour; a dog imprisoned in a cellar in Broadway N. Y. lived two months without food; fuel remains in Ohio, are pretty strong symptoms that the sea was there once; there is an old map in China, made 1000 years before Christ was born; it is said that 84 men have iron enough in their blood to make 100 horse-shoes, weighing 50 lbs., in which case the Scotch giant and wife would hide a full team" all round.

Balloons and locomotives are all the talk in the east. If it were possible to seat the airy monsters, all passengers and the mail would soon be conveyed by "space-boats," now vulgarly called balloons. As to locomotives, the "John Little" of Philadelphia, ran 97 miles in 150 minutes, a few days since. When?

Rumors and tea-leaves are ever with us. It is said the Indians have been trying to unite at a grand council held recently near the Cherokees; there were Indians attending it from the other side of the Rocky Mountains; one tribe called the Niowas.

Facts speak for themselves. Every city seems to have as much as it can do with a charter and "police," to deal with rogues. Nauvoo goes ahead without such appendages to power, and higher heads wonder.

The Boston Post and a Missouri paper are bragging about having subscribers in several states. Miraculous dictum.—We send the Neighbor all over the United States, (which now includes Texas,) Canada, and Great Britain, Ireland, Scotland, the Isle of Man, and have political turns of feeling just as if we should send it to the Islands of the Sea. And, amid all the rattling of glasses; the clangor of steel pens; the spattering of goosequills, and the pot hooking of pencils, aside from the sipping of sea-sorts, we have to hold our nose occasionally at "Pratt's" diarrhoea of nonsense, and laugh at James Gordon Bennett's bean in a bladder to scare rats from the national buttery:—but still, when either of them swells, puff, or utters, here we are, a light that shineth in darkness and the darkness comprehendeth not. Poor coots, when the Almighty sweeps away the refuse of lies, the place where such animals once were, may be found, but they will only be seen with candles.

The Big Letter.—There is much speculation about the big Chinese letter to the president of the United States.—To compete with it, a friend has just shown us one of two big letters, which was sent from Westmoreland-Pa., to this city. The one we saw was a little more than eight feet four inches long, by twenty two inches wide, and handsomely written upon both sides, only one sheet. The other one is said to be nine feet long by three feet wide, which goes ahead of the fashions of the "East," and what is still better, they contain some Mormonism, and that, without translating, can be understood by millions in the West."

Messrs. Chambers & Knapp, have just published the "Revised Statutes and Form Book" of Missouri. See advertisement on the fourth page.

The first sentence for crime, was pronounced by the Lord upon Cain, and it was perpetual wandering away from his friends. Cain thought his punishment was greater than he could bear, and that he would find him and slay him; but the Lord saved him from his tears by "marking." Criminals ought to be "marked" now-a-days—instead of the call or the gibbet.

Execution.—The Hodges were hung at Burlington, Iowa, yesterday afternoon, according to their sentence. We have not learned that either made any confession.

Cecilia.—Our correspondent S S, of Pittsburgh, is informed that the reason why his communications do not appear, is, that we do not wish to "triumph over a fallen foe." We are as well aware of the fact, as he is, that old Ralagoram has cozened himself into a complete failure. His prophecy that "the walls of the Temple would never be reared in this generation, nor the roof go on," makes the old fellow smell a little too strong of asafoetida.

While the Lord has blessed every labor of the saints of Nauvoo, so that the city and vicinity look like the garden of Eden, the miserable old man, has had to rub his eyes over the smoking ruins of fire after fire, in Pittsburgh, and the slow, withering finger of scorn, pointing at him, seems to whisper: "the breath of God upon a transgressor, scorches his hopes"—let him die.

Unde'r the Thumb.—The New York Mirror learns from good authority, that there is a house at the Five Points—that plague of the city—which is occupied by no less than ninety families. The proprietor is a woman who keeps a grocery and grocery in the basement and makes a written condition, with all her miserable tenants, that they shall purchase their provisions exclusively of her."

How many other establishments in the city and State of New York, are in the same predicament? No chewing the cud, gentlemen, speak out and acknowledge that five-eighths of the people in the towns and cities of the Empire State are bound down by poverty, or something else, to their landlords, and dare not act like freemen. While slaves in the north and east, outnumber the black slaves of the south and west, about two to one. The millionaires, the upper ten thousand, "patent land holders from the king," and the "privileged order" of official nobility, devour the people, control the people, and are ten times more worthy of the wrath of an offended God, than the land-lady of the five points. Who patronizes the "five points," and every other point of such human ruin, throughout the country, and the world? They that cloak their sins under sacerdotal robes; they that cover crimes with 'ermine and lace."

Oh! generation of vipers, licking flies!

The case in the Hancock (Ill.) Circuit Court, against the alleged murderers of Hiram Smith, the brother of the Mormon prophet, was taken from the docket last week, the State failing to prosecute. The judge refused to appoint a prosecutor, inasmuch as the former prosecuting officer had been duly informed of the time when the trial was to commence. We suppose, therefore, that the murderers of the Smiths will escape all punishment.—Mo. Reporter.

The prophet is a glib. "The murderers of the Smiths will escape all punishment," except God's. The way this year is vexing this nation, there will be enough to balance the account, won't there Shad?

A word to the wise.—A very good way of living in peace in this world, is, to say but little, and mind your own business. In doing so, a Mormon runs up his tattling neighbors. Isn't that a new way of tangling the wicked in their talk?

Every age has its own talents.—We believe every age has its own talent and every nation has its own artists. We come to this conclusion from facts, which the following notice from the London Times, will justify:

Mr. Hiram Powers' "Greek Slave".—During the last few days almost all the nobility and gentry who encourage the fine arts, and nearly all the artists in London, have been to the establishment of Messrs. Graves, the publishers, in Pall mall, to see the statue of the "Greek Slave," by Mr. Hiram Powers, an American artist, who studied under Thorwaldsen, and who has for some time been resident at Florence, where he produced this work. The statue represents a Greek girl; the figure is entirely nude, and might have been called a Venus but for the chains by which the wrists are fettered. It is a work of a very high order of merit—indeed, in modern art, of the very highest order. The limbs are beautifully rounded, the contour perfect, and the attitude fine. There is a great delicacy and simplicity of manner. The face is very beautiful, full of character and expression. It is cut out of a remarkably fine block of marble. This is the first specimen of progress in the higher order of art produced by an American, and may be hailed as a promise of future excellence.

A fossil-turtle, says the Boston Times, "eighteen feet long and seven feet high, has been discovered in the Himalaya hills."

The "old settlers" of the world before this, were full size. Perhaps they had in t degenerated by crossing breeds.

"Mormonism—which has been seen now and anon to flit athwart the political horizon from the birth day of our freedom as a nation, is also at an end."

So says the St. Louis Organ, but it means that Boggs' extermination, was the end in Missouri only; and that Mormonism, like the sun, may have an "end" every twenty-four hours, and just as many BEGINNINGS, ad infinitum.

Horrible.—"There are," says Noah's (N. Y.) Sunday Times, "two thousand boys in this city undergoing parental control, with no homes and no employment. These boys will grow up familiarized with all the crimes in the calendar, and will end their days at Sing Sing, or upon the gallows."

And he might add, "twice that number of girls in a worse state. If all the cities are as sorghilly, every man's hand, according to the prophets, will soon be against his neighbor."

Wheat.—Michigan, from all accounts will secure more wheat by nearly one million of bushels, than she has ever done before; this, with Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, in all of which the crop is good, will keep flour at a fair rate in the Great West. Just the sort for Emigrants.

Showers.—We had three fine showers on Sunday morning. They operated on vegetation, with a more enlivening effect, than three days' sun.

Rain.—We had a pleasant rain, which lasted from one till four A. M. on Tuesday. How the Lord favors the crops.

Miniature Hell.—A young lady, who kept her school under the Presbyterian church, Lafayette square, New Orleans, put a little boy, aged 7 years, in the coal hole for some misdemeanor, as a place of punishment. The lad fixed up a station of bricks, coals, and pieces of boards, to look out for light, at a broken panel of the door; when his head was fairly out, the station gave way, and lung him in the door. The sects believe in punishment in hell and this is a fact simile.

Warm times.—Old Fahrenheit ranges in the shade between 96 and 99, every day. Excellent time for men to raise corn, and ladies fashions."

Three un(common) wisemen.—The editors of the Detroit Advertiser, the New York Courier and Enquirer and Louisville Journal, have found out the "still further fact," that sanctimony of all sorts, political, social, and religious, finds its natural affinities in Locofocoism, and flies to its embrace with the readiness of a sectal instinct." "Mormonism." "Bacchanalians, duelists, detaachees, and defaulters, how the "blind staggerers" have wasted old fereralism, and barked the shins of gentlemen a little the worse for liquor. Nav God, who never errs, continue to reward them according to their works.—Ira cum ira; bonus—bonus.

Bears Caught.—The Southern Shield, printed at Helena, Ark., has the following: "By a letter received from Mr. Lyman Webster of Coahoma county, Miss., he informs us that he has killed, with his dog and gun, on the first day of June, 1845, up to the first day of April, 1845, one hundred and six bears. One of which weighed 371 lbs. Mr. W. further states that he had but four dogs killed, and none during the time. We refer our river friends to his advertisement in another portion of the paper, for the sale of bear's meat and skins."

The advertisement reads: "BEAR'S MEAT AND SKINS. I WILL keep a constant supply of bear's meat and skins for sale, on island 67 and 68, near Judge Spear's wharf, from the first day of October next, until the first day of April, 1846."

LYMAN WEBSTER. Coahoma Co., Miss., June 28, 1845-46. "The fable says, 'never sell bear skins before you catch them,' but there is nothing to forbid advertising bear's meat and skins, for sale before hand, among the gophers of Arkansas, &c.,—merely a heave of the jaw, as a crocodile would have it, a throw of the larret to angle on land."

GREAT NEWS FROM TEXAS. As Punch says, the court has decided that "the dog" belongs to Jim Polk. We learn the following from the St. Louis papers:—

"Texas Annexation."—The steamer Missouri arrived last evening, in five days from New Orleans, bringing the important intelligence of the confirmation of Texas Annexation, by the Congress of that Republic. The news was brought by the Cutter Woodbury, to the Balize. Slips from the Galveston papers also were received, confirming the intelligence. It seems that the bill passed unanimously, and also an additional one, that the troops of the United States be allowed to occupy the territory immediately."

"Lather away the oak tick."—The legislature of Connecticut, says an exchange paper, has passed a law which imposes a fine of twenty dollars on any person who refuses to accept a military command to which he may be elected. As Paddy said, "a lot of liberty in freedom"—and don't they fear the breaking of the Sabath? Well, the old proverb is, rapid rulers reach for thine."

Free postage.—List of Post offices within thirty miles of Nauvoo.

- ILLINOIS.
- | | |
|-----------------|-----------------|
| Appanoose, | Hancock county. |
| East Bend, | |
| La Harpe, | |
| Fountain Green, | |
| Macedonia, | |
| McGary, | |
| Carthage, | |
| Pulaski, | |
| St. Marys, | |
| St. Albans, | |
| Chili, | |
| Warsaw, | |
| Green Plains, | |
| Montebello, | |
| Lima, | Adams county. | | Shoquokon, | Henderson " |
- IOWA.
- | | |
|-----------------|--------------------|
| Fort Madison, | Lee county. | | Montrose, | |
| Keokuk, | |
| Spring Prairie, | |
| Prairie House, | |
| West Point, | |
| Tuscarora, | |
| Franklin, | |
| Denmark, | |
| Augusta, | Des Moines county. |
| Burlington, | |
| Farmington, | Van Buren county. | | Bonaparte, | |
- MISSOURI.
- | | |
|-------------------|---------------|
| St. Charlesville, | Clark county. |
| Waterloo, | |

The Post Master of this city handed us the foregoing list of officers, to which he says our papers may be sent free of postage. The most perfect trait of Mormonism is, union; and while that union

"Spreads undivided and eye-oles unsplit," the world may be benefited.—Then, let every Saint take the papers in this little sixty miles—imperium in imperio; and it would not hurt a winner to "go and do likewise."—For knowledge is power in heaven, and a passport to fame and power on the earth. He that hath ears to hear let him hear.

One wife enough.—A lady at Concord, N. H. on the 16th of June, safely brought forth a litter of three fine boys. She can say like Leah: "I troop a m-f-l. One such a wife will do very well, provided she is well treated."

Outragious.—A few persons continue to insult the feelings of the best portion of our citizens by dabbling in whiskey and other drinks. If they don't quit, Aunt Peggy is a widow.

Foreign News

By the arrival of the Acadia at Boston our regular files, came in this morning's mail. The news, by this arrival was nothing very interesting.

We select a few items.

THE QUEEN'S BALL COSTUME.

The grand state ball at Buckingham Palace, which has, from its novelty and anticipated magnificence, been long looked forward to by the noble and wealthy of the land with great interest, took place on Friday night, (6th June.) All the guests appeared in the costume of the period between 1740 and 1750. The company numbered 1,200, and included the diplomatic corps and the principal foreigners of distinction at present in the metropolis, all of whom adopted the foreign costumes of that date, appearing in the uniforms of their respective nations. The nobility and gentry present, in numerous cases, adopted the costumes of members of their families living at that period, the dresses being copied from family portraits with the greatest exactness.

Every possible variety of color, texture, and material, and the greatest magnificence of embroidery and jeweled decoration consistent with propriety were brought to bear on the quaint and antiquated costume of that period, and the result was harmony and unity of effect perfectly surprising. The Queen and Prince Albert entered the ball-room at 10 o'clock. Her Majesty and the royal family having taken their usual stations at their platform, the dancing commenced with a polonaise, danced by the Queen and Prince Albert, the Duke and Duchess de Nemours, followed by their distinguished guests. The dance extended through all the state apartments, all hands striking up the same tune. After the dance the assembled company, passed slowly before the Queen.

At twelve o'clock the Queen and her illustrious guests passed to supper, which was served as usual, in the great dining room, in a style of royal splendor.

SYRIA.

Five or six villages have been burnt in Syria, and three Catholic priests murdered. A fatal catastrophe took place a few days ago in the channel of Chesma. A Greek vessel returning from Jaffa with seventy or eighty passengers, Greek pilgrims from the Holy Land, was capsized during the night, and all hands perished except seven.

INDIA AND CHINA.

The extraordinary express, in anticipation of the Indian mail, arrived in London on Wednesday, with letters and papers from Bombay to the 1st May, and Calcutta 23d April.

The Rajah, Goolab Singh, who figured so conspicuously in the affairs of the Punjab, had surrendered himself into the hands of the Sirdar, Juhawir Singh; and unless the Rance, whose intrigues have had much influence over the Rajah's actions, succeeds in protecting him, her brother, the Sirdar, will assuredly put him to death.

In Scinde, all was quiet; and Sir C. Napier had arrived at Kurachee. The British troops were assembling in considerable numbers on the banks of the Sutlej; but it was expected that a treaty would be proposed to the King of Lahore prior to a hostile attack on the Punjab.

The Affghans are preparing to invade Peshawar, under Mahomed Akbar Khan. The news from China is to the 8th of March, but is of little interest. Governor Davis, while on a visit at Macao, had been attacked by some Chinese footpads, who got him down, and were proceeding to strip him when they were scared away by the appearance of some Portuguese gentlemen of the place.

MARRIED.

In this county, on the 9th inst. by D. H. Wells, Esq., Mr. John Ricus to Miss Mary Fawkes.

Matrimony seems to be a pleasant region. Our widowers, old bachelors, and young men; widows, old maids, and maidens, all seem about to enter upon the happy land and leave, but few to enjoy a life of "single blessedness."

Joy go with the happy pair. May mild climate, ex. pleasant skies and balmy breezes attend them on their journey towards the climax of human enjoyment, and may a fountain of wisdom ever flow around their hearthstone, to drown domestic discords, heighten conjugal felicity, and cement the bands of peace, love and union.

Extra.—On the 8th day of July, Mr. Wm. WATKINS PHILIPS, and Miss LYDIA CAROLINE BREWSTER joined in matrimony.

On the 11th, the Printers, &c. et al., with feelings saw fit to make a case and made up a column of carriages, and buggies, headed by the band, for a leader and worked off a token of heavenly moon light. It being an extra evening is, the impression was a fair introduction to a "family edition," with a lot of "imposing forms" of diamond matter, as well as a lot of preface, referring to a font of bold faced ruby, headed in small caps.

SEXTON'S WEEKLY REPORT.

July 7, 1845.

Wm Halm, 63y; dropsy.

John Blunberry, 48y; typhus fever.

Thaddeus Page Melymichael, 21y 7m 2d; black canker.

Rebecca Richey, 16y; lung fever.

April 16th.

Ephraim Ridge, 4m 26d; inflammation of brain.

Catharine A. Oaks, 9m 14d; black canker.

July 14, 1845.

Bradford Blunberry, 13y 1m 5d; fever.

Ruth Green, 4y 4m; diarrhoea.

Abel Owen, 5y 8m 9d; white swelling.

Wm Joseph Young, 6m 8d; cholera infantum.

Sarah Klingensmith, 1y 5m 4d; teething.

David Fox, 2m 23d; canker.

Mary Lauchlin, 21y 2m 3d; fever.

Emely M. Wardsworth, 1y 2m 12d; diarrhoea.

Wm. Parley Loveridge, 1y 2m 12d; diarrhoea.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, Sexton.

DIED on the 9th inst., after an illness of a few weeks, Mrs. JEANETTE RICHARDS, wife of Dr. WILLARD RICHARDS, one of the Quorum of the Twelve.

This morning, July 16, Francis Hendricks, son of Dr. W. A. & Mary Sanger, aged 6 months and 11 days.

CONSTITUTION OF THE PHOTOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF THE CITY OF JOSEPH.

ARTICLE 1. This association shall hereafter be called and known by the name of "the Photographical Society of the City of Joseph."

ART. 2. The object of this Society, is, for the mutual improvement of its members, in the science and art of Photography, and for the diffusion of its principles all over the world.

ART. 3. The officers of this society, shall be a president, treasurer and secretary, who shall be elected by ballot, and hold their office for one year, and until their successors shall be duly elected and qualified.

ART. 4. The annual meeting for the election of officers, shall be on the first Monday of July in every year.

ART. 5. The president, treasurer, and secretary, shall perform such duties as pertain to their respective offices in similar associations.

ART. 6. This society, shall meet from time to time, for instruction, and practice, as may be deemed proper by the president.

ART. 7. Any person approved by the president, may become a member of the society, on a vote being taken by the members, a majority being in his favor, signing his name to the constitution, and paying into the hands of the treasurer, the sum of fifty cents to defray incidental expenses.

ART. 8. Ladies may become honorary members, and be entitled to all the instructional privileges of the society, or application to the president.

ART. 9. If any one is desirous to go abroad, to teach others the science of photography, he shall, if approved by the society, receive a diploma of qualifications, signed by the president, and countersigned by the secretary—and all teachers, recommended by this society, shall keep an account of his income from his instruction, and pay one tenth of said income to the society, for the furtherance of its objects.

ART. 10. The constitution may be altered or amended, by a vote of two thirds of the members present, at any regular meeting, by giving two weeks previous notice.

GEORGE D. WATT, Pres.
DANIEL MACKINTOSH, Sec.
JAMES WHITEHEAD, Treas'r.
July 15-11-1w

PLEASE READ THE FOLLOWING.

THE subscriber, or his agent, will present a subscription paper to his friends the Saints, and all others who feel willing to participate; as follows:—

We the undersigned being desirous to sustain those that sustain and build up us; feel that Brother John E. Page is in want of a comfortable dwelling house, and as he says he wants nothing extravagant or more than the ability of the saints can afford him at the present time.—

Therefore in order to enable him to build him a house 20 feet by 24, two stories high, we do hereby promise to furnish the amount of means attached to each of our respective names.

The house is designed to be built principally of brick with a good cellar, wood shed, and well.

Therefore it will require rock for the well, rock lime and sand for the cellar, brick lime and sand for the building; together with the necessary lumber for the floors, doors, windows and roof.

The nails, glass, door hinges and trimmings will cost cash, also paints.

The materials are first necessary, and then the laborers to put it together.

If any subscribe provisions it will be appropriated to those laborers who are not circumstanced to board themselves while employed on the house.

Respectfully,
JOHN E. PAGE.
July 14-11-1w

FOR SALE.

A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 20 feet by 30 two stories high. A good well of water on the premises. Terms low for CASH. Enquire of E. T. Hanson on Mason street between Fulmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office.

CITY LOTS FOR SALE.

LOTS, belonging to the NAUVOO WATER POWER CO.—The cheapest and best in the city, are offered for sale on as moderate terms as a purchaser can reasonable ask.

The lots are beautifully situated on the bank of the river, where the most business part of the city eventually will be. For terms apply to the subscriber, or to Mr. EDWARD HUNTER Esq.

JOHN E. PAGE, President.
July 14:11w

LAW NOTICE.

BABBITT & EDMONDS, Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.

WOULD most respectfully inform the public, that they have associated themselves together in the practice of the profession, and will attend to any business entrusted to them in the state of Illinois, or in the Territory of Iowa. Mr. Babbitt will be found as usual at his office in the city of Nauvoo. Mr. Edmonds will be found at his office, in the town of Keokuk, in Lee county, Iowa Territory.

July 14:11w

COOK & PETERSON, DEALERS in Hides, Leather and Findings, No. 71, Main Street St. Louis.
July 9-10 6m

In the Hancock Circuit Court Illinois May Term A. D. 1845.

State of Illinois, }
Hancock County, } ss.
Erastus Snow,)
vs.
Charles Beck.

NOTICE.—Is hereby given to the said Charles Beck, that a writ of attachment has been issued out of the clerk's office of the Circuit Court of said county at the suit of Erastus Snow against the estate of you the said Charles Beck, for the sum of two hundred and twenty five dollars, returnable to the May term A. D. 1845, of said court; that the same is pending before said court, and has been returned by the sheriff of said county, levied on the following described property, to wit the north west quarter of the south east quarter of section No. 17, in township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section No. 19; township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also one third of an acre being the north east corner of lot No. 1, block No. 13, in Wells' addition to Nauvoo, being eleven rods on the east side; also served on John Lamoreaux, Truman Birlow, Hiram Falk, & Ephraim S. Green as garnishees; that unless you the said Charles Beck, and the said garnishees aforesaid shall appear before the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court house in Carthage, on the third Monday in the month of May next, and plead, answer, or demur, to the said plan of action, in judgment will be rendered against you by default, and the premises so attached will be sold to satisfy the same with cost.

Witness, D. E. HEAD, clerk of [LS] said Circuit Court and the seal thereof at Carthage this 3d day of April, A. D. 1845.

D. E. HEAD, clerk.
A. W. BABBITT for Plaintiff.
April 5-49-1f

NOTICE.

Is hereby given, that the undersigned will apply to the County Commissioners Court at the next session, to be held in Carthage, for a licence to keep a ferry across the Mississippi river, between Nauvoo and Montrose, Iowa territory.

DANIEL CARN.
Nauvoo, July 18:11c

GRAND ZOOLOGICAL EXHIBITION.

The Proprietors respectfully announce that their Extensive Collection of LIVING WILD ANIMALS will be exhibited at Nauvoo, on Monday the 21st of July.

This Establishment embraces the interest of the New York and Philadelphia Zoological Institutes, making it the LARGEST OF THE KIND NOW IN THE U. STATES.

The famous Duboise will appear with his trained animals in some of the most beautiful scenes, and among other interesting performances, will harness and drive a large

NUMIDIAN LION.

On the entrance into Nauvoo, on the 21st, TWO LARGE ELEPHANTS will be harnessed to the Band Car and precede the whole retinue of Horses, Wagons, &c., to the place of exhibition.

Doors open at 1 o'clock, P. M. Admission 30 cents—Children, ten years of age, half price.

July 9, 1845. 10-2w.

TINNER'S ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned having associated themselves together for the purpose of carrying on the tin-plate and sheet-iron business in all its various branches, have taken the shop formerly occupied by Dustin Amy, corner of Young and Mulholland streets, where they are prepared to manufacture tin and sheet-iron ware at wholesale or retail, as low as can be bought in St. Louis or elsewhere.

N. B. For the accommodation of persons living on the flat, we have deposited a quantity of tin ware at Messrs Oakley's store, where those in want can be accommodated at all times.

PHILIP B. LEWIS,
DUSTIN AMY,
JOHN MILLS.
Nauvoo, June 25, 1845:8f

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor.

WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop, a few rods south of the Temple, near the New York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coats cut and made for $1.00

Pants and vests " " 50
Coats cut for " 25
Pants and vests for " 12 1/2

Ladies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms.

N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style.

June 11, 1845. 6 3 m

TAILORS' ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned have associated ourselves together, for the purpose of carrying on the tailoring business, in all its various branches. And for the better accommodation of the public, have opened two shops. One on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis' store; and one on the corner of Main and Parley streets, two doors north of Oakley's store, formerly occupied by R. Wells.

This association being composed of the best workmen, which will enable us to give satisfaction to all those who may favor us with a call. Therefore all that wish to have clothing made, whether for beauty, fashion, comfort, or durability, can be accommodated at the above designated shops. Also cutting done on the most reasonable terms.

N. B. The real or personal property of any member of aforesaid association which is not invested as stock in said association, shall not be holden for the debts of said association.

JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
C. M. THOMPSON, Counsellors.
W. B. MCINTIRE, Counsellors.
ROBT. RUSSELL, Superintendents.
J. H. GLINES, do.
W. M. PARKER, do.
ALEXANDER MULLINER, do.
C. BELLARY, do.
WM. STRINGHAM, do.
JABEZ BOTSFORD, do.
B. CHAPMAN, do.

Nauvoo, March 25th, 1845-47-3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business.

We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.
Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
Feb. 7:49f W. & S.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.
April 7 1845-49.

SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING.

THE subscriber has just returned from the city of New York, (and taken his old stand, 52 Main street,) with an entire new stock of Spring and Summer Clothing, comprising every article usually kept in a clothing or furnishing store. His goods are all new, were bought for cash, and manufactured under his own direction, expressly for this market, in the latest and most fashionable style.

Having formed a connection with a wholesale dry goods house in the city of New York, enables him to take advantage of the market in buying unusually low, at auction. He can, therefore, confidently assure buyers of ready made clothing, that he not only can but will sell them clothing not only as cheap but cheaper than any other clothing house in the city of St. Louis. Buyers are invited to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. BROWN.
No. 52 Main street, St. Louis.
April 8th 50-3m

LIME LIME.—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate Lime, at their kiln near the upper end of Main street; formerly occupied by Pe & Harris.

All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.

JOSIAH BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845-No 1-6m

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.

D. and J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened in the house formerly known as the NAUVOO SEED STORE now JOSEPH CITY STORE, situated on Mulholland Street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles as essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Crockery, in short all things that are daily wanted in our line of business. And having been engaged in the business, for years, we feel ourselves competent to give a satisfaction in quality, and at a low price, we would invite the inhabitants of the city of Joseph and its vicinity to call and see.

Country produce will be received for goods.

May 27th 1845-4-3m

NOTICE.

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of J. J. STEWART.

Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52-1f

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts, Nappies, Mugs, &c, which will be sold wholesale and retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufactories in England.

ELIJAH K. FULLER, President.
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM BOX,
RICHARD RALPHS,
JOSEPH RALPHS,
THOMAS RALPHS,
ALFRED CORDON,
JOHN BOURNE Clerk.

June 4th 1845-5-6m

LIME, LIME!

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they intend keeping constantly on hand, the best quality of lime, which they will sell low for cash or produce, at their kiln in Keegan's woods, in Brigham street, 1-4 of a mile north of Young street.

JOSEPH OWENS,
THOS. MENDENHALL.
April 13th, 50-3m

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS.

ATTENTION! GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, for lands or farms in other parts of this State, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a minutely written description of them, post paid, with their real cash value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.

Also members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this county, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description thereof, post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church, in this City to transact this business.

No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected, but when exchanges are made, a moderate or reasonable compensation will be expected.

Nauvoo, May 5th, 1845-1-3m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.

BRETHREN wishing to purchase Land, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's or the Mansion.

WILLIAM SMITH

ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this county, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.

May 6th, 1845-1-1f

CO-OPERS ASSOCIATION.

THE Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best of workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyrum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West rn prices. Persons willing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.

WM. EARL, President.
HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counsellor.
CYRUS WINGATE, do.
HUGH LITTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.

May 18, 1845-3-3m

PHONOGRAPHY.

GEORGE D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.

May 2d, 1845-1-1f

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WARE HOUSE.

general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo.

The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try. Ere you buy. Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.

April 7:49f

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

</

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 12.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, July 23, 1845.

Whole Number 16

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,
Editor and Proprietor.
At the corner of Main and Kent Street,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING.
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.
A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

THE INCREASE OF CRIME.

The fearful increase of crime which marks the present era in the history of our country, is sufficient to quicken into life the duldest sensibilities, and to awaken from their lethargy the drowsiest feelings of patriotism. Scarcely a journal reaches our table without bringing news of some dreadful deed perpetrated either in the heat of blood, in obedience to the dictates of a cold and settled malice, or from a fiendish and insatiable lust for mammon. The torch of the incendiary is continually enkindling to ruin and desolation the fairest portions of many of our cities, the most flaring and hellish outrages are committed upon the persons of the weaker sex, with a frequency which must alarm the stoutest hearts; whilst stealing and its thousand kindred arts to wrest from the citizen his honest earnings, have become the most common occurrences of the day. Almost every city paper comes to us crowded with the intelligence of robberies by fraud; the burglar has become almost as common an attendant of our dwellings as our house cats and watch dogs. The pickpockets are rapidly growing in numbers and are over on the alert where there is the faintest prospect of gain, and have carried their profession to such an incredible degree of perfection as to have become both in name and in reality a formidable trade. As for the instances in which goods and money are obtained by forgery, by false pretences, and by various other dishonest and disgraceful stratagems, it is unnecessary to mention them, for they have become as familiar to us as the items recorded under the marriage and obituary heads.

But our attention has been called to this subject at the present time, not by a desire to exaggerate the enormities of our countrymen, but to awaken their vigilance and to stimulate their energy in the great enterprise of checking the progress of crime. It is a fact in the economy of governments, which cannot be successfully contested, that education at large, is the grand spring of popular purification. But the benefits of this invaluable auxiliary in the work of human reformation, are rather too remote to serve our present purposes. We wish the lights of education to be broadly and magnificently diffused over our land, and this will silently but certainly correct the evil tendencies of our population. But what we desire at this time, is an antidote for crime more expeditious in its nature. We stand in need, in the large towns and cities, of a police augmented both in its numbers and vigor. We do not refer in making this remark, to a police which will ferret out and secure offenders, after they have already committed offences, but we mean such a police as will be enabled to anticipate them in the career of crime, and to rid the community of such noxious pests, through the medium of a preventive process. Every suspicious person who might be seen about a place, as well as every person who might be loitering about without some honest calling, and without adequate means of support, was immediately arrested and his case inquired into, and competent security required for his good behavior, who a satisfactory account of his character, occupation, and future designs might not be given, we are firmly convinced that there would be a visible alteration immediately produced in the moral tone and behavior of the vicious portions of community. This is not all; where persons have been tried for offences and nevertheless acquitted from a deficiency of proof, or owing to any other cause where there guilt was evident, if these persons were uniformly required to enter into bonds for their good behavior, it would tend largely to enhance the security of the public. And it would be well also to exact a similar pledge of fidelity to the laws of the country from those gentry who have served out their term in the penitentiary and afterwards come amongst us; as also from those who are known to have committed thefts and other breaches of the law elsewhere. Such a system of police would not only have a direct and certain tendency to relieve our cities and towns of the hateful practices of such wretched outcasts, after they had once settled in them, but its terrors would have a tendency to repel them from any place in which such a police might exist. Such places would become hateful to them in the highest degree, and they would in the course of time, rather wander amongst the Tartars, the Arab or the Cossacks, than to hazard the inconveniences of meeting such a police.

We wish it to be expressly understood, however, that we do not mean in the slightest degree, to reflect upon our own most vigilant, faithful, and excellent police. On the contrary we believe that every person at all acquainted with its character, will award to it the highest meed of praise for faithfulness, vigilance and energy in the performance of its duties. All we mean to allege, is, that should our police be augmented in point of numbers, and its obligations and powers be so extended as to reach certain cases which are not at this time embraced specifically enough, that our cities and towns would be cleansed in a great degree, of the moral abominations which now pollute and annoy them.

Thus speaketh the 'moral editor' of St. Louis Organ. The scripture saith, 'two unto the world to cause of offences'; for it must needs be that offences come; but wo to that man by whom the offence cometh!

Now all that need be said, is, that we live in the last days, and, 'while men kill the prophets,' the evils and calamities will increase. Punish the offenders against the lives and property of the Saints, and remember to 'do unto others as you would have others do unto you,'—and righteousness will exalt the nation; otherwise ruin will ensue.

—Reproach and endless shame,
Because you kill the Saints.

Letter from New Grenada.—The brig Chaires arrived at New York on Saturday week, with advices from Carthagena to the 2nd inst. All was quiet in New Grenada, and the new President was said to be making great improvements in government affairs. The session of Congress was over. In consequence of some disturbances in Guayaquil against Gen. Flores, President of the Ecuador, General Herran had been despatched with troops from Bogota to Puno, as a measure of precaution. Mr. Olmedo, who was at the head of the disturbances, had sent a commissioner to New Grenada to give assurance that Obano, the murderer of General Saca, would be admitted in Guayaquil, and requesting that the troops of the government might not be allowed to interfere in the matter.

True.—The history of the world is well as the biography of those who have played a prominent part in its concerns, teach one great lesson, worthy of everlasting remembrance. It assures us that it matters but little what form of danger may assail man, if he be true to himself. Poverty may lay its chilling hand upon him, and freeze up the fountain of his brightest hope—disappointments may meet him at every step—affliction may strike down those who are dearest to the heart—the breath of slander may attempt to sully his name, and tarnish his reputation—still let him be true to himself—let him maintain a stout heart and a clear breast—and he will eventually outlive the storm. Let those who are struggling with 'low birth and iron fortune' remember this truth—and let them remember, too, that no man can be destroyed by others without fault and weakness in himself.

Phonography.—The science of conveying ideas by sound in characters, is at the rage now; and, a still greater interest to apply it to Morse's Telegraphy will, it is carried out, at once, immortal both. The Cincinnati Chronicle speaks as follows:—

Morse's Telegraph.—More Despatch. As we expected, this system of electrical communication is undergoing vast improvements. Our townsman, B. Hurd, Esq., has taken up the subject, as we perceive by the following extract from the Saturday Evening Post, and promises to add new and wonderful facilities to this 'lightning despatch.' It has always struck us that some more rapid method must be devised for reading the ideas intended for transmission. Without this the operation would be limited, and consequently not profitable or popular. We shall in a day or two give a general idea of Mr. Hurd's plan. The report of the Committee of the Institute is expected soon.

Great Invention.—We are informed by a gentleman, in whom we put perfect confidence, that a system of phonetic writing has been perfected, three signs of which represent as much as can be conveyed in twenty or thirty letters of Mr. Morse's present alphabet. The system was investigated by Professors Renwick, Mapes and Meigs, a committee of the American Institute, in the city of New York, and they give it their unqualified approval. From this statement it is obvious that twenty times the expedition at present possible in writing these 'lightning despatches,' will be effected by this new process, should it answer the recommendations which it has received. The inventor is Benjamin Hardinge, Esq., of Cincinnati, and we trust that he will have an opportunity to convince the world of its practical utility.

The New Slave Convention.—The new convention between the government of France and England, and which has been signed by both parties, and the ratification of which will be exchanged in a few days is to the following effect:

The preamble of the new treaty sets forth that the Queen of England and King of France (the parties most deeply bound to the execution of this duty from their superior naval resources) deeming that the treaties of 1831 and 1838 have produced all the effect they were capable of as a desirous of forming another compact suited to the present emergency in order more efficaciously to repress the slave trade. They have accordingly drawn up the present treaty; to endure for ten years, unless at a period to be appointed, (which will probably be towards the fifth year) their mutual efforts should have proved insufficient and unsatisfactory. It is therefore arranged that a fleet consisting half of steamers and half of sailing ships, the number amounting to not less than 26; and that the naval force employed by England will be of the same character, calibre, and amount, exercising simultaneously due vigilance on the flags of their respective nations. Acting in concert for this object, each may visit the stations occupied by the other when convenient negotiating treaties with the native princes and chiefs for the suppression of the trade only, and bearing jointly the expenses of presents. &c., upon the conclusion of such treaties. Should the use of force by land or sea become necessary in the execution of the object in view, neither shall have recourse thereto without the sanction of the other. Notice will be given when the operation of this convention is about to commence, and from the following three months the right of mutual search must cease.

The convention is signed by the Earl of Aberdeen, the Duc de Broglie, the Countess St. Aulaire and Dr. Lushington.

Liberation of Dorr.—We hope, now that Thomas W. Dorr is again at liberty, the Providence papers will find something else to talk about. The Legislature has passed an act giving him an unconditional release. He is not to be restored to the rights of citizenship until he takes the oath of allegiance, which, it is probable he will not do. The Legislature will, in the end, restore him to the full enjoyment of his privileges, and Dorr very likely be the next Governor of the State of Rhode Island. So much for firmness and consistency. They are qualities which always befitted a man in the long run. —[Noah]

American Goods in England.—A London letter says that the Americans, not contented with supplying John Bull with beef, pork, cotton, tobacco, ice, woollen cloths, and numerous other articles, are actually sending over sheetings and shirtings; our 'cloths,' as they are there termed. The following paragraph appeared recently in a London journal.

'The American brown cloths are really substantial, and to the homelier part of a community, most valuable fabrics.'—Manchester cloths of the same descriptions are not to be compared to them; and although the import duty upon them be ten per cent, we could wish that our agriculturists would try them, and show thereby that a market may be found in England for American cotton goods as well as for American grain and provisions.'

Bird's Sweeping Paddle.—The Canada papers speak of this as a substitute for the wheel by which steamboats are propelled; and they give the details of its application to the government steamboat Experiment, now stationed at Panetanguishine, Lake Huron, in which they state the speed of that boat was increased, by the change, more than twenty per cent.

Remains of the Aborigines.—A few days since while the workmen on the Troy and Greenbush Railroad were excavating at the embankment at Wigan's kill, near Troy, the skeletons of about twenty Indians were found, and with them arrowheads and stone pestles, used for pounding corn. The relics were found three feet below the surface of the ground in a bank of sand. On one of them was growing a large tree, the growth of a term of years. The antiquarians of Troy have the remains, and a large report may be expected soon.

A great panic prevails in the neighborhood of Jackson, Ark., in consequence of the devastations made amongst the wheat crops by the wild pigeons. Were the boys of that ilk 'up to trap,' the panic would be confined to the feathered bipeds.

Canals and Railroads in the United States.—Some one says the N. O. Pic has taken pains to collect some statistics in regard to the wonderful progress of canals and railroads in this country. It appears from them that previous to the war of 1812 with Great Britain, there were no canals in the United States, excepting the Middlesex Canal in Massachusetts, 27 miles in length, which was finished in 1803, and the Santee Canal, 22 miles in length in South Carolina. There are now nearly 4000 miles of canals, which have cost at least $100,000,000.

The first railroad in this country was the short road of three or four miles in length, at Quincy, Mass., built on transport granite to the head of sloop navigation. Now there are no less than 4000 miles of railroads, which have cost no less than $100,000,000.

Whaling Fleet.—Our whaling fleet, says the Newburyport Herald, now counts six hundred and twenty-five vessels, the greater part of which are ships of four hundred tons burthen, amounting in all to two hundred thousand tons. The majority of these vessels cruise in the Pacific Ocean. Between fifteen and sixteen thousand men are required to man these vessels, half of whom go to sea for the first time as 'green hands,' and return after a voyage of a fatigue and hazard transformed into sailors.

The value of the whale itself is estimated at not less than $25,000,000, extracted from the ocean by hard toil, exposure and danger. The estimated quantity of oil imported into the United States is about 400,000 barrels, nearly one half of which is sperm oil.

A Wild Woman.—The Caddo, La. Gazette gives an account of a woman who has lived in the woods near there for the last three months. Her husband died in Mississippi and she came to her present whereabouts on foot. She sleeps in the woods, yet no one knows where, as she never makes her appearance during the day. The Gazette says she frequently comes to the house of Mr. Polk, at a late hour of the night, when they give her what she desires to eat, and after she has satisfied her appetite, retires again to the woods. She manifests, we are told, much fear of being taken, particularly by the Sheriff. She came on one occasion to the house of Mr. Polk, and carded and spun a portion of cotton thread to mend her clothes. She is the mother of several children, and has a brother in North Carolina who is wealthy, and who, it is believed, would gladly rescue her from her wretched condition. He is known to some of the citizens of this parish, and it is their design, we understand, to acquaint him by letter with her situation. She is truly an object of commiseration.

Sunday at New Orleans.—The News papers advertised 'Extra attractions,' for Sunday 15th ult. viz: 'Several fights between dogs, a bull, a donkey and bear; and in addition the celebrated European entertainment of the grand Pig Race, to be run for by several gentlemen, (1) and open to all fleet of foot, who can hold what they can catch.'

England's Expenses in Canada.—The regular annual expenses of Canada to Great Britain, is now not far from $3,000,000. The rebellion of 1838, cost her $15,000,000. The public improvements in making canals and roads since the Patriot rebellion, is over $3,000,000. The total amount of money remitted to these Provinces since 1833, is not much short of $42,000,000. This, however, has gone back to her to pay for British goods.

Movement of Troops.—Orders have been sent to General Taylor, at Fort Jessup, near the Sabine, to march the troops under his command, amounting to about 1500, to the western frontier of Texas. This is a judicious and well timed movement on the part of our government.

Mitrimony.—A few days since there arrived at Southampton, Wisconsin, in the steamer Empire, a lot of emigrants to the West, among whom were two pairs of twins. Those twins were born of different parents—but under the same roof and in the same house. Each pair comprised a boy and girl; they lived near neighbors from infancy, and the same day before starting west, they were united in marriage; the male and the female of the different pairs. They were from St. Lawrence county, N. Y.

A missionary states that the Chinese are supposed to spend $360,000,000 a year for incense to burn before their idols. So much for Heathenism.

Quincy Waig.—And it is fact, without supposition, that the Americans spend about $400,000,000, for liquor yearly to drink behind their idols. So much for Christianity.

THE MAMMOTH OF REPTILES.

In the county of Washington Alabama, not far from Mobile the fossil remains of a monster in the animal creation have been discovered by Dr. Albert C. Koch. We find an account of it in Dr. K's words in the Mobile Daily Advertiser: it has been called by him Zenodou Sillimanii, in honor of Professor Silliman of Yale College. Here follows a description of the monster:

I have succeeded in bringing to light the very nearly complete skeleton of a most colossal and terrible reptile, that may be justly termed the king of kings of reptiles. Its length is one hundred and four feet—the solid portion of the vertebrae from 14 to 18 inches in length, and from 8 to 12 inches in diameter, each averaging 75 pounds in weight. Its greatly elongated jaws are armed with not less than forty incisor or cutting teeth, four canine teeth or fangs, and eight molars or grinders. These teeth all fit into each other when the jaws are closed, and it is clear that the animal was of the carnivorous nature. The eyes were evidently large, and were prominently situated on the forehead, giving the animal the power of keeping a constant and vigorous watch for its prey. The body had members attached resembling paddles or fins, which in proportion to the size of the animal were small, and were doubtless intended to propel the body of this enormous creature through the waters of those large rivers or seas, which it inhabited or frequented. The ribs are of a very peculiar shape and exceedingly numerous. They are three times the thickness at the lower that they are at the superior extremity.

Burning of Raggett's Hotel, and Loss of Life.

Raggett's Hotel, in Dover st., Piccadilly, London, was burned down on the night of the 26th of May, and shocking to relate, so rapid were the flames, so speedy the work of destruction, that four persons lost their lives by this calamity—namely, Mrs. Round, the lady of the honorable member for Malden, Essex; Mr. Raggett, the proprietor of the hotel; his daughter, Miss Raggett, aged 27; and Mrs. Jones, a nurse in the service of the Earl of Huntingdon. At the time of the calamity the hotel was being occupied by several noble and genteel families who had arrived from the country to be presented at the Queen's drawing-room the next day. Amongst the visitors for this purpose was the unfortunate Mrs. Round. The Countess of Huntingdon has lost the whole of her jewels, exceeding in value £3,000, and the jewels of poor Mrs. Round were even of greater value.

Important from Washington—Removal of the Oregon Boundary.

We have already had vague rumors that the Administration contemplated a settlement of the Oregon question, on the basis we have already insisted was the just one—viz: the line of 49 degrees North latitude; but the following is the first reliable announcement we have seen. It is from a gentleman of high character, who is not likely to be deceived.—N. Y. Tribune, July 4.

Washington, 2d July, '45.

We have had a rumor for the last few days, that the Oregon question has been settled—the 49th degree being the compromise line. I have reason to believe it is true. H— told me this morning he apprehended it was so. Mr. Calhoun in his correspondence refused to entertain such a proposition. He contended for the 54th. Benton and many other prominent Locofocos will denounce the authors of it.

With regard to removals, they have become so common that they cease to create any sensation except among those immediately interested.

*One very likely to be well informed.
[Ed. Tribune.]

Salt.—The Oswego Standard states that the price of salt, at this time, scarcely pays for manufacturing. It has been sold as low as 86 cents per barrel. The cost to the manufacturer is 88 cents, i. e. 35 cents for the salt, 30 cents duty to the State, 20 cents for the barrel, and 3 cents for packing.

Governor Wright burned in Effigy.—The Western New York papers give an account of the burning of the Governor in effigy, by some of his own political friends in Allegany county, who took this strong mode of manifesting their hostility to his veto.

Chain of Magnetic Telegraphs.—A circular has been published by Henry C. Reilly, one of the agents of Morse's telegraph, in which is developed the grand system of magnetic communication to be established throughout the United States, connecting the Atlantic cities with the valley of the Mississippi and the Great Lakes. The line will be completed to the Susquehanna at Harrisburg in December and to the Ohio river at Pittsburgh and Wheeling in early spring at farthest.

THE AGE OF THE LADIES.

A pleasant, cheerful, lively, generous, charitable-minded woman in never old. Her heart is as young at sixty or seventy, as it was at eighteen or twenty; and they who are old at sixty or seventy, are not made old by time. They are made old by the ravages of passion and feelings of an unsocial and ungenerous nature, which have enkindled their minds, wrinkled their spirits, and withered their souls. They are made old by envy, by jealousy, by hatred, by suspicions, by ungiving, ill-bred habits; which, if they avoid, they preserve their youth to the very last; so that the child shall call, as the scriptures say, a hundred years old. There are many old women, who pride themselves on being eighteen or twenty. They carry all the characteristics of age about them without even suspecting that they are old women. Nay, they even laugh and sneer, and make themselves merry with such mirth as malice can enjoy—by sarcastic reflections upon the age of others—who may step in modestly between them and admiration, or break down the monopoly of attraction which they have enjoyed for a season, either in imagination or reality. Pride is an old passion, and vanity is as grey as the mountains. They are old women that have much of either. They are dry, heartless, dull, indifferent. They want the well-spring of youthful affection, which is always cheerful, always enlivening, which is a labor of love, which is calculated to promote and distribute enjoyment. They pine, repine, sigh and groan; they yawn and stretch themselves; they murmur, grumble, fret, frown; they sigh, snarl, carp and vapor. They go to bed in the morning, they breakfast in bed; they find fault with this and that, 'other' thing they make even their own children run away from them and take refuge in the cellar, or the back kitchen, or any other place that may rid them of the old woman. And the children on such occasions, also call them old, by an instinct of nature. Old woman, old lady, old grim face, old gripe, or any other nickname with the epithet old prefixed to it, is as commonly applied by children to bad tempered mothers, nurses, or aunts, as pretty, kind, sweet, dear and other youthful epithets, are instinctively applied to the good-humored grandma with her wrinkled face. There is an old age of the hearty which is possessed by many, who have no suspicion that there is anything old about them; and there is a youth which never grows old, a love which is ever a boy. A Psyche who is ever a girl.—London Dispatch.

U. S. DRAGOONS ON THE WESTERN PLAINS.

We have already mentioned the fact that Col. Kearney's regiment of Dragoons had preceded the Oregon Emigrants to the Rocky Mountains. We have now advices from them to the 4th of June, in camp near the forks of the Platte. They consist of five companies, amounting to the aggregate of 280 men. So far they had met with no interruptions. On the 24th of May they fell in with the Oregon trail, and after that passed every day some party of Emigrants moving towards Oregon or California, with their families and flocks and herds resembling the movement of the Israelites through the wilderness. The Dragoons sent back from the forks of the Platte, two wagons, which had hauled provisions that far for them, and gave them directions to disinter the remains of the late Mr. James H. Marshall, of this city, and take them to Fort Leavenworth, subject to further directions of the family. Mr. M. was buried last year on one of the branches of the Blue River, whilst on his way to the mountains for the recovery of his health.

It is understood that the Dragoons are following the Oregon trail, to near the South Pass in the Mountains, in order to make that road safe to the emigrants. They are of course, much relieved by their presence, as they no longer apprehend difficulty with the Indians, having such an armed party on the same road with themselves. The women and children are particularly gratified.

It is further understood, that the Dragoons, after going to the South Pass, will return to Fort Laramie, on the Platte—from that point cross to Bent's Fort, on the Arkansas, and return to Fort Leavenworth, on the Santa Fe trail, thus affording protection to the traders to that country. It is estimated, that the Dragoons will accomplish this duty by the last of September.

FROM MEXICO.

We are indebted to an esteemed friend, says the New Orleans Tropic, for the following interesting letter from his regular correspondent at Vera Cruz. It is one day later than our own correspondence published yesterday:

Vera Cruz, June 24.
A death-like silence reigns here at this moment, no business doing, except by retail and what is still worse, no money; the Navy and Military officers are all without pay, and some have thrown off their uniform in disgust.

The celebrated General Bustamante and family arrived here a few days since, in the English steamer from England, via Havana, and left some evening for Mexico. On landing, there was a disposition prevalent to proclaim him at once president, but it was suppressed by the military.

The Castle is in good order; it mounts 200 large guns, and has recently been reinforced by some 500 or 600 men. As it is in a much better condition now than when the French attacked it, some think it will be able to contend successfully with any Naval force the United States may send.

The late President, Santa Anna, wife and daughter, are still in the Havana—where they will remain until the old General has an increase in his family, which is shortly expected.

There will be a declaration of war in a few days by this Government against the United States. Orders have just been received to have all the public archives removed to Jalapa, which is sixty miles in the interior, for safe-keeping. This looks like making preparation. The Mexicans have lately received an addition to their small marine: three large gun boats, mounting each one 24 pounder built in New York, well finished and creditable to American ship-builders. They cost, with the arms, etc., attached, about $100,000 each. The new Congress is now in session. What they are doing or will do, is not known. The general impression is that they will materially alter the present tariff, the duties on some articles are so high as to almost amount to a prohibition. Their Turin, Priestcraft, and the frequent revolutions, have reduced these people to abject poverty.

Contra.

God, who never errs, continues to vex this generation for their sins, and, unless there is deep repentance, the joy manifested at the martyr of the Prophet at Carthage, will turn into ice, horror, calamity, fire, pestilence, famine, and war, that will penetrate all hearts.

ANOTHER THIRD OF QUEBEC DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Another great fire broke out in Quebec on the 28th ult.—just one month after the great fire on the 28th of May—by which fully a third of the city was destroyed. It commenced about eleven o'clock at night in the back premises of M. Tessier, Notary, St. John's Suburbs, and spread with unrelenting fury until nine o'clock next morning, and its course consumed about 1300 dwellings, and at the least, rendered homeless 6000 persons!

Human aid was of no avail. The wind blew fiercely from the Northeast. Water could not be obtained to any extent, and even when had it was of little avail, owing to the rapid progress of the destructive element.

About thirty streets were laid in ruins, from this fire alone.

The flames spread as during the last fire, from street to street, by the burning flakes scattered by the gale then blowing; for, as on the 28th, there had been a previous continuance of dry weather, and at the time of the break out of the fire, there raged a violent wind from the N. E.

The Quebec Gazette says, the scene of desolation, distress and affliction, and the extent of the calamity are nearly as great as after the former conflagration; the value of the property destroyed probably greater. The population of St. John's Suburbs was about ten thousand, and the population of St. Roch had mostly found refuge in St. John's Suburbs.

Quebec is now reduced to the Upper Town within the walls, the Lower Town from the St. Charles below Hope Gate to Cape Blanc on the St. Lawrence, the extent which it occupied, but then more sparsely built, after the destruction of the suburbs during the siege in 1775.—The remaining houses in the suburbs are about as many as they were half a century ago.

Fire.—At New Bedford, a fire broke out on Sunday afternoon, in the stable of Mr. Jos. D. B. Brooks rear of Water street, which was consumed, with its contents of hay and grain. Two houses adjoining owned by Mr. John C. Smith and Mr. Brooks, were very badly injured. Insurance on the houses 1000, which will probably cover the loss.

Loss of Life in Canada.—The loss of ratismen on the Ottawa river the present season is enormous, eighty-one persons having found a watery grave.

Singular Phenomenon.—The Martinsburg (Va.) Gazette states that the fire in that neighborhood are dying off in great numbers. They seek water, become torpid, and finally burst and die.—The same thing has been noticed in several other sections of Virginia.

A fellow has been arrested in Brooklyn, N. Y., for breaking into a church and stealing Bibles to the amount of $88. A spiritual thief that.

Dreadful Accident.—At Washington, on the evening of the Fourth, at a public display, the scaffold fell at the moment of a discharge of rockets.

Mr. James Knowles, a worthy and industrious citizen, was transfixed through the heart by one, and was instantly killed. His poor wife hung on his arm at the time. Some ten or twelve others were struck, and more or less injured; though, at present, we are unable to give the names of the unfortunate sufferers.—There were probably seven or eight hundred people congregated on the hundred square yards over which these mischiefs of death were scattered.

A colored woman was also killed; and Mr. McGee had his arm dreadfully lacerated,—two children were in his arms, which were also injured.

In the course of the day, another unfortunate accident happened at Georgetown. A cannon was prematurely discharged, wounding one of the bystanders severely.

Storm at Old Point.—We learn from the Portsmouth Old Dominion that a violent tornado swept down the Western Shore of the Chesapeake Bay on Saturday, June 28, doing much damage to houses, windmills, trees, fences, &c., and terminated its ravages at Old Point by overthrowing the splendid new Dining Hall just erected by Mr. French, of the Hygeia Hotel.

Fire at Roxbury.—The starch factory of D. R. Nash, and ten wooden tenements, belonging to James Card at Roxbury, Massachusetts, were consumed on Thursday night, 26th ult.

In some provinces in Poland, a dreadful famine is raging; and the misery of the people is appalling.

Fire.—This morning, says the Washington Union, about 2 o'clock, an unoccupied house belonging to Mrs. Baker, at the corner of F and 14th streets, was consumed by fire—supposed to be the work of an incendiary. The adjoining buildings were considerably damaged.

Extensive Robbery.—A carpet-bag, containing $10,000 in gold, in two bags equally divided, was sent by the American Exchange Bank of this city, to the Meriden Bank, Meriden, Conn., and deposited in the mate's state room, on board the steamer New Champion, on Saturday morning last. During the passage through the Sound to New Haven, some one effected an entrance to the room, forced open the carpet bag and stole out of it the big, containing $5,000, with which he managed to escape leaving the bag behind him, with the amount marked upon it. From the fact that the thief left the other bag, as a package of $2,350 in bills for the Phoenix Bank, Hartford, undisturbed, it is supposed that the robbery was effected by some green hand at the business—probably by some one employed upon the boat. A special messenger from Hartford met the boat at New Haven.—Information was speedily conveyed to this city, and yesterday two of the land on board the Champion were arrested but as yet no clue has been discovered to the burglary. —[N. Y. Tribune.]

STATE OF TEXAS.

The following official proceedings are sufficient to show, that not by might, and war, but by common consent we have gained the "State of Texas." We feel gratified at this easy method of enlarging our borders. Let the good spirit continue until all America is—what shall we say? why, after Mormonized by truth, annexed into a "perfect union," and so, we are the preceding:—

Resolutions assenting to Annexation were introduced into both Houses simultaneously, and almost identical in their tenor. The Senate passed their resolution unanimously on the 18th of June and sent it to the House. The House, sitting on the 21st, passed their own resolution unanimously, and sent it back to the Senate the next day. In the meantime, considerable jealousy arose as to which branch should claim the honor of the patriarchy of the resolution, and it was finally settled that the House should take up the resolution of the Senate, and amend it. The House then passed it in its present form, and sent it back to the Senate, which body concurred. The following is the Resolution as it passed both Houses unanimously. It passed the Senate on the day after it was introduced, the rule being suspended for that purpose.

JOINT RESOLUTION.

Giving the consent of the existing Government to the Annexation of Texas to the United States.

Whereas, the Government of the United States hath proposed the following terms, guarantees and conditions, on which the people and territory of the Republic of Texas may be erected into a new State, to be called the State of Texas, and admitted as one of the States of the American Union to wit,

[Here follow the Resolutions of the United States Congress.]

And Whereas, by said terms, the consent of the existing Government of Texas is required: Therefore

Sec. 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Republic of Texas, in Congress assembled, That the Government of Texas doth consent that the people and territory of the Republic of Texas may be erected into a new State, to be called the State of Texas, with a republican form of government, to be adopted by the people of said Republic, by deputies in convention assembled, in order that the same may be admitted as one of the States of the American Union; and said consent is given on the terms, guarantees, and conditions set forth in the preamble to this joint resolution.

Sec. 2. Be it further resolved, That the Proclamation of the President of the Republic of Texas, bearing date May 5th, 1845, and the election of deputies to sit at a Convention at Austin, on the 4th day of July next, for the adoption of a Constitution for the State of Texas, had its effect thereon, whereby, receive the consent of the existing Government of Texas.

Sec. 3. Be it further resolved, That the President of Texas is hereby requested immediately to furnish the Government of the United States, through their accredited minister near this Government, with a copy of this joint resolution, also to furnish the Convention to assemble at Austin, on the 4th day of July next, with a copy of the same; and the same shall take effect from and after its passage.

On the 18th inst. in the Senate, Mr. Greer introduced a joint resolution offering a nation's gratitude to Major General Andrew Jackson, which resolution was unanimously adopted.

On the same day, Major Kaufman introduced a bill setting apart a portion of the public land, lying between the Arkansas and Red rivers, for the payment of the National Debt; read the first and second time, and referred to the Committee on the state of the Republic.

On the 19th in the Senate, Mr. Greer introduced a joint resolution, relative to the introduction of the United States troops into Texas—read the first time.

Mr. Kaufman's bill, setting apart a portion of the public land, for the payment of the National Debt, was taken up, read the second and third time, and passed.

Mr. Lawrence introduced a resolution for the relief of Post Captain E. W. Moore; read the first time.

Commodore Moore has already been restored to his command. Congress probably adjourned the 25th of June.

We are informed that the propositions from Mexico have been rejected, and that the resolution inviting the United States troops has been adopted.

Memoranda of the conditions preliminary to a treaty of peace, as agreed upon by Ashbel Smith, on the part of Texas, and Mr. Cuevas, on the part of Mexico, and the accompanying papers, as submitted to the Senate by President Jones.

I. Message of President Jones, transmitting the treaty and papers to the Senate.

II. Letter from Baron Alleye de Cyprey, transmitting to the Executive of Texas the conditions signed by Ashbel Smith, and the agreement on the part of Mexico to accede to them as the basis of a formal treaty.

III. Conditions preliminary to a treaty of peace.

1. Mexico consents to acknowledge the independence of Texas.

2. Texas engages that she will stipulate in the treaty not to annex herself, or become subject to any country what ever.

3. Limits and other arrangements to be matters of agreement in the final treaty.

4. Texas to be willing to refer the disputed points with regard to territory, and other matters, to the arbitration of umpires.

Done at Washington (now the Brazos), on the 27th of March, 1845.

(Signed,) ASHBEL SMITH, Secretary of State.

Certified copy of the original, presented by Captain Elliot.

(Signed,) ALLEYE DE CYPREY, Mexico, 20th May. BANKHEAD.

IV. Acknowledgment by Cuevas of the receipt of these preliminaries through the intervention of Baron Alleye de Cyprey; and declares that the national Congress having consented that Mexico will accede to the preliminaries proposed by Texas, as the basis of formal treaty, May 19th, 1845.

V. Additional declaration of Cuevas of this negotiation is not realized on account of circumstances, or because Texas, influenced by the law of the United States on Annexation, consent thereto, either directly or indirectly, than the answer which is given under this date to Texas shall be considered null and void, May 19th.

VI. Letters from President Jones to Baron Alleye de Cyprey, acknowledging his kind offices in bringing about the negotiation, &c. &c.

To these was appended the Proclamation of President Jones of June 4th, declaring a cessation of hostilities.

The treaty was considered by the Senate in secret session on the 21st of June, and rejected by a unanimous vote, and the injunction of secrecy removed.

The following is the official announcement of the passage of the Resolution:

WASHINGTON SENATE CHAMBER, (Special Session) June 21, 1845.

Sir:—In compliance with your request I herewith transmit you a correct copy of the joint resolution, giving the consent of the existing government to the annexation of Texas to the United States, which has passed both houses of the Texian Congress.

Respectfully,
HENRY A. LEWETT, Secretary of the Senate. To A. J. DENELSON, Charge d'affaires of the U. States.

Arrival from the Mountains. Mr. Weston and several other individuals arrived this week from the Mountains, via Bent's Fort on the Arkansas. Mr. Weston went out for his health and returned with it entirely restored; he says he trained upon them for the last twelve days; they bring no news of importance, but it adds another evidence to the many we have of the salubrity of the great mountains and mountains; and that invalids can often regain their health by a trip to this region, when medical skill has failed to accomplish it. The time is not far distant when the springs and valleys of the Rocky Mountains will contain a greater number of visitors than Saginaw or the celebrated watering place of Virginia or Kentucky. Mr. Weston left Bent's Fort on the 10th of June. [Western Democrat.]

A PARODY.

From the New Bedford Mercury.
A life on the ocean wave!
A home on the rolling deep!
"Fried rattlesnakes" three times a day,
And a leaky old berth for sleep,
Where the grey-headed cockroach roams,
On kindly thoughts intent:
And the raving bed-bug cowers,
The way that the cockroach went!

A life on the ocean wave!
A home on the rolling deep!
Where Jack's ex-devout "salt junk,"
And the dainties the skippers can keep,
We're jacketed night and day,
A visit from fleetest night:
The hundreds and millions they say,
A gale—and the breakers in sight!

"What's the matter, John?"
"Why, Sam hove a bible at me and hit my head!"
"Well, you are the only boy of the family on which the bible has ever been able to make an impression. Cry us long as you please."

The Crops. The Baton Rouge Gazette, of last Saturday says: "The drought for some time past has dried up the corn and sugar cane. However, last week some parts of this parish were visited with showers highly beneficial to those in the favorite range. On some plantations one-half received repeated showers while the other half is withering for want of the same benefit."

There was twenty-five feet of water in the Arkansas river at Little Rock, on the 22nd ult.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 23 1845.

Rest and Reflect.—Now, that the nation has demonstrated its sorrow and dropped the farewell tear over the remains of the great American hero, Gen. Jackson, and has also sent forth, upon the breeze, the multiplied outpourings of joy and satisfaction, for the boon of liberty awakened yearly upon the fourth of July, we hope that the honorable men, the true patriots, the virtuous, the mellow hearted men and women that profess the religion of Jesus Christ, and finally, every one that really and sincerely means to maintain law and order, with a unity of effort, begin to enquire why it is that the blood of the martyred Joseph and Henry Smith has not been atoned for! All ears can hear the report of the curses, by fire, storm, and many other calamities which have come upon various parts of the land, and, to all human appearance, must continue the salubrious of millions, unless the Lord can be prevailed upon through repentance and prayer, to stay his hand for a season. Will the people ask him to have mercy? Will they?

All eyes can see the signs of the times, and all hearts can understand, and many people know the Mormons are exiles in their own realm—the boasted "asylum of the oppressed"—and if there remains one particle of the "spirit of '76," any essence of the "sons of liberty," and only fire enough of patriotism to find the old paths, the voice of the people will cure the country of national suicide.

"Why will ye die?" Oh Americans, why will ye die? And as sure as there is a God who gives sun, shine and rain to the earth in due season, unless a nearer is made for the innocent blood of the Mormons, shed with impunity, the wrath of an offended Creator will be poured out with mixture upon the wicked. Repent and live!

The Leather Spectacles.—Passing from our editorial closet, the other day, we saw a person with a new kind of "what shall we call them?" astride his nose. I put us in mind of old times, when we were young and went to school to an old countryman, we used to read our lessons, then, in "Dilworth's spelling book," and we either read in that book, or else the old country "omiser" said, that he "thim-maketh fun of the righteous shall wear leather spectacles," and die for want of bread when the Lord punishes the wicked for their abominations in the last days.

Now while we were ruminating this matter in our mind, "the person" we saw, vanished, and then came on the awful moment of thinking, and thinking, and thinking—what this strange sight meant. We thought of things good, and things bad, and especially the world in its present, unfeeling, unnatural state of supposed greatness, just upon the brink of ruin—and then that apparition with the leather spectacles came flitting or stalking along before us again—and, in an instant suddenly HE "that never errs" touched the eyes of our understanding, and we understood the "vision."

Now, to make a long thing short, we have only to cut it off, and the matter is accomplished; so with our strange sight: it was a full representation or fac simile of a lying editor, reaping his reward for duplicity and corruption in this world where he might just as well have filled the place of an honest man.

We could see through the smoke before us, and understand all about him. He looked very much like a beef's bladder, uncommonly transparent, full of phosphoric acid, and richly perfumed with sulphur, and as a fatid, surmounted with a potatoe head of the green-eyed American growth, ornamented with a Scotch "brindie," the legs and arms, resembled Dutch Bologna sausages, and the whole animal, gentle reader, held in his hand a newspaper, entitled the New York Herald, by me, JAMES GORDON BENNETT.

The apparition whispered to us in a melancholy tone:—"This is what I get for abusing the saints to gratify the wicked, and for acting the hypocrite, knave, and rascal in the world, when I kept my face 'oiled as if I was an honest man." And pointing his awful image of a finger he continued.—The Courier and Enquirer's Webb; the Louisville Journal's Prentice, and scores of other editors, for lying about the Mormons to make sport for a "wicked and adulterous generation," and for hypocrisy, smoothed over with an "oily face," will have to wear the "leather spectacles," and look and feel as near and wretched as I do.

The truth.—As a people, the saints have always asked the privilege of being let alone long enough to see what they could do, in industry and improvement. For nearly six months since the charter was repealed, with a little exception they have been let alone; and the country around, and Nauvoo, looks like a garden. The Temple is rising; the Nauvoo house goes ahead, and every thing the saints see their hands to prosper. It was always so; when they go for a Governor, he comes, and when they go for a president, he comes. The reason is, they know the truth.

Sad news from Carthage.—It falls to our lot to announce the destruction, by lightning, of a stable we chronicled as commenced near Carthage a few weeks since. "God, who never errs," sprinkles his hot drops where he will.

Removal of the Hodges.—By a unanimous vote of the citizens of Nauvoo, the Hodges are to be removed from the graveyard of the saints, to a place to be specially purchased for that purpose.

Our ally again.—We hail with joy the "New York Messenger" in place of "the Prophet." It is edited by P. P. Pratt and published weekly by S. Brannan. The true course for the saints especially in the "East," is to sustain that paper manfully. Parley will open the doors into what is "to be shortly upon the earth" with a view that must meet some eyes and touch some hearts, and we bid the concern God speed. Mormonism has the power of God in it, and the world cannot cope with it,—but on the other hand, it will cope with the world. So, go ahead and prosper. Righteousness will prevail.

A supply of the "Messenger" is received weekly, and will be kept for sale at this office, at 6 1/4 cts. per copy.

The Neighbor.—We talk of improving the Neighbor, but to do so it will cost several hundred dollars; and what is the reason that our friends do not raise a few hundred subscribers?—A little cash in advance! Say? Now's the time for friendship's offering. Now's the time for annexation! Let every man annex his neighbor as a new subscriber. We calculate to keep on hand a kind of news of the most improved patterns, manufactured in our own country, and a splendid assortment of foreign importations together with a choice lot of solemn warnings for those who can see (vil afar off) and hide themselves.

The Menagerie.—Hopkins & Co's Menagerie of wild beasts came in to the city in fair style about 1 P. M. on Monday, but before the last wagon had got under the "canvass," the Lord, "who holds the wind in his fists" raised such a dust as rarely witness in Nauvoo, and blew down the tents. This accident with the rain that fell to soften mother earth, spoiled the fun and the show. There was a sort of "seeing" at a trot; for the showmen did the best they could under the pressure of the event, but dimes, dimes, and dimes, how the "amusement" did modify their lower cordons.

FOURTH OF JULY IN NAUVOO.

We are informed by a gentleman who spent the birth day of American independence in that city of fanatics, that no one whatever was taken of it; the usual business of the place was carried on without interruption; a large number of persons were at work on their holy temple, on that day, and our informant inquired of some of the principal ones why the day was not observed; their reply was that they considered this no land of free dom, but one of despotism, and besides they had no part or lot in the government.

St. Louis, New Era.

Yet these men hold the controlling political influence in this congressional district, and the last two elections, the member now representing us was elected by their votes. How highly must the elective franchise be prized when the will of the people can be counteracted by an influence such as this? Is it strange that I should be disregarded and trampled under foot as they have been recently, when those who make and execute our laws receive their power from such hands?—Galena Gazette.

The above quills of the inner man.—Bricking through hypocrite's hides, make the Saints feel all over,—after having been robbed of one or two millions of dollars worth of property,—been murdered and exterminated by executive authority from the independent republic of Missouri; and after having had a city charter either given or taken surreptitiously,—besides the martyrdom of two of their best men while under the plighted faith of the state: yea, verily, the celebration of the fourth of July here, before more than other people; and throughout the Union except Nauvoo, the past anniversary, by the Mormons is all chaff; stealthily forcing our guns from us in Missouri, and taking the State arms, and cannon from us in Illinois, so that, had the "pimps" of the New Era and Gazette and those in juxta position, their mind, we might celebrate the fourth of July with "pop guns," vote as they said for nabobs to rule over us, and, "Pleased to the last we crop the flowing food, And it is the hard just raised to shed our blood" crying freedom! freedom! Of the blessings of liberty! If you lynch men to death at Vicksburg for gambling; or burn a negro alive at St. Louis; or massacre men for being Catholics and foreigners in Philadelphia—it is all in the way of Independence!

But to show our loyalty to the customs of Caesar, he will tell a story:

A quaker had commenced building an oven out door, when a man passing enquired why he put the "mouth of his oven in the west," for, said he, the wind always blows that way. Where would they have it asked Penn's disciple? In the south was the reply, and the quaker altered it to that point. A second man came along and laughed at the quaker for putting his oven mouth in the south where the wind always blows; and said, I would have it in the east. The quaker shifted it to the east, and two men passing along roared out in fun, to see that quaker with his oven mouth in the east, to catch all the east wind!—Where would these have it, inquired the quaker? In the north, by all means.—So the quaker took up his brick for the third time and began the mouth of his oven in the north, when, to his annoyance, a parcel of rowdies came along and began to curse the quaker as a fool, for putting his oven mouth in the north, as a stock hole for old B. r. s. &c.

The quaker, wishing to suit the whims and follies of the times, then sunk a nut ash tree in the ground, put on a cart wheel and built his oven upon it; by which means he could turn his oven mouth just to suit the notions and vanities of those that meddled with other men's business. So the world gave the quaker credit for outwitting the men that heeded nothing for the shadows, and so the saints, if they can raise cannon enough to celebrate or not raise enough to celebrate, the fourth of July, will do a little of both next year, to keep up appearances. Glory in God and freedom.

Go South.—The wealthy planters are already preparing to go to Texas, where Negroes, cotton and sugar will flourish much better than they now do in the old States. What the renegades, which, unwieldy of justice, have compunctious visitings of conscience, as to the liberal re-annexation of corpus populi, will do, remains a secret. Mexico and California will very likely catch a few birds of passage. Some folks love the frontier.

The Biggest.—One of our Manx or rather Liverpool Mormons the other day, was giving a western chalk line of a Seeker; the bigness of a year's corn stalk, when the sucker summed up the matter thus: we have the biggest country; the biggest corn; the biggest river; the biggest hot days; the biggest religion; the biggest peaceable city, and the biggest foolish mob, around us; there is in the world, and every thing keeps growing bigger.

Modest.—Says a pert young lady to Mr. Leggel, changing his name because it had leg in it. Mr. Runnet, have you corner papers? yes, but why call me Runnet? O says she, because it is more fashionable for ladies to attend to daries, than "races."

By a Gentleman direct from the Bluffs. We learn that the Superintendent of Indian affairs, failed in the attempt to treat with the Potawatimies, for their lands in that region.—Western Dem.

This is certainly good news. What does Uncle Sam want of any more wild land than he now owns? Texas is annexed; California can be Oregon will be coaxed into the traces, or trap, just as easy as Texas; and it will be as much as the "official nobility" of North and South America, and Great Britain can do, to keep Canada and Mexico from coming and doing likewise. Then why pay money for wild land and shove the poor Indians again a little further from civilization?

Why not let the Indians alone? a rolling stone gathers no moss, and the United States, if the government wishes to show a fatherly care over the Indians, must gather, not scatter, the remnant, and foster them by civilization and husbandry, otherwise, the world will think Uncle Sam like the old woman, wants only—all the land that joins his.

Can a woman forget her sucking child?—On Wednesday last a woman silly slyt off from the steamer Fortune, at the Upper Stone House, with a budget in her hand, which some of our boys saw kick. Shortly after she returned without the budget, but the steamer having left, she left too. About an hour after, as some person was passing a cornfield near the landing, he heard a child cry, and on going into the field, found the 'kicking budget' to be a fine boy babe apparently about two weeks old. The little stranger was immediately taken into better quarters, and named Joseph Corfield. We would thank the Gentiles to keep the offspring of their 'Spiritual Wives,' among themselves, and hide the sins of such beastly women.

The Epistle of Thomas.—The venerable editor of the Union at Washington, speaking of the awful calamity on the 4th of July, by fire works, thus saith: "There were probably, seven or eight hundred yards square, over which the missiles of death were scattered. Never before has it been our lot to witness so striking an exemplification of the truth of the scripture phrase, 'In the midst of life we are in death.'"

Now is Father Richie's quoting "In the midst of life we are in death" as an exemplification of the truth of the scripture phrase, meaneth any thing in the word of God, it must be recorded in the last verse of the one hundred and fifty first psalm, for according to Blackstone, ex Scripta, called the bible, has no such idea, and it would try the old Democratic Patriarch, to veto his epistle with lex non scripta.

Favors.—We thank Harnden & Co. for one of their Price currents of Liverpool June 19.

By the bye Harnden & Co's. arrangements for emigrants, coming from the old country are superior to any with which we are acquainted.

Another More.—A prophet, aged 19 has started up in Nauvoo, and announces himself as a messenger of God to many. Among other revelations, is one of especial warning to the Saints, informing them that Nauvoo is to be destroyed, and that the true Church should place themselves under the direction of the young prophet, and repair at once to California.

Let 'em go.—St. Louis Revue.

That's a false alarm. The Ton foot lives in Springfield, and has about as much to do with Nauvoo, as the editor of the Revue. When a drummer beat a false alarm they 'cob him' in the regular army, don't they Charley? So up button.

The Art of Navigation.—A lithograph in Providence, R. I. has published a print called 'The death of General Jackson,' which four years ago was made to represent the death of General Harrison.

Bennett's striking show occupying a page of the Herald, had served on some half dozen occasions of joy and sorrow—like some other scenery that answers either to laugh or cry with.

As to Bennett of the Herald, he is a case hardened Scotland pible, and you may say:—

O what has the Scotland pible in his waist?
A hanging over his shoulder!
He's got a four penny happiness brown loaf
A hanging on his shoulder.

Recipe.—For poking and purging a mong children, a friend says:—take 1 tea spoonful of peppermint essence;
1 " " strong pepper tea;
1 " " salt;
1 table " vinegar,
mix them well together, and give to children under a year old, a half tea spoonful for a dose.

Slavery.—All the religious divisions of the United States, are bent on squabbling about slavery. The following extract shows that the Presbyterians are getting on their long faces with the rest of the "Scribes and Pharisees."

Ecumenical Action on Slavery.—The subject of slavery was introduced at the late meeting of the general association (congregation) of Connecticut by Rev. Mr. Perkins, of Meriden, who offered certain resolutions on the doings of the Old School Presbyterian general assembly. These were supported by the mover and by Rev Mr. Boney (son of James G. Boney). Rev E. P. Humphrey, of Louisville, Kentucky, the delegate from the Presbyterian church, replied briefly and clearly, defining the position of the Presbyterian church, and the reasons for the late action of the assembly. He was sustained by Rev Mr. Andrew, Rev Dr. Tyler, and Rev Mr. Hall. The resolutions were laid on the table. Rev Mr. Dutton then presented three resolutions, one of which proposed calling the special attention of the two general assemblies of the Presbyterian church to this subject. After considerable discussion, in which Rev Messrs Perkins, Dutton, Hall, Dr. Dutton, and others, took part, a motion was made and carried, that the whole subject be referred to a committee of three, viz: Rev Dr. Tyler, Rev Messrs. Dutton and Perkins. They subsequently reported that the resolutions on slavery, formerly adopted by this body, beginning in the year 1834, and from that time down to the present, be drawn off by the scribe, and a copy be forwarded to each general assembly. These resolutions having been read, they, with the report of the committee, were unanimously adopted.

The Holistic Association of Nauvoo. meet at Dr. Younger's office on Saturday evening at 6 P. M. It is a good thing to look after health, a smiling countenance, painted by ease, contentment and cheerfulness, is better than a half eagle. Don't you say so Mr. while feelings?

"That Prophet."—Mr Benton's prophetic of the Missouri Reporter, thus records the doings of a day in St. Louis:—

"Recorder's Court." His Honor sent five persons to the work house yesterday, to work out one dollar each for disturbing the peace, and another, by the name of Alexander Gray, to work out $20, for having too much leisure upon his hands for the public good.

Look out for New.—Four steamers will leave England for America this month. The Britannia, Capt. Hewitt, is advertised to leave Liverpool on Friday the fourth of July; the Great Western, Mathews, Saturday the fifth; the Acadia, Harrison on the nineteenth; and the Great Britain, Hosken, on the twenty-fifth.

Go ahead, old women love tea, and tattlers news.

What Nuts!—The cows have begun to open gates and break into the gardens. There are but two ways to stop them; shut them up securely or kill them. Let every person do their duty, and save the gardens.

Mormons in France.—We hail with joy the news by the Arendia, that Mormonism has caught the nuptial way in France. The following notice of the fact appears in the "New York Messenger":—

"From our foreign correspondence, we learn that the Truth is progressing in France, several elders have commenced laboring there, and have met with a good reception. Some have been baptized and ordained. We understand that Elder Woodruff contemplates visiting that country this summer."

COMMUNICATIONS.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Nauvoo, Ill. July 17, 1845.

As an American, a patriot, a lover of Liberty, a traveler, an investigator, and a reporter, I feel myself called upon as an honest man, to give a correct report respecting the Mormons and their city, (Nauvoo.) Previous to hearing this large city I was taught to believe that the inhabitants were thieves, robbers, and murderers; that Nauvoo was a general reservoir for all villains and desperadoes, who would adopt the name of Mormon; that they lived in all turning in as common stock; that they were quarrelsome among themselves, and others; that they were anathema, &c.—but I here state that those charges, applied to the Mormons as a mass, were totally false.

I have travelled in the state of New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and the Territory of Iowa, but I have never found in either of them, so well organized a community as the Mormons in the city of Joseph, Ill. (commonly called Nauvoo.)

In the first place they have no law of their own to govern themselves, nor do they need any, for they believe in a God who rules the Universe; gives life with earthly blessings to enjoy it, and they believe that God has given them laws and examples to be guided by. The first law they endeavor to obey, is to do to others as they would reasonably wish others to do to them; To live long and do good; to seek for knowledge, and when found lay hold of it. They believe that as God has given them laws, to observe he will see those protected who obey, and those punished who do wickedly to the saints of God.

My business is such, that it requires me to converse freely with all within the bounds of the city, and I have not heard, by family or personal dispute on any point what ever, in an angry tone or air. I have not seen any man intoxicated or on the practice of drinking ardent spirits. They trust in their God for the righting of wrongs, difficulties and disputes which may occur between them and their enemies; and for all knowledge which will be required of them to secure an everlasting inheritance with their God.

I never saw so benevolent, neighborly, neighborhood as they are. They have no use for justices of the peace, though here are two I believe, who were elected by the people of the precincts. These justices, by having no litigants to decide for, have to work for their livelihood, as honest men ought to.

They are wonderful eager to obtain the most improved sciences of the day, and consider money (compared to knowledge) as dust on their feet.

The city of Joseph is situated in the western part of Illinois, on the Mississippi river. It is bounded on three sides by the river, and on the other by a prairie about 40 miles long and 15 wide. To look at the town from the bluff, on the Iowa side of the river, it presents a magnificent view, the buildings being very scattering and the spaces filled up with vegetables and grain. When standing upon their magnificent Temple, I have a view of every part of the town, and the prairie, which is rich and thickly settled. There are about 20,000 inhabitants in the city and suburbs and the houses are, (as it were,) factories. They manufacture hats, caps, bonnets, shoes, and many other commodities. Although I am not a Mormon and never expect to be, neither do I believe a better of their spiritual doctrines, yet I must say I have been better treated (as a stranger) by the Mormons, than I have by the citizens of any town of the same size in the Union. It will pay a traveller for stopping a week or so to visit this town.

M. B. HOBART.

Found!—The following reply to a very curious epistle was found between Carthage and La Harpe not long since. We give it to our readers for its uniqueness, at the same time begging of "Prince John" to write in "English," the people generally in these backwoods being destitute of the knowledge of the dead languages, can not translate, and of course, every thing in Logog-rap-hy, his to "bide its time," when by the wit of the author, like a whale's winks under water, are never seen.

To his Holiness the right Rev. and apostolic Majesty JOHN, Prophet, Priest and King of the State of Illinois and Iowa Territory, &c. &c.

Most Gracious Prince, I beg leave to inform your worship, that the first epistle of John written at La Harpe in the "Dokedem" of the "Triumvirate" by the 67th viceroys and within the immediate jurisdiction of one of the three "Imperial Primates over all Israel," and sent by the hand of an unknown messenger to the beloved Erastus, has been duly received, thoroughly examined, and its contents hostile and greedily swallowed, and the very great importance thereof duly and faithfully considered, and the epistle I am assured by the beloved Erastus will be kept as a precious memento and filed among the epistles and other important documents of the nobles and princes of Israel. Now there are certain items of this epistle whereof we wish to speak, and first there is much on matters of business, touching delinquent debtors &c., and very bitter complaints therefore, all of which were very edifying to Erastus, forasmuch as he was so much concerned therein, and was so indebted to your Majesty, and the people of your dominions whom you seem to represent; and forasmuch as you have manifested so great solicitude for the adjustment of old debts, the said Erastus would respectfully ask your candid attention to the cases of the delinquents Beck, Flagg, Winchester, Greenhouse, Bennett, Robinson and many others who have taken refuge in Pittsburgh, within the dominions of your "Imperial Primate" and your distinguished services are earnestly solicited in the above cases.

Again thou hast more than intimated in thy epistle that thou art in jeopardy every hour in the day, and thy life in danger of being taken from the earth, for what or by whom thou hast not informed us, but it must be by thy own subjects or those of thy enemies, for it cannot be that thou hast courage sufficient to lay violent hands on thyself how much soever thou mightest abhor thyself. But it is indeed the most worthy John that thy life is sought, nay, that thou hast even one enemy; thou whose time and talents are wholly devoted to the improvement and reformation of others, even to the entire neglect of thyself? Thou who with the help of thy friends hast rendered such important services to our city and people, in that thou hast gathered up and carried off all kinds of filth and carrion, and not only that which died of itself and already a junk, but also that which was sick and which had become exceedingly loathsome from overmuch vomiting and wallowing therein, and besmeared others therewith Oh! no dearly beloved, it cannot be—I it not rather that thy shadow has assumed some unwelcome appearance, or that the recollections of the past and the forebodings of the future have distracted thy mind; or has not some foul and lying spirit that infests thy atmosphere, or some frightful monster in thy dreaming moments disordered thy imagination. But indeed, if we really thought you were not mistaken, we should send you our pen knife, (the only weapon we ever carry) which we feel assured, would prove of some service in a case of emergency. But there are other things in your epistle which make all hearts sick, and all ears tingle that hear it, especially those who know your important rank and the extent of your influence, that is, the insinuations about exposures and disclosures of "little things," "big things," "wonderful things," "secret things," and many other such like tings too numerous to mention, and 200 witnesses and such "law suits as we never had before," 21 years in the "Alton work house" and "all that sort of thing." Knowing the great knowledge you have of all these things which you talk of exposing, and your entire innocence of all the evils of which you complain, and knowing also the influence you have over the officers and people of our common country we fear and tremble exceedingly, yea, our strength fails, our hearts are sick, and our very bones quake within us. Oh for he! dear Johnny we implore you to forbear! Just think! 21 years in the "Alton House" oh shades of departed spirits defend us. One thing more dearly beloved, we wish to mention, before we close this epistle, and that is, that the beloved Erastus wishes us to tender his thanks to your worship for your extreme solicitude for him and your earnest and pious exhortations, to repent and turn away from the abominable practices of this city. He is thankful beyond measure, he is even willing to go so far as to forgive you (though you did not think to confess it) of being guilty of the heinous sin of first of all mortals who attempted to teach and impress upon his mind, that heaven-daring God defying, hell-deserving, soul-destroying doctrine about which your sensibilities are so much shocked that your nerves are greatly disordered and your flesh as it were almost consuming from off your bones. I remain Rev. and Dear Sir,

Your friend and well wisher,
PRINCE OF ROTTERDAM.
22d day of the 3d month of the year 1, of the kingdom of God, organized at Pittsburgh April 6. of the Anno Domini 1845.

Military Movements.—The Picayune of the 6th inst. says: Our national troops are not inactive in the difficulties which have threatened the country from the Annexation of Texas. On the steamer Yazoo, which arrived here on the evening of the 4th inst., five companies of the 4th regiment of U. S. Infantry, from Fort Jessup, reached the city and proceeded at once to the barracks below, as was anticipated.

The 1st regiment of Dragoons proceeded to the Rio Grande by land, as stated they would do in our last paper, under command of Col. Twiggs. Probably before this paper goes to press, the 3d regiment of Infantry will arrive here. It is truly gratifying to note the alacrity of our troops, and the honorable zeal of their officers to reach the scene where their services may be required.

Fortifications.—A letter from New York to the B. lumre Patriot, dated on the 30th ult. says:

"The Secretary of war is here, and has been examining the State works on the west side of the Narrows, with a view to close them from the State of New York, to whom they now belong, for the purpose of erecting extensive batteries to defend the city of New York.

Iron, in some way or other, is now produced in twenty four of the United States and in one Territory (Wisconsin). Mississippi, Arkansas and Florida are the only States, and Iowa and the District of Columbia the only other sections, where there are no products of iron. So says one exchange paper.

U. S. Dragoons.—Expedition to the Rocky Mountains.—A letter, says the Mo. Republican, by Mr. J. V. Hamilton, who reached the city yesterday, direct from Fort Laramie, that the U. S. troops under the command of Col. Kearny, reached that fort on the 14th of June. The officers and men were all well and in fine spirits. Mr. H. reports that several of the emigrants to Oregon had reached Fort Laramie, in his way he met five hundred and seventy three wagons, and the attending companies of emigrants. They were all progressing well. No deaths or accidents had happened to them.

WANTED.

BY the Nauvoo House Association
200 Tons of hay,
10,000 Bushels of oats,
25,000 Bushels of wheat,
25,000 Bushels of corn,
5,000 Bushels of potatoes,
1,000 Cords of wood,
2,000 Dollars in cash,
1,000 Barrels of pork,
100 Head of beef cattle,
100 Horses.

And every thing else that can be made use of in building the 'Nauvoo House.' Apply at the office of the Association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets.

GEORGE MILLER, Trustees.
PETER HAWES,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH,
July 22-12

NOTICE

As my wife Emma has left my bed and board without any just cause or provocation, I hereby warn all persons against harboring or trusting her on any account as I will pay no debts of her contracting after this date.

JOHN WATERMAN.
Nauvoo, July 23, 1845:12 3 v

NOTICE

A Botanic Association has been formed in the city of Nauvoo, for collecting herbs and roots and preparing them for the good of the saints. Let every person secure health. And look out for the best pills. Off to south east of the Temple on Warsaw and Ripley sts.

JOS. YOUNGER, Pres't.

R. SHEPHERD, C. S.
July 18, 1845:12 3 m

CITY LOTS FOR SALE.
LOTS, belonging to the NAUVOO WATER POWER CO.—The cheapest and best in the city, are offered for sale on as moderate terms as a purchaser can reasonably ask.

The lots are beautifully situated on the bank of the river, where the most business part of the city eventually will be.

For terms apply to the subscriber, or to Mr. Edward Hunter Esq.
JOHN E. PAGE, President.
July 14:11

LAW NOTICE.

BABBITT & EDMONDS,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.

WOULD most respectfully inform the public, that they have associated themselves together in the practice of the profession, and will attend to any business intrusted to them in the state of Illinois, or in the Territory of Iowa. Mr. Babbitt will be found as usual at his office in the city of Nauvoo. Mr. Edmonds will be found at his office in the town of Keokuk, in Lee county, Iowa Territory.
July 14:11

COLE & PETERSON,
DEALERS in Hides, Leather and Findings, No. 71, Main Street St. Louis.
July 2-10 6m

FOR SALE.

A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main, near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 20 feet by 30 (two stories high). A good well of water in the premises. Terms low for CASH. Enquire of E. T. Benson on Monson Street between Palmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office.

BUTLER.

July 14, 1845—11—1f

In the Hancock Circuit Court Illinois May Term A. D. 1845.
State of Illinois,)
Hancock County,) ss.
Erastus Snow,)

vs.
Charles Beck,

NOTICE.—Is hereby given to the said Charles Beck, that a writ of attachment has been issued out of the clerk's office of the Circuit Court of said county, in the suit of Erastus Snow against the said Charles Beck, for the sum of two hundred and twenty five dollars, returnable to the May term A. D. 1845, of said court; that the same is pending before said court, and has been returned by the sheriff of said county, levied on the following described property, to wit the north west quarter of the south east quarter of section No. 17, in township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section No. 19, township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also one third of an acre being the north east corner of lot No. 1, block No. 13, in Wells addition to Nauvoo, being eleven rods on the east side; also served on John Lavigne, Truman Barlow, Hiram Fulk, & Ephraim S. Green as garnishees; that unless you the said Charles Beck, and the said garnishees aforesaid shall appear before the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court house in Carthage, on the third Monday in the month of May next, and plead, answer, or demur to the said plain's action, in judgment will be rendered against you by default, and the premises so attached, will be sold to satisfy the same with cost.

Witness, D. E. HEAD, clerk of [L.S.] our said Circuit Court and the seal thereof, at Carthage this 3d day of April, A. D. 1845.

D. E. HEAD, clerk.
A. W. BABBITT for Plaintiff.
April 5-49—1f

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor.

WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop a few rods south of the Temple, near the New York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coats cut and made for $1.00
Pants and vests " " 50
Coats cut for 25
Pants and vests for 12 1/2
and other work in proportion.

Ladies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms.

N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style.
June 11, 1845. 6 3 m

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.

April 7, 1845—49.

LOST.—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity that they have on hand and intend to give away a large quantity of first rate Lin, at their Kiln, near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peor Sarris.

All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c. received in payment, cash not refused.
JOSHUA BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.

May 7, 1845—No 1—6m

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.

E. D. and J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened at the corner of Parley and Hyde streets, situated on Mulcahy street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate to the Saints with the most excellent to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Crockery, in short all things that are daily wanted in our line of business, and having been engaged in the business for several years, we are competent to give a true and reliable quality, and also in price, we would invite the citizens of the city of Joseph and vicinity to call and see.
Country produce will be received for goods.
May 27 1845—3 n

NOTICE.

For sale or exchange for land near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 18 1/2 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinkneyville, Perry county, Mo. For further particulars enquire of

LEVI STEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845—52—1f

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best red and blue ware on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Pans and Sals, and a large quantity of which will be sold at a low price for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We loan of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufactories in England.

EDWARD K. FULLER, President.
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM DOX,
RICHARD RALES,
JOSEPH RALES,
ALFRED GORDON,
JOHN B. JUNE, Clerk.
June 4th 1845—5 6m

MORMONS AND ANTI-MORMONS.

GENTLEMEN, wishing to exchange Lands or Farms in Hancock county, for lands or farms in any part of this State, or in the Eastern Middle or Southern States, will please deliver a mutually written description of them, post paid, with the real cash value, to Mr. LORENZO YOUNG of this City, who may be found by enquiring at the Nauvoo Mansion.

Also members of our church owning lands in any of the above States, and wishing to exchange them for lands in this country, will please forward to Mr. Young a minute description on threefold post paid, with the cash value thereof, and it will meet with prompt attention. Mr. Young is the Agent of the Church in this City to transact this business.
No charges will be made unless an exchange is effected; but when exchanges are made, a moderate rate of reasonable compensation will be expected.
Nauvoo, May 5th, 1845:1 3m

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.

BRETHREN wishing to purchase Lands or Farms in this country, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's or the Mansion.
WILLIAM SMITH.
ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this country, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.
May 18, 1845:1 f

COPERS ASSOCIATION.

THE Copers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coping in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and inasmuch as we have some of the best of workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchant, and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyrum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the time.

We would also inform the public that we have immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West of price. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Liquidated property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.

WM. EARL, President.
HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counselor.
CYRUS WINGATE, H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845—3—3m

PHOTOGRAPHY.

GEORGE D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Photography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.
May 24, 1845:1 f

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR AWARE HOUSE.

general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo. The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try, if you buy.

Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7:49f

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

ALL persons having claims against the estate of John R. Ball, deceased, are hereby notified and requested to present the same for settlement to the undersigned in the city of Nauvoo, or to the Probate Justice for Hancock county, within nine months from the date of this notice, in order that the amount of a claim against said estate may be known, and authority to their liquidation if the estate be solvent.

SAMUEL BENT,
June 30, 1845:1 f 1/2 m Administrator.

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association, on Water street, in the city of Nauvoo, opposite the Joseph Smith store, the following articles, to wit: Coaches, Chaises, Buggy, Cabs, Carts, Barouches, Buggies and Buggy Wagens, Hearse, Sordiment, Trotting Wagens, two and four Horse Lumber Wagens, Cows and Horse Carriages, Saddle Trees, Harness, Carriages, and Threshing Machines, Horse Drawers, Railroad Cars and many other articles too numerous to mention, and as cheap as can be purchased in any eastern market. All orders must be paid for in cash, and addressed to GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq. President of the Association.

J. H. & W. RALSTON,
Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.

Will tend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.

W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.
Nauvoo, May 12th, 1845—3—1f

TURNING & CABINET MAKING.

THE subscriber, having returned to this city is prepared to manufacture all kinds of furniture of the best quality, and on the most reasonable terms, as cheap as the same articles can be purchased in St. Louis.

He is also prepared to do all kinds of turning in the most fashionable style, and having had an extensive experience in both the above branches, he flatters himself that he will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with their custom.

To his friends in the surrounding country who have heretofore patronized him, he would state, that he should feel obliged by a continuation of their favors. Shop on Main street, a few doors below the post office.

JAMES BIRD.
Nauvoo, June 4, 1845:5-3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business.

We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

Agricultural

CAOUTCHOUC MANUFACTURE.

This department of operative industry has, within a few years, acquired an importance equal to that of some of the older arts, and promises, ere long to rival even the ancient textile fabrics in the variety of its designs and applications. The manufacture of caoutchouc has, at present, three principle branches: 1. The condensation of the crude lumps or shreds of caoutchouc, as imported from South America, into compact homogenous blocks, and the cutting of these blocks into cakes or sheets for the stationer, surgeon, shoemaker, &c. The flutture of either the Indian rubber bottles, or the artificial caoutchouc, into tapes and threads of any requisite length and fineness, which, being clothed with silk, cotton, linen, or woolen yarns, from the basis of elastic tissues of every kind. 3. The conversion of the refuse cuttings and coarser qualities of caoutchouc into a viscid varnish, which being applied between two surfaces of cloth constitutes the well known double fabric, impervious to water and air.

The caoutchouc, as imported in skinny shreds, fibrous balls, twisted concretions, shesee-like cakes, and irregular masses is more or less impure, and sometimes fraudulently interstratified with earthy matter. It is cleansed by being cut into small pieces and washed in warm water. It is now dried on iron trays, heated with steam, while being carefully stirred about to separate any remaining dirt, and is then passed through, between a pair of iron rolls, under a stream of water, whereby it gets a second washing, and becomes at the same time equalized by the separate pieces being blended together. The shreds and cuttings thus laminated, if still soft or heterogeneous, are thrown back into a kind of hopper over the rolls, set one sixteenth of an inch apart, and passed several times through between them. The above method of preparation is that practised by Messrs Keene & Co., of Lambeth, in their excellent manufactory, under a patent granted in October, 1836, to a Mr Christopher Nickels, a partner in the firm.

In the great establishment of the Joint Stock Caoutchouc Company, at Tottenham, originally under the direction of Mr. Stevier, a gentleman distinguished no less by his genius and taste as a sculptor, than by his constructive talents, the preparatory rinsing and lamination are superseded by a process of washing practised in Mr Nickels' second operation, commonly called the grinding, or, as it should more properly be styled, the kneading. The mill employed for agglutinating or incorporating the separate fragments and shreds of caoutchouc into a homogenous elastic ball, is a cylindrical box or drum of cast iron, 8 or 9 inches in diameter, set on its side, and traversed in the line of its horizontal axis (also 8 or 9 inches long) by a shaft of wrought iron, furnished with 3 rows of projecting bars, or kneading arms, placed at angles of 120 degrees to each other. These act by rotation against 2 chisel-shaped teeth, which stand obliquely up from the front part of the bottom of the drum. The drum itself consists of two semi cylinders; the under of which is made fast to a strong iron framing, and the upper is hinged to the under one behind, but bolted to it before, so as to form a cover or lid, which may be opened or laid back at pleasure, in order to examine the caoutchouc from time to time, and take it out when fully kneaded. In the centre of the lid a funnel is made fast, by which the cuttings and shreds of the Indian rubber are introduced, and a stream of water is made to trickle in, for washing away the foul matter often imbedded in it. The power required to turn the axis of one of these mills, as the drums or boxes are called, may be judged of from the fact, that if it be only 2 inches in diameter, it is readily twisted asunder, and requires to be 3 inches to withstand every strain produced by the fixed teeth holding the caoutchouc against the revolving arms. Five pounds constitute a charge of the material.

One of the most remarkable phenomena of the kneading operation, is the prodigious heat disengaged in the alternate condensation and expansion of the caoutchouc. Though the water be cold as it trickles in, it soon becomes boiling hot, and emits copious vapors. When no water is admitted, the temperature rises much higher, so that the elastic lump, though a bad conductor of heat, cannot be safely touched with the hand. As we shall presently find that caoutchouc suffers no considerable or permanent diminution of its volume by the greatest pressure that can be applied, we must ascribe the heat evolved in the kneading process, to the violent intestine movements excited throughout all the particles of the elastic mass.

During the steaming, quantities of muddy water runs off through apertures in the bottom of the drum. In the course of half an hour's trituration, the various pieces become agglutinated into a soft, elastic, ovoid ball, of a reddish brown color. This ball is now transferred into another similar iron drum, where it is exposed to the pricking and kneading action of 3 sets of chisel points, 5 in each set, that project from the revolving shaft at angles of 120 degrees to each other, and which encounter the resistance occasioned by 5 stationary chisel teeth, standing obliquely upward from the bottom of the drum. Here the caoutchouc is kneaded dry along with a little quicklime. It soon gets very hot; discharges in steam through the punctures, the air and water which it had imbedded in the preceding washing operation; becomes, in consequence, more compact; and in about an hour assumes the dark brown color of stationers' rubber. During all this time, frequent explosions take place, from the expansion and sudden extrication of the imprisoned air and steam.

From the second set of drums the ball is transferred to a third set, whose revolving shaft, being furnished both with flat pressing bars, and parallel sharp chisels, perpendicular to it, exercises the twofold operation of pricking and kneading the mass, so as to condense the caoutchouc into a homogenous solid. Seven of these finished balls, weighing, as above stated, 5 pounds each, are then introduced into a much larger iron drum of similar construction, but of much greater strength, whose shaft is studded all round with a formidable array of blunt chisels. Here, the separate balls become perfectly incorporated into one mass, free from honeycomb cells or pores, and therefore fit for being squeezed into a rectangular or cylindrical form in a suitable cast-iron mould, by the action of a screw press. When condensed to the utmost in this box, the lid is secured in its place by screw bolts, and the mould is set aside for several days. It is a curious fact, that Mr Stevier has tried to give this molding force by the hydraulic press, without effect, as the cake of caoutchouc, after being so condensed, resists much more considerably than after the compressing action of the screw. The cake form generally preferred for the re-composed ground, or milled caoutchouc, is a rectangular mass, about 18 inches long, 9 inches broad, and 5 inches thick. This is sliced into cakes for the stationer, and into sheets for making tapes and threads of caoutchouc, by an ingenious self acting machine, in which a strait steel blade, with its edge slanting downward, is made to vibrate most rapidly to and fro in a horizontal plane; while the cake of caoutchouc, clamped or embraced at each side between two strong iron bars slowly advanced against the blade by screw-work, like that of the slide rest of a lathe.—Ure's Supplement.

TINNER'S ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned having associated themselves together for the purpose of carrying on the tin-plate and sheet-iron business in all its various branches, have taken the shop formerly occupied by Dustin Amy, corner of Young and Mulholland streets, where they are prepared to manufacture tin and sheet-iron ware at wholesale or retail, as low as can be bought in St. Louis or elsewhere.

N. B. For the accommodation of persons living on the flat, we have deposited a quantity of tin-ware at Messrs Oakley's store, where those in want can be accommodated at all times.

PHILIP B. LEWIS,
DUSTIN AMY,
JOHN MILLS.

Nauvoo, June 25, 1845:81f

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.

HARDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends, can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans.

Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase, from one pound sterling upwards, all the particulars of which can be ascertained by enquiring of JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent, Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office.

Nauvoo, May 1845—41f

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NAUVOO AND VICINITY.

SHOES! SHOES!! SHOES!!! The subscribers having recently opened a shop for the above business; would respectfully solicit, of the inhabitants of Nauvoo and vicinity, a share of their patronage. They for the present, design to confine themselves exclusively to the Manufacturing of Ladies and Children's shoes, and having had long experience in said business, have no hesitation in recommending their work as being as good as the best. They have on hand the best assortment of Morocco and Kid that has ever been in the city—prices moderate, and a reasonable deduction for cash. Their stand may be found corner of Parley and Warsaw streets, about one half mile east of the Mansion.

Also, an assortment of Leather, Calf skins, Goat skins, Lining &c., &c., for sale, on reasonable terms.

MEAD & RAGER.

Nauvoo, June 16th, 1845:83m

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, BOOT, AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.

THE Association is now prepared to supply the citizens with Boots, Shoes, Saddles and Harness upon the short at notice and the most reasonable prices. We invite a call from those who want to purchase such articles, because we will not be undersold by any shop in the city when the cash is present. The fact is we cannot be undersold because we manufacture our own leather and that of the best quality, and the workmen, both in the tannery and shoe shop, are the best in the western country, being principally from the Eastern and Southern cities and from Great Britain.

We will pay the highest price for hides in leather, boots, shoes, harness, and cash occasionally.

Remember the counsel to keep your hides in Nauvoo.

We will tan hides on shares.

General depot, three blocks east of the Temple, Mulholland street.

SAMUEL MULLINER, President.

ZENAS H. GURLEY, Superintendent of the Tannery.

July 1, 1845:91f

SEE HERE.

20 TON of hay, wanted immediately at the Nauvoo coach and carriage manufacturing association, for which good pay will be given.

Nauvoo, March 25-48-3m

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

HE undersigned will dispose of his Han farm for cash, or for a farm in Cook county, Illinois, said farm lies four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 501f

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses:—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 12 miles from Delville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO: ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO: About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO: ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO: ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO: ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3 1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO: A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI.

FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburgh, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO: A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs, situated 40 miles from Vicksburgh, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO: A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—491f

ALSO: A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Ragerstown, and 10 miles from Muncietown, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr Coulston of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15:50f

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.

THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.

May 23d, 1844.

WEEKLY PASSENGER STEAMER.

WAR EAGLE.

THE splendid, light draught, passenger steamer, War Eagle, D. S. Harris, master, will run weekly from St. Louis to Galena and Du Buque the present season, leaving Nauvoo every Wednesday afternoon on her upward trip, and on her downward rip, she will leave Nauvoo every Saturday afternoon.

For freight or passage, having splendid accommodations, apply on board or to C ALLEN, Nauvoo.

June 18, 1845-71f

NOTICE.

IS hereby given, that the undersigned will apply to the County Commission on Court at the next session, to be held in Carthage, for a license to keep a ferry across the Mississippi river, between Nauvoo and Montrose, Iowa territory.

DANIEL CARN.

Nauvoo, July 18:11c

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 qt. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.

March 24,—471f

REVISED STATUTES FOR 1845.

AND FORM BOOK.

THIS work has been issued at this office and embraces all the laws of a general character passed by the last General Assembly, and directed to be published in the revised code published under the authority of the State, also all laws of a general nature which were not revised or repealed, and have been continued in force. These laws have been published under the authority of an act passed by the last General Assembly, (a copy of which, with the certificate of the Secretary of State that the law has been complied with, is inserted,) by which it is made evidence in courts, and given the same effect as the laws published by the State. In addition to the laws, this work contains notes of reference, to decisions of the Supreme Court, and reference to alterations made from the former acts by the revised code.

There is also appended a full set of forms, embracing forms and instructions for writs, process, deeds, wills, notes, bonds, leases, indentures and nearly every instrument which is required in the practice of any officer, or the business of any person. The whole is accompanied by a complete and compendious index, much more full and perspicuous than that in the revised laws of 1835.

Agents will in a few days visit the various sections of the State, and will be prepared to supply the demand, either by wholesale or retail.

Price of a single copy, $3.

Publishers giving the above advertisement three weekly insertions, and noticing the work, will be entitled to a copy.

CHAMBERS & KNAPP.

St. Louis, July 7th 1845—11-3w

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from

the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.

March 18-401f

EARTHENWARE! EARTHENWARE!!

J. GROCOTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthen Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers; Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844.

no41-1f.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which, they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Aches, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

NOTICE.

PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his prices.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1,50
do	do	do	neat	2,00
do	whole	bound	plain	2,00
do	do	do	neat	2,50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1,00
do	do	do	neat	1,50
do	hf	bound	plain	0,75
do	do	do	neat	1,00
do	do	do	extra	1,37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	62
do	do	do	neat	87
do	hf	bound	plain	50
do	do	do	neat	75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.

Nauvoo, Jan 1, 1844.

LAW NOTICE.

A. W. BABBITT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and

Solicitor in Chancery.

WOULD give notice that he has removed his office to the corner of Carlin Parley streets, where he will always be found ready to give the strictest attention to business which may be entrusted to his care.

He would also give notice that he has the agency of large amounts of good farming lands, in the counties of Hancock, McDonough, Adams, Warren and Knox, which he will sell very low for cash or exchange for property in the North Eastern States, or he will sell the same on a credit of three or four years, to those who wish to settle on the same.

He will also give one of the best bargains to any one who would wish to purchase the large brick cottage and mills formerly owned by W. & W. Law, in the city of Nauvoo; said property must be sold and will be sold at a sacrifice; those who would wish to make a good investment of their money, would do well to call soon and inquire as to the terms.

Nauvoo June 11, 1845-61f

MERMAID:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET

FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis every Friday and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning;—on her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodations, may be expected from the boat and officers, as "plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity." For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent, for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-1f

OSPREY:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trail, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Egan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo

Jan. 1, 1845-351f.

NO WAR BUT A STRONG OPPOSITION TO FOREIGN MANUFACTURES.

THE undersigned would beg leave to inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general, that they have removed the Old Connecticut pottery from Iowa to the City of Joseph, one block east of the Temple, where they have on hand a large assortment of red and mottled colored ware of the best quality, viz:

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 43.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, July 30, 1845.

Whole Number 169.

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY.
JOHN TAYLOR,
Editor and Proprietor.
At the corner of Main and Kimball Street,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$3.00 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING.
One square, one insertion, 25¢.
Every subsequent insertion, 17 1/2 cents.
A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

A FRIENDLY GAME OF POKER.

BY SOL SMITH.

On the evening of my second day out from New Orleans, I found myself seated at a card table, with three of my fellow passengers, playing at the interesting game of 'Poker.' Card playing was a very common amusement then, (1835,) and it was not unusual to see half a dozen tables occupied at the same time in the gentleman's cabin of a Mississippi boat. I had sat down at the table for amusement, but on rising, at 10 o'clock, I found my amusement had cost me about sixty dollars! 'This won't do at all,' said I, thinking aloud—'I must try it again to-morrow.' 'Of course you must,' replied one of the players, who happened to be an old acquaintance of mine from Montgomery, Alabama, where he had been a jailor for several years, and where he was considered a very respectable citizen. 'You must not give it up so,' he continued, following me out on the guard—'to-morrow you'll get even.' I entered into conversation with my old acquaintance, whose name was Hubbard, or Hubbard—I don't remember which—we'll call him Hubbard—and he advised me by all means to try another sitting on the morrow. I suggested to him that a slight suspicion had crossed my mind that some of our card party might be blacklegs—in other words, gamblers. He answered me that the same thought had struck him at one time, but he had come to the conclusion that all had been fair. Before leaving me, my quondam friend told me that he had become a sporting man—he felt it his duty to inform me of it—but he assured me, upon his honor, (he would not see me wronged.) Of course I believed him, and it was agreed that we should meet again.

Next morning, soon as the breakfast things had been cleared away, I found Hubbard and a friend of his waiting for me at one of the card tables, and I took my seat with the hope of getting even, a hope which has led many a man into irretrievable ruin. I felt quite confident of winning back my losses over night, and my playmates gave me every encouragement that I should be successful. At it we went, playing with varying luck for about two hours. At about 11 o'clock Hubbard's friend left us for a few moments, to 'get a drink,' and the jailor and myself were left playing single handed. When the third hand left, we were using the 'small cards,' as they were called—sives and under; but Hubbard immediately proposed that we should take the 'large cards,'—tens and over, which I agreed to as a matter of course. One thing I have observed—my friend the jailor, dealt the cards without shuffling. This made me resolve to watch him closely. Taking up my cards, I was agreeably surprised to find that I held an excellent hand. 'Now,' thinks I to myself, 'is the time if ever, to get even; if my adversary only happens to have a decent hand, I shall do well enough.'

[The reader who does not understand the game of 'bluff'—or 'poker,' as it is more generally called—may as well leave off here.]

I commenced the game by bragging a dollar—my adversary went that and five better, I went that and ten; he immediately put up a ten and laid down a twenty, keeping his pocket book out, as much as to say, 'I am ready to go any amount you choose to bet.' After a moments reflection, (all acting!) I said, 'I go that and fifty.' 'All right,' replied the jailor, 'there it is—I go that and a hundred.' I here looked at my cards again, and affected to have great doubts whether I should go the hundred. 'Take back your last bet,' I urged, it is too much for either of us to lose; I begin to think I have been too rash—take it back, and let us show our hands for the money already up.' 'No!' said Hubbard, 'if you mean sporting, put up the hundred, or back out, and give me the money.' 'Can't do that,' I replied, 'I don't come from a backing out' country, so there's the hundred, and as my pocket book's out, and my hand's in, there's another C.' This new bet seemed to please my friend Hubbard, mightily. He answered it with a moment's pause, and went two hundred more! I now requested my opponent to permit me to show my cards to some of the bystanders, who were crowding around the table in great numbers, to see the fun, all considering me most undoubtedly 'picked up.' Hubbard would not agree that I should show my hand to, or take advice from any one. 'Play your own cards,' said he, reaching his hand over the table, and gently compelling me to lay them on the table before me. 'Then' said I—'you tell me if three aces and two other cards can be beat?' 'Oh yes,' he replied with a self-satisfied air, and using the spit box, 'they can be beat, certainly, but not easy.' 'Not easy,' I think, myself, replied I—'therefore, in as much as I believe you are trying to bluff me off, I go the two hundred.' 'You do!' 'Yes, I do—there's the money.' 'Anything better?' inquired my adversary, insinuatingly, and leaning over to make use of the spit box again—all the time keeping his grey eyes fixed upon my countenance. 'Why—yes,' I answered, 'since you've got me excited, I will go something better—I go two hundred better than you.' Looking me steadily in the face, he said, 'Well, you're a brave fellow, any how, for a novice; it takes all I've got by hook, but I'll go it—and if you'll let me bet on credit, I should like to back at you.' 'Spit-box.' Feeling confident of winning, I consented that he might go what he liked, on a credit, provided I should have the same privilege. 'Well, then,' said Hubbard, a little spitefully, 'I go you five hundred better—on a credit.' (Spit-box again.) 'The devil you do!' exclaimed I—'this looks like gambling; but since we're in for it so deeply, I go you five hundred—and a thousand better—on a credit.'

At this stage of the game the third hand returned, and seeing at a glance how matters stood, requested to look at Hubbard's cards. 'No sir!' interposed I, 'you must play your own hand!'—at the same time motioning my opponent to lay down his cards, as I had laid down mine. The carpet began to suffer about this time—the spit-box was disregarded. The excitement among the passengers was great, and my ears received many a whisper that 'he's licked.' Hubbard took a long and earnest look into my eyes, and said slowly but confidently, 'I go it—and—call you.' 'I suppose I'm beat,' said I, (hypocrite that I was!) I didn't suppose any such thing! 'But turn over your papers, and let us see what you've got.' With one hand he gracefully turned over four Kings and a Jack, and with the other, tremblingly 'raked down' a pile of bank notes, gold and silver, while a groan burst out from the spectators, who all seemed to regret my bad luck. 'You are as lucky as a jailor,' I remarked, as my friend began to smooth down the V's, X's, L's and C's. 'By-the-by,' he inquired, again resorting to the spit-box and looking patronizingly over to me, 'I forgot to ask you had?' 'Well,' I replied calmly, 'Perhaps you might as well see my cards.' 'Ha! ha! Oh, I reckon you're beat, my friend,' he answered, but we may as well see your hand at all events.' 'Here are the documents,' replied I, 'there's my hand!' and I turned over my cards, one by one—there's an Ace—there's another—and there's another! 'A pretty good hand, young man,' remarked Hubbard—'three Aces! What else have you?' 'What else? Why, here's a Queen!' 'And what else?' asked every body. 'Another Ace! FOUR ACES!!!' I looked over the table, and discovered the face of my lately-elated rival had lost all its color; tobacco juice was running out of the corners of his mouth; the V's, X's, L's and C's were dropped, and amazement and stupefaction were strongly imprinted on his features. A shout went up from the by-standers, and all hands were invited to take champagne at my expense.

It is scarcely necessary to say, that the money bet on credit was never paid, nor was it ever expected to be paid. My friend Hubbard recollected that he had urgent business at Vicksburg, and left the boat. It so happened that the stranger who had played with us, also disembarked at the same burgh, where they met with a singular accident—being promiscuously hung, a few days afterwards, by a mob! Hubbard did game, and spat upon the excited populace.

About a month after the adventure above related, I met a gentleman at Cincinnati, whom I instantly recognized as one of my fellow passengers on the 'Warren.' After inquiring into the state of each other's health, he asked me if I played any at the game of poker, lately? 'Not since you witnessed the game on board the Warren,' I replied. 'Do not play any more said he, assuming a serious air—'you are liable to be fleeced; I saw you were in the hands of swindlers, he continued; and when one of the fellows left the table, I noticed that he laid down a pack of cards he had been shuffling, near your adversary's elbow. As an experiment, passing by at the moment, I took the top card from the pack, and showed it under the bottom, by which means, you got the four aces intended for his partner, while he got the four kings intended for you, and thus the sporting gentlemen were caught in their own trap! Moral.—Poker is decidedly a dangerous game to play at, particularly with a stranger; but when you find yourself in the possession of four aces go it with a perfect rush.—St. Louis Reveille.

FRIGHTFUL ACROTICITIES IN SYRIA.

The following details have come to hand through a private letter, of the butchering that have taken place in Syria:—

'A civil war, and one of extermination reigns at this moment in the mountain between the Druses and the Christians, and during the last fifteen days the horrors we have seen perpetrated around us are dreadful. On every side the sound of battle is heard, and nothing is seen but fire and flame—houses, villages, and churches, and convents being reciprocally a prey to the flames.' At the moment I write, May 17th, we have before us the appalling spectacle of no less than eleven villages and a number of Maronite churches and convents in flames, and what is worse, when the Christians are victorious, they enter the Druse villages, putting to the edge of the sword, men, women and children, and are as ferocious.

All the silk-worms of both parties; the support of the Syrian population have been burned. The convents of the Maronites and Catholics have been burned, and the bodies of their priests, after death have been burned by the Druses. Every horror is practised on their enemies—for example, to kill by famine—massacre and a thousand other acts of barbarism are momentarily committed.

The Christians at the commencement were victorious over their enemies; but our Pasha, who is out with his regular troops, as soon as he perceives the Christians victorious, points his artillery against them, loaded with grape and compels this unfortunate sect to take to flight. The Druses immediately enter their villages, sack them, burning their houses, goods, &c. I do not doubt but the Pasha has secret orders from his Government to destroy and ruin the Christians entirely, or he could not so openly aid and assist their enemies.

The fanaticism of the Turks on the coast is daily becoming more and more visible, and we are menaced by a terrible revolution. In Saidia they rose a few days since, to massacre all the Christians, but thanks to some European ships of war, and to Resch Pasha who left suddenly for the seat of disturbance, a calm, perhaps momentary, has succeeded. Here in Beyrout, a rising also took place a few days ago, to put the Christians to death; but thanks to the energy of the consuls, and to some of the rich Turkish proprietors, a calm has succeeded.

'At this moment, with the help of our glasses, we see unfortunate fugitive Christians—women and children, to the number of 6000 or 7000, on the coast. Two ships of war, one French and one Austrian, and five or six small vessels, chartered by the mercantile body, have sailed, to collect and save them from the dreadful death which awaits them from famine. I do not know what so many people will do here to live; or what we all shall do, from the great existing scarcity of water, when the population of our city will be augmented by 15,000 or 20,000 souls.'

'This, you may rely on it, is no agitation. I do not know how European Powers can tolerate such things as abominations, or the fanaticism of the barbarians, and remain inactive, when a handful of troops, of any Christian nation, would suffice to cause their insolence to cease and to bring them to a proper sense of reason.'

'May 20.—Fire and battle continue to reign with destructive violence on all sides around us, and the news we have at this moment is, that the Christians have been obliged to fire on the regular troops, which places us in a very alarming position, as fear a revolution of the Turks against all the Christians, and we are now prepared, weapon in hand, to defend our houses and the lives of our families.'

Yesterday the Pasha wrote to the consular body that it was impossible for him to reconcile the hostile parties, and demanded assistance from them. But what can the Consuls do between two nations equally stupid, ignorant, fanatical, and superstitious? Our city is already full of unfortunate mountaineers, of the Christians, men, women, and children, dying of hunger, whom the Consuls here are constrained to support in common charity.

STRANGE PETRIFICATION.

A Mr. Woodward, of Warren county, said to be a man of veracity, gives the editor of the Eaton Register the following account of a petrified woman. It occurred near Lebanon:

'On the 8th day of last month our venerable and much esteemed friend, John C. Irwin, closed his earthly career, in the full hope of a happy immortality.—On the following day an appropriate funeral discourse was delivered by Elder W. Clark. His remains were decently interred in the grave yard near West Lebanon. Some time previous to his death he had expressed a desire that the body of his wife should be removed to this grave yard. Accordingly, on the 24th ult., the citizens of Lebanon and the vicinity undertook to remove the remains of Mrs. Irwin. I went, with others, in search of the grave. We found it on a high point of white oak ground, near Rock Creek, where they had formerly lived; and when we had opened the grave down to the coffin, we found it about one-fourth in water, and the plank of the coffin very rotten; however, we got several pieces of bark under it, to bind it together, and lifted it out. From the great weight of the coffin we were curious to see it opened, and, to our astonishment, there lay the body in full size. It was covered with a thin skin of black dirt, which appeared to be alive with very little worms, of a yellow color, but they soon disappeared when exposed to the air. When we came to examine more minutely, we found that the body had petrified, and nothing remained but the naked bones and the hairs of the head, and some feathers which had been in a pillow. Her arms had petrified at the elbow joint, and nothing remained of the lower part of the arms and hands but the naked bones. The feet had also petrified and fell off at the ankle joints—the legs appeared to be solid stone.—Around each leg, where she wore her garters—being a very fleshy woman—the garters had made a deep impression, and this impression was plainly visible in the stone, except some parts where it appeared solid. The thickness of the stone was about that of common Spanish sole leather.'

THE TOMB OF COLUMBUS.

Being in Havana in the spring of 1845, I went to see the spot which contains the mortal remains of this great man. These remains are placed in the wall of the Cathedral Church of Havana, on the west side of the grand altar.

Columbus died at Valladolid, 1500, aged seventy years. In 1513 his remains were removed to Seville; in 1536 they were transported to the city of St. Domingo; and in January, 1795, they were taken, with great pomp, by a Spanish squadron to Havana, and placed in the Cathedral. The particulars of this ceremony are related in full in the third volume of Irving's Columbus.

Since Mr. Irving's great work was published, a white marble tablet (about three feet square,) has been set into the wall of the Cathedral, to designate the spot which contains the relics. On the tablet is a medallion likeness of Columbus, in profile; under it is the following inscription, which I send you for insertion in what you were lately pleased to call your 'humble sheet,' with an humble request that you will send a copy to the historical society, where, I understand, your paper is held in favorable estimation:

'Ostendit e ymagen del grade Colon! Mil siglos duran guardados en le Oras, Y en la remanencia de nuestra nacion. Fct Habana, 1832.'

The following translation was given me by an officer of the U. States Navy, then in Havana, who, with me, carefully noted the paintings when copying it:

'O rest the image of the great Columbus! May it endure a thousand ages, guarded in this Urn, And in the remembrance of our nation.'

AN AMERICAN.

Patch on both Knees and Gloves on.—The following from the Boston Courier, is one of the cleverest essays we have met for many a day. Similar in style, it is not inferior in point to Franklin's best: When I was a boy, it was my fortune to breathe, for a long time, what some writer calls the 'breath of poverty.' My mother—light like the turf upon the form which once enclosed her strong and gentle spirit; was what is called an ambitious woman, for that quality, which overturns thrones and supplants dynasties, finds a legitimate sphere in the humblest abodes that the shadow of poverty ever darkened. The struggle between the wish to keep up appearances, and the pinching gripe of necessity, produced endless shifts and contrivances, at which, were they told, some would smile, and some, to whom they would recall their own experiences, would sigh. But let me not disturb the vale of oblivion which shrouds from profane eyes the hallowed mysteries of poverty.

On one occasion it was necessary to send me upon an errand to a neighbor, in better circumstances than ourselves, and before whom it was necessary that I should be presented to them in the best possible aspect. Great pains were accordingly taken to give a smart appearance to my patched and dilapidated wardrobe, and to conceal the rents and chasms which the envious tooth of time had made in them; and by the way of throwing over my equipment a certain savor and sprinkling of gentility, my red and tattered hands were enclosed in the unfamiliar casing of a pair of gloves, which belonged to my mother in days when her years were fewer and her heart lighter.

I sallied forth on my errand, and on my way encountered a much older and bigger boy, who evidently belonged to a family which had all our own dragging poverty, and none of our up rising wealth of spirit. His rage fluttered in the breeze: his hat was constructed on the most improved plan of ventilation; and his shoes, from their venerable antiquity, might have been deemed a pair of fossil shoes: the very ones with which Shem shuffled into the ark. He was an impudent varlet, with a dare devil swagger in his gait, and a sort of 'I'm as good as you' leer in his eyes; the very whelp to throw stones at a well dressed horseman, because he was well dressed; to tear a boy's ruff because it was clean. As soon as he saw me, he came, taking me by the shoulders, turning me round with no gentle hand, and surveying me from head to foot, exclaimed with a scornful laugh of derision, 'A patch on both knees and gloves on!'

I still recall the sting of wounded feeling which shot through me at these words. To parody the celebrated line of the immortal Tu—cu—

'That day I wore my gloves no more.' But the lesson thus rudely enforced, sunk deep in my mind. In after life, I have had frequent occasions to make a practical application of the words of my ragged friend, when I have observed the practical inconsistencies which so often mark the conduct of mankind. When, for instance, I see parents, carefully providing for the ornamental education of their children, furnishing them with teachers in music, dancing and drawing, but giving no thought to that moral and religious training, from which the true dignity and permanent happiness of life alone can come, never teaching them habits of self-sacrifice and self-discipline and control, rather by their example instructing them in evil speaking, in uncharitableness, in envy and in falsehood I think with a sigh, of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see a family in a cold and selfish solitude, not habitually warming their houses with the gleam of happy faces, but lavishing that which should furnish the hospitality of a whole year upon the profusion of a single night, I think of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see a house profusely furnished with sumptuous furniture, rich curtains, and luxurious carpets, with no books, or none but a few dry dusty annuals, I am reminded of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see the public men cultivating exclusively those qualities which win a way to office, and neglecting those which will qualify them to fill honorably those posts which they aspire to, I recall the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see men sacrificing peace of mind and health of body to the insane pursuit of wealth—living in ignorance of the character of their children who are growing up around them, cutting themselves off from the highest pleasures of their nature, and so perverting their humanity, that that which was sought as a means insensibly comes to be followed as an end, I say to myself, 'a patch on both knees and gloves on.'

When I see thousands squandered for selfishness and ostentation, and nothing bestowed in charity; when I see young ladies decked in satins and jewels, clasp the toils of dress maker, and with words embittering the bitter bread of dependence; when I see the poor turned away from proud houses, when the crumbs of the table would be to them a feast, I think of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

Mourning among the Poor.—When the husband dies, he is interred as soon as the grave can be dug, and the relatives summoned. The grave is commonly dug in his hut. If he die abroad, and it be possible, the corpse is brought home for interment. The widow, sometimes attended by her connections, repairs to the grave three times a day and there laments aloud. Some six months afterwards, the friends of the deceased are assembled at his grave to weep in common. They set around the grave, closely mantled, and cry aloud. The widow sits at the foot of the grave. This continues half the day. All the mourners bring with them a contribution of provisions, and after the cry is over there is a general feast, and frequently a dance and a ball play, in which, however, none of the relatives of the deceased take part. The only budge of widowhood is to lay aside all jewelry, and to her hair in a particular way. She wears her hair thus until her husband's mother (if she is living, and if not, then his nearest female relative), unties it, arranges it in a different style and adorns her with jewelry. The time depends on the caprice of the female relations of the deceased. She is then at liberty to receive other addresses. If she receives attention at dances, or marries before her hair has been untied, the family of the deceased discard her entirely, and a species of infamy is attached to her. The same woman might abandon her husband during his life time and elope with another man, without the slightest reproach.

A Marriage Portion.—A Hail to Farmers.—On the margin of a sunny lake lived a farmer; his shaded cottage was an object of pleasure to the mariner of the inland sea, and the traveller could not refrain his commendations as he passed the well tilled fields, rendered more attractive by the pervading spirit of neatness and order. A wife, with two daughters, shared the labor the farmer's industry was little more than honesty, capacity, and health. I need not paint the family circle in its devotion to sacred duties, nor its toil—the results will carry to every heart a view of the path pursued. His eldest daughter married, and he gave her one third of his farm, as her marriage portion. Notwithstanding this diminution of acres, he had the same quantity of products as formerly. In due time the youngest daughter married also, and he gave to her one half of what remained—and still the produce of his farm was not diminished. The secret was easily discovered—he applied as much labor and attention to the remaining one third part as he had been accustomed to give to the whole farm. Do you ask how this applies to any one of us? Let me explain. We divide our labor upon too many acres to afford sufficient culture to each; and we neglect the aid of science which teaches us to concentrate the various means always within our control, and their economical and appropriate application.

California.—The Washington correspondent of the N.Y. Journal of Commerce, who appears to have means of obtaining correct information, in a letter under date of the 3d of July, says:

Mr. Shannon fully confirms the truth of what had been strongly surmised before, that the British Government had got some hold upon the California. She has taken a mortgage upon them to secure the payment of her subjects of debts to the amount of twenty-six millions of dollars. Our Government has 1 year, official knowledge of this transaction. That Great Britain will foreclose the mortgage, in due time, I have not the least doubt. The fine bays and harbors of that region are of immense importance to her—vastly more so than the Oregon Territory. In the event of a war between the United States and Mexico, the California would become ours, unless Great Britain herself mingled in the strife, and under present circumstances, she would hardly hazard an unnecessary war. Her policy is manifestly to make a peaceful acquisition. She may, moreover, secure a lasting peace with this country by yielding her claim to Oregon, as she may well afford to do, if she has to have undisturbed possession of the California.

The citizens of Montreal had, at last accounts, contributed $40,000 to the relief of sufferers by the great Quebec fire.

Beethoven.—The most extensive preparations are making throughout Germany for the inauguration of the statue erected to the great composer, in August next. There will be a monster concert, consisting of some thousands of vocal and instrumental performers.

A young man, Dr. A. J. Trippe, was recently murdered at Elston, Ga., by A. B. Hoxby, son of Dr. Hoxby of Columbus.

AND-SO-FORTH-ANA.

We continue the chapter of calamities which continues to destroy portions of the American property, and life.

Dreadful Accident at Ithaca.—Three Persons Killed.—About ten o'clock this morning, the cannon was drawn to the brow of the hill east of the village to be fired during the marching of the procession. Gen. Boyd, an active young officer, who was one of his assistants, was dispatched by the marshal to execute an order to the gunners, and seeing they were about to fire, and being mounted on one of Mr. Anderson's spirited young animals, dismounted, and was standing leaping with his right arm upon the horse's shoulder, with his chapeau in his left hand, looking calmly on the scene, his horse being held at the bit by Mr. S. Benjamin, there was some difficulty with the match, and all eyes were turned to the handsome and noble figure of the young general, when a tremendous explosion was heard, and the promising officer was launched into eternity, in the prime and vigor of manhood, and his body was stretched, horribly mangled, across the body of his fallen steed, which had been stunned by a fragment of the gun. A piece weighing about thirty pounds struck the general in the left breast and caused instant death. Mr. Benjamin escaped with a severe contusion in the abdomen. In another direction stood a collection of men, through the midst of whom another fragment sped, charged with death, and selected as its victims two valuable citizens, Professor S. Quimby, and John Nix, Esq. Mr. Nix was killed almost instantly, being struck in the groin, the piece tearing the parts in that region, and laying his bowels entirely open. Prof. Q. was taken to the house of Mr. Davenport, when he fainted. He expired in great agony about 5 p. m. This sad event has cast a gloom over our village, and the rejoicings of the day were greatly checked by the occurrence of this unexpected catastrophe. (Ithaca Journal, Extra, July 4.)

A fearful tragedy, the result of sedition and desertion, took place in New Orleans on the 24th ult. As Mr. J. P. Pettway, a negro broker, was walking in the auction mart in Camp street, with a Mr. Knicker, a young lady of prepossessing appearance, plainly but neatly dressed, approached him, and drawing a pistol shot him, the ball entering his left side, passing through his body and coming out in front. Pettway was conveyed to his residence. The young lady whose name is Henrietta Blanchard, taken at once before the Recorder. She was told that she had killed Pettway. She replied that he had done worse to her. In reply to an inquiry why she had done as she had, she merely said "He knows"—adding after a pause—"This is a fearful tragedy, but he deserved it." She was taken to the Second Municipality jail. She appeared uncomposed throughout the day perfectly composed, betraying not the least excitement. There was nothing in her manner that indicated an abandoned character. The Be says "the unfortunate young woman was seduced by Pettway under promise of marriage—a child is the fruit of their intercourse, which is since dead. Pettway refused to marry her, endeavored to blast her character, and offered her money to be released from his engagement, which she promptly refused, demanding as due to her honor, the fulfillment of his promise. Finding all her endeavors fruitless to obtain reparation, and goaded to desperation by his shameful conduct towards her, she formed the deliberate design to be revenged, and so far accomplished her purpose as we have stated."

The young woman, it is said, is the daughter of respectable parents in this city.

Casualties on the Fourth.—Already we commence the dismal records of these annual calamities. At Bedford, Ohio, a middle-aged man, by the name of James, had one arm shot off and the hand of the other badly mangled by a premature discharge of a small cannon.

Fire Riots at Philadelphia.—The firemen of Philadelphia still continue to disgrace themselves and the city. A party of young men in John H. Gore's tavern, at the corner of Shippen and Fourth sts., were attacked by another party superior in number, and an outrageous fight ensued. The attacking party are said to have been attached to the Weccoco Hose Company, and mistook the party in the tavern for members of a rival company. John Peussel, John Sullivan, Patrick McNulty and Edward Williams a deaf and dumb man, were all taken to the Hospital more or less cut and bruised about the head. A fight also occurred at Parker's Garden, at the corner of Tenth and Washington sts., and two young men attached to the Mowmening Hose Company were much beaten.

Fire in Washington City.—A fire broke out yesterday morning in the brick dwelling at the corner of F. and 14th streets, occupied by Mrs. Bihler. The fire originated in the basement, and destroyed the building. It also extended to the two adjoining buildings on the east, which were considerably damaged by the flames. We learn that Mrs. Bihler and a servant, who slept in a back building, were with difficulty awaked, and were in danger of being burnt in the fire. It is ascertained that $4,500 were insured on Mr. Bihler's house, and furniture by the Potomac Insurance Fire Company of Georgetown; and the sum of $1,000 was insured on the two adjoining burnt buildings, owned by Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Baker. (Washington Int. July 3.)

Fire.—A house owned by Thomas Caney, in Mobile, Alabama, worth $6,000 was destroyed by fire on the night of the 5th inst.

Fire and Loss of Life.—A barn in Bucks county, Pa., belonging to Amos Pearson, was burned on the 27th ult., and one of his sons burned to death and another badly injured. A span of horses were also burned. The dwelling and out-houses, situated near by, were then consumed.

Court House Burnt.—The county jail and court house at Schoharie, New York, were destroyed by fire on Saturday, the 28th ult. It was set on fire by a prisoner named Wm. Briton, who was confined on a charge of stealing.

Fire at Portland.—We learn by Child & Co's Express that a fire broke out in Portland, in a wooden building occupied by a confectioner, on Exchange street, and owned by Isaac Sturdevant, which was entirely destroyed with its contents insured. It was probably, the work of an incendiary.

Fire.—The court house and jail in the parish of Point Coupee, La., was destroyed by fire on Sunday the 22d ult. A negro man who was confined in one of the cells, and who, it is supposed, set fire to the jail, was burned to death.

Gunpowder Disasters on the Fourth.—On Friday evening, July 4th, two inhabitants of Rome, Oneida county, New York, took an old bombshell that had some years since been dug up in that village, put two and a half pounds of powder in it, and exploded it in the midst of the town. One of the tipsy fools, named Williams, escaped death, but his face and arm were lacerated and shockingly burned. The fragments of the bomb were thrown in all directions. Two boys of twelve or thirteen years of age, one the son of Winslow Clark and the other of Mr. O'Neil, were severely wounded.

At Syracuse, the daughter of John Spencer, Esq., was killed almost instantly, on the 4th instant, by the discharge of a cannon. The accident occurred at a picnic.

Fourth of July Accidents.—A man named Gimes, while assisting to fire a national salute in honor of the Fourth of July, at the Canal wharf, below the Navy Yard, had one of his arms shattered by the premature discharge of the piece.

On Thursday evening, while some men were firing a salute in honor of the approaching anniversary of American independence, a young man named Robert Ference had one of his hands torn off. At Georgetown, D. C., a man had his arms blown off on the 4th.—(Phil. Inq. July 7.)

Late from Havana.—A dreadful fire at Matanzas occurred on the 25th ultimo, which burned the best part of the town, and with it, a large amount of goods were also consumed. This disaster has left a large number of persons houseless and penniless. We are glad to learn that subscription lists for the relief of the sufferers, were immediately opened in all parts of Cuba headed by Governor O'Connell.

Fearful Excitement in New Castle, Delaware.—Military called out.—We learn by a gentleman from New Castle, Del., that the people in that place are in a state of great excitement. It appears, that on the 20th ultimo, W. Chase Barney, who has been for some time paying his addresses to the daughter of Chief Justice Booth, went to the house of her father, and after some conversation with him—the old gentleman forbid him again visiting the house. Barney then asked to see the young lady, and under pretence of carrying her father's wishes into effect, induced her to go with him to Wilmington. Mr. Barney—who is a Roman Catholic—took her to the Priest, for the purpose, as he said, of removing some imputation in his character. The Priest went through some of his ceremonies, when a brother of Barney told Miss Booth that she was married. The lady soon realized her situation. Barney wished to take her to his residence, but she refused to accompany him, and demanded him to take her back to her father's house, which was done.

Thus matters remained until yesterday week, when Barney went to chief Justice Booth, and demanded his daughter—saying that she was his wife. This intelligence, as may be supposed, greatly surprised chief Justice Booth; and on questioning Barney, he found the name of the Priest who married them, whom he summoned to answer for violating the law of the State in performing a marriage ceremony without a license. The Priest maintained a dogged silence, refusing to answer any questions.

As soon as the matter was bruited about, the citizens became highly incensed at the reprehensible conduct of the Priest, and yesterday, matters assumed such a serious aspect, that the troops were ordered out to prevent an outbreak.

The marriage, of course, is not a legal one. Miss Booth is a member of the Episcopal church, and heiress to a considerable amount of property. (Phil. Newspaper.)

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1845.

The Steeple of the Temple.—The roof of the Temple being on, we took a tour up in the steeple thereof last week for the purpose of looking over the beautiful country around Nauvoo, as well as the city. The day was fine, and the view grand; it seemed like climbing to the masthead of a vessel, and surveying the vast blue deep below. It was an expanse of gardens and grainfields, exhibiting the bounty of Providence, and the reward of industry, adorned by the habitations of the saints, whose daily prayers ascend to heaven to be bottled up as a testimony that a few try to have the will of God done on earth as in heaven.

By way of news, too, it may be well to say that the steeple of the Temple will be a grand observatory for those that wish to delight the eye. Its height may be calculated as follows:

From the ground to the top of the eaves.	60 feet.
From the eaves to the top of the attic story.	101 do.
Tower.	124 do.
Belfry.	20 do.
Clock section.	10 do.
Observatory.	16 do.
Dome.	134 do.
Balls and rod.	10 do.
Total.	1584 feet.

130 feet of which is now raised.

Sunday Morning in Nauvoo.—On Sunday morning last, we stepped out about seven to observe the beautiful prospect around, and see what was going on. Being near the foot of Main street, we saw an elderly going into the Mississippi to baptize a person. He commenced his service with "having authority from Jesus Christ,"—well, said we, no sectarianism in that. At his instant a most mellow strain from a female voice struck our ears: "Cease ye, mourners, cease to languish, O'er the grave of those you love; Pain and death, and night and anguish, Enter not the world above." There was not a cloud in the sky, nor a drunkard in the streets; the hum of business was hushed, and if ever they entered the heavens, and the earth was full of his blessings, it was in Nauvoo now.

Symptoms of English blood.—The N. Y. Tribune is writing because Texas is annexed to the United States. The editor, Greely, must be troubled with a few drops of the blood of old "North and Free!" invigorated occasionally by the breathings of Sir Robert Peel. But I ask Horace, "Texas is married in spite of legation."

Singular, decidedly so.—While the west is best with one of the finest and most prolific seasons, now in the recollection of that man that always lives, "the oldest inhabitant," many places in the United States are suffering with "kind of distressing calamity. In South Carolina there is now such a drought as has never been known by that oldest inhabitant. The Hanover river has nearly dried up, and vegetation and the trees begin to wither.

On the 15th, the thermometer, at Cleveland, stood at 104° in the shade, and 120° in the sun. The first of June there was frost in that section. The change from cold snaps to Nebuchadnezzaring is singular, decidedly so.

Gambling.—On our first page is a chapter on gambling; and perhaps it may not be amiss, while upon the subject, to show our disapprobation of this national sin. Our laws and the laws of God, are made for transgressors, and, with the exception of murder, no crime works more evil to the human family than gambling. It brings drunkenness, lying, hatred, duelling, debauchery, wretchedness, and ruin, and where is the law? Talk about civilizing savages, and converting the heathen, only let humanity look upon a steamboat, with a "pleasure party" gambling for life, for each other's money; or peep into the hotels of our large towns, and watch the severe lessons which gentlemen of honor receive; one another, not only of a "little loose change," but of ALL; and then laugh at the victim, who in nine tenths of the cases, seeks a remedy in the "digger or the bowl." Should our country continue to degenerate, and cultivate the great national vices, of gambling, duelling, profanity, and fornication as dexterously for ten years to come, as it has for the same length of time past, America will justly become the "black hole of the world." All gamblers should be banished, by the voice of the people, to the bottom of the sea.

Texas.—No more of policy, by the United States since she was a government, red, etc. more honor, among wise men of other nations, than the annexation of Texas. It is a glorious method of extending the borders of a free government by common consent of parties, and states by the voice of the people, and gaining territory by "public opinion." The principles of annexation, by common consent, like the pillars of the throne, are a perfect remedy to cure the "shillings" in such sycophantic demagogues, as Van Buren and Clay, and their satellites, who opposed the plan for no other reason, than office. It is to be hoped that a great nation, will let them descend in their degradation, covered with the seeds of their treachery, to rot in their corruption, as a warning to freemen, to beware of public high-way-men!

Let the good work of joining hands, with contiguous nations and territories continue, until there is "an union of all honest men," and let the plaster of purification continue to be spread out till all that can be cured are made whole, and then all such animals of prey, as Clay, Van Buren, Benton, and others of the same kennel, who are beyond the reach of medicine, may silently drop into the oubliett, unmourning, unhonored, unwept. There is nothing on earth that should be respected more than the voice of a virtuous people. When they say "come, Texas," like the prophet Joseph Smith, "Texas comes, and it echoes throughout the world, like the voice of God, and kings, potentates, and presidents obey. Sic Semper Libertate.

Original.—The weekly Reveille of St. Louis has come out with an original in the head rather funny; and to cap the climax, the original matter of the Nauvoo Neighbor in an article relative to God's feeding 800,000,000 applying the Lord's prayer; and article upon "it" "that" is adopted as original. A Pioneer would say, that is tossing up a punch and turning heads every time, because the Yankee's copper half head in both sides. All right. If the Reveille will continue to do our Editorial colleague, Jim Polk, will soon annex the

That closer again.—We perceive among other extraordinary symptoms of crowding in Nauvoo, that that closer of is being mowed the second time this season. This is capital, and if the weather holds out moist and favorable it will mow it well to mow it twice more, before it comes.

Kingly move.—It is rumored that Rigdon's "guinea fowls" are all caged in, and unknown, though it is reported by some, that the "Harem" at Pittsburg is to be vacated for a "seraglio" at Chambersburg. "Tis not the foaming wave above, but the sinking ship, but that dead swell below, is death."

Visitors.—Visitors, in our "metropolis," is among the commonest meetings of the day; and who should we "shake the hand of" among them, but J. M. Peck, Esq. of the Reveille. Well, we like fine fields of grain when they don't blast, and why not fair fields of words when they are not sharp or smut among the Mormons.

That Prophet.—Benton's bob-tailed prophet and the Missouri are charged by the Cincinnati Enquirer, with "disorganizing the democrats." That's nothing. There were to be false prophets in the last days.

State hint.—The motto on the State flag of Florida, is, "Let us alone."

Another State hint.—The motto flag for the state of Texas, should be "Every log has his day."

And yet another State hint.—The motto flag for Oregon, matured, ought to be "When England weighs with the heavier hook, the Yankee's foot's a balance."

The last.—Canada ought to use this motto on her coat of arms: "Does your mother know your out."

Army.—The United States troops are concentrated in Texas. Gen. Taylor has the command.

Figures.—A young gentleman from New York is teaching our youth a few lessons as an improvement in "the art of calculating by numbers." 'Tis a good thing to bring forth the strong reasons, and learn the whys and the wherefores in all matters that concern temporal things. We therefore, say to Mr. Hobart figure away, and bring forth a "line or two from the fountain of eternal wisdom, where, from eternity to eternity," is only seven years with God, and is as truly known in figures, as the days in one of our common years.

Shoe Pegs.—The London correspondent of the Boston Atlas says, the packet ship York-hire, recently arrived at Liverpool, from New York, brought two nifty five hundred hides, and ten casks of Yankee shoe pegs.

Pretty good for Jonathan. If the civil war is only managed right, the United States will furnish John Bull with a pair of "fish-bone boots," so highly polished that a Frenchman can see his face in them, and yet they will be impervious to the dew of Germany, or the rains of Russia. Go it boots.

New Proverb.—Instead of saying that "charity hides a multitude of sins," such editors as Bennett of the N. Y. Herald, says, "Hide old spots with better blacking."

Waiting for War.—Santa Anna has taken a residence about nine miles from Havana, and supplies his services will come in play, in the course of 8 or 9 months, again in Mexico. Let him wait.

Western Antiquities.—From an ordinance, by the board of Trustees for the town of St. Joseph, Buchanan co. Mo., situated on the Missouri River, in the north-west corner of the State, we take the following extract:

"Sec. 1. That if any slave, shall commit manslaughter or an assault and battery upon any white person, or upon any free person of color, or upon any slave, or shall be concerned in any riot, rout or unlawful assembly, within the corporate limits of the town of St. Joseph, he shall on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace for Washington town-ship, in Buchanan county, receive on his or her bare back, any number of lashes not exceeding thirty-nine to be laid on by the constable of the town of St. Joseph, or by any other person, by the justice for that purpose appointed."

If Nauvoo should do the like, would not there be a cry of treason at "sixteen mile oint?"

PAINFUL. Another Session among the Quakers who would have thought it "our old pal" Quakers split again. Is it for the meddling of the state that they come certainly, to know that they go better when both together. The session is called Wilburites, who number about 120. The revolt took place at the last yearly meeting in Newmarket, R. I.

N. Y. Messenger. Not very painful, fairly, but disagreeable. Every sect, among the sectarian churches is considered by them a triumph of rights, and every jinx in politics is rampant forth as a triumph of principle, in the eyes of honest men and God, such scrambles for power, exhibit the corruption of the heart and the disgrace of an abandoned people. Let them go it, sorebacked horses generally kick up.

Rapids.—The water is so low on the rapids, that evident signs appear, as a token, that the bottom of the river is coming nearer the top. The boats begin to hang on the chains.

Winnehagoes.—Gov. Henry Dodge has recently been endeavoring to effect a treaty with the Winnehago Indians, for what is called the "Neutral Ground." The Indians refused to treat, in explicit and positive terms, because the U. S. Government insisted that they should remove south-west of Missouri. The same offer has been made several times by the United States. They requested that the same proposition may not be submitted to them again.—Republicans.

What a fine thing it will be for both parties, if the Indians will let the United States alone, and the United States let the Indians alone. As matters now go on, a parcel of heartless shavers are guilting the Indians of what little they have left, after being wasted to remnants. If they will now be governed by the golden rule of the United States, they will keep what they have got, and get what they can.

New Paper in Religion.—Ross and Henry of St. Louis, have issued a new paper entitled "The Religious Counterfeit Detector." We have before us the 3d no., from which we extract the following:

NOTICE. The editor of this paper purposes making a journey during this month, to the north part of this State, and a little way into Iowa. He will then leave Iowa, and cross the river at Mormon town, and by permission of the Mormons, (if they will be civil,) [if when were they uncivil?] he will give them a lecture in the town on the Philosophy of the mind, and its application to the extinction of priest-craft, and all other crafts that have troubled the human race so long. Will you accept this friendly offer, Mormons? Our answer is recorded in Rev. 6: 1, "Come and see;" and when you say, "come and see," if you do not, and leave the "HEAD and not the tail," we shall be perfectly willing, to be nailed to the counter as "base coin," or "marked counterfeit," provided you come according to the pattern of Amos 2: 7. If you come with the common "philosophy" of mankind, Paul gave us and all saints a "nation 1800 years ago, that will satisfy you in Colossians 2: 8. So, sir, God and the Mormons with eternal truth, will attend to your case, as they have thousands of other cases for the last fifteen years. Every man, whether of the United States or from Europe, who has taken a touch at Mormonism "with the wisdom of this world," has went away satisfied that he could not measure arms with the Almighty; so "come" for we meet all men in the name of Israel's God.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We present our readers this week with the following correspondence, for the estimation of the men whose names are to it: they are worthy, though the carcass they speak of, is so putrid that if the fire fails to purify it, public opinion will assume the charity to bury it.

Mr. Foster, of Pittsburg, is not a Mormon, but a gendeman, in every sense of the word, and Elder Page, though he fussed over the Guinea fowls' eggs as an experiment, is a man of merit, called and chosen, to help carry salvation and the kingdom of Christ, to all the world, and honest men will honor him, so we let the "cat jump."

Pittsburgh, July 5, 1845.

Mr. J. E. PAGE.—Dear Sir: I have purposed for some time addressing you a few lines to let you know how the "cat jumps" in Pittsburg, but some how or other I delayed it until now. Things are not now as they used to was; here in the holy city. We have been used-up and called down, by the late fire, together with our neighbors, until there is hardly a grease pot left of us. And alas! for your "neat eggs," chickens and all have gone over to Rigdonism! The List of the Mobsters—I mean the Mormons' religious "spiritual reform" as they call it, and went overboard and breeches the other night. This was Mrs. Agent, your first friend. They said all along that they would not have her on account of her having two husbands living in this city, but on her making satisfaction to his Holiness Elder Page, she was received and immersed, and the door of Heaven again opened to her, which was shut against her individually last winter by him who holds the "keys of David." He prophesied that she would ever be buried and that her bones should be thrown in the streets, and that herself and her infants then dead should never enter the gates of the celestial city. This prediction was pronounced just her cause she said she did not believe he had authority to lend the church. But now she is a very proper person! Mrs. Hamilton and Mary Reed, are also Rigdonites, so is Matthews and his wife. Rigdon said in his prophesy that the "people" would never be built, and his followers here are strong in the belief that it will prove true. These things I suppose you are better prepared to answer than many people here. I did see in a Philadelphia paper, that the Temple was finished. But the Mormons here say it is not true. I hope you will write to me and give me all the information relative to the Temple and Nauvoo that you can; so that I can show it to the saints. Rigdonism is not flourishing here, but they always say it is going ahead elsewhere; of this I don't know. I don't think the society is larger than when you were here, notwithstanding the four hundred that "went to come from Nauvoo" and the three hundred that "went to come" from divers other places. Rigdon said when he came back from Nauvoo the second time that he did not know the "spiritual wife" system was carried on there until he went back from Pittsburg! Bah! we are not green here. Elder Hardy in his pamphlet lately published, says: "The spiritual wife men are now no longer found darning the cargo, but strenuously advocating the doctrine, in fact says he, no one who has lived in Nauvoo any length of time can deny it, unless he is a consummate scoundrel or woefully ignorant." A hard lick that for his friend Rigdon who lay so sick five years in Nauvoo, that he could neither hear, see nor smell (!) Alas! alas! save me from my friends!

P. S. July 7. Mrs. Hamilton is dead; she was buried to day; disease, cancer in the breast.—Anale mortification. [Not faith enough to live till the coming of Christ, as all Rigdonites expect.]

I conclude with sending you my kind regards.

A. J. FOSTER.

P. S. I saw a letter sent by you, to Mrs. Whitmore sometime last winter, in the which you sent your respects to me. I read the letter at that time, but don't recollect much of its contents now. Mrs. Whitmore, (I suppose you know) married Elder Devine. I was at the wedding on Christmas night. They soon after applied for membership in the Rigdon church; but they would not receive them unless they would separate until Mrs. D. could get lawfully divorced from her other husband who is still living. This they agreed to do, and were admitted. Devine had a singular dream. He thought he was in the woods and

PITY.

LAMENT OF THE WIDOWED INEBRIATE.

I'm thinking on thy smile, Mary—
Thy bright and trusting smile—
In the morning of our youth and love,
Ere sorrow came—or guile,
When thine arms were twined about my neck,
And mine eyes looked into thine,
And the heart that throbbed for me alone,
Was nestling close to mine!

I see full many a smile, Mary,
On young lips beaming bright;
And many an eye of light and love,
Is flashing in my sight;
But the smile is not for my poor heart,
And the eye is strange to me,
And loneliness comes e'er my soul
When its memory turns to thee!

I'm thinking on the night, Mary,
The night of grief and shame,
When with drunken ravings on my lips,
To thee I homeward came:
O, the tear was in thy earnest eye,
And thy bosom wildly heaved,
Yet a smile of love was on thy cheek,
Though thy heart was sorely grieved!

But the smile soon left thy lips, Mary,
And thine eye grew dim and sad,
For the tempter lured my steps from thee,
And the wine cup drove me mad;
From thy cheeks the roses quickly fled,
And thy ringing laugh was gone,
Yet thy heart still fondly clung to me,
And still kept trusting on.

O, my words were harsh to thee, Mary,
For the wine cup made me wild;
And I chide thee when thine eyes were sad,
And I curse thee when they smiled—
God knows I loved thee even then,
But the fire was in my brain,
And the curse of drink was in my heart,
To make my love a lane.

'Twas a pleasant home of ours, Mary,
In the spring-time of our life,
When I looked upon thy sunny face,
And proudly called thee wife—
And 'twas pleasant when our children played Before our cottage door:
But the children sleep with thee, Mary,
I shall never see them more!

Thou'rt resting in the church-yard, now,
And no stone is at thy head!
But the sexton knows a drunkard's wife
Sleeps in that lowly bed;
And he says the hand of God, Mary,
Will fall with crushing weight
On the wretch who brought thy gentle life
To its untimely fate!

But he knows not of the broken heart
I bear within my breast,
Or the heavy load of vain remorse,
That will not let me rest:
He knows not of the sleepless nights,
When dreaming of thy love,
I seem to see thine angel eyes,
Look coldly from above.

I have raised the wine cup in my hand,
And the wildest strains I've sung,
Till with the laugh of drunken mirth
The echoing air has rung;
But a pale and sorrowing face looked out
From the glittering cup on me,
And a trembling whisper I have heard
That I fancied, breathed by thee!

Thou art slumbering in the peaceful grave,
And thy sleep is dreamless now,
But the seal of an undying grief
Is on thy mourner's brow,
And my heart is chill as thine, Mary,
For the joys of life have fled,
And I long to lay my aching breast
With the cold and silent dead.

The Lion's Strength.—Of this noble animal says a writer, two varieties (the yellow and the brown or black) exist in South Africa, both however retreating before the progress of European colonization; the dark colored is the strongest and fiercest; their strength is prodigious.

Well authenticated accounts prove that a lion will carry off an ox or a horse with nearly as great ease as a fox would a goose. A young lion has been known to carry a good sized horse a mile from the spot where he killed it, and an instance occurred in Sneuburgh where a lion carried a two year old heifer, and when his track or spoor was followed by the hunters for five hours on horseback, throughout the whole distance the carcass only once or twice was discovered to have touched the ground. Spearman says he saw a lion at the Cape take a heifer in his mouth, and though the legs trailed on the ground, he carried it off as a cat would a rat, and leaped a broad dyke without the least difficulty. Like all others of the feline tribe, the lion lies in wait for his prey, crouching among grass and reeds near the pools and fountains, or in narrow ravines. He will spring from nine to twelve yards at a bound, and can repeat these springs for a short time. Denied, however, the fleetness of the hound or wolf, the lion, by a few quick and amazing bounds, can seize even the tall giraffe, or camel leopard, by springing on the haunches of the latter. Instances have been known of a giraffe thus carrying a lion twenty miles before sinking under the attacks of the destroyer.

A Clerk of the Royal Library hidden under books for fifty-two years.—About a month ago an agent of the police of the Rue Richieu was called in haste to the Royal Library to proceed to a singular request. The gards of the library were encumbered with books not classified and put in order. The number of these books generally visited by rats, is estimated at about three hundred thousand.

Those who were employed in rummaging these literary caverns made the discovery, under a mountain of books, of the skeleton of a man completely dressed. At first inspection of this corpse it was proved that this man must have been employed as a clerk in the library, for he had a costume of such an one on him, but such as was worn in 1703.

The rats had devoured his flesh and his intestines and seemed to have made three principal openings in his clothes, in the back, the hollow parts of the stomach and the inferior parts. The bones were cleaned and brilliant like ivory. The clothes were well preserved.

Now, they try to explain by what accident this unfortunate man lost his life amidst this frightful pandemonium. Some say that he must have disappeared under an avalanche of books, others that he had an attack of apoplexy and was afterwards devoured by the rats. However, this may be, the mortal remains of this unfortunate man were carried to the cemetery of Montmartre. It has, however, been impossible to prove his identity.

A negro man was stabbed by an other on Sunday night, the 22d ult. on the plantation of Mrs. Baines, in West Feliciana. He died soon after he received the wound.

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.
The Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopers in all its various branches, and that they are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude, and inasmuch as we have some of the best workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyrum Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the times.

We would also inform the public that we have immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West r. prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.

WM. EARL, President.
HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counselor.
HUGH LITTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845—3m.

TINNERS ASSOCIATION.
The undersigned having associated themselves together for the purpose of carrying on the tin-plate and sheet-iron business in all its various branches, have taken the shop formerly occupied by Dustin Amy, corner of Young and Mulholland streets, where they are prepared to manufacture tin and sheet-iron ware at wholesale or retail, as low as can be bought in St. Louis or elsewhere.

N. B. For the accommodation of persons living on the flat, we have deposited a quantity of tin-ware at Messrs Oakley's store, where those in want can be accommodated at all times.

PHILIP B. LEWIS,
DUSTIN AMY,
JOHN MILLS.
Nauvoo, June 25, 1845—8m.

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.
HARDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGEMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends, can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans.

Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from on board sterling upwards, all the particulars of which, can be ascertained by enquiring of JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent, Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office.

Nauvoo, May 1845—4m.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NAUVOO AND VICINITY.
SHOES!! SHOES!! SHOES!!!

The subscribers having recently opened a shop for the above business, would respectfully solicit, of the inhabitants of Nauvoo and vicinity, a share of their patronage. They for the present, design to confine themselves exclusively to the Manufacturing of Ladies and Children's shoes, and having had long experience in said business, have no hesitation in recommending their work as being as good as the best. They have on hand the best assortment of Morocco and Kid that has ever been in the city—prices moderate, and a reasonable deduction for cash. Their stand may be found corner of Parley and Warsaw streets, about one-half mile east of the Mansion.

Also, an assortment of Leather, Calf skins, Goat skins, Lining &c., &c., for sale, on reasonable terms.

MEAD & RAGER.
Nauvoo, June 10th, 1845—8:3m

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, BOOT, AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.
The Association is now prepared to supply the citizens with Boots, Shoes, Saddles and Harness upon the short notice and the most reasonable prices. We invite a call from those who want to purchase such articles, because we will not be undersold by any shop in the city when the cash is present. The fact is we cannot be undersold because we manufacture our own leather and that of the best quality, and the workmen, both in the leather and shoe shop, are the best in the western country, being principally from the Eastern and Southern cities and from Great Britain.

We will pay the highest price for hides in leather, boots, shoes, harness, and cash occasionally.

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS
April 14th, 50M

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses;—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 12 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneyville, Perry county, Illinois.

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneyville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3-1-2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO: A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI. For sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburgh, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling-house and out buildings; indisputable title, given for further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO: A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs—situated 40 miles from Vicksburgh, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO: A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.
April 1, 1845—4m

ALSO: A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncietown, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr Coulston of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE
April 15:50m

NOTICE. A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS. THE SUBSCRIBER HAVING COMPLETED A good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.
May 23d, 1844

WEEKLY PASSENGER STEAMER.

WAR EAGLE.

THE splendid, light draught, passenger steamer, War Eagle, D. S. Harris, master, will run weekly from St. Louis to Galena and Du Buque the present season leaving Nauvoo every Wednesday afternoon on her upward trip and on her downward trip, she will leave Nauvoo every Saturday afternoon.

For freight or passage, having splendid accommodations, apply on board or to C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.
June 18, 1845—7m

NOTICE. IS hereby given, that the undersigned will apply to the County Commissioners Court at the next session, to be held in Carthage, for a license to keep a ferry across the Mississippi river, between Nauvoo and Montrose, Iowa territory.

DANIEL CARN.
Nauvoo, July 10:11c

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY. THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.
References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.
March 24, 47m

REVISED STATUTES FOR 1845. AND FORM BOOK. THIS work has been issued at this office and embraces all the laws of a general character passed by the last General Assembly, and directed to be published in the revised code published under the authority of the State, also all laws of a general nature which were not revised or repealed, and have been continued in force. These laws have been published under the authority of an act passed by the last General Assembly, (a copy of which, with the certificate of the Secretary of State that the law has been complied with, is inserted,) by which it is made evidence in courts, and given the same effect as the laws published by the State. In addition to the laws, this work contains notes of reference to decisions of the Supreme Court, and reference to alterations made from the former acts by the revised code.

There is also appended a full set of forms, embracing forms and instructions for writs, process, deeds, wills, notes, bonds, leases, indentures and nearly every instrument which is required in the practice of any officer, or the business of any person. The whole is accompanied by a complete and judicious index, much more full and perspicuous than that in the revised laws of 1835.

Agents will in a few days visit the various sections of the State, and will be prepared to supply the demand, either by wholesale or retail.

Price of a single copy, 83. Publishers giving the above advertisement three weekly insertions, and noticing the work, will be entitled to a copy. CHAMBERS & KNAPP.
St. Louis, July 7th 1845—11-3w

NOTICE.—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY. N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press-machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE. A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.
March 18-46m

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparation for the cure of the various diseases, for which they are recommended; ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of COUGH LOZENGES. Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES. The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES. For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, latitudes and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES. These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded. SHEPHERD'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER. This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, chest or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

NOTICE. PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

NOTICE.—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of BOOK BINDING, In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his

QUANTITY	PRICE	PLAIN	150
Quartos half bound	plain	1.50
do do do	neat	2.00
do whole bound	plain	2.00
do do do	neat	2.50
Octavo full bound	plain	1.00
do do do	neat	1.50
do hf bound	plain	0.75
do do do	neat	1.00
do do do	extra	1.37
Twelvms full bound	plain	.62
do do do	neat	.87
do hf bound	plain	.50
do do do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.
Nauvoo, Jan 1, 1844.

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS. BRETHREN wishing to purchase Lands, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs Emma Smith's or the Mansion.

WILLIAM SMITH. ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this country, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.
May 6th, 1845—7m

MERMAID.

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis every Friday and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning;—on her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several tow s. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as 'plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity.' For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent, for Nauvoo.
March 22, 1845—4m

OSPREY: REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday, Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1-2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis, Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evans' Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to C. ALLEN, Nauvoo
Jan. 1, 1845—3m

NO WAR BUT A STRONG OPPOSITION TO FOREIGN MANUFACTURES.

THE undersigned would beg leave to inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general, that they have removed the Old Connecticut pottery from Iowa to the City of Joseph, one block east of the Temple, where they have on hand a large assortment of red and mottled colored ware of the best quality, viz. chases, milk pans, crocks, jars of all kinds with covers, pie dishes, pudding pots, cups, bowls, pitchers, stove tubes, chimney tops and furnaces, with a multitude of other articles too numerous to mention; all of which will be sold at wholesale or retail for all kinds of country produce, dry goods and groceries—cash not refused. All bills and orders will be filled on the shortest notice.

MOSES MARTIN, E. K. FULLER.
June 5, 1845. 6:3m

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION. WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing capital we excel in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Chariotees, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Buggy Wagons, Hearse, Spotbues, Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also Ploughs, Scythe snaths, Rakes, &c. &c. which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Water street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices, for we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timbers of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Pres.
RICH'D BAILENTINE, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
ELIJAH FORDEHAM,
J. THOMAS,
JOSHUA SMITH,
DAVID W. FOX,
DOWNT WESTER.

July 15th, 1845—37-1f.

COOK & PETERSON. DEALERS in Hides, Leather and Findings, No. 71, Main Street St. Louis.
July 9-10 6m

LAW NOTICE. BABBITT & EDMONDS, Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.

WOULD most respectfully inform the public, that they have associated themselves together in the practice of the profession, and will attend to any business entrusted to them in the state of Illinois, or in the Territory of Iowa. Mr Babbitt will be found as usual at his office in the city of Nauvoo. Mr Edmonds will be found at his office, in the town of Keokuk, in Lee county, Iowa Territory.

July 14:11f

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Editor and Proprietor.
At the corner of Main and Kimball Street,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $4.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

John Taylor, post paid, to receive attention.

INDIAN TALK.

It is generally known that several Indian tribes met in the Creek nation last June, to form a union among all the tribes in America, and the Cherokee Advocate, published at Talegash, gives the following sketch of the council.

The Late General Council.—The Talks.—The following talk together with a pipe and beads of assorted colors, was received by the Creeks, of Muscogees, Chickapewas, Tahwas, and Menawallas.

Brothers—Once before we sent you a talk, but have received no answer. We have concluded, therefore, to send you another, as we have been informed that the object for which the present Council has been called, is that you may meet all your red brethren in General Council, around the Great Council Fire, which you, Muscogees, have kindled since you came to the West, to renew the friendship that formerly existed between your forefathers and other tribes, to shake hands with the right hand and five fingers, and to devise the best plan by which our children shall be trained up in the straight path of peace. The talk which we send is intended not for the Muscogees alone, but also for our brethren the Cherokees, the Choctaws, and Chickasaws. We have heard that about two years ago, a Council, like the present one, was held by the Cherokees, and which, we are sorry that we could not attend. When you receive our talk and beads, and have explained them to your people, you will afterwards please return them. The beads of different colors that we send, will represent the Languages of the tribes that send them. The Muscogees, and all other tribes who meet around your Council Fire, we consider our friends, and wish them to shake hands with our friends.

When you return our beads, send us some of yours, and talk also, informing us of the proceedings of the council.

The talk we send you, is after the manner of our forefathers.

Your friends, the Tahwas and Menawallas, send some beads, as a token of their friendship for the Muscogees, which they wish you to keep in remembrance of them; so that should they send any of their people among you, seeing those beads, they will know that they are from their friends.

We hope the day is not far distant, when we shall have the pleasure to see each other, and when we shall have the opportunity to shake hands and to talk together.

Talk of the "warriors" of the same tribes.

As our leading chiefs have sent a talk to these of the Muscogees—us, the "warriors" of the four different tribes, the Winnebagoes, Chickapewas, Tahwas, and Menawallas, send also a talk and beads of different colors, to our friends the warriors of the Muscogees, Cherokees, Choctaws, and Chickasaws. The objects we have in sending these beads, are to show that we wished to be friendly with all tribes, and to keep open the white path of peace, that we may train up our children in it, and teach them to be friendly with all men. There are many warriors among us; but we fear there are many calling themselves thus, who are not warriors. According to our old customs, it is our duty to take the talks of our head men, and to follow, they going ahead, and wherever they shall lead, but whenever they fall, we, as warriors, take their places, and protect them, our women, and our children—our friends we wish to send back a talk in reply to this one.

We, also, with our talk, send a pipe ornamented with beads and feathers of the Eagle. The pipe being painted blue, shows that such is the color of the sky at the time we send it, and which we believe to be a token of friendship. Having received a pipe, fill it with the tobacco attached to it, and let all our friends smoke it; for when we shall see the smoke rising up to the sky, then will our hearts feel good. The beads are also a token of the friendship which we bear towards our brethren. The Eagle feathers are intended to keep the White path clean, which has, of late, been stained by blood, you must sweep it out clean with them.

Tuck-a-batche Micco's Talk.—Brothers—I rise up this day to give a small talk. The talk that I am going to deliver, will be around the Council Fire of the Muscogees, with a bright sky above.

The white beads which I hold in my hand, I am going to send to our Grand Father, the Delaware. In the time of our Forefathers, he sent to us a talk and some beads, saying: Your ears are stopped, and your eyes have dust in them—receive these emblems, they will open your ears, and wipe out the dust from your eyes. These were the words we once received from the Delaware, the intention of which was to open the White path of peace, that we might train up our children in it.

I am now tracing up the old customs of our Fathers, and what I am saying is understood by all of our old people present. I also speak in the presence of Gov. Butler, and Col. Logan, Agents for the Cherokees and Creeks, and of Lieut. Flint, of the United States army. This talk is given that those who are not present may hear it also. As we have lately had some difficulty with some of our red brethren, we now send these beads to our Grand Father, the Delaware, that the White path so lately stained with blood may be cleaned, and that some plan may be fallen upon for the preservation of peace, and to prevent the further shedding of the blood of any of our brethren. The persons who were killed, from what I can learn, were of the tribe called the Pawnee Mahas—a tribe that but few of us have ever seen.

Brothers—We have travelled a long way from the course of the rising sun. Before coming to the land we now inhabit, we heard a great deal about our brethren who dwell towards the setting sun.

Since arriving and kindling here our new fires, we have had the pleasure to see some of our western brethren, and have taken great interest in explaining to them the ways of our Forefathers. In former times, our fathers knew nothing of the emblems, I hold in my hands, as in those days there was nothing but war and bloodshed among the people. But since the adoption of these emblems, and the use of them for making peace between different tribes, becoming a custom among the Red people, they have proved of great benefit, and form the ground work of training our children in the path of peace. The white beads and tobacco, which I send to the different tribes, are to cleanse the path which has lately been stained with blood; and I wish all those who hear this talk to take it home with them, and to tell it to their children and grand children, and to advise them to walk in the straight path of peace. It is given around the Great Council Fire, and must not be forgotten as long as the sun rises and sets; or the waters run and the trees grow. I will send this talk by Mr. Baptiste, to our Grand Father the Delaware, with the request that he will send it with some beads and tobacco, to the Pawnee Mahas and say to them that the path that leads to their country has grown up; when they receive them the path will be opened, and purified of the stain of blood. No more blood must be spilt. I will send word to them, that hereafter when traveling the path should they happen to see blood or bones, they must think that they have been caused by lightning, a fall from a horse, or through some accident. The red people like other populous nations, have among them some bad people, who will, probably, stain the path by spilling blood. Should any do so, we feel that it will be our duty to rise up with our arms, and joining our friends put a stop to it.

I send you some Tobacco and beads to our Grand Father, the Delaware, with a request that he will send them and this talk to the Shawnees, Wyandots and Kickapoes. I am done.

Col. Altherson, Chickasaw Speaker: We are in the path of our forefathers: I have but a few words to say, but will say them in the same spirit of those I have heard speak. The new Race know but little, or nothing of the habits of our fathers.

I remember to have seen a similar council in former times; this is in the original way. The path is thus kept white and clean, even to each other's doors.

The little difficulty that occurred a short time back, I now regard wiped out by this white path, and I am glad to see the Northern Tribes, and I am glad to see all uniting to keep clear this path. I hope all nations will join and assist in keeping this path open and clear of obstructions.

When I reach home, I will explain to my people, what I have witnessed and heard here; and I will also use my influence with different tribes to get them to imitate and teach the same to their children.

This is all. A short talk is often better than a long one and all sufficient. I would like to have a copy of the proceedings here, to read to my people when I get home. I am glad to see the Agents present. When I get home I will call a council and invite our Agent.

Cho-wa-wa-na, Caddo Chief: I was glad when I received the message to meet my brothers here. I had long heard of my brothers that I had never seen. I have heard the talk, when I get home I will call all my people, even the women and the children, and when I tell them the talk that I heard here, I will be as good as if they were all here and heard it with their own ears. My brothers have made the White path for me to travel on. I will go home on it. Should I take a notion to return at any other time I will travel it again. I have met my older and younger brothers, and my uncles, heard the talk, and will follow it; and I will smoke the pipe and tell all my people what I have heard and seen when I get home. This tobacco that is placed in my hands is for the Camanche Chief with ten stands of beads. I will go and hunt him up and give them to him; and if I get an answer I may come back. That's all.

Nili cat-gah, Choctaw Chief: All of us that are assembled here, are of different nations and colors. I am a friend to all. I am glad the Great Spirit has ordered this council for all the red people and white to meet and talk about peace. We are all brothers from one parent and should not disturb each other at home, or abroad. Whatever we have we should share agreeably, not take each other's property. You might as well take off one of our legs as rob us.

There are some persons of all nations who commit wrongs, and I intend to remark therefore as general. We will recollect the place in the Muscogee nation, where the Council Fire is built, and where the smoke will ascend to the skies. There are four chiefs in the Choctaw nation; when we return to our homes all shall hear the talk that has been delivered here. I now close and join with the O-gages in wishing to get home, though we have been here longer than they have. I am done.

Black Dog, Osage Chief: My brothers: The Fire was built, and I was invited here. I have come. I see my brothers wants all right.

When I saw the broken days (beads), I was in a great hurry to get here, and I am now in as great a hurry to get back and carry the news. I want to get to my people before they can go to that tribe at the Sact Plains.

Black Dog, Osage Chief: I forget something—you have made the White path to the Pawnee Mahas; now before I get back home, some of my young men may have lost horses; shall I pursue them that have stolen them? I will do as you say. Some of my men may be killed. If you say let them alone that have killed my people I will do so. I will now wait your answer. Not only may my people be killed and our horses stolen, but your people served in the same way.

Tuck-a-batche Micco, Creek War Chief: I heard my friend Black Dog. I listened to him well, and would advise him to keep near home, and wish he would advise his people not to go too far; and as soon as we hear the return of our talk, we will let you know. Advise your women to stay at home, and if you must hunt, hunt in some other direction than the Pawnee Mahas.

All should do as our brothers the O-gages; bring in all the stolen horses—to the general council. Hereafter quit stealing horses from one another; all red men and white men too, mean it for all—this is the first cause of bloodshed. The Cherokees our brothers are not present but we want to give some of them a talk; they have straggling men passing through the country, murdering and stealing; this must be put a stop to. I am talking to extend my talk to all under this roof. I speak as the authorized Chief of the Muscogees—Gen. McIntosh. One thing more, in a Treaty with the United States, we are pledged protection.

Troops by agreement are to be stationed at Choteau's Trading House, up the Canadian, and also up the Arkansas, at Ufooshago's Town.

When we shall all get at peace again with the different tribes, the troops may be recalled or dispensed with &c. Whenever you meet your friends tell them these troops are placed there for our protection. The Principal Chief of our different brothers must assemble their people when they get home and explain all this; this is the last word I have to say. The next general council we will invite our brothers through the different United States, agents, to ensure their safe delivery.

Young men sometimes travel into the dark, and are not enough mindful of this good talk. I am done. If any of our brothers want to talk they can do so, if not the general business of the council will be closed.

Sentence for Murder.—Oria De Wolf, tried for murder at Worcester, and found guilty on Friday night se'night, received sentence of death the next morning.

A SCOTCH RIDDLE.

An account of the wonderful Prophet now on his way to this place.

There is now to be seen here, a strange and most wonderful ancient Prophet, who says his generation was before Adam was created. He is not the Wandering Jew, nor the son of Noah, nor the old Leviite, nor St. John of Jerusalem, as some have falsely supposed; for, before they were he was.—The Holy Scriptures frequently make mention of him, particularly in St. Mark, St. Luke, and St. John.

He is no impostor—he knows not his parents, nor ever sucked his mother's breasts. His beard is red as vermilion; he goes bare-headed like a Grey Friar; he drinks no wine nor strong drink—but water only. His diet is moderate; he takes no money if offered to him; he wears no hat; his coat is neither wove nor spun, and yet is of a very fine color. He despises the pomp and grandeur of this present age, for he had rather dwell in a barn than in a king's palace; yet is he neat and clean beyond imagination. He walketh with neither sword or spear, yet he walketh boldly and uprightly in the face of his enemy. He can, if he please, encounter the strongest man—and will bests fly before him in amazement: at the sound of his voice they are dismayed and terrified. He is often abused by the wicked, yet he takes it patiently. He lets all men alone with their religion; he is neither a Baptist or Protestant, he eats no flesh in Lent; he is very watchful, he sleeps not in bed, but sits up all night with his clothes on; he cures out on his wicked world with outstretched arms. He is an excellent pattern to all mankind, for he is loud and joyous, and his voice raiseth up the people to labor, by telling them the day of the Lord is at hand; nay, the very doors and windows fly open at his prophecies. Poor women, who have had husbands, have reason to rejoice that there is such a prophet come into this part of the world, to set before their sordid husbands such a pattern of sobriety; both men and women, who follow his example, may live to a good old age, for he was with Noah in the Ark, and was when Christ was crucified; he denies no article of the Christian Faith. His voice is shrill and powerful. He once preached a sermon which convinced a man of his sins, and caused him to weep most bitterly for swearing and lying; yet he is contented to sit down with the insults of wicked men; but when the Lord cometh to judge the world in righteousness, he will not be charged with sin. The people flock daily to see him, and are sure he is no impostor; so that they even send their friends and relations to see him.

The Testimony of the celebrated Mr. Twigg, concerning the above wonderful Prophet, extracted from one of his letters to the Royal Society.

"I have, besides the remarkable curiosities above communicated, met with something much more extraordinary than ever I expected.

When I was on the confines of Silesia, as I walk'd through a field in the neighborhood, I perceived a stately personage directing his footsteps towards me; I made a full stand to observe him;—his beard was long and red—his feet were bare, and although the season was extremely cold, by the cheerfulness of his countenance, the weather did not seem to affect him. He lifted up his voice on a sudden with surprising strength of lungs and shrillness of accent, and with outstretched arms, that amazed me, and immediately a multitude surrounded him, whom he intreated to eat with him. By what means provisions came there I know not, the field being to all appearance barren; but I am confident they all did eat, and went away satisfied, after he had spoken something to them, which, by reason of my too great a distance from the place, I could not distinctly understand; but I concluded it was an exhortation to prayer, or something of the kind. After this he disappeared.

When I came to the next village, viz: Bultitz, I enquired of the inhabitants if they had seen this extraordinary person; who informed me, that he was a great Prophet, and that he had lived before and with Noah; that at his voice, all the evil spirits which haunted their neighborhood immediately disappeared, and wild beasts had fled before him; and further added, I might depend upon it, that he would be seen in the northern parts of Great Britain in March 1838. This was all the intelligence I could get, the people of Bultitz not being of a very communicative temper."

Thou firer art than sons of men;
Into thy lips is store
Of grace infused: God therefore thee
Hath blest forevermore.

Then of the King desir'd shall be Thy beauty vehemently
Because he is thy Lord, doth thou
Him worship reverently.

One hint further of this wonderful Prophet; he hath many wives; or, as some term them, "spiritual wives,"—and like their ancient contemporaries, they are not jealous or ashamed of him, and he loves them.

NAUVOO IN THE PACIFIC OCEAN.

A correspondent of the Newark Advertiser, describing a number of the islands of the Pacific, alludes to one called Nauvoo, the Pearl of the Pacific. It is said to be an isolated spot, some thirty or forty miles in circuit, distant some three or four degrees from any other land, containing from 1000 to 1500 inhabitants. There is every variety of scenery—hill, dale, and valley, delightfully interspersed, covered with verdant trees, and abounding in all kinds of tropical fruits, a salubrious climate, which is so warm that clothing can be easily dispensed with, consequently no more is worn than a proper respect for decency requires. The natives themselves seem to be tinctured with its mildness, and every thing moving in its atmosphere possesses unusual docility. Emphatically it is the abode of innocence and peace. It is governed by a King and a Governor, who have complete control over all the affairs of the inhabitants.

The king enacts laws, puts them in force, sees them carried out, purchases and sells for each individual, when trading with strangers in the public mart, though those who wish can dispose of their own at their option. Their laws are very simple, and are chiefly confined to the usual duties of parents to children, the suppression of vice and the inculcation of virtue—of which honesty, hospitality and chastity are the most cardinal, and woe betide the delinquent! His punishment is speedy and severe. Disobedience and want of respect in children to parents, are most severely punished, by castigation, lacerating the back of the offender in some conspicuous place as an indelible mark of disgrace, though, in truth, seldom does an occasion for the exercise of this law occur. The people are all as one family; the younger paying implicit obedience to the more advanced in years. Lowliness of speech or action is every where discountenanced, inasmuch that a native holds it degrading to be guilty of either. What a picture is here presented to the civilized world! Well may we blush, when we compare our own manners and customs with those of these untutored children of nature; we may look on and admire—we may imitate in some measure, but never with our host of (christian) vices, can we arrive so near perfection.

Lake Superior.—A friend of ours, now on an exploring expedition, writes from Lapointe, at the west end of the Lake, that there are six or eight vessels now engaged to advantage in navigating those waters.

Among those conveyed across the St. Louis, this spring, is the Uncle Tom, a well furnished and staunch vessel of a hundred tons, with excellent accommodations for passengers. She is commanded by Capt. John Wood, an experienced pilot; she runs from the Salt to Copper Harbor and Lapointe, touching at the intermediate points on the southern shore of the Lake. Adventurers to the "copper region," would add to the pleasures of the trip, by securing a berth on board the Uncle Tom.

There appears to be quite a rush to this mineral region the present season, and from what we can learn, independent of worked mines, there are others of equal richness not yet opened. The ore is mixed with considerable of a sprinkling of silver. Next season's operation will develop more fully the hidden wealth of this hitherto unexplored region, and draw thousands of emigrants to that upper country. [Chicago Journal.]

From New Zealand.—Flight with the English.—The last New Bedford Mercury states, on the authority of a letter from Capt. Howland of the ship London Packet, of Fairhaven, dated Bay of Islands, New Zealand, March 13th, that the natives of New Zealand had risen upon the English inhabitants of the Bay of Islands, and completely overpowered them.

On the 13th of March a battle was fought between the English and natives, in which the former sustained a loss of twenty to thirty killed, and a great many wounded. The English fled to the vessels in port, leaving the town in possession of the natives, who soon reduced it to ashes.

Slavery Excitement at Savannah.—A man, avowing himself an abolitionist, and publicly attempting to give currency to his sentiments, was arrested, July 6, by the police, and committed to the watch house. At night a crowd attempted to get him out, to tar and feather him, but did not succeed. A second attempt was made this morning, when he was brought before the Mayor; he was saved only by the firmness of that functionary, who seized a pistol and threatened to shoot the first man that made the attempt.

Works of Art.—Mr. Lester, United States Consul of Genoa, has brought with him two works of art, which have afforded us a great deal of pleasure. One is an original portrait of Americus Vesputius, the only one in Italy, and which was presented to Mr. L. by the family. It was taken by Brongino, and has been preserved by the lineal descendants of the Vesputii family with the greatest care. It represents Vesputii with a chart in his hand, and apparently contemplating the distant ocean he is to traverse. The head seems to have been shaven like that of a monk, but the whole face presents nothing particularly prepossessing. The picture is accompanied with undoubted testimonials of its originality, among others, a letter from the Grand Duke of Tuscany. It shows the state of art at that time, and by its freshness, preserved through so long a period, exhibits the great skill of the artist. The Vesputii family are poor. Two daughters are engaged in teaching school, while the son, the only lineal male descendant, is employed in the Treasury Department of the government, at a salary less than a hundred dollars. The Grand Duke of Tuscany, however, supplies the wants of the family from his own pocket. Mr. L. was the first American that had ever called on the family, and they were deeply affected by the compliment, as they had been before mortified at the neglect of our countrymen. They are deeply chagrined at the conduct of their sister, who, after having been the mistress of some dozen of men, had the impudence to ask our government for a grant of land to herself, as the only descendant of the Vesputii family. We hope this portrait will adorn the Capitol; for it certainly should be a national picture.

The other gem of art we referred to is a modern work, executed by a monk belonging to a convent in Genoa. It is a crucifix scene. Our Saviour is represented on the cross, in all the agony of his painful death. The body is wrought of one solid piece of ivory, the largest we have ever seen, and which is of itself a curiosity. The anatomical truth of every part of the form—the perfect representation of nature in every detail, astonishes the anatomist, while the character of the face—nay the expression of anguish in every muscle, and in the whole attitude fills the artist with admiration. Even Mr. Powers looked on it with wonder. The intellectual and majestic brow is knit in the extreme agony, while around the glorious mouth plays the smile of resignation. The brow is the bitter prayer in the garden, while the mouth is the embodied exclamation, "Thy will be done." We have never seen any thing equal to this of its kind. Even the distended veins are seen coursing under the skin, and the exquisite finish of every part is equalled only by the perfect harmony and wonderful expression of the whole. It is a gem of art, and what renders it stronger still, it is the only work the artist ever executed. [N. Y. Evening Mirror.]

Atlantic and Pacific Junction.—The Liverpool Times has an article upon this subject, from which it appears that the route has been surveyed, and the project pronounced feasible by M. Arago, of Paris. "It seems," (says the Times,) that Don Jose de Garay, with some Mexican officers, and an Italian engineer, Don G. Moro, have been employed upwards of a year in surveying the district of Tehuantepec, and that the result of their investigations has satisfied the great French authority, Arago, and other eminent scientific men in this country, and on the continent that the new scheme is feasible, and may be successfully carried out. Garay is guaranteed by the Government, for a period of fifty years, two thirds of the tolls arising from the transit, commencing with the opening of the communication between the two oceans; and for the fourth of the receipts, which the Government takes, the shareholders are to have an interest to the same amount for sixty years after the expiration of Garay's term. Breadth of land, to the extent of thirty miles, on each side of the line, is ceded to him in fee-simple, with the privilege of purchasing lands and establishing colonies to the extent of one hundred and fifty miles more. This, in substance, is the proposition which is now before the capitalists of London, and its purport we have gathered from a circular addressed to many of the leading commercial houses.

The legislature of New Hampshire has extended the freedom of that State to Gov. Dorr,

AND-SO-FORTH-ANA.

FERRIBLE FIRE IN NEW YORK.

On the morning of the 19th ult., at about half past three in the morning a terrible fire began its ravages in the City of New York. A writer to St. Louis says as follows:—

New York, July 10, 8 12 o'clock A. M. Editorial Republic:

Gentle:—The most destructive fire that New York has witnessed since 1835 is now raging. The extent of damage is increasing widely, and many will be taken in less than half an hour to blow up some buildings in order to save others. Broadway suffers largely, and among others I fear the house just taken by Bierre Chouteau, Jr. & Co., fur dealers—the heavy jobbers on Broad street, Exchange Place, &c., and the heavy shipping houses. Bowling Green fountain has been destroyed to get more water. We cannot tell what the loss will be.

P. S.—8 34 A. M.—The fire has extended across to the west side of Broadway, at the Bowling Green and will no doubt destroy the whole block, including the Atlantic Hotel and some of the most valuable private dwellings in the city.

The fire was got under about one P. M., having raged nearly ten hours; destroying two hundred and sixty-nine buildings and about six millions of dollars worth of property. Verily the Lord pours on the hot drops in spite of the scowls of hypocritical editors. The fire was severest on Broadway—Broad street, New street and South William street. The St. Louis papers contain the following particulars:

The burnt district is the most important and valuable part of the city, being composed of large and costly buildings filled with extensive merchandise. The French and German merchants congregated chiefly in that district.

The First Division of Artillery, under the command of General Sandford, had been ordered out by his Honor the Mayor, in order to protect the property of the citizens.

This dreadful fire broke out about half past three o'clock on the morning of the 19th inst., in New street, about three doors from the corner of Exchange place, in a sperm oil store. It then spread to a chair factory, the next door toward Exchange place; then through to Broad street, and to the corner of Exchange Place, where it communicated to a building occupied by some persons who either had a large quantity of saltpetre on storage, or else were manufacturers of fireworks, for in fifteen minutes after it caught fire, the whole blew up with a tremendous explosion, carrying six or seven buildings with it, and shaking the whole city like an earthquake. The explosion was so great as to smash more than a half million panes of glass in the neighborhood. Immediately after the explosion fire was discovered at four different points, showing that the entire block in the rear was in a complete blaze.

The Journal of Commerce gives what appears to be the true cause of the explosion. It says:

The explosion which set this most disastrous conflagration in motion, we have no doubt was from the reservoir geyser of the Manhattan Company, situated in New street, caused by the heat of the neighboring fire. There was nothing else which could have made it, and the could. In corroboration of this, the gas lights in our office went out instantly upon the explosion.

The explosion was heard distinctly at Staten Island, at a distance of twelve miles, and it is stated that a letter, partially burnt, was picked up by a gentleman two miles beyond New Brighton, where it had been carried by the wind caused by the powerful force of the flames.

The total amount insured is $4,215,000.

Several iron safes were saved from the ruins; many of them so little injured that books and papers were perfectly legible. That of Davis & Brooks, though several times enveloped in flames, is still in a valuable condition. Barclay & Livingston also saved their books and papers.

We record the following casualties as having occurred:

Mr. Augustus L. Cowdery, a member of No. 42, son of the late Samuel Cowdery, was in one of the buildings on Broad street when it fell—he has not been heard of since.

A man was carried off by two firemen belonging to No. 15, who had become deranged from his sister being burnt to death, and the loss of all his property.

The body of a man was found in the ruins in Broad street.

A skull has been found near where No. 22 was crushed. As no member of that company is missing, it is impossible to tell who the unfortunate victim is.

A man by the name of Holden, a member of engine No. 42, was killed.

A melancholy and truly distressing scene took place at No. 10 Greenwich street. Mr. Henry, son of John Carey, died of consumption while the fire was raging, and while the flames were spreading to such an extent that it was supposed that the house in which he was might be consumed. Death, however, came and his body, wrapped in red clothes, was immediately removed to a place of safety.

The Chief of Police and A. D. Charlick had a very narrow escape of their lives. The walls of a building, where they were in Stone Street, nearly hemmed in, fell, and is known to have killed one man and boy—it is supposed Col. Johnson, of the new Police, who was in front, and who has not been seen since.

The fire could not have possibly occurred at a more unfortunate period. All the dry goods houses were overstocked with merchandise. Many large establishments had no insurance, and are, therefore, entirely ruined.

From the Missouri Republican.

STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION.

Herman, (Mo.) July 23, 1845.

It becomes our duty to announce to you the occurrence of a very disastrous accident, which took place at our point this morning. As the steamboat Big Hat was leaving our wharf, on her way to St. Joseph, her starboard boiler burst with a loud report, moving out of its place, passing up through the cabin floor, and up through the hurricane deck, overboard and into the river by the wheelhouse—making a perfect wreck of the boat above her lower deck as far back as the ladies' cabin, and spreading death and desolation amongst the passengers.

The number of killed and scalded was not ascertained; but the letter gives the names of four killed; fifteen dangerously scalded, and several others missing.

Destruction by Fire.—It is said that a very serious fire occurred in Indianapolis, a few days since, by which one-third of the city was reduced to a heap of ruins.—Alton Tel.

Doubtful!

A most violent Hail Storm passed over a portion of the American Bottom in this county, on Friday of last week, the 18th inst. It did a good deal of damage, not only to the crops but to the houses, by the destruction of glass, &c. We have been informed by several farmers of the highest respectability, that they picked up hail stones that fell during the storm, larger than hen's eggs! This may seem incredible, but from the character of the source from whence we have derived our information, we entertain not the slightest doubt of its truth.—Alton Tel.

FIRE AND LOSS OF LIFE.

Sing Sing, July 10, 1845.

I beheld a scene here to day, which I hope never to witness again. A little boy about five years old, said to be a very fine child, son of Mr. Eben Acker, a respectable farmer of this town, went to the stable where there was some hay, and is supposed to have taken some matches with him and set fire (accidently or doubt) to the hay, and before he could be rescued, so rapid were the flames that he perished with the hay. I saw the body, or rather what remained of it; but the sight of it, together with the grief of the parents, caused my heart to sicken, and I left the spot.

Another serious accident was related to me to day by a gentleman of this place. Mr. James Fish, of New Castle, a very respectable farmer, and who had endeavored himself to the whole town by his indefatigable and successful efforts to promote the cause of temperance and good order, while blasting rocks a few days since, was struck by a fragment of the rock, and so badly hurt that he has since died.

Yours truly,

A. D. G.

Fire in Providence.—A fire occurred in Providence last night, which originated in a stable back of the Washington Hotel. The stable was destroyed, and the warehouse adjoining was also consumed. The roof of a block of stores, likewise was nearly destroyed, and the goods in the stores injured, including 10,000 bushels of corn and other grain. The furniture of the hotel was greatly damaged in removing it. Twelve persons perished in the flames. The whole loss is said to be over $10,000.—(Boston Traveller, Thursday.)

Awful Death.—Mr. McGould, one of the leading Shakers at Lebanon, New York, much esteemed by the fraternity, was gored to death on Wednesday by an infuriated bull belonging to the North family. He was shockingly mutilated.

Great Fire at Rochester.—The Rochester New York Democrat of the 17th inst. says:

Our city was last evening visited by the most disastrous conflagration that has happened for many years. About half past nine the flames were discovered bursting from the end of a cabinet shop on the east side of Front street, by R. Hill. The flames spread with great rapidity in three directions, and before they were subdued, between 20 and 25 stores, shops and dwellings were destroyed.

Fire in Baltimore.—Mr. Daniel Russell, dwelling in Pennsylvania Avenue, Baltimore, was destroyed by fire on Saturday morning. Loss $3000, insured.

Fire at Pittsburg.—The fire yesterday morning, (narrated in our second edition) broke out in a stable of Dennis M. Kelly, on Prospect Hill, between Prospect street and Constance, consuming the stable and five or six houses, all of which were burned. There were five horses burned in M. Kelly's stable. The fire was the result of carelessness.—Pittsburg Ariel.

Disastrous Fire at Boston.—A fire was discovered at about half past five o'clock on Friday afternoon, in the carpenter shop owned and occupied by Mitchell and Barker, in Lancaster street, which soon enveloped in flames the buildings destroyed, as nearly as could be ascertained, were as follows:

Four stables on Lancaster street, owned by C. & E. Trull, and occupied by Merriam and Gleason, Bancroft, Whitman, and J. and A. Brown.—The buildings were not insured.

The carpenter shop of Messrs Mitchell and Barker, together with a quantity of stock, tools, etc.,—tools partially insured.

Four wooden houses, owned by Messrs Trull, and occupied by sundry persons. The houses were fully insured at the Liberty Mutual Insurance office.

The number of carpenter's shops, stables, etc., destroyed, we should judge was about twelve, and the loss sustained from ten to fifteen thousand dollars.

The Troy Fire.—The Whig says: The mills and factory, with their machinery owned by Geo. B. Warren, Esq., were valued at $35,000, of which thirteen were insured. The value of the stock owned by Mr. Herrington was about $20,000—$18,000 insured. So that the total loss may be put down at $55,000—$29,000 exclusive of insurance. We understand that there is every reason to suspect that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

Four more Fires in New York.—The alarm of fire at 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon, proceeded from the ruins with the S. E. corner of 1st Avenue and 4th street, which was partially destroyed. Loss trifling.

Another.—About six o'clock yesterday afternoon, the three-story brick store No. 248 Pearl street, occupied by Publishers as a fur and cap store, was discovered to be on fire—the two lower stories were nearly destroyed, and considerable damage done to the stock before it was got under.

Another.—About 8 o'clock in the evening, a fire was discovered in the basement of the church on the corner of Norfolk and Broome streets. It was got under without receiving much damage.

Another.—At 10 o'clock last evening the attic of the building known as the Dispensary, on the corner of White and Centre streets, was fired in consequence of the bursting of the chimney, which had been burning some time. The fire department appeared promptly on the spot, the flames were confined to the attic and roof. The upper story was occupied as an organ factory. The amount of probable damage we are unable to obtain.—Course.

Mountain on Fire.—We learn from the Bostonian Old Fellow, that the Catechin mountains, in Frederick county, are again on fire.

Foreign News.

FIFTEEN DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The Britannia arrived at Boston on the 19th ult., by which we have our regular letters.

The news, however, is not very consequential to the American cause, government. The crops will be good, and of course American provisions are dull of sale.

Parliament was to be prorogued about the middle of August.

The Journal des Debats contains an account of the Russian Count Apraxine, his wife and children, being burned to death by their infuriated serfs. He resented his murderers, it is said, with an air of cruelty, and the terrible retaliation is therefore the less surprising.

SPAIN.

Both government and people seem determined that on no consideration whatever, shall the young Queen marry the son of Don Carlos. Immediately on the abdication of Don Carlos becoming known in Madrid, several councils of ministers were held, and it was proposed to issue a counter manifesto; but this was abandoned in compliance, as it is said, with the earnest wishes of Christina. Since then, however, the violent, hot-headed and blistering Narvaiz has issued an order to the army, in which he declares, in the most decided and explicit terms, against the pretensions of Don Carlos' son to the Queen's hand. The rough soldier actually calls Don Carlos himself a rebel.

FRANCE.

The general impression continues to be that the American President is delaying as much as possible the negotiations with England, and that these two circumstances, with eventualities, render the possibility of the whole of Oregon by the United States a certainty.

SWITZERLAND.

Switzerland is in a very agitated state. The fact is, have long been designed to break out again by any kind of reaction, and the desert is determined to keep the triumph they have gained. It is painful to see a country thus prepared to shed each other's blood.

Some Englishmen are scouring the length and breadth of the land, for the purpose of a conspiracy if they can be found to undertake the formation of railways on an extensive scale.

SWEDEN.

The laws lately passed are very unpalatable to the aristocracy. Not only do they extend the political privileges of the people, but one of them provides that family successions shall be equally divided among all the children and not go, as heretofore, almost exclusively to the eldest son. The effect of this will be, first in the course of time, there will be no aristocracy, for it is the law of primogeniture alone that keeps up the aristocracy.

INDIA.

The Times has the following: Our letters from Calcutta are to the 13th of May, from which we learn that on the 9th a destructive fire broke out in the office buildings of Messrs McEvicar, Smith & Co., which, with all they contained were entirely destroyed—books, papers and all. The fire soon seized the premium of Messrs Sewer & Co., adjoining, which quickly shivered, the same fate here fortunately, a portion of the books, property, &c., was saved. Messrs Kilby & Co. also were sufferers, and principally in household furniture. How the fire originated was not known. Accounts had reached Calcutta of the total destruction, by fire, of the American ship Virginia, on the 5th ult., about 30 miles to the southward of the outer floating light. All hands were saved, excepting the supercargo. She was homeward bound.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 6, 1845.

See, hear! weep!—The lion is come up from his den, and the destroyer of the Gentiles is on his way; he is gone forth from his place to make this land desolate; and this land shall be laid waste, without an inhabitant.—Jer. 4: 7.

We observe that the Gazette of St. Louis is laboring to make capital out of the "fires and floods," which have been troublesome to various places in our country the past season, charging all to Mormon "faith and works," founded upon prophecy delivered since the martyrdom of Gen. Smith. We think the last fire in New York is a complete rebuff to such monstrosities; however, to set the matter of prophecy in its proper light and disabuse the public ear, we shall be obliged to give the foundation of all this bluster.

On the 18 page of the "Voice of Truth" Gen. Smith said: "Remember the Lord Almighty will avenge the blood of his saints that now crimson the skirts of Missouri." How far calamity, for the last year, has met the case, we leave the people to decide. On the 10 page of the same pamphlet, Gen. Smith, after bringing up the question of persecution in a masterly manner, thus spoke: "Let the real worth of an offended God purify the nation of such stinks of corruption." In the exposure of staunch builders and gas factories, and other calamities, the and of God is as plainly manifested as upon Pharaoh in Egypt, so let that prophecy tally for itself.

The next allusion of Gen. Smith to trouble, is on the 33d page of said pamphlet, and reads thus: "No honest man can doubt for a moment, but the glory of American liberty is on the wane; and, in a moment, and confusion will come, or later, destroy the peace of the people." All that need be said upon this paragraph, let the Gazette, and all other papers chronicle the vexatious "calamities and confusion," that are constantly wasting the nation, and the people can judge.

The Mormons or Latter-day Saints have made no prophecies since the martyrdom of Joseph Smith, and all the speculation of the Gazette and all other papers, is the mere life of a set of wicked and corrupt men.

As to the fire, God who never errs, has managed them according to his own will, and no Mormon has had any agency in them, either directly or indirectly, more than to pray that the will of the Father of all spirits might be done, and those wicked men know it.

Our elders have labored diligently for fourteen or fifteen years, to prepare the people to meet such events, as are now transpiring, and have constantly told the inhabitants of America, Europe and Asia, that trouble was at the door. When they cease to warn the world, God has promised, through Joseph Smith, to the elders as follows: And after your testimony, cometh wrath and indignation upon the people; for after your testimony cometh the testimony of earthquakes, that shall cause groaning, and the one who shall not be able to stand. And as cometh the testimony of the voice of thunderings, and the voice of lightnings, and the voice of tempests, and the voice of the waves of the sea, leaving their shores beyond their bounds. And all things shall be in commotion; and sorely men's hearts shall fail them for fear, shall come upon all people; and angels shall fly through the midst of heaven, crying with a loud voice, sounding the trump of God, saying, prepare ye, prepare ye, O inhabitants of the earth, for the judgment of our God is come; behold, and in the Bridgroom cometh, go ye out to meet him.

So the inhabitants of the earth may prepare for a second company of preachers in the form of "earthquakes," thunder and lightnings, &c.

There seems to be no hard hearted people in this world trying to fire the Latter-day Saints, but he that sits in the heavens, puts hooks in their noses, and leads them into the pit they had dug for their neighbor. So, knowing that there are other judgments in store for the whole earth, we will venture a prediction, although it shall be storm and hail enough to cause a famine, and show the inhabitant of the earth, that Jesus Christ and not the Mormons, vexes the nations. Enough of the present generation shall see, hear and feel it, to be witnesses that the servants of God tell the truth.

Watch, for you know not the hour, nor the day; and you cannot accuse the Mormons of making a mistake, watch for the hail, the earthquake, and war shall come and vex all nations.

Mob at Columbus Ohio.—At Columbus on the 25th ult., a young negro aged 13, undertook to commit a rape upon a white girl aged 5. He was arrested, and, at the trial, the spirit of the last days began to leaven the people, and a mob of about 100 persons collected the succeeding evening and chained the negroes generally by stoning their habitations smashing the windows, &c. &c. The marshal and other authorities were applied to, to stop the mob, but, mirabile dictu, at the great capital of the sovereign state of Ohio, Governor and all, there was no virtue and patriotism enough among the people to give the character of Columbus from the disgrace of a mob of 100! It is no word, if the Lord heaps coals of fire upon the heads of this generation. They need them.

The Election.—For the general election, which took place last Monday, we had nothing to say. The people knew how to vote, and need not. But relative to the election for Sheriff next Monday we have a word or two. An unhappy occurrence has caused Gen. Dunning to resign for the present, and the office must be filled.

Colonel J. B. Backenstos, one of the Representatives in our Legislature for the 2d, has been recommended to fill the vacancy, and the friends of law and order cannot do better than to elect him.

Short sermons in politics, prompt action at the polls, are twice as good as a sermon, stump speeches, and faction, to carry a church ticket. So we say, God and the people rule, and all is safe. Peace makes prosperity, and union creates power; so let every honest man cultivate both, and our country is safe from the heterogeneous mass of mobs, and the poverty of hypocrites.

Col. Backenstos, has acted heroically with all the citizens of Hancock County, and now let us act as fairly with him, and show the people of the United States that we can not be bought with a mess of pottage.

Gullibility.—Any lie, told on the Mormons or more properly, Latter-day Saints, is swallowed down by the community around, as quick as lightning and as slick as grease. The Mormons are all thieves; are constantly being sent to the penitentiary; have from one to twenty wives a piece, and have such enormous long brass cannons, that they can shoot a humming bird's eye out forty miles off; (says the news papers) and yet there is no Mormon in prison; nor a Mormon killed, (unless martyred,) nor a Mormon that has any wife but his own, nor an indictment for bigamy; nor has the report of a cannon been heard since the mob celebrated their own degradation. O a much as grains used to say, the gullibility of this generation, is wide as a barn-door, and goes and slathers of folks in there.

Law.—What an immense importance attached to the term law. One wiseacre supposes the law is the only rule to live by; another thinks, if it be broken it must be mended; and Blackstone thought it was a "Rule of action." The thought of law is a merry one. Suppose we had and could understand the laws of every nation, and had no better right to perjury than now exists among the whole, would't there be a fix! well there would, as the clown says, be a super extravagant tub of goat's milk to wash off the dirt of naughty men with.

Now, law is old say so that you be done. To feel for a grain, and then let you a ton.

Rumors reach us of murders in Hancock county, amongst both the Mormon and anti-Mormons. The connections in that county in the past year are a disgrace to civilization. From the information we can obtain, the whole county is in a perfect state of anarchy. We have been written to by persons at the east whose friends have become priestesses to the Mormon faith, requesting us to dissuade them from going to Nauvoo. We are sorry to say that we know families who are distinguished for industry and piety have joined this deluded sect. These, will probably be the greatest sufferers by the villany of some of the members.

We believe however there are many good citizens in that county, both in and out of the Mormon church. Who could, if they would attempt it, check this anarchy, and restore peace and quiet, still saving the Mormons to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience. We cannot but believe that there are a large portion of these deluded people who are virtuous and honest, and our sympathies for them is awakened by outrages, which have been committed by their opponents which can find no justification.—Peoria Register.

Such dreadful good articles never have benefited the Mormons or the world. Sheriff Dunning shot a man in his own defence at Carthage, and a man by the name of Hodges was murdered in Nauvoo, by some of his own clan for fear of disclosures—as is most probable, as he was going to his residence at Mechanicsville, from the trial at Burlington; and from the best information the Register obtain the whole county is in a "perfect state of anarchy." We know not what the county at large is in, but we know that Nauvoo is in a "perfect" state of peace.

If the surrounding country had been as "jealous" for the "honor" of the State when the Smiths were martyred at Carthage last summer, as they pretended to be for the blood of no body knows who, now, some of the "disgrace" that sticks out so prominent at the sixteen mile point and other places might have been wiped off and the wrath of God stayed; rumors would have rotted in their nest.

As to the Register's "belief" that a large portion of these deluded Mormons are virtuous and honest, we will go his suit for that, and he may rate the portion at 99, 3-3 of the real Mormons in a 100. The Mormons are always ready to show virtue, test honesty, prove religion, worth reputation, try skill, compare cities, vote alike, and promote peace with any righteous people on earth.

But, dissuading the Mormons from going to Nauvoo, is a great scheme. It could be about as easy to dissuade the Jews from burning up towns and cities, and tell God to stop pouring out calamities upon this generation, as to try an embargo upon the gathering of Israel in the last days. God, who never errs, omits that matter, and so, as the "sixteen mile pointer" says, the "Gentiles" low away. The sheep know the voice of the shepherd, and a wolf they will not follow. Isn't that curious?

Great Fire at Calcutta.—The Great Western arrived at New York on the 21st ult. The most important item we get by her, is a destructive fire at Calcutta on the 9th of May. The total loss of all, including the buildings, is estimated at about 5 or 6 lakhs. Such a fire, it is believed, has not occurred in Calcutta, since it was taken by Surug-dowlah in 1756.

The American ship Virginia, was also entirely destroyed by fire on the 5th of May, a few miles south of Calcutta. Wonder if the Gazette or any other paper will charge these calamities on the Mormons? O fools and slow to understand the chastening hand of an offended God, do ye not now that peace will shortly be taken from the earth?

Hot Drops.—It is said that twelve persons, on the 16th ultimo, in consequence of the intense heat, dropped down dead in the streets of New York.

Courteous.—The St. Louis Sun, has no thanks for giving the Gazette a few "hot drops" in exchange for "fire" in the Mormons account.

We pray God to spare from his hot wrath, every city and friend that offers charity to the needy.

The wrath of Man.—Philadelphia says the St. Louis Sun, is again the scene of disgrace and bloodshed, by riots among her firemen. They had continued for two or three days, and still were not at an end.

The wrath of God.—A most tremendous thunder storm, says the St. Louis Sun, has visited Quebec, and one still more violent at New York, prostrated the ruined walls of the late fire, tearing up trees, unroofing houses and doing considerable damage.

The probability is, that the Lord, as he declared by the mouth of the prophets, will feed this generation with judgments till they are satisfied that Mormons know what is coming, and then cometh another wo!

The next Generation.—Master Bailey turned out on Saturday last, with his company of boys. Long life, and eternal glory to the children of Israel.

Sunk.—The steamer Mungo Park, is said to have been sunk on her downward trip to St. Louis last week.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that place according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845—49.

LIME LIME!—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand, and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate lime, at their Kilns near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Sarrin.

All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment and re-refused.

JOSUAH BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.

May 7. 1845—No. 1—6m

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.
EDWARD J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large quantity of GOODS, which we have opened in the lower front of the NALVIC SEED STORE near JOSEPH CITY STORE situated on Mulholland Street, one block and half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles so essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Druggs, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Crockery, in short all things that are daily wanted in our line. And having been supplied with a large and fine assortment of every variety, including all in quality, and also in price, we are the inhabitants of the city of Joseph at our vicinity to call and see.
 Country produce will be received for goods.

NOTICE.
FOR a le or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A farm of 200 acres. 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of
LEVI STEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845.—52-1f

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.
THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the T. & M. or Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups, and Sauces, Chambers, Pippins and Sells,

sale and retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi of the same quality. We loan of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Pottery and having worked in the most extensive Manufories in England.

ELIJAH K. FULLER, President
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM BOX,
RICHARD RALPHS.
JOSEPH RALPHS,
THOMAS RALPHS,
ALFRED GORDON,
JOHN BURNE Clerk,

June 4th 1845-5-m

PHONOGRAPHY.

GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in This City tion for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.

May 2d, 1815-16

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WARE HOUSE, general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo.

The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try,
Ere you buy.

Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

STURGEON AND NICHOLS

April 7:49-6m

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.
Manufactured by the Nauvoo Smith and Carriage Manufacturing Association, and for sale in the office of Sawyer, opposite the Joseph Smith store, the following articles, to wit:—Couches, Omnibuses, Chair-ers, Chaises, Cabs, Broughams, Duggeries and Boreys, Wagons, Hearse, Southeaster, Trailing Wagons, two-and four Horse Lumber Wagons, Ox and Horse Cabs, Flomias, Scythe Noodles, Pitch Forks, Hakes, Cardias and Thrashing Machines, Horse Powers, Railroad Cars, and many other articles, all of which are sold as cheap as can be purchased in any eastern market. All orders must be paid post, and addressed to
G. W. H. HILLS, Esq., Pres't. of the Association.

J. H. & W. RAISTON,
Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.

WILL attend to all business in the profession that is entrusted to their charge.
Particular attention given to the collection

W. H. KAMETOW'S Office at Warsaw, Harkow Count., 1 line.
 Warsaw, May 12th, 1845.—3—f

TURNING & CABINET MAKING.
 THE subscriber, having returned this city is prepared to manufacture all kinds of furniture of the best quality and on the most reasonable terms, cheap as the same articles can be purchased in St. Louis.

He is also prepared to do all kinds of turning in the most fa-shionable style, having had an extensive experience both in the above branches, he flatters himself that he will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with their orders.

To his friends in the surrounding country who have heretofore patronized him, he would state, that he should feel obliged by a continuation of their favors.

Shop on Main street, a few doors below the post office.

JAMES BIRD.
Nauvoo, June 4, 1845-6-3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a fair opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business.

We sell for cash, and our motto quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH,
 Corner of 3d and Pine streets, S.
 Louis, Mo.
 Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
 April 7:49-9m W 6m

A Man grown by guano and electricity.—The New Haven Courier tells the following capital story:—

A citizen of this place, while recently on a tour in the State of New York, was induced to make one of the audience of an itinerant lecturer who was holding forth upon the efficacy of electricity as applied to vegetable productions.

In the course of his harangue, guano was incidentally alluded to as a powerful agent in quickening the growth of plants, and the effects of both were displayed in such glowing language that the auditory soon imagined themselves standing in the midst of a field and endeavoring to measure the height of the grain, before it was out of reach. The whole assembly were in a fine state of enthusiasm, and swallowing down the wonders revealed to them with open mouths and staring eyes, when a plain looking old farmer arose, and with apparently much diffidence, begged leave to confirm the lecturer's statements, by the relation of an incident which he had recently witnessed, and to which he had been

The farmer said he, a very bad boy, named Tommy, he's given us a good deal of trouble, and having tried various methods to reform him without success, I told my wife that it would be best to try something that was new, rather than more severe. Accordingly we agreed to shut him up at night in the barn. This answered very well for a while, but he grew worse again, till finally I was obliged to shut him up every night at sundown.

Well, one night while Tommy was roosting with the cattle, and I was in bed, there came on a tremendous thunder storm. It lightened sharp enough to put out a man's eyes, and thundered so loud that it made the house rattle like a snare drum. Feeling rather uneasy about the boy, I got up early in the morning, and went out to see how he fared. As I was going to the barn, I met a man, most eight foot high coming towards me. I never had seen such a tall critter in all my life before, and I began to feel sorter scartle at having him about my premises.

Hallo, says I, as soon as I could speak, who are you? and what are you doing in my barn yard?

The strange looking animal answered in a little, squeaking child's voice, why, father, it's me, don't you know Tommy?

You, says I; why, Tom, how on earth did you get stretched out so long in one night? why, you're grown as tall as all out doors; don't you know it?

Why, yes father, says he, I s'pose I have, for last night I slept on them bags of Guano you put in the barn, and that and the lightning together just did the business.

The effect of this story upon the audience was indeed electric. Peel upon peel of laughter followed, the people went off every way, and the next day the lecturer upon electricity and guano was among the missing.

Immense Army.—Among the papers left by a French general lately in the United States, and who was formerly attached to the grand army of Bonaparte which passed the Niemen for Russia, was found a list of that army, which, in a few short months, perished by the climate and the shock of arms.

Poles, 60,000; Saxons, 30,000; Austrians, 30,000; Bavarians, 30,000; Prussians, 24,000; Westphalians, 20,000; Wurtembergers, 3,000; Badenians, 3,000; Danubians, 4,000; Goths and Wends, 2,000; Wurtzburg and Franconia, 5,000; Mecklenburg, Nassau and Small Princes, 5,000; Italians and Neapolitans, 20,000; Spanish and Portuguese, 4,000; Swiss, 10,000; French, 250,000; including 60,000 cavalry, besides 40,000 horses, artillery and train, consisting of 1,200 pieces of cannon. Total, 433,000, with the women, and other followers of the army, making a grand total of 526,000 persons—the largest army ever concentrated at any period of history. The number of Russians destroyed in this campaign exceeded 200,000. Thus over 600,000 perished to gratify one man.

A Valuable Discovery in Africa.—It is stated in a letter recently published in the columns of the National Intelligencer, that a new race of people have been discovered near the mission established by the American Board at the Seelon, who are described as being far superior to any upon the coast, and whose language is represented as one of the most perfect and harmonious in all the world; who have among them a tradition that some two centuries ago a stranger came to their country and instructed them in civilization and their duties; who are acquainted with the facts and truths of the holy Scriptures, and who are remarkably prepared for the reception of further knowledge. They are at present removing from the interior towards the coast, and the missionaries cherish the hope that through their agency civilization and Christianity may be widely diffused.

CITY LOTS FOR SALE.
LOTS, belonging to the NAUVOO WATER POWER CO.—The cheapest and best in the city, are offered for sale on as moderate terms as a purchaser can reasonably ask.
The lots are beautifully situated on the bank of the river, where the most business part of the city eventually will be.
For terms apply to the subscriber, or to Mr. EDWARD HUNTER, Esq.
JOHN E. PAGE, President.
July 14-111f

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor.
WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop, a few rods south of the Temple, near the New York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coats cut and made for $1.00.
Pants and vests " " 50c
Coats cut for " 25c Pants and vests for " 12c
and other work in proportion.
Ladies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms.
N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style.
June 11, 1845. 6 3m

In the Hancock Circuit Court Illinois May Term A. D. 1845.
State of Illinois,)
Hancock County,) ss.
Erastus Snow,)
vs.)
Charles Beck.)

NOTICE—Is hereby given to the said Charles Beck, that a writ of attachment has been issued out of the clerk's office of the Circuit Court of said county at the suit of Erastus Snow against the estate of you the said Charles Beck, for the sum of two hundred and twenty five dollars, returnable to the May term A. D. 1845, of said court; that the same is pending before said court, and has been returned by the sheriff of said county, to wit the north west quarter of the south east quarter of a section No. 17, in township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section No. 19, township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also one third of an acre being the north east corner of lot No. 1, block No. 13, in Wells' addition to Nauvoo, being eleven rods on the east side; also served on John Lamoreaux, Truman Barlow, Hiram Falk, & Ephraim S. Green as garnishees; that unless you the said Charles Beck, and the said garnishees aforesaid shall appear before the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be held on at the Court house in Carthage, on the third Monday in the month of May next, and plead, answer, or demur to the said plaintiff's action, in judgment will be rendered against you by default, and the premises so attached will be sold to satisfy the same with cost.

Witness, D. E. HEAD, clerk of [L.S.] our said Circuit Court and the seal thereof at Carthage this 3d day of April, A. D. 1845.

D. E. HEAD, clerk.
A. W. BABBITT for Plaintiff.
April 5 - 49 - 11f

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.
HARNDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGEMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends can procure a passage by any of the Packet ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans.

Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from on board steaming upwards, all the particulars of which can be ascertained by enquiring of JOHNATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent.
Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office.
Nauvoo, May 1845 - 4-11f

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NAUVOO AND VICINITY.

SHOES! SHOES!! SHOES!!!
The subscribers having recently opened a shop for the above business, would respectfully solicit, of the inhabitants of Nauvoo and vicinity, a share of their patronage. They for the present, design to confine themselves exclusively to the manufacturing of Ladies and Children's shoes, and having had long experience in said business, have no hesitation in recommending their work as being as good as the best. They have on hand the best assortment of Morocco and Kid that has ever been in the city—prices moderate, and a reasonable deduction for cash. Their stand may be found corner of Parley and Warsaw streets, about one-half mile east of the Mansion.

Also, an assortment of Leather, Calf skins, Goat skins, Lining &c., &c., for sale, on reasonable terms.

MEAD & RAGER.
Nauvoo, June 10th, 1845-8 3m

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.

THE Association is now prepared to supply the citizens with Boots, Shoes, Saddles and Harness upon the shortest notice and the most reasonable prices. We invite a call on those who want to purchase such articles, because we will not be undersold by any shop in the city when the cash is present. The fact is we cannot be undersold because we manufacture our own leather and that of the best quality, and the workmen, both in the tannery and shoe shop, are the best in the western country, being principally from the Eastern and Southern cities and from Great Britain.

We will pay the highest price for hides in leather, but, shoes, harness, and cash occasionally.
Remember the counsel to keep your hides in Nauvoo.
We will tan hides on shares.
General depot, three blocks east of the Temple, Mu Holland street.
SAMUEL MULINER, President.
ZENAS H. GURLEY, Superintendent of the Tannery.
July 1, 1845-9 1f

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.
THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.
PHYLANDER CORLESS.
April 14th, 50c

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 60 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses;—Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.
ALSO:
ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.
ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:
ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinkneysville, the county seat in Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 31-2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI.
FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs, situated 40 miles from Vicksburg; Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:
A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.
April 1, 1845 - 49 1f

ALSO:
A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncietown, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulston of La Harpe, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE
April 15 50c

NOTICE.
A "Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.
THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and going to the new purchase in Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between the above named points and the roads far superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL C. DAVIS.
May 23d. 1844.

WEEKLY PASSENGER STEAMER.

WAR EAGLE.
THE splendid, light draught, passenger steamer, War Eagle, D. S. Harris, master, will run weekly from St. Louis to Galena and Du Buque the present season, leaving Nauvoo every Wednesday afternoon on her upward trip, and on her downward trip, she will leave Nauvoo every Saturday afternoon.
For freight or passage, having splendid accommodations, apply on board or to
C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.
June 18. 1845-7 1f

NOTICE.
I hereby given, that the undersigned will apply to the County Commissioners Court at the next session, to be held in Carthage, for a licence to keep a ferry across the Mississippi river, between Nauvoo and Montrose, Iowa territory.
DANIEL CARN.
Nauvoo, July 16-11c

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.

HE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 qt. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.
References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orson Hyde.
March 24, -47 1f

COOPERS ASSOCIATION.

THE Coopers of the city of Nauvoo, wish to inform the public, that they have entered into an organization, for the purpose of carrying on the business of Coopering in all its various branches, and that we are now prepared to contract for jobs of any magnitude; and inasmuch as we have some of the best of workmen, we hope to merit the support and confidence of Merchants and others, who may favor us with a call.

Any person wishing for work done in our line of business, will please apply to the Superintendent of the Association on Hyram Street, between Partridge and Hyde Streets, who is empowered to contract for all jobs at prices to suit the time.

We would also inform the public that we want immediately, ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND STAVES, for which we will pay the highest West river prices. Persons wishing to furnish us with good Staves can apply to the Superintendent as above.

Individual property of members of said Association will be exempt from liability for debts contracted by said Association.
WM. EARL, President.
HENRY B. HUFFMAN, Counsellor.
CYRUS WINGATE, Treasurer.
HUGH LITTLE, Superintendent.
H. B. HUFFMAN, Treasurer.
HENRY STANDAGE, Secretary.
May 18, 1845 - 3m

TINNERS ASSOCIATION.
THE undersigned having associated themselves together for the purpose of carrying on the tin-plate and sheet-iron business in all its various branches, have taken the shop formerly occupied by Dustin Amy, corner of Young and Mulholland streets, where they are prepared to manufacture tin and sheet-iron ware at wholesale or retail, as low as can be bought in St. Louis or elsewhere.

N. B. For the accommodation of persons living on the flat, we have deposited a quantity of tin ware at Messrs Oakley's store, where those in want can be accommodated at all times.

PHILIP B. LEWIS, DUSTIN AMY, JOHN MILLS.
Nauvoo, June 25. 1845-8 1f

NOTICE—THE subscribers for the cast, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.

N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.
June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.
A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent timber, such as Maple, Beech, Ash, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet; a large fringed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.
March 19-46 1f

EARTHENWARE EARTHENWARE!
GROUETT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthenware Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one Block north of Parley Street.
Feb. 7, 1844. no 41-1f.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.
Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.
The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBELL LOZENGES.
For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A cure in all cases guaranteed or the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.
This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, puff in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

NOTICE.
PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

NOTICE—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.
In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his prices.

	Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	do	do	plain	2.00
do	do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	do	do	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	62
do	do	do	neat	87
do	do	do	plain	50
do	do	do	neat	75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.
Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1844.

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.

BRETHREN wishing to purchase Land, Houses or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's or the Mansion.

WILLIAM SMITH.
ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this country, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.
May 6th, 1845-1 1f

LAW NOTICE.

BABBITT & EDMONDS,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.

WOULD most respectfully inform the public, that they have associated themselves together in the practice of the profession, and will attend to any business intrusted to them in the state of Illinois, or in the Territory of Iowa. Mr. Babbitt will be found as usual at his office in the city of Nauvoo. Mr. Edmonds will be found at his office, in the town of Keokuk, in Lee county, Iowa Territory.
July 14-11f

COOK & PETERSON,
DEALERS in Hides, Leather and Findings, No. 71, Main Street St. Louis.
July 9-10 6m.

MERMAID!
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis every Friday and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning;—on her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as "pleasantness was more gold, than tricks and ferocity." For further particulars enquire of

J. C. ALLEN, Agent,
for Nauvoo.
March 22, 1845-1 1f

OSPREY:

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.

THE new light draught swift passenger steamer OSPREY, ANDERSON Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Oquaka, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday; Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exception will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to
C. ALLEN, Nauvoo
Jan. 1, 1845-35 1f

NO WAR BUT A STRONG OPPOSITION TO FOREIGN MANUFACTURES.

THE undersigned would beg leave to inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general, that they have removed the Old Connecticut pottery from Iowa to the City of Joseph, one block east of the Temple, where they have on hand a large assortment of red and mottled colored ware of the best quality, viz. churns, milk pans, crocks, jars of all kinds with covers, pie dishes, pudding pots, cups, bowls, pitchers, stove tubes, chimney tops and furnaces, with a multitude of other articles too numerous to mention; all of which will be sold at wholesale or retail for all kinds of country produce, dry goods and groceries—cash not refused. All bills and orders will be filled on the shortest notice.

MOSES MARTIN, E. K. FULLER.
June 5, 1845. 6 3m

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Chariots, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Buggy Wagons, Horses, Spotons Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, also, Ploughs, Scythe snaths, Rakes, &c., &c. which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Water street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Yearsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to hear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices, for we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line on delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Pres.
RICH'D BALENTINE, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
ELIJAH FORDHAM,
H. THOMAS,
JOSHUA SMITH,
DAVID W. FOX,
BRIGHT WEBSTER.
Jany. 15th, 1845-37 1f.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 15.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois Wednesday, Aug. 13, 1845.

Whole Number 171

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Streets, Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor, (John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

REMOVAL OF THE POTTAWATAMIES.

It has been for some time an important object with the General Government to negotiate a treaty with the Pottawatomies for their removal west and south of the Missouri river. The lands belonging to them at present lie east of the Missouri river and north of the State of Missouri, extending eastward to the tract purchased a short time ago of the Sacs and Foxes. The soil is fertile; there is abundance of timber and water; and the climate is very healthy. Those who have visited it pronounce it as desirable a tract as any on this continent. As Iowa will soon be admitted into the Union, it is important that the Pottawatomies should be induced to remove, so that these lands may be opened for cultivation by the whites. It is as important to the Indians as the Government.

Several efforts have been made to negotiate a treaty with them for their removal, but hitherto without success. They are well pleased—or at least a large portion of them, with their present location, and are opposed to leaving it. Major Harvey, who has just returned from Council Bluffs, has been endeavoring to induce them to remove, and we learn has succeeded in obtaining from them a promise to sell their lands, provided the terms of sale are favorable to them. This was an important point to be gained. Heretofore they have positively refused to sell on any terms. We understand from the statement of one who was present at the negotiation, that the address and conduct of the Superintendent was their confidence, and that, notwithstanding the determination with which they evidently went into Council, he succeeded in inducing them to consent to go, whenever the Government should offer them such terms as they could reasonably be expected to accept. It appears that he was instructed to offer them a new home at the head of the Osage river, which they refused to accept, pronouncing it a desert and sickly country, without timber or water courses. They say they cannot live in such a region, and positively refuse to go there. A delegation from the Indians now residing at the head of the Osage, were present at the Council, and expressed great dissatisfaction with that region; to which they had been induced to remove. They will cheerfully join the "Upper Indians" if they can all be located on the Kansas. It is supposed that 800,000 acres of land can be purchased from the Kansas Indians for a small sum, and that the Pottawatomies will readily remove thither, if the Government will increase their annuities, which are now about $16,000, to $41,000, allow them $50,000 to pay the expenses of their removal, and $61,000 for their improvements, and provide them with one year's subsistence in their new homes. This would be giving them about the same price for their lands which the Sacs and Foxes received—say, 10 cents per acre.

No less than thirty eight treaties have been made at different times with the clans composing the present Pottawatomie nation. Once they owned large portions of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri; and they have been collected together under various treaties and at different intervals, in the country they now occupy, on the confines of the vast deserts or prairies where they cannot procure a subsistence by hunting or fishing, and where there are none of the sugar camps to which they have been accustomed. In a few years various limited annuities amounting to $54,000 will cease, and there will then be left to them only a perpetual annuity of $22,000, in addition to the interest on their improvement and education fund, amounting annually to about $14,000. The whole nation numbers about 5,000 individuals, and consequently the annuities which they will receive in a few years, will amount, including all they are to receive annually, to a trifle more than seven dollars for each person. Hence their demand is not an unreasonable one, when their present and approaching condition, and the vast amount of valuable land they have already ceded, are now willing to cede to the Government, are considered.

The policy of our Government has been for years to remove west of the Mississippi and south of the Missouri, all of the Indian tribes included within its territorial limits, so that they might be brought together, and receive the protection of, and if possible, be civilized by the whites. The race is fast wasting away, and another century may not elapse before all of the tribes which have been removed west of the Mississippi, will have disappeared. It therefore becomes our Government to act liberally towards them. Many of the remnants of tribes located west of Missouri and Arkansas are represented as in a destitute, helpless and starving condition, compelled to beg of the whites corn and other articles of food, or subsist by stealing. Some of them are located on tracts of land exceedingly fertile, and as desirable as any west of the Mississippi, whilst others have been removed to tracts wholly valueless to Indians. Still humanity and sound policy demand that the design of our Government should be carried out, and that the Winnchagoes in Wisconsin and the Pottawatomies in Iowa should be induced to remove south of the Missouri river, and be provided there with the means of comfortable subsistence. It is supposed that the latter tribe will readily unite with the Kansas, who are said to be anxious for the union.

If the terms which it is supposed the Pottawatomies will accede to, are granted, they will then receive for each individual of the nation an annuity of about ten dollars, whilst the Sacs and Foxes receive about forty, and the Minnians ninety dollars. The Superintendent should be permitted to go beyond the amount mentioned in the foregoing remarks, if necessary. There are many reasons for speedy action on this subject. The white population has already reached the lands belonging to the Pottawatomies, and the half-breeds who are to removal, will have great and, it may be, a controlling influence over the "Nation," as soon as the old chief Wau-bon-see, now very infirm, shall die. He is anxious to see his people well provided for, before he dies, and will exert great influence in favor of a treaty, if its terms are liberal. Such is the position of affairs at the present time.

Maj. Harvey has been successful beyond the expectations of those familiar with the feelings and wishes of the tribe. He has obtained from them a promise to sell, and thus prepared the way for a treaty. Nothing can now prevent the success of future negotiations but a parsimonious disposition on the part of our Government. Whilst hesitating to pay a few additional dollars, the desired opportunity for treating successfully may be lost. The policy of our Government with regard to the Indian tribes should not be thwarted through a desire to save a few dollars. At best, they need all the aid they receive, and economy does not require that they should be impoverished, or driven to desperation.—Reporter.

We have selected the above to show the feelings and desires towards the Indians, of some people. Our mind is, that the Indians have just as good a right to buy out the Whites, as the Whites have to trifle with them; or stay where they are so long as they do not interfere with their neighbors.

The Eura—A Machine for making Latin Verses.—This machine, now exhibiting at the Egyptian hall, is one which presents much interest to scientific engineers, although it does not afford much facility to the attainment of elegant Latin composition. Its operation resembles that of Brewster's kaleidoscope, which, by very simple means, produces an endless succession of geometric figures. As in the kaleidoscope, this machine is calculated to manufacture, in never ending series, Latin Hexameters. At the rate of about a verse a minute, each verse being perfect in grammar, sense, and prosody. The machine may be stopped at any time, or suffered to go on continually, producing new verses, "each of which is original, having never been produced before, and never to be repeated again." The law which governs the operation of this machine is the law of evolution, by which, as in Babbage's machine, endless combinations of a certain form are produced. The form of the verse produced is always the same. The following:—Impia | regna | focus pro | gnaunt | jurgia | densa, is a specimen of the latinity and style of this mechanical poetry. The verb always appears in one place, and is always of one form, while the prevalence of neuter plurals is strikingly evident. The inventor of this machine is a Mr. Clark, a native of Glastonbury, to whom the first idea of this verse-maker was suggested by an old book, the work of one of the monks of Glastonbury Abbey, in which the theory of Mr. Clark's invention was contained. This was, with some labour, reduced to practice by Mr. Clark, and the result is the machine which we have attempted to describe.

GENERAL JACKSON'S LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT.

Extract of a letter from Nashville, to a gentleman in Washington, dated June 7.

"The last will and testament of the hero was this day approved in our county court, and is of public record. He commences by giving his body to the dust, whence it came, his soul to God that gave it, &c., devoting his estate, first to the payment of two debts, viz: one of $8,000, with interest, borrowed of Gen. Plache, of New Orleans; another of $10,000, with interest, borrowed of Blair & Rives; and the balance to his son, Andrew Jackson, jr., with the exception of a few servants to his grand children.

The sword presented him by the State of Tennessee, he gives to A. J. Donelson, (his nephew,) now charge d'affaires at Texas. The sword presented him at New Orleans, he leaves to Andrew Jackson Coffee, the son of old Gen. Coffee. The sword presented him at Philadelphia, he leaves to his grandson and namesake. The sword and pistols which he carried through the British and Indian wars, he leaves to General R. Armstrong. The pistols of Washington, by him given to Lafayette, and by Lafayette given to Jackson, he leaves to George Washington Lafayette, the son of Gen. Lafayette. Sundry other presents made him during his long and eventful career, are left with his adopted son, with instructions to him, that, in the event of war, they shall, upon the restoration of peace, be distributed among those who shall have conducted themselves most worthy of their country in the conflict, in the opinion of their countrymen and the ladies.

It is dated, I think, in September, 1845, and revokes a will made by him several years before. It is in his own steady and firm handwriting, and, like all things that ever fell from his pen, breathes the purest patriotism throughout.

Excitement and Sport at Newport.—No event since the visit of La'Hercule, has produced so much excitement as has existed here this morning. At an early hour it became known that a shoal of black fish was in the offing, under way for the harbor, and in less than an hour they made their appearance inside of Fort Wolcott. They received their first welcome from the boats of an outward bound whaler, which were soon joined by a fleet of boats from the wharves. The chase, the striking, and the towing in of the fish, were animated in the extreme. Before eleven o'clock 33 fish were dead and landed. They measured from 9 to 22 feet in length, and will each yield from 2 to 9 barrels of oil. Hundred of spectators enjoyed the sport while standing on the wharves, and viewed the whaling corps engaged in this mimic chase of the monster of the deep. A "hundred barrel" fish could not have called forth more energy and skill than were displayed by the "old salts" in the whale boats. Two of the first was taken by a small boat not 12 feet long, and the way in which she walked through the water was a caution to country boys. Gravelly Point showed as many at low tide as hanged there by the neck, when 23 pirates made a taut lide under the galleys in the reign of Queen Anne.—Newport Letter, July 7.

A METEOR.

A friend on board the U. S. schooner On-ka-hy-e has favored us with the following:

On the night of the 26th of May, 1845, about 11 o'clock, we then being in lat. 13 N. lon. 75 W., there appeared one of the most brilliant meteoric phenomena that I have ever witnessed. The whole heavens were illuminated, and seemed for a moment as if about to break out into one extended sheet of flame. The meteor itself was about one-third the size of the full moon, it appeared nearly in the zenith, and travelled with an accelerated velocity from N.W. to S.E., performing an arc of about 25 degrees; it then exploded, dividing into several fragments looking like so many shooting stars. Between eight and ten minutes after the explosion, we heard a report resembling a distant gun, but more prolonged, like the rolling sound of distant thunder. I should judge that we were about 130 miles from the spot where the explosion took place. What sensations it must have produced in one who could have been within a mile or two of it can be but faintly imagined. I have no doubt that it was an aerolite of the first class. The captain, officer of the deck, and myself, were the only officers that had the pleasure of witnessing this phenomenon, and both concur with me in pronouncing it to be truly, awfully grand.—Norfolk Beacon.

New Bedford contains some opulent people. It numbers only 12,000 inhabitants, yet its real estate is valued at $12,000,000, being $1,000 to each man, woman, and child. New Bedford has 240 vessels engaged in the whale fisheries.—[Philadelphia Courier.

The Courier means to say, that every man, woman, and child would have $1,000 apiece, were the $12,000,000 equally divided, but as it is mostly possessed by a few rich capitalists, there are no doubt people in New Bedford who are not worth $5, who are not worth any thing. We have known whalers—the poor fellows who earn nearly all the wealth of New Bedford—return from a three years' cruise with scarcely any thing coming to them, when "paid off" and not unfrequently are the cases where they are actually, by some hocus-pocus sort of management, brought in debt to the ship. A friend of ours, who was between three and four years chasing whales in the South Pacific, working harder than a negro slave, and living like a dog, found himself at the end of the voyage indebted to the owners in the sum of $150! So goes the world, under the present state of things—those who do all the work get nothing comparatively, while those who do none, get all.

DECLIVITY OF RIVERS.

A very slight declivity will suffice to give the running motion to water. Three inches per mile, in a smooth straight channel, gives a velocity of about three miles an hour. The Ganges, which gathers the waters of the Himalaya mountains, the loftiest in the world, at eighteen hundred miles from its mouth, is only eighteen hundred feet above the level of the sea; that is, about twice as high as St. Paul's Church in London, and to fall these eight hundred feet in its long course, the water requires more than a month. The great river Magdalena, in South America, running for a thousand miles between two ridges of Andes, falls only five hundred feet in all that distance. Above the commencement of the thousand miles it is seen descending in rapids and cataracts from the mountains. The gigantic Rio de La Plata has so gentle a descent from the ocean, that in Paraguay, fifteen hundred miles from its mouth, ships are seen which have sailed against the current all the way by the force of the wind alone; that is to say, which, on the beautiful inclined plane of the stream, have been gradually lifted by the soft winds, and even against the current, to an elevation greater than that of the loftiest spire.

Peculiarities of Languages.—In all hot countries, men use, in speaking, a multitude of vowels, which are all pronounced by greater or lesser apertures of the month, in breathing and in speaking, and use very few consonants, all of which are produced by more or less complete interruption of the breath, and contact, or even closures of parts, among the organs of speech. Any one who examines the Italian language will find, therefore, about sixty vowels in every hundred letters; and in the Otaheitan (Tahitian) language, which sounds very like Italian, there are even more; it is about seventy five or eighty vowels in every hundred letters. The proportion is very different in England, in which consonants preponderate; and if we examine the language of Inland or Greenland, or of the Arctic-American Esquimaux, we shall find that there are a number of consonants in their more than sesquipedalian words, and that most of these consonants are guttural, as they do not like to open their mouth to the cold air sufficiently to pronounce the labial, dental, or lingual consonant, much less the vowels, and least of all, the more open of the vowels. This is an universal law; though immigration of colonization, or the ancient transplantation of a whole nation by a tyrant conqueror, may sometimes present an apparent exception or anomaly, by our finding a language of people originally temperate or torrid, in frigid zone, or vice versa.

Medical Times.

CURE AND LIBERTY.—The Cleveland Plain Dealer, gives the substance of a very interesting conversation had recently with one of the editors of the Diario, a paper published in the city of Havana. Texas, annexation, and the signs of the times were the subject of conversation, and the Habanero, spoke with great warmth, of his anticipations and those of the thousand others in his island, of the day when the power of the mother country having become a rope of sand, and her throne set at naught by the kingdoms of Europe, she shall have fallen a prey to their wiles and been divided between them, even as Poland was carved and served out peace meal to Russia, Prussia and Austria. "In that day," said he, "we Habaneros will raise the stars and stripes" upon the walls of old Moro Castle, and declare our entire and unlimited independence of all European sway! We cannot be Spanish colonists long—we can be colonists of any other power never. Even to-day, we would become United States citizens if we were strong enough. But the Home Department has quartered an army of tens of thousands of soldiers upon us. We are under martial law. Our taxes are paid because the payment is enforced by bayonets which our own piastres must support. Our revenues are all framed out to monopolists, our privileges of trade sold by the crown to the highest bidder, and our colonial government the bitterest despotism ever suffered by an enduring people. But the time will come when the arm of the government will be shortened, and we shall be free to act alone, or like Texas, ask "protection from the American flag."

CALIFORNIA. CHAPTER I.

The following extract, treating upon the soil and productions of California, we copy from a late work published in Cincinnati, by Capt. Lansford W. Hastings, leader of the Oregon and California emigrants of 1842.

Mr Hastings has recently been lecturing in this city, upon the advantages of emigrating to that country. The principle inducements held out, is a grant of land from the Mexican Government, not less than one square league nor over nine to every emigrant. The climate is never so cold as to freeze—and an instance of death on the coast by a fever, has never been known. The soil produces the fruit and vegetation of every climate in the known world.

From what has been said in reference to the climate, very correct conclusions may be readily drawn in reference to the adoption of this country to the promotion of health. There are few portions of the world, if any, which are so entirely exempt from all febrile causes. There being no low, marshy regions, the noxious miasmatic effluvia, so common in such regions, is here nowhere found. The purity of the atmosphere is most extraordinary, and almost incredible. So pure is it in fact, that flesh of any kind may be hung for weeks together, in the open air, and that, too, in the summer season, without undergoing putrefaction. The Californians prepare their meat for food, as a general thing, in this manner; in doing which no salt is required, yet it is sometimes used, as a matter of preference. The best evidence, however, that can be adduced, in reference to the superior health of this country is the fact that disease of any kind is very seldom known in any portion of the country. Cases of fever of any kind have seldom been known any where on the coast, but bilious intermittent fevers prevail to a very small extent, in some portions of the interior, yet they are of so extremely mild a type that it is very seldom found necessary to resort to medical aid. Persons attacked with these fevers, seldom adopt any other remedy than that of abstaining a short time from food or going to the coast. The latter remedy is infallible, and I am inclined to that opinion, from the fact that fevers are seldom known any where on the coast, and from one or two cases that came under my own observation. The extraordinary health on the coast is perhaps attributable in a great measure, to the effect of the exhilarating and refreshing sea breezes, which at all times prevail in that vicinity. All foreigners with whom I conversed on this subject, and who reside in that country, are unanimous and confident, in the expression of the belief, that it is one of the most healthy portions of the world. From my own experience and knowledge, especially of its entire exemption from all the ordinary causes of disease, and the extraordinary purity of its atmosphere, I am clearly of the opinion that there are few portions of the world which are superior, or even equal to this, in point of healthfulness and salubrity of climate. While all this region, especially on the coast, is entirely exempt from all febrile causes, it is entirely free from all sudden changes and extreme variableness of climate, or other causes of catarrhal, or consumptive affections; hence I cannot but think that it is among the most favorable resorts in the known world for invalids.

The productions will next engage our attention and here, such facts will be adduced as will, to some extent at least, sustain the view taken upon another page, in reference to the extraordinary fertility of the soil. The productions of the Western section will be found to differ very materially from those of the Eastern. I shall first notice those of the Western section, at some length. The timber of this section is generally confined to the coast, the rivers and mountains; but there are many portions of the different valleys, off the rivers, which are well supplied with good timber. The largest and most valuable timber is found upon the coast, where dense forests in many places are found, consisting of fir, pine, cedar, red wood, (a species of cedar) spruce, oak, ash and poplar. Much of this timber grows to an enormous size, especially the red wood, fir and pine, which are frequently seen two hundred, and even two hundred and fifty feet in height, and fifteen or twenty feet in diameter. This timber makes excellent lumber, but its vast size renders it extremely difficult either to chop or saw it with any degree of facility. The timber in the interior, both on the rivers and on the valleys remote from the rivers, consists chiefly of oak, of almost every variety, including red, white and live oak, ash, poplar, cherry and willow. It consists chiefly, however, of the different varieties of oak and ash. The timber of the mountains consists of pine, fir, arbutus, cedar and spruce. Besides the varieties of timber here mentioned, in many portions of the country there is a dense undergrowth of thorns, hazels, briars, roses and grape vines, both upon the coast and in the interior. The timber of the Eastern section is much the same as that of the Western section. Here, as in that section, it is chiefly confined to the mountains and rivers, but it is generally of a much smaller growth than the same species found in that section. It consists principally of pine, fir, spruce, cedar, ash, poplar, cherry and willow are generally found upon, and in the vicinity of the streams, while the fir, pine, spruce and cedar are found mostly upon, and in the neighborhood of the mountains and more elevated regions. The undergrowth of this section also consists principally of hazels, thorns, briars, and grape vines. As before remarked, there are some portions of this section which produce scarcely any vegetation besides the wormwood, or properly, artemisia and the prickly pear. It is frequently asserted that there is a very great deficiency of timber in this country, but such truly is not the case; there is ample timber in both sections, and in all the various portions of each, for all useful purposes. It is true there is not the same quantity of timber here as found in some portions of Oregon, or in some parts of the States, yet the same quantity is not required, in a climate of such extraordinary mildness and uniformity.

Both the climate and the soil are admirably adapted to the growing of wheat, rye, oats, barley, beans and peas, hemp, flax, tobacco, cotton, rice, coffee, corn and cane, as well as all kinds of vegetables, and especially such as potatoes, turnips, beets, carrots, onions and the like. And both the soil and climate are no less adapted to the growing of the greatest varieties of fruits; among which are apples, pears, peaches, plums, cherries and grapes, as well as most of the tropical and northern grains and fruits; particularly such as oranges, lemons, citrons, dates, figs and pomegranates. It is rather surprising that almost all of the tropical and northern grains and fruits should be produced here, in conjunction in the same latitude; but it is no more surprising, than it is to find a southern climate in a northern latitude, as is the case every where upon the Pacific coast, and which is clearly attributable to the causes stated on a previous page. There are other mediate causes which might be assigned, but the above is, manifestly, the proximate cause—yet accounting for a northern latitude possessing a southern climate is, after all, much like accounting for a northern man's possessing southern principles; many circumstances, in either case, must be taken into the account. Without attempting to assign any further reasons, however I will proceed; for perhaps it is sufficient for the present purpose to show that such is the fact, for which each can account at his leisure, and in his own way. Many kinds of the grains and fruit above enumerated, are indigenous; for instance the oats, wheat, rye; many of the tropical fruits and a great variety of grapes; flax, a kind of hemp, red and white clover, are also indigenous productions. The oats here alluded to, have precisely the external appearance of our common oats, but upon examination it will be seen that the grain differs slightly from that of ours. It is rather smaller, and is covered with a kind of fuzzy integument; otherwise it is precisely similar to that of our common oats. They generally grow much higher than ours, and the stalk is much larger, but this is attributable to the superior fertility of the soil, and the greater generative influence of the climate, and not to the difference of the species. Their usual height is about two or three feet, and the stalk is, commonly about the size of our ordinary oats; but they are frequently found even eight feet high, having a stalk half an inch in diameter. Several of the farmers have informed me that they had often seen many thousands of acres in a body, which were higher than they could reach when on horseback. They only grow to this enormous height during those seasons which have been preceded by the falling of an abundance of rain during the rainy season, that, comparatively little rain fell during the previous rainy season; but on several occasions I measured the stalk of oats which were six feet long, and nearly half an inch in diameter. In travelling through the various sections of the country, I have passed thousands of acres, which were from two to five feet in height, and as dense as they could possibly stand; when at the same time I almost hourly saw the old stalks of years previous, which were seven or eight feet in length, and sufficiently large and strong for walking sticks. It is not uncommon, either in a dry or wet season to see continuous plains and valleys, of thousands of acres in extent, which are thickly and almost entirely clad with oats of two or three feet in height which would produce much more abundant crops than our cultivated oats. In many portions, if a crop of oats, he has nothing to do but designate a certain tract as his oat field, and either fence it, or employ a few Indians to prevent the herds from grazing upon it, which being done in May or June he reaps a much larger crop than we are unable to do in any of the States, with all the labor and expense of cultivation.

The clover, of which I speak is in all respects like our ordinary red and white clover grown in the different States, with the exception of its growing much larger. Its usual height is about two or three feet, but vast bodies of it are found four or five feet in height, and as dense as it can possibly grow. It is chiefly confined to the valleys contiguous to the river, but it is also sometimes found in large bodies in many of the plains and on the hills. All of the bottoms and valleys as well as many of the plains and hills abound with this clover, which, when matured, affords a most excellent natural hay, of which all kinds of stock are extremely fond. The flax found among the spontaneous productions, is in all respects like that grown in the States. Its general height is two or three feet, though it is frequently found much larger. Unlike the oats and clover, it is chiefly confined to the northern portion of the country, and is seldom found in larger tracts than five or six hundred acres in a body, but wherever it is found it grows very densely and luxuriantly, even more so than that grown in the east. The fibres appear to be equally as strong as those of the ordinary flax, and as it is, in truth, the same species. It is used by the Indians to a very large extent for the purpose of making seines and ropes, to which purposes it is found to be admirably suited. The hemp found here does not resemble ours, nor is it properly hemp, although so called; it is properly a species of the spurge, commonly called milk weed, but there called hemp. Like the spurge, it emits a milky juice, and grows three feet high, and has a tough fibrous bark, which is used by the Mexicans and Indians in large quantities, for making ropes, seines, and for various other purposes. Comparatively, it grows in very small quantities, for you very seldom see more than fifty or a hundred acres of it together. Wheat and rye are also said to be of indigenous growth, but I am not of that opinion, although I have seen wheat, rye, oats, clover and flax, all growing together, more than three hundred miles from any settlement. But upon a close observation, I perceived that the wheat and rye were found only in the immediate vicinity of the incampments of the traders and trappers, who have for years traversed that country. Upon inquiring of those who have resided in that country for many years, I ascertained that the traders and trappers in passing through the interior, frequently take both wheat and rye with them, as food for themselves and their horses. These facts were fully convincing to my mind, that the wheat and rye had been introduced into the interior in that manner. Other persons informed me that they had very frequently seen both wheat and rye far in the interior, and in portions of the country never visited by the traders and trappers, but still I am of the opinion, that if not introduced in the above manner, they must have been introduced by the Indians or fowls, and although they are spontaneous, yet they are not indigenous productions. The various grasses found here, are much like those found in Oregon and many of the States. That common to the lower valleys and bottoms, is much larger and coarser than that which grows upon the more elevated valleys, plains and hills. The former usually grows about two or three feet high, while the latter grows but about six inches or a foot high. The short grass is much the finest and sweetest, and is always sought after, in preference, by all herbivorous animals. Both kinds here alluded to, form a very excellent quality of natural hay, during the summer, of which the herds are very fond, and which is sought by many grazing animals in preference to the green herbage, which is found at every season of the year. Thus it is seen that the various grasses, the oats and clover, all of which are indigenous productions, not only afford inexhaustible pasturage, during the growing season, but also inexhaustible provender during all the residue of the year.

To be Continued.

COUNTRY OF THE LAKE SUPERIOR.

SAULT STE. MARIE, JULY 5, 1845.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.

I am thus far, on my return home from the Lake Superior country. The difficulty of sending any communications from the Upper Peninsula is my only excuse in not permitting you to know long ere this of my whereabouts, doings, &c. I am now at a place where a Post Office exists, and readily embrace the first opportunity of writing to you.

I have gathered much information respecting the Lake Superior country, which I will serve up to you from time to time. On my arrival here I found among many others bound to the copper country—Dr. David Henshaw, late Secretary of the Navy; Mr. Brinkerhoff, M. C. from Ohio; Mr. Williams, M. C. from Massachusetts; Hon. O. D. Lieut. Gov. of Michigan; and Major Morrill, of your city, beside a some dozen or more members of the Senate and House of Representatives of Michigan; merchants, bankers, artisans, &c. &c. They took passage in the schooners Swallow and Chippewa, and ere this reach you will be found safely landed at Copper Harbor.

I visited among other places at Keweenaw Point, the famous location of the Lake Superior Copper Mining Company, better known as the 'Boston Company,' under the superintendence of Col. Chas. H. Gratiot, a gentleman in every sense of the word. This location is situated to the West of Fort Wilkins about 18 or 20 miles, through which runs North and South, the Eagle River. A letter of introduction to Col. Gratiot soon placed in my possession every thing that was necessary and entertaining for a tourist to know. This Company have now in operation three shafts. The first is seventy four feet deep, and the vein twenty three feet wide. The second is thirty-five feet deep, and the vein twenty-two feet wide. The third is thirty-one feet deep, and the vein six feet wide, and each of these three veins exceeds two and a half miles in length! The veins are all within half a mile of each other, and produce silver and copper averaging from 60 to 70 per cent. They have now on hand, thrown up from the shafts, some four hundred tons, which will be ready for shipment to the Boston market by the 1st of September next.

Col. Gratiot has under him nearly 125 men, who are now busily engaged in erecting pounders and crushers, under which passes the trap rock in which the ore is found. The ore after this process is taken and washed in large wire sieves, which separates the rock from the metal; it is then dried, and put into kegs weighing from 300 to 500 pounds and ready for market.

One thing is very certain, that it can never be smelted in the Lake Superior country without great and unnecessary expense. The chemical laboratories of the East, I am told, prefer purchasing the ore in kegs rather than in the pig. One house alone in Boston will use fifty tons per week. The Pittsburgh company last week at a blast blew up a beautiful specimen of the black oxide of copper, weighing 100 lbs. 3000 pounds of it is seven feet long, three feet wide and two feet thick, and will yield over 60 per cent of copper. It is now on its way to your city under care of J. Hays, Esq., and will reach New York by the 25th inst.

On our passage from Copper Harbor to this place we had among our passengers Capt. B. Stanard, a brother of Capt. Charles S. Stanard, and the original discoverer of a rock (in Lake Superior) now rendered somewhat conspicuous by the increase of navigation, and known among all navigators as the 'Stanard Rock.' From Capt. B. Stanard I ascertained the following particulars in relation to this famous rock, about which the press has been so much at loggerheads. The first American bottom on Lake Superior was the John Jacob Astor. She came out in the summer of 1835, was 150 tons burthen, was commanded by Capt. Chas. S. Stanard, and owned by the American Fur Company.

In August, 1835, the Astor was bound for La Pointe, an island at the extreme Western end of Lake Superior, and among a group known as 'The Apostles,' upon which the American Fur Company have had for many years a depot for the Lake Superior country; on her way up from this place, on the 26th day of August, the rock was discovered by Capt. Chas. S. Stanard as the Astor was standing in for Keweenaw Point. The rock is trap, and in still water is nearly four feet out; it is some thirty or forty feet in length, and fifteen or twenty feet in width; on the North side the water is very deep, while on the South a shoal projects from a quarter to a half a mile in length. From the extreme end of Keweenaw Point it bears S. E. 1 East, distance 29 miles. It is the opinion of all who have seen it that no light house can ever be built upon it with safety. The danger can very easily be avoided by placing a bell on the rock, similar to those for many years in operation on the Scotch and Irish coasts.

It is somewhat singular that our government have never finished the survey of Lake Superior. The only correct chart of the entire coast is that made by the British government, many years ago, under the able superintendence of Capt. Bayfield. With the information derived from this excellent chart our government appear perfectly satisfied, and to this hour, the only map used by the ordinance department at Washington, and by the superintendent of the mineral lands at Porter's Island, is that of Bayfield. This should not be so. The mineral wealth and commercial advantages, now growing daily into favorably notice, demand from the hands of the next Congress an appropriation large enough to complete the canal around the Falls of St. Mary's, and also to furnish to navigators a chart which shall not only embody all that Bayfield has given to the public, but also the course of our rivers on the South side of the lake, the depth of water at the mouths, the bars, reefs, shoals, rocks, points of the compass from point to point, &c.; together with such other information as would readily suggest itself to a scientific projector.

Lake Superior, unlike Ontario, Erie, Huron, St. Clair and Michigan, will never need one dollar of public or private money for harbors; Nature has done her best, and art would fail to make them better; all she will ever require will be Light Houses—one is needed at this very hour at White Fish Point—another at Keweenaw Point, and a third at La Pointe. The Mariner now supplies the want by firing a cannon; if near land it reverberates and echoes among the trap and conglomerate hills, producing an echo equal to thunder; if land is distant, it instantly dies away. Necessity, says the old adage, is the mother of inventions—this is a strange and unsafe way. The brig Astor was wrecked on the beach at Copper Harbor in the fall of 1844, for want of a Light House. Fortunately no lives were lost, but the American Fur Company lost a vessel which cost them over $20,000.

Yours, FLINT.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 13, 1845.

The last Shingle.—The Neighbor has been delayed a few hours, in order to say that the last shingle has been laid upon the roof of the Temple. The roof is now completed, and the sash and window frames having been made ready, the house of the Lord may be considered "enclosed." We thank the Lord who hath extended his arm to help us accomplish so much in so short a time, and we pray for his continued aid for its final completion.

Fast.—To-morrow is a fast day.

See! hear! weep!—"Blow ye the trumpet in Zion * * * And I will show forth wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire; and vapors of smoke." (Joel 2—) Every person acquainted with events, or history, or signs, or even the speculations of the newspapers, expects some wonderful change in the affairs of governments and men, and more than all, in the providence of God. The Millerites have waked up a foolish spirit, that urges on the belief, that Christ is to come before he purifies the earth of sin, or even gathers Israel according to the promise made to the fathers. Other discontented beings have other projects to raze the fluctuating minds of a weak wise generation with: While the Latter day saints, in the name of Israel's God, come forth with scripture and prophecy, declaring what shall be, and to the calamities are here!

Not is this all; there is a belief in man, which all the wisdom, cunning, sophistry, fool hardiness, or bravado of sectarians, infidels, heathens, and even nothingarians, have failed to kill or cure; that belief is this; that God once destroyed the inhabitants of the world by water for wickedness; and that he will again destroy them in the last days for their abominations, by fire! This the scriptures teach; and this will come upon the world like a thief at night.

The prophet says: "For, behold, the Lord will come with fire, and with his chariots like a whirlwind, to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire.

For by fire and by his sword, will the Lord plead with all flesh; and the slain of the Lord shall be many.

In the twelfth chapter and forty ninth verse of Luke, Jesus Christ uses this strong language: I AM COME TO SEND FIRE ON THE EARTH: and what will I, if it be already kindled? Now gentle reader, and ye wise editors, we have quoted three passages of scripture as a prelude to thousands and as a warning to millions, and who will spread the news from house to house; from neighborhood to neighborhood; from town to town; from country to country; from state to state, and from nation to nation, that Jesus Christ has begun to burn up the world? Who will act as a faithful watchman and give notice that the fire has already commenced, and will burn up all that have no refuge? In the midst of this awful conflagration, there will be three places of deliverance; for it is written: "And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall be deliverance, as the Lord hath said, and in the remnant whom the Lord shall call.

A later prophet, and one too, who holds the keys to unlock the stores for this generation, has said: "Behold now it is called to day, (until the coming of the Son of man) and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people; for he that is tithed shall not be burned (at his coming); for after to day cometh the burning; this is speaking after the manner of the Lord; for verily I say, to-morrow all the proud and they that do wickedly shall be as stubble; and

I will burn them up, for I am the Lord of hosts; and I will not spare any that remaineth in Babylon." So now to conclude this short article, all we can say is, Babylon is burning! Babylon is burning! Cast on water, cast on water! Babylon is burning! Babylon is burning! And still will increase.

HOW D'YE DO!

O, THAT wheat which you promised to bring to this office is due and wanted. Fulfil your promises, will ye!

YES, YES! That wood which you said you could just as well haul as not, if brought, will show you are honest; and satisfy the cravings of those that need.

AYE, all the articles promised, whether eatables, drinkables, wearables, or pocketables, (in the form of money,) will now be more acceptable than any other time because them fellows that work off the Neighbor are quite as keen for the 'good things' of the earth, as you are for the great news of the world; Now will you live and help live!

Wanted immediately 1000 or more new subscribers, paying in advance for both papers, that we may be enabled to increase our facilities according to the increase of blessings and calamities. Who is that, that said he did not like to be dunned so? Let him come here and we will tell him a story of one who always obtained a double crop from his field, by tending it well in its time, and praying the Lord of the vineyard to bless it. Come, come, no grunting; the wool that warms a sheep, clothes a man, and the ground that sweats with sap, is full of sugar too.

Come, let go that grip of so much; no man has been able to steal and carry off when he died, any of mother earth's things; they are all here, just as plenty as they were on that blessed morning when God said, they were very good. So, let go! and let all have a portion; 'man wants but little, nor wants that long.'

Signs of the times.—The New York Bulletin contains the following caption to the articles on the second page:—The increase of crime; shocking attempt at suicide; a tale of horror; naval; navy department; two imbeciles, &c.; suicide; child burned; attempt at suicide; railroad accident; drowned; drowned; distressing suicide; was killed; suicide; drowned; found dead; dread'ful; attempt to kill a man; killed; killed; the Westleys and free church of Scotland; organization, &c.; moral influence of British soldiers; diocese of Michigan; Missouri; naval assy-lam; stabbing women; and double crime. Ah! as Pat said, when he saw Dermot crying while chewing a mouthful of cayenne, 'what is the matter?' I was crying, sir, because my father was hung. Pat immediately took a spoonful of the same beverage, and Dermot observing his eyes water, says: 'and what is the matter with you Pat?' Oh! oh; I were crying because you were not hung when your father was.' So this generation has only to cry at one another till the last woe is swallowed.

Nauvoo House.—Perseverance and industry have done more towards beautifying the world, than money. On last Saturday we noticed the scaffold poles standing round the basement story of the Nauvoo House. This augurs well; the materials being mostly ready, we shall not have to wait many weeks, till the body of that house, among the many improvements now going ahead, will grace the city. If from 20 to 30 good bricklayers are engaged, the 800,000 or 1,000,000 brick, in about six weeks, will be piled into a fabric, which, when finished, will rank among the best in America for the comfort and convenience of travellers.

The great speculating world go ahead on money and knavery; the Mormons on labor and faith: The former trusts in gods of silver and gold, upheld by the sword; the latter relies upon the God of Israel, sustained by the prophets and eternal truth, which is Mormonism—and who has the best calculator; the biggest field for improvement; the longest time for enjoyment; and largest magazine for contingencies?

Boat ahoy!—Dr Young has provided a neat skill for the accommodation of pleasureers and passengers on the Rapids, (as per advertisement;) and now, you that wish, give the doctor a try whether he can cut water by long measure, or arithmetical progression.

Chant.—Last Sabbath, the band having ascended the steeple of the Temple, gave a chant as the congregation dispersed from the grove, and being so high, the effect was as near heavenly as any thing we can think of.

Ominous.—A new paper called "Toolsboro' Times, and New Boston Advertiser," made its appearance up the river, the 27th ult. The "Mysteries of Nauvoo," is the novel intention of the thing. It is all ominous; this generation lovely and fallacy, and the author is a perfect TOOL. This generation, can exclaim like Dermot, when holding his mouth open under the plumb tree to catch plumbs,—"have these plumbs got legging, Pat?" No says Pat; "Then," says Dermot, "I've swallowed a straddle bug," (meaning a tree toad which had jumped into his mouth in the room of a plumb, just like the mysteries of Nauvoo from Toolsboro') for I felt it kick.

Lawrence biting.—Every city seems to be pestered with a large number of loafers, who used to be distinguished by the appellation of lazy men, and idle boys, dangerously bitten by Lawrence. The best remedy that now comes to mind to cure them, is the oil of history, applied diligently to the bore lack. Should Nauvoo ever be troubled with the like as much as they are with Religious Counterfeit Detecters, whose cars peer up so jack-a-s-i-c-a-l-y, may virtuous men and women learn them to sing twenty backwards, till they know that industry leads to competency; viz:—
"Nineteen, seventeen, fifteen, thirteen, eleven, nine, seven, five, three, two, one; Twenty, eighteen, sixteen, fourteen, twelve, ten, eight, six, four, and I have done."

Boston notion.—From the American Eagle, we learn that Judge Cushing after patiently setting one afternoon to hear a case fined James M. Mullig, a Bostonian, one dollar for disturbing a Mormon meeting at Suffolk Hall. The statutes of the state, allow $10 in such cases; but Mormonism crumbles official dignity so powerfully that frequently, (as in Missouri) it can not be found. Rulers, Judges and Priests, go ahead and pour in the melted lead—old consciences are cheap!

He should Watch as well as Pray.—While a Priest was performing service in Calvary church New York city, an arch rogue slipped into the vestry and stole his coat and vest, and cleared himself in triumph.

No so.—It is very fashionable among the Saints, to have every thing about right. Those that can't endure such a righteous course, generally leave for the society of 'guinea' hens,—or parts unknown, and business of a private nature, —as saith the 'sixteen mile pointer,' below.

Butter.—Any man that wants to make money, living within fifty or an hundred miles of Nauvoo, let him bring butter. (well secured) by the ton.—Butter is cash at a fair price, in Nauvoo.

Rain.—On Friday last, about six P. M. it commenced raining moderately, and continued three or four hours. The effects were exhilarating.

Foggy.—The St. Louis Gazette, boasts of the Helen, a light draught steamer, drawing only ten or twelve inches water, and says she can run where the ground is a little damp, or in a fog. If she can run in shallower water, or in thicker fog than the Gazette, we should be a friend that her "friction" would set her on "fire." D'ye take-eh?

Special Election.—We have not the official vote of the city—but suppose they will exceed 1,800 which, with the other democratic votes of the county, will elect Mr. Backenstos as Sheriff, and Mr. Miller as Coroner, by handsome majorities.

How to find the day of the week.—Punch says, gold will tell you it is just the beginning; Silver, that it is about the middle; and Coppers that you are near the end of the week.

Vir qui scribit.—Messrs Chambers and Norcum of St. Louis, on their way up the river, gave Nauvoo a call this week. Mr. Chambers, one of the editors of Missouri Republican, is 'the man who writes,' and if he does justice to the city of the saints, will say: wisdom, grace and industry, form a delightful habitation.

Change.—The New York Messenger says:—"The office of the 'Millennial Star' in Liverpool, Eng., has been removed from 36 Chapel Street, to Hanley's Buildings, Emb Street." We give this notice for the information of those directing letters."

What's in a Name?—A new paper has recently been started at Madrid called El Burro—the Jackass.—N. O. Pic.

In St. Louis a Jackass. has just brought forth such a paper. It ought to be called a mule or may be a jumart.

Creole Porcelain.—We have seen several rich specimens of porcelain ware, manufactured at Gretna, opposite this city, which for beauty of finish and transparency equal any of foreign manufacture that we have yet observed. The sand from which these specimens were made is that of the Mississippi river, procured about Baton Rouge and Plaquemine.—N. O. Pic.

Wonder if the beautiful 'sand bath' about Nauvoo, are of the same species? If so, having the best men in the world, 'as well as the best religion,' it will be best to give connoisseurs of crockery a sample of Porcelain from Nauvoo.—What say our boss Potters?

Bustling.—The N. O. Pic. which by the bye is a little lazy this hot weather, tells the following story on the fair sex, by the help of the 'Advertiser' (the men we suppose never carry on any Scher-pi-a-n-a.)

Every thing in a bustle.—Tricks of Female Shop-Lifters in New York. The female shop-lifters of New York have adopted the plan of securing their plunder about their persons in such a manner as to give them the appearance of having on a fashionable bustle. One of these ladies, says the Advertiser, was detected stealing a few days since, and on examination it was found that she had secreted the following articles:—one piece of calico, six pair of hose, one large shawl, sixteen yards of silk, one dozen spools of cotton, six papers of pins, three pair of kid gloves, and a bundle of cotton batting!

Tobacco fumigation.—The following specimen of 'long nines,' is extracted from the St. Louis Price Current, of Saturday Aug. 2. Verily the present generation is very much given to cheating.

[In various city papers a sale of two hds is reported at $22 25 a 23 25 per hundred. In justice to growers of Tobacco generally, and particularly to other competitors for Premiums, it is proper that this error (unintentional no doubt) be corrected. By a preconcerted understanding between the holder and a few buyers two hds were bid off at the above figures respectively, but it was no sale. The best bid would probably have commanded $10 a 12, and the second $8 a 10 per hundred. The two hds in question were originally bought in plantation by present holder at $6 a 8 per hundred.]

First rate.—The Electric Telegraph, says a Yankee paper, is used in England to aid in catching thieves. A man swindles a green one in Southampton, and takes rail road to London. Ere he reaches his destination, the London police have heard all, and, on his arrival, tap him on the shoulder as familiarly as if they had caught him in the very act.

Almost equal to revelation.—"A wise man foresees evil and hides himself;"—that is all the difference.

Alleghany City, near Pittsburgh. July 25th, 1845.

PRES. BAYHAM YOUNG—

Dear Sir:—I write to inform you of my arrival in this place, and also to inform you of matters as they exist here. Brother Hyde will have informed you of our interview with W. E. McLellan, on board the Steamboat; I met him in the street in Pittsburgh; he made a very severe attack on me about Bro. Hyde's Pamphlet, and told me I had been peddling them about town and made myself liable to 2000 dollars bail, or imprisonment. I said, (indeed) I did not know it, but I am not afraid at any rate; and Mr. McLellan, I want you to know that I am not a peddler. He then took hold of the other end of his walking stick, and said if it was not for his religion he would beat me about the streets; and if Miss Rigdon was related to him he would do it any how. I began to watch the figure of his face, and stopped close up to him in case a blow should come, so that I might be the better able to hand him the change for such conduct. He next made some statements about a number of females in Nauvoo, who were gone lunatic on account of the treatment they had received from the brethren, which to my knowledge were utterly false. I told him he had stated things that neither myself, or he, or any one else, ever knew to exist in Nauvoo. He next, in a very angry tone, made complaints against Bill Smith as he so called Bro. William, stating that he had put a paragraph in the Neighbor as long as his (McL's) arm. I told him I knew nothing about it, and laughed at him, he became very angry and all of a sudden turned away from me, saying repent of your sins, and go about your business; and he went suddenly about his business, if he had any.

There are still fires and rumors of fires; the fire bells are ringing at this moment, and they rang the alarm of fire three times yesterday. The inhabitants seem in constant consternation about fire, and yet the Rigdonites have never set the river on fire once with all the friction they have made in this region; but there is a rumor that they have set fire to houses in order to fulfil their prophecies.

But Mr. Rigdon is about to move on to the East, and there purchase land and settle. He has a revelation to this effect, that all his followers must sell all their goods and houses, and lands, or the Lord will not bless them. This move will not carry unanimously, as I understand, many of them, if not all who have anything to dispose of, are going to keep their pro-

THE TWO FOXES.

He (the narrator) was one day in the fields, near a stream where several geese were swimming. Presently, he observed one disappear under the water, with a sudden jerk. While he looked for her to rise again, he saw a fox emerge from the water, and trot off to the woods with the unfortunate goose in his mouth. He chanced to go in a direction where it was easy for the man to watch his movements. He carried his burden to a recess under an overhanging rock. Here he scratched away a mass of dry leaves, scooped a hole, hid his treasure within, and covered it up very carefully. Then off he went to the stream again, entered some distance behind the flock of geese, and floated noiselessly along, with merely the tip of his nose visible above the surface. But this time he was not so fortunate in his manoeuvres. The geese, by some accident, took the alarm, and flew away with loud cackling. The fox, finding himself defeated, walked off in a direction opposite to the place where his victim was buried. The man uncovered the hole, put the goose in his basket, replaced the leaves carefully, and stood patiently at a distance to watch further proceedings. The sly thief was soon seen returning with another fox, that he had invited to dine with him. They trotted along right merrily swinging their tails, snuffing the air and smacking their lips, in anticipation of a rich repast. When they arrived under the rock, Reynard eagerly scratched away the leaves; but his dinner had disappeared! He looked at his companion, and plainly saw by his countenance, that he more than misdoubted whether any goose was ever there, as pretended. He evidently considered his friend's hospitality a sham, and himself insulted. His contemptuous expression was more than the mortified fox could bear. Though conscious of generous intentions, he felt that all assurances to that effect would be regarded as lies. Appearances were certainly very much against him; for his tail slunk between his legs, and he held his head down, looking sideways, with a sneaking glance at his disappointed companion. Indignant at what he supposed to be an attempt to get up a character for generosity on false pretences, the offended guest seized his unfortunate host, and cuffed him most unmercifully. Poor Reynard bore the infliction with the utmost patience, and sneaked off, as if conscious that he had received no more than might naturally be expected, under the circumstances.

Shocking Affair.—We understand that a son of Mr. Cushing, about 15 years of age, at Granville, in this county, met with a dreadful accident on Tuesday last, which may, in all probability, cost his life. It appears he was engaged in doing some work in his father's single manufactory. There are large wooden boxes, communicating with steam boilers, in which the shingles are steamed—and it appears that the boy was standing on one of the boxes, the top of which accidentally broke, and he fell into the scalding steam with the lower part of his body! When taken out, he was found to be covered, from his waist down to his feet, by one mass of blisters. At the last accounts, mortification was anticipated.

We had scarcely recorded the above shocking affair at Granville, ere it became our painful duty to lay before our readers another accident of a still more shocking nature. On last Tuesday afternoon, the lady of James Durley, Esq., High Sheriff of this county, in company with Mrs. Eddy and Mrs. Scheel, rode out in a wagon, and when about half a mile north of town, the horse became fractious, and took to running at a very rapid rate, and the ladies being unable to command the animal, were thrown off, and dreadfully mangled. Mrs. Durley's head was frightfully cut, having a number of gashes several inches in length, her collar-bone fractured, shoulder dislocated, an arm fractured in two places, and others were injured. The other two ladies narrowly escaped, with several bruises. By the prompt and efficient services rendered by Dr. Gore, Mrs. Durley is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.—Herald (Ill.) Herald.

A Fiend.—A man by the name of Green is now on his trial at Troy, New York, for the murder of his wife. The Albany Evening Journal says, that the testimony discloses one of the most deliberate, cold-blooded murders that we ever read. Green had been married but a short time to a beautiful, affectionate, and confiding girl of eighteen, he being twenty-two. Without any provocation or cause, (for when she was dying she had appealed to him to say whether she had ever deceived him, or in any way conducted improperly, and was answered in the negative.) this monster dosed her day and night with arsenic, which he put into her coffee, her chicken-broth, and her medicine—standing by her bedside, unmoved, while the poison was agonizing her with pain! And what is more strange than fiction, is the fact that this poison was repeatedly administered while the persons around the sufferer were witnessing its deadly effects. The victim herself, though apparently conscious that her husband was murdering her, took whatever he offered.

Enormous Navies.—The London Morning Herald denies the statement that the French steam navy outnumbered that of England, and says that the former contains 104 vessels of 25,000 horse power, that of the latter 140 vessels of 34,500 horse power.

CITY LOTS FOR SALE.

LOTS, belonging to the NAUVOO WATER POWER CO.—The cheapest and best in the city, are offered for sale on as moderate terms as a purchaser can reasonably ask.

The lots are beautifully situated on the bank of the river, where the most business part of the city eventually will be.

For terms apply to the subscriber, or to Mr. EDWARD HUNTER Esq.

JOHN E. PAGE, President.

July 14th 1845.

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor.

WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop, a few rods south of the Temple, near the New York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coats cut and made for $1.00. Pants and vests " " 50. Coats cut for 25. Pants and vests for 12 1/2.

Ladies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms.

N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style.

June 11, 1845. G. B. m

In the Hancock Circuit Court Illinois

May Term A. D. 1845.

State of Illinois,

Hancock County, ss.

Erastus Snow,

vs.

Charles Beck.

NOTICE—Is hereby given to the said

Charles Beck, that a writ of attachment has been issued out of the clerk's office of the Circuit Court of said county at the suit of Erastus Snow against the estate of you the said Charles Beck, for the sum of two hundred and twenty-five dollars, returnable to the May term A. D. 1845, of said court; that the same is pending before said court, and has been returned by the sheriff of said county, levied on the following described property, to wit: the north west quarter of the south east quarter of section No. 17, in township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section No. 19, township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also one third of an acre being the north east corner of lot No. 1, block No. 13, in Avals addition to Nauvoo, being eleven rods on the east side; also served on John Langerman; Truman Barlow, Hiram Falk, & Ephraim S. Green as garnishees; that unless you the said Charles Beck, and the said garnishees aforesaid shall appear before the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court house in Carthage, on the third Monday in the month of May next, and plead, answer, or demur to the said plaintiffs action, in judgment will be rendered against you by default, and the premises so attached will be sold to satisfy the same with cost.

Witness, D. E. HEAD, clerk of

[S.] our said Circuit Court and the seal thereof at Carthage this 3d day of April A. D. 1845.

D. E. HEAD, clerk.

A. W. BABBITT for Plaintiff.

April 5—49—tf.

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.

HARNDEN & CO'S PASSENGER

ARRANGMENTS.

PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends can procure a passage by any of the ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York,

Boston, or New Orleans.

Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from one pound sterling upwards, all the particulars of which, can be ascertained by enquiring of

JONATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent,

Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Printing office.

Nauvoo, May 1845—1-1f

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NAUVOO

AND VICINITY.

SHOES! SHOES!! SHOES!!!

The subscribers having recently opened a shop for the above business;

would respectfully solicit, of the inhabitants of Nauvoo and vicinity, a share of their patronage. They for the present, design to confine themselves exclusively to the Manufacturing of Ladies and Children's shoes, and having had long experience in said business, have no hesitation in recommending their work as being as good as the best. They have on hand

the best assortment of Morocco and Kid that has ever been in the city—prices moderate, and a reasonable deduction for cash. Their stand may be found corner of Parley and Warsaw streets, about one half mile east of the Mansion.

Also, an assortment of Leather, Calf skins, Goat skins, Lining &c., &c., for sale, on reasonable terms.

MEAD & RAGER.

Nauvoo, June 16, 1845—8-3m

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS,

BOOT, AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.

THE Association is now prepared to supply the citizens with Boots, Shoes,

Saddles and Harness upon the shortest notice and at the most reasonable prices. We invite a call from those who want to purchase such articles, because we will not be undersold by any shop in the city when the cash is present.

The fact is we cannot be unduly sold because we manufacture our own leather, and that of the best quality, and the workmen, both in the tannery and shoemaking, are the best in the western country, being recruited from the Eastern and Southern cities and from Great Britain.

We will pay the highest price for hides in leather, boots, shoes, harness, and cash on account.

Remember the counsel to keep your hides in Nauvoo.

General depot, three blocks east of the Temple, Mulholland street.

SAMUEL MULLINER, President.

ZENAS H. GURLEY, Superintendent of the Tannery.

July 1, 1845—9-1f

FARMS FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.

THE undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in

Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays

four miles east of the county seat of

Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains

eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land,

with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLANDER CORLESS.

April 14th, 50tf

TWO farms one containing 180 acres,

70 acres improved, with a good

frame house, and out houses; the other

containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved,

with a good block house, and out houses;

Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated

about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 18

miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Payetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 185 acres; 60

acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinkneysville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms will exchange stock for further particulars

apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri,

apply to the above.

ALSO:

ONE farm situated 4 miles east of

Pinkneysville, the county seat in

Perry county, Illinois, containing 120

acres improved, with a good block house

and out houses.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65

acres improved, with a frame house,

and out houses, about thirteen miles from

the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:

ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35

acres improved, 3 1/2 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county,

Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI.

FOR sale or exchange, a plantation

situated 50 miles from Vicksburg,

Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7

miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 2 miles from Gallatin, and 30

miles from Jackson, containing 1080

acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and

out buildings; indisputable title given.

For further particulars apply to George

Black, or at this office.

ALSO:

A PLANTATION containing 400

acres, 80 acres improved, good

dwelling house, good well at the door,

with springs and branch near by—would

also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs,—

situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from

Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:

A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high

state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good

out buildings, together with a good pump

of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit

trees, located on the road leading from

Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from

each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located

in Grant county, Indiana, on the Missineway river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.

April 1, 1845—40tf

ALSO:

A FARM containing 180 acres, with

50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard

of 50 bearing apple trees, together with

many other fruit trees, such as cherries,

peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry

township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15

miles from the head of White Water canal at

Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncie-

town, near a little town called Burlington;

there are two log cabins and a stable upon

the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in

Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given.

Any or all persons wishing to bargain in that way, can call on Dr. Coulston of La

Harpes, Isaac Morley of Lima, or George

Miller of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE

April 15—50tf

NOTICE.

A LARGE edition of the "Voice of Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS.

THE NAUVOO AND MONTROSE FERRY.

THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between

Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at

all times and with speed and safety.

From the well known eligibility of the route for those crossing the Illinois river

at Beardstown, Meredosia, or Naples and

going to the new purchase in Iowa will

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 16.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois Wednesday, Aug. 20, 1845.

Whole Number 172

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR
Editor and Proprietor.
At the corner of Main and Kimball Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING.
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.
A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor.
(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

ELLSWORTH'S REPORT.

Insects injurious to wheat.—There is a grain moth, the altica cerealella, about three eighths of an inch long when its wings are shut, with the upper wings of a light brown lustrous satin color, lower ones and body of an ash color; whose moth lays her eggs on the young tender grain in the field, and each caterpillar from which selects a single grain and burrows into it, where he stays till he devours its meal. Hatching the grain for twelve hours to 167 Fahrenheit will kill it.

The Wheat Fly (tipula tritici, or cecidomyia tritici) is a small, orange-colored two winged gnat, which deposits its eggs in the wheat while blossoming. This insect is about one eighth of an inch long. It devours the pollen and prevents the setting of the grain. It falls to the earth while a maggot, and undergoes its transformation there.

A little span worm, called the wheat caterpillar—with six feet at each end of the body—feeds on the kernel in the milky state, and devours the germinating end of the ripened grain. It is found in the chaff upon threshing the grain. It may be remarked that there has been too much carelessness in describing insects which prey upon wheat; and the inference has been thereby drawn that there exists a greater number of them than is the fact. It is desirable that whenever an account is given of any of them, it should be specific; so that it may be known at once where to refer to it.

Gen. Harmon's article on varieties of wheat from which we extracted some observations on Flint wheat some time since, is given at length. It may be interesting to know his opinion upon several other sorts, mostly cultivated here, or of which knowledge is desired.

Old Red Chaff. This variety was introduced into western New York more than forty years ago from the lower part of Pennsylvania, and for more than twenty years it was the favorite variety, and has produced some of the heaviest yields known in this vicinity. Red chaff, bald, straw long, seldom lodging; berry of a good size, and weighing from 60 to 63 pounds to the bushel; white, and bran thin; producing flour well, and of a superior quality. On new oak lands, it is now one of the best varieties that is sown; on old lands, of late years, it appears to have lost some of its former qualities, being more subject to rust and mildew. The insects attack it more freely than some others, and it has suffered by severe winters. At present, it is not sown as much as formerly.

Mediterranean. This variety was introduced into Maryland, from the Mediterranean sea, six years since. It is a light red chaff, bearded, berry red and long, very flinty, bran thick, and producing flour of an inferior quality. In a communication from a wheat grower on the eastern shore of the Chesapeake bay, dated September 6, 1842, speaking of the wheat crop, he says: "The variety that has succeeded best here, this season, is the Mediterranean. It is a bearded wheat, and remarkably heavy; but the grain is about as dark as rye, and not plump. It ripens about ten days earlier than any other variety, and has escaped every disaster for several years."

From another, from where it was first introduced: "It is a coarse red-bearded wheat, and makes inferior flour. Its only merit, in my estimation, is, that it ripens earlier, and is less liable to rust than any other variety."

Italian Spring Wheat was introduced by Mr. Hathaway, of Rome, Onondaga county, New York, and for several years was much sought for. For the last few years it has not succeeded as well as formerly, and is much less cultivated. This is a bearded wheat; white chaff, heads long, and the chambers standing apart more than the common varieties; berry red, long, not very full; bran thick, and flour of fair quality. Spring wheats are most valuable on soils where the winter varieties are thrown out by the frosts of spring.

Blue Stem has been cultivated in Virginia for about 33 years; white chaff, bald, berry white, weighs 64 pounds to the bushel; bran thin, and flour of superior quality. Formerly this was a red wheat; now it is changed to a beautiful white. Straw fair size, producing well. It is now one of the most productive varieties cultivated in Virginia. I am giving it a trial.

Tea Wheat, or Siberian bald. This is a spring wheat—one of the most valuable of the spring varieties. It is extensively cultivated in New England, and in the northern part of this State. (New York.) Straw not long, very bright, the heads bald, with a beautiful white berry, and producing flour of a good quality. The straw is not so large as the Italian, ripening earlier. The berry sits closer in its chamber, and is not subject to rust. I have cultivated it for several years. I have, however, rejected all spring varieties."

Sub-soiling. An instance of the utility of this is given by Mr. C. N. Bement, who made the following experiments.—The field was a light loamy or sandy knoll; and he sub-soiled it in strips and manured it alike; running the sub-soiler eight or ten inches deep. The season was dry, and on the parts not sub-soiled, the corn entirely burned up; while on that sub-soiled it continued green the whole season, and produced a good crop.

There is undoubtedly a philosophy in popping corn, though we confess we have not thought much about it before; but here we find it elucidated in a manner at once clear and entertaining.

"The oil in the horny portions of the grain is contained in little six-sided cells, in the form of minute drops, visible in a thin section under a good microscope. When a grain of corn is heated to a temperature sufficient to decompose the oil, a sudden explosion takes place, and every cell is ruptured by the expansion of gaseous matters arising from the decomposition of the oil, and the grain is ruptured at the weakest point, the arch, and is completely evolved and folded back. Now, on examining the cells again, they will be found lacerated and swollen much out of shape."

If an attempt is made to pop Tuscarora corn, it will be found never to succeed; hence, I was able to prove that this curious phenomenon, so familiar to every child, though never understood by its parents, is due entirely to the decomposition of oil, and the formation of carbonated hydrogen gas, such as is sometimes used in lighting large cities.

This change in the corn is one of considerable importance, so far as regards facility of digestion; for it is much more digestible than the unpoped corn. The use of oil in corn is obviously to prevent the rapid decomposition of the grain in the soil, and to retain a portion of food until needed by the young plant, and is always the last portion of the grain taken up.

It serves to keep meal from souring readily; and it will be observed that flint corn meal will keep sweet for years, even when put up in large quantities; but the Tuscarora meal will sour in a short time. The latter is the most digestible grain for horses, and is soft; but is of little value for feeding swine. It is a good kind of grain for rapid cooking, for its meal is quickly boiled or baked.

Only corn makes a dry kind of bread, and is not adhesive enough to rise well without admixture of rye or flour. Rice corn is so dry that, alone, it will not make bread, but is dry like sand.

Only grains are excellent for fattening fowls; and the rice corn, both for its size and oily nature, is admirably adapted for them."

STATE OF THE POLICE IN MEXICO.

We see it stated in some of the newspapers, that the Mexican robbers treated the representatives of Great Britain and the United States with unbecoming severity; that they left the renowned British captain standing in his shirt, and gave our minister a thrashing into the bargain. The story does the "gentlemen of the road" some injustice. Paul Clifford has given to the "minions of the sin," universally, the character of compositis; tlemen; and nowhere do the "suave" their good name more than in Mexico. Governor Shannon himself has favored us with a pleasant account of his road side interview with them, and assures us that their conduct toward the politeness and propriety, for which they enjoy such well deserved celebrity.

The governor had the luck to be robbed both on his way to the capitol, and on his return from it. It was the last scene of the drama, which gave rise to the ludicrous mistake of the Picayune.

The scene of his interview with them, was some leagues east of the city of Puebla, where the road, not wide enough for two coaches to pass, runs for a quarter of a mile through a barranca, or ravine, cut like a canal with perpendicular sides. The stage was accompanied by an escort, furnished him by the Mexican government. But a few moments before they entered the ravine, the captain of the escort rode up, and informed him that he had passed the haunts of the robbers, and was no longer in any danger from them; and having received the customary gratification, retired. From what immediately after took place, there is every reason to suspect a full understanding and a collusion between the guard and the robbers. Five minutes afterwards, while the travellers were still congratulating each other upon having passed through all the dangers of the road unscathed, the stage suddenly stopped in the middle of the ravine, and seven or eight big muscled carabines at once enlightened them as to the treachery of their escort, and reminded them of the mutability of ounces from the poises of travellers to the pockets of the road-side gentry. They were politely invited to a conference on foot, and making a merit of necessity, descended from the stage with as good a grace as possible. The ceremony of searching trunks and handing over then began. While it lasted, Gov Shannon had an opportunity of observing the tactics of his new acquaintances. Around the stage were fourteen in number, all masked and well armed, each with a carbine, a long knife, a sword, and pistols suspended in belts around the waist. Seven remained on horseback, with carbines levelled, ready for action in case of resistance. The others dismounted, to search for and select the booty. In the distance were some fifteen or twenty others, stationed as sentinels. The search was conducted with great order and decorum, and accompanied with all the politest phrases of the Spanish language. When it was over, having duly admired Gov Shannon's dress sword, and expressed their approbation of its workmanship, they returned to him, together with his papers. Then, with many apologies for the detention they had caused him, they took their leave; not, however, until they had asked for him the blessing of God, and invoked in his behalf the protection of the Blessed Virgin, our Lady of Guadalupe.

Another more amusing scene took place immediately afterwards. They had parted with the first set of banditti but a few moments, when another set appeared in the road. The conductor of the stage, however, continued to drive on; addressing them en passant, with inexpressible politesse and mirth in his manner, telling them that, unfortunately, they were rather too late; that the work had been already done to their hand; the robbery was just over, the market spoiled, and the goods sold.

Gov Shannon lost, probably, on both expeditions, in money, clothes, &c., to the amount of $500 or $600.

These honorable evidences of the fine police which prevails on the high-road between Vera Cruz and the capitol, is a noble exposition of the police, good order, and strength of the government of Mexico. One would think that they would be much better employed in ridding their own highways from their domestic enemies, than in sending troops to invade Texas; and that, in case of a war, the United States would be in no great danger of a government which is too weak to protect its own people and strangers from an enemy that infest the environs of its capitol.

NINE DAYS LATER FROM MEXICO.

By the arrival of the brig Delfina, Capt. Pocal, at New Orleans, from Vera Cruz, whence she sailed on the 3d ult., we have intelligence from the capitol to the 28th of June.

No event of commanding interest has transpired since our last advices, yet some details of Mexican affairs may not be without importance to our readers generally, particularly at this juncture. The papers of the capitol contain not a word about a war with the United States. Some of the secret sessions of the Senate, may have been occupied with the subject, though nothing relative thereto has yet met the public eye.

Verbally we learn, says the Picayune of the 24th ult., that the Mexican Government was to send 20,000 men, of the 1st of the frontier of the Philadelphia, these men were to be sent part thorough itself, but when they see, and seem money enough even to be made and such a fool's errand is even a greater mystery, unless British gold is at the bottom. We give this rumor as we received it.

On the 20th of June a decree of General Herrera was promulgated, but dated the 16th, in which he formally calls an extra session of Congress, to convene on the 1st ult., for the purpose of taking into consideration, among other things, subjects now pending the action of the Chambers, especially those of the United States and Texas.

Gen. Rangel has been sentenced by a court martial, for his late revolutionary attempt in the city of Mexico, to ten years' imprisonment, without the loss of his rank—a truly Mexican punishment for treason. Another authority says he is stripped of rank and all employment and banished for ten years.

Gen. Bustamante reached the capitol on the 21st ult. He immediately offered his services to the Government, to maintain the national claim upon Texas. It was thought these services would be accepted.

Both Houses of Congress have been engaged in the consideration of a reform of the existing tariff, as suggested by the Executive. They have not yet been able to act harmoniously in the matter. The Senate was occupied, exclusively, with this subject on the 14th and 15th of June.

The news of the revolution of Tabasco was announced in the city of Mexico on the 28th ult. The Siglo Diez y Nueve, itself the eloquent advocate of Federation, pronounces the affair the most absurd of all military outbreaks, and adds that the unanimous indignation of the Republic is the only feeling it will excite.

The Drought.—There has been a general complaint about the late oppressive hot spell of weather. Every one seems to think that it had reached the superlative degree; and whether he was in the city or the country, the South or the North, that it was the hottest spell he had ever experienced. To-day, however, we had cooler and a much more agreeable temperature. The excessive heat has been accompanied with an oppressive drought, which has withered the grass of our squares, and has been most lamentably felt throughout the country. The last Richmond Enquirer, speaking of the great tobacco-growing county of Halifax, says: "Much gloom hangs over that region of country, in consequence of the crops being blasted by the scorching sun and alarming drought. Indeed, in every quarter, we hear melancholy complaints of the want of rain. A farmer in Goodland told us that he had to send so far to Richmond, forty miles off, to supply his farm with meal; and in North Carolina, we observe, they send ninety miles, to Petersburg, to get their meal. We fear much distress and sickness will follow this extraordinary drought. On Saturday and Sunday, we were tantalized by a prospect of showers; but in vain. Yesterday, the heat was as oppressive as ever; though we are glad to have to record no death from the immediate action of the sun—which, in the North, according to the papers from that section, has carried off so many, suddenly, to the grave."—Washington Union, July 23.

Dreadful Catastrophe.—We find in the London papers the following account: By letters from Ascension to the 25th of April, we are informed of a dreadful catastrophe having happened to the Brazilian slaver, captured by the Wasp, on board of which Mr. Farmer, the midshipman, and ten of the Wasp, in charge, were murdered by the prisoners, who then took possession of the prize, but which was retaken by the Star, Commander Dunlop, when Lieutenant Wilson was put aboard to take her to Sierra Leone. It appears that ten days after Lieutenant Wilson took charge of the recaptured prize and parted company with the Star, he was caught in a heavy squall and capsized about 200 miles off Cape Three Points. Lieut. Wilson, with two Kroomen, and some of the pirates who were retaken in the schooner, and five seamen, succeeded in cutting away some spars and making a raft, which they finished just before the schooner settled down and foundered. They did not save any provisions fit for consumption, and only a small quantity of water, which being soon exhausted, the Kroomen commenced drinking the salt water which killed them both. The quartermaster and the pirates also died from the same cause, the quartermaster having previously become raving mad. Twenty days after they left the schooner, and being still on the raft, they fortunately fell in with the Whidah, and when taken up by the Cygnet's boat, presented a most horridly lying spectacle, being literally a mass of putrid sores. Commander Layton, with much prudence, sent the poor fellows on board the Wasp for conveyance here, (Ascension,) where they arrived quite recovered on the 22nd.

Some curious developments are now making with regard to the expenses of the collection of the revenue of the United States. A writer in the National Intelligencer makes a calculation, by which it appears that in 1810, when Mr. Madison was President, nearly $17,000,000 were collected at the cost of about $436,000; in 1820, when Mr. Monroe was President, about $17,000,000 were collected at a cost of about $778,000. But, temperamentally, and "Uncle Sam" began to be most liberal to his agents, or his agents cheated him on the big figure; because it appears that in 1830, when Gen. Jackson was President, $28,000,000 were collected at a cost of upwards of $1,000,000. But a million was moderate when compared with what was done in 1840, when Mr. Van Buren was President; for in that year only $15,000,000 were collected at the cost of one and a half millions! In 1841 when Mr. Tyler was acting, about $20,000,000 were collected at the cost of about $1,500,000; and in 1842, about $17,000,000 were collected at about the same cost. Why should Mr. Tyler charge less than Mr. Van Buren, both having been candidates for re-election? The writer thinks that the collection of duties on imports should not cost over two and a half per cent., which is a merchant's commission for receiving and selling, or buying and shipping, and suggests that the people would be under deep obligations to the "hard working President and his Cabinet," (!!) if they would cut down the expenses of collecting the duties on imports about one half the present cost, which may readily be done by appointing none but competent, faithful men without reference to party work.—Alex. Gaz.

Outrage in Ireland—Loss of Life.—The foreign papers represent the condition of affairs in Ireland as deplorable. Disputes, assassinations, and murders in open day are common. Recently a magistrate returning from church was shot dead, and the murderer permitted to escape. On the 30th of June a fair was held at Ballyhassing, where fights and rows occurred requiring the interference of the police, which was resisted by the peasantry, who gathered in large numbers highly excited. The mob was finally fired upon by the officers, killing some half dozen and dangerously wounding twenty others. The greatest excitement prevailed, and a large body of police were arriving to preserve the peace.—Organ.

From China.—The ship Henry Pratt, Capt. King, has arrived at New British Government at Hong Kong has established houses for smoking opium, under certain regulations—the houses to be open from daylight until 10 o'clock at night, to be closed on Sunday; and the introduction into such houses of weapons, fire arms or instrument of any kind by which death might be produced, is absolutely prohibited under severe penalties, as is the sale of opium by retail in other houses. The China market is overstocked with American beef, pork, hams, cheese, butter, tobacco, varnish, pitch, tar, paints, oil, sardines anchovies, brandy, fruits, and spars.

Sandwich Islands.—Tahiti.—Translation from Queen Pomare to Governor Brunet, dated encampment on the Island of Raiatea, Oct. 12, 1844: "To Commodore Brunet, &c."

I have been informed that the king of the French and his wise counsellors have disapproved of the proceedings of Du Petit Thouars in seizing my government, my house and my land, because my personal flag did not please him.

The great king of the French and his wise counsellors have all said that Du Petit Thouars acted without being commanded, and with injustice, and without wisdom, and they have commanded you to restore my government to me.

I thought, and wise men also thought, that you would regard the commands of your master, the king, and restore quietly to me my flag, my house, and my land.

But you have not done so; you are still obstinate in building barracks and erecting forts upon my land and my people's land; and you interfere with my people in appointing judges and other officers, which you have no right to do.

I write this word to you that you may know I throw all the evils of those things upon you; and to make known to you, that until you restore to me my flag, my land, and my property, and rehoist the proper flag, agreeably to the command of your king, I can place no confidence in what you say, or even listen to you.

And now may you be kept and saved by the true God."

(Signed) POMARE.

Return of Governor Simpson from Oregon.—Sir George has made a quick trip, having arrived at Lachine, Canada, on the 23d inst., from Oregon, via Hudson's Bay. It is not over four months since he arrived at New York from London, and from the rapidity with which he has been able to reach Oregon through the waters of the United States, we infer that he will in future pass through this country on his annual journey. He reports that the United States citizens, who had emigrated to Oregon, were dissatisfied with the character of the country, and that of 5,000 who had arrived there from time to time up to the month of March last 1000 had proceeded to California. Our readers probably know that Sir George Simpson is the Chief of the Hon. Hudson's Bay Company of London.

A Fancy Head Dress—Dangerous embracing.—At the great Indian Council held a short time since, the ceremony of embracing was indulged in to some extent between members of the different tribes. A writer gives the following account of a scene between one of the Osages and Caddos:

One of the Osages, who is a "doctor," and is said to be invulnerable to all poisonous animals or insects, (he at least showed himself indifferent to them,) had, besides the usual ornamental embellishments of paintings, &c., painted in his hair a living snake, about one foot long, fastened by the middle of his body, leaving the extremities to move at will. "This man's head was the cynosure of the crowd, who gazed with curious eyes at the snake, in its plays first about the man's forehead and then his neck, to the entire indifference of the Osage doctor." At length the ceremony of "hugging" commenced, but the Osage was so much taller than most of his embracers that the snake did not interfere with the ceremony, until the "doctor" encountered a "tall son of York"—a stalwart Caddo chief, as their heads came in contact, Mr. Snake presented the graceful bow of his neck, to the astonishment and utter confusion of his co-hugger, who drew back, exclaiming "Booh!" and has, I fear, for a season, put an end to this timehonored custom of his race.

New Mexico.—The Independence Expressor has a letter from Taos New Mexico, of May 10th, the writer says:—

Since I last wrote to you, Martinez, the late Governor sent by Santa Anna to plunder New Mexico, has been removed from office by the new Central Administration and has departed with one hundred thousand dollars in his pockets, the proceeds of a single year of extortion. Jose Charves, a citizen of New Mexico, a clever and plausible man, is his successor. Charves is himself a friend of annexation to the United States, and the wealthy and influential citizens as has heretofore been the case with the general population.

The writer says that the cattle trade has been entirely destroyed by the Indians, that a few "Intelligent Americans" would soon rouse the inhabitants, and that the gold digging this season in the neighborhood of Santa Fe has yielded about 120,000 of grains, some lumps of pure metal having equalled $500 in value.

Here is a chance for intelligent Americans!

An extensive fire occurred at Xenia, Ohio, on the 3rd inst. supposed to be the work of an incendiary. The buildings were stores, and two clerks named James King and Wm. Steele, lost their lives, either by the flames or previous assassination. A person suspected of the crime had been arrested. Loss of property $10,000.

A girl strangled to death by a snake.—A little girl, about eight years of age, was strangled by a snake, last week, near Bainbridge, in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania. She had been sent to gather blackberries in a field a short distance from the house, and, being absent for a longer time than usual, her parents proceeded to search for her. They found her quite dead—with a large black snake coiled around her neck.

Phonography.—The New York weekly Herald of the 12th inst. says: "An invoice passed through the Boston custom-house the other day, written in phonographic characters, and containing the regular official marks and endorsements. There were 200,000 letters in phonographic characters sent through the British post-office last year."

Piling up Jokes.—Speaking of wags—what is more waggish than a dog's tail when he is pleased?

Speaking of tails; we always like those that end well. Hogg's, for instance.

Speaking of hogs—we saw one of these animals the other day lying in the gutter, and in the opposite one, a well dressed man; the first had a ring in his nose, the latter had a ring on his finger. The man was drunk, the hog was sober. "A hog is known by the company he keeps," thought we; so thought Mr. Porker, and off he went.

Speaking of going off—puts us in mind of a gun we once owned. It went off one night, and we have not seen it since.

Light in the East.—The Bey of Tunis has put an end to the sale of slaves, and declares he will never leave the work of emancipation while a slave remains in his dominions. His reason is: "For the glory of mankind, and to distinguish them from the brute creation."

Foreign News

Quick, Quicker, Quickest.—The Caribria, which arrived at Boston on the 30th ult., was only eleven days from land to land! By her we received our regular files of English and Scotch papers, in the short space of 24 days from Liverpool to Nauvoo. This is four days less time, than news has ever reached us before from the other side of the Atlantic. We select the following:

SPAIN.

Dates from Madrid are to the 10th of July.

The Queen is still at Barcelona. Statements of the most contradictory kind have been made as to the intention of her Majesty to return to this capital, or to voyage in the Basque provinces, the Ministers insisting on the former, the Queen's mother and her physicians recommending the latter. It is understood that the reason why Ministers dislike the idea of the Queen visiting these provinces, is, that the people being for the most part adherents of Don Carlos, may perhaps make demonstrations in favor of her Majesty's marriage with the Prince of Asturias. As to the marriage itself it remains where it did. All the Ministers have thought fit, in the shape of instructions to their subordinates, to declare against it; but still it is by no means abandoned.

ITALY.

Rome, July 6.—The Pope has kindly given directions that the library of the Vatican shall be henceforth open to the public. It contains very few printed books, but still it is one of the most valuable libraries in the world.

The eruption of Vesuvius has attracted a host of travellers to Naples.

BELGIUM.

Our brussels' advice is of the 14th of July. M. de Northumb will be sent to Berlin as ambassador, and the Cabinet will weather on until the meeting of the Chamber, and then do the best they can.

Railways already established are very prosperous, and are annually becoming more so. English capitalists have undertaken the formation of some new lines, and other capitalists are bidding for other new lines.

SWITZERLAND.

We have advice from Zurich to the 11th of July.

The Diet is now sitting, having been opened on the 7th, by a speech recommending peace and union. To the present, no decision of importance has been taken, unless it be the refusal of the motion made by a Deputy favorable to the Jesuit party, to postpone the assembling of the militia, on the ground that the violence of the political feeling that exists will probably lead to disturbance. It will probably be a fortnight or three weeks the great political and religious questions on which public interest centered.

The Prince Metternich, Minister of Austria, has addressed a despatch to the Austrian Ambassador, speaking in terms of high gratification of the conduct of the party that supported the Jesuits in the late struggle.

The canton from which Dr. Stieger made his escape demanded that he should be given up, but the other cantons refused. Several cantons have conferred upon him their freedom, and there is a talk of getting up a subscription in his behalf. It is not likely Stieger will remain in this country, but the retreat he will select is not known—most likely it will be the U. States.

RUSSIA AND CIRCASSIA.

Letters from Constantinople, published in the London papers, state that, in a recent battle, the Circassians took from the Russians, after hard fighting and severe bloodshed, the castle of Solcha, on the coast of Abassia. Sheikh Samuil had arrived at the head of the river Kouban, with 30,000 men. Many Poles in the Russian army had deserted and joined Samuil. The Russian General offered large bounties for reinforcements, without success. He sent several Mussulman doctors of law from the Crimea to Samuil, to try to negotiate for terms of peace. Samuil had three of them put to death. The Russian army has suffered dreadfully from a scarcity of provisions. The crops in Circassia are said to be abundant.

TURKEY.

A letter from Constantinople of the 18th June, in the Debats, says: "It may be remembered that, at the Greek Revolution of September 15, the Emperor of Russia dismissed his Minister at Athens, M. de Catacazi. It appears that his displeasure has died away, as an ukase of May 26, cooched in very flattering terms, attaches M. de Catacazi to the office of Foreign Affairs at St. Petersburg." The affair of the Catholic Armenians of Tokat is terminated. The inquiry ordered by Cheikh Effendi has proved fully the shameful extent of the persecution directed against them by the Shismatics.

SYRIA.

Mount Lebanon.—Letters to the middle of June from Syria, announce the breaking out of an insurrection in the Lebanon. An engagement between the Maronites and the Druses had taken place at Bicoch, in the plain between the two Lebanons, which had terminated with a loss on each side of from one hundred to one hundred and fifty men. The roads between Damascus and Jerusalem are no longer safe, and no caravan can travel by that route without a strong escort. The Arabs are from 40,000 to 50,000, and are plundering right and left. An attempt has been made on the life of the French Consul at Damascus, and the whole country was, in fact, in a state of complete disorganization.

NEW ZEALAND.

News has reached England from Auckland, in New Zealand, to March 27, bringing the news which has reached this country by way of Nantucket, of the capture of the Bay of Islands by the natives, and the abandonment of the place by the colonists. The particulars of these transactions are given in more detail, but we had received all the material facts.

ALGERIA.

The intelligence from Algeria gives an account of the massacre of a thousand Arabs by the French. The cavern of the Dahro, where the Arabs had taken refuge, was the scene of this horrid affair. Here they were hemmed in, faggots were lighted, and the unfortunate wretches were burnt and suffocated in their place of refuge.

AND-SO-FORTH-IANA.

We present, as usual a full portion of fires and other calamities, for this week's consideration. Surely the Lord pleads with "Fire" according to the prophets:—

Great Fire at Xenia.—On the night of the 3d instant, two large brick buildings in Xenia, O., were consumed by fire. Loss about $20,000.

The most deplorable part of the calamity was the loss of two very estimable young men, James Kenny and William Steele, clerks of Puterbaugh & Allison, who slept in the store.

Great Fire at St. Johns, N. B.—Forty buildings destroyed.—We are indebted to Gunni-son's Express for a copy of the St. Johns Observer of the 30th ult., containing the following account of a disastrous fire which occurred at that place on the evening of the 29th ult.

About half past 10 last evening, the fire bells rang the alarm; when it appeared that fire had broken out at Nibbs's blacksmith's shop, on Peter's wharf. In a few minutes this tenement and the large building adjoining, occupied by Mr. John Walker, and containing a large amount of valuable goods, was one mass of flames, and the fire then rapidly spread eastward along the line of houses from the blacksmith's shop to the large and lofty building corner of Water street and the wharf, occupied by Mr. H. Hawkins and others.

The number of buildings destroyed is about 40; and the probable loss in buildings, goods, and the tools, furniture, &c. is supposed to amount to £20,000 and upwards. We have not been able to learn the amount of insurance; but some of the heaviest losers, we understand, had but little or nothing insured.

The buildings destroyed were all of wood, except the two brick buildings owned by Mr. Street.

Several of those burnt out saved a part of their goods, furniture, &c.; but those near the spot where the fire originated, saved but little.

Boston Atlas, Aug. 4.

Fire at New Rochelle.—On Friday night a fire broke out in the large building about a quarter of a mile east of New Rochelle, occupied by the Messrs. Davis as a fancy paper manufactory, which was totally destroyed. The fire destroyed the whole of the valuable machinery and the building in which it was placed. The building was insured for three thousand dollars. The machinery was not insured, but the general stock was.

On Thursday evening last, three large barns belonging to Mr. Charles Hill and Mr. James Hill, about four miles southwest of LeRoy, were destroyed by fire, together with twenty tons of hay, two of three hundred bushels of wheat, &c., besides $500 worth of furniture deposited in the barn—the entire loss being upwards of $1700. The work of an incendiary.

A steam mill, and a large quantity of grain, belonging to Mr. Weaver, of Pleasant Unity, Westmoreland county, Pa., were destroyed by fire last week.

Fire in Richmond.—The extensive carpenter shop and lumber yard of Mr. R. L. Coleman, Richmond, Va., were wholly consumed by fire on Wednesday night last. This is the fourth time that a similar calamity has befallen Mr. C. His loss is heavy. It was the work of an incendiary.

Fire at Plympton, Mass.—A correspondent of the Atlas gives the particulars of a fire at Plympton, Mass. It broke out in the Sackett factory of Messrs. Taylors, insured at the Manufacturers Insurance Office in Boston, for $1,500—the loss estimated, not known. The dwelling house of Cooper, not insured—loss, probably, $800.

Robbery in Wall Street.—A package of Bank notes, checks, &c., amounting to between $7 and $8,000—only $3,000 available funds—was stolen from the teller's desk at the National Bank in New York, a few days ago.

Collision.—We learn from the Boston papers that the steamboat Narragansett and schooner Henry B. Barnes came in contact in the sound on the night of the 24th ult., and the latter sunk immediately. No lives lost.

Fatal Rail Road Accident.—The freight train on the Norwich and Worcester railroad was thrown off the track, on the 24th ult., and the locomotive precipitated down an embankment twenty feet. The engineer and fireman escaped, but the brakeman was killed.

Painful Suicide.—Mr. George Sandford, shoe manufacturer, residing at 409 High Street, Newark, N. J., was found on the grass plot in the rear of his house, on Thursday morning, at about three o'clock, with the arteries of his arm severed, and a razor lying beside him.

Unfortunate.—We learn from the Cincinnati Atlas, of the 1st inst. that Col. Tibbets and Mr. Gaines, candidates for Congress in the Covington district, had a quarrel, a few days ago in Gallatin county, which it was feared would lead to serious consequences.

Great Fire at Newport, R. I.—The "Ocean House" was burnt down on the 3d inst. at Newport, R. I. Loss $50,000. It being full of boarders, several lives are supposed to have been lost also.

Fire.—The Pistie Argus of the 25th ultimo, says:

"About three o'clock this morning, our citizens were awakened by an alarm of fire, which proved to be in the blacksmith shop of Milton Brown, and although every exertion was promptly made to stop their progress, the flames soon spread to the 'Argus' printing office, adjoining, which with the shop, was burnt to the ground. The office of J. S. Thomas, and the dwelling of Mr. Amos Reed narrowly escaped.

The loss of Mr. Brown was regret to learn, has been very serious; the house occupied by him belonged to Mr. A. McLean, and is a loss to him of some $2 or 300. Owing to the coolness and active endeavors of our fellow citizens, we succeeded in saving our press, type &c., and by the extraordinary exertion of our workmen, we still have a few sheets of the paper, and are still able to go ahead."

Incendiarism in Lafayette.—From 12 o'clock M., on Thursday, to half past 11, A. M., yesterday, there were no less than four separate attempts made to burn Lafayette.

The first broke out in a one-story dwelling belonging to Madame Delachaise, which, for want of water, was soon burnt to the ground.

About 11 o'clock Thursday night a two-story frame house on Seventh, between Laurel and Live Oak streets, was discovered to be on fire; but by the timely aid of the neighbors it was extinguished, doing but little damage.

Before the citizens had left this fire, another was discovered in the stables at the corner of Seventh and Laurel streets, known as the dairy house of Mr. Jonte. Fortunately the fire was discovered so soon that a few buckets of water were sufficient to put it out.

Again, at half past 11 o'clock, A. M., yesterday, the same establishment was seen to be on fire. The flames were bursting from the roof, through which a hole was burnt. But as before the fire was soon extinguished.

It is almost certain that all these were the acts of incendiaries. Our neighbors must keep a sharp look out!—N. O. Pic.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 20, 1845.

Owing to the extreme lowness of the Mississippi, which detained our paper on the sand bars between this and St. Louis several days, we were unable to issue the Neighbor on last Wednesday.

"While I was musing the fire burned."—The most astonishing rebuff the Latter Day Saints meet, the most singular turn of the human mind, or the smallest return for the greatest good, is that the gay world with all their light, literature, temperance, bible knowledge, bible societies, Sunday-schools, and charitable institutions, filled with precepts and charitable donations, should reject and fight against the knowledge of "coming events." The elders of the Latter Day Saints, "without purse or script," in heat and in cold, by water and by land, for the last fifteen years have diligently preached and published that desolations and calamities were coming upon this generation, and the more they preached and published, the more they were belied and persecuted. Why is it? The desolating sickness came; the divisions among churches and governments with agitation and the commotions are here; the mobs and riots are springing up in every nation, and the fire and storm begin to melt and devastate the fairest prospects of man! Why reject the truth?

As parents, as friends, as watchmen, and as servants of the living God, we have warned the inhabitants of the earth of approaching danger, and while the Lord commands, we shall continue to do so, in the fond hope that some will take heed to their ways and flee from the wrath to come. War, fire, storm, hail, pestilence and famine, are coming in "dreadful splendor," to cure the earth of wickedness, and who, O who, will stand before it? Who, in town or city, but will rejoice where his watchmen give the timely notice of fire? Who, in the darkness of midnight, but will reward his guide when he warns him of approaching danger? And who, in this wicked world, will reward the friend who has saved his life from the ravages of highwaymen, with contempt or revenge? O vain world, why do ye evil treat the husbandmen of the vineyard? It would be better to fall with your mouths in the dust, and cry, "unclean! unclean!"

To be sure, we write sarcastic, we rebuke sharply, and condemn righteously, those that write and publish lies about us as a body, or our children; or slander our elders; and we have the right so to do. We give measure for measure, and all we have to say is, watch and see whether we "reprove" in the name of Israel's God, or play the hypocrite, like the fire-flicker, now acting as authors, editors, and publishers for a giddy multitude, glittering in the last days of autumn, over the grand gulf between time and eternity!

If the world is wise, if editors are wise, and if there is any candor among men, let them publish this article and all wherein we warn men to flee from the wrath to come, and then we, too, shall begin to conclude that there are some honest men. Will they—and will they watch?

Roll on that Stone.—From the Messenger, we also learn that the American Joint Stock Company in England have about one hundred thousand dollars ready to bolster up the manufacturing interests of Nauvoo. Great wheels move slow, but when Jehovah furnishes the power, they are sure to do business.

That Mormonism in Scotland is searching into the condition of that noble race, and making Edinburgh a kind of Babel—thus the scriptures, and the poor have to be preached unto them. The truth is, they are good to a hungry person.

That Elder Jones has published a small work in the Welsh language, and will eventually add such as are to be saved among the Welch. A saint never tires.

That Ireland does not stop to conquer, but still come will go with the just.

That France listens to the voice of truth and wishes more elders versed in the French language, to proclaim the glad tidings. Now is the time for enterprise: thrust in the sickle and reap.

The prospect is truly glorious, and does ones soul good to read and witness the spread of the work. Ungodly men can martyr prophets, apostles and saints, but they cannot murder the truth, nor muzzle the gospel. Nor they may kill the body, but the soul and the words, like light and space, triumph over death, hell, the grave, and all enemies, with a majestic wisdom that tramples down vain glory, and sparkles like heaven—because there is God in it.

Mormons in Australia.—The N. Y. Messenger, says, "Elder Andrew Anderson, since his mission to New South Wales, has organized a church of eleven members." So Mormonism, eternal in its duration, and unconquered with limits.

"Spreads undivided and operates unspent."

Speckled fame.—On running our eyes over the articles in the weekly Reveille, of Aug. 11, we observed among the variety,—"carpe et collige, no less than four assassins; three suicides; five accidents; one stab; three fires; two robberies; two rapes; four murders; one burglary; five steamboat accidents; one new counterfeiter; one riot, and several other specks on the 'virtuous, christian face' of things in general; and this without naming the dozens of doleful doings, which daily transpire in St. Louis, the 'old chief of the west.' Rather a speckled fame for the boasted and boasting 'land of the brave, and home of the free.'

"Go to bed Tom."—The Reveille plays 'old soldier' on every false motion; and its all well enough, for as old Gen. Put used to say, a 'good soldier never sees the dirt on the back of his coat, when he gets out of a spree.' So brush the 'outside' Charley, and make 'a show' the 'Saints' cleanse the 'inside' of the platter to win a good name among the wise.—That's the odds.

Gretna Island.—There was a wedding, perpetrated on Gretna Island opposite this city last Thursday, between an old man about 75, and an old maid about 50. The old fellow had bet a cow that he could get married (for the fourth time in his life) in a week, and he won the cow. He is an Iowa man, and she an 'Oblegian.'

Old men, maids, and cows, Are better than fights and rows.

A Stab.—John A. Gurley of the 'Star in the West' (Cincinnati), says the Mormons 'never were, persecuted, nor never will be, for their religion, but that Nauvoo is a general rendezvous of thieves, robbers and murderers, if there is any truth in human testimony.' This is lying and slandering by wholesale; but as Gurley remarked, when in or near Nauvoo, that he would show up the Mormons, we can not expect any thing better. To meet which, may God who never errs, pour upon him the curses of Sodom and Gomorrah, and let all the Saints say, amen!

Now let the Reverend Mr. Gurley wait patiently, and see whether he or the Saints have the most influence with the 'highest court of Errors.'

Wit in St. Louis.—Some of the front rank of news clippers and pointers of St. Louis have recently put in to be witty. 'O Lord a massy' how the teeth chatter, of those that feel white, at the sight of so much hot lead in a heap! To us, at the distance of seventy five leagues, the appearance, is similar to that of the old Dutchman who made his son Honus hold up, on his head, the last head of the hoghead while he coopered it "in"—in fine style; but no sooner done than he had the mortification to hear Honus roaring out through the bung hole—"How am I to get out father?"

Gazetiana.—The Ocean House of New port, R. I. caught fire, from burning lard which fell upon the floor and blazed to the ceiling. The St. Louis Gazette may have compunctious visitings of conscience, that the lard came from a Mormon hog, because the fire caught from the fat, but he must remember, that if all bad hogs had spots on their heads would be a mighty drove of spotted hogs. Mr. Lord have mercy on the hogs!

Killed by Lightning.—A man by the name of Ralph was killed by lightning this morning on Parley street. The shaft struck him on the head and passed off at his feet, as he was walking the street.

"We made arrangements for the return of the book Hoky, but as it did not arrive, we go like 'old Hickory' on our own responsibility. It is said the whole number of votes polled, was about 3100; that Mr. Backenstos for Sheriff, and Mr. Miller for Coroner, received considerable more than three quarters of this vote. J. B. Backenstos Esq. we believe, received the largest vote of any man, that ever ran for office on the same ground, unless some 'old chief' beat him in days gone by, and the record was lost.

Henry W. Miller, Esq. being a regular Mormon we could not expect any but Mormon votes for him; but as he ran very near to Col. Backenstos, we suppose it may be called a Democratic vote. We have heard the name of the Whig or anti-Mormon candidates for sheriff and Coroner, and the man for Sheriff we do not know, but HIM for Coroner we do. Let the public should get a wrong impression, we will here remark that of the five officers elected at the two recent elections, viz; County Commissioner, School Commissioner, Treasurer, Sheriff, and Coroner, the Coroner only is a Mor, man.

Why is it?—We really wonder why the travelling editorial corps and their aids and abettors are so fond of nipping, biling, and vilifying the Latter day Saints? Why is it? What do they gain by it? Do they not show a mean, degraded, low-lived, Gentile spirit? Most certainly.

The breaking up of realms; the crumbling of kingdoms; the awful calamities that ever and anon have buried wicked cities, towns and countries in ruinous heaps, for the amazement and warning of those that follow after, ought to awaken, and caution the civilized elite of the glorious nineteenth century to beware!

The convulsions of angry nations; the belligerent venom of the divided sectarian world, and the signs of the times, all conspire as the roar of artillery; the blaze of a beacon pile, or the 'uncertain' sound of a trumpet, to warn this generation that trouble is near;—a day of vexation, even the whirlwind of God is at hand!

Suppose the Latter day Saints, who, thank God, have ambassadors and a 'foe' hold on every continent, should make as much fun of the follies and sins of the various nations, as the same gaudy editors of the United States do of Nauvoo and the Latter day Saints; what would the kingly nations say? They would say the people of the realms of freedom are meaner than savages—and tell the truth at that. But glory to God, whenever a Mormon is reduced to slander and the precepts of men to defend the cause of the God of Israel, let him turn and flee to Babylon as Rigdon did to Pittsburgh, where a few hot drops from heaven may satisfy him, that God is angry with the wicked every day.

We are commanded to pray for our enemies, and we therefore pray that God may deal with them according to the judgements written; that they can never reproach the saints for having neglected their duty on that point, and so O Lord! when men sin knowingly punish them accordingly, that the innocent may never suffer without remedy—worlds without end.

"A wife a feather, and a chieft's a rod."

"But an honest man the noblest work of God."—Mr. Field of the Reveille, over the signature of a 'Dead man,' labors and to make sport of the little boys of Nauvoo, who instead of gambling, drinking, swearing, and pilfering, as they do in St. Louis, New York, and other places, uniform and muster on Saturday, and perform a few evolutions civilly for pastime. The last shot he makes is, they were 'bare foot.' To which we reply;—the reason is, Boggs's butchers robbed their parents of the leather and means to furnish them boots and shoes, and used them to pay the TAX ON BITTERS for the State of Missouri.

The next Steamer from England.—The iron steamer Great Britain, will be the next from the other side of the big puddle. She is a monster with six masts, and is almost twenty rods long. She was to leave Liverpool on the 25th July.

Showers.—We had two fine showers last Sabbath. No want of rain in this section of country.

Natural, perfectly so.—A bogus pedlar was jerked to the ballings on the Die Vernon, last Friday, for shifting off to somebody, and somebody to the Clerk, a little of the "pale currency." He escaped into Warsaw declaring, as we were informed, that he had been robbed by the Captain and Clerk of the Die Vernon, and another Mormon; as the 'sixteen mile' pointer will doubtless have it, this is natural, perfectly so.

Persecution of the Jews.—By a recent ordinance, says a foreign paper, the dress of the Jews and Jewesses in Poland is decreed. The locks of hair worn by the men, and which are considered by them to be as sacred as their beard, to be discontinued, &c. Unmarried women "not to wear any covering on their head, and to retain it there by means of a comb." Disobedience of these and similar statutes, is to be visited by a fine of four silver toables.

Such doings among the nations prove the truth of the prophecies and curses pronounced against the Jews, just as much as burning in upon "running cities" puts Mormonism beyond the power of contradiction. He that barks at the Jews, barks at the nobility of heaven in degradation; and he that anathematizes Mormonism, snarls at the "hand of the Lord," and may yet howl in darkness.

Good—First rate.—One of our exchanges tells the following story. It will exactly fit every town that has a doggerly, whether it contains a hoggerly or not.

"When did you Shave Last?"—A man in Arkansas—that is a great country—had been drinking until a late hour at night before he started for home. Honest folks had long been in bed, and the houses were all shut and dark. The liquor he had taken was too much for him; he did not know where to go. He at last staggered into an extra wagon shed, and fell upon the ground. For a long time he lay in all the unconsciousness of drunken sleep, and would undoubtedly have frozen, (for the snow on the ground showed the night to be very cold,) had not others less sensible than himself been around him. This shed was a favorite rendezvous for the hogs, which were out when the new comer arrived, but soon returned to their bed. In the utmost kindness, and with the truest hospitality, they gave their biped companion the middle of the bed; some lying on either side of him, and others acting the part of a quilt. The warmth prevented him from being injured by the exposure. Towards morning he awoke; finding himself comfortable in blissful ignorance of his whereabouts, he supposed himself enjoying the accommodations of a tavern, in company with other gentlemen. He reached out his hand and catching hold of the stiff bristles of a hog, exclaimed: 'Why, mister, when did you shave last?'

How to find children in Pittsburgh.—We always knew Pittsburgh to be a smoky place, but we little dreamed that parents, on that account, found it difficult to recognize their little ones in the street! If we may believe a correspondent of the Chicago News, it was told him "as a fact, by grave people, that when a mother wishes to find a child whom she allows to run in the street, she goes out, picks up and washes the dirt from the faces of perhaps a dozen of her neighbors' children, before she is fortunate enough to find her own." There is something very 'ancient and fish-like,' however, in this story.

No doubt but they tell the truth, for it is a smoky hole, and we think men and women of that and many other cities could be kinder quicker if their paint was washed off.

Wisdom of the World.—Operations, says the Missouriian, have commenced in Lynn, Massachusetts, to blow up 'Pirate's Dungeon,' a place said to have been the hiding place of a gang of pirates, the leader of whom as tradition has it, was shut in, with his treasure, by an earthquake, which closed the mouth of the cave. The science of anemometer has been brought to bear on the subject, and they will probably gain a heap of treasure—if they find it!

This is first rate: Mesmerism, priestcraft, and politics, all carried on by the unclean spirits, (like frogs,) of hocus-pocus, winkus-pinkus, and fire-us-mire-us. Go it, you sinners! the river of folly, fancy, flattery, and phantas magera, overflows its banks, and will till the froth of this generation has been swept into the gulf of fallen nature.

Hot for the banquet of folly; Lo, the end draweth nigh! Let us eat, drink—be merry—For to-morrow we die!

Iron and Coal.—It will not be long says the New York Star, before we shall export iron (which we now import) in large quantities, if the discoveries made and making of large beds of iron and coal combined continue to furnish such ample supplies. The number or thickness of the coal strata in Bear Mountain and Valley, Northeast of Harrisburgh, Penn., is extraordinary. That one mountain alone contains coal enough above the level of tide water to supply the city of New York for two hundred and sixty thousand years! It is a mine of wealth of that great state. Fifty beds of iron ore and anthracite coal are exposed to view, all lying above the bed of Bear Valley. These fifty mineral beds are comprised within a vertical distance of 1160 feet.

Coal enough to last "New York two hundred and sixty thousand years!" (If New York has not more appropriate fuel than coal in less than sixty years, Isaiah and Jeremiah have not foretold future events! Watch therefore.

Still they build.—The Temple being so far completed, and the Nauvoo House rising rapidly, to carry out Gen. Smith's views more fully, a suitable building for a university is in contemplation for next season. A first rate structure, worth from three to five millions, twice as stately as Girard's at Philadelphia, will just grace Nauvoo. Every Mormon with a "pocket full of rocks," if he has to huck stones from neighboring cliffs not more than sixteen miles off, can help walk up to the work and up it goes!

Eyes open.—R. D. Foster, generally called Doctor Foster is said to have gone East to sell lands and lots in Nauvoo, and vicinity. Now, open your eyes, and wait awhile, and let the Sheriff sell said lands upon old executions or liens against them. Don't get bit.

Bricklayers.—If there are any bricklayers in the branches of the church within soundings of Nauvoo, they are needed to labor upon the Nauvoo House—bricklayers being scarce. Come on; now is the time to show your faith by your works.

NOTICE.

We published in the June number of this paper, that William M. Parker was cut off from the church. We have since been informed that the man referred to is William M. Parks.

GEORGE MILLER.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 17.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, Aug. 27, 1845.

Whole Number 173

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Street,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1 1-2 cents.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,

(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

POSTSCRIPT.

From the Missouri Republican, Aug. 20.

LATE FROM NEW ORLEANS.—Our favorite steamer Missouri arrived at this port last evening at 11 o'clock, from New Orleans. She brings us full files of papers to the day of her leaving, the 14th, and an extra from the Tropic office of that day containing the anxiously expected news by the Water Witch, from Vera Cruz. This extra embodies all the intelligence from Mexico, and we copy it entire.

From the N. O. Tropic, Extra, of Aug. 14—10 A.M.

VERY LATE FROM VERA CRUZ.—ARRIVAL OF THE WATER WITCH—NO DECLARATION OF WAR—10,000 MEXICAN TROOPS ON THEIR MARCH TO TEXAS—IMPORTANT CORRESPONDENCE.

We hasten to lay before the readers of the Tropic the latest news from Mexico. The Water Witch, Capt. Tannis, left Vera Cruz on the 5th inst. and arrived here between five and six this morning. It seems that, after all the gasconading despatches of the Mexican Minister, a declaration of war is now very doubtful.

Our prompt and intelligent correspondent tells the whole story.

Vera Cruz, 4th Aug. 1845. Dear Sirs: I have this pleasure, per Relampago, which left here on the 23d ult., to arrive here since taken place from your port.

The election of a new President commenced on the 1st inst., for which there are four candidates—say, Gen. Herrera, President ad interim, Gen. Almonte, ex Minister at Washington, Gomez, Farias, and one other whose name has escaped my memory; the Presidency, however, seems to lie between the two former, one of whom it is supposed will be the successful candidate.

Almonte has offered his services to Government in the approaching campaign against Texas, but I rather think it is more a ruse de guerre to help him to the Presidency than any great desire he has got to have a brush with Texas—or, as I ought to say now, the United States.

H. B. M. brig-of-war Persian, arrived here on the 27th ult., in seven days from Galveston, bringing the news of the annexation of Texas being confirmed by the delegates called together for that purpose by President Jones—and also that a body of United States troops, say about 4,000 men, were expected at Galveston, in the course of a few days.

It appears that our Government is in no hurry to declare war against the United States, or at any rate, it seems to be the general opinion that she will merely attempt to re-conquer Texas without making any declaration of war. Of course, the news by the Persian caused a great excitement throughout the country. The Ministry has presented an act to the two chambers for their deliberation.

1st To declare war against the United States.

2nd Authorizing them to raise a foreign national loan to the amount of fifteen millions of dollars, which they consider to be requisite to carry on a war and re-conquer Texas.

The proposals are now under discussion in the chambers, and if they get the 'l'argent' there is no doubt they will make the attempt to again get possession, though it is doubtful whether they declare war against the United States or not.

Of course you have heard, ere this, of the revolution at Tabasco, in favor of federalism, which has induced Government to declare said port closed to foreign as well as native shipping, but is rather puzzled to find out how they will keep out the former, as they have got not a single steamer that they can get ready in less than eighteen or twenty days, all the engineers being still, as I may say, loafing on shore and waiting for their pay, of which for some months past they have received but a mere trifle.

The tariff question is still under discussion, or rather has been referred to a committee, but if they procrastinate as they generally do, God knows when we shall get sight of the long expected document—and in the meantime the country will lose a great deal, as merchants do not like to ship with so much uncertainty.

I have nothing further of interest to inform you of at present, and beg to subscribe myself, gentlemen, very respectfully, yours.

Aug. 5.—The Water Witch not sailing yesterday, I open to say that we have no news from the American Squadron, but it is thought here that it will soon appear. It is said that the troops now on the road to Texas amount to 10,000 men.

Yours, etc.

LATE FROM OREGON AND CALIFORNIA.

The Western Explorer of the 16th inst., has later accounts from Oregon and California. A company arrived at Independence on Monday last, part of whom were from Oregon, and the others from California. The parties met in the wilderness on their way in. Mr. J. M. Shively informed the editor of the Explorer that he left Oregon on the 19th of April last.

He states that the settlers have a fine prospect for an abundant crop this year; and that they were making ample preparations to have everything necessary for the emigration which went out the present year. He informs us that he met the advance party of the Oregon emigrants who went out this year, on the 8th of July last, at Green river, about 200 miles this side of Fort Hall. The emigrants were traveling in detached parties, the last of whom he met only one day's travel beyond Fort Laramie. Nothing had occurred to them on their route worthy of particular notice. They were all well supplied with an abundance of provisions, and their stock and teams had stood the trip exceedingly well with the exception of their horses. These, he states, were poor, and seemed much jaded and exhausted. There was no sickness of any kind among the emigrants. He states the emigrants numbered about 2,375 souls, large and small.

Owing to recent disturbances in Oregon with the Wallawalla Indians, it was anticipated that the emigrants would be harassed by them on their route. They were advised, however, of this anticipated attack, and intended gathering at Fort Hall in sufficient numbers to repel any attack that might be meditated against them. Mr. Shively is of opinion that the settlers in Oregon will have disturbances with the Indians during the coming winter, but nothing serious was apprehended from this expected outbreak.

He states that many of the settlers are in favor of organizing an independent government, thinking themselves too far from the United States for protection, unless the American government would act with more promptness and decision than it has done heretofore.

Maj. M. Harris, better known here as 'black Harris,' was in Oregon, and engaged in hunting a better road than the one now travelled from Fort Hall to Oregon City.

Mr. Shively brought a large number of letters for the different sections of the United States.

California.—From Mr. Sappington, who left California on the 4th of April last, we have confirmation of the account of the recent revolution which has been published heretofore. The citizens of the country have appointed a Governor of their own, but it was anticipated that another revolution would soon take place, and that the old government would be re-established. He brings no other news of particular importance.

A letter received by a gentleman from New York, from his correspondent at Monterey, contains the following information: The letter is dated on the 20th of March, and, although not so late as that which reaches us by the inland route, fills up a gap in our intelligence from California. The writer says:

No doubt you will be anxious to know the result of the revolution in California, which has terminated in the following manner. A few days after you sailed from this port, Gen. Sutter joined the government against Castro, with ninety riflemen and eighty Indians. Castro, aware that his force was inferior, left immediately for the south. The general marched after him, and near the Puente de los Angeles he was attacked by six hundred Californians and fifty foreigners. They exchanged a few shots from their cannon; but the General, taking into consideration the advantages the Californians had over him, being all mounted on horseback, and without money or means to support his troops, he surrendered, and complied with their wishes.

He is now on board the bark Quixote, with all his troops, bound for Mazatlan or San Blas. Don Jose Castro is commandant general, and Don Pico (of the Puebla) Governor.

Every person feels sorry for the General. He is a good kind-hearted man, but I really believe, no soldier. What the consequences from Mexico will be, it is hard to say. They ought to allow the Californians to govern themselves.

From the Platte Argus, of the 2d.

OREGON—LETTER FROM PETER H. BURNETT, ESQ.

The following letter was received yesterday, by a citizen of this county, from Mr. Burnett, by the way of Othello, and forwarded by the American Consul. The details will be deemed interesting by his old friends and neighbors, and are indeed of importance to all who take an interest in the affairs of Oregon.

Fallate Plains, Oregon, Nov. 4, 1845. * * The emigration are now daily arriving, and will all be here in a few weeks at furthest, and expect to receive other letters and papers, which I am informed are on the way. I have now an opportunity to write a hasty letter, as one of H. B. Co's ships, the Columbia leaves Vancouver in a few days, for the Sandwich Islands.

Our country is most beautiful, fertile and well-watered, with the most equable and pleasant climate. Our population is rapidly increasing, and the country is making great progress in wealth and refinement. I have never yet before seen a population so industrious, sober and honest as this. I know many, very many young men, who were the veriest vagabonds in the States, who are here respectable and doing exceedingly well. Our crops the past year (1844,) have been most bountiful, and we have not only a full supply of wheat for our consumption, but a large quantity for exportation. Large numbers of cattle are raised here, which are never fed or sheltered. Many men have from three to four hundred head of cattle. Sheep can be had here in any desirable number, as the H. B. Company have a large flock, and many private individuals have them.

Ere this reaches you, perhaps you will have learned that we have a regular emigration in, most of the emigrants from Oregon, about a year ago, I thought any attempt at organization might be premature. I had not, however, been here long, before it was conceived that a government of some kind was inevitable. It grew out of stern, invincible necessity. Our commercial and business transactions were considerable. Difficulties were daily occurring between individuals in relation to their 'claims'; the estates of deceased persons were daily devoured, and helpless orphans plundered; crimes were committed, and the base and unprincipled, the reckless and turbulent, were hourly trampling upon the rights of the honest and peaceable. A civilized population, numerous as we are, could not exist without government. The thing was impossible. We, therefore, organized a government of our own.

We had no money, no means—I was a member of the Legislature. I had most of the business to do. We passed a tax bill, appointed an assessor, and permitted every man not to pay a tax, if he chose so to do, but if he did not pay, being able, we debared him from suing in the courts as plaintiff. At the same time we passed acts to protect all bona fide settlers in their claims to the amount of 640 acres. The tax bill operated like a charm. Nearly all the whole population paid without hesitation. We selected a tall East Tennesseean, Joseph L. Meek, for our sheriff. He had been in the mountains with Wm. L. Sublett for eight or ten years, is exceedingly good humored, very popular and as brave as Julius Caesar. The very first warrant he delivered to him, was issued for the apprehension of a very quarrelsome and turbulent man, who resisted Meek with a broad-axe, but Meek, presenting a cocked pistol, took the fellow, volens volens. The next, and only case of serious resistance to our laws, was on the part of Joel Turnham, of Mc., son of May Turnham, of Clay County. He had assaulted an individual, and a warrant was issued by a justice of the peace. Turnham was himself constable, and John Edmonds was deputized to arrest him. Turnham resisted with a large butcher knife; but Edmonds had a pistol with six barrels well charged. He shot Turnham four times, the last ball entering above the temple, when he immediately expired. These are all the obstructions to the administration of justice we have had, and in Edmonds' case, he was fully justifiable in killing Turnham, even if he had no warrant, as T. assaulted him first, and pursued him with great violence to the last.

We have now five counties and two terms of the circuit court in each county in every year. We have but one judge, who discharges the duties of probate judge, chancellor, and what not; in fact we have only as yet circuit courts and justices of the peace. Our government was intended only as provisional, to exist until some regular government could be established. We adopted the statute laws of Iowa, where applicable to our condition and not modified by our Legislature.

We are now waiting most anxiously for the result of Pakenham's mission, and if the two governments have not settled the question between them, the moment that fact is known, there will be one universal movement made. A regular convention will be held, and a constitution adopted (republican no doubt,) and an independent government got in operation at once. Necessity will compel us to step. The population of this country are no doubt desirous to live under the Government of the United States, but if she will never do anything for us, we must and will do it for our selves. The people here are worn out by delay, and their condition becomes every day more intolerable. I speak to you with great candor, for you know me, and know that I withhold nothing, and disguise nothing. We are well satisfied that the United States Government as well as Great Britain could not object, and would not object, if we form an independent government for ourselves, united as we are. Treaties must be made with the Indians, and many other things of importance must of necessity be done.

Our population about doubles every year, and our business troubles. We will soon have a printing press, and a paper of our own. We can then publish our laws.

The practice of the law has commenced, and I have several important suits on hand.

I have a fine 'claim,' perhaps among the best in Oregon, situated in the centre of one of those most beautiful prairies called the Fallate Plains. I am in excellent health, contented and happy. Mrs. H's health has improved, and my children are all well, fat and fine. * * Your friend,

PETER H. BURNETT.

THE BOYS AND THE WOLVES.

During a severe winter, several years ago, two boys were driving a sleigh through the woods in the northern part of the State, and the snow lay at an average depth of five feet. But the boys in question were hardy fellows, accustomed to the climate, and, moreover, they were well wrapped up in clothes and furs.

They had occasion to pass from one town to another, where a portion of the road led through a dense forest, for four miles, without a single house. Soon after they had entered upon this solitary portion of their journey, they were startled at hearing the gruff, husky bark of a wolf in the adjacent thickets. In a few moments, the animal sprang out from his cover, and came rushing to the side of the sleigh, making a desperate plunge at the eldest boy who was driving.

The youth gave the furious brute a rough salute with his whip, and for a moment the animal slunk back abashed; the boy taking advantage of this to put his horse to the utmost speed. The creature, however, was jaded, and nothing better than a smart trot could be extorted from him.

The wolf soon rallied, and now renewed his attack, accompanied by one of his companions. He again assailed the driver, while the other came up to the stern, and threatened to leap into the sleigh. At last, the horse seemed to notice the savage growling of the wolves; and now, being seriously frightened, he broke into a round gallop, and flew forward with all his might. The wolves pursued, keeping by the side of the sleigh and occasionally making a fierce leap for the purpose of springing into the vehicle.

The two boys had no weapon of defence but the whip; yet they carried a brave front. In one or two instances, the pursuers had partially succeeded in mounting the sleigh, but they were knocked off by the butt-end of the whip. It was, however, a serious race, and the little fellows saw that their danger was extreme. By the time they had passed one half of the forest, and while they were yet two miles from any house where they could hope for assistance, the wearied horse began to relax his speed, and the wolves, as if rendered desperate by strife, became even more daring and ferocious than before.

The sleigh in which the boys were driving, consisted of a box about five feet in length by three and a half in width. It was placed upon the floor, and the wheels fastened to the runners. The depth of the box was about two feet. Snuggled down and sheltering themselves as well as they could, or starting from side to side as occasion required, in order to escape the fangs of the foe, the boys continued their course. It seemed, however, that they must at last be overcome, and fall victims to their fierce assailants. Nothing, indeed, could have saved them but a most unexpected accident, and one which might have seemed to expose them to certain death.

While the horse was advancing with considerable speed, he came to a short turn in the road. Cramped by the rigors of snow on either side, the sleigh was thrown out of the track, and rising with a sudden bound, was completely overturned, and thrown to a considerable distance—the two boys being caught beneath as in a trap. The edges of the board sunk deep in the snow, and the impulse of the horse snatched the traces in an instant. He was liberated, and pursued his career rapidly towards the village.

The wolves were at first disconcerted by the adventure, and hesitated whether to pursue the horse, or to investigate the wonderful disappearance of their intended victims. After smelling around for some time, they comprehended the real state of the case; and now began a regular siege upon the intrenchment which had been so luckily provided for the two boys. The latter were a little stunned at first, and saw the advantage which their present stronghold afforded for defense.

Turning round, and bedding themselves in the snow, so as to obtain a comfortable position, they determined to continue where they were, until relief should come, which they hoped might speedily take place. They had not long for deliberation; the growling of the wolves was soon audible, and a few minutes after they heard them pawing furiously in the snow, at the sides of the sleigh. The elder boy had a jack-knife, which he now got ready, and placing himself on his knees, prepared to give the enemy a sharp reception. In a few minutes, the paws of one of the wolves were seen below the edge of the sleigh. Clinking one of them, the resolute youth pulled it in with all his might, but as he was about to ply his knife, the limb was wrenched from him.

The two animals wrought at their task with incredible energy. Although a thick sharp crust lay upon the top of the snow, this was immediately torn away by their feet, and in a short space they were already below the edge of the sleigh, and on the point of grappling their prey, when their attention was called to their own safety. The horse had reached the village, and soon came to the scene of action.

So intent were the wolves upon their object—so reluctant to surrender the prey which seemed within their grasp—that they faced two men for a considerable time, and did not finally retreat till they had received several severe blows. With a reluctant growl they took to the woods; and the two boys were safely delivered from their imprisonment.

Murray's Museum.

Schools in Germany.—Germany is the best taught country in the world. There are, according to a late statistical account, no less than 72,250 teachers of public schools, with 6,000,000 of pupils; 4,250 professors of learned institutions, with 75,000 pupils; 1,100 professors of universities, with 18,000 students; 500 professors in the seminaries for instructors, with 6,000 pupils; and 2,000 teachers, with 40,000 pupils in the polytechnic schools. There are, further, 38 seminaries for preachers, and about 20 lycées, 70 institutions for the deaf and dumb, and 21 for the blind; besides 5,000 teachers, and 481,000 pupils, in the infant and other schools, not enumerated. There are, consequently, in Germany, 75,000 teachers, with 500,000 of pupils, causing an annual expenditure to the Government of 23,000,000 of six dollars, or about 20,000,000 of our currency. A sixth part of the whole population of Germany is thus constantly at school.

Electricity of the Atmosphere.—The operations of the telegraph between Paris and Rouen were suspended a few days ago. A signal was made, but not answered; it was several times repeated, without success. On the arrival of the cars, it was ascertained that the pencil serving to mark the signal had been completely melted by the electricity of the atmosphere. M. Arago explains the subject as follows: "The wire serving to transmit the fluid is much thicker than the pencil. Its absorption is in proportion to its volume, which, being too great for the thin wire to which it was transmittal, caused its fusion." This incident has caused some inquiry to prevent its recurrence, and also to prevent the dangers that might attend it, if it occurred when in operation. The suggestion, thus far, is to use a machine for testing the electricity of the atmosphere, and, when the current is too strong, to suspend the operation. A physician of Paris, M. Pelter, has put his study in communication with lightning-rods; and a simple machine which he uses, enables him to ascertain at any moment the state of the atmosphere.

Milk Sickness.—Thos. S. Hinde, of Illinois, has published an address to the Governors and members of the Legislatures of western States and Territories, in which he makes known that he has established, after more than thirty years' close examination, and trying successfully experiments, the real cause producing what is called the milk sickness, or puking complaint, so prevalent in many portions of the west. For this discovery, premiums have been offered, and he has applied for them. The detection of the shrub enables the inhabitants of the afflicted region to avoid its evils. He says that so many inquiries have been addressed to him for information on this subject, that he is disposed to arrange the whole for publication, in such a form as at once to arrest the evil and to banish the cause of human and animal sufferings and death from our lands. He asks that Legislatures may make appropriations to enable him to prepare his manuscripts for publication, and have all the facts established by chemical operation.

Who is Responsible?—Of the 463 convicts in the Ohio Penitentiary on the first of January last, 594 are under 30 years of age. 63 are minors—boys who have been educated at evening schools in the streets of cities and villages. Who is responsible.

Txa.—A scientific traveller maintains that the island of Bourbon can supply all the tea France would consume.

Attempted Suicide.—John Richmond, confined in the county prison, charged with the burglary of Dr. Bicknell's house in west Philadelphia, attempted to commit suicide by cutting himself in various places. He was discovered in an exhausted condition, from loss of blood, and it is feared his injuries will prove fatal.

Accident.—A boy, named Michael Mo Namer, was seriously injured in Philadelphia corner of Cherry and Jacoby streets. He was amusing himself at the time by poking a stick in the wheel. His injuries consisted principally of cuts and bruises, but they are of a serious nature, a portion of his scalp being torn off.

Homicide at Wilmington.—During a quarrel on Sunday between two colored men, named Nathan Boardley and James Chew, the former struck the latter upon the head with a rolling pin, killing him almost instantly.

Fatal Accident.—A little boy, about 7 years of age, the son of Mr. Klinglor, a baker, residing in Philadelphia, on Front street, above Lombard, was almost instantly killed, by the fall of a pile of boards on the wharf, below Pine street upon which he was playing at the time along with other boys. He was extricated as soon as possible, but he survived only a few moments. He was conveyed home, where an inquest was held upon the body. The verdict was in accordance with these facts. The boards were placed there temporarily merely till the purchaser should have them hauled away, and no blame could therefore attach to any persons but the boys who placed themselves in such a dangerous situation.

Sudden Death.—Mr. Edward J. Hodges, Venetian blind-maker, residing at no. 111 South Second street, Philadelphia, was found dead in his bed. He had been unwell for several days, and his death was attributed to apoplexy by his physician, who had been in attendance upon him, and who was immediately sent for upon his situation being discovered. He was seen sitting at the window of his room, leaning his head upon his hand, but a short time previous. The wife of the deceased is absent from the city on a visit to Connecticut, and his oldest son is in the vicinity of Cape May, so that this deprivation will be to them of the most startling and affecting character.

Cherokee Council.—A considerable assemblage of the 'Old Settlers' and the 'Treaty party' met opposite Fort Smith in the Cherokee nation, on Friday and Saturday last, says the Arkansas Intelligencer of the 26th ult., and then there, peaceably, and without disturbance discussed their various claims against the Government of the United States, and resolved to continue to urge those claims, without ceasing, until some arrangement is made for their adjustment.

Hot! Seizal!—A gentleman from Texas, now in Europe, writes that a colony of 15,000 Swiss are preparing to leave their country and settle in Texas this fall. Huza for Texas!—N. O. Pk.

AND-SO-FORTH-IANA.

Our list of calamities shows that the Lord continues to vex the nations.

Conflagration at Smyrna.—The following details are taken from a private letter dated Smyrna July 9, 1845:

"Smyrna is again in misery and ruins: a larger and more awful conflagration than the last commenced on the evening of the 3rd instant, continued violently for twelve or fifteen hours, and upwards of two days in burning embers and sideliess; even up to yesterday here and there magazines and store buildings were burning—some from being opened too soon, when the heated air burst into a flame.—It began in the centre of the town, aided by a furious north wind, (which afterwards changed) destroying everything right and left, and for a circumference, I calculate, of at least a mile and a half.—The town half side of Frank street is consumed, and then right away to our exit out of town to Boudja.—The English hospital was saved by a miracle, and thereby saved that part of the town and the so called Rue de Rose. The Austrian hospital is burnt. Close to it Bortelli lives; he was saved, although the fire was burning on three sides of him. Then, backwards, all the Armenian quarter, except Purdie street, is destroyed. The fire skirted the Jews' quarter—burning some 100 houses—and then spread to the grand Vizier Khan and up to the Bazaars.—Shoemaker lane is all burnt and round about St. George's, as in the former fire. The three corners, Atkinson's, Maltasse, &c. are saved. It came near to us, when Van Lennep's and three or four adjoining houses were burnt; but all these being built with terraces and long passages, the half only towards Frank street were consumed, and the fire was fortunately stopped. By pulling houses down in the little lane we pass through, going into the country, from Frank street, we stopped it on that side of us, although it was very close. The Dutch and Tussan Consulates were burnt; two or three large Khans—that is, the Grand Vizier, a new made one, and Imam Oglu Khan, were destroyed. The Greek hospital, close to the Austrian hospital, was saved by a great exertion. It had 300 invalids in it.—Fourteen or fifteen large wine-taverns and their depots, &c. are gone. At one time the fire so raged, that had not a change of wind taken place, it was thought all Smyrna must have been in ruins.—Mr. Jackson says it is the worst fire he has ever seen, and larger even than that in 1797. He as well as Brant and all shown our neighborhood had their houses dismantled, and every thing put into magazines, but, thank God, the English have escaped. Very few, and those only in rented houses, have been burnt out; amongst whom are our friends Junor, Barnard, the Vice Consul, and some others. Young Whitall made a grand stand, and saved their house, and consequently the neighborhood.

"Great assistance was given by the Austrian corvette and French brig in port. The English men-of-war were unhelpfully absent. Some 50 or 60 people may have lost their lives.

"The Armenians are completely ruined, and how business, with reference to old engagements, will get on, I don't know, though not much merchandise has been lost—manufactures to 110,000; valuations perhaps as much. The religious schisms cause great delay and difficulty in forming a committee of succor. The Sisters of Charity are doing a great deal of good. As yet our English subscription comes up to 7500. I am particularly fortunate, and my people are all saved, including Browning and my brokers.—Most of the brokers of the other houses have lost—some their all, the savings of many years. The weather is excessively hot, and the supply of water very short at Boudja. We also suffer from want of it. A fire in this country is dreadful. Many thousands are compelled to live out on the open air in the gardens, fed by charity, as they must be for some time; and the first day or so after the fire no bread was to be had."

A Steam Ship on Fire.—The Captain of the Norwegian brig Staatsraad Vogn, arrived this morning, reports that on the night of the 26th of June, in latitude 47° 10' longitude 40° 1', he saw a long vessel on fire, which he took to be a steamship. It was within half a mile of her when the deck fell in. As there were no boats around her, he supposes that the crew and passengers had left the vessel the day before. The vessel, if a steamer, was probably one of those plying between Great Britain and the West Indies.—None of the steam packets to or from the United States would be likely to be near the latitude and longitude specified on the 26th of June. [Com. Adv.]

Fires.—At Albany, on the night of the 4th, the stables, sheds and outhouses in the rear of the buildings on State, Pearl and Eagle streets, were all consumed, with two small frame dwellings in an alley that runs up from Lancaster street, and four houses on Park street, and two on Eagle street.

The blacksmith and wheelwright shop of Mr. John Kelley, in Richmond, Va., was burnt on Friday night with his kitchen and adjoining, loss about $1200. A negro man in the employment of Mr. Kelley has been arrested on suspicion of being the incendiary.

Destructive Hail Storm.—The thunder gust of Sunday afternoon is said to have been very heavy in Anne Arundel county; and a small portion of it was the scene of a severe hail storm. The Baltimore Argus of yesterday afternoon, speaking of it, says:

"Captain Richard Phelps, John Smith, Charles Smith, Josephus Smith, Joseph

Cole, Thomas W. Cole, Elijah Yealdell, Allen Warfield, and Geo. Rider, squires, are amongst those that are known to have suffered severely from the effects of the storm. Their peaches were thrashed from the trees by wagon loads, and what few remain are rendered of little consequence. Canebrakes were cut from the vines and hewn to pieces; the corn was literally destroyed and stripped of every particle of the fodder, and all other products of the soil suffered in like manner. The rain fell in such torrents as to wash large bodies of the hail into the fence corners—as much as six or seven cart loads of hail stones in a heap—and where there were no shutters to protect the windows not a pane of glass was left unbroken. Other persons it is likely, have suffered as seriously as those named above, but we have not heard to what extent. Those persons named above reside some two or three miles south of Elkridge landing."

Correspondence of the Tribune.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14—P.M.

A destructive fire occurred this afternoon about two o'clock, in a large brick building in Dock street, above Front, occupied as a tanner's shop and cotton factory, which spread with considerable rapidity. The city fire companies were late upon the ground, the man in the steeple not sounding the alarm for some time after. The rowdy firemen of Southwark; the Wee-wee, Southwark, Marion, Niagara, were the first to do any effectual service. The only fight which occurred originated on the part of the city companies, the Diligent Engine and American Hose.—This took place in Dock street below Third, to which I was an eye witness.—The loss of property is considerable, two adjoining buildings being seriously injured. One or two persons narrowly escaped with their lives, in attempting to remove the machinery in the cotton factory. The same place has been on fire several times.

Floods in Ireland.—The latter end of June and the beginning of July, heavy rains prevailed throughout Ireland. The Liffey and the Boyne overflowed their banks, and inundated many acres of ground, doing immense mischief to the potatoe crops. The Foyle overflowed its banks, and did great damage to the growing crops. From the Lifford to the Bann, floods were never known so high; and at Ballydenagh the waters were several feet higher than ever before remembered.

A hail storm in Paris, Oxford county Me., on the 25th of July, injured the crops and fruit trees for a mile in width, and entirely destroyed the corn. Hail stones were found in hollow places to the depth of two feet.

During a storm at Richmond, Va., on the 8th, Eliza Ann Putney, daughter of Samuel Putney, and Mary M. White, daughter of P. K. White—girls of fourteen years of age—were struck dead by lightning.

Dreadful Accident at Ripley, Ohio.—The steam flouring mill near Ripley, O., was destroyed by the explosion of the boilers, on the 13th, and five men were killed.

More fires.—A fire in West Troy, N. Y., on the night of the 6th inst., consumed eight buildings, consisting of stables, shops, and grocery stores. Wm. Bradley, a fireman, was instantly killed, returning from the fire, by the wheel of the truck passing over his head.

Lynchburg was on fire at the same time, but as the citizens had been aroused by the fire in Troy, they were better prepared for it. It broke out in an extensive barn on Congress street, owned by Mr. Cotrell, of the Washington Hall, and before it could be got under consumed about a dozen tenements.

The Electric Fluid, and Fire.—During the storm of Wednesday afternoon, a large barn, about eight miles from the city, near Fox Chase, was struck by lightning and set on fire. It was destroyed, together with the crops gathered from eighty acres of land. The property belonged to Mr. Thomas Kotter, who we believe, resides at Frankford.

Destructive Fire.—Between 12 and 1 o'clock Thursday morning, or Wednesday night, the workshop of Mr. Thomas P. Shortburn, a small alley running North from Walnut Street, above Fourth, was discovered to be on fire, and it and a large quantity of work and materials, valued at about $2,000, which it contained were destroyed.

STEAMBOAT KENT SUNK!—EIGHT PERSONS DROWNED!

We learn by the London, which came up yesterday noon, that she ran into the steam boat Kent, and sank her in 60 feet water about five miles below Point au Pele, in Lake Erie, on Monday night. A great part of the baggage on board and the books and money of the boat went down with her. The passengers, with the exception of the five drowned, came back on the London. So fast did the Kent fill with water and sink, after the meeting of the two boats, that it was impossible to save any baggage, but such as the passengers caught in their hands, when they went on board the London. The names of the persons drowned are: Rev. James E. Quaw, Redford, Mich. Mr. Chauncey Osborn, Genesee, N. Y. Mr. Seth Deming, Berlin, Conn. Master Bruce Deming, Galena, W. T. Mr. James Lowden, Ypsilanti, Mich. Two young ladies and a boy from near Ypsilanti, names unknown.

One Thousand People Killed or Wounded by the Falling of a Church Roof.—The commune of Abbe (Rhône) has been thrown into the utmost distress by the following frightful event:—Sunday, June 8, being the feast of St. Medard, the parish church was filled with the inhabitants of the village, and the Cure had just begun his sermon, when the roof of the church suddenly fell, covering the people as with an iron mantle. The scene was terrible, upwards of two hundred persons being hidden beneath the ruins. Fortunately, the Cure and two other persons at the end of the church had escaped, and they immediately ran to a timber yard close by, and seizing axes, succeeded, by the aid of some other persons, in extricating a number of the victims to this deplorable calamity; many, however, had perished, crushed by the weight, or suffocated by the pressure, and but few were without some injury. The cause of the accident is unknown. —Gazette de France.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 27, 1845.

PRINTERS' RIDE.

On Thursday last, the second part of a wedding, or 'Printers' Ride,' came off in fine style from Nauvoo, to the prairie, &c. The day was excellent, and the party, which numbered about forty-five, and occupied ten carriages, besides a baggage wagon, consisted of a branch of the general government, the Postmaster and lady, right in a full moon of honey, and his deputies; Elder John Taylor, (sen. editor) lady, and family; Judge Phelps (jun. editor) lady and daughter; Foreman and lady; assistant foreman and lady; the compositors, with ladies and ladies in expectancy; pressmen and ladies; clerks and theirs also; the master binder and lady; and, then there was mixed in the crowd our two devils, the junior of which is more than "six feet two." All went on like a cavalcade, or grammatically, a retinue of carriages with out a jar, and arrived at the farm-house of Mr. Wright, about six miles out, between 10 and 11 o'clock, a.m.

Here the festivities of the day commenced according to the wisdom of Solomon: "Every man eat, drink, and enjoy the good of all his labor, it is the gift of God."—And this was made doubly so, by changing the 'infare' into a 'meloning'; after which a cold collation fitted the guests for other services, which were performed on foot.

There is something that enlivens the soul and feasts the mind, after leaving the busy bustling scenes of every day in a city, and placing ones self in the midst of an ocean of prairie, to view the handy works of God and man, in their glory: the heavenly sky; the fleecy clouds; the breathing wind; the towering stacks; the marshalled cornfields; the prairies dotted with herds of cattle, and the shepherd boys, and "all nature," as we printers say, "with his green round about" glimmering with the golden effulgence of a clear heat, as a varnish and finish beyond the touch of art." 'Tis sublime!

A little before three, the whole chain of scientific operators, set off for Mr. Benbow's, where, the second part of "meloning" was performed to a charm. And here permit the remark, that "our host," Mr. Wright and lady, and "our host," Mr. Benbow and lady, have the printers' token of gratitude for remarkable blessings: (1) for helps, and (2) for rewards and acts of notoriety among brethren.—May they be continued with full pages of royal works, till the great fireman locks up their perfect forms, in his imperial phase for an endless edition of glory.

Into a phalanx again, and away we all whirled on the road, and down Parley street into Nauvoo.

Third halt at Elder Taylor's, where a glass of wine and a little wit served as a period (.) to the last chapter.

But hold on!—the "finis" consisted in escorting the "happy pair," that is, this "bough of the general government," to their dwelling among the saints, which was performed gracefully.

To say the least, there never was associated together, for past time, a better, cleverer, or politer band of friends; even our "six foot two devil" was civiler than the Lord Mayor of London. Not a word of profane language, not a drop of the essence of evil, (unless the "rogue" of villainous man," had mixed a little in the wine at the close;) nor not a mean trick disgraced the harmony and union of the "Printers' Ride."

Nata-bena.—Our drivers were just as good as the guests, and only one forgot that and he repented.

Success to time, life and being, And men and women worth seeing.

Great Riot in Kentucky.—A serious upsur of the Kentuckians has lately taken place at Lexington, on account of the course taken by Cassin M. Clay in relation to slavery. His press and type have been mob-balled back to Cincinnati. Particulars in our next.

Smart.—It is said that about 60,000 persons will look at the Lion Steamer Great Britain, now in New York, at 3 bits a piece.—Only $22,000 duty! Ain't that smart?

Holy Alliance.—Law and Forgers have been cloistering together in Montpelier for several days back. Let the nations beware! Such a holy alliance speaks more knavery, more felony, more fires, more war, and more calamity to come. Such conjunctions among asteroids on earth, are worse omens than long tailed comets in the regions of space. Ain't they Tom?

Heigh ho!—The "federals" as usual have begun to complain about the "War." They always did just so. What a fine thing it is, that the Mormons (love to support their country and country's friends; for since Walters of the Register broke his back wrestling with the Mormons, the bullies, here and there, have evinced a determination, that a strong man untried is better than a "whipt rooster."

Warsawiana.—Miller & Brothers' store of Quincy was robbed of about $800 worth of silks and other fine goods on Tuesday last. If any such goods are offered in Nauvoo, secure them, &c., that the way of villains may be traced out.

Drought in Mississippi.—A friend writes from Noddy County, Miss. and says: "we have the severest drouth in this country I ever saw; there is great distress; corn is one dollar per bushel; hard times, and worse a coming."

LIVING VIRTUE UNAPPEASABLE!—The New England Puritan regret that General Jackson did not make a public confession and atonement in regard to duelling, as the great warrior and statesman David confessed and atoned for his in procuring the death of Uriah that he might enjoy his beautiful wife. —Boston Post.

"Such false comparisons and such foolish suggestions, never ought to mislead and insult the minds of an enlightened people." "Devil turned for his sin!" when? In the days of the Apostles (see Acts 2:34), he had not ascended into heaven, and of course, was in Hell, atoning for wilful murder; and there having been no resurrection since, he is there still. The scriptures reveal nothing about Gen. Jackson, and most likely he will wait, like other men till the day of Judgment.

Reward of Merit.—Horace Greeley of the N. Y. Tribune has been presented with a hat for simply telling the following story:

At the time the first explosion took place, a fireman belonging to Engine Co. 22, standing on the roof of a house next to the explosion, was blown, we are assured by the Foreman of the Company two whole squares before touching the ground. He escaped with a sprained ankle.

Horace, to cap the climax, comes out with an awful cut, showing two fish, tail, kicking a salamander far hat out of the Ocean, or the next place below, as sport for a whale. All Greeley lacks now, to be perfectly prepared for fire and water, (his clay being rather dirty and lumpy) is old "Nessus' shirt." Then, hurra, for news from the interior of the Sea, and the other place too, fire and water not excepted! The fire won the hat, and the fish the shirt, and satan claims the whole, as the jig of a flirt.

Bodily Wifery.—Dr. Leipsius, who is now in Egypt, says that the rich Hassan Bey, has forty-two wives and one hundred and ninety-seven children.

If he was at Warsaw, guess he would move among the ruins of Carthage, while the horrors of Alton grinned in a statute, and slobbered on paper.

True O King?—The St. Louis Sun says, keeping dangerous dogs and spitting open women's heads, are crimes of equal magnitude, in the opinion of our Recorder.

The meaning of the above is, that Tom for knocking down his wife, and old Sol Smith for keeping a dangerous dog, were fined one dollar a piece. We have heard of such a thing as a blue, and then again of a better blue, but never before did we learn that a dollar was the price of making, mending, or wholesaling the dignity of man and beast in Missouri. Go it partial Judges, Junes, and sniveling Saints, black coats are cheap as well as "crape characters."

The leen works.—We see it noticed in the late foreign news, says an Eastern paper, that the Wesleyan Methodists of Great Britain are about to disown any connection with those of the United States who are slave holders. Such prescriptive and unchristian conduct, on the part of transatlantic Christians, towards citizens of this country, unless properly rebuked by all Americans, may in the end lead to unpleasant and disastrous consequences, so far as the peace of the two nations is concerned.

Certainly lead to unpleasant and disastrous consequences! which will end in war! that's the rub.

For the Neighbor.

Revolutions in the Daily Press.

The Press is a mighty engine, and can be used for good or bad purposes. Once upon a time, in the good old days of Republican dominance, it pursued a steady and moderate course, giving consequence and solidity to the benevolent and philanthropic institutions of a free people. It received no laurels from the mass that it could not wear with some degree of merit, and the wild panegyric of political phrenzy, or the fulsome adulation of the baseless comcomb, did not wholly stifle the "still small voice" of reason and truth, when raised in advocacy of "equal rights." It moved on with steady pace; and, as the people by degrees forgot the yoke of John Bull's oppression, as prosperity spread its magnificent mantle over their enterprises, as the nation began to feel her consequence among the Powers of the world; as she spread out the boundaries of her public domain; as she filled her coffers with the gold of the people; as she shared in all the benefits which increasing opulence gives to nations—the first self ambition began to blaze, and the ardent desire for gain, for power and place in the status of the Government, began to take root in the mind, and now and then the waters of republicanism were troubled by restless spirits.

Then dawned an era when a mighty revolution took place in the course and policy of the Press.

When the human mind gives loose rein to an ambition that is self-willed, and not guarded on every side by the checks and balances of truth, justice and virtue, danger is at the door; and calamity, defeat, and many evils, will follow close upon the heel of every movement.

The tranquillity into which society had settled, was annoyed by the juggling of aspirants; the calm was broken by the tempest of the muttering multitude, and the noise of the people about the movements of "Blue Light Federalists," the "Treasure of Aaron Burr," the "Dangerous movements of the Hartford Convention," and the "Villitory Powers of American Heresies" broke out into a confused clamor, and rumbled through the columns of every newspaper.

Now the smouldering fire of abuse sent forth its vicious element to consume the tender and unsuspecting plants, and its flame kindled upon the tongue in personal encounter and burned through the columns of every newspaper.

Here began the licentiousness and degeneracy of the Press. From the sphere where public measures alone are fit topics for speculation, it descended and threw itself into the rancorous whirlpool of combat, pulling out incidents from private life and setting them down as fat targets at which to shoot the poisonous barbs of malevolence and hurl the galling shafts of irony.

The facilities afforded by new newspaper publications were not deemed sufficient to carry on successfully the new warfare, and new inventions made their appearance among the great apparatus editors reconnoitered their old publications and put them in order for successful attack.

Like a restless war-steed, the Press rushed into the conflict, duly caparisoned and shielded for the fight.

The growing patronage of the people greatly augmented the number of papers, and instead of being satisfied with a few hundred many copies per week, from twenty to thirty and sometimes forty thousand spicy sheets were thrown off each day by a single machine. The eye of the reading community began to be delighted with postscripts, extras, expressions, newshoats, and the latest intelligence. Histories, novels, memoirs, lyrics, tracts, pamphlets and reviews came teeming from the Press, flooding the country with a superabundant supply, and the sum that it would have taken, during the by-gone days of Mr. Faust, to have purchased a single copy of the Bible, would buy a whole library of the new literature.

The reading mania grew intense, and it mattered not as to the nature of publications so that they served to break the ennui of the lonely hour. All sorts of trashy and licentious prints were thrown into the devouring furnace, which were eagerly swallowed down, and became the means of warping the mind by degrees from the channels of sound philosophy and lessening a love for reading those treatises sure to augment intelligence and lay a foundation for useful education.

Editor warred with editor, and they all united in a general mastication of private character. Not content, they carried the war to different corporations, levelling the institutions which the hand of wisdom had raised, and erecting over the ruins ten thousand hydras, repugnant to the Constitution and the genius traceable through all the original measures upon which our Republic was founded by the Fathers. Statesmen felt the lengthened lash; the President and his Cabinet were not so high elevated upon the summit of universal honor, as not to be reached by its secret movements of Congress, were guessed at, speculated upon, and gossiped to the four winds; the members were singled out and abused, domestic infelicities, as if they were rightfully the property of the public—in short, nothing out of which capital could be made escaped its avareicious jaws; none were too high or too low to escape the rancor; the voice of vituperation rose up like thunder from the Press and echoed through the land with such bewildering violence that the claims of honesty were not taken into account and placed upon the sea with accumulated error. Libel, sanders, vilifications, and detailed accounts of the "youthful indiscretions" of public men, were crammed unsparingly into the jaws of the monster.

An attempt at redress only added new fuel to the flame, heating the oven with greater intensity; the result of which was assaults, street-brawls, a violent use of the cat, challenges and duels, which often terminated in the shedding of blood.

Thus society sank into a deplorable abyss, and its degeneracy has been repaired ever since. The rising generation grew up amid the din of contentions; they read all the licentious prints; imbibed the contagion; caught the spirit of the times; and when adulthood came they threw themselves upon the broad tide of evil and swept along upon its bosom towards the sea of universal ruin, whither threatens soon to engulf them in its insatiable waters.

Thus the Press has been one great instrument used in preparing the human family for the era of a new and most horrible era. It has helped ripen the wickedness of the world and make full the cup of abomination. It has led along the mass to the brink of destruction, and that their doom is sealed, the blood of martyred prophets and the smouldering embers of cities will be sufficient testimony.

This age has been pointed out by inspired men, who have told us of the changes to be wrought over the face of the earth, in the complication of society, in the mutation of organized governments, and in the heterogeneousness of races—a fearful invention. This nation has for years been marching to the precipice of general ruin, which it has now well nigh gained. The Press must share in the guilt; it was the power that hastened, and undergo another revolution in its transformation less brilliant to the present generation than before, and humiliating to the abridgment hands that have so long wielded it.

If the Press was permitted to travel in its legitimate sphere it would become a lasting benefit to all. It would afford a grand reading-magazine where all could rest and brighten the future—like a mighty river it would bear along upon its tide the news of all nations; the diamonds of genius; the light of science; the torch of intellect; the beacon of civilization; the emblem of peace; the stores of wisdom; the calyx of virtue; the laurels of honesty; the ensnared banner of religious tolerance; the shield of innocence; the harmony of principles; and the combined wisdom of the world. It could be used to enlighten the human mind; to scatter treasures from the store-house of knowledge; to break the chains of oppression; to rend the shackles of tyranny; to emancipate the mind from the mazes of proscription; to throw light upon the moral darkness of ages; to sweep away the rubbish of bigotry; to unmask the meagre forms of false traditions; to protect the people in their rights; to defend the injured; to avenge the oppressed; to liberate the captive; to vindicate the cause of virtue; to raise aloft the column of truth; to promote morality; to advocate the gospel of Jesus Christ; to shield a righteous society from abuse; to put to silence; to plead the cause of married prophets; to bring murderers to justice; to avenge the price of society; to build up the kingdom of God; to prepare the world for the Messianic; it should be used to give importance to the genius of Government; to strengthen the bonds of social compact; to accumulate national wealth; to urge onward the ship of State in its proximity to dignified greatness; to augment power; to stretch out the boundaries of the public domain; to promote the formation of war, when war is inevitable; to sweeten the cup of enjoyment in times of peace; to convey wisdom to the Cabinet, and intelligence to the body of national counsellors; to forget mud-crabs and integrity in the ruler, and humanity in the tyrant; to prevent the recent pen of detractors from entering the sacred penetralia of private life to drag infidelities before the speculating multitude; and, finally, to secure peace in the enjoyment of political and religious rights.

Alas! alas! how different has been the policy of the Press of this age!

When a messenger descended from the courts of celestial glory, and brought the message of the true gospel, to the children of men, the Press refused to give it publicity to the world. When Jehovah sent his angel to the second time to gather Israel and build up His kingdom, it trembled with vindictive traducing the characters of the humble few who embraced it. When the Book of Mormon was brought to light and translated by the gift and power of God, dissipating the mist that enveloped the history of this continent in profound mystery, and throwing additional light upon the plan of salvation, the Press united its voices of thunder in denunciation of its true character, and in heaping contumely and a torrent of abuse upon the humble individual, who has since laid down his life in testimony of its truth. When through the struggles of honest poverty a paper was started to advocate the truth, an editorial war was waged against it, and at length some person of liminal feelings acted the part of the incendiary and wrought the establishment in flames. Subsequently, another press was launched into the streets of Independence, and the material was demolished, by a mob, and the editor and his family, with a host of other innocent people, were driven from their homes and the lands for which Government had received their money. In Far West, another press had to be buried in the earth to prevent its destruction by another mob, and thirteen thousand citizens were forced from the limits of Missouri for worshipping God according to the peculiarities of revealed religion.

At all these outrages the Press winced in silence, save now and then when some word of applause burst forth from its columns, praising the perpetrators of the deeds for their patriotism and philanthropy. A muzzle seemed put upon the Press that it could not raise its voice against those who laid upon the "Cradle of Liberty," and whose sacred altars were being trampled upon. The press was tamely silent in vindication of the oppressed, his patronage was withdrawn; he was frowned at by his readers and pitied as a creature of some dreadful infirmity. The votaries of truth were sternly denied all access to its columns, and to effect the spread of the gospel they were obliged to travel over the country and communicate with the people in person. This has been the case—it is so now.

Through the providence of God, the Church of Jesus Christ has now four papers in successful operation: the Times and Seasons, the Nauvoo Neighbor, the New York Messenger, and the Millennial Star. These advocate the gospel of Jesus Christ, and are each conducted by members of the Quorum of the Twelve, who hold the keys of the last dispensation, and are endowed with the power of calling down the revelations of heaven. Let these journals be patronized, unanimously by the saints, and make firm the channels through which knowledge shall flow to every part of the earth. Keep them in every house; lend them to those who sit in darkness; make the honest in heart may be converted and the work of gathering be urged on among the house of Israel.

When Zion rises in her majesty, and becomes the wonder of the world; when her onlookers and temple-dwellers her thousand cities; when her spires reach the skies, and her dome a well-proportioned view; when she is emancipated and her inhabitants hold sweet communion with the intelligences of the eternal world; when the clamor of wrangling editors is hushed and swept away by the harmony of the Millennial glory; when the saint no longer tormented by the hot Moloch of religious fanaticism; when the Press is no longer muzzled against the truth; when knowledge fills the earth as the waters cover the deep; when the keys of revelation are held over the world, calling down the wisdom of immortal beings; when the kingdom of God is established in all the excellency of eternal perfection; when journals, like so many rays of light diverging from the high throne of celestial wisdom, are heralded from all the stakes of Zion, to augment the benediction of the Sabbath of rest, and there is none found to wage war with them; then, gentle reader, will there not have been wrought another mighty revolution in the daily press?

L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

City of Joseph, 27th Aug., 1845.

TEXAS AND MEXICO.

Important Movement of Troops.

We hasten to lay before our readers the important intelligence we have just received, relative to the movement of troops for the purpose of protecting the newly acquired territory of Texas, from the dangers of a projected Mexican invasion. General Gaines, now in our city, having received authentic information to the effect that ten thousand Mexican troops were within eight days' march of General Taylor, who is posted at St. Joseph's Island, immediately despatched a messenger to Governor Mouton, at Pass Christian, claiming a requisition of two regiments of volunteers, (of ten companies each,) one to consist of Infantry and one of Riflemen; and two companies of Artillery, with eight field pieces. The requisition was immediately granted, and will be put forthwith into execution.

The two Volunteer Regiments are to be stationed at the Forts and Barracks on the Gulf, subject to the orders of the Government; and the United States troops at present in garrison at those stations are to be immediately transferred to Tex-

ns. The two companies of Volunteer Artillery will leave on Wednesday, on board the steam ship Alabama, together with four companies of United States troops, (7th Regiment Infantry,) two of which are expected to-morrow morning from Pass Christian, under Captains Moore and Holmes.

The above information may be relied upon as authentic.

Foreign News

The mammoth iron steamer, Great Britain, arrived at New York on the 10th instant, in fifteen days from Liverpool. We select a few items from the news by her.—The fire at Smyrna is the greatest:

SPAIN.

Madrid papers of the 14th state, that the decree against the press has roused some opposition even among the supporters of the Ministry, but it is of that weak and uncertain kind that might be expected where the writers feel that the most moderate opposition might expose them to imprisonment, banishment, or ruin. A meeting of the conductors of the public journals was to be held on the 15th, to concert what part was wise to be taken in the affair. The press in Spain is in so degraded a state, that it has itself, in a great measure, led to the catastrophe which now overwhelms it, by its sycophancy and dishonesty. Its ruin is now so complete, that no resolutions of its conductors can, at this period, save it.

The Madrid papers give long accounts of the progress of the insurrection in Catalonia, but they add nothing to the information direct from Barcelona.

SYRIA.

The intelligence from Syria represents that country as being in a very disturbed state. The Druses were roving in quest of plunder, and intent upon pillaging all travelers who came within their reach.

CHINA.

The news from China is to the 8th of April. The most remarkable item thereof is an account of an assault by a mob of Chinese on Mr. Montgomery Martin, Mr. Jackson, (the Vice-Consul), and the Rev. R. Hunter.—These gentlemen were, it seems, walking round the walls of Canton, when they were unprovokedly set upon by the people, from whom they escaped with no other injury than the mortification of being buffeted and robbed by a crowd of low blackguards. The Governor of Hong Kong had sent to Keying to demand redress and guarantee for future good conduct, but the result is yet unknown.

From the Phila. Spirit of the Times.

INTERESTING FROM IRELAND
Particulars of the dreadful affair at Ballinacraig Fair, &c.—The state of Ireland.

The unusually quick passage of the Cambrian from Liverpool has put us in possession of foreign news a day or two earlier than we expected. We gave yesterday some brief extracts and made allusions to the "dreadful affair," at Ballinacraig Fair, in Ireland, as one that had created considerable excitement. In the Cork Reporter we find the particulars of that affair and give it as interesting to the public.

"There is an annual fair held in the village of Ballinacraig on the 30th of June, which is usually well attended by all the farmers and people in that district, and it is customary to send a small police force to the fair in order to keep order.

About half-past 7 o'clock, when the business of the fair had concluded, a number of persons remained near the fair field, and about the little village. A party of police, 19 in number, under the command of Mr. Kelly, sub-inspector at Kinsale, were stationed near the cross-road. At one side of this spot, is a public house, kept by a person named Callahan, and at the other side of the road running parallel with it, is a low slated house used as a dispensary. Two persons in the crowd, from the neighborhood of Adamstown, whose names are Sullivan and Neale, began to quarrel, and others having interfered, the police felt it their duty to arrest one of the principals, Sullivan, and immediately on their doing so, one or two mischievous persons called out in Irish—"Don't let him with them." Symptoms of a disposition to rescue Sullivan having thus become perceptible, the police retired with their prisoner to the dispensary. Here some stone throwing occurred. Some shots having been fired, a number of the country people got into a garden behind the dispensary, and threw stones on the roof, until they had smashed in two or three places. The police, in the meantime, fired from the window and door, with deadly effect. There was no more to be said; no riot act read; no warning to the people to desist; no attempt made to disperse them by a bayonet charge or a volley of blank cartridge. At the first fire several fell, the police then came out; some of them fired again, and again returned, and the whole party once again rushed out, and the people having by this time run in all directions, they turned up by the bridge in the direction of their barracks. When they went from the dispensary, a small body of people followed them; and though no attack was attempted, one or two of the police turned round, and again fired with the same aim and effect that signalized their previous proceedings.

The condition of some of the wounded is thus described:

"On a heap of potatoes in the corner, resting on the lap of an aged woman, lay the body of a fine athletic man, his clothes open, and his chest covered with blood; three or four women were collected about—a group of men surrounded him, and only a hollow moan from the females occasionally broke the silence of the house of mourning. In less than a minute he had ceased to exist, and this announcement of the melancholy truth seemed the signal for a burst of that anguish only the Irish peasant can express, when involved in such absorbing sorrow. The wailing of his mother defies all description; she tore her hair, beat her head with her clenched hands and seemed to grasp the lifeless clay with a tenacity—hoping against hope—which could not fail to make an endeavoring and sorrowful impression on all who witnessed it. The name of the deceased was Jeremiah Coghlan, he lived at Skehanagh, was a small farmer, and left besides his aged mother a wife and one child to bewail his sad and untimely fate. The bullet entered at his back, and passing through the lungs, came out at the left side."

"From this we proceeded with all expedition to Adamstown, where some of the most dangerous cases had been removed to their own houses.—At the house of Maurice Crokan, whom we found lying on a bed almost in the agonies of death, his wife and four small children were screaming at the bed side, and a crowd of neighbors blocked up the single apartment of his wretched and cheerless habitation.—His case was quite hopeless."

"We next came to a house where, indeed a most afflicting spectacle awaited us. The woman of the house, Johanna Holland, aged 23, and lately married, was shot dead near the bridge in the village, after the police had left the dispensary. Her mangled corpse was lying on a table facing the door, and a vast crowd, principally females, thronged the house, which from its general appearance I should say belonged to a comfortable farmer. On examination it was found that the ball entered at the back, and passing between the shoulders through the lungs, caused instantaneous death. The deceased was a very respectable, quiet woman, and was by mere accident passing through the village on her way home at the moment of the untoward event which brought her to a premature grave.

"A powerful young man named Cornelius Forde, who resided at Ballynacree, is shot dead through the chest, and a man named Charles McCarthy, who resided at Ballyheeda, and has left a wife and four young children, is also shot dead and has been carried to a distance by his friends. He was shot at the door of a man named McCarthy, a cousin of his, under circumstances which would show the act to be of the most aggravated character. A man named Deasy is also stated to be so dangerously wounded as that his death is hourly expected.

"There is a policeman named Dawson, rather severely hurt. He has three cuts on his head from stones, and his lip is split; but nothing more serious."

Altogether there were eight killed and many wounded. A number of other touching cases are mentioned of suffering wounded and dying from this affray, which we have not room to detail.

ANTI-RENT MURDER!

Deputy Sheriff O. N. Steele Inhumanly Butchered!—Our county has been the scene of a most brutal murder, which occurred yesterday in the town of Andes.

The Sheriff a few days since endeavored to sell some property belonging to Moses Earle, of Andes, which he had levied upon by virtue of a distress warrant. Not being able to obtain bidders, (owing to the threats, &c. of the Anti Renters,) he adjourned the sale till yesterday, when he proceeded to Earle's, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff O. N. Steele, P. P. Wright Esq., and Constable E. S. Edgerton. Upon arriving on the ground, at about 10 o'clock in the morning, there were several spectators there. The Sheriff endeavored to have the matter settled, without a sale, but Earle said he would not settle it, but would fight it at the hardest. In about half an hour, Indians began to appear, armed with rifles; and at about half past twelve, they commenced marching out of the woods. There were about one hundred and fifty. The Indians formed a hollow square around the cattle, and placed a platform at the bar, forbidding the citizens entering the field. Mr. Wright requested the Sheriff to drive the property into the road where the bidders were, or adjourn the sale. The Sheriff endeavored to get the property to the road, and while doing so, Mr. Wright forced a passage through the file of Indians into the lot, and was followed by Steele and Edgerton. The "chief" ordered the Indians to "shoot the horses." The cry was taken up by the Indians—"shoot the horses!"—"shoot him—shoot him!" Edgerton spoke at the top of his voice, and commanded the peace, calling on all persons to assist him in preserving the peace. A volley was discharged by the Indians, and Edgerton's horse was shot in the breast. Immediately a second volley was fired, when Steele fell, mortally wounded.—His horse expired in a few minutes; Edgerton's was killed instantly. Steele was taken to the house, when it was found that three balls had taken effect, one in the chest, another in the bowels, and the third on the right arm.

He survived till about 8 o'clock, being in excruciating agony all the time, when he expired. His wife and friends arrived a few moments before his death in time to bid him the last adieu on earth. An inquest is now being held at the Court House, before C. E. Perry, Esq. Coroner.

We understand that one of the falsehoods set afloat by the Anti Renters to counteract the effect calculated to be produced by their murder, is that Steele and Edgerton fired upon the Indians first, and that Mr. Wright fired after the Indians had done so. This is all false. Neither Mr. Wright nor Mr. Edgerton fired at all; Mr. Steele fired once after he was wounded.

We have no heart to comment at present upon this inhuman murder. Our citizens feel deeply the sad affliction by which one of their number, beloved and respected by all, has been cut off in the prime of life, while faithfully performing his duty as a public officer.

Our young friend has fallen a sacrifice to the spirit of rebellion and worse than heathenish barbarism that has been for some time spreading in our once peaceful County.—But with his untimely death has sprung up a fire that will not be subdued till the last vestige of that hellish system is obliterated. Law and order must and will prevail, be the cost what it may.

[Delaware Express—Extra of Aug. 8.]

Struck Dumb and Blind.—During a late storm in England, when the thunder was powerful and the lightning vivid, a party of males and females took refuge in a public house; one man laughed at the party because they exhibited great fear, and he mocked in blasphemous language the power of the storm; suddenly a flash of lightning struck him down, and when taken up, he was both dumb and blind.—Phil. Keystone.

Dutch glory.—A few months ago says a Canadian paper, a German at Dayton in a fit of jealousy, leaped from a window in the third story and fell to the ground, breaking the steps and some of his limbs. The cause of the "desperate act" was the refusal on the part of his lady-love to dance with him. The Transcript of the above place, says that he has since completely recovered, and has married the very girl that caused his misfortune. She certainly could no longer doubt his love, though she might his sanity.

POSTSCRIPT.

Assassination triumphant at Washington.—On Monday the 18th inst., Wm R. Elliot, a brother-in-law of J. C. Rives, barbarously shot dead in the streets of Washington, W. Z. Kendall, son of Amos Kendall, late Post Master General; and, not content with this, this same Elliot, a few moments after, shot and severely wounded J. R. Bailey. There is great excitement at the capital, men shot dead by mob law, where the nations of the earth are looking for law, life, and liberty. Right under the great supervision, of the great men of this great Republic, the great prophecies of the prophets, have begun to be fulfilled; and where will they end?

Roof of the Temple.—The first roof of the Temple, has been made of white pine shingles and plank. The second, (for a building which will cost about two millions, is worthy) most probably, will be constructed of zinc, lead, copper, or porcelain. An experiment of sheet lead, covering a large portion of the shingles, has already been made.

High Eating.—On Saturday last a large number of persons partook of a feast of melons, round a table 87 feet long in the attic story of the Temple.

Just so.—The workmen round the Nauvoo House resemble bees round a beehive. 'Just so' says a visitor, 'and can do any thing they put their hands to.'

New Proverb.—In stead of saying that charity hides a multitude of sins, such Editors as Bennett of the N. Y. Herald, says, rub your eyes with an onion for charity!

Horrid Murders and Self-destruction.—We have received information from Neeshoba that five Indians were killed in that county last week. An affray occurred in the early part of the week between three Indians, when one of the number succeeded in killing the other two. He was immediately arrested by a party of Indians, and was offered the alternative either to be shot or to shoot himself. He preferred the latter; and just before he committed the fatal deed, he vowed himself ready to die; said that his revenge was satisfied, as he had killed two, and was perfectly willing that his life should pay the forfeit. He placed the muzzle of his rifle to his head with the utmost composure, pulled the trigger, and blew his own brains out.

The fourth Indian was killed in Mr. Kellen's yard, being struck on the head with a billet of wood by another Indian, which broke his skull in two places. He died immediately. The fifth Indian was also killed by one of his comrades, the particulars of which have not yet transpired. Paulding, Miss. Clarion.

Eggs for Rigidity.—We are informed, says the Grittyburg (Pa.) Compiler, that a company of mowers on the farm of Col. D. David M. Myers, of Berwick township, in this (Adams) county, found no less than seventeen dozen and three eggs on a spot of ground one fourth of an acre in extent—a single nest containing sixty-three eggs—the produce of four Guinea-hens.

Warlike.—An Eastern paper says, we have later news from Buenos Ayres being to the fifth of June. The combined fleets of England, France and Brazil were about blockading the port of Buenos Ayres. Thirty two sail of British and French men of war were assembled in the river, with more than 50,000 troops on board.

Deaths, during the last week at N. York, 226, of whom 127 were under two years of age, 42 died of cholera infantum, 32 of consumption, and 2 of small pox.—Niles' Reg. Aug. 9.

MARRIED.—At Nashville, Iowa, on the 17th inst. by Elder G. A. Smith. Mr. Hiram B. Bennett, to Miss Martha, daughter of Asahel Smith of that place. So Martha's chose the better part, As Christ once said of Mary, And gave a husband all her heart, As meek fortune—very!

Died.—On the 15th of August, Wm. Lisk, aged 21 years.

The deceased was, baptized into the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in the spring of 1844; the fall following he left his home and emigrated to this place, where he remained until his death. By his calm uniform disposition and good morals, he won the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. For the gratification of his friends, I will say I have often talked with him about coming here, and he always expressed himself contented. He left father, mother, brothers, sisters, and friends to come up to Zion, to die and sleep until the morning of the resurrection with the saints, prophets, and patriarchs of the most high God.—[Communicated.] J. W. F.

In Kirtland, April 10th 1845, of croup, Seraph Celestine, daughter of Phineas H. and Lucy P. Young—aged 4 years, 3 months and 18 days.

Sweathed of earth's wilderness rified and torn; Fond eyes have wept o'er thee, fond hearts still will mourn.

The spoiler hath come with his cold withering breath, And the loved and the cherished lies silent in death.

She felt not the burthen, and heat of the day; She hath passed from this earth, and its sorrows away.

With the dew of the morning still fresh on her brow; Sweet bud of earth's wilderness, where art thou now?

And O! do ye question, with trembling breath: Why the joy of your household lies silent in death!

Do ye mourn 'round the place of the perishing dust; Look onward, and upward with holier trust.

Who cometh to meet her, with light on his brow? What angelic form greets her, so tenderly now?

'Tis the pure sainted brother, springs onward to bear The sister he loves from this region of care.

He beareth her on to the realms of repose, Where no cloud ever gathers, nor storm, ever blows.

For the Savior calls home to the mansions above. This frail, trembling floweret, in mercy and love.

There shall she, forever, unchanged by decay Beside the will waters, in green pastures stray.

And there shall we join her, with earth's ransomed host; Look onward, and upward; she's gone, but not lost.

STATE OF ILLINOIS. County of Hancock.

NOTICE is hereby given, to all persons having claims against the Estate of Elijah Perry, deceased, to present the same at the office of the Probate Justice of the Peace, for said county on the 23rd day of October, A. D. 1845, for proof and a just settlement thereof.

PHILO P. GOODWIN, Adm'r of said Elijah Perry, dec'd. August 15, 1845.—16-4-4.

NOTICE. LARGE QUANTITY OF BRICKLAYERS and CARPENTERS wanted IMMEDIATELY on the NAUVOO HOUSE and the TEMPLE.

Do you see? Do you hear? if you do, pay ATTENTION!!! Beware of being deceived!!

PETER HAWES, AMASA LYMAN, GEORGE A. SMITH, Nauvoo, August 22, 1845.—16-4-4.

CITY LOTS AND PRAIRIE LANDS. THE NAUVOO HOUSE ASSOCIATION have several very eligible city lots and several fine farms on the prairie, which they will sell very low, or exchange for grain, best cattle, cows, horses or other property that can be used in building the Nauvoo House.

Please call at the office of the association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets, or on either of the Trustees.

GEORGE MILLER, PETER HAWES, AMASA LYMAN, GEORGE A. SMITH, Nauvoo, August 22, 1845.—16-4-4.

FOR SALE in Hancock county, about 20 miles from Nauvoo: 12 miles from Warsaw, 7 from Lima: 127 acres of good land, about 81 acres under good cultivation; 22 under pasture, with 2 log houses, one 18 by 21 with frame attached 12 by 24, 2 wells good water, stable, and outbuildings.

Also, 112 acres of good timber land, about 2 miles from the above, with log house and about 10 acres under fence.

Also, a new one story Cottage, containing 6 rooms, with about 3 acres of land situated in one of the most pleasant locations in Nauvoo. Application to be made as to terms, to John Taylor editor of this paper, N. B. Cowey corner of White street on Winchester street; Dr. Atkinson, Buffalo, New York. Aug. 10-16-4.

FOR SALE BY the Trustees of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

One large new two Horse Carriage. Any person wishing to purchase, will please call at the Trustees' offices, in the Brick Store north of the Temple formerly occupied by P. P. Pratt, or at Pres. B. Young's corner of Kimball and Granger streets. August 6, 14-17

PIANO-FORTE MUSIC.

MRS. PLEIGHFORTH respectfully informs the inhabitants of Nauvoo, that she has commenced teaching Music on the Piano forte, and with a view to the improvement of the pupils, she offers to teach at the very low rate of one dollar per quarter, so that all classes wishing to learn may be accommodated.

As Mrs. P. has had the benefit of many years instruction from several of the most scientific English and German masters; and subsequently has had much experience in teaching, she flatters herself that she will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor her with their patronage.

Reference, kindly permitted, to Elders Brigham Young and John Taylor.

Engine for Mrs. P. at Misses Gray's, millinery, Main street, or at her own residence, corner of Granger and Parley streets, one block east of the 8th street Hall. July 30—13-4

Old Connecticut Pottery.

MANUFACTURERS OF EARTHEN WARE, CITY OF JOSEPH, ILL.; WAREHOUSE ON MULHOLLAND STREET, F. W. RICE, EAST OF THE TEMPLE.

KEEP constantly on hand, and manufacture to order, every description of article in their line of business; namely:—Lead Pots, Crucibles, Furnaces, Jugs, Pitchers, Churns, Pails, Pinks, Water Kettles, Wash Bowls, Milk Pans, Flower Pots, Tea Pots, Bed Pans, Coffee Pots, Ber Butlers, Ginger Jar Bottles, Chimney Tops, stoves and bed bed Jars with covers, straight and belid.

Pots with covers, Bread Pots with covers, square and round dishes, from 6 to 14 inches, 8 size Tubs, Chambers, and other articles too numerous to mention.

We are also prepared to manufacture Sugar Moulds and Drips of superior quality.

We are employing experienced workmen from Newark, Connecticut, and can assure the public, that our wares will be found equal, if not superior, to any thing of the kind in the western country.

We can accommodate the public with wares of thirteen different shades, such as jet-black, blue-black, red, green, yellow, cream color, most of color, &c., &c.

Orders from St. Louis and other southern and eastern markets, packed in the best manner at a short notice. Cash or produce taken in exchange for wares.

G. W. WANDELL, M. MORE, Jr. Nauvoo, July 30, 1845—13-17

WANTED.

BY the Nauvoo House Association, 200 Tons of hay,

10,000 Bushels of oats,

25,000 Bushels of wheat,

25,000 Bushels of corn,

5,000 Bushels of potatoes,

1,000 Cords of wood,

2,000 Dollars in cash,

1,000 Barrels of pork,

100 Head of beef cattle,

100 Horses,

And every thing else that can be made use of in building the Nauvoo House.

Apply at the office of the Association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets.

GEORGE MILLER, PETER HAWES, AMASA LYMAN, GEORGE A. SMITH, Trustees. July 22-12-4

NOTICE.

A Botanic Association has been formed in the city of Nauvoo, for collecting herbs and roots and preparing the same for the good of the saints. Let every person secure health. And look out for the best pills. Office south east of the Temple on Warsaw and Ripley sts.

JOS. YOUNGER, Pres't. R. SHEPHERD, Ck., July 18, 1845:12-3m

NOTICE.

IS hereby given, that Emma Smith, guardian of the heirs of Joseph Smith, deceased, will pursuant to a decree of the Circuit Court of Hancock county and State of Illinois, sell on the second day of September, A. D. 1845, at the Mansion House in the City of Nauvoo to the highest bidder, the following described lots in the City of Nauvoo, Hancock county, and State of Illinois, (to wit) Lot four (4) in block 142; also lots 1, 2, 3, 4, in block (98); also lots 1, 2, 3, 4, in block no. 97, said sale to commence at 9 o'clock A. M., and to be made on a credit of six months with good personal security, and mortgage on the premises as further security thereof.

E. M. SMITH, Guardian. Nauvoo, August 4-14-3w

FOR SALE.

A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 21 feet by 30 two stories high. A good well of water in the premises. Terms low for cash.

Enquire of E. T. Benson on Monson street between Palmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office. DANIEL LUTER, July 14, 1845—11-4

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.

W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845—4-9

LIME: LIME:—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate lime, at their kilns near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Shiras. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.

JOSIAH BOYCE, O. M. ALLEN, EDMUND NELSON.

May 7, 1845—No 1-8m

THE WORLD RIGHT SIDE UP.

E. D. and J. M. WOOLLEY, would respectfully inform the Saints, our friends and the public, we have just received a large assortment of GOODS, which we have opened in the house formerly known as the NAUVOO SEED STORE now JOSEPH CITY STORE, situated on Mulholland Street, one block and a half east of the Temple, where we will be able to accommodate the Saints with those articles so essential to the comfort of mankind, viz Dry goods, Groceries, Queensware, Hardware, and Groceries, in short all things that are daily wanted in our line of business. And having been engaged in the business, for years, we flatter ourselves competent to give satisfaction in quality, and also in price, we would invite the inhabitants of the city of Joseph and its vicinity to call and see.

Country produce will be received for goods. May 27th 1845—4-3m

NOTICE.

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of

LEVI STEWART.

Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845—32-4

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have to hand a large assortment of Earthenware, a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups, and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts, Napkins, Mugs, &c., which will be sold wholesale and retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We loan of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufactories in England.

ELIJAH K. FULLER, President, RICHARD STEELE, WILLIAM BOX, RICHARD RALPHS, JOSEPH RALPHS, THOMAS RALPHS, ALFRED GORDON, JOHN BOURNE Clerk, June 4th 1845—5-6m

PHOTOGRAPHY.

GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Photography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.

May 2d, 1845—1-4

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR

WARE HOUSE, general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo.

The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try, Ere you buy. Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.

STRACHAN & NICHOLSON. April 7:49-6m

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association, on Water street, in the city of Nauvoo, opposite Genl Joseph Smith's store, the following articles, to wit:—Coaches, Omnibuses, Chaises, Cabs, Harems, Carriages, Buggies and Light Wagons, Harnesses, Saddles, Trappings, Harnesses, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, Ox and Horse Carts, Ploughs, North Sashes, Rick Forks, Rakes, Carding and Thrashing Machines, Horse Power, Railroad Cars, and many other articles too numerous to mention.

Sold as cheap as can be purchased in any eastern market. All orders must be paid cash, and addressed to GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq., Pres't of the Association.

J. H. & W. RALSTON, Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.

WILL attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.

W. H. RALSTON's Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois. Warsaw, May 12th, 1845.—3-4

TURNING & CABINET MAKING.

THE subscriber having returned to this city is prepared to manufacture all kinds of furniture of the best quality, and on the most reasonable terms, as cheap as the same articles can be purchased in St. Louis.

He is also prepared to do all kinds of turning in the most fashionable style, and having had an extensive experience in both the above branches, he flatters himself that he will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with their custom.

To his friends in the surrounding country who have heretofore patronized him, he would state, that he should feel obliged by a continuation of their favors.

Shop on Main street, a few doors below the post office. JAMES BIRD. Nauvoo, June 4, 1845—5-3m

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business.

We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WENB & SMITH. Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to visit us a call.

April 7:40-6m W. & S.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 18.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, Sept. 3, 1845.

Whole Number 171

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 annually in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 50 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to regular subscribers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

John Taylor, Proprietor, to receive attention.

From the Washington Weekly Union.

TEXAS.

This magnificent country, which has of late attracted so large a share of public attention throughout the civilized world, not only on account of the richness of its soil and favored climate, but because of the novelty of its political condition, and the extraordinary working of a revolution which has merged nationally into federal power and State sovereignty, as a micro guarantee of the free exercise of republican principles, has its boundary defined by an act of Congress, approved in December, 1836, as follows: "Beginning at the mouth of the Sabine river, and running west along the Gulf of Mexico, three leagues from land, to the mouth of the Rio Grande; thence up the principal stream of said river to its source;

thence due north to the forty-second degree of north latitude; thence along the boundary line, as defined in the treaty between the United States and Spain, to the beginning." Its area comprises nearly four hundred thousand square miles.

This country presents every variety of surface, from the extended plain to the lofty mountain. At the south a level region, varying in width from twenty to seventy miles, extends along the coast from the Sabine to the Rio Grande. This level section is broadest near the Brazos, and narrowest near the San Antonio river. It is furrowed by many deep ravines, which form the channels of the numerous streams that intersect this part of the country. These streams are bordered by dense forests, varying from half a mile to six miles in width. The intervening country is mostly open prairie. The forests, however, do not extend quite to the coast, but terminate within a distance of about five miles from the shore; thence the country is so entirely open, that from the beach, in most places, not a tree can be seen, and the eye rests upon a wide grassy plain, diversified only by a few stunted bushes. Above this level region the country becomes gradually undulating, presenting a continued series of broad swelling knolls, and wide shallow valleys. The prairies and woodland in this region alternate in the most picturesque manner, forming some of the most beautiful scenery in nature. The prairies are generally small, and interspersed with groves resembling islands in a grassy lake.

The forest trees attain a larger size here than those in the level region, and the forests are more widely diffused over the surface. Springs are not infrequent in this section; and the country is irrigated by numerous streams of pure, wholesome water, flowing over pebbly beds.

Above this, you pass through a hilly country, extending inland about one hun-dered miles. Few of these hills attain an elevation exceeding five hundred feet.

Their summits are generally flat, and tuffed with dense thickets of cedar. Beyond this hilly country, another level or east of the Colorado valley, is too monotonous to be agreeable. The larger prairies may, from their immensity, astonish and surprise the beholder, like the broad unvaried expanse of the ocean.

The smaller ones, with their even, uniform carpet of verdure, walled in with tall forest trees on every side, must please the eye, and wrap the senses, for a moment; but they fail to enchain attention.

They command admiration, to excite wonder, and make lasting impressions upon the mind. They possess none of that constant charm of lovely, peculiarly various, and picturesque scenery; and the tourist soon becomes fatigued in noting the remarkable uniformity and reserblance of feature that characterize them.

The landscapes are but a continued series of prairies skirted by forests, from the banks of the San Jacinto to the Colorado.

This country, as its surface indicates, affords almost every variety of soil. In the level and undulating regions, it is exceedingly fertile, consisting, in many places, of a rich, deep, calcareous loam, in which sandy and clayey particles are intimately combined with a carbonaceous vegetable mould. On the banks of several of the streams the soil assumes a reddish-yellow color, from the abundance of ferrous oxide mingled with it. This is peculiarly characteristic of the soils in the vicinity of the Red river, and the level country on the Brazos, the Caney, and the Colorado. On these streams the soils seem to contain all the elements of fertility, and are probably unsurpassed by any on the globe. Those of the level and undulating regions differ but little in their chemical constituents, and evince that they have been formed from a common sedimentary deposit. The undulating sections are generally regarded as more fertile than the level country. This may be owing to the fact, that the constituents of the soil are there more immediately blended, than in the level country;

consequently, the fertilizing influence is more generally diffused. The soil of the hilly region differs widely. In the valleys, the alluvial accumulations are generally very deep, and the soil is similar to that of the undulating region; it consists chiefly of a friable, sandy, calcareous loam, remarkably fertile. Near the Colorado, it encloses many flinty, rolled pe-bles, which are gradually decomposing an imparting a siliceous character. The hills have generally a very light thin soil, consisting chiefly of a layer of vegetable mould only a few inches deep, resting upon horizontal strata of limestone. The productions of Texas are similar to those of the middle and southern States of the Union; with the addition of tropical fruits;

everything yielding immensely abundant returns for the little labor bestowed. The forests furnish vast quantities of valuable timber, consisting of live oak, pine, cedar,

any, which nearly resembles mahogany, bois d'arc, and other timber highly prized for cabinet furniture. It has been estimated that the forests of Texas would furnish a supply of live oak sufficient cent for all the navies of the world. The mesquite grass, which carpets the prairies and forests of western Texas, is as valuable as grain for stock, being exceedingly nutritious, even when apparently deadened by age, and withered by the rays of the sun.

The sections of Texas, which, by their geological features, indicate that they contain the largest quantities of valuable minerals, have been but little explored.

made, indicate that all the sedimentary rocks of this country have not been subjected to any of those great revolutions that have broken up and contorted

the rocky strata in many other parts of America, but have been gradually deposited in a tranquil sea, and as gradually lifted up from its bed by some process of nature. The observations, however, that confirm this opinion, have been confined to the tertiary and recent secondary formations. Along the coast a series of superficial accumulations extend inland from the coast, decreasing in thickness as the distance from the sea increases. The bones of the mastodon, and a variety of fossils, are found imbedded in this alluvial formation. Shells, similar to those that are daily thrown upon the Gulf-shore, are found in these deposits. These superficial accumulations rest upon a coarse sandstone. In the higher portions of the undulating region, the sandstone in some places protrudes through the soil in regular ridges, evidently water-worn, and forming a rocky beach. Large trunks of siliceous trees, two or three feet in diameter, are found lying against the ridges of the sandstone, a few miles east of Lagrange. This sandstone varies greatly in texture. In some places it is composed of coarse sands and comminated shells, and encloses rolled siliceous pebbles. In others, it is quite fine grained, and resembles free stone.

The diseases incident to the climate of Texas are few, and generally yield easily to a judicious remedial course. Intermittent and remittent fevers are the most common disorders. These are induced by the use of unwholesome food, or by continued exposure to the sun. When to the exposure is added great bodily fatigue, the remittent fever assumes a congestive type, and is exceedingly dangerous. Travellers, who rashly venture to cross the prairies of the country under the scorching noonday sun, are liable to contract this disease. Those, however, who travel only during the early part of the morning, and towards the close of the evening, are seldom subjected to those attacks.

The people of Texas are remarkable for sobriety and general morality. If the descriptions we read of their recklessness, vices, and crime, in 1837, 1838, and 1839 were true, then indeed has there been a wonderful change wrought. The population is too sparse for the cause of religion to suffer by the zeal of sectarians, and, as the sabbath morning breaks, they are all found kneeling at the same reverent altar, and offering up their heart's devotion to the same merciful God. All trace of the intemperance and immorality produced by the great influx of worthless people from the States is gone. The swindler and criminal have been driven from the country by the force of public sentiment, while their victims have recovered from the degradation into which they had fallen. The moral atmosphere is pure. As a people, the Texians may well be envied for their virtues.

Wholesale Sharpiana mingled with anti-Mormonism.—The following horrible picture of murder and robbing is from the N. O. Picayune.

Paducah, Ky., July 23, 1845.

It has lately come to light, that one of the most extensive and thoroughly organized bands of outlaws that have yet been banded together since the days of Marshall and his gang, have their headquarters in the adjoining counties in Illinois, whence they sally forth to this State, and parts of Tennessee, Mississippi, and Missouri, upon their errands of crime. The immediate cause of the discovery of this horde of robbers, murderers, counterfeiters, and horse thieves, was the sudden disappearance of a man named Davis, who resided in Christian county, in this State. Two

Foreign News

The arrival of the Hibernia at Boston from Liverpool, gives us ten days later news from Europe.

Willmer & Smith's European Times, Aug. 3, says:

The annexation of Texas, which may now be regarded as consummated, is too important an event in the history of nations to escape the lynx-eyed vigilance of the press in this quarter of the globe. It has been freely commented on since the arrival of the Acadia, last week which brought the resolutions of the Texian Congress. The annexation is not, of course, palatable to John Bull, which is, perhaps, the best reason why it should be popular on the western shores of the Atlantic.

France.—The massacre of which the Arabs have been the victims, in the cave of Dahra, has been freely commented upon by the French and British press, and its atrocity has been the subject of just general condemnation. Marshal Soult has travelled out of his way to throw the shield of his official character around the man-roasting Colonel Pelissier, under whose supervision the baking and stewing of hundreds of human beings was carried on. The affair is a sad stain on the glory of French arms, and impairs the hitherto high character of their soldiery.

Switzerland.—A very melancholy event has plunged the country into consternation and dismay. M. Leu, one of the leading members of the Jesuits' party, was found dead in his bed, weltering in his blood. His partisans declare, loudly and unequivocally, that he was basely assassinated;—his political opponents, on the contrary, declare, with equal confidence, that he committed suicide. The physicians declare that from the position which the ball took (he was shot through the heart with a pistol), he could not have committed suicide, and the fact that no pistol was found by his side confirms their assertion. But on the other hand there are no traces of any person entering the house—no noise was heard, though twenty people at least were in the house—the shutters of his bedroom were closed, and his wife, sleeping by his side, was alarmed by the report of the pistol, but saw no one. The affair is enveloped in great mystery, but it is to be hoped it will be cleared up. The agitation the matter has caused is really indescribable, and it has embittered the ill feeling which the different parties bear towards each other. My opinion is, that more blood will flow before the people become calmed down; and perhaps this suicide or assassination, whichever it may be, may be made the cause for it.

Greece.—The accounts from Greece represent the country as overrun with robbers. Assassinations are frequent. M. Patsali had been murdered in front of his own house, and the dwelling of the Receiver General had been broken into and plundered. A large body—47,000 drachmas of the public money—was carried off by the rascals.

Turkey.—Constantinople, July 17.

Collision of Steamers.—Loss of one hundred and thirty-five lives.—On the night of the 11th instant, on the Black Sea, about forty miles east of the Bosphorus, a most dreadful catastrophe took place. Two Turkish Steamers, the one coming from, and the other going to Trebizonde came into a sudden collision, and one of them went down with the greater part of the crew and passengers.

The vessels were the Scutari, commanded by Mr. Dubbins, and the Medihrai Tidjahret, commanded by Mr. Lambert.

India and China.—The Cholera has been very prevalent in Bombay and Poonah, and has raged in Lahore fearfully.

The political news is not of importance. The Governor General remained at Calcutta, but was expected to move in October to the north-west provinces, to reduce the Sikhs to order. From China we learn that a riot had taken place at Victoria.—It had been suppressed without difficulty.—The troops had been withdrawn from Kolungson, in accordance with terms of our treaty, and the Chinese had taken possession. The mate and gunner of the Ariel, having 100,000 dollars on board, had attempted to seize the vessel, but were defeated—in the conflict the mate was killed, and the gunner wounded. The Bombay market had a favorable appearance for imports.

Professor Espy Abroad.—We regret to learn that some mischievous persons having fired the prairie between this city and Fort Smith, the fences and other valuable property of Major Elias Recter, and Wm. Queensbury, were consumed. The extent of the drought in our country may be imagined; when we relate that the flames rose with such rapidity as to threaten all before them. Professor Espy will be pleased to hear that a fine shower immediately followed, and the long sultry season has been succeeded by a clouded and a cool atmosphere.—Ark. Intell. of 9th.

AND SO FORTH—IANA.

We have the least catalogue of calamities this week, of any one since we commenced collecting them.

Fire at Albany.—We learn from the Citizen that a fire broke out at 11 1/2 o'clock Monday evening in a cow stable in the rear of No. 6 Park street, between Park and Eagle streets, which immediately spread among the multitude of stables, sheds, and out houses in the rear of the buildings on State, Park, and Eagle streets. These were all consumed, together with two small frame dwellings located in an alley that runs up from Lancaster street. The fire was only prevented from sweeping this alley through on either side to Lancaster street, by a timely supply of water from cisterns connected with Gibson's plane factory.

No. 6 Park street, 2 story brick building, owned by John Townsend, and occupied by a colored family, was destroyed; also No. 8 and 10, two-story frame buildings, owned by the Dennison estate, and occupied by six poor families, were destroyed. No. 12, three-story brick dwelling, owned by John Townsend, and occupied by Wm P. Winters and Leman Clark, was seriously damaged by fire and water. All the furniture was removed. The three-story brick houses, Nos. 32 and 34 Eagle street, owned by the Rathbone estate and occupied (No. 32) by Mr Van Arman, and (No. 34) by Mrs Shaw and Mr Swan, were also badly damaged, furniture all removed; also from No. 30, occupied by Mr Parker.

Destructive Fire.—Loss of Lives.—At 9 o'clock last evening, the extensive stables fronting on Brattle Square, attached to the City Tavern, Brattle street, kept by Lucius Doolittle, were discovered to be on fire. The fire was designedly set in one of the mangers, near the door in the southerly stable, and the flames spread quickly into the hay loft, and in a few moments, the whole building was in flames, burning with fearful rapidity.

There were some sixty to seventy horses in the stable. They were all got out at the imminent risk of the lives of the hostlers connected with the stables, and several others, who ventured into the stables surrounded by flames, and cut the halters, and drove the horses out. A young man named Florence Sullivan, a printer, was very badly burnt, his clothes having caught fire. Mr Pope, the driver of the Berlin and West Baylston stage, had his face and hands burnt. Silas Libbey, hostler, had his hands burnt. The fire raged furiously, and threatened the destruction of the Brattle Street Church and other surrounding property, but by the exertions of the department it was confined to the stables and sheds. The roof of the church belfry caught fire, and was considerably burnt. It is our melancholy duty, in publishing an account of this fire, to record the loss of two lives by the falling of the angle of the front brick wall of the stables on Brattle Square.

Mr Emerson G. Thompson, 3d foreman of Engine Company No. 3 of Charlestown, and Mr Wm. Roulstone, of No. 7, of the same town, were dragging along a hose carriage; and when opposite the stable, the angle of the wall fell over and crushed them underneath it, killing them both instantly. Mr Roulstone was most shockingly mangled, his head being almost severed from his body. Mr Thompson was a young, unmarried man, a carpenter by trade, and Mr Roulstone was a sail maker—both belonged to Charlestown. It was reported that another young man, named Howard, was killed, but we were unable to learn the fact.

The stages, carriages and harness were all saved. The stables belonged to the Fifty Associates.

One of the hostlers had just taken out a horse from the stall in which the fire was set, for the purpose of giving the animal some water.—Boston Atlas, Aug. 16.

Fire near Lexington.—We regret to learn from the Lexington Ky. Inquirer, that the bagging factory and rope walk of Thomas H. Clay, Esq., on the Richmond turnpike, near Lexington, were destroyed by fire on the 7th inst. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. Loss $3,000. Insurance $5,000.

Fire.—The Cincinnati Atlas, of the 7th inst. says:

Yesterday morning, between 1 and 2 o'clock, a fire broke out in a back building attached to the coach-making and blacksmith establishment of John Pummil & Co., corner of Plum and George streets, which, together with the shop in front and contents, were entirely destroyed.

The Anti Rent Murder.—A correspondent of the Albany Argus writes from Delhi as follows:

The examination into the butchery of Steele is still progressing before the Coroner. Developments have already been made which will probably lead to the detection and conviction of some of those engaged in it. Three have already been arrested. One was called as a witness before the Coroner. He was present at the time the deed was done, and has made some disclosures about it. It is feared that the person who fired the fatal shot has escaped and fled. A warrant was issued for his arrest, but he could not be found.

The Delaware Express states that the names of the persons arrested are Henry D. Wickham, Zora Preston and Isaac Burhans, of Roxbury, and Richard Davis of Colchester. Sheriff Moore has offered a reward of $300 for the apprehension, out of the county, of Warren W. W. Scudder, of Roxbury, who has absconded.

The Daily Mail says, that there are in Boston upwards of two hundred gambling houses, and at least one thousand professed gamblers.

More Doings at Lexington.—We learn from the Lexington Inquirer, of yesterday, that on the night of the 19th some of the people of that city, occupying, no enviable position in society, made a brutal attack upon several free negroes, beating them most cruelly, and tarring and feathering one of them in the public square. The watchmen took cognizance of the proceeding. The Inquirer speaks of the blacks, who were so brutally treated, as men who make an honest living for themselves and families, and demean themselves peaceably and inoffensively.

The citizens of Lexington held a public meeting on the subject, at the court house, on the 17th inst. Benj. Grant in the chair. The meeting passed strong resolutions against the outrages upon the blacks on the preceding night, pledged themselves to aid the city authorities in detecting and bringing to punishment the authors of those outrages, and in suppressing all subsequent attempts of a similar character, protested against having those shameful doings connect in any manner with the daylight proceedings of last Monday, and resolved that ten men in each ward should volunteer and give their names, who were to arm themselves and hold themselves ready to unite with the city police at a moment's warning, and that the Mayor should be requested to adopt such other measures as he might deem necessary.—Lou. Jour.

The Fire last night. Further Particulars.—It is certain that the fire was set by an incendiary, who entered the door on Brattle square, and applied the matches to the hay in the rack of a large double stall. The hostler had passed the spot but a moment before.

The fire was immediately discovered and an attempt made to smother it with their hands, by the hostler and another person, but it soon got above their reach. The stable was owned by the 'Fifty Associates,' and was insured. Mr Doolittle's loss was about $2,000, in hay, grain, harnesses, sleighs, &c. He thinks this morning that no horses were burnt.

We are pained to add that William Roulstone of Charlestown, has also died from injuries received at the fire. His age is 22 years, and he was a sail maker by trade. Another death is reported but not positively known to us.—Boston Daily Times, August 18.

Mob and Death at a Camp Meeting.—On Tuesday night of last week, the camp meeting of the colored people near Frankln in Baltimore county, was the scene of a furious riot, which resulted in death. The camp was held under the auspices of the Bethel church of this city, and was exclusively under the control of colored people. As we understand it, on the previous night, a man who was unruly and disorderly was arrested and kept in confinement, until he could be properly dealt with. This gave umbrage to a party of his friends, who mustered in strength on Tuesday night and proceeded to the camp, armed with various deadly weapons. At the hour of midnight they entered the camp and commenced an assault on all whom they met. In a short time the melee became general, and clubs and other weapons were used. One man, it is stated, named Rogers, was shot, and died in a short time; others were more or less severely injured. The party making the assault were all colored, and nearly, if not quite all, were from Baltimore.—Baltimore Sun.

Fire.—A Camden, N. J. on Monday morning a fire was discovered in a frame engine house adjoining a five-story building belonging to the Browning estate, and occupied by Mr Wentworth as a storehouse for machinery, &c., and the fourth floor by Mr Warren in the manufacture of silk goods. The whole was destroyed contents and all—loss $10,000, partly insured.

Great Storm on the Cape.—At Yarmouth, on Monday last, we learn from the Register, the storm of thunder and lightning was severe. Considerable damage was done to houses and vessels.

Fire.—The barn of Grant Goodrich, Esq. of this city, was set on fire by an incendiary on Sunday evening at 11 o'clock and burnt down.—Chicago Dem.

From the Whitney Expedition.—One of the party which went out with Mr Whitney; to survey the route of a railroad to the Pacific, writes to his friend at Rochester, under date of July 14th:—

We are ninety miles westward of Prairie du Chien, and from the Mississippi river. We are progressing slowly, and are all in good health and fine spirits. We shall be thirty or forty days more in crossing to the Missouri river. We have travelled only ten, thirteen, and seventeen miles a day since we left the Mississippi, on account of the heat—the thermometer standing at 93 degrees in the shade. In crossing the streams we sometimes had to unload the wagon two or three times a day, and lift it over by hand. Some of us have enjoyed the luxury of sleep over night in wet clothes, from standing in the mud and water, waist deep to lift out the wagon. This, however, we regard as only one of the varieties of our prairie life.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 3, 1845.

War and Rumor of War.—For the last few weeks the appearance favors war. Mexico 'threatens,' if nothing more, by issuing orders to be ready.

The United States 'prepares,' as a precautionary move, for national defence: So between both parties rumors of war, like the sound of distant thunder, agitate all America.

What part England is to play in the struggle, can easily be imagined—the Lion likes to have his jackalls provide sumptuous fare; 'England expects every man to do his duty.'

The 'Federals,' scions of the old tories are pouring on the cold water, to keep from fainting, and to weaken the government, and, of course, high minded men, brush up the plume, for the good of their country;—what next? Ah! that's the how!

Wait a little, gentle reader, the times are full of events, and big ones too; war is a calamity but such things must be,—and no Lattay Day Saint will ever throw cold water to disgrace his country or his country's glory. Cowards fear death; the brave none but the Lord.

Never satisfied.—It may truly be said that fashion and death are never satisfied. In all parts of the world men die; and what is as much astonishing as any thing else, is, that accidents, of every description enlarge the business so that a natural death rarely happens, except among the Latter Day Saints. The doctors, the machinery, the fire, the water, and now and then the savages of war, keep the sluiceways, by-paths and "cross lots" of death so crowded, that the natural way of "giving up the ghost, and being gathered to the fathers," is of Mormon faith altogether.

This being the last resort, and only true way of leaving the world, we think the saints may greatly profit by a few words of wisdom. Live simple; cleanse the flesh from impurities; shun the folly of the Gentiles; and obey the ordinances of the Lord, so shall thy days be prolonged upon the earth.

As to fashion, one half the poverty and vanity that now groans in rags or festers in silks, is budded and blossomed, and wormy by following fashions. Clothes, carriages, and furniture of every description, are thrown by, by the "upper ten thousand," and the "middle ten thousand" follow the fashion, and then the under ten thousand, carrying the other by day's works, try to do likewise;—and all to be in fashion.

Now all we have to say, is, cure the world of fashion and folly, and there will be less fires, less hail storms, less crimes; less war, and less mobs, and more natural deaths.

Iowa.—Mr. Dodge is elected by a about 800 majority. The people have voted down the constitution the second time. Well, the people are the government any how, in a back country, except where mobbers, lynchers, and Philadelphia rioters get a top, like the Irishman who lashed himself upon a saw log on the top of the hill, and got Pat to roll it off; and he seeing the Irishman squeezed pretty close, when under the log, exclaimed, lustily: "hang my honey, ye'er a top half of the time!"

Suicide.—On Monday morning last, Mary Robinson, wife of Edward Robinson, of the east part of this city, was found with a razor in her hand, and her throat cut deep. A coroner's jury turned a verdict, "that the deceased came to her death by her own hand, in a state of mental aberration."

Chant.—Last Sabbath the band, having ascended the steeple of the Temple, gave a chant as the congregation dispersed from the grove, and being so high the effect was as near heavenly as anything we can think of.—[Nauvoo Neighbor.

Your music is not the only thing that is most effective from a distance, Neighbor.—St. Louis Reveille.

Just so honest fellows: and one other "thing," we would mention. "most effective from a distance," is, truth, which, in the shape of persecution, and in the form of the gospel, has touched the hearts of honest men in Europe, as well as America; and in the Islands of the sea;—and having God and some good men, to manage it, the world will hear of its heavenly "music," as well as a few soldiers,

The Sabbath.—Twenty-five thousand passengers, says the New York Tribune of the 17th ult., went and came between the Battery and Staten Island on Sunday last.—[Tippencanoe Journal.

Will religionists say that they did right, or that they did wrong, in making this Sunday trip? The answer must and will be—it depends on circumstances! If they were going to hear orthodox preaching, it was right! If they were going to hear orthodox preaching exposed, it was wrong!—Circumstances, after all, go further, in what is practical, with religionists, than they are aware of.—[Regenerator.

Talk about right and wrong in breaking the Sabbath. Every body knows, and every day's experience shows, that our large cities are "Sepulchres full of dead men's bones," and, that on Sundays, the bugs, worms caterpillars, and butterflies, issue forth for fresh air.

The Cincinnati Chronicle says that the Mormons who are residing in this city, have had a revelation that a great portion of the city is soon to be burnt down. The prophecy has created a considerable stir amongst them, and they are all preparing to remove to the holy city.

The revelation was given by Isaiah about 2500 years ago. See Isaiah 66: 15 and 16.

City news.—We understand, says the St. Louis Gazette, that a change has been made in the editorial department of the Herald of Religious Liberty, and that hereafter it will be conducted by an association of gentlemen.

Gentlemen truly: what has become of the former Ass that did not "know his owner?" or, we beg pardon, perhaps the Herald had no connection with the "Religious Counterfeit Detector?" If so no insinuation.

Horrible state of Society.—Benton's bobtailed prophet of the Missouri Reporter, gives the following awful picture of two day's works in St. Louis. Impudent, saucy children jerked into court in lieu of whipping at home;—drunkards fined; but no fine, we believe for any other kind of crime;—what a horrible state of society! Hear him herald his own shame:—

Recorder's Court.—A number of school boys were arraigned for using offensive language, and an example made of one of them to the amount of one dollar.

One man was fined twenty dollars for selling liquor on Sunday, and he a man who considers our Sunday as his Monday.

Four other persons were sentenced to the Workhouse in default of paying their fines, for drunkenness, &c.

Recorder's Court.—There were five persons sent to the Workhouse for disturbing the peace, three to work out one dollar, and two to work out five dollars each, and cost.

Three others were fined for the same offence, to the aggregate value of seven dollars and costs, and paid up.

Two were fined one dollar each for obstructing the sidewalk, and a free colored customer three dollars for being out after ordinance hours.

"An Lord!"—The Lord recently spread out a sample of "passing events" in the St. Louis Gazette, in the following, 'mixed metaphor.'

Roudyism.—This term is fast becoming local in our language; and it would seem inevitably so, from the frequent necessity of using it.

Mix up your metaphors: "Red spirits, and white spirits, "Black spirits and gray."

"Mingle, mingle, mingle, "You that mingle may."

Rain and Heat.—On Monday night we had a light shower, and on Tuesday at 1 P. M. the Thermometer stood at 87° in the shade. High enough for September.

"O say busy Bee!"—A new daily paper has been started in Washington, D. C. called the "Bee." The first No. (before us) indicates some sweet, and of the gentleman engaged in it, can make any money from the national litter, they ought to be encouraged throughout the Union.

Judgment.—Let fools tell all they know and wise men profit by it. That is the way a wise Mormon copes with the folly of the sects.

Females.—Judge Lewis says:—"God bless the sex! Ever foremost in the work of charity; always ministering to the sick—lingering longest at the cross—speeding earliest to the sepulchre! They never erred but once, and that error had been committed at a later period of the world, after 4000 years of bright and lovely deeds, the Accusing Spirit had carried the offence to Heaven's Chancery in vain!"

Female Sattery! just as if God did not know the virtues of women. We say: God bless virtuous men and women from the hovel to the heavens, and curse sinful ones from the brothel to the bank.

MEXICO.

Our correspondents at New Orleans, says the Republican, in a letter written at the latest hour before the departure of the Cincinnati, says:

We have just read the following intelligence on the Bulletin board:

Warlike.—Major General Gaines has made a requisition upon the Governor of Louisiana, for one thousand men; to start immediately for Texas.

In addition to the above, we learn, verbally, that he has made requisitions upon five or ten of the adjoining States, of one thousand men from each State; making a force of ten thousand men, to start as soon as possible for Texas.

We have no later news from Mexico than was brought by the "Water Witch," which you received by the Missouri. The Caspian leaves on Monday, and you will receive by her further intelligence of the doings with us. Yours truly, X.

Gen. Taylor, it will be recollected, landed in Aransas Bay, on the 25th ult., having under his command the Third and Fourth Regiments of Infantry, and one company of Artillery. The Third Regiment numbered, all told, 567 strong; the Fourth was not so strong, and it is believed that the whole force did not at that time exceed one thousand men. St. Joseph's Island is not laid down in the map of Texas published by the War Department in 1844, but it is probably in Matagorda Bay. Col. Twigg, who commands the Second Regiment of Dragoons, had orders to proceed to Fort Alamo—so says the Union—and was at the last dates from Red river, making forced marches for his destination. Fort Alamo is at least one hundred and fifty miles from Matagorda Bay. Whether a junction can be formed by Col. Twigg and Gen. Taylor, before the anticipated attack of the Mexicans, is a matter of doubt. Reinforcements, it will be seen, were ordered from New Orleans, but they were not to leave for three or four days. Gen. Taylor's position is, if the intelligence be true, critical and further tidings will be looked for with anxiety.

The Tropic of the 18th, says:

"The steamship John McKim left here last evening for Galveston. We understand that the agent of the government at this port paid $1,000 to the owners of the McKim, to induce them to start her a day in advance of her usual time. It is supposed that she carries out important despatches."

[These are, no doubt, the despatches which were forwarded on the 8th, from Washington, by Lieut. Ringgold.]

The steamboat White Wing had been chartered by the Quarter Master at New Orleans, to take the place of the Undine, in Aransas Bay, the White Wing drawing much less water. She was to leave on the 16th.

From the New Orleans Bulletin of the 10th, we extract the following article, having at the present moment very general interest:

"There is a dispute respecting the western boundary line of Texas, which may be counted as a new element in our calculations while speculating on the consequences of annexation. According to the Mexican geography it seems that the Nueces is the eastern boundary of the Department of Tamaulipas, and separates it from the State of Texas. This geographical arrangement, of course, throws all the country between the Nueces and the Rio Grande in the State of Tamaulipas, and constitutes it an integral portion of Mexico. The Texans, on the contrary, contend, that the Rio Grande is the western boundary of the State, and have always claimed the whole territory to that limit. Here, then, is another difficulty which will tend greatly to complicate our relations with Mexico. She will be disposed to regard the march of the United States troops across the Nueces as an invasion of Tamaulipas, a State distinct from Texas, according to the Mexican division. This will be a new cause for war, over and above the provocation already given by taking possession of Texas. That our government is determined to maintain the boundary claimed by Texas to its fullest extent, is sufficiently demonstrated. Our troops are already on the other side of the Nueces, and the intention is announced of occupying a position on the eastern bank of the Rio Grande, under orders, no doubt, to that effect, from headquarters. On the line of that river, then, a collision must take place, if at all. After consenting to authorize a negotiation with Texas on the basis of her independence, as Mexico has done, she could have no plausible pretext, under the law of nations, to declare war against us on account of annexation.—But contemplating the Nueces as the eastern boundary of Tamaulipas, she will consider the presence of an American army west of that stream as an invasion of her territory. Under this view of things, the march of our troops may be regarded as an encroachment on the Mexican soil, and the movement certainly seems more likely than any other cause hitherto suggested, to lead to a declaration of war."

Strange death.—The late Baltimore Sun has the following: A colored woman recently died at the same house, and, from the symptoms developed, the physicians were unable to determine upon the cause of death. Upon a post mortem examination of her body, about one hundred nails were found in her intestines; together with a large two inch screw and some crooked twelve-penny nails, about four inches long; some pins, bent up, and two pieces of anthracite coal. The nails were generally four-penny, six-penny, and eight-penny, some of them broken. One of the resident students weighed them, and found the ninety nails, now at the almshouse, to weigh one pound. About twelve of the nails are in the possession of a physician of this city. What could have induced the poor creature to swallow iron and coal, and how she could swallow a rusty nail four inches long, are questions for speculative philosophy. The woman was an idiot.

Three Persons Killed.—A melancholy accident happened, says the Montreal Herald of the 2d instant, at St. Genevieve, on Sunday about six o'clock. Five respectable persons had met at a house in the village, when a hurricane accompanied by thunder and lightning, passed over that place. Two of the company proceeded to the garret for the purpose of shutting a window, when they were instantly struck dead. The electric fluid passed down stairs, killed another person, and severely injuring the remaining two individuals, one of whom was so much hurt that it was expected he would soon be numbered among the dead. The deceased, whose names are Joseph Lazon, J. B. Labonde, and J. R. Roux, were highly respectable young men, much esteemed, and have each left a wife and children to deplore their loss.

THE DARK CLOUD OF WAR!

The Washington Union of Tuesday contains a translation of the report and resolutions submitted by the Mexican Minister of Finance to the Chamber of Deputies, the object of which is to empower the Executive to contract a loan of fifteen millions of dollars. It comes in the Diario del Gobierno of July 2nd, received at the Department of State via Pensacola, and it must remove all doubt as to the intentions of Mexico. The Minister says:

On the 19th of April of the present year, I had the honor to present to the august Chamber of Deputies a report proposing various means which the government considered proper to be adopted, in order to obtain resources for making war on Texas. At that time some hope remained that the efforts of the government to avoid war, and its fatal consequences, might prove successful. That hope is now forever lost, and there are no other alternatives for Mexico than infamy and slavery on the one side, or war, with all its disasters and calamities, on the other. Mexico has been provoked to this war, and for a long series of years has borne this provocation; and her people would now be unworthy to preserve the country which their fathers conquered by their blood, if they should not arm and rise in mass to oppose an iniquitous aggression, in defence of their nationality, and to secure respect as an independent people. The time for talking and discussing the incontestable rights of Mexico in the Texas question, is now past; and the period has arrived when we must act with rapidity and decision, in order to sustain our national cause before the whole world, which is observing us, and which will fix its eyes upon us, to see whether we are worthy to be regarded as a nation, or only to be conquered as a horde of savages. The Government has been unable to resist the calls of duty, or the unanimous voice of the nation, and is decided by necessity to engage in war. The Minister of Foreign Relations has already submitted his proposition to declare war; and, without doubt, the national Congress will decree it, in obedience to the wishes of the Republic.

The Minister goes on to say that in order to prosecute the war with vigor, a loan, either national or foreign, of $15,000,000 will be necessary; and he intimates his belief that oppressive measures may be necessary to raise this large amount, which means that wealthy citizens of Mexico must be compelled to lend assistance. He concludes by submitting the following propositions:

First. The Government is authorized to contract a loan, either national or foreign, which may bring into the Treasury a disposable amount of fifteen millions of dollars.

Second. For the extinction of the debt created by this loan, and the payment of the interest, the Government will hypothecate all the revenues of the nation not already hypothecated for other payments.

Third. The Government will present to Congress an account of every loan which it may contract in virtue of this authorization, and a statement of the objects to which the amount of such loan is devoted.

• LUIS DE LA ROSA.

The War upon the Jesuits.—The Journal of Commerce, with characteristic bigotry and intolerance, came out the other day in a ferocious article denouncing the Jesuits and rejoicing in what it is disposed to regard as the prospects of a speedy dissolution of that world renowned order. Not long since the same paper made a most indecent and unchristian attack on the Protestant Episcopal church.

"Thus it is ever with sectarian bigotry—'Dealing damnation round the land.'—on all not included within the pale of its own Communion. Even Mitchell, the French writer, who affects to approach his subject with the candor and calmness of a philosopher, discovers in his recent work on the influence of the priesthood on the women of France, the same fierce and undignified intolerance. When the History of the Jesuits is fairly written, it will be clearly seen that an institution which, for three hundred years has maintained such strength and vigor, has had some more conservative and enduring elements of power and influence than mere priestly intrigue and cunning. Neither philosophic historian, nor the genuine christian, whose heart has been enlarged by the vivifying principle of love, can look without the deepest interest and sympathy upon the records of the Society of Jesus. The stern, heroic devotion and profound sagacity of Ignatius—the unparalleled self-sacrifices and unquenchable zeal of Xavier—the exemplary humility and enlightened philanthropy of Borgia—the cultivated taste and extensive erudition of Bellarmine—the patient, unwearied zeal and exemplary virtue of a long line of successors devoted to the service of the Almighty, certainly present a spectacle calculated to excite the admiration rather than the censure of the rational observer. Much of superstition, error, folly and hostility to the liberties, civil and religious, of mankind, are mixed up with Jesuitism, but viewed in whatever aspect, we can find no excuse, no palliation for the hissing and hootings of that fanatical bigotry of which the Rev David Hale stands amongst the men of this generation, a meet and fitting incarnation and organ."

THE MURDERS IN DELAWARE COUNTY.

Correspondence of the Albany Evening Journal, Sunday Evening, Aug. 10, 1845.

DEAR SIR: I arrived at this village last evening, and found a deep gloom hanging over it. This day the remains of Deputy Sheriff Steele were committed to the grave. The funeral service was performed by the Presbyterian and Episcopal clergymen of this place, assisted by Rev. Mr. Adams, of the Episcopal Church at Unadilla. There was a very large concourse of people, as much so that the largest church would not begin to hold them. The clergymen addressed a multitude from a piazza. The clergyman of this village impressed on the minds of his hearers eternal vigilance, until the murderers are brought to punishment, and the majesty of the law satisfied.

The citizens of the village held a meeting last evening, and organized a patrol to guard the village and public buildings. Many persons did not close their eyes last night for fear of incendiaries. There is a horrible state of things in this county. I found to-day that a posse went out last night to arrest six men living in Roxbury, the town adjoining Andes, where Steele was murdered, who were supposed to have been present at, if not implicated in, the murder. The posse has just returned, bringing in three men who are confined in jail. An express left here on Friday afternoon for Albany, to confer with and bear despatches to, the Governor. The inhabitants say that the laws are insufficient. The Grand Jurors will not find bills against the Anti-Remoters in this county. They further say, that if the Governor does not act promptly, and provide relief, they, the people of this county, will take the law into their own hands.

Steele had many warm and ardent friends, who are determined to avenge the taking of his life. I presume there are a thousand men waiting anxiously to be let into the disaffected towns, if the laws have no effect. Much is said here about certain prominent men of this village who are said to have thrown firebrands by encouraging the Anti-Remoters.

Men are pouring into the village from different towns to protect public buildings. The Anti Remoters say that the jail will never again hold any of them long. They will endeavor to destroy the State arms that are here by burning them. I am told that the Governor has intended to declare this County in a state of insurrection, and to proclaim martial law.

Yours in much haste, D.

The Delaware Outrage—Further Arrests.—The Albany Argus of yesterday makes the following statements on the authority of a gentleman who left Delhi on Sunday:

"At the time our informant left, more than forty persons had been brought in by the several posses, from different quarters—some of them arrested as witnesses, but the greater portion of them, (between 30 and 40,) proved to have been concerned as principals for subordinate abettors, in the outrages that resulted in Steele's death."

Our last account gave information of the arrest of 22 or 23 only. Of the rest, six were brought in by Timothy Corbin, Jr. on Saturday—four of whom admitted that they were present at Earl's, armed and disguised, when Steele was shot. Among the six, were the two Sanford's, father and son—at whose house Scudder staid the night before the sale. Mr. Lunn was another—at whose house Scudder stopped the day of the sale, and where he and others disguised themselves before going on to the ground.

Mr. Corbin also sent in on Saturday, David Scott of Bovina, who, it is in proof, furnished a wagon to transport arms and Indians to the ground.

Mr. Burhans brought in two persons suspected of being concerned in the outrage at Earl's.

Of the residue, our informant does not recollect the names; but he furnishes us with some of the facts that have been brought out in proof before the Coroner's Jury, that show the strong and conclusive nature of the testimony against some of those now in custody.

It is in proof, from the wife of Earl and a woman employed at his house, that Earl furnished the Indians with provisions on the morning of the sale—and among other things, mutton, potatoes, bread butter, in considerable quantities.

A Mr. Reesile, one of the prisoners, after some equivocation, finally confessed that he was on the ground at the time of Steele's death, in disguise and armed, and that he acted as a chief on the occasion, under Scudder the head chief or sachem.

It is also in proof that Squires, at whose house were found the pistol taken from Corbin in September, and the 10 Indian disguises, told Scudder on the day of the sale, "Now is your time to strike the fatal blow—now or never." One of the ten disguises found at Squire's house has been identified by young Northrop, (the son of the man who confessed to his having acted as chief on the day of sale), as the dress which he (Northrop) wore on that day. He states further that this dress was furnished him by Scudder, and was after the murder, returned by him to Scudder.

Nothing, we learn, can exceed the alacrity and spirit with which the farmers have come up to the work of sustaining the majesty of the law and bringing the offenders to justice. From the remote parts of the county—from Tompkins, Masonville, Sidney, Walton, Franklin, Meredith, Harpersfield, Day'sport, Hancock, as well as Delhi, the farmers have left their fields unharvested, and at great sacrifices to themselves have volunteered to do duty under the Sheriff—coming in armed and equipped ready for service. These towns are all that are either entirely or mainly free from the Anti-Remotement.

The infected district embraces nearly half the country—pervading the greater portion of territory lying between the two branches of the Delaware, and some on either side of them. The infected towns are Kortright, Stamford, Roxbury, Middletown, Bovina, Andes, Calchester, Hamden, and a part of Delhi. These towns cover what is known as the old Hardenburgh Patent. The district borders on Sullivan, Greene, Schoharie and Ulster, the western and northwestern part of the county only being free from Anti-Remotement.

Terrible Accident.—Gasometer Burst and several Persons badly Burned.—The Pittsburgh Gazette, of Wednesday August 13th, contains the particulars of a serious accident in Allegheny city. It says:—Last evening at about half past eight o'clock, a terrible accident happened at Allegheny. The New Protestant Methodist church, in that city is lighted with gas, manufactured on the premises. Something had gone wrong with the apparatus, and several members of the congregation, had assembled for the purpose of repairing it. While they were in the act of raising the gasometer out of the water, supposing it to be empty, but which was a mistake, the gas ignited from a candle, burst the gasometer with a loud report and set fire to the gas house.

The fire was quickly subdued by the Uncle Sam, which speedily arrived on the ground. But the melancholy part is the severely burning of several of the persons present.

A list of wounded given is as follows: Mr. Herron, sexton, very badly burnt, not expected to live; Mr. Brown, peddler, badly burnt, supposed to be dangerous; Wm. Karna, postmaster of Allegheny, badly, but not dangerously burnt; James Russell, carpenter, head badly cut, and supposed to be dangerously burnt; Mr. Isler, very badly burnt; Henry Williams, grocer, slightly burnt. The report of the explosion alarmed the whole neighborhood, and the light was very brilliant. The main body of the church was injured.

The Delaware Outrage.—Governor with several gentlemen from Delhi, in reference to the recent outrages in Delaware.

Adjutant Gen. Farrington, we understand, arrived in town yesterday, from Delhi, where he passed a few days on his way from his residence in Tioga county to the capital.

We learn that the Sheriff's posse were still scouring the county, in pursuit of persons suspected or known to have been present in disguise when Steele was murdered—and that almost daily accessions were made to the number of persons under arrest.—Argus.

Long Prayers.—In old times, and even now-a-days, in the backwoods, ministers make tedious long prayers. A friend has just related to us a bona fide anecdote, that occurred in a town in Maine, not many years since, in the meeting house on Sunday. The minister was one of the long-winded kind, and on opening his services Sunday morning, usually prayed about three quarters of an hour. One Sunday, after the minister had prayed his usual time, and the congregation had got pretty much tucked out, a venerable Quaker, who went by the title of "Uncle John"—his name being John Davis—and who was considered a little "out of his head," looking up earnestly to the minister, suddenly said, "Friend—thee's prayed about long enough—hadn't thee better say, for Christ's sake Amen?"

The congregation found relief in a general "titter," and Uncle John was pardoned, for he was an universal favorite. [Lovel Vox Populi.]

Wife-kill.—One John Moriarty had resided the last three years in Brooklyn, with a wife whom he married in Savannah, and by whom he had two children. On Friday, the 15th, another wife of his, with ten good sized children, arrived from Ireland. On Tuesday, the 12th, John robbed his junior wife of $24, and some household goods, and joined his senior family in New York, to remove with them to the west. The police stopped his flight and took him prisoner. Almost Spiritual wife-kill.

Movements of the British.—The Chicago Democrat states that the British have a steam war ship of the largest size, laid up at Penetanguishine, about two hundred miles from Mackinac, with a full crew in attendance, ready to sail her at any moment. They have had her in the harbor there until recently. They now have two full regiments of Highland Dragoons, and have enlarged and fortified more strongly the barracks at that place. Until lately, the British have been in the habit of paying our Indians annuities. But our government protested against it and broke it up. The Indians have heretofore lined on Drummond's Island, American territory. But now they are nearly all moved to Manitoulin Islands, the property of Great Britain, where they are fed, clothed, and provided with arms and ammunition by British officers. On the Manitoulin Islands there are now from three to four thousand Indian warriors. Upon these facts at this time, there can be but one opinion formed as to the ultimate designs of Great Britain.

POPPY PEBBLES.

6 1/2 o'clock P. M.
Rain and Hail.—A piercing shower mingled with hail, which lasted about thirty minutes, has just passed over this city. The only damage we can ascertain is, in glass upon the north and east sides of the houses: From appearances several hundred lights have been broken.

Well, we predicted hail, and it comes within the chance of charging it to an incendiary; and if the household of faith scarcely escapes the cold drops of the Lord, what shall the ungodly and the sinner do when he pours both cold and hot drops upon them without mercy to chasten and reward them for martyring the Prophet, and their evil deeds?

MARRIED.—At Cambria, Niagara Co. N. Y., on the 17th of August, by Elder George Fowler, Mr. Oliver B. Huntington, of Nauvoo, to Miss Mary M. Neal, of Cambria.

SEXTON'S WEEKLY REPORT

August 24, 1845.
Margaret Crandall (of La Harpe,) 51y 2m; unknown.
Hiel Bradford, 39y; fever.
Nancy Ann Harding, 1y 9m 5d; diarrhea.
Joseph Ralphs, 35y 6m; struck with lightning.
Clarissa McNeal (of Shickoquon) 18y 4m; chill fever.
Alden Burdick (of La Harpe,) 42y; fever.
Elvira Matson, 25y 7m; consumption.
John Crawford, 23y; bilious fever.
Triphens Redfield (of La Harpe,) 66y 10m; typhus fever.
Henry White, 60y; unknown.
Joseph Isaac Cook, 1y 4m; consumption.
Iowa L. Loomis, 1y 6m; diarrhea.
Isaac Morley Carter, 3y; canker.
George Black, 28y; bilious fever.
David Foot (of China creek, 76y 15d; chill fever.

August 31, 1845.
Freeman B. Stow, 10y; bilious fever.
Oliver M. Stow, 5m 20d; diarrhea.
Ellen Smith, 2y 3m; black canker.
James H. Stocking, 3y 3d; consumption.
Sarah Butterfield, 3m; putrid fever.
Samuel Walton, 4y; typhus fever.
Davis Obey, 10y 27d; fever.
Mary L. Bradley, 7y 4m 3d; diarrhea.
Charles W. Griggs, 25y; consumption.

W. D. HUNTINGTON.
DIED August 27th 1845, Sarah Gould, daughter of David H. & Fanny M. Redfield, aged 10 months, and 17 days, of the canker.

Sweet precious babe, alas! how dearly loved, Thrice blest yet too soon from us removed, To heavenly joys yet to thy Father's will, We will submit, resign thee, and be still.

FOR SALE in Hancock county, about 20 miles from Nauvoo, 12 miles from Warsaw, 7 from Lima; 157 acre of good land, about 81 acre under good cultivation; 23 under pasture, 12 log houses, one 18 by 24 with frame stable 12 by 24, 2 wells good water, stable, at outbuildings.

Also, 11 1/2 of good timber land, about 2 miles from above, with log house and about 20 acre under wood.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.
County of Hancock.
NOTICE is hereby given, to all persons having claims against the Estate of Elijah Perry, deceased, to present the same at the office of the Probate Justice of the Peace, for said county on the 22d day of October, A.D. 1845, for proof and adjustment thereof.
PHILO P. GOODWIN,
Adm'r of said Elijah Perry, dec'd.
August 15, 1845.—16—44.

NOTICE.
A LARGE quantity of BRICKLAYERS and CARPENTERS wanted IMMEDIATELY, on the NAUVOO HOUSE and the TEMPLE.
Do you see? Do you hear? If you do, pay ATTENTION!!
Recollect immediately!!
GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWS,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH.
Nauvoo, August 22, 1845.—16!!

CITY LOTS AND PRAIRIE LANDS.
THE NAUVOO HOUSE ASSOCIATION have several very eligible city lots—and several fine farms on the prairie, which they will sell very low, or exchange for grain, beef cattle, cows, horses or other property that can be used in building the Nauvoo House.
Please call at the office of the association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets, or on either of the Trustees.

GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWS,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH.
Nauvoo, August 21, 1845.—16!! SMITH.

FOR SALE.
BY the Trustees of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
One large new Two Horse Carriage.
Any person wishing to purchase, will please call at the Trustees office, in the Brick Store north of the Temple formerly occupied by P. P. Pratt, or at Pres. B. Young's, corner of Kimball and Granger streets.
August 6, 1845.

Old Connecticut Pottery.

WANDERL MOORE
MANUFACTURERS OF EARTHEN WARE, CITY OF JOSEPH, ILL.;
WAREHOUSE ON MULHOLLAND STREET, 7. UR BLOCKS EAST OF THE TEMPLE.
KEEP constantly on hand, and manufacture to order, every description of article in their line of business, namely:—
Lead Pots, Crucibles, Furnaces, Jugs, Pitchers, Churns, Pots, Piggins, Water Kegs, Wash Bowls, Milk Pans, Flower Pots, Tea Pots, Bed Pans, Coffee Pots, Beer Bottles, Ginger Pot Bottles, Chimney Tops, straight and bellied, Jars with covers, straight and bellied, Pots with covers, Bread Pots with covers, square and round dishes from 6 to 14 inches, Stone Tubes, Chambers, and other articles too numerous to mention. We are also prepared to manufacture Sugar Moulds and Drips of a superior quality.
We are employing experienced workmen from Norwalk, Connecticut; and can assure the public, that our wares will be found equal, if not superior, to any thing of the kind in the western country. We can accommodate the public with wares of thirteen different shades, such as jet-black, blue-black, red, green, yellow, cream color, mottled color, etc., etc.
Orders from St. Louis and other southern and eastern markets, packed in the best manner at a short notice. Cash or produce taken in exchange for wares.

G. W. WANDERL,
M. MOORE, Jr.
Nauvoo, July 30, 1845—13y

WANTED.
BY the Nauvoo House Association,
200 Tons of hay,
10,000 Bushels of oats,
25,000 Bushels of wheat,
25,000 Bushels of corn,
5,000 Bushels of potatoes,
1,000 Cords of wood,
2,000 Dollars in cash,
1,000 Barrels of pork,
100 Head of beef cattle,
100 Horses,
And every thing else that can be made use of in building the 'Nauvoo House.'
Apply at the office of the Association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets.
GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWS,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH,
July 22—12!!

HOI PLEASURE IN ADVANCE!
To those who wish to ride over the Rapids of the beautiful Mississippi I would say, I shall keep a good sail boat near Manhards Steam Mill for their accommodation and passengers to Keokuk. The waters puff along free as air—therefore we will land them at any convenient point on either side of the river after of waters, and I will endeavor to make engagements for a carriage, that those may take at the waters edge who desire it, after regaling if they choose upon beer, cake, &c. &c. Those who visit our city and wish to view the scenery on the islands, or lower; will be conveyed there also. All things will be done decently and in good order. Come and see!
A. YOUNG.
August 9th 1845—15—3w.

N. B. I particularly invite the Twelve, President, G. Miller, Father John Smith and his clerk, with their families, Mother Smith, and the widows of the Martyred Prophet and Patriarch—to come and sail free.

NEIGHBORS.
WE have on hand about 20 copies of the last-years Neighbor fit for binding, those wishing to purchase will have to apply soon.
Nauvoo August 13th 1845—15—1f

LOOK HERE.
FIFTEEN or twenty good mechanics wanted immediately in the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage manufacturing association.
GEORGE W. HARRIS, President,
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Clerk, pro tem.
Nauvoo August 11th 1845—15—1f

NOTARY PUBLIC.
THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.
W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845—49.
LIME: LIME:—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first rate Lime, at their Kilns near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Smith. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.
JOSHUA BOYCE,
JOHN W. LEE,
EDMOND NELSON.
May 7, 1845—No 1—6m

NOTICE.
FOR a lease or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo: A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, first rate orchard, situated 12 miles south of Pickneyville, Perry county Ill. For further particulars enquire of
LEVI STEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845—52—1f

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.
THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and in the best yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts, Nappies, Mugs, &c., which will be sold wholesale and retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufactory in England.
ELIJAH K. FULLER, President,
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM BOX,
RICHARD RALPHS,
JOSEPH RALPHS,
THOMAS RALPHS,
ALFRED CORDON,
JOHN BOURNE, Clerk.
June 4th 1845—6—6m

PHOTOGRAPHY.
GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Photography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, where classes can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.
May 2d, 1845—1f

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WARE HOUSE. general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo.
The subscribers, having opened the above establishment and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.
Call and try.
You buy.

Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.
STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7:49—6m

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.
Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association, on Water street, in the city of Nauvoo, opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's store, the following articles will be—Coaches, Omnibuses, Chaises, Carriages, Broughams, Buggies and Wagons, Hearse, Sportscars, Trailing Wagons, two and one horse Limber Wagons, Ox and Horse Carriages, Ploughs, Sleighs, Kneads, Pitch Forks, Rakes, Carding and Threshing Machines, Horse Powers, Railroad Cars, and many other articles too numerous to mention. Cars and many other articles too numerous to mention. sold as cheap as can be purchased in any eastern market. All orders must be post paid, and addressed to G. E. W. HARRIS, Esq., Pres't of the Association.

J. H. & W. H. RALSTON,
Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.
WILL attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.
W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.
Warsaw, May 12th, 1845.—3—1f

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.

WEBB & SMITH.
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.
Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
April 7:49—6m W. & S.

NOTICE.
A Botanic Association has been formed in the city of Nauvoo, for collecting herbs and roots and preparing the same for the good of the saints. Let every person secure health! And look out for the best pills. Office south east of the Temple on Warsaw and Ripley sts.
R. SHEPHERD, Ck.
July 16, 1845:12:3m

FOR SALE.
A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 20 feet by 30 two stories high. A good well of water on the premises. Terms low for Cash. Enquire of E. T. Benson on Mason street between Fulmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office.
DANIEL HUTLER.
July 14, 1845—11—1f

PIANO-FORTE MUSIC.
MRS. PLITCHFORTH respectfully informs the inhabitants of Nauvoo, that she has commenced teaching Music on the Piano-forte, and with a view to suit the circumstances of the saints, she offers to teach at the very low rate of three dollars per quarter: so that all classes who wish to learn may be accommodated.
As Mrs. P. has had the benefit of many years instruction from several of the most scientific English and German masters; and subsequently has had much experience in teaching, she flatters herself that she will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor her with their patronage.
Reference, kindly permitted, to Elders Brigham Young and John Taylor.
Enquire for Mrs. P. at Misses Gray's, millinery, Main street, or at her residence, corner of Granger and Parley streets, one block east of the S. vents Hall.
July 13—13f

THE CAP STONE.

BY W. W. PHELPS.

Have you heard the revelation,
Of this latter dispensation,
Which is unto every nation,
Of prepare to meet thy God?
We are a band of brethren,
And we're ready to build a temple,
And the capstone will be laid,
And we'll sound the new alarm.

Oh and publish how Missouri,
Like a whirlwind in its fury,
And without a judge or jury,
Drove the saints and spilt their blood,
Cruelty—We are a band of brethren, &c.

Illinois, where saintly fathers,
Shot the prophets too, as martyrs,
And repeat our city chapters,
To destroy our wives and mothers,
As a Judas did the Lord,
Cruelty—We are a band of brethren, &c.

Bennett, Law and many others,
Have betrayed our honest brothers,
To destroy our wives and mothers,
As a Judas did the Lord,
Cruelty—We are a band of brethren, &c.

And their chief is Sidney Rigdon,
Who's a traitor, base, dishonest,
And will fight at Shinner's side,
When the fire comes down from God,
Cruelty—We are a band of brethren, &c.

While the devil such men justify,
With his "keys of conquest" mottoes,
We'll uphold the Twelve apostles,
With authority from God,
Cruelty—We are a band of brethren, &c.

And we'll give the world a sample,
Of our faith and works most ample,
When we've finished off the temple,
As a dwelling for the Lord,
Cruelty—We are a band of brethren, &c.

And we'll feed the saints that are hungry,
And improve our hearts by weeping,
Till we make Nauvoo as Eden,
Where the saints can meet the Lord,
Cruelty—We are a band of brethren, &c.

For the Neighbor.
PANEYRIC TO W. W. PHELPS, ESQ.
BY ROBERT CAMPBELL.

Who is he that rises on his tower of fame,
Whose glory is brighter than editorial name?
With his happy glass of wisdom takes all in his ken,
Of the doings and sayings of all the great men.

He looks at the north, the east and the west,
And the south has to bow before his behest.
The rich and the poor, the high and the low,
Their work he unravels, their duties show.

The professed great men, with terms and lace,
Has to bow at the shrine of the glories of his face.
How'er richly attired their work may be dressed,
He shows that they're nothing but insects at best.

He beholds the false glare on their horizon line,
The splendor of courts, religious, judicial and fine.
His "Voice of truth" which once spoke to the light,
Tells "your works are all darkness." Behold all is night!

Malice, envy, and rage o'er their beings now brood,
To mar all the works the great God once call'd good.
His Neighbor speaks loud, and points out one way,
His words are the thunder, his light like sun-beams of day.

And thousands his messengers herald his mind;
But their ears are all deaf, and their eyes are all blind.
Ah! destruction and misery their doom must await,
And death, and damnation—great seals of their fate.

Kings, nobles, and conquerors, statesmen and all,
How'er high be their office, how'er great be their call.
All beings descendants of Adam's great race,
Must sink in confusion and terror and space.

"Peace, truth, love, and mercy," his motto they see,
O'er tyrants and despots crown him with victory.
So let his truth conquer what e'er them bestride;
In his mirror of knowledge, learn their fate to decide.

When they see as he sees, the future, and past too,
Rising suddenly in quick succession in view,
They'll find mankind heaping up war in the world,
The nations to break, from their mountain base hurled.

Prophets, Apostles, ancient and modern do show,
Lie-pledging, paper-hypocrites, his truth can't o'erthrow.
Yes fires, and mobs, showing already the way,
Go to strengthen my faith in this wonderful day.

What further he tells why do they not hear?
He "Nightmare" comes, and the day is near,
He says "repent now and awake from your sleep;
Or famine by hail-storm the fruits you will reap."

But, alas! their puny arms still reeling in blood,
Are uplifted high in defiance of God,
See them foaming with rage, with confusion, and fire,
As if to hurl God from his throne in their ire.

Denying his word his priesthood they scorn,
Saints, Patriarchs, Prophet, from the land they have torn.
Put a glittering sword hangs in vengeance to fall—
Hark! the loud shriek of death—to the mountains they call.

"Hide us from terrors, distraction, dismay;
Oh, Saviors can I find you, you tell us the way."
Oh, mercy, I claim at your hands do appear;
But his word is fulfilled, accurs, no mercy are there.

These be the signs, these scenes of woe attend,
The winding up scene, when all things shall end,
And thus earth is renewed, a rest for the saints,
No jarring scenes then, no oppressive complaints.

CITY LOTS FOR SALE.
LOTS, belonging to the NAUVOO WATER POWER CO.—The cheapest and best in the city, are offered for sale on as moderate terms as a purchaser can reasonably ask.

The lots are beautifully situated on the bank of the river, where the most business part of the city eventually will be. For terms apply to the subscriber, or to Mr. Edward Hunter Esq.

JOHN E. PAGE, President.
July 14:111f

SAMUEL MILES, Tailor.
WOULD inform the public that he carries on business at his shop, a few rods south of the Temple, near the New York Store, where he will do work at unusually low prices. Common summer coats cut and made for $1.00—

Pants and vests " 50
Coats cut for " 25
Pants and vests for " 1 1/2

and other work in proportion.

Ladies instructed in cutting and making clothes at their residences if required on reasonable terms.

N. B. Cutting done at all times in the most approved style.

June 11, 1845. 6:3m

In the Hancock Circuit Court Illinois May Term A. D. 1845.
State of Illinois,
Hancock County, ss.
Erasmus Snow, }
vs.
Charles Beck. }

NOTICE—Is hereby given to the said Charles Beck, that a writ of attachment has been issued out of the clerk's office of the Circuit Court of said county, at the suit of Erasmus Snow against the estate of the said Charles Beck, for the sum of two hundred and twenty five dollars, returnable to the May term A. D. 1845, of said court; that the same is pending before said court, and has been returned by the sheriff of said county, levied on the following described property, to wit the north west quarter of the south east quarter of section No. 17, in township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also the south east quarter of the north east quarter of section No. 19, township No. 7 north, range No. 7 west; also one third of an acre being the north east corner of lot No. 1, block No. 13, in Wells' addition to Nauvoo, being eleven rods on the east side; also served on John Lammoxan, Truman Barlow, Hiram Falk, & Ephraim S. Green as garnishers; that unless you the said Charles Beck, and the said garnishers aforesaid shall appear before the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court house in Carthage, on the third Monday in the month of May next, and plead, answer, or demur to the said plaintiff's action, in judgment will be rendered against you by default, and the premises so attached will be sold to satisfy the sum with cost.

Witness, D. E. HEAD, clerk of [L.S.] our said Circuit Court and the seal thereof at Carthage this 3d day of April, A. D. 1845.

D. E. HEAD, clerk.
A. W. BAIBITT for Plaintiff.
April 5—49—1f

TO OLD COUNTRYMEN.
HARNDEN & CO'S PASSENGER ARRANGMENTS.
PERSONS in America, wishing to send to Europe for their friends, can procure a passage by any of the Pacific ships to leave Liverpool on the 1, 6, 11, 16, 21, and 26th of every month, for New York, Boston, or New Orleans.

Also, those wishing to remit money to their friends in Europe, can purchase from our pound sterling upwards, all the particulars of which, can be ascertained by enquiring of

J. NATHAN C. WRIGHT, Agent,
Office on Water Street, Nauvoo, two doors above the old Trading office.
Nauvoo, May 1845—4:1f

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NAUVOO AND VICINITY.
SHOES! SHOES! SHOES!!!
The subscribers having recently opened a shop for the above business, would respectfully solicit of the inhabitants of Nauvoo and vicinity, a share of their patronage. They for the present, design to confine themselves exclusively to the Manufacturing of Ladies and Children's shoes, and having had long experience in said business, have no hesitation in recommending their work as being as good as the best. They have on hand the best assortment of Morocco and Kid leather, and a reasonable quantity of cash. Their stand may be found corner of Parley and Warsaw streets, about one half mile east of the Mansion.

Also, an assortment of Leather, Calf skins, Goat skins, Lining &c. &c., for sale, on reasonable terms.

MEAD & RAGER.
Nauvoo, June 15th, 1845—8:3m

THE NAUVOO LEATHER, HARNESS, SADDLE AND SHOE MANUFACTORY.
THE Association is now prepared to supply the citizens with Boots, Shoes, Saddles and Harness upon the short notice and the most reasonable prices. We invite a call from those who want to purchase such articles, because we will not be undersold by any shop in the city when the cash is presented. The fact is we cannot be undersold because we manufacture our own leather, and that of the best quality, and the workmen, both in the tannery and shoe shop, are the best in the western country, being principally from the Eastern and Southern States and from Great Britain.

We will pay the highest price for hides in leather, boots, shoes, harness, and cash occasionally.

Remember the counsel to keep your hides in Nauvoo, we will tan hides on shares.

General depot, three blocks east of the Temple, Mulholland street.

SAMUEL MULLINER, President.
ZENAS H. GURLEY, Superintendent of the Tannery.
July 1, 1845—9:1f

FARM FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.
FOR SALE, OR EXCHANGE.
The undersigned will dispose of his farm for cash, or for a farm in Hancock county, Illinois, said farm lays four miles east of the county seat of Branch county, Michigan, one mile north of the Chicago turnpike, and contains eighty acres, about fifty under improvement, the balance good timbered land, with a good sugar bush on it.

PHYLLANDER CORLESS.
April 14th, 50f

TWO farms one containing 180 acres, 70 acres improved, with a good frame house, and out houses; the other containing 120 acres, 50 acres improved, with a good block house, and out houses; Also, 30 acres of timber, all situated about 30 miles east from St. Louis, 12 miles from Belleville, and 2 miles from Fayetteville, in St. Clair county, Illinois.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 165 acres; 60 acres improved, with a good dwelling house and out houses, situated south west of Pinckneyville, Perry county, Illinois.

The owners of the above farms, will exchange stock for further particulars apply to Levi Stewart, or this office.

ALSO—About 600 acres in Missouri. Apply to the above.

ALSO:
ONE farm situated 4 miles east of Pinckneyville, the county seat of Perry county, Illinois, containing 120 acres improved, with a good block house and out houses.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 160 acres, 65 acres improved, with a frame house, and out houses, about thirteen miles from the county seat, Nashville, in Washington county, Illinois.

ALSO:
ONE farm containing 275 acres, 35 acres improved, 3.12 miles from the county seat, Marion, in Williamson county, Illinois, with a good house and out houses.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION IN MISSISSIPPI.
FOR sale or exchange, a plantation situated 50 miles from Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the county of Copiah, 7 miles south of Lines' store on the Jackson road, 9 miles from Gallatin, and 30 miles from Jackson, containing 1080 acres of land, with 90 acres of improvement, with a good dwelling house and out buildings; indisputable title given. For further particulars apply to George Black, or at this office.

ALSO:
A PLANTATION containing 400 acres, 80 acres improved, good dwelling house, good well at the door, with springs and branch near by—would also exchange horses, cattle, and hogs—situated 40 miles from Vicksburg, Hines county, Mississippi, and 4 miles from Lines' store. For further particulars apply at this office.

ALSO:
A FARM containing 140 acres of enclosed land, 50 acres under a high state of cultivation, and 90 acres of excellent timber, of first rate quality, a good comfortable farm house, and good out buildings, together with a good pump of water at the door, and 50 grafted fruit trees, located on the road leading from Washington to Richmond, 5 miles from each place, and three and a half from the National road.

Also—320 acres of wild land, located in Grant county, Indiana, on the Mississippi river.

EBENEZER CHEESMAN.
April 1, 1845—49f

ALSO:
A FARM containing 180 acres, with 50 acres under cultivation, well timbered and well watered, with an orchard of 50 bearing apple trees, together with many other fruit trees, such as cherries, peaches, pears, &c., situated in Perry township, Delaware county, Indiana, 15 from the head of White Water canal at Hagerstown, and 10 miles from Muncietown, near a little town called Burlington; there are two log cabins and a stable upon the premises; the quality of the land is equal to any in the country. The subscriber proposes to exchange for land in Hancock county, Illinois, or to sell at a reduced price, for cash or other good property; a perfect title can be given. Any or all persons wishing to bargain in the above, please call on Dr. Gustafson at La Millar of Nauvoo, or at my residence in Delaware county, Indiana.

WM. N. ROWE
April 15 50f

NOTICE.
A LARGE edition of the "Voice of the Warning" is now out and for sale at this office.

IOWA TWINS
THE NAUVOO AND MONTSE FERRY.
THE Subscriber having completed a good and substantial ferry boat for crossing the Mississippi river between Nauvoo and Montrose, will cross at all times with the least possible delay. He would therefore respectfully solicit the patronage of those who wish to cross at all times and with speed and safety. From the well known efficiency of the route for those crossing the Illinois river at Beardstown, Meredosia, Naples and going to the new purchases, Iowa will find it much to their advantage to cross at this point as it is well known as being the nearest route between above named points and the roads superior to those of any other route.

DANIEL DAVIS.
May 23d, 1844.

WAR EAGLE.
THE splendid, light draught, passenger steamer, War Eagle, D. S. Harris, master, will run weekly from St. Louis to Galena and Du Buque, the present season, leaving Nauvoo every Wednesday afternoon on her upward trip, and on her downward trip, she will leave Nauvoo every Saturday afternoon.

For freight or passage, having splendid accommodations, apply on board or to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo.
June 18: 1845—7f

FARMERS AND MECHANICS TAKE NOTICE!
THE Tailor's Association of Nauvoo, CITY OF JOSEPH, would take this method of informing the public that in order to alleviate our present necessities and supply our families with bread, we will work for wheat as follows: we will make

First rate coats, superfine cloth, for 8 bushels, second " " " " " 6 " " " " " 4 " " " " " 2 " " " " " 1 " " " " " 1/2 "

Our work shall be done in the most fashionable and workmanlike style on short notice and WARRANTED TO FIT.

Cutting done on the short-est notice.

The wheat to be delivered at our shops when the work is done. We have two shops, one located on Mulholland street, one door west of A. Davis' store, the other one on the corner of Main and Parley streets, two doors north of Oakley's store.

N. B. This advance in the price of wheat we will pay in tailoring, until we have supplied our families with a sufficiency of bread for the season.

By order of the Association,
JOHN W. BELL, Pres.
July 30—13:1f

NOTICE.
IS hereby given, that the undersigned will apply to the County Commission of Carthage at the next session, to be held on the 1st of August, for a license to keep a ferry across the Mississippi river, between Nauvoo and Montrose, Iowa territory.

DANIEL CARN.
Nauvoo, July 16:11f

NEW STORE AND LAND AGENCY.
THE subscribers have opened a store, on the premises of S. A. Knowlton, (Knowlton settlement, Hancock county,) where they have on hand a complete assortment of Dry Goods, Hosiery and Shoes, Hardware and Groceries, adapted to the wants of a farming community, which they offer for sale at very low prices for cash or produce.

Also about 100 q. sections of land, situated in this county which will be sold to those wishing to settle on favorable terms.

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.
References.—B. Young, H. C. Kimball and Orono Hyde.
March 21—47f

TINNERS ASSOCIATION.
THE undersigned having associated themselves together for the purpose of carrying on the tin-plate and sheet-iron business in all its various branches, have taken the shop formerly occupied by Dustin Amy, corner of Young and Mulholland streets, where they are prepared to manufacture tin and sheet-iron ware at wholesale or retail, as low as can be bought in St. Louis or elsewhere.

N. B. For the accommodation of persons living on the flat, we have deposited a quantity of tinware at Messrs Oakley's store, where those in want can be accommodated at all times.

PHILIP B. LEWIS,
DUSTIN AMY,
JOHN MILLS.
Nauvoo, June 25, 1845:11f

NOTICE—THE subscribers from the east, would respectfully inform the citizens of Nauvoo, that they have taken a Shop on Main street, a few doors above the Nauvoo Mansion, where they are prepared to do all kinds of work in the millinery line.

A. & E. GRAY.
N. B.—A. & E. G. have furnished themselves with a patent press machine by which they are enabled to press their straw bonnets in a manner that will give perfect satisfaction.

June 10th 1844.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.
A FARM of 150 acres, situated two miles west of the flourishing town of Kalamazoo, Michigan, on the margin of the grand prairie, one of the most healthy portions of the state. Ninety acres of excellent wheat land, well watered, Black Walnut, White Oak, &c., the balance prairie of the best quality. There is a good framed barn, 30 by 45 feet, a large framed house, well finished and painted outside, with a young orchard of fruit trees on the premises. The whole farm is well fenced and excellently watered, for stock and a well with a pump in both barn and kitchen.

The subscriber will sell the above farm on reasonable terms, or exchange it in part for a good stock farm, of prairie and timber in Hancock county; an indisputable title given. For further particulars enquire at this office, or of the subscriber on the premises.

SETH TAFT.
March 18—46f

EARTHENWARE! EARTHENWARE!!!
J. GROCOTT would inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he has commenced an Earthenware Manufactory, where he is now manufacturing Plates, Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cups and Saucers, Milk-pans, and a great variety of other articles too numerous to mention, which will be ready for inspection and sale early in the spring, at his Manufactory in Rich Street, one block north of Parley Street.

Feb. 7, 1844. no41—1f

MEDICATED LOZENGES.
THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended, ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city, in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.
The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, flatulence and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

A guarantee in all cases guaranteed for the money refunded.

SHERMAN'S PAIN EXPELLER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents), brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale at this office.

NOTICE.
PERSONS wishing to get the Times and Seasons, or other books bound, can be accommodated at the Printing Office, on reasonable terms.

There can be obtained at this office, the first, second, third and fourth volumes of the Times and Seasons, also most of the odd numbers, if subscribers should need any, to make their volumes complete.

NOTICE—THE subscriber takes this opportunity of informing the public generally, that he still carries on the business of

BOOK BINDING.
In all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, he is prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to his satisfaction as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of his

Quantities	half bound	plain	150
do do do	do	do	2,00
do do do	do	do	2,00
do do do	do	do	2,50
Octavo full bound	do	do	1,00
do do do	do	do	1,50
do do do	do	do	0,75
do do do	do	do	1,00
do do do	do	do	1,37
Twelves full bound	do	do	62
do do do	do	do	87
do do do	do	do	50
do do do	do	do	75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

JOHN TAYLOR.
Nauvoo, Jan. 1, 1844.

NOTICE TO EMIGRANTS.
BRETHREN wishing to purchase Land, House or city lots, will do well to call on me, at Mrs. Emma Smith's or the Mansion.

WILLIAM SMITH.

ALSO—I have some landed property with houses and out offices on, in the interior of this county, which I will sell or exchange for property in this city.

May 6th, 1845—17

LAW NOTICE.
BABBITT & EDMONDS,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.
WOULD most respectfully inform the public, that they have associated themselves together in the practice of the profession, and will attend to any business intrusted to them in the state of Illinois, or in the Territory of Iowa. Mr. Babbitt will be found as usual at his office in the city of Nauvoo, Mr. Edmonds will be found at his office in the town of Keosauk, in Lee county, Iowa Territory.

July 14:11f

COOK & PETERSON,
DEALERS in Hides, Leather and Findings; No. 71, Main Street St. Louis.
July 9—10 6m

MERMAID!
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAUVOO, AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.
THE Light draught steamer, MERMAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St. Louis every Friday and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning;—on her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo every Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the wharf, lower river. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation, may be expected from the boat and officers, as "plausibility was more gold, than tricks and ferocity." For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent for Nauvoo.
March 22, 1845—1f

OSPREY!
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.
THE new light draught, swift passenger steamer OSPREY, Anderson Master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Nauvoo, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Ottumwa, Burlington, and Fort Madison, Monday Tuesday will leave Nauvoo at 8 1/2 o'clock a. m. precisely, and arrive in St. Louis Wednesday 9 a. m.

The accommodations and safety of the Osprey are unsurpassed by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trade, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no exertion will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render a pleasant trip to all who patronize her. She is supplied with Evans' Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.

For information apply to

C. ALLEN, Nauvoo
Jan. 1, 1845—35f

NO WAR BUT A STRONG OPPOSITION TO FOREIGN MANUFACTURES.
THE undersigned would beg leave to inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general, that they have removed the Old Connecticut pottery from Iowa to the City of Joseph, one block east of the Temple, where they have on hand a large assortment of red and mottled colored ware of the best quality, viz: churns, milk pails, crocks, jars of all kinds with covers, pie dishes, pudding pots, cups, bowls, pitchers, stove tubes, chimney tops and furnaces, with a multitude of other articles too numerous to mention; all of which will be sold at wholesale or retail for all kinds of country produce, dry goods and groceries—cash not refused. All bills and orders will be filled on the shortest notice.

MOSES MARTIN,
E. K. FULLER.
June 5, 1845. 6:3m

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.
WE the undersigned would advertise to the citizens of Nauvoo and the public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be understood as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons who may be disposed to favor us with a call, and as our company is comprised of mechanics from different nations of the world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as our local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of adopting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Carriages, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies, Jaggy Wagons, Hearse, Sportsmens Trotting Wagons, two and one horse Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Carts, Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows also, Ploughs, Scythes, snaths, Rakes, &c. &c., which we shall sell at wholesale or retail at our factory on Water street opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store now occupied by David Earsley, and we solicit the patronage of the citizens as we intend to bear no grumbling from our customers on account of high prices, for we intend to make it an object for them to pay down for all work done in our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, or any kind of Country produce. Also Timber of all descriptions, which we will pay the highest Market price for in our line of delivery at our Factory.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Pres.
RICH'D VALENTINE, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
ELIAH FORDHAM,
H. THOMAS,
JOSHUA SMITH,
DAVID W. FOX,
DWIGHT WEBSTER.
Jan. 15th, 1845—37—1f

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 19.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, Sept. 10, 1845.

Whole Number 175

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Street, Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, first insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly subscribers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor.) POST PAID, to receive attention.

GREAT COUNCIL OF THE SENECAS.

We find in the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser a report of the proceedings of a Council of the Seneca Nation, held at Cattaraugus Creek Reservation on the 15th and 16th of July. It was called by the Committee of the Society of Friends, who for years past have been robustly assisting these people. The Council was attended by a considerable number of the chiefs and people, both men and women, from Buffalo and Cattaraugus; and by a delegation from the Alleghany Reservation. It was opened on Tuesday the 15th of July, and Daniel Two Guns appointed Chairman. There were no Tomwandas present. After some preliminary remarks by several of the Chiefs, and also by the Committee, among whom were several women Friends, a number of the Committee addressed the Council at length, explaining the motives of the Friends in calling them together. From this address we present a brief extract which will sufficiently indicate its spirit and purpose:

"A wise system of municipal Government, adapted to your necessities has been provided for you, and you have now only to avail yourselves of these important advantages and judiciously exercise the powers that have been conferred upon you—be sober and industrious, change your system as regards the employment of your females, and elevate them by a suitable education and treatment to the position they ought to occupy, and your prosperity will then be placed upon a firm and permanent basis.

"One of the principal objects of our present visit, is to endeavor to impress upon you the importance of these measures, and above all, the absolute necessity of your adopting a different course from what you have heretofore pursued, in regard to the division of labor among you, and we tell you plainly, that it is our settled opinion, unless you consent to this, all our labors to benefit you will in the end fail.

"We hope you will listen to the advice we have given you—that your men will settle themselves permanently at the homes which cannot be taken from them, and that they will diligently apply themselves to the cultivation and improvement of their farms—that you will withdraw your females from the labors of the field and other employments not adapted to the delicacy of their sex; that you will give them suitable education, leave them to be occupied in the care and business of their household affairs, and place them in a condition to become your prudent advisers and useful companions. You will then find them wise counsellors and true friends.

"As we have heretofore told you, our object in uniting our efforts was, to secure for you a home that could not, without your consent be taken from you. That has been done, as effectually, under all circumstances, as could be expected; this being accomplished, and our original purpose effected, we might now be justified in withdrawing, and leave you to walk alone; but upon considering your situation, it has appeared to us that you still stand in need of some help, not as regards the cultivation of your land, because this you already understand and can readily do, if you are disposed to be industrious, but there is one way in which we believe you require assistance, and in which we can yet do you some good, and that is, by aiding you in the education of your children, and the instruction of your females in the employments in which we believe they should hereafter be engaged. If you approve of these measures and it be your wish we should in this manner assist you, we are disposed to continue our efforts to do so, by continuing the school amongst you, where as many of your children as you may be inclined to send, may be taught to read and write, and also be instructed in such higher branches of learning as circumstances may admit of.

"In addition to this, we propose to secure into the family of the friend we may place to reside among you, as many of your young women as can be accommodated, and there instruct them in all the branches of female employments, which will be necessary to enable them to become good housekeepers, and suitable companions of intelligent, industrious husbands, and qualify them to train up their children in habits and principles which will render them respectable, good citizens."

After a short pause, Young Chief, a distinguished Sachem of the Cattaraugus Reservation, rose and expressed thanks to the Great Spirit that so many of the Committee of Friends had been permitted again to meet in Council. Upon his taking his seat, William Patterson, a Chief, delegated by the Alleghany Chiefs, to attend the Council, rose and said:

"Brothers!—When the members of the Council of the present Council reached Alleghany, we (meaning, we presume, himself and the other Alleghany Chiefs in attendance) were delegated to attend it. Having heard the communication made yesterday, by our friends, we think we understand it and also the object of your visit.

"On listening to the remarks made by the Committee of Friends, we find nothing in them but what we approve, nor any advice which, if adopted, would not redound to the great happiness of the Indians. When we look round on the situation of our white neighbors, we desire to enjoy the blessings which they do so amply possess; but we have not yet been able to obtain them. We feel thankful to our friends for the counsel they have given us, and we believe if our people will take the advice of the Committee, they will find it to their good. We earnestly desire that our friends may continue their care over us, and that they may not be discouraged, if they do not find us improve as fast as they desire."

"The Friends of Philadelphia will testify that the Indians at Alleghany have made some progress in improvement. It was once thought it was a vain against the Great Spirit to send children to school. It is not so now. Many who formerly entertained that opinion, now send their children to school. We have at this time on the Alleghany reservation five schools. The Friends have often told us that they believed it was the will of the Great Spirit that they should assist the Indians. If that be their opinion, they need never be discouraged."

From the addresses, delivered in behalf of the Seneca Nation, after full and deliberate consideration, we presume it may be inferred that it is their determination hereafter to follow the excellent advice given to them by their old and tried friends, the Quakers.

After the business for which the Council was called was concluded, a consultation in the Indian language was held among the Chiefs. After some time spent in discussion, a Chief rose and addressed the assembly in a short speech, which being interpreted, was nearly as follows:

"Brothers!—In the course of human events it sometimes happens that nations distinctly situated become bound together by the ties of friendship. This is the second session of the present Council between the Seneca Nation and the Society of Friends. To our nation the subjects of deliberation have been very important. Among them there is one of much interest to us, which it is my duty to open to this Council. In order to express the high regard we entertain for the friendship so long existing between the Friends and the Seneca Indians, we have solemnly concluded to adopt into our nation one of their numbers, and for that purpose have selected our venerable friend, Philip E. Thomas. According to the ancient custom of our tribes, we, by this act, express our grateful sense of our obligation to friends, and make fast the chain which has so long bound us together."

"The Chief then rising from his seat, and approaching P. E. Thomas, who was sitting at the Council table, took him by the arm and raised him on his feet. After three times laying his hand on his shoulder, he made an oration in the Indian language, which being afterward explained, was to the following purpose:

"By this ceremony we do, at this time, adopt into the Seneca Nation, this our friend Philip E. Thomas; by which he becomes a member of the tribe, and a brother of the Seneca clan—and is entitled to all the rights and immunities of the nation. We now give him the name of Sagouan," by which we express our sense of his character, and under which he will hereafter be recognized among us—and we have appointed George Deer to be his cousin."

This ceremony of initiation being performed and the Chief who officiated having returned to his place, Mr. Thomas addressed the Council as follows:

"My Friends and Brothers: I receive with great sensibility the evidence you have just afforded me of your regard and confidence. It is true I have always been disposed to render you every service in my power. Having now by your kindness become one of your nation, I feel myself more closely identified with you, and shall take a lively interest in your affairs, and at all times will be ready to co-operate in whatever measures may be calculated to promote the prosperity and happiness of the Senecas."

Upon the conclusion of this ceremony, the Council fire was covered up, and the Council adjourned.

"Sagouan, it is said, means the Seneca gentle giver, and perhaps may be best expressed in English by the word beautiful. The individual on whom it has been conferred, is Philip E. Thomas of this city—a man long since honored at home, as first president of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., and who is ever deserving this not often made mark of distinction. His labors and expenditures in behalf of the deeply wronged Indian, have indeed been 'benevolent' and 'beautiful.' Ed. Balt. Sat. Vis.

CAPT. FREMONT ON THE HIGHEST PEAK OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

The following extract from Capt. Fremont's Journey to the Rocky Mountains, is most spiritedly written. Having determined to ascend the highest peak of the Rocky Mountains, Captain F., with a few of his men, proceeded with their mules as far as these naturally climbing animals could keep their footing. They then abandoned them in a cool green valley, closed on all sides by walls of rocks, and proceeded on foot, and with hands to scale these walls; at how much cost of effort and exposure this extract we annex will tell:

Having divested ourselves of every unnecessary encumbrance, we commenced the ascent. This time, like experienced travellers, we did not press ourselves, but climbed leisurely, sitting down as soon as we found breath beginning to fail. At intervals we reached places where a number of springs gushed from the rocks, and about 1,800 feet above the lake, came to the snow line. From this point our progress was uninterrupted climbing. Hitherto I had worn a pair of thick moccasins, with soles of parched hide, but here I put on a thin light pair, which I had bought for the purpose, as now the use of our toes became necessary to a further advance. I availed myself of a sort of comb of the mountain, which stood against the wall like a buttress, and which the wind and the solar radiation, joined to the steepness of the smooth rock, kept almost entirely free from snow. Up this I made my way rapidly. Our cautious method of advancing in the outset had spared my strength; and, with the exception of a slight disposition to headache, I felt no remains of yesterday's illness. In a few minutes we reached a point where the buttress was overhanging, and there was no other way of surmounting the difficulty than by passing around one side of it, which was the face of a vertical precipice of several hundred feet.

Putting hands and feet in the crevices between the blocks, I succeeded in getting over it, and when I reached the top, found my companions in a small valley below. Descending to them, we continued climbing, and in a short time reached the crest. I sprang upon the summit, and another step would have precipitated me into an immense snow field five hundred feet below. To the edge of this field was a sheer icy precipice; and then with a gradual fall, the field sloped off for about a mile, until it struck the foot of another lower ridge. I stood on a narrow crest about three feet in width, with an inclination of about 20 deg. east. As soon as I had gratified the first feelings of curiosity, I descended, and each man ascended in his turn; for I would allow only one at a time to mount the unstable and precarious slab, which it seemed as if a breath would hurl into the abyss below. We mounted the barometer in the snow of the summit, and, fixing a ramrod in a crevice, unfurled the national flag to wave in the breeze where never flag waved before. During our morning's ascent, we had met no sign of animal life, except the small sparrow-like bird already mentioned. A stillness the most profound, and a terrible solitude forced themselves constantly on the mind as the features of the place.

Here, on the summit, where the stillness was absolute, unbroken by any sound, and the solitude complete, we thought ourselves beyond the region of animated life; but while we were sitting on the rock, a solitary bee (bromus, the humble bee) came winging its flight from the eastern valley, and lit on the knee of one of the men. It was a strange place, the icy rock, and the highest peak of the Rocky Mountains, for a lover of warm sunshine and flowers; and we pleased ourselves with the idea that he was the first of his species to cross the mountain barrier—a solitary pioneer to foretell the advance of civilization. I believe that a moment's thought would have made us let him continue his way unharmed; but we carried out the law of this country, where all animated nature seems at war; and seizing him immediately, put him in at east a fit place—in the leaves of a large book, among the flowers we had collected on our way. The barometer stood at 19,293, the attached thermometer at 44°, giving for the elevation of this summit 13,570 feet above the Gulf of Mexico, which may be called the highest flight of the bee. It is certainly the highest known flight of that insect.

From the description given by Mackenzie of the mountains where he crossed them, with that of a French officer still further to the north, and Col. Long's measurements to the south, joined to the opinion of the oldest traders of the country, it is presumed that this is the highest peak of the Rocky Mountains. The day was sunny and bright, but a slight shining mist hung over the lower plains; which interfered with our view of the surrounding country. On one side we overlooked innumerable lakes and streams, the spring of the Colorado of the Gulf of California; and on the other was the Wind river valley, where were the heads of the Yellowstone branch of the Missouri; far to the north, we could just discover the snowy heads of the Trois Tetons, where the sources of the Missouri and Columbia rivers, and at the southern extremity of the ridge, the peaks were plainly visible, among which were some of the springs of the Nebraska or Platte river. Around us, the whole scene, had one main striking feature, which was that of terrible convulsion. Parallel to its length, the ridge was split into chasms and fissures, between which rose the thin lofty walls, terminated with slender minarets and columns, which is correctly represented in the view from the camp on Island Lake. According to the barometer, the little crest of the wall on which we stood was three thousand five hundred and eighty feet above that place, and two thousand seven hundred and eighty above the little lakes at the bottom, immediately at our feet.

Our camp at the Two Hills (an astronomical station) bore south 3° east, which, with a bearing afterwards obtained from a fixed position, enabled us to locate the peak. The bearing of the Trois Tetons was north 50° west, and the direction of the central ridge of the Wind river mountains south 30° east. The summit rock was gneiss, succeeded by scientific gneiss. Sienite and felspar succeeded in our descent to the snow line, where we found a felspathic granite. I had remarked that the noise produced by the explosion of our pistols, had the usual degree of loudness, but was not in the least prolonged, expiring almost instantaneously. Now made what observations our men made. We had accompanied a object of laudable ambition, and beyond the strict order of our instructions. We had climbed the loftiest peak of the Rocky Mountains, and looked down upon the snow a thousand feet below, and, standing where never human foot had stood before, felt the exultation of first explorers. It was about two o'clock when we left the summit, and when we reached the bottom, the sun had already sunk behind this wall, and the day was drawing to a close. It would have been pleasant to have lingered here and on the summit longer; but we hurried away as rapidly as the ground would permit, for it was an object to regain our party as soon as possible, not knowing what accident the next hour might bring forth.

A DESCRIPTION OF CALIFORNIA.

The soil is extremely varied, not only in the two sections, but also in the different portions of each section; the hills and valleys and plains extremely fertile. The valleys are variously rich and productive, so much so in fact, that I think I venture nothing when I say, that I think it is not surpassed, but that it is not even equalled. The deep, rich alluvial soil of the Nile in Egypt, does not afford a parallel. Remarks like these I am aware, are apt to be considered as mere gratuitous assumptions; but to ascertain how far they are sustained by fact, the reader is referred to the sequel, especially that part of it, which treats of productions, which is believed will not only convince him of their truth, but may, perhaps induce him to indulge in assumptions and speculations even more enlarged. The soil of the various valleys of the western section, varies from a rich alluvial to a deep black vegetable loam, upon a strata of sand, gravel, clay or trap rock. That of the plains, is principally a deep, brown, vegetable loam, or decomposed basalt, with a substratum of stiff clay, or gravel and sand. And that of the hills is chiefly brown, sandy loam, or loose, gravelly soil. The mountains, and most of the more elevated hills are generally entirely barren, and consist principally of primitive rocks, such as talcon slate, and other argillaceous stone, with horizontal and granite. The less elevated hills consist chiefly of basalt, slate and marble. Gypsum and a kind of white clay are also found in many places; the latter of which is very abundant and which is used extensively by the inhabitants, for the purpose of white washing their dwelling houses both externally and internally. It is also used for the purpose of cleansing, and is also used as a substitute for soap, and for this purpose it is found to be admirably adapted. It may be estimated that about two-thirds of all the Western section, are cultivable lands, and three-fourths of it, including the arable lands are pasturable lands, to each of which purposes the whole section, to the extent and in the proportion stated, is peculiarly suited. The remaining part of this section which is the extremely mountainous portion, is not fitted for its extraordinary barrenness and sterility. The soil of the valley's of the Eastern section, is in all respects similar to that of the valley's of the Western section; that of the plains is a deep brown loam, with a subsoil of sand or clay, and that of the hills is usually a light, brown, vegetable earth, having a substratum of gravel, sand or clay. The mountains and hills, like those of the Western section, are for the most part entirely sterile, yet as before remarked, there are portions of the hills and mountains even, that are tolerably productive. There is a much greater variety of soil in this than in the Western section; in one day's ride, you may pass over every variety of soil, from the most fertile to the most barren and unproductive. The mountains are generally composed of Talcon slate, granite, hornblend and other primitive rock, and the hills are principally composed of marble, limestone, basalt and slate. The white clay before spoken of is also found in this section, in great abundance. The proportion of barren land, is greater in this, than in the Western section, as nearly as I could ascertain, about one-third of the section is susceptible of cultivation; while about two-thirds including the arable lands, are well suited to the grazing purposes; and the remaining third for extraordinary unfruitfulness, and entire destitution of all fertility can be surpassed, only by some portions of Oregon, which are seldom if ever surpassed in worthlessness.

Preparations of War—Movements of Troops, &c.—The Baltimore Sun of the 17th inst. says: The Government is evidently making the most vigorous preparations for any contingency that may arise out of our difficulties with Mexico. Major Ringgold's company of Flying Artillery, will sail this evening, or to-morrow, for Texas, in the ship Herman, which is now loading on the Point, in addition to which we find the following evidence of further movements in our behalf:

The New York Tribune of the 14th inst., says that orders have been received at that port for the Navy Agent to lay in large quantities of stores for a southern climate, and that vessels of a light draught are in request for the transportation of troops.

The ship Kalamazoo sailed from New York on the 15th inst., for Texas, with United States Government troops on board.

A letter to the editor of the Norfolk Herald, dated at Pensacola, on the 28th ult., says: The United States ship Palmetto sailed on the 25th ult. The Potomac, Saratoga, and United States brig Lawrence are now under weigh for the coast of Texas and Mexico. The Somers remains until further orders."

The Philadelphia Ledger of the 15th inst., says:

"It was rumored yesterday that the authority of the United States contemplated, in case of a war with Mexico, to make drafts upon the volunteers of our city and country to man the forts on the Delaware, in place of the regulars, who are to be drawn off to Mexico. The Pen Patch will, it is said, be put in repair, and the different companies be drawn in succession to perform regular tours of duty at that place and Fort Mifflin."

The Norfolk Beacon of the 16th inst., says:

"We understand that orders came to hand here yesterday to fit out the United States frigate Congress, immediately. Also, that orders have been given to ship seamen and ordinary seamen specially for her."

A Wedding in the Wilderness.—An Oregon emigrant writes the Kalida Venture, from the company's camp on "Fish creek," away West somewhere, that on the 20th ult. the dulceness of their tramp was enlivened with a marriage ceremony. The writer says: "Now you need not stare, yes, a wedding here beyond where dwellings, laws, or licenses are to be found, or any of the various 'fixens,' which such an occasion generally calls forth in your country. The lucky couple are Mr. Meek, our pilot, and a Miss Shoonover, an emigrant. They had three or four days' acquaintance, during which they concluded upon getting up this novelty. The ceremony was done up by a preacher who is in company. When the hour arrived, the trumpet was sounded and we all left our vocations, and gathered around our loving ones, in front of the camp fire. We were a strong looking assembly—standing around with hats on long beards, dirty shirts, here and there rent breeches, deer-skin moccasins, belts, pouches, &c., to witness for the first time the knot tied in the wilderness. Well, soon the ceremony was over, and each one went about his own business.

Anti-Rentism in Steuben.—The Canandaigua Repository of Wednesday says, that a "process" for the recovery of rent against a tenant of the Pultney Estate, in the town of Prattsburgh, was resisted successfully by men in disguise. It is singular how men in different counties are coming to the same conclusion in regard to this eternal tribute for the use of the soil. Our politicians must, before long, lay aside their squabbles about office, and the Tariff, and Texas, and investigate this kind business. If every man has a natural right to land enough to live upon, our men in office are guilty of a shameful neglect in not taking steps to protect that right. It is their legitimate business.

Niagara Falls, August 1.—The Bodies in the Whirlpool.—The Whirlpool, near Niagara Falls, has of late become a receptacle of dead bodies. In addition to the human bodies noticed on the 29th ult., (which still remain in the grasp of its "agitated waters,") are added three bodies of two horses and a hog. These may be seen from the bank above, passing around a "funeral circuit" of a mile or more in circumference—each succeeding circuit drawing them nearer the vortex of the Whirlpool, until each in their turn, become submerged beneath the boiling element—again thrown with violence from its angry embrace, to repeat its former evolutions. The sight of human bodies in the whirlpool is solemn and terrific—the blue waters seem to hold their prey in defiance of human effort to dispossess with the dead, it emits them through its narrow outlet into the rapids below to be entombed in Lake Ontario.

7999 Devils in One Woman!—A Journal of Madrid announces that the curate of the Ministral de Caldes in exorcising a woman said to be possessed of a legion of demons, has succeeded in driving from the body of the unfortunate one the trifling number of 7999 devils, small and great. Doubtless, unfortunately, another demon remains behind who, more expert than his associates in the infernal art, obstinately resisted all the attacks of the worthy curate who on every festival day recommenced his mysterious warfare upon this member of the satanic family in presence of a fanatical and affrighted crowd. The civic and ecclesiastical authorities at length interfered and put an end to the comedy.

The Coinage.—We are indebted to the Treasury Department for the following abstract of the total amount of coinage at the mint and branch mints for the month of July, viz:

In eagles, $55,000; in half-eagles, $131,000; in quarter-eagles, $5,737 50—total in gold, $191,737 50. In half-dollars, $71,000; in quarter-dollars, $13,000; in dimes, $120,000; in half-dimes, $19,000—total in silver, $284,000. Total coinage of the month of July last, $475,737 50. The number of pieces of gold coined, 34,015. Total number of pieces of silver, 2,472,000. Total number of coins coined, 2,506,015. — Wash. Union.

A Parrot Story.—We have from a reliable source the following illustration of parrot cunning. A certain wise parrot undertook to amuse himself by a walk in the garden. A certain hungry cat espied him, crept softly behind him; he was evidently disturbed by puss's presence, and as he quickened his step he cast frequent glances behind to watch her movements, and as he saw the cat following him he thus soliloquized: "I believe the beast will catch me, on my life I believe the creature will have me." The cat at length crouched for a spring, when the parrot mustering all his courage, faced suddenly about, and shouted at the top of his voice, "scat you beast! scat you beast!" and away went puss in the greatest consternation, leaving puss to finish his stroll unmolested. — Balt. Trac.

Avon, Conn. July 24. —La Bate, last down to inform you that a most horrid murder was committed in the western part of this town on Tuesday last, between the hours of 3 and 4 P. M. A man by the name of Orrin Woodford, of good standing in society, and in good circumstances, murdered his wife with an axe, &c. &c. — N. Y. Tribune.

AMERICANISM.
VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Cassius M. Clay.—The Louisville papers contain further particulars of the late packing up, at Lexington.

The Committee appointed by the meeting to take down and pack up the press, type, &c., of the 'True American' printing office, beg leave respectfully to report to the meeting.

That, in pursuance of the direction of the meeting, they proceeded at once to the office of that paper, the key of which on arriving at the door, was given up to the Chairman, by Mr. Dowden, City Marshal. The Mayor of the city was at the door, and gave notice that the Committee was acting in opposition to law, but that the city authorities could offer no forcible resistance to them.

The Committee then proceeded severally to their names, were then admitted into the office, and the doors were closed after them. The Committee being called to order by Mr. Johnson, its Chairman, on motion of Josiiff Ennis, J. B. Clay was appointed, unanimously, to act as Secretary.

On motion of Maj. W. R. McKee, it was then:

Resolved, That the Committee held itself responsible for any thing which might be lost or destroyed, whilst the Committee were performing the duty assigned to them.

— Pretty well up to the days of Noah, as our Savior predicted.

Correspondence of the Albany Argus.
MAMMOTH REMAINS.

Newburgh, Aug. 15, 1845.

Gentlemen: "The remains of an immense Mastodon have been discovered and exhumed during the present week, in this town about six miles west of Newburgh."

This is the fourth skeleton of mammoth that has been discovered in this country; but while all the others have been imperfect, (many of the bones never having been discovered,) this one is the entire, every bone having been found even to the small bones of the feet and tail, and in complete state of preservation; the enamel on the teeth being as perfect as in the mouth of a living animal.

An idea of the size of the monster may be formed when I state that the skull alone weighs 700 lbs. The tusks are over 10 feet long. Across the hip bones he measured about 7 feet. The position of the animal at death, was clearly discernible. He had evidently become mired, and had settled down on his haunches, with his fore legs spread out, and in this position he was found. Under the vertebrae, the contents of his stomach were found to the amount of several bushels, and consisted of leaves, twigs and fragments of the branches of trees, crunched and broken up. As the remains were found imbedded in shell marl, all this was entirely evident.

His huge animalship has been visited by hundreds of persons, and those who have seen the various skeletons heretofore discovered, unite in representing this as unquestionably the old bull of the herd. Here is a godsend for the naturalist of our day. Another singular circumstance connected with this resurrection, is that while the excavation was being made, a large tooth was found, which is pronounced by those who profess to be skilled in such matters, the tooth of a Walrus.—Here is a nut for naturalists to crack.

Yours, N.

Military movements.—The response of our citizen-soldiery to the requisition of the Governor is just as we had anticipated. There will be no want of troops, and any number of them that may be desired, to impress Mexico with the means at the command of the United States to repel and punish any act of hostility into which her blind fury may urge her.

All the arms, ammunition, and equipments, requisite for the two companies of Artillery, arrived yesterday from Baton Rouge, and this part of the volunteer force will take their departure on Wednesday next, on the Alabama, for Corpus Christi. The Courier of last evening says that four regiments of infantry will be immediately called into the service and organized, but that their movements will depend somewhat upon circumstances.

The U. S. Flying artillery, under the command of Maj. Ringgold, at Fort McHenry, have received orders from the Secretary of War to hold themselves in readiness to embark for Texas at a moment's warning. Similar orders, we learn, have been given to the troops at the various military stations on the Atlantic seaboard. It is gratifying to observe that the most influential papers of both parties applaud the action of the Government in taking these measures of precaution.

[N. O. Pic.]

The Anti-Rent Rebellion in N. York. The New York Herald, of the 14th, says that the Sheriff of Delaware county has called out a special force of 500 men, under the act of the last session. Gov. Wright is detained in St. Lawrence county, by the severe illness of a brother, and has, therefore, taken no steps in the affair.

The following are extracts from a letter written by a lady now in Delhi, Delaware county, New York:

August 10, 1845.

"This morning I attended the funeral of poor Steele. More than a thousand persons were present. It is a solemn and melancholy occasion. God grant that this may be the end of the shedding of blood; but I fear not. Our village is again under martial law. A guard is kept about the jail, and, indeed, throughout the village—as the threat is made not only to destroy the jail, but to burn the village."

VOICE OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Letters of Marque and Reprisal.—We heard it stated on Saturday last, says the Philadelphia Ledger by an intelligent officer of the United States Government, that Mr. Polk was determined, in case of war with Mexico, to make a terrible example of any foreigners not belonging to Mexico, or parties to the war, who may attempt aggressions upon American commerce under colors of letters of marque from the Mexican government. He will give orders to the Naval commanders to treat all such adventurers as pirates, as in reality they will be.

VOICE OF THE GAY WORLD.

How Enniable!—A letter from Saratoga says: "We spent our time in excursions to the lake—playing billiards and ten-pins at Gridley's—promenading the delightful avenues and walks—drinking Congress and Pavilion spring water—flirting, intriguing, talking scandal, and listening to the divine and harmonious warblings of the fairest and most bewitching damsels in existence."

I do not think it will come to this; but is the forbearance of men who commit murder to be relied on?

"The posse is just in from Roxbury, and has brought three prisoners. The chief 'Blue-Beard' (a man by the name of Scudder, and who is said to have given the command to fire,) is not one of them. Gen. Griffin who has command of this posse, says he cannot escape."

"Great excitement still prevails. Men are coming in from all parts of the country. A band of 40 has just arrived from Walton. The party that went on Saturday night to Andes has returned with another prisoner. A posse of 100 men, led by your friend from Harpersfield, Col. Stoddard Stevens, has just left—destination not known. It is a melancholy sight, and makes my blood run cold to reflect that so many armed men—for each rides with his pistols at his saddle bow—are necessary to maintain the laws in good old Delaware county. I, the spirit of anti-entiment has become more desperate and destructive here its violence and crimes have also met here a sterner resistance and a prompter punishment than elsewhere. And this last outrage will induce every good citizen resolved and eager to do his duty to the country."

Still Later From New Mexico.—The Western Expositor, of Saturday last, printed at Independence, announces the arrival of Mr. Albert Speyer, in thirty-eight days from Chihuahua—twelve or fourteen days less than the trip has ever before been made.

Mr. Speyer left Chihuahua on the 18th of July, at which date all was apparent peace and security, nor was there any news of importance. It was reported at Santa Fe that Gen. Garcia Conde was expected shortly, as also the appointment of the new Governor (Armijo) which kept the military and all astir. The news of the annexation of Texas had not been received at Chihuahua, although it was daily expected, and the citizens were anxious to fight.

The weather had been unusually favorable, and the company were only detained two or three days on account of high water.

Mr. Speyer brings in with him eight wagons, 175 mules, and about $40,000 in specie. After the most unheard of misfortunes, and the loss of about 300 mules in his outward trip, any unexpected delays, he is here again, ready to undertake the hardships of another journey the coming season—exhibiting an energy of character, and determination of spirit almost unparalleled. Any other man in similar circumstances would have become dispirited in the outset, and given up, rather than endure the labor and vexation, or suffer the trouble of mind that he must necessarily have endured.

Messrs. Magoffin & Houck's companies were met on the 15th of July, on Sand Creek, 50 miles on the other side of the crossing of the Arkansas, Mr. McKnight's about 20 miles behind Magoffin. Do Francisco Alguera, at Coon creek, six days travel this side of the Arkansas.—All well.

The Mexican traders were waiting for the arrival of Gen. Garcia Conde, before they would leave.

Messrs. Wieck, Thurston, McMannan, and others, whose names we have not learned, also arrived this week from Chihuahua. They bring with them about $80,000 in specie—making in all, $100,000 that has arrived in our town this week.

From the Mountains.—The mountain-eers, says the St. Louis Gazette, whose arrival we noticed yesterday, bring intelligence that they met Col. Kearney, with 215 dragoons, on their route—ill well. At the Cedar Bluffs they fell in with a party of Oregon emigrants, with 550 wagons. They were getting along very well.

Trousters!—Two young ladies, belonging to "first families," were taken up the other night in N. York, dressed as gentlemen, and passed the night in the watch-house. It seems that one young lady was jealous of her lover, and determined to watch his movements, and being somewhat fearful of going into the field alone, she requested her older friend to accompany her, to which she assented. They were discharged in the morning, upon promising never to commit a similar folly.

Three lions, says the Picayune, have lately been seen and chased in the county of Brazoria, and one of them was killed, weighing 450 pounds. In color and size they were said to resemble the African lion.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10, 1845.

Our paper has been delayed until this evening, purposely to obtain the latest news from the mob.

Write.—We learn that write against the Twelve, and some others, upon the grave charge of "Treason," have been issued in this County.

The law-abiding citizens, we suppose, can burn houses with impunity, and it will all be well enough, and in fact issue writs for the Twelve and other Mormons alternately, but if the "Twelve" or the other inoffensive Mormons stay at home and mind their own business, it will be construed into an "outbreak" against the peace and dignity of the law.—Strange times we live in.

MOBBING AGAIN IN HANCOCK!

Friday morning, 10 o'clock.

We are informed that a meeting of a number of the mob, was held on Tuesday evening last, at a school house, near Baker's, in Green Plains precinct. We have not been apprized of the nature of the proceedings of that meeting, or what their deliberations were, farther than we can judge from their subsequent conduct.

A pre-concerted plan, it would seem, had been entered into: several shots were fired, by their own party, through the windows and doors of said school house.

Nothing was known by our people until the next day, when some of the same party commenced firing horses in the Mokey Settlement.

We have heard that eleven buildings have been burned by the mob, viz: eight houses and three out-houses.

A messenger just arrived from that section, states that most of our people from the west part of the settlement have removed to the east part of said settlement.

LIST OF HOUSES DESTROYED.

Father Whiting's house and chair factory—burnt.

Edmund Murphy's—(see Town).

John Edmondson's house and blacksmith's shop—burnt.

Thomas King's house—burnt.

The test of the houses not reported.

All that we shall remark on the above, is that Colonel Williams is at the head. We had, for some time, heard a rumor that the mob were preparing for further outrages, but were really in hopes, as our people had given no provocation whatever, that law and order would govern the old citizens.

Our people, though they have been basely treated, and shot at as can be proved, have been quiet, not retaliating, even in self defence, seeking peace at all hazards. Not being then, the aggressors, we shall look with great earnestness to the old citizens and authorities of the country, to ascertain:—

Whether they will coolly remain silent spectators, while the lives of men, women, and children, are jeopardized, their houses burned, and their property destroyed; or whether they will arise and magnify the law, and make it honorable.

We speak advisedly on this subject:—We have not been the aggressors, nor will we be; and we appeal to the law and the testimony, to shield us from such "outbreaks" of rioters.—Who is for peace and law?

We repeat, that we speak advisedly on this matter: Our people have not broken the law; they have borne and forbore; and they will look to the law and order citizens, and to the authorities of the land for protection from land pirates and mobocracy.

As an inducement for men to engage in mobbing, a correspondent in the Warsaw Signal, says:

"Forbearance, in this case, is contemptible and pusillanimous: it is not in accordance with the spirit of our institutions; nor does it comport with the dignity of independent men. Many of our law-abiding Anti-Mormons complain that they do not wish to violate the law. What is the law? Do these gentlemen know what the law is? Is acting counter to Ford's or Denning's will a violation of law? No, the people are the law. What have the people done? Have they not repented the Nauvoo Charter? Have they not justified the killing of the tyrant Joe? and have they not signified their anxiety in many ways that the Mormons should leave the State?—peaceably, if they will; forcibly, if they must! The next objection is, that we dislike to be the aggressors. Shall we wait for them to commit some outrage against the law? Are they not doing it daily? Shall we then wait till they come out and fight us? We have had repeated evidences that they will not do it. Persecution is pitifully cried, instead of the clashing of brave men's armor. And thus it will be, till the depositaries of corruption and their henchmen in sufficient numbers to overrun our beautiful State. Shall we withhold the club of vengeance from the viper's head, because he recoils and meanly slinks away? If you will, citizens of Hancock, you stamp disgrace upon the American name, and entail poverty and misery upon yourselves and your posterity."

THE LATEST FROM THE BURNING MOB!

The last express from the burning district, reports the destruction by the mob of

44 Houses,

and out buildings in Green Plains and Lima precincts.

The Sheriff as will be seen by his proclamation, is doing all in his power, to quell the insurrection, and disperse the mob.

Proclamation.

TO THE CITIZENS OF HANCOCK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

WHEREAS, a mob of from one to two hundred men under arms, have gathered themselves together in the S. W. part of Hancock co. and are at this time destroying the dwellings and other buildings, stacks of grain and other property, of a portion of our citizens, in the most inhuman manner compelling defenceless children & women from their sick beds, and exposing them to the rays of the parching sun there to lay and suffer without the aid and assistance of a friendly hand to minister to their wants in their suffering condition.

The rioters spare not the widow nor the orphan, and while I am writing this proclamation the smoke is rising to the clouds and the flames are devouring four buildings, which have just been set on fire by the rioters.—Thousands of dollars worth of property has already been consumed; an entire settlement of about sixty or seventy families laid waste, the inhabitants thereof are fired upon, narrowly escaping with their lives, and forced to flee before the ravages of the Mob.

By the revised laws of our State under the criminal code, sixth division 58 Section, Page 181, the crime of Arson is defined as follows: "Every person who shall wilfully and maliciously burn, or cause to be burned, any dwelling house, kitchen, office, shop, barn, stable, store house, &c., &c., shall be deemed guilty of arson, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not less than one year nor more than ten years, and should the life or lives of any person be lost in consequence of any such burning as aforesaid, such offender shall be guilty of Murder, and shall be indicted and punished accordingly."

And whereas the laws of this State make it my duty as a peace officer of this county to suppress all riots, routs &c., &c., and all other crimes,

Therefore I Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois in the name of the people, of said state and by the authority vested in me by virtue of my office, hereby solemnly command the said rioters and other peace breakers to desist forthwith, disperse and go to their homes, under the penalty of the laws. And I hereby call upon all the law abiding citizens as a posse comitatus of Hancock county to give their united aid in suppressing the rioters, and maintain the supremacy of the law.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,

Sheriff of Hancock county, Ills.

P. S. It is a part of my policy that the citizens of Nauvoo remain quiet, and not a man from that city leave as a posse until it be made manifest that the law and order citizens without the city will not have force sufficient to suppress the rioters of this disgraceful outrage; but that 2,000 effective men hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's warning to any point in Hancock county.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,

Sheriff, &c.

Green Plains, Hancock county, Ills. Sept. 13th, 1845.

The Rapids.—Whenever we look down the rapids and observe a steamer "try and sweat" a day or two, in low water, as is the case now, to get over the rapids, we think the United States government is narrow contracted and stingy. She pinches a picayune, and loses the commerce of States. Give the Mormons a grant, and if the rocks on the rapids don't give the steamboats a channel in less than two years, you may calculate that the Mississippi has turned, and henceforth will run to the north.

Nauvoo flourishes.—Editors and correspondents, and travelers and clergymen have such a notable faculty of stretching the truth in relation to Nauvoo, that we have, occasionally, to mention matters as they are. And so we say as to business, health, increase of population, and morality, the city of Nauvoo is not equalled on this planet. Turn which way you will, buildings are in progress, and more wanted.

Another matter of great importance to Mormonism, is, that every one minds his own business, and whenever a nincampoop says "the devil held his hat over Nauvoo

when he shewed the kingdoms of the world to Jesus Christ,"—remember it to a "lie," for the scamp never had a hat; and could not wear one because of his "horns." —Sh—sh—sh! hush! turn!

ONE HUNDRED YEARS HENCE.

1845.

God, through his servants, the prophets, has given all men a clue to the future. In view of this, we were cogitating upon our bed, the other night, what would be the state of the world a hundred years hence. In quick succession the events and periods which have filled up nearly six thousand years, passed before our mind's eyes, together with the accompanying "thus saith the Lord." I will destroy the earth with a flood, after one hundred and twenty years. There shall be seven years of plenty, and seven years of famine in Egypt. Israel shall be held captive in Babylon, till the land enjoys her sabbaths seventy years, and then came Daniel's numbers, and the exact time when the Savior should be born; his crucifixion, and second coming.

While thus looking over the "has been," we fell into a deep sleep, and the angel of our presence came to the bedside and gently said, "arise! Now it mattereth not whether we were in the body or out of it; asleep or awake; on earth or in heaven; or upon the water, or in the air; the sum of the matter is like this: Our guide, for such we shall call the angel or being that conveyed us, soon brought us in sight of a beautiful city.

As we were nearing the place, a pillar of fire, seemingly over the most splendid building, lit the city and country for a great distance around, and as we came by, the TEMPLE OF THE LORD IN ZION, in letters of a pure language, and sparkling like diamonds, disclosed where we were. Our guide went round the city in order to give us a chance to "count the towers;" and, as it was nearly sunrise, he conducted us into one, that we might have a fair chance to view the glory of Zion by "daylight." We seemed to be swallowed up in sublimity! The "pillar of fire" as the sun rose majestically following into a "white cloud," as a shade for the city from heat. The dwellings so brilliant by night, had the appearance of "precious stones," and the streets glittered like gold, and we marvelled. Marvel not, says our guide, this is the fulfillment of the words of Isaiah:

"For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver, and for wood brass, and for stones iron: I will also make thine officers peace and thine exactors righteousness."

Now the eyes of our understanding began to be quickened, and we learned, that we were one hundred years ahead of "common life," and we gloried. The "veil" that hides our view from the glory of the upper deep, had been taken away, and all things appeared to us as to the Lord. The great earthquake, mentioned by John, and other prophets before him, had levelled the mountains over the whole earth—the "sea" had rolled back as it was in the beginning; the crooked was made straight, and the rough places plain. The earth yielded her "increase," and the knowledge of God exalted man to the society of resurrected beings.

The melody and prayers of the morning in Zion, showed that the "Lord was there;" and truly so; for, after breakfast, the "chariot" of Jesus Christ was made ready for pleasure ride; and the "chariots" of his "hundred and forty four thousand," glittered into the retinue of "earth's greatest & best," so gloriously, that the "show" exhibited the splendor of Gods, whose Father's name they bore on the front of their crowns.

Our curiosity excited us to inquire what day they celebrated? To which the guide replied: "This is the Feast day of the Lord to JOSEPH AND HYRUM SMITH, for being martyred for the truth, held yearly on the 7th day of the fourth month, throughout all the tribes of Israel."

Flesh and blood cannot comprehend the greatness of the scene; the worthy of the earth, with Adam at their head; the martyrs of the different dispensations, with Abel at their head; and honorable men from other worlds composed an assemblage of majesty, dignity, and "divinity," so much above the "little pageantry" of man in his self made greatness, that we almost forgot that mortals ever enjoyed any thing more than misery, in all the pomp and circumstance, of man's power over man! This was a feast day for truth! This was the reward of integrity!—This was the triumph of "kings and priests;" unto God, and was a holiday of eternity! Who could be happier than he that was among the holy throng? No one, and away we rode out of Zion among her stakes.

At the first city out, we found the same spirit—ALL WERE ONE. While there the following news, by post, came from the east. It was read from one of the papers just published that morning:

"In digging for the foundation of our new Temple in the 124th city of Joseph, near where it is supposed the City of New York once stood, a large square stone was taken from the ruins of some building which, by a seam in it indicated more than the mere stone. The seam being opened, disclosed a lead box about six by eight inches square. This box was soon found to contain several daily papers of its time, together with some coin of the old Government of the United States. It will be recollected that all the inhabitants of this city which were spared from calamity, were 'plunged out when the earth was turned upside down,' some forty or fifty years ago, for their wickedness."

The account of 'fires' in one of these papers was truly lamentable, destroying, as the paper said, more than twenty five millions worth of property, in about three months. Each contained a large number of 'murders,' 'suicides,' 'riots,' 'robberies,' and hints of 'war expected,' with columns of divisions among the sectarian churches about slavery, Onderdonking, and the 'right way.' The 'Archer of Paradise' remarked as these horrors of 'old times' were being read, that 'all that was transacted in the last days of Babylon, before Satan was bound.'

Joseph Smith said, "Lord, we will put those papers and coin in the repository of relics and curiosities, of satan's kingdom of the old world;" which was agreed to, by all, after exhibiting the coin. The silver coin contained the words 'United States of America' and 'half dol,' round the image of an eagle on one side, and a woman setting upon the word "Luxury" and holding up a night cap, between thirteen stars, over 1845, on the other.

The only idea that could be gathered from all this was; that the government had fallen from the splendor of its eagle to the pleasure of women, and was holding up the night cap, as a token that the foamy liberty enjoyed then, was 'star-light' liberty, because their deeds were evil.

Another coin had the 'appearance' of gold, with 'five dolls.' upon it, but upon close examination it was found to be nothing but 'fine brass.'

While this was going on, the Lord said, 'be ware of the eleven of old.—Let us enjoy our day.' In a moment, this 'band of brethren' were off, and what could equal the view? No veil, no vices, the heavens were in their glory, and the angels were ascending and descending. The earth was in its beauty; the wolves and sheep; the calves and lions; the behemoth and the buffalo; the child and the serpent, enjoyed life without fear, and all men were wise.

As we were passing to another city amid all this perfection of the reign of Jesus before his ancient glory, we discovered the fragment of a hewn stone, of a lightish blue color, with an abbreviated word 'Mo.'; and the figures '1838' upon it. To which the 'Lion of the Lord' exclaimed:—The tried are turned into hell; and forgotten, but the righteous reign with God in glory; and it seemed as if the echo came from a redeemed world, 'glory!'

At about two, after five hours ride among the cities and states of Zion, we returned to the capitol to partake of the feast of the martyrs.

The preparation was perfect. A table through the grove of Zion for more than three hundred thousand saints, where Jesus Christ, sat at the head of fathers and mothers, sons and daughters in Israel, was a sight, which the world, even Babylon, in its best days, never witnessed.

Says Jesus, as every eye turned upon him,

"Our Father, and thine,

Bless me and mine: Amen."

After the feast (the sentiments, words of wisdom and other touching matters were to be published in 'Zion's Watch-Tower,' and are omitted) we stepped into the 'news room,' and the first article in the 'Pure News,' which attracted our attention, was, the minutes of the General Conference held in Zion on the 14th day of the first month, A. D. 1845, when it was motioned by Joseph Smith, and seconded by John the Revelator, That forty eight new cities be laid out and builded, this year in accordance with the prophets which have said, "who can number Israel? who can count the dust of Jacob? Let him fill the earth with cities." Carried unanimously.

Twelve of these cities to be laid out beyond eighteen degrees north, for the tribes of Reuben, Judah and Levi. Twelve, on the east; at the same distance, for the tribes of Joseph, Benjamin, and Dan. Twelve on the south, at the same distance, for the tribes of Simeon, Issachar and Zebulon—and twelve on the west, at the same distance, for the tribes of Gad, Asher and Naphtali.

The paper contained a notice for the half yearly Conference, as follows:

"The general half yearly Conference will be held at Jerusalem on the 14th day of the seventh month alternately with the yearly Conference in Zion."

It is proposed that the 'high way cast up' between the two cities of our God, be decorated with fruit and shade trees (between the cities and villages, which are only eighty furlongs apart), for the accommodation of 'wayfarers' men of Israel. Gabriel has brought from Paradise, some seeds of fruit and grain, which were originally in the Garden of Eden; and will greatly add to the comfort and convenience of man."

While we were engaged in reading, a strain of music from some of the 'sweet singers of Israel,' came so mellowly over our sensations, for a moment, that we hardly knew whether the angels or saints of the millenium, were chanting a vesper to their Savior. We were so delighted with the performance, as we saw the 'musical chariot' pass, filled with young men and maidens, all in white robes, that we only remember the following verses:—

"Death and Satan being banish'd;
"And the 'vict' forever, vanish'd;
"All the earth's again replenish'd,
"And in beauty appears:
"So we'll sing hallelujahs;
"While we worship our Savior,
"And fill the world with cities
"Through the 'great thousand years.'"

Our eye next caught a map showing the earth as it was, and is. We were delighted with the earth as it is. Four rivers headed a little south of Zion, for Zion, is situated in 'the sides of the north.' The first river is called 'Parson,' and runs west. The second is called 'Gion' and runs south. The third is called 'Haudakal' and runs north; and the fourth is called 'The Fraters,' and runs east. These four rivers divide the earth into four quarters; as was in the days of Adam, and with their tributaries give an uninterrupted water communication over the face of the world, for in the beguiling the earth was not called 'finished' till it was 'very good,' for every thing.

By the paper we were reading, we learned that rain was expected in the beginning of the seventh month, according to the Law of the Lord: for the promise is, 'it shall rain moderately in the first and seventh month, that the ploughman may overtake the reaper.'

Contemplating the greatness of the earth in its glory, with Jesus Christ for her king, president and lawgiver, with such wise councillors, Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses, Elijah, Peter, and Joseph, who were imperceptibly lead to exclaim: "Great is the wisdom: great is the glory, and great is the power of man with his maker!"—when of a sudden our guide came in and said, "you must drink wine with the Lord in his kingdom and then return." This we did, and many things which we saw are not lawful to utter, and can only be known as we learned them, by the assistance of a guardian angel.

When we were ready to return, our guide observed, "may be you would like to look through the Urin and Thummin." Upon the abominations of the world in the day of its sin." "Yes," was our reply, and he handed us the "holy instrument." One look, and the soul sickened. Eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man, what folly, corruptions, and abominations are wrought among men to gratify the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the cunning of the devil. But they shall come. We returned, and awake, perfectly enamored with the beauty and glory of Zion to be as well as the splendor and harmony of the "feast of the martyrs," determining in our own minds, at some future day to give a sketch of the "Temple" wherein Jesus sat and reigned with the righteous, when there was "not a Canaanite in the land," nor any thing to hurt or destroy in all the Holy Mountain—when the earth should be full of the knowledge of God as the waters cover the sea. In short, the heavenly reality of one hundred years hence.

Improvement.—Nauvoo is great on improvement, and nothing bespeaks it more than the "balls" on the top of the steeple of the Temple.

Big Field Dinner.—On Friday the 5th inst., the inhabitants of the 11th ward, under Bishop Evans, and the proprietors of the "Big Field," gave a free dinner to a large company of men, women, and children. From four hundred and fifty to six hundred and fifty persons were present, the most of whom, at three several sittings down, round a table about one hundred and fifty feet long, were accommodated. The Twelve, Bishop Miller, and a few others from Nauvoo, were among the number that partook of the rich bounty of the season.

The Big Field is organized according to the laws of the State and covers six sections, or three thousand eight hundred and forty acres of land. We understand from the officers of the company, that about thirty thousand bushels of corn, and nearly the same amount of wheat had been raised the past season. Sixty thousand bushels of wheat and corn, without counting an abundance of oats, barley, buckwheat, potatoes, and other vegetables, do not indicate indolence, poverty, or famine, but rather carries an idea that "God helps them that help themselves." This public demonstration of the bounty of providence, goes to show that the people of that section are willing to make others happy as well as themselves.

It is a fine thing for the bishops of the several wards, to remember the poor, and we think this "feast upon the prairies," was a kind of token of times "to come."

It is also worthy of remark that this band of brethren, under the "broad canopy," spent the day most happily, without "strong drink," or swearing, or gambling; feasting, upon the simple luxuries, that sustain life, with pure water, peace and union, praying and praising God who hath so liberally rewarded their labor and began to make the prairies blossom as the rose.

A solid sample of Mormonism.—More than three hundred thousand brick have been laid in the first story of the Nauvoo House in two weeks. If the Mormons were all gathered together, as brethren ought to be of one heart and mind, they would soon be able to build a common sized city a year. How they can work!

Prices Vary.—The price of wheat is now about forty cents, in Nauvoo, per bushel, while butter is scarce at twelve and a half cents per pound. Corn is twenty cents per bushel, and beef from three to four cents per pound. So we go, or rather, so we live.

Indian States.—The Albany Argus suggests a thought which, we confess, is to us a new one, and it is one on which we love to dwell. It is that of an Indian State admitted to our confederacy! The rapid advance of the Choctaw and Cherokee in the arts of civilized life, and in education and religious knowledge, has led the friends of the Indian to think of the erection of Indian States. The Argus remarks that these nations are coming into a condition, which will be fully worthy of alliance with such a republic as ours, and there is no reason to doubt that they would do honor to such a relation. How wonderful would it be, if the aboriginal race, driven back and down-trodden so long, should finally rise to take the standing and enjoy the privileges of enlightened nations.

Wouldn't it be "wonderful" and wouldn't it be just as "wonderful" if the United States continue to degrade and disgrace itself by unpunished acts of "Murder, and Treason" upon the Mormons and Indians, till it fall to rise no more! That's the question.

A Mob nearly—Secretary Hardin.—A friend just from Frankfort says that that city was thrown into great excitement one day last week Secretary Hardin had sent to his care, from near Bardonia, a country girl to learn the milliners' business. He put her in a brothel, intending, as is supposed, to pollute her there. The citizens of Frankfort found out Mr. Hardin's base intentions, and drove him out of the city as they would a common scoundrel. It was hard to keep his back free, we learn, from a couple of far and feathers. They served him right. Any man guilty of so brutal an attempt, and more especially upon an ignorant, unsuspecting stranger sent to his care, ought to be driven beyond the haunts of civilized men.

Nauvoo Doings.—The doings at Nauvoo exceed our most sanguine expectation. Within the last two weeks the steeple of the Temple has begun to tower up in all the splendor of Mormon art and simplicity. And the Nauvoo House too, has risen up one story (15 feet) in a style of grandeur that does honor to the heads that planned it, and great credit to the skill and perseverance of those that executed the plans.

We really believe there is no city of the same size and means that brings into view so much real evidence of industry, faith, wisdom, and wealth, as Nauvoo. This is what we as a people, have always asked our neighbors: "give us peace, and we will show you by our works, that we are an honest, industrious people!" seeking diligently the good of all honest men. Yes, "peace" is our motto, and "equal rights" the only satisfaction peace that distinguishes a free government from a despotism.

A little leaven, leavens the lump.—About ten counties, in the state of N. York, have become "infected" with the anti-rent fever: Seven hundred thousand people kicking against nobility and law, will make a squirming among the landlords,—won't they?

MYSTERY OF INQUITY. We have published Sharpiana, and so forthiana and what not, but nothing has come to our knowledge that speaks the depravity of man, and honor of the last days, so manifestly as the following:

From the New York Packet. It does not appear to be generally known that there is a very dangerous secret organization existing in this city, and extending its ramifications to several surrounding towns, whose objects, if they were revealed to the public, would startle the least timid with horror. Their members are chiefly to be distinguished by a dull, heavy blue ring, generally worn on the middle finger on the left hand, as it indicates the station of a private member while some are worn on the different digits, according to the rank of the party in the society. Though they have heretofore succeeded in maintaining a profound secrecy in relation to their diabolical designs,—it transpired that they have banded together since the commencement of the threatening aspect of our foreign relations, and their object is, in case of a war between the United States and a foreign power, to lend our enemies a secret assistance, by poisoning the wells of the country, and fomenting insurrections among the blacks.

All of their wear concealed weapons, whose blades are tipped with a subtle and penetrative poison; and many of them likewise carry compact combustible materials, for the purpose of covering their operations by the confusion of midnight conflagrations. The great fire of last month, it is shrewdly suspected, originated from this secret body of conspirators against the social welfare.

For the purpose of covering their existence and operations still farther, they have established in different parts of the city, to sell a trinket similar in appearance, and most dangerous in its properties, which they call "galvanic rings"—assuming that they have a medical effect in cases of rheumatism. The object of this, however, is that it may confound a number of honest citizens with themselves, and thus guard against all chances of detection.

From the Buffalo Com. Advertiser. POPULATION—EMIGRATION. Very few take the trouble to study the rapid increase of the human family, now in progress in Europe. There is good reason to believe that the number of human beings now living there exceeds two hundred and fifty millions. In 1836, according to McCulloch, the population of Ireland was not far from eight and a half millions; and the annual increase was about 165,000. This would give to that small island over ten millions of people at this time. The island of Great Britain has added more to its population within the present century, than in the preceding 425 years. The improvements in agriculture in England, France and nearly all the German States have done much to furnish the means for the support of men, and the rapid multiplication of our species. The absence of desolating wars, and the happy exemption from calamitous diseases, by greatly promoting general health and longevity, have done much to increase the human family in Europe since the downfall of Napoleon.

The British Islands and the Continent can easily send to America a million of emigrants a year, and never miss them. And so long as we shall have a country more desirable for the poor man to live in, than the one he is born in, on the other side of the Atlantic, the poor, and all in moderate circumstances, will continue to come over and settle among us. We are not displeased to witness their opportunity to better their condition. We rather rejoice that there is one green spot on the globe where most of the rights of humanity are recognized and adequately protected for the equal benefit and enjoyment of all men.

The exception to this universality of privilege can not long endure the light of partial liberty in this country. And the force of moral power, so omnipotent to expose, and put down the wrongs of suffering humanity. Two hundred and fifty thousand men can not always hold in servile bondage three millions of rational human beings. The elevation of our race may be retarded in its progress, by the obsequy and mistaken selfishness of the few, who lord it over the many; but the triumph of right and justice over wrong and injustice is certain at the end.

We must soon have a population of one hundred millions of self-governing and happy people. How important, then, that the proceeds which accrue from the sale of our vast Public Domain be made into a permanent School Fund, for the full development of the intellectual and moral faculties of the ever rising generation into whose hands will be committed the destiny of this young and glorious Republic. Distribution, coupled with the definite appropriation of the money to educational purposes, can alone secure the blessings of a good education to all the children of emigrants and others in all parts of this wide spreading Union. The area of knowledge must keep pace with the extension of the area of freedom, or freedom will degenerate into licentiousness, corruption and party despotism.

—We would barely remark that the day has gone by for the United States to better the condition of her own population let alone emigrants. Where is the rights and property of fifteen thousand Latter Day Saints exiled from the State of Missouri sacrificed upon the free altar of American Mobocracy!

Where are the rights and lives of foreigners that were bombarded with cannon in Philadelphia as a sample of American love and freedom? Hanging on the light house of ruin as signals to beware!

Where are the returns and majesty of the law to recompense the murders of Joseph and Hyrum Smith in Carthage jail for their religion? Licked up by hypocrites, and laughed by priests and people who are heaping up wrath against the day of wrath! Enough said; the American dead fall will catch as many of its own game when sprung by the Almighty, as birds of passage from foreign lands.

It certainly is a source of great satisfaction, to the wise, to reflect that God will recompense every man according to his works. Demagogues, hypocrites, and speculators, then, will receive full pay and interest for their traffic in "human flesh."

Horrible Agrarianism!—In the British House of Commons, during a debate on the recent event in New Zealand, Mr. C. Buller, a member of the present Conservative Ministry, avowed the following atrociously Agrarian sentiments:

[Tribune.] "It is preposterous to expect that the existence of such a population on portions of the soil of a vast country ought to exclude the rest of mankind from turning the unoccupied soil to account—God gave the earth to man to use—not to particular races, to prevent all other men from using. [Hear.] He planted the principle of increase in us; he limited our existence to no particular soil or climate; but gave us the power of ranging over the wide earth. I apply to the savage no principle which I should not apply to the most civilized people of the world. If by any unimaginable calamity the population of France, for instance, were reduced from the 35,000,000, which it now maintains, to 200,000, which is about the proportion of the population of New Zealand, and if these 200,000 were almost limited to Brittany and Normandy, and cultivated as the New Zealanders do, no more than one acre in a thousand, do you think we should allow this handful of men to devote that fine country to perpetual embarrassment!" [Cheers.]

—The world is getting pretty hot in every thing, and when Jehovah comes out of his hiding place, to shake terribly the earth, he will probably spoil all land cultivations, levelling the earth and giving it to the Saints.

Travelling in the Air.—The exhibition of Muzzi's Aerial Locomotive, says an exchange, at Palermo last week, is spoken of by the New York papers as highly successful. The model machine passed around the large building in every direction.

—This generation lacks but little of old times: If they would start a railroad to heaven in lieu of the "Tower of Babel," matters would flourish to a nicety.

—Major Gen. Lee, says the St. Louis Gazette of Missouri, has expressed a willingness, through the papers, to raise a force of 5,000 volunteers, to march against Western Mexico, as soon as the President may authorize him so to do. His voice is still for war.

—Gen. Lee should receive every encouragement, and be on the ground without delay. In war, the presence of a man at the point of danger, is ocular proof to an enemy that there is opposition to the trade.

Patent Lever Skiff.—Our friend Dr. Young has a skiff rigged with paddle wheels like a steamboat, which is operated upon by a lever. It will run about 8 miles per hour down stream, or five up, and with a little improvement, we think, will go faster and save labor. Huzza for the War Eagle Extra!

MARRIED.—On Saturday, the 6th inst., at Elder L. O. Littlefield, Mr. Joseph Dastin, to Miss Sarah J. Littlefield, both of this county. The printer's fee was remembered with a rich loaf of bridal cake. Let others do likewise! May peace, happiness, and plenty be their portion.

SEXTON'S WEEKLY REPORT.

September 8, 1845.
Bridget Harrett, 85y; Diarrhea.
Thomas King, of Iowa, 74y 10m 17d.
Laura Kittabing Element, 16y, 4m 9d
Stephen Vanvorles, 43y; Bilious fever.
Emma Ellen Presley, 3y 1m 3d; inflammation.
Joseph Clemenson, 5m 6d consumption.
Tripheta Reed, 43y 6m 6d chills fever.
Almira Babbitt, 35y 6m 30d inflammation on the lungs.
Philemon S. Castle 1y 1m 8d Diarrhea.
Mary C. Taylor, 2m 13d inflammation on the brain.
Andrew T. Morton, 1m 14d inflammation on the brain.
Levi Eldridge of Keokuk 35y mercurial Diarrhea.

Wm. H. Presley, jr. 5m.
WM. D. HUNTINGTON.

DIED.—At Carthage on Wednesday 10th inst. Gen. Minor R. Deming, late Sheriff of Hancock Co., of Consecutive fever.
We understand his body was conveyed to Quincy for interment and funeral services; one reason for which was, that his brother, who was killed by lightning last June, was buried there.

HOT THE TEMPLE, NAUVOO HOUSE AND MY HOUSE.

LET no private interest obstruct the progress of the Temple or Nauvoo House; yet it is obvious to all the church that I should have a house as much as so other men and something to sustain me and my family while we serve them in our capacity. And if the saints, and others design to help me in this matter it is imperatively necessary it should be done soon, if done at all this season. While the masons are employed on the Nauvoo House, you can bring on the materials for my house, stone, brick, lumber, &c., that all things may be ready for the masons when they can be had. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Please hear us and attend to our call in due season, that we may have a house to shield off the chilling blast of winter. Respectfully your servant,
JOHN E. PAGE.

Sept. 10th, 1845-19-3w.
190 C. & T. LEWIS, 190
NO. 190 MAIN STREET, ONE DOOR BELOW THE VIRGINIA HOTEL, ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

HAVING received the largest part of our immense Stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, we are now prepared to supply Country Merchants and others, on the most favorable terms. We have at this time the Largest, Cheapest, and most complete assortment, ever brought to Saint Louis, and will continue to receive by every boat until late in the Fall, which will keep our assortment throughout the season, full and complete. Every article usually kept in a Clothing or Furnishing House, can be found at No. 190. Our Goods this Fall are all Fresh and New, made of the very best materials, cut by men of acknowledged skill and ability, and put together in a style fully equal to custom work. We can and will sell Clothing cheaper by 30 per cent than any concern in the Western country—prices so very low that defies all competition.

Do you wish to know how we can do this? We will explain; in the first place we buy our materials of the Manufacturers, and pay the cash down for them, saving the Importers and Jobbers profits for the benefit of our customers. We also save 6 per cent by paying cash for labor. Set the Importers and jobbers profits down at the lowest per cent possible, say

Importers profit,	10 per cent
Jobbers do,	14 per cent
Cash for labor (saved) 6 per cent

and we have the large sum of thirty per cent, which every person can save, by making their purchases of C. & T. Lewis.

T. LEWIS, (one of the firm) resides in New York, and superintends the manufacturing of all our Stock. We possess exclusive advantages at this time for doing a large business.

Vast Resources! Spacious Premises! Immense Stock! Unequaled Talent! Unprecedented Variety! and the most ample means to carry out to the fullest possible extent, a business of such immense magnitude.

The most important consideration for persons about to make their Fall Purchases of Clothing is, how and where can our money be laid out with the greatest advantage? Should these questions suggest themselves to people about to visit St. Louis, the plain answer is, at C. & T. Lewis, where at all times can be found the Largest, Cheapest, and best assortment of Ready Made Clothing in the Western country.

We respectfully invite all to come in and take a view of our Stock, it will pay you well for the time spent,—we will wait upon you with pleasure.

No. 190 Main street, corner store, one door below the Virginia Hotel. On the top of the House, a large 190.

C. & T. LEWIS.

Terms.—Retail for cash, Wholesale do do or approved paper. St. Louis, August 25-19-3w

FOR SALE in Hancock county, about 20 miles from Nauvoo; 12 miles from Warsaw; 7 from Lima; 157 acres of good land, about 81 acres and good cultivation; 23 up pasture, with 2 log houses, one 18 by 21 with frame attached 12 by 24, 2 wells good water, stable, and outbuildings. Also, 11 acres of good timber land, about 2 miles from the above, with log house and about 20 acres under fence. Also, a new one story Cottage, containing 6 rooms, with about 3 acres of land situated in one of the most pleasant situations in Nauvoo. Application to be made as follows, to John H. Boscawen, editor of this paper, N. Boscawen, corner of White street on Winchester street; Dr. Atkinson, Buffalo, New York. Aug. 10-19-1

STATE OF ILLINOIS, County of Hancock. NOTICE is hereby given, to all persons having claims against the Estate of Elijah Terry, deceased, to present the same at the office of the Probate Justice of the Peace, for a d county on the 23d day of October, A. D. 1845, for proof and adjustment thereof.
PHILO P. GOODWIN, Adm'r of said Elijah Terry, dec'd.
August 16, 1845.—16-4w.

NOTICE. A LARGE quantity of BRICKLAYERS and CARPENTERS wanted IMMEDIATELY, on the NAUVOO HOUSE and the TEMPLE.
Do you see? Do you hear? if you do, pay ATTENTION!!! Recollect immediately!!
GEORGE MILLER, PETER HAYS, AMASA LYMAN, GEORGE A. SMITH.
Nauvoo, August 22, 1845-16-1

CITY LOTS AND PRAIRIE LANDS. THE NAUVOO HOUSE ASSOCIATION have several very eligible city lots—and several fine farms, on the prairie, which they will sell very low, or exchange for grain, beef cattle, cows, horses, or other property that can be used in building the Nauvoo House. Please call at the office of the association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets, or on either of the Trustees.
GEORGE MILLER, PETER HAYS, AMASA LYMAN, GEORGE A. SMITH.
Nauvoo, August 22, 1845-16-1

FOR SALE. BY the Trustees of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. One large new Two Horse Carriage. Any person wishing to purchase, will please call at the Trustees office, in the Brick Store north of the Temple formerly occupied by P. P. Pratt, or at Pres. B. Young's, corner of Kimball and Granger streets.
August 6, 1845

Old Connecticut Pottery. WANDELL & MORE MANUFACTURERS OF EARTHEN WARE, CITY OF JOSEPH, ILL.; WAREHOUSE ON MULHOLLAND STREET, 7 FEET BLOCKS EAST OF THE TEMPLE. KEEP constantly on hand, and manufacture to order, every description of article in their line of business; namely:—Lead Pots, Crucibles, Furnaces, Jugs, Pitchers, Churns, Poles, Pitchers, Water Kegs, Wash-Bowls, Milk Pans, Flower Pots, Tea Pots, Bed Pans, Coffee Pots, Bery Bottles, Ginger Pop Bottles, Chimney Tops, straight and beveled Jars with covers, straight and beveled Pots with covers, Bread Pots with covers, square and round dishes from 8 to 14 inches, Stone Tables, Chamber-basins, and other articles too numerous to mention. We are also prepared to manufacture Sugar Moulds and Drips of a superior quality. We are employing experienced workmen from Norwalk, Conn. etc., and can assure the public that our wares will be found equal, if not superior, to any thing of the kind in the western country. We can accommodate the public with wares of thirteen different shades, such as jet-black, blue-black, red, green, yellow, cream color, mottled color, etc., etc. Orders from St. Louis and other southern and western markets, packed in the best manner at a short notice. Cash or produce taken in exchange for wares.
C. W. WANDELL, M. MORE, Jr.
Nauvoo, July 30, 1845-13-1y

WANTED. BY the Nauvoo House Association, 200 Tons of hay, 10,000 Bushels of oats, 25,000 Bushels of wheat, 25,000 Bushels of corn, 5,000 Bushels of potatoes, 1,000 Cords of wood, 2,000 Dollars in cash, 1,000 Barrels of pork, 100 Head of beef cattle, 100 Horses, And every thing else that can be made use of in building the Nauvoo House. Apply at the office of the Association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets.
GEORGE MILLER, PETER HAYS, AMASA LYMAN, GEORGE A. SMITH, Trustees.
July 22-12-1

HO! PLEASURE IN ADVANCE! TO those who wish to ride over the Rapids of the beautiful Mississippi I would say, I shall keep a good sail boat near Majnards Steam Mill for their accommodation and passengers to Keokuk. The waters purrl along free as air—therefore we will land them at any convenient point on either side of the river after a pleasant sail on the bosom of the Father of waters, and I will endeavor to make engagements for a carriage, that those may take at the waters edge who desire it, after regaling if they choose upon beer, cake, &c. &c. Those who visit our city and wish to view the scenery on the Islands, or Iowa, will be conveyed there also. All things will be done decently and in good order. Come and see!
A. YOUNG.
August 9th 1845-15-3w

N. B. I particularly invite the Twelve, President G. Miller, Father John Smith and his clerk, with their families, Mother Smith, and the widows of the Martyred Prophet and Patriarch—to come and sail free.

NEIGHBORS. WE have on hand about 20 copies of the last-yeare Neighbor fit for binding; those wishing to purchase will have to apply soon.
Nauvoo August 13th 1845-15-1

LOOK HERE. FIFTEEN or twenty good mechanics wanted immediately in the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage manufacturing association.
GEORGE W. HARRIS, President. SIDNEY ROBERTS, Clerk protem
Nauvoo August 11th 1845-15-1

NOTARY PUBLIC. THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.
W. W. PHELPS.
April 7 1845-49.

LINE.—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first line time, at their Kilns near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Harris. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash not refused.
JOSHUA BOYCE, O. M. ALLEN, EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845-No 1-6m

NOTICE. FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated 10 miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county, Ills. For further particulars enquire of
LEVI STEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52-1

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION. THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chamber-basins, Peppars, and Salt Nappies, Mugs, &c, which will be sold who's sale and retail for Cash at Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufactories in England.
ELIJAH K. FULLER, President. RICHARD STEELE, WILLIAM BOX, RICHARD RALPHS, JOSEPH RALPHS, THOMAS RALPHS, ALFRED CORDON, JOHN BOURNE Clerk,
June 4th 1845-5m

PHOTOGRAPHY. GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Photography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.
May 2d, 1845-11

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WAREHOUSE. general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo. The subscribers, having opened the above establishment and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.
Call and try, ere you buy.
Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.
STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7:49-6m

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION. Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association on Water street, in the city of Nauvoo, opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's store, the following articles, to wit:—Coaches, Omnibuses, Chariots, Chaises, Cabs, Houchons, Buggies and Buggy Wagens, Heaved, Scaffolds, Trotting Wagens, and one Horse Jumper Wagens, Ox and Horse Carriages, Sleighs, Strychbushes, Pitch Forks, Rakes, Carding and Thrashing Machines, Horse Powers, Railroad Cars and many other articles too numerous to mention. sold as cheap as can be purchased in any establishment. All orders must be paid for, and addressed to GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq, Pres't of the Association.
J. H. & W. H. RALSTON, Attorneys & Counsellors at Law. WILL attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.
W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.
Warsaw, May 12th, 1845.—3-1

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS. WE offer to our friends in Illinois as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.
Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
April 7:49-6m W. & S

NOTICE. A Botanic Association has been formed in the city of Nauvoo, for collecting herbs and roots and preparing the same for the good of the saints. Let every person secure health. And look out for the best pills. Office south east of the Temple on Warsaw and Ripley sts.
JOS. YOUNGER, Pres't.
R. SHEPHERD, Ck.
July 18, 1845-12:3m

FOR SALE. A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 20 feet by 30 two stories high. A good well of water on the premises. Turns low for CASH. Enquire of E. T. Benson on Monson street between Palmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office.
DANIEL CUTLER.
July 14, 1845-11-1

PIANO-FORTE MUSIC. MRS. PITCHFORTH respectfully informs the inhabitants of Nauvoo, that she has commenced teaching Music on the Piano-forte, and will try to suit the circumstances of the pupils, she offers to teach at the very low rate of three dollars per quarter; so that all classes wishful to learn may be accommodated.
As Mrs. P. has had the benefit of many years instruction and several of the most scientific English and German masters, and subsequently has had much experience in teaching, she flatters herself that she will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor her with their patronage.
Reference, kindly permitted, to Elders Brigham Young and John Taylor.
Enquire for Mrs. P. at Misses Gray's, milliners, Main street, or at her own residence, corner of Granger and Parley streets, one block east of the 8-ventures Hall.
July 22-1845

FOR SALE. A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 20 feet by 30 two stories high. A good well of water on the premises. Turns low for CASH. Enquire of E. T. Benson on Monson street between Palmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office.
DANIEL CUTLER.
July 14, 1845-11-1

PIANO-FORTE MUSIC. MRS. PITCHFORTH respectfully informs the inhabitants of Nauvoo, that she has commenced teaching Music on the Piano-forte, and will try to suit the circumstances of the pupils, she offers to teach at the very low rate of three dollars per quarter; so that all classes wishful to learn may be accommodated.
As Mrs. P. has had the benefit of many years instruction and several of the most scientific English and German masters, and subsequently has had much experience in teaching, she flatters herself that she will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor her with their patronage.
Reference, kindly permitted, to Elders Brigham Young and John Taylor.
Enquire for Mrs. P. at Misses Gray's, milliners, Main street, or at her own residence, corner of Granger and Parley streets, one block east of the 8-ventures Hall.
July 22-1845

NEIGHBOR---Extra.

Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1845.

MOBBING AGAIN IN HANCOCK!

Friday morning, 10 o'clock.

We are informed that a meeting of a number of the mob, was held on Tuesday evening last, at a school house, near Baker's, in Green Plains precinct. We have not been apprized of the nature of the proceedings of that meeting, or what their deliberations were, farther than we can judge from their subsequent conduct.

A pre-concerted plan, it would seem, had been entered into: several shots were fired, by their own party, through the windows and doors of said school house,

Nothing was known by our people until the next day, when some of the same party commenced firing houses in the Morley Settlement.

We have heard that eleven buildings have been burned by the mob, viz: eight houses and three out-houses.

A messenger just arrived from that section, states that most of our people from the west part of the settlement, have removed to the east part of said settlement.

LIST OF HOUSES DESTROYED.

Father Whiting's house and chair factory—burnt,

Edmund Durphy's—core down.

Father Morley's cooper shop—burnt.

John Edmondson's house and blacksmith's shop—burnt.

Thomas King's house—burnt.

The rest of the houses not reported.

All that we shall remark on the above, is, that Colonel Williams is at the head. We had, for sometime, heard a rumor that the mob were preparing for 'further outrages,' but were really in hopes, as our people had given no provocation whatever, that law and order would govern the old citizens.

Our people, though they have been basely treated, and shot at as can be proved, have been quiet, not retaliating, even in self defence, seeking peace at all hazards. Not being then, the aggressors, we shall look with great earnestness to the old citizens and authorities of the country, to ascertain:—

Whether they will coolly remain silent spectators, while the lives of men, women, and children, are jeopardized, their houses burned, and their property destroyed; or whether they will arise and magnify the law and make it honorable.

We speak advisedly on this subject:— We have not been the aggressors, nor will we be; and we appeal to the law and the testimony, to shield us from such "outbreaks" of rioters.— Who is for peace and law?

We repeat, that we speak advisedly on this matter: Our people have not broken the law; they have borne and forborne; and they will look to the law and order citizens, and to the authorities of the land for protection from land pirates and mobocracy.

As an inducement for men to engage in mobbing, a correspondent in the Warsaw Signal, says:

"Forbearance, in this case, is contemptible and pusillanimous: it is not in accordance with the spirit of our institutions; nor does it comport with the dignity of independent men. Many of our law-abiding Anti-Mormons complain that they do not wish to violate the law. What is the law? Do these gentlemen know what the law is? Is acting counter to Ford's or Deming's will a violation of law? No, the people are the law. What have the people done? Have they not repealed the Nauvoo Charter? Have they not justified the killing of the tyrant Joe? and have they not signified their anxiety in many ways that the Mormons should leave the State,—peaceably, if they will; forcibly, if they must?" The next objection is, "that we dislike to be the aggressors. Shall we wait for them to commit some outrage against the law? Are they not doing it daily? Shall we then wait till they come out and fight us? We have had repeated evidences that they will not do it. 'Persecution' is piteously cried, instead of the clashing of brave men's armor. And thus it will be, till the depositories of corruption send hither their masses in sufficient numbers to overrun our beautiful State. Shall we withhold the club of vengeance from the viper's head, because he recoils and meanly slinks away?— If you will, citizens of Hancock, you stamp disgrace upon the American name, and entail poverty and misery upon yourselves and your posterity."

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR,

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Streets,

Naavoo, Hancock County, Ill.

Terms.—$2.00 in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING:

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 17 1/2 cents.

A liberal discount will be made to regular advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor) east gate, to receive attention.

CAPT. FREMONT'S EXPEDITION.

We find in the National Intelligencer a number of extracts from the narrative of the second expedition, which will shortly be issued from the press in Washington. These extracts we have perused with much interest.

We have derived much satisfaction and information from an attentive perusal of the narrative of the second expedition of this enterprising and talented young officer. Our opinion respecting Capt. Fremont's peculiar fitness for the position he was placed in has been already expressed. The manner in which he conducted this second expedition, amidst scenes of difficulty and danger far exceeding those which attended the first one, the highly satisfactory way in which he has discharged all the duties, and accomplished all the purposes contemplated; and the successful issue to his perilous undertaking achieved by his courage, his skill, his judgment, and, we will add, his humanity, his correct sense of moral obligation and love of right, entitle him to the highest praise.

Capt. Fremont departed on his second expedition from the little town of Kansas on the Missouri frontier, on the 29th of May, 1843. His party consisted principally of Creole and Canadian French and Americans—amounting in all to thirty-nine men; among whom were several of those who had accompanied him on his former tour. Mr. Charles Preuss was associated with the expedition in the same capacity as before. The party were armed generally with Hall's carbines, and were furnished with a brass twelve-pound howitzer. Their camp and provisions were transported in twelve carts, each drawn by two mules, and a light covered wagon, mounted on springs, conveyed the instruments.

To make the exploration as useful as possible, I determined, says Capt. Fremont, in conformity with my general instructions, to vary the route to the Rocky Mountains from that followed in the year 1842. The route then was up the valley of the Great Platte river, to the South Pass, in north latitude 42 deg.; the route down determined upon was up the valley of the Arkansas river, and to the head of the Arkansas, and to some pass in the mountains, if any could be found, at the source of that river.

By making this deviation from the former route, the problem of a new road to Oregon and California, in a climate more genial, might be solved, and a better knowledge obtained of an important river and the country it drained, while the great object of the expedition would find its point of commencement at the termination of the former, which was at that great gate in the ridge of the Rocky Mountains called the South Pass, and on the lofty peak of the mountain which overlooks it, deemed the highest peak in the ridge, and from the opposite sides of which four great rivers take their rise, and flow to the Pacific or the Mississippi.

The route appears to have been for many days through a pleasant and level prairie country, intersected with numerous streams, in general well timbered on their margin with ash, elm, cotton wood, and very large oak. This agreeable state of things did not, however, long continue; for, the narrative says:

"Shortly after leaving our encampment on the 26th June, we found suddenly that the nature of the country had entirely changed. Bare and hills every where surrounded us in the undulating ground, along which we were moving, and the plain's peculiar to a sandy soil made their appearance in abundance."

The 4th of July was spent at St. Vrain's fort, in latitude 40 deg. 16 min. 52 sec. north, and longitude west 105 deg. 12 min. 23 sec.

The party were in the neighborhood of Pike's peak on the 11th of July. We are told respecting the country through which they are now traveling, that—

"With occasional exceptions, comparatively so very small as not to require mention, these prairies are every where covered with a close and vigorous growth of a great variety of grasses, among which the most abundant is the buffalo grass, (sestertia dactyloides). Between the Platte and Arkansas rivers, that part of this region which forms the basin drained by the waters of the Kansas, with which our operations made us more particularly acquainted, is based upon a formation of calcareous rocks. The soil of all this country is excellent, admirably adapted to agricultural purposes, and would support a large agricultural and pastoral population. A glance at the map accompanying the report, along our several lines of travel, will show you that this plain is watered by many streams. Throughout the western half of the plain these are shallow, with sandy beds, becoming deeper as they reach the richer lands approaching the Missouri river; they generally have bottom lands, bordered by bluffs varying from fifty to five hundred feet in height. In all this region the timber is entirely confined to streams. In the eastern half, where the soil is a deep, rich, vegetable mould, fertile of rain and moisture, it is of vigorous growth and of many different kinds and throughout the western half it consists entirely of various species of cotton wood, which deserves to be called the tree of the desert—growing in sandy soils where no other tree will grow; pointing out the existence of water, and furnishing to the traveler fuel, and food of his animals.

On the 17th July Captain Fremont visited the celebrated springs from which the Boiling Springs river takes its name, and gives the following graphic sketch of their locality.

Leaving the camp to follow slowly, I rode ahead in the afternoon in search of the springs. In the meantime, the clouds which had been gathering all the afternoon over the mountains, began to roll down their sides; and a storm so violent burst upon me, that it appeared I had entered the store-house of the thunder storms. I continued, however, to ride along up the river until about sunset, and was beginning to be doubtful of finding the springs before the next day, when I came suddenly upon a large smooth rock about twenty yards in diameter, where the water from several springs was bubbling and boiling up in the midst of a white incrustation with which it had covered a portion of the rock. As this did not correspond with a description given me by the hunters, I did not stop to taste the water; but, dismounting, walked a little way up the river, and, passing through a narrow thicket of shrubbery bordering the stream, stepped directly upon a huge white rock, at the foot of which the river already became a rapid, foaming and boiling.

A deer which had been drinking at the spring was startled by my approach and springing across the river, bounded off across the mountain. In the upper part of the rock, which had apparently been formed by deposition, was a beautiful white basin, overhung by curran bushes, in which the cold clear water bubbled up, kept in constant motion by the escaping gas, and overflowing the rock, which it had almost entirely covered with a smooth crust of glistening white. I had all day refrained from drinking, reserving myself for the spring; and as I could not well be more wet than the rain had already made me, I lay down by the side of the basin, and drank heartily of the delightful water. The annexed sketch is only a rude one, but it will enable you to form some idea of the character of the scenery and the beauty of this spot, immediately at the foot of lofty mountains, beautifully timbered, which sweep closely round, shutting up the little valley in a kind of cove. As it was beginning to grow dark, I rode quickly down the river on which I found the camp a few miles below.

"The morning of the 18th was beautiful and clear, and all the people being anxious to drink of these famous waters, we encamped immediately at the springs, and spent there a very pleasant day. On the opposite side of the river is another locality of springs, which are entirely of the same nature. The water has a very agreeable taste, which Mr. Preuss found very much to resemble that of the famous Seltzer springs in the grand duchy of Naavoo."

July 20th.—The narrative states: "We continued our march up the stream, along a green sloping bank, between pine hills on the one hand, and the main Black hill on the other, towards the ridge which separates the waters of the Platte from those of the Arkansas. As we approached the dividing ridge, the whole valley was radiant with flowers; blue, yellow, pink, white, scarlet and purple, vied with each other in splendor. Esparcette was one of the highly characteristic plants, and a bright looking flower (gaultheria aristata) was very frequent; but the most abundant plant along our road to day was geranium maculatum, which is the characteristic plant on this portion of the dividing grounds. Crossing to the waters of the Platte, fields of blue flax added to the magnificence of this mountain garden; this was occasionally four feet in height, which was a luxuriance of growth that I rarely saw this almost universal plant attain throughout the journey."

The party were on the 2d of August on a fork of the Laramie river, in latitude 41 deg. 45 min. 50 sec., and longitude 106 deg. 47 min. 25 sec.

"At this place (says Capt. F.) I became first acquainted with the yampah (arctostaphylos) which I found our Snake woman engaged in digging in the low timbered bottom of the creek. Among the Indians along the Rocky Mountains, and more particularly among the Shoshones or Snake Indians, in whose territory it is very abundant, this is considered the best among the roots used for food. To us it was an interesting plant—a little link between the savage and civilized life. Here, among the Indians, its root is a common article of food, which they take pleasure in offering to strangers; while with us, in a considerable portion of America and Europe, the seeds are used to flavor soup. It grows more abundantly, and in greater quantities, than any of the neighboring tributaries of the Colorado than in any other part of this region; and on that stream, to which the Snakes are accustomed to resort every year to procure a supply of their favorite plant, they have bestowed the name of Yampah river. Among the trappers it is generally known as Little Snake river.

"In the afternoon we took our way directly across the spurs from the point of the mountain, where we had several ridges to cross; and although the road was not rendered bad by the nature of the ground, it was extremely rough by the stiff tough bushes of arctostaphylos, in this country commonly called sage.

"This shrub now began to make its appearance in compact fields; and we were about to quit for a long time this country of excellent pasturage and brilliant flowers. Ten or twelve buffalo bulls were seen during the afternoon; and we were surprised by the appearance of a large red ox. We gathered around him as if he had been an old acquaintance, with all our domestic feelings as much awakened as if we had come in sight of an old farm house. He had probably made his escape from some party of emigrants on Green river; and, with a vivid remembrance of some old green field, he was pursuing the straightest course for the frontier that the country admitted. We carried him along with us as a prize; and when I was found in the morning that he had wandered off, I would not let him be pursued, for I would rather have gone through a starving time of three entire days, than let him be killed after he had successfully run the gauntlet so far among the Indians. I have been told by Mr. Bent's people, of which made his escape from them at Elbow, near the frontier, having come in that year with the wagons. They were in their way out, and saw occasionally places where he had eaten and lain down to rest; but did not see him for about 700 miles, when they overtook him on the road, travelling along towards the fort, having unaccountably escaped Indians and every other mischance."

On the north fork of the Platte: "On the precipitous bluff, were displayed a succession of strata containing fossil vegetable remains, and several beds of coal. In some of the beds the coal did not appear to be perfectly mineralized; and in some of the seams it was compact and remarkably lustrous. In these latter places there were also thin layers of a very fine white salts, in powder."

"On the 13th of August the expedition took its way along the uplands, towards the dividing ridge which separates the Atlantic from the Pacific waters, and crossed it by a road some miles further south than the one we had followed on our return in 1842. We crossed very near the table mountain, at the southern extremity of the South Pass, which is not twenty miles in width, and already traversed by several different roads. Selecting, as well as I could, in the scarcely distinguishable ascent, what might be considered the dividing ridge in this remarkable depression in the mountain, I took a barometrical observation, which gave 7,490 feet for the elevation above the Gulf of Mexico. You will remember that in my report of 1842, I estimated the elevation of this pass at about 7,000 feet; a correct observation, with a good barometer enables me to give it now with more precision. Its importance, as the great gate through which commerce and travelling may hereafter pass between the valley of the Mississippi and the north Pacific, justifies a precise notice of its locality and distance from leading points. In addition to this statement of its elevation, as stated in the report of 1842, its latitude at the point where we crossed is 42 deg. 24 min. 32 sec.; its longitude 106 deg. 20 min. 00 sec.; its distance from the mouth of the Great Platte, along the valley of that river, according to our survey of 1842, 882 miles, and its distance from St. Louis about 400 miles more by the Kansas, and about 700 by the Great Platte route; these additions being steamboat conveyance, in both instances. From this pass to the mouth of the Oregon is about 1,400 miles by the common travelling route; so that, under a general point of view, it may be assumed to be about half way between the Mississippi and the Pacific ocean, on the common travelling route. Finding a hollow of light and easy descent, in which was very soon formed a little tributary to the Gulf of California (for the waters which flow west from the south pass go to this Gulf) we made a usual halt four miles from the pass, in latitude by observation 42 deg. 16 min. 53 sec. Entering here the valley of Green river—the great Colorado of the West—and inclining very much to the southward along the stream which from the Sandy river, the road led for several days over dry and level uninteresting plains to which a low, scrubby growth of Artemisia gave a uniform dull grayish color, and on the evening of the 15th we encamped in the Mexican territory, on the left bank of the Green river, 69 miles from the South Pass, in longitude 110 deg. 05 min. 05 sec., and latitude 41 deg. 25 min. 25 sec. The river flows from the mouth of the Kansas. This is the emigrant road to Oregon, which bears much to the southward, to avoid the mountains about the western heads of Green river the Rio Verde of the Spaniards."

"The proximity of Capt. Fremont to the 'Great Salt Lake,' on the August 21st, suggested following observations: "We were now entering a region which for us presented a strange and extraordinary interest. We were upon the waters of the famous lake which forms a salient point among the remarkable geographical features of the country, and around which the vague and superstitious accounts of the trappers had thrown a delightful obscurity, which we anticipated pleasure in dispelling, but which, in the mean time, left a crowded field for the exercise of our imagination."

"In our occasional conversations with the few old hunters who had visited that region, it had been a subject of frequent speculation; and the wonders which they related were not the less agreeable because they were highly exaggerated and impossible."

"Hitherto this lake had been seen only by trappers who were wandering through the country in search of new beaver streams, caring very little for geography: its islands had never been visited, and none were to be found who had entirely made the circuit of its shores, and no instrumental observations or geographical survey, of any description, had ever been made anywhere in the neighboring region. It was generally supposed that it had no visible outlet, but among the trappers, including those in my own camp, were many who believed that somewhere through which its waters found their way to the ocean by some subterranean communication. All these things had made a frequent subject of discussion in our desultory conversations around the fire at night; and my own mind had become tolerably well filled with their indefinite pictures, and insensibly colored with their romantic descriptions, which, in the pleasure of excitement, I was well disposed to believe, and half expected to realize."

Here, too, we meet with the following interesting passages:

"We continued our road down the river, and at night encamped with a family of emigrants—two men, women, and several children—who appeared to be bringing up the rear of the great caravan. I was struck with the first appearance of their cattle, some six or eight yoke of oxen, which really looked as well as if they had been all the summer at work on some good farm. It was strange to see one small family traveling along through such a country, so remote from civilization. Some nine years since, such a security might have been a fatal one; but since their disastrous defeats in the country a little north, the Blackfeet have ceased to visit these waters. Indians, however, are very uncertain in their localities; and the friendly feelings, also, of those now inhabiting it may be changed."

"Crossing, in the afternoon, the point of a narrow spur, we descended into a beautiful bottom, formed by a lateral valley, which presented a picture of home beauty that went directly to our hearts. The edge of the wood, for several miles along the river, was dotted with the white covers of emigrant wagons, collected in groups at different camps, where the smokers were rising lazily from the fires, around which the women were occupied in preparing the evening meal, and the children playing in the grass; and heads of cattle, grazing about in the bottom had an air of quiet security and civilized comfort that made a rare sight for the traveler in such a remote wilderness."

"In common with all the emigration they had been repose for several days in this delightful valley, in order to recruit their animals on its luxuriant pasturage after their long journey, and prepare them for the hard travel along the comparatively sterile banks of the Upper Columbia."

"On the 23d we had approached within something more than a mile of a Shoshone village, when suddenly a single horseman emerged from it at full speed, followed by another, and another, in rapid succession, and then party after party poured into the plain until, when the foremost rider reached us, all the intervening plain was occupied by a mass of horsemen, which came charging down upon us with runs and naked swords, lances, and bows and arrows—Indians entirely naked, and warriors full dressed, for war, with the long red streamers of their war bonnets reaching nearly to the ground—all mingled together in the bravery of savage warfare. They had been thrown into a sudden tumult by the appearance of our flag, which among these people is regarded as an emblem of hostility, it being usually borne by the Sioux and the neighboring mount in Indians when they come here to war, and we had accordingly been mistaken for a body of their enemies. A few words from the chief quieted the excitement, and the whole band, increasing every moment in number, escorted us to their encampment, where the chief pointed out a place for us to encamp, near his lodge, and made known our purpose in visiting the village. In a very short time we purchased eight horses, for which we gave in exchange blankets, red and blue cloth, beads, knives and tobacco, and the usual other articles of Indian traffic."

"We obtained from them also a considerable quantity of berries of different kinds, among which service berries were the most abundant; and several kinds of roots and seeds, which we could eat with pleasure, as any kind of vegetable food was gratifying to us. I ate here, for the first time, the kooyah, or tobacco root, (valeriana edulis), the principle edible root among the Indians who inhabit the upper waters of the streams on the western side of the mountains. It has a strong and remarkably peculiar taste and odor, which I can compare to no other vegetable that I am acquainted with, and which to some persons is extremely offensive. It was characterized by Mr. Preuss as the most disagreeable root in the evening, one of the chiefs sent his wife to me with a portion which she had prepared as a delicacy to regale us, the odor immediately drove him out of the lodge; and frequently afterwards he used to beg that when those who liked it had taken what they desired, it might be sent away. To others, however, the taste is rather an agreeable one, and I was afterwards always glad when it formed an addition to our scanty meals. It is full of nutriment; and in its unprepared state is said by the Indians to have very strong poisonous qualities, of which it is deprived by a peculiar process, being baked in the ground for about two days."

"August 25th.—We made our encampment in a grove of cedar immediately at the Bear Springs, which, on account of the effervescing gas and acid taste, have received their name from the voyageurs and trappers of the country, who, in the midst of their rude and hard lives, are fond of finding some fancied resemblance to the luxuries they rarely have the fortune to enjoy."

"Although somewhat disappointed in the expectations which various descriptions had led me to form of unusual beauty of situation and scenery, I found it altogether a place of very great interest; and a traveler for the first time in a volcanic region remains in a constant excitement, and at every step is arrested by something remarkable and new. There is a confusion of interesting objects gathered together in a small space. Around the place of encampment the Bear Springs were numerous; but as far as we could ascertain, were entirely confined to that locality in the bottom. In the bed of the river in front, for a several hundred yards, they were very abundant; the effervescing gas rising up and agitating the water in countless bubbling columns."

"In the vicinity round about were numerous springs of an entire different and equally marked mineral character. In a rather picturesque spot, about 1,300 yards below our encampment, and immediately on the river bank, is the most remarkable spring of the place. In an opening on the rock, a white column of scattered water is thrown up, in form like a jet d'eau, to a visible height of about three feet, and, though it is maintained in a constant supply, its great height is a raised only at regular intervals, according to the action of the force below. It is accompanied by a subterranean noise, which, together with the motion of the water, makes very much the impression of a steamboat in motion; and without knowing that it had been already previously noticed, we gave it the name of the Steamboat Spring.

"The rock through which it forced is slightly raised in a convex manner, and gathered at the opening into an urn-mouthed form, and is evidently formed by continued deposition from the water and colored bright red by oxide of iron. It is a hot spring, and the water has a pungent and disagreeable metallic taste, leaving a burning effect on the tongue. Within perhaps two yards of the jet d'eau, a small hole of about an inch in diameter, through which a blast of hot air with a light wreath of smoke, accompanied by a regular noise. This hole had been noticed by Doctor Wislizenus, a gentleman who several years since passed by this place, and who remarked, with very nice observation, that smelling the gas which issued from the orifice produced a sensation of giddiness and nausea. Mr. Preuss and myself repeated the observation, and were well satisfied with its correctness that we did not find it pleasant to continue the experiment, as the sensation of giddiness which it produced was certainly strong and decided. A huge migrant wagon, with a large and diversified family, had overtaken us and halted at noon at our encampment; and, while we were sitting at the spring, a band of boys and girls, with two or three young men, came up, one of whom I asked to stoop down and smell the gas, to satisfy myself further of its effects. But his natural caution had been awakened by the singular and suspicious features of the place, and he declined my proposal decidedly, and with a few indistinct remarks about the devil, whom he seemed to consider the genius loci. The ceaseless motion and the play of the fountain, the red rock, and the green trees near, make this a picturesque spot."

"Western Mountains and Rivers on the route to Oregon.—The National Intelligencer contains a very interesting sketch of Captain Fremont and company's trip to Oregon, being his third expedition in account of Government, and the intelligence he gives of that country is highly important and valuable. The Rocky Mountains, he says, are not different places, instead of being desolate and impassable they are shown to have many excellent passes, of which the South pass is the finest, and to embrace beautiful valleys, rivers, and parks, with lakes and mineral springs, rivaling and surpassing the most enchanting parts of the Alpine regions in Switzerland. The Great Salt Lake, one of the wonders of nature, and perhaps without a rival in the world, (being a saturated solution of salt, of a hundred miles in diameter,) is for the first time revealed to our view, by one who has surveyed its shores and navigated its waters.—The Bear River valley, with its rich bottoms, fine grass, walled up mountains, hot springs, mineral springs, soda fountains, volcanic rock, volcanic crater, and saline effluences, and four thousand five hundred feet above the sea, is for the first time described. The same of the Sierra Nevada,—of the rivers Sacramento and San Joaquin which constitute the waters of the Bay of San Francisco—and the same of the Great Desert, and its Arab inhabitants, which lies south of the latitude of that bay, and extends many degrees east, towards the Rocky Mountains. None of these objects have heretofore been described by any traveller."

"The Beneventura river which has a place on so many maps, and whose course is traced from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, is declared to have no existence but in the imagination of writers and map makers. Of the Geographical discoveries and descriptions, the most striking is that of the Great Basin or vast interior plane which lies between the Sierra Nevada and the Rocky Mountains east and west, and between the blue mountains and the Wahatch on the South, and embracing an area of five or six hundred miles in diameter. The elevation of the Sierra Nevada being more lofty than the Rocky Mountains accounts for the formation of this Great Basin, as Captain Fremont calls it, and of which he is the first to announce its existence to the world. A basin which may hold such a kingdom as France, and which has for its rim a circle of mountains whose summits penetrate the regions of eternal snow is certainly a new and grand object to be revealed."

THE DELAWARE OUTRAGE—MORE ARRESTS. INTERESTING PARTICULARS.

We are indebted to the Albany Argus for an Extra containing the following letter:

DELA. Aug. 21, 1845.

Yesterday, Richard Morse, a Justice of the Peace of the town of Andes, had an examination before N. H. Hildway, Esq. Morse is a leading Abolitionist in this town, and a man of considerable influence. He has administered the oath of secrecy, or, as they call it, the Indian oath, to several who were in the affray of the 7th, stated, before that day, that if any one should appear and bid at the sale, they would be "floored" or "knocked down" so quick that they would not know what hurt them; and that under the new law, the offender would have to be tried in the town where the offence was committed, and that no warrant could be obtained against such offender in the town of Andover. Another justice of the same town has officiated on several occasions in administering a like oath. Morse was present on the 7th, had conversation with the Indians, and when desired, in common with other citizens, to assist in preserving the peace, would not. He was committed to answer to the charge of aiding, abetting, and assembling with armed and disguised men to resist the execution of process.

Last evening two prisoners were brought in from Middleton, John Beedle and Dr. Jonathan Alabun—Alabun has been a lecturer, and at a meeting of the National Reform Association, in New York, made a bitter and vile attack upon the reputation of our late under Sheriff Steele. —The indictment pending against him in Ulster county, for some participation in the outrages in that county.

"This morning, Daniel W. Squires was on examination, committed to answer the charge of procuring the attendance at the sale on the 8th, of disguised and armed men, urging them to gain the victory now, if ever.

John Rush and Alex. S. Grant were also brought before the Justice, and waiting for examination, were committed—the former for being present disguised and armed, and participating in the outrage committed in March last in Andes.

The whole number committed to answer by the Justice is eighteen. Of this number, twelve have been committed on their own confessions, charged with having, on the 7th of August inst., at Andes, assembled together, with more than three others, armed and in disguise, to prevent the execution of civil process, and also while so assembled armed and in disguise feloniously "killing N. O. Steele, under Sheriff, &c."

The posse which left here on Monday noon, under Col. B. T. Cooke, of Franklin, hearing that some Chiefs from this County, Scudder among the number, were met by a messenger from the Sheriff of Schoharie, informing them that the Indians had lately made a stand at Brimstone Meeting-house in Blenheim, and would fight—advising them to go to Gilboa, where the Sheriff had a posse, and unite their forces before attacking them. Gen. Griffin, who was with the Delaware posse, replied, "we have come to fight!" and proceeded directly to the stand occupied by the posse. It seems there, were about side of which was an Indian Chief, and another, who said, "Victory or death." On the other side, King, show your title! they were the tenants of John A. King. They dispersed about an hour before the arrival of the Delaware posse, taking with them their flag. The posse scoured the country for some four or five miles round, found one mask in the meeting house, and 15 or 20 Indian dresses in a barn near, and took 11 prisoners, none of whom were disguised—most of them were men against whom indictments are pending in Schoharie. None of the fugitives of this county were captured—although some information was received.

A posse under the command of T. Corbin, left here on Tuesday for Middleton and Colchester, intending to join one which left the day before, under Col. Wheeler, and together to visit the Beaver Kill, Sullivan county, where it is said a large number of Indians from this county are sequestered. They sent in two prisoners who arrived last evening, since which no word has been received.

I am told by gentlemen who have visited the infected town that it is melancholy to witness the loss of property which must have already followed this outbreak. Great numbers of farmers who have completed their haying and harvesting, fled before they were pursued, save by a guilty conscience, and have left their crops unprotected and unharvested.

Two prisoners have been brought in this evening from the East Branch. Their names are Scott and Russell—they are implicated. They were arrested about one o'clock this morning. Looking rather suspicious and giving no satisfactory account of themselves, they were taken and sent in. The whole number of arrests made is 67, including the 11 arrested in Schoharie.

S.

THE DELAWARE OUTRAGE—LATER NEWS

Correspondence of the Argus.

DELI., Aug. 22, 1845.

The posse under Col. Cooke returned from Blochheim last evening, bringing one prisoner, taken near Hobart. His name is Andrews. The two men arrested near the mouth of the Beaver Kill and brought in last evening, were Henry S. Russell and Francis Scott. They were examined this morning before the Coroner. They have been Indians and belonged to what is called the Boinna tribe. They both confessed being present, armed and disguised, at the time of Steele's death. The posse under Corbin, which left on Tuesday, is still out. A small detachment from his force came in this morning bringing with them six prisoners. Two Kelleys, (father and son,) William Morrison, Atkins. —Hampden, the name of the sixth I did not ascertain.

In listening to the circumstances connected with this horrid affair, as they are detailed by the witnesses before the Coroner, one is forcibly reminded of "The othering," described by Scott in the of the Lake. For days and days before the one appointed for the sale, messengers, sworn to secrecy, were notifying the natives of the time and place, and urging them to strike the blow now if ever—and as the various tribes were notified, each held their secret meetings to perfect their plans. These were held at night in some secret place where interruption was not likely, and one by one they found their way to the place of rendezvous. Matters having been talked over and their plans arranged, they dispersed as silently as they had assembled each to their separate homes. The place of meeting was in the woods, or in some open space, away from any honest man's house, to avoid the possibility of surprise. There was an impression, a rumor, that a blow was to be struck, but not one of the three or four hundred spectators at the sale, who have thus far been before the Coroner, could or would tell where it came from. So bold, systematic, and reckless an assault upon the supremacy of the law is almost without a parallel.

Facts have come out during the progress of this investigation which leave no doubt that have been engaged in inciting our people to open and murderous rebellion. We are not, and have not been, contending merely against the lawless and desperate of our own county, but those of Schoharie, Greene and Ulster. It is known that there was one tribe of sixty natives from one of those three counties, present in disguise and armed, on the day of sale. So wide-spread and formidable a conspiracy, it is believed here, should be met with the whole power of the State; and it is onerous and unjust to leave the burden of sustaining the law, I may say for the whole State, upon the shoulders of the people of this county.

The Coroner's Jury is still in session. Daily eliciting important facts, the publication of which, however, might tend to defeat the ends of justice.

CHAPTER OF EVENTS.
(Selected from an exchange.)

The Cholera.—Intelligence from Bombay to the 19th of June, says that the wide-spread ravages of the cholera had put a stop throughout India generally, to every thing of a political character. In Lahore alone, and the cantonments around it, the number of deaths from this cause had been at times between five and six hundred daily. The town was almost deserted. In Peshawar, likewise, the cholera had made great devastation, but it was on the decline.

Further Developments.—Seven of the "black egg gang" have been arrested at Lafayette, La. The inhabitants were so enraged that they took them and common property, and then they whipped them. He had rather die than suffer what he had seen. A respite was granted him for a few moments, when he began to disclose the persons engaged with them through the country; and also told the people where they would find any amount of stolen property. One of the men taken is the man who burned the "American House" in Lafayette, as he owned the deed on the spot. The name of one of the men taken is Gould, and is the head man of the "gang" in Lafayette. This Gould says many of the "gang" have their "head quarters" in Peru, Ill., and that an "old settler" in Peru is the "Bell Wether" of the "gang" in that region. It is known that this "Bell Wether" at Peru did receive a portion of the money that was taken from Milford, and that only a few weeks ago he received stolen horses from some of the "gang," probably from Birch and Sutton. And yet the people of Peru so far as we know, keep quiet. Why they not make a break on the fellow, whoever he may be? Give the people his name and whereabouts. Out on him some of you honest men of Peru.

We understand that those taken at Lafayette have been made to go through a process, termed "stretching hemp." Two weeks ago we gave a little description of "Red Jacket" at Dixon. We now further learn that a letter from him, to one of his comrades up in the Territory of Wisconsin, was intercepted in its route and found to contain the information of Bridge's arrest, and wishing his comrades to come to help rescue him. We would like to know if the honest men of Dixon will yet keep, or let such a man remain in their place.

Another Collision and Drath.—The steamer Express, on her passage from Albany on Wednesday evening, the 23d ult., came in collision with a schooner bound up the river, near the New Baltimore landing. One man, a passenger on board the Express, was killed, and a number much hurt. The passengers attribute the blame rather to those on-board the schooner than to the pilot or captain of the steamer.

Sickness on Board the Frigate Constitution.—A letter has been received in Baltimore, from on board the United States Ship Constitution, dated off Singapore February 15th, which states that there has been a great deal of sickness on board that vessel. There had been as high as one hundred and fifty on the Doctor's list, with dysentery, of whom one officer and thirteen of the crew met with a watery grave before they reached Quallah Battoo.

Riot in Meigs County.—Quite a serious riot occurred lately at Graham's Station, Meigs county, according to the Times of Pomeroy. A Dr. Cunningham, used some language in a temperance lecture that gave serious offence, and a determination was expressed to prevent him from lecturing again. The affair reached such a pitch finally as to require the intervention of the authorities. They attempted to arrest the ringleaders in the affair, but were resisted, and clubstones and knives were used by the assailants and several persons injured. The rioters escaped. Taking the alarm, the peaceable portion of community called to the aid of some men of their own character from Pomeroy, Chester & Letart. A posse of 70 men well armed, proceeded to the scene of action, and succeeded in arresting several of the rioters, although the ringleaders escaped. —Columbus (Ohio) Journal.

Just before 10 o'clock on Saturday evening fire was discovered in the lower story of Henry B. Blair's Coffee and Spice Factory, No. 178 Washington-street New York, which destroyed a large stock of spices as well as a three story brick building. Mr. Blair is unable as yet to estimate his loss, but he is insured for 4,000 dollars at the Mutual Office. He attributes the fire to the act of an incendiary, as it originated in the front of the store among some bags of coffee to which it could only have been communicated by fire. The building was owned by J. V. Appara, who was fully insured.

A fire broke out at 11 o'clock on Friday night in East Brooklyn, in the Button Factory of Andrew Peck, which, with its contents, was destroyed. Loss 1500 dollars—1000 dollars insured in Williamsburg.

THE NEIGHBOR.
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1845.

THE MOB AND THE BURNING.

We said but little on the savage barbarity of the mob and burning, in Hancock county, last week. Not that we wished to keep back the glaring sins of white men, or pretended freemen, of Americans, of Illinoisans, but for particulars, and time to reflect.

We have heard of the dreadful civil or uncivil war among the Syrians, Druses, Turks and Christians; and the awful smothering of the Arabs by the French at Dahara, on the Eastern Continent the past season; we have read the Christian Martyrs of what is called the dark ages; and we are acquainted with some history of the cruelty of the Indians, scalping living victims, burning them to death with pine knots; but all these samples of vengeance dwindle into insignificance, compared to the religious persecution of the mob against the Mormons, in Hancock county, Illinois!

The Turks, the French, the Indians and even the Missourians, put an end to the sufferings of their victims, by death in some tolerable speedy method; but the mob of Hancock, with Col. Williams at the head, have a longer reach of bloody suspension; they drive the men, force the women from houses, take the sick children, and leave the whole to perish in the scorching sun.

As will be seen by the Sheriff's second proclamation, he failed to quell the rioters, and came near losing his life. Probably a quick stoppage of one of the ringleaders, by one of the Sheriff's posse, was his salvation.

Although the mob have continued to burn property, and molest our people, still, intent on maintaining "law and order," they have borne and forbore, in the laudable hope that there will be virtue enough among the people and authorities of the State to save her Constitutional rights from eternal ruin.

The Mormons are not the only sufferers. E. A. Bell, Esq., Post-master and Justice of the Peace at Warsaw, and Chaney Robinson, Esq., Post-master and County Recorder, at Carthage, have been forcibly expelled from their several offices and homes, and others are ordered to leave, or take up arms against the Mormons.

If the United States, or Illinois, tamely submits to such high handed mobocracy, we may calculate that liberty has bargained with undertakers to bury her emaciated corpse, as soon as she can get a chance to commit suicide!

Go and tell England that Illinois, instead of loaning money of her, to make railroads and canals, will neqt millions to pay her mob debts. But we must stop; the topic is too horrible to be discussed at present. We will only add a few affidavits, and leave the world to judge whether the Hancock or Illinois mob, is guilty of arson by burning and treason by driving, &c.:

State of Illinois, }
County of Hancock, } ss.

Be it remembered, that on this 16th day of September, A. D. 1845, personally came before me, Daniel H. Wells, a Justice of the Peace in said county, William H. Fellows, who being duly sworn according to law deposes and says, that on the night following the fifteenth inst., a number of men came to the house where he resided and carried the furniture and things out of the house, and ordered the family to leave forthwith, whereupon so soon as the house could be cleared, they set it on fire they also set the two barns on fire, all of which were burned to the ground. The fire also consumed about five hundred bushels of thrashed wheat, and two stacks, one of oats and one of straw; the barns were full of hay and grain.

And this deponent further states that one Michael Barnes, and Thomas L. Barnes, were two of the persons concerned in this crime of arson, and this deponent says that the said Michael and Thomas L. Barnes are guilty of the facts charged, and further this deponent saith not.

WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 16th day of September, A. D. 1845.

DANIEL H. WELLS, J. P.

State of Illinois, }
County of Hancock, } ss.

Be it remembered, that on the seventeenth day of September, A. D. 1845, personally came before me, Daniel H. Wells, an acting Justice of the Peace within and for the said county, Sarah Ann Everts, who, being duly sworn according to law, deposed and saith that on the night of the fifteenth inst., a number of men came to the residence of this deponent about the hour of midnight, and ordered this deponent, who was lying sick at the time with the ague and fever, together with the balance of the family including five persons, two of whom, besides myself, being sick, to get up immediately and leave the house, and immediately commenced carrying the furniture and things out of the house. She remonstrated with them, told them that she was sick; that she could not safely get up and go out; but all to no purpose; they assisted her out and immediately set fire to the house, and also the barn, which were burned to the ground; also about four hundred bushels of wheat thrashed out and stacks of grain were burned; and this deponent further states that one Michael Barnes, was one of the persons concerned in the said crime of arson, and this deponent further states that the said Michael Barnes is guilty of the facts charged, and further this deponent saith not.

SARAH ANN EVARTS.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 17th day of September, A. D. 1845.

DANIEL H. WELLS, J. P.

State of Illinois, }
County of Hancock, } ss.

Be it remembered, that on this the seventeenth day of September, A. D. eighteen hundred and forty-five, personally came before me, Daniel H. Wells, an acting Justice of the Peace, Phoebe Hallett, who being duly sworn according to law, deposed and saith: I live in Hancock county; on Thursday the eleventh day of September, three men, armed, rode up to my husband's house, and as he was about to ride away, ordered him to stop; he not doing so, believing them to be mob, one of the company fired upon him, by the name of William Spencer; another of the same company, named Adam Snider, snapped his gun at him; but it missed fire. The above named men told me to move my things out of the house that day as they were going to destroy the place. This deponent further states that the said William Spencer and Adam Snider, are guilty of the facts charged as above, and further this deponent saith not.

PHOEBE HALLETT.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 17th day of September, A. D. 1845.

DANIEL H. WELLS, J. P.

State of Illinois, }
County of Hancock, } ss.

Be it remembered, that on this 17th day of September, A. D. 1845, personally appeared before me, Daniel H. Wells, an acting Justice of the Peace, Ann Tuttle, and deposed as follows: I live in Hancock county; I saw Adam Snider set fire to Thomas King's house, and oat stack, on the 11th ult.; I also saw in company with said Snider, James Gooden, Harrison Archer, and John Hill; I testify that the above named persons were guilty of the act above stated; and further this deponent saith not.

ANN A. TUTTLE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 17th day of September, A. D. 1845.

DANIEL H. WELLS, J. P.

Be it remembered, that on this the seventeenth day of September, A. D. eighteen hundred and forty-five, personally came before me, Daniel H. Wells, an acting Justice of the Peace, Sarah Carter, who being duly sworn according to law, deposed and saith:—

I live in Hancock county; on Thursday the eleventh day of September, year aforesaid, a company of men, some on foot and some on horses, came to the shop owned by my husband, close by the house, and a man named Martin Taylor, I believe was the one who tore the door off from its hinges, and went in with others; my little boy wished to take some wagon wheels and tools out of the shop, but they would not permit him; they then fired it, and burnt it with all the tools, &c. A man from the company then came and told me to clear my house in two hours, or it should be laid in ashes, house and every thing in it; and further, this deponent saith Martin Taylor is guilty of the facts charged, and further this deponent saith not.

SARAH CARTER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 17th day of September, A. D. 1845.

DANIEL H. WELLS, J. P.

Further Particulars of the Mob.—The Mob continued to burn houses up till this evening, having burnt probably from 70 to 80, and many thousand bushels of wheat, and other grain.

The Sheriff and his posse, under the second proclamation, have done much towards stilling the house burners, having cured three to day and one yesterday of the mob fever. It has been said, that desperate cases require desperate doses, and if the people and authorities of other counties, (Adams having already commenced operations by indictments for house burning) join the law party, the work will be done.

Writs are in course of issuing against all that have been identified in the burning, and they will be enforced, "peaceably if they can, and forcibly if they must."

We feel glad that the Sheriff's posse have the power, carb, and laudable humanity, to spare the mobber's wives, children, houses and property. Severe mercy mingled with "cold drops," to those that have nothing but the passions of brutes, is justifiable legal, and highly beneficial, as a warning to desperadoes, but never tamper with women, distress children, and destroy property for sport or revenge; nobody but cowards, barbarians, and murderers will do it. Nor will any but the same kind of beasts justify such hellish acts.

Coming to.—The "Daily Morning Courier," of Quincy, of the 16th inst., upon the Warsaw Signal's righteousness and doctrines, and the mob doing in Hancock, holds forth the following:

"Such an appeal is 'contemptible.' It has evidently been written by one engaged in the turmoil, and such principles are unworthy of the advocacy of a republican press. We have, all equal rights—and our Constitution cannot be construed to effect an expulsion of men who sin in professing a creed not exactly in unison with those of their fellow-citizens. If there be 'black sheep' among them, so there are in all classes and denominations; but an indiscriminate warfare against the whole sect we consider unjust, cowardly and bigoted.

We have never until this time, evinced or felt sympathy for the Mormons, as a sect; but with the unlawful proceedings of the antics starting us in the face, we cannot but feel some; we hope the difficulty may be speedily settled, and at the same time, that the aggressors may be made to feel the strong arm of the law, in order that it may act as a salutary check upon invaders of equal rights and private property. Below we give the Proclamation of Sheriff Backenstos."

Pretty good Mr. Courier, and experience of past ages shows that the only remedy by which "aggressors may be made to feel the strong arm of the law," is blue laws lawfully administered when the spasms are burning hot.

"Law and Order."—There is a great deal of speculation upon the term—law and order at present, and perhaps there will be much application of the same words; to the recent transactions in this county.

When there were riots in Philadelphia, both parties, or at least the press spoke of law and order.

In the midst of the anti-rent war in New York, there is an immense cry of law and order.

On the subject of transporting C. M. Clay's press from Lexington to Cincinnati, there are papers publishing, law and order.

The Syrians and Turks upon the subject of slaughtering each other like savages, will find consolation in law and order.

The French, with their apologists, for running the Arabs into a cave, and smoking and burning to death a thousand men, women and children, will pass through the crucible of public opinion by law and order.

And lastly—the mob in Hancock, who have committed a worse outrage than either of the above, by driving out sick men, women and children, and burning their houses and grain, whereby they might perish in the open air, will call upon a christian people to graciously sustain the temper, trover, or mischief, (must not call it by its right name, ARSON, MURDER AND TREASON,) and let them roll along in good society, under the broad folds of the Constitution, sweetened with law and order. Ah! Ah! Oh! what tokens the Millennium!

Saints whose houses and property are burned by the "mob in Hancock," to keep a record, noting all the incidents of sickness, cruelty, threats of life, loss of life, &c., substantiated by affidavits, so that we can publish the facts to the world, at the horrible persecutions of the saints in the State of Illinois.

Fare to the Mountains &c.—Any thing relative to the fare to the Rocky Mountains, is seized as a choice morsel because the western population, have, for the past two or three years, turned a large portion of their energies and emigration that way. And in fact, the United States government, like the man that over slept himself finding the Sun two or three hours high, is beginning to rub open his eyes and exclaim, "well I guess I must try and do something, seeing the way is open."

Not however, at this time do we wish to descant upon the propriety or impropriety of going to Oregon or California, but merely to keep pace with the improvements and enterprise of the day: One writer says that the "recent military expedition of Col. Kearney to the 'South Pass' of the Rocky Mountains, has settled, beyond the possibility of doubt, the question of the feasibility of military travel in those far-off regions. The grass of the prairie, in its profuse growth, affords the best provender for horse and cattle; while vehicles meet with nothing to obstruct their course from independence to the shores of the Pacific, as has been satisfactorily proven by our Oregon emigrating parties. All experience goes to show that military expeditions, taking the range of these regions, can exist and vigorously prosecute the purposes for which they were organized, without any dependence whatever on the commissary department, after having once been placed in commission. Captain Fremont, in his recent report, bears testimony to the fact, that in the winter months, even in the mountains, the nourishment contained in the dry or old grass; hay of nature's own manufacture; yields ample subsistence for horses and cattle.

These facts are new and interesting in the history of military operations. It has been a clog and draw back to all rapid military expeditions, the fact of not being independent of the commissary department; the delays experienced in waiting for necessary supplies of provisions greatly retarding their operations, and it would be safe to say, in numerous instances preventing a successful issue; celerity of movement in warlike undertakings being esteemed as the desirable object.

It is a matter of some importance, therefore, to know that operations can be carried on in any part of our extensive country without experiencing frustrating delays. Col. Kearney's recent tour of 3,100 miles occupied but one hundred days."

This is all right, and we think if good; industrious law abiding men get into the "Far West," they will make the wilder-pass blossom as the rose; provided they do not intrude upon the rights of the "Red Men," whenever the whites have touched the "poor Indian's" rights, God has given them just power enough to chasten their oppressors. Remember that.

Late Foreign News.—The Caledonia arrived at Boston on the 3d inst. brings news to August 19th.

The Queen has prorogued Parliament and gone on a visit to Germany to see her Dutch friends!

Spain is full of conspiracies. The Northern kingdoms are all making merry because the Queen is on the Continent.

Switzerland is in a most agitated state, notwithstanding public order is, generally speaking, established and maintained. The exasperation that exists between the religious and the radical party is most intense, and there seems every probability that nothing less than fighting it out will put an end to it. Alas that fellow-countrymen should bear such hostility to each other, as to be inclined to shed each other's blood.

Wreck of the Steamer E. E.—The Oswego Palladium, says, that this ill-fated boat is now nearly all recovered. Both boilers, the shafts, part of the hull, and other minor parts have been brought up and taken into port. She has all this while been lying about three miles off Cattaraugus pier, in 66 feet of water. The business is conducted by an enterprising citizen of Silver Creek, or Hanover, who employs a brig, and machinery managed by some 30 or 40 men, with the diving bell to direct operations. He has $5,000, if successful in the undertaking. The weather of late has been very favorable for business.

When the Oceans roll back to their old place, if speculators only had a chance, wouldn't they make money by raising the wrecks and ruins that now strew the bottom of the seas?

Duelling on Lacing.—The emblems of honor and pride are the ballet and string—A gentleman uses the former in the place of law, and the lady applies the latter in the shape of fashion; and both work for death for nothing and find it expensive.

Why do the laws of the United States and the several States resemble the sky to foreigners? Because so much mobocracy committed with impunity makes them appear blue.

Fall.—During the past week we have been reminded of fall by the coolness of the weather and "The brown tops of the mountains."

Starlight Moonshine.—Willis, who is cracking his wit in London, and throwing it into New York, thus dashes an apple egg into the N. Y. Mirror:

"My dear Morris—Four or five of the first singers of the world in one cast, of a 'benefit night,' at the opera, and the four first dancing women of the world in the ballet that accompanies it, are (in the heaven of theatrical stalling) like a starlight evening lit exclusively with moons."

We have heard of gold iron wedges; silver steel needles, cast iron mill stones, white black birds; wooden nut mugs, and basswood hams; but never, no never, till Willis opened the blinds of his upper garret, have we had a glimpse of starlight moonshine!

PROCLAMATION,
No. 2.
To the Citizens of Hancock County, Ill., and the Surrounding Country.

It is truly painful that my first proclamation did not have the desired effect of quelling the mob in Hancock county; I was strong in the hope that when men, engaged in such fiendish and wicked purposes, come to reflect, after the excitement of the moment, would cease, and go to their homes.

The burning and destruction of and other property was commenced on the 10th day of September instant, by a body of armed men, who gathered in the south west part of this county, headed, as it is said, by the notorious Levi Williams: the mob is spreading itself in different directions: some of the mob have been in pursuit of me since Wednesday afternoon about 3 o'clock; they have pursued me on the public road and have threatened my life; they levelled their arms at me, and desisted only when fired upon and the fear of death put them in mind of their illegal mob proceedings. On yesterday, an armed force undertook to take me; I became apprised of their intentions—evaded them, and fled to Bear Creek, where I had a posse constituted, and from thence I repaired, for the second time, to Warsaw, to ascertain if any reliable force could be procured in that place. I became satisfied that I could get no aid from that place.

I became further satisfied that my life was sought by some of the mobbers, lurking about that town. This information was communicated to me by some personal friends who had free intercourse with, and the confidence and secret intentions of those desperadoes. My friends of Warsaw considered my life in danger and advised me not to go out, but to remain sequestered in some safe place; but my business as an officer of the peace demanded my departure from that place. I procured the aid of a personal friend to guard me out of that place into the prairie some 3 or 4 miles. All my friends advised me, that should I meet or see men with arms, that I had better evade them, and under no considerations get into their hands. After parting with the gentleman who so kindly escorted me thus far I had traveled about a mile and a half when I discovered an armed body of some 20 or more men on the Warsaw and Carthage road two or three miles eastward of me and going towards Warsaw. I watched them, and on discovering that 4 men of the force, mounted on horse, left the main body, apparently to strike a point in advance of me, with all the speed of their horses, and finding that they were in pursuit of me, I put the whip to my horse, as I was travelling in a buggy, they taking a near cut, evidently gained on me.

The chase lasted for a distance of about two miles, when I fortunately overtook three men with teams. I immediately informed them that armed men were pursuing me, evidently to take my life. I summoned them as a posse to aid me in resisting them. I dismounted and took a position in the road, with pistol in hand, when one of them held his musket in a shooting attitude, whereupon one of my posse fired, and it is believed, took effect on one of the lawless bandits. We remained and stood our ground, prepared for the worst, for about ten minutes. The mobbers, retreating some little distance, made no further assault, but finally retreated. I then made my way for the city of Nauvoo, where I am at this time. Knowing the plans and designs of the mob faction in our county, I am induced to be thus full and minute in detailing the particulars of those seeking my life, because I dare take steps as a peace officer to put an end to the proceedings of the most lawless, disgraceful, and inhuman bandit that ever infested our State. Inasmuch as I have in vain applied to the citizens of this county, without the limits of the city of Nauvoo, therefore.

I, Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of the County of Hancock and State of Illinois, in the name of the people of said State, and by virtue of the authority in me vested, hereby again solemnly command the mobbers and rioters throughout this county to disperse, desist, and forthwith go to their homes under the penalty of the laws of our country, and such other consequences as may follow:

And I hereby call upon, and likewise command every able bodied man throughout the county, to arm themselves in the best possible manner, and to resist any and all further violence on the part of the mob, and to permit no further destruction of property, and to arrest all those engaged in this wicked proceeding and destruction of property, and threatening of lives, and I further command that the posse comitatus repair to the nearest points invaded by the rioters, and to defend at the point of the Bayonet, and at all hazards the lives and property of the peaceable citizens, and again reinstate the supremacy of the laws.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Sheriff, Hancock County, Ill.
Sept. 16th, A. D. 1845,
half past 2 o'clock P. M.

P. S. It is but proper to state that the Mormon community have acted with more than ordinary forbearance—remaining perfectly quiet and offering no resistance, when their dwelling, other buildings and stacks of grain &c. were set on fire in their presence, and they have foreborne until forbearance is no longer a virtue.

The notorious Col. Levi Williams, who is at the head of the mob, has ordered out the Militia of this Brigade, comprising Hancock, McDonough, and Schuyler counties, but it is to be hoped that no good citizen will join out and aid him or others in the overthrow of the laws of our country, and it is certain that no good citizen will cross the Mississippi river with the design to aid the rioters.

J. B. B. Sheriff.

PROCLAMATION: No. 3.

To the citizens of Hancock County, and the surrounding country:

WHEREAS the community at large may and do expect at my hands, a fair and impartial statement of facts, with regard to the riot which has been raging, and is still continuing its ravages with the firebrand and otherwise; since the issuing of my second proclamation the mob have become more infuriated than ever:

The Post Master at Carthage, Channey Robison, Esq., who is also County Recorder, was compelled to flee from Carthage with his family in order that their lives might be spared. Capt. Rose the Treasurer and Assessor of Hancock County was also expelled from his residence in Carthage and obliged to flee to some secure place with his family for safety. At Warsaw Edward A. Bedell, Esq., Post Master of that place and a Justice of the Peace of the Warsaw Precinct, was obliged to flee to save his life, giving him but a half minute time to prepare to go. These gentlemen have been driven from their homes by force of arms, and threats of immediate death, if they offered any resistance.

Messrs. Bedell & Robison, are well known with very many citizens of the adjoining counties and they are favorably known too, and are amongst our very best citizens in Hancock (and if there be any merit in it, they rank among the oldest settlers of this county.) Capt. Rose, is much respected by all honorable men with whom he is acquainted. On the night of the 15th instant an armed mob surrounded my residence at Carthage in search of me as they said, greatly terrified my wife and children, demanded entrance to search my house, and informed Mrs. B. that I must leave Hancock county immediately under the penalty of consequence, which meant death.

On the night of the 16th, I raised an armed force of mounted men to march to Carthage, to rescue my family and others threatened. On entering the town we were fired upon by some of the mobbers, who instantly fled. My heart sickens when I think of the distressed situation in which I found my family, in the hands of a gang of black hearted villains, guilty of all the crimes known to our laws. It is however due to say, that there are a few of the Carthaginians and Warsaw people, who have heretofore acted with the mob faction, who are opposed to this riot, yet, up to this time, they have not joined the standard of law and order; the families which I designed to rescue had all fled, with the exception of Mrs. Deming, the widow of the late Gen. Deming, who was of opinion that she might escape their vengeance, inasmuch as the death of her husband so recently, it was thought, had appeased their wrath against that family.

After we had entered the town, persons were seen running about with fire brands. Anticipating their intention of firing their own buildings in order to charge the same upon the posse comitatus under my command, we immediately took steps to prevent this, by threatening to put to the sword all those engaged in firing the place.

We then directed our march towards Warsaw, and on reaching a point midway to that place, I was informed of new depredations by the mob. I sent my family to Nauvoo for safety, under a small guard, and took up a line of march in the direction of the rising smoke. On reaching a point about three miles from the rising flames, I divided the posse comitatus, in order to surround those engaged in the burning; we were discovered by them. On our approach, the mobbers took flight, the posse pursuing with directions to arrest them if possible, and to fire upon them if they would not be arrested. The house burners retreating towards one of their strong places at the speed of their horse, a part of the posse, pursuing at full speed, and firing upon them, killing two, and wounding, it is believed others. This occurred on Bear Creek, about two o'clock this afternoon.

I commanded one of the detachments in person, and authorized the person who commanded the other. As I was then satisfied that the burners had fled from that place, we directed our line of march northwardly, when we were informed of the approach of a reinforcement of mounted men, who were ordered to reconnoitre, to see the people to defend, and aid them in defending the settlement against the depredations of the mob. We then directed our course to Nauvoo, performing a forced march of about 65 miles in the space of 20 hours. This expedition is the first effort at resistance to mob violence in the county, since the outbreak. I have now a posse comitatus, numbering upwards of 2000 well armed men, firm and ready to aid me in suppressing the riot, and in arresting them. I am happy in informing the citizens that 2000 additional armed men hold themselves in readiness to be called out when necessary.

To those honorable and worthy citizens in the adjoining counties, who have professed their aid in quelling this disgraceful mob, I will say, after returning my grateful acknowledgements for the kind interest which they have manifested in defence of the rights of American citizens, the Constitution and the laws of our beloved country, that as yet, I have confidence that I can command force sufficient within this county, to arrest or if that fails, to put to the sword every villain engaged in this inhuman outrage; I am sanguine of success, whether my life be spared or not. Gladly will we receive aid from any of the adjoining counties, for the suppression of the rioters, in the event the force in this county be insufficient. If no considerable number of mobbers gather from without Hancock, success will crown our efforts. I am well advised that no considerable number from any of our adjoining counties will come and act with any mob; and I now declare, that if the mob shall fire their own buildings, grain or other property, for the purpose of charging the same on my posse, I shall deal the same with them as though they destroyed the property of others, and arrest or put to the sword all such incendiaries.

Since my second proclamation, I have learned further particulars of the accords, who were in pursuit of me on the highway on the 10th inst., the fact of which were fully set forth in said proclamation so far as was in my possession. I now inform the public that Franklin A. Worrell was one of the four, who, on that occasion pursued me; was shot by one of the four of my posse, who I am informed on the spot to protect my life.

Worrell died the same day.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Sheriff H. Co., Ill.
Sept. 17th, A. D. 1845,
P. M. In my second Proclamation for Wednesday road yesterday.

Help Wanted!—We have been requested by several of our citizens to state that many families in this city are without help, and that a number of respectable females, having a knowledge of housework, could find permanent employment here, at from $1.50 to $2.50 per week.

In fact, within our own knowledge, there are several families in real distress, for the want of help, in consequence of sickness. We hope some of our eastern brethren of the press will notice this paragraph, and thus aid in sending to our city, a cargo of girls. The only plague we have had to encounter heretofore is, that the girls all get married in a few months after they get here. If a family happens, by some lucky chance, to get a smart, sprightly, active, industrious girl, some whiskered gentleman comes along and whisks her off before you know it, and the next thing you hear of her she is milking her own cows, churning her own butter, and perhaps, nursing her own babe!—The fact is, in our country an industrious girl stands no more chance of remaining single, than a blacksmith's hammer of striking a single blow, longer than she can see her Uncle Sam of thrashing him from one end of the Corn to the other. And this is the very reason we now have to advertise for "More Female Help."

Indeed, we believe there are but twelve (we have not counted them) marriageable females now in this city, which has a population of 4000 inhabitants; and if we are not in error, eleven of these are engaged—the twelfth—but we will say nothing about her—as she has had four husbands already, she may have doubts whether St. Peter will open the gates, should she take another. (Ill. State Register.)

We don't doubt the Register's statement; and verily believe that "Springfield" is "a rule's full of DEAD MEN'S (and women's) BONES!"

The Weather.—The Weather is fair and just warm enough to make a beautiful fall.

Nauvoo.—All is peace in the city of Nauvoo, and was it not for the order of the Sheriff to maintain law and order in the county, there would be a multiplicity of business in motion. As it is the work and Nauvoo House has stopped for a time.

It seems a pity to leave this work a moment, but when thousands, perhaps millions of dollars worth of property is being stolen, burned, or otherwise destroyed by a cowardly, blood thirsty mob, it is well enough to do the works of necessity and cure the sick.

To harden candles.—The Albany (N. Y.) Cultivator says take two lbs. of tallow for every twenty lbs. of tallow, dissolve it in water before the tallow is poured in, and then melt the tallow in the alum water, with frequent stirring, and it will clarify and harden the tallow so as to make a most beautiful article for either winter or summer use, almost as good as sperm.

The last Booneville Observer states that five or six men passed through that town on Monday last, with pack mules, on their return from California. "They were from St. Louis county, and were returning to their old homes, dissatisfied with the country they had visited in search of a new and better home."

GREAT YIELD.

We are informed by a gentleman of this county, who has lately returned from a trip to the North of Illinois, that in the county of Fulton, a farmer has just harvested from eight acres, four hundred and eighty-seven bushels of Wheat. This is within a fraction of sixty-one bushels to the acre! To Illinois must be yielded the palm of large crops of Wheat.—Alton Telegraph.

Mr. Field, of the St. Louis Reveille, has sued Mr. Higgins, of the St. Louis Organ, for a libel. The damages are said at $10,000.

NOTICE.

I am authorized to receive wheat, flour, corn, meal, potatoes, butter, lard, honey, eggs, beef, pork, tallow, and even money, from new subscribers to the New York Messenger. So, all wishing this interesting paper, will "govern themselves accordingly."

L. O. LITTLEFIELD.
Sept. 17, 1845.

MARRIED—by E. I. Benson in N. York, Charles U. Griggs to Miss Mary Allen, both of Boston.

DIED—In Nauvoo Aug. 31st, Charles U. Griggs aged 25 years; of consumption.

—On the 9th inst. near L. Harpe, Orson Welland, son of Lyman and Elizabeth Corey; aged three years—five months and six days—of whooping cough.

DIED—On Saturday last, at Ambrosia, Lee Co. Iowa, Elder Salmon Gee, aged 53 years.

Thus the old Israelites are gathered to their fathers, and their works shall follow them.

PAMPHLETS.

CONTAINING a "correct account" of the murder of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in Carthage jail, on the 27th of June 1844, embellished with three splendid engravings, illustrating the horrible event, for sale at this office.
Sept. 17-1845-20-1f

SEXTON'S WEEKLY REPORT.

Sept. 15th.
Wm. H. Presley Jr., 5m Diarrhea.
Marie E. Barton of Pilot Grove, 33y 7m 1st fever.
Wm. Williams, 20y Billious fever.
Wm. J. Thompson, 38y 11m 23d affection of the liver.
Lydia Lomo infant.
Sarah E. Griffith 1y 1m croup.
Leatas Newell, 30y inflammation in the hand.
Thomas Bedford of Iowa, 10y 10m 9d Billious fever.
Lydia Turner of Macedonia, 76y Billious fever.
Emma W. Kilbreath, 1y 7m 22d.
Henry King 11y 3m Diarrhea & Canker.
James Sanderson of St. Louis, 41y 2m 13d Billious fever.
Wm. Mosly 35y Black Canker.
Samuel Clark, 42y 9m 1d Nervous fever.
Salmon Gee of Iowa, 52y 10m 1d Chill fever.
Martha Lord, 57y, fever.
Sally Fisher, 68y 6m 22d.
W. D. HUNTINGTON.

HOT THE TEMPLE, NAUVOO HOUSE AND MY HOUSE.

LET no private interest obstruct the progress of the Temple or Nauvoo House; yet it is obvious to all the church that I should have a house as much so as other men and something to sustain me and my family while we serve them in our capacity. And if the saints, and others design to help me in this matter it is imperatively necessary it should be done soon, if done at all this season. While the masons are employed on the Nauvoo House, you can bring on the materials for my house, stone, brick, lumber, &c., that all things may be ready for the masons when they can be had. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Please hear us and attend to our call in due season, that we may have a house to shield off the chilling blast of winter. Respectfully your servant.

JOHN E. PAGE.
Sept. 10th; 1845-10-3w.

190 C. & F. LEWIS, 190 NO. 100 MAIN STREET, ONE DOOR BELOW THE VIRGINIA HOTEL, ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

HAVING received the largest part of our immense Stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, we are now prepared to supply Country Merchants and others, on the most favorable terms. We have at this time the Largest, Cheapest, and most complete assortment, ever brought to Saint Louis, and will continue to receive by every boat until late in the Fall, which will keep our assortment throughout the season, full and complete. Every article usually kept in a Clothing or Furishing House, can be found at No. 100.

Our Goods this Fall are all Fresh and New, made of the very best materials, cut by men of acknowledged skill and ability, and put together in a style fully equal to custom work. We can and will sell Clothing cheaper by 30 per cent than any concern in the Western country—prices so very low that defies all competition.

Do you wish to know how we can do this? We will explain; in the first place we buy our materials of the Manufacturers, and pay the cash down for them saving the Importers and Jobbers profits for the benefit of our customers. We also save 6 per cent by paying cash for labor. Set the Importers and jobbers profits down at the lowest per cent possible, say

Importers profit,	10 per cent
Jobbers do,	14 per cent
Cash for labor (saved)	6 per cent

and we have the large sum of thirty per cent, which every person can save, by making their purchases of C. & F. Lewis.

T. LEWIS, (one of the firm) resides in New York, and superintends the manufacturing of all our Stock. We possess exclusive advantages at this time for doing a large business.

Vast Resources! Spacious Premises!! Immense Stock!!! Unequalled Talent!!!! Unprecedented Variety!!!!

and the most ample means to carry out to the fullest possible extent, a business of such immense magnitude.

The most important consideration for persons about to make their Fall Purchases of Clothing is, how and where can our money be laid out with the greatest advantage? Should these questions suggest themselves to people about to visit St. Louis, the plain answer is, at C. & F. Lewis, where at all times can be found the Largest, Cheapest, and best assortment of Ready Made Clothing in the Western country.

We respectfully invite all to come in and take a view of our Stock, it will pay you well for the time spent,—we will wait upon you with pleasure.

No. 100 Main street, corner store, one floor below the Virginia Hotel. On the top of the House, a large 190.

C. & F. LEWIS.
Terms.—Retail for cash,
Wholesale do do or approved paper
St. Louis, August 25-19 3w

FOR SALE in Hancock county, about 20 miles from Nauvoo; 12 miles from Warsaw; 7 from Lima; 157 acres of good land, about 81 acres under good cultivation; 21 under pasture, with 2 log houses, one 18 by 21, with frame attached 12 by 24, 2 wells good water, stable, and outbuildings.

Also, 111 acres of good timber land, about 2 miles from the above, with log house and about 20 acres under fence; a cottage, containing 6 rooms, with about 3 acres of land situated in one of the most pleasant situations in Nauvoo. Application to be made as to terms, to John Taylor editor of this paper, N. Brown, corner of White street on Winchester street; Dr. Atkinson, Buffalo, New York.
Aug. 10-16 f

STATE OF ILLINOIS,

County of Hancock.
NOTICE is hereby given, to all persons having claims against the Estate of E. J. Ferry, deceased, to present the same at the office of the Probate Justice of the Peace, for said county on the 22d day of October, A. D. 1845, for proof and a judgment thereof.
PHILO T. GODWIN,
Adm'r of said Estate of Ferry, dec'd.
August 15, 1845.—16-4w.

NOTICE.

A LARGE quantity of BRICKLAYERS and CARPENTERS wanted IMMEDIATELY on the NAUVOO HOUSE and the TEMPLE.
Do you see? Do you hear? if you do, pay ATTENTION!!!
Assembled immediately!!!
GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWS,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH.
Nauvoo, August 22, 1845-16f

CITY LOTS AND PRAIRIE LANDS.

THE NAUVOO HOUSE ASSOCIATION have several very eligible city lots—and several fine farms on the prairie, which they will sell very low, or exchange for grain, beef, cattle, cows, horses or other property that can be used in building the Nauvoo House.

Please call at the office of the association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets, or on either of the Trustees.
GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWS,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH.
Nauvoo, August 22, 1845-16 f

FOR SALE.

BY the Trustees of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. (One large new Two Horse Carriage.) Any person wishing to purchase, will please call at the Trustees office, in the Brick Store north of the Temple formerly occupied by P. P. Pratt, or at P. Pratt, Young's, corner of Kimball and Granger streets.
August 6, 14th

Old Connecticut Pottery.

WANDERL & MORE
MANUFACTURERS OF EARTHEN WARE, CITY OF JOSEPH, ILL.

WAREHOUSES ON McHOLLAND STREET, F. R. BLOCKS EAST OF THE TEMPLE.
KEEP constantly on hand, and manufacture to order, every description of article in their line of business; namely:—Lead Pots, Crucibles, Furnaces, Jugs, Pitchers, Churns, Pots, Piskins, Water Kegs, Wash Bowls, Milk Pans, Flower Pots, Tea Pots, Bed Pans, Coffee Pots, B. B. Bottles, Ginger Pot Bottles, Chimney Tops, straight and bell'd Jars with covers, straight and bell'd Butters with covers, Bread Pots with covers, square and round dishes from 6 to 14 inches, Stove Tubes, Chamber, and other articles too numerous to mention. We are also prepared to manufacture Sugar Moulds and Drips of a superior quality. We are employing experienced workmen from Norwalk, Conn. clients and can assure the public, that our wares will be found equal, if not superior to anything of the kind in the west.

We are also prepared to accommodate the public with ware of thirteen different shades, such as jet-black, blue-black, red, green, yellow, cream color, mott'd color, &c., &c. Orders from St. Louis and other southern and western markets, packed in the best manner at a short notice. Cash or produce taken in exchange for wares.

C. W. WANDERL,
J. MORE, JR.
Nauvoo, July 30, 1845-13-1y

WANTED.

BY the Nauvoo House Association,
200 Tons of hay,
10,000 Bushels of oats,
25,000 Bushels of wheat,
25,000 Bushels of corn,
5,000 Bushels of potatoes,
1,000 Cords of wood,
2,000 Dollars in cash,
1,000 Barrels of pork,
100 Head of beef cattle,
100 Horses.

And every thing else that can be made use of in building the Nauvoo House.

Apply at the office of the Association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets.
GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWS,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH,
July 22-12f

HO! PLEASURE IN ADVANCE!

TO those who wish to ride over the Rapids of the beautiful Mississippi I would say, I shall keep a good sail boat near Manhards Steam Mill for their accommodation and passengers to Keokuk. The waters purr along free as air—therefore we will land them at any convenient point on either side of the river after a pleasant sail on the bosom of the Father of waters, and I will endeavor to make engagements for a carriage, that those may take at the waters edge who desire it, after regaling if they choose upon beer, cake, &c. &c. Those who visit our city and wish to view the scenery on the Islands or lower; will be conveyed there also. All things will be done decently and in good order. Come and see!
A. YOUNG.

August 9th 1845-15-3w
N. B. I particularly invite the Twelve, President G. Miller, Father John Smith and his clerk, with their families, Mother Smith and the widows of the Martyred Prophet and Patriarch—to come and sail free.

NEIGHBORS.

WE have on hand about 20 copies of the last years Neighbor for binding; those wishing to purchase will have to apply soon.
Nauvoo August 13th 1845-15-1f

LOOK HERE.

FIFTEEN or twenty good mechanics wanted immediately in the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage manufacturing association.
GEORGE W. HARRIS, President,
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Clerk protem
Nauvoo August 11th, 1845-15-1f

NOTARY PUBLIC.

THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in that line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.
W. W. PHELPS.

April 7 1845-40

LINE LINE.—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of distal time, at their Kilo near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Sains. All kinds of country produce, merchandise, &c., received in payment, cash or trade.
JOSIAH BOYCE,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845-No 1-6m

NOTICE.

FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Pinckneyville, Perry county Ills. For further particulars enquire of

LEVISTEWEART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52-1f

THE POTTERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppers and Salts, Nappies, Mugs, &c., which will be sold whole sale and retail for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen the United States can afford, being English Pottery, and having worked in the most extensive Manufactories in England.

ELIJAH K. FULLER, President
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM FAX,
RICHARD RALPHS,
JOSEPH RALPHS,
THOMAS RALPHS,
ALFRED CORDON,
JOHN BURNE Clerk,
June 4th 1845-5-6m

PHOTOGRAPHY.

GEO. D. WATT, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Photography in "Thirteen Lessons," which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, when a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar.
May 20, 1845-1f

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR.

WAREHOUSE—general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo. The subscribers, having opened the above establishment, and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.

Call and try, Ere you buy.
Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.
STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7-49-6m

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association, on Water street in the city of Nauvoo, opposite to the Joseph Smith store, the following articles, to wit:—Coaches, Omnibuses, Chaises, Closures, Cabs, Carriages, Buggies and Wagons, Harnesses, Saddlery, Trailing Wagons, &c. and coal Horse Lumber, Nails, and Horse Carts, Ploughs, Scythe Stalks, Pitch Forks, Rakes, Garding and Thrashing Machines, Horse Powers, Reapers and many other articles too numerous to mention, sold as cheap as can be purchased in any eastern market. All orders must be accompanied by cash, and addressed to GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq., Free Press of the Association.

J. H. & W. H. RALSTON.

Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.
WILL attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.
W. H. RALSTON's Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, 1 block.
Warsaw, May 14th, 1845-3-1f

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profit.

WEBB & SMITH.
Corner of 2d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.

Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
April 7-49-6m W. & S

NOTICE.

A Botanic Association has been formed in the city of Nauvoo, for collecting herbs and roots and preparing the same for the good of the saints. Let every person secure health. And look out for the best pills. Office south east of the Temple on Warsaw and Ripley sts.
JOS. YOUNGER, Pres't.
R. SHEPHERD, Ck.
July 18, 1845-12-3m

FOR SALE.

A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 20 feet by 30 two stories high. A good well of water on the premises. Terms low for CASH. Enquire of E. T. Benson on Monson street between Palmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office.
DANIEL BUTLER.
July 14, 1845-11-1f

PIANO-FORTE MUSIC.

MRS. P. H. CHORRILL respectfully informs the inhabitants of Nauvoo, that she has commenced teaching Music on the Piano-forte; and wishes to suit the circumstances of the pupils, she offers to teach at the very low rate of one dollar per quarter; so that all citizens wishing to learn may be accommodated. As Mrs. P. has had the benefit of many years instruction from several of the most scientific English and German masters; and subsequently has had much experience in teaching, she flatters herself that she will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor her with their patronage. Reference, kindly, is made, to Elders Brigham Young and J. C. Smith, Esq., milliners, Living on N. P. of Adams, Gray's, milliners, Main street, or at her own residence, corner of Granger and Parley streets, one block east of the Seventh Hall.
July 30

REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET.
FROM ST. LOUIS TO NAU-
VOO, AND BLOOMING-
TON, IOWA.

THE Light draught steamer, MERV
MAID, Gleim, Master, will run through the season from St. Louis to Bloomington in Iowa. She will leave St.
Louis every Friday and arrive at Nauvoo every Sunday morning;—on her downward trip she will leave Nauvoo ex-

Tuesday, morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation may be expected from the boat and officers, 'plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity.' For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent,
for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-1f

OSPREY:
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO.

Tuesday, morning at 7 o'clock precisely. For freight or passage apply on board or to the agents at the several towns. Every attention, politeness, civility and accommodation may be expected from the boat and officers, 'plausibility wins more gold, than tricks and ferocity.' For further particulars enquire of

C. ALLEN, Agent,
for Nauvoo.

March 22, 1845-1f

OSPREY:
REGULAR WEEKLY PACKET TO NAUVOO.

MOO AND BLOOMINGTON, IOWA.
The new light draught sw. h. passenger steamer OSPREY, of Anderson master, has commenced running between St. Louis & Bloomington, leaving St. Louis every Friday, at 4 o'clock p. m. for Napoleon, and arriving at Bloomington every Sunday evening. On her downward trip she will leave Bloomington at 7 o'clock a. m. Monday morning, and pass New Boston, Coonika, Burlington, and East

The accommodations and safety of the Sprey are unimpaired by any boat in the Upper Mississippi trail, and from her being of very light draught will be enabled to cross the rapids during the lowest stage of water. In attention to the interest of shippers and passengers, no

ervation will be spared by Captain Anderson and crew, to render it pleasant to all who patronise her. She is supplied with Evan's Patent Safety Guard, to prevent explosion of her boilers, as also a Fire Engine and Hose attached, in case
 of accident by fire. It is respectfully announced to shippers and passengers
 that in no case the Osprey can be detained beyond the hours advertised.
 For information apply to
 G. ALLEN, Nauvoo
 Jan. 1, 1845-35/6.
 NO WAR BUT A STRONG OPPO-SITION TO FOREIGN MANU-FACTURES.
THE undersigned would beg leave to inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public in general, that he have removed the Old Connecticut pottery from Iowa to the City of Joseph, on block east of the Temple, where they have on hand a large assortment of red and mottled colored ware of the best quality, viz. churns, milk pans, crocks, jars of all kinds with covers, pie dishes, pudding pots, cups, bowls, pitchers, stovetubes, chimney tops and furnaces, with multitude of other articles too numerous to mention all of which will be sold at a wholesale or retail for all kinds of commodities produce, dry goods and groceries cash not refused. All bills and orders will be filled on the shortest notice.

MOSES MARTIN
E. K. FULLER.

June 5, 1845. 6 3m

THE NAUVOO COACH AND CARRIAGE MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.

WE the undersigned would address to the citizens of Nauvoo and the Public generally, that we have entered into co-partnership, and wishing to be identified as such, according to our articles of agreement for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Carriages which may be ordered by our Patrons, we are determined to proceed with who may be disposed to favor us with call, and as our company is comprised mechanics from different nations of world we have no hesitancy in saying that we shall be able to suit the genius or various tastes of all people, and as local privileges for manufacturing cannot be excelled in the Western States, we feel confident that we cannot be excelled

in workmanship or durability, as we have the advantage of selecting the choicest materials for manufacturing of all articles in our line of business, which will consist in part, of Coaches, Omnibuses, Cabs, Charriages, Chaises, Barouches, Buggies

Rugby Wagons, Hearses. Sporting
Trotting Wagons, two and one horse
Lumber Wagons, ox and horse Car
Drays, Hand Carts, Wheel Barrows, &c.
Ploughs, Scythe snaths, Rakes, &c.
which we shall sell at wholesale or retail prices, as may be desired. We are not engaged at our factory on Water street, opposite

Gen. Joseph Smith's (deceased) Store
now occupied by David Yearley,
we solicit the patronage of the citizens
as we intend to hear no grumbling from
our customers on account of high prices for we intend to make it an object to pay down for all work done
our line either in Cash, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Potatoes, Pork, Beef, Butter, any kind of Country produce. Also To have of all descriptions, which we will the highest Market price for in our

on delivery at our Factory.
GEORGE W. HARRIS, Pres.
RICH'D BALENTINE, Clerk.
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Supr.
ELIJAH FORDHAM,
H. THOMAS,
JOSHUA SMITH.
DAVID W. FOX.
DWIGHT WEBSTER.
Jany. 15th, 1845.-87-4f.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 21.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, Sept. 24, 1845.

Whole Number 177

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR

Editor and Proprietor.
At the corner of Main and Kimball Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

Terms.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor) post paid, to receive attention.

CAPTAIN FREMONT'S SECOND EXPLORING EXPEDITION.

August 20.—We find the following first mention of the most degraded tribe of Indians yet discovered on our continent—the root-diggers:

"We had now entered a country inhabited by these people; and as in the course of our voyage we shall frequently meet with them in various stages of existence, it will be well to inform you that scattered over the great region west of the Rocky Mountains and south of the Great Snake River, are numerous Indians whose subsistence is almost solely derived from roots and seeds, and such small animals as chance and great good fortune sometimes bring within their reach. They are miserably poor, armed only with bows and arrows, or clubs, and as the country they inhabit is almost destitute of game, they have no means of obtaining better arms. In the northern part of the region just mentioned, they live generally in solitary families; and farther to the south, they are gathered together in villages. Those who live together in villages, strengthened by association, are in exclusive possession of the more genial and richer parts of the country; while the others are driven to the rugged mountains, and to the more hospitable parts of the country. But by simply observing, in accompanying us along our road, you will become better acquainted with these people than we could make you in any other than a very long description, and you will find them worthy of your interest.

Roots, seeds and grass, every vegetable that affords any nourishment, and every living animal thing, insect or worm, they eat. Nearly approaching to the lower animal creation, their sole employment is to obtain food; and they are constantly occupied in a struggle to support existence."

The rapid and wasteful destruction of the buffalo in these western wildernesses has been often alluded to and lamented by travelers, yet the subject is of so much importance that we cannot omit Captain Fremont's very sensible observations upon it. On August 30, in latitude 42 deg. 14 min. 22 sec. and longitude (about) 112:

"A number of Indians came to visit us and several men were sent to the village, with goods, tobacco, knives, cloth, vermilion, and the usual trinkets to exchange for provisions. But they had no game of any kind; and it was difficult to obtain any roots from them, as they were miserably poor, and had but little to spare from their winter stock of provisions. Several of the Indians drew aside their blankets, showing me their lean and bony figures; and I would not any longer tempt them with a display of our merchandise to part with their wretched subsistence, when they gave us a reason that it would expose them to temporary starvation. A great portion of the region inhabited by this nation formerly abounded in game; the buffalo ranging about in herds, as we had found them on the eastern waters, and the plains dotted with scattered bands of antelope; but so rapidly have they disappeared within the last few years, that now, as we journeyed along, an occasional buffalo skull and a few wild antelopes were all that remained of the abundance which had covered the country with animal life.

The extraordinary rapidity with which the buffalo is disappearing from our territories will not appear surprising when we remember the great scale on which their destruction is yearly carried on. With inconsiderable exceptions, the business of the American trading posts is carried on in their skins; every year the Indian villages make new lodges for which the skin of the buffalo furnishes the material; and in that portion of the country where they are still found, the Indians derive their entire support from them, and slaughter them with thoughtless and abominable extravagance. Like the Indians themselves, they have been a characteristic of the great west; and as, like them, they are visibly diminishing, it will be interesting to throw a glance backward through the last twenty years, and give some account of their former distribution through the country, and the limit of their western range.

On September 6th, the party obtained the first view of the object of their anxious search, the Great Salt Lake:

"The waters of the Inland Sea, stretching in still and solitary grandeur far beyond the limit of our vision. It was one of the great points of the exploration; and as we looked eagerly over the lake in the first emotions of excited pleasure, I am doubtful if the followers of Balboa felt more enthusiasm when, from the heights of the Andes, they saw for the first time the great Western Ocean. It was certainly a magnificent object, and a noble terminus to this part of our expedition; and to travellers so long shut up among mountain ranges, a sudden view over the expanse of silent waters had in it something sublime. Several large islands raised their high rocky heads out of the waves; but whether or not they were timbered was still left to our imagination; as the distance was too great to determine if the dark hues upon them were woodland or naked rock. During the day the clouds had been gathering black over the mountains to the westward, and while we were looking, a storm burst down with sudden fury upon the lake, and entirely hid the islands from our view. So far as we could see, along its shores, there was not a solitary tree, and but little appearance of grass; and on Weber's Fork a few miles below our last encampment, the timber was gathered into groves, and then disappeared entirely."

The voyage on the lake, and the preliminary anticipations are thus graphically described:

"With Mr. Preuss and myself, Carson, Bernier and Basil Lajeunesse, had been selected for the boat expedition—the first ever attempted on this interior sea; and Badeau, with Derosier, and Jacob (the colored man) were to be left in charge of the camp. We were favored with most delightful weather. To night there was a most brilliant sunset of golden orange and green, which left the western sky clear and beautifully pure, but clouds in the east made me lose an occultation. The summer frogs were singing around us, and the evening was very pleasant, with a temperature of 60 deg.—a night of a more southern autumn. For our supper we had yampah, the most agreeably flavored of the roots, seasoned by a small fat duck, which had come in the way of Jacob's rifle. Around our fire to night were many speculations on what tomorrow would bring forth, and in our busy conversation we forgot the time, and found every one of the large islands a tangled wilderness of trees and shrubbery, teeming with game of every description that the neighboring region afforded, and which the foot of a white man or Indian had never violated. Frequently during the day clouds had rested on the summits of their lofty mountains, and we believed that we should find clear streams and springs of fresh water; and we indulged in anticipations of luxurious repasts with which we were to indemnify ourselves for past privations. Neither, in our discussions, were the whirlpool and other mysterious dangers forgotten, which Indian and hunter's stories attributed to this unexplored lake. The men had discovered, that, instead of being strongly sewed, (like that of the preceding year, which had so triumphantly rode the canons of the Upper Great Plateau) our present was only gashed together in a very insecure manner, the maker having been allowed so little time in the construction, that he was obliged to crowd the labor of two months into several days. The insecurity of the boat was sensibly felt by us; and mingled with the enthusiasm and excitement that we all felt at the prospect of an undertaking which had never before been accomplished, was a certain impression of danger, sufficient to give a serious character to our conversation. The momentary view which had been had of the lake the day before, its great extent and rugged islands, dimly seen amidst the dark waters in the obscurity of the sudden storm, were well calculated to heighten the idea of undefined danger with which the lake was generally associated.

September 8.—A calm, clear day, with a sunrise temperature of 41 deg. In view of our present enterprise, a part of the equipment of the boat had been made to consist in three air-tight bags, about three feet long, and capable each of containing five gallons. These had been filled with water the night before, and were now placed in the boat, with our blankets and instruments, consisting of a sextant, telescope, spyglass, thermometer and barometer.

On September 9, the day was clear and calm; and the thermometer at sunrise at 49°. As is usual with the trappers on the eve of any enterprise, our people had made dreams, and their happiness to be a bad one—one which always preceded evil—and consequently they looked very gloomy this morning; but we hurried through our breakfast in order to make an early start, and have all the day for our adventure. The channel in a short distance became so shallow that our navigation was at an end, being merely a sheet of soft mud, with a few inches of water, and sometimes none at all, forming the low-water shore of the lake. All this place was absolutely covered with flocks of screaming plovers. We took off our clothes, and getting overboard, commenced dragging the boat—making by this operation a very curious trail, and a very disagreeable smell in stirring up the mud, as we sank above the knee at every step. The water here was still fresh, with only an insipid and disagreeable taste, probably derived from the bed of solid mud. After proceeding in this way about a mile, we came to a small ridge on the bottom, beyond which the water became suddenly salt, beginning gradually to deepen, and the bottom was sandy and firm. It was a remarkable division, separating the fresh water of the rivers from the briny water of the lake, which was entirely saturated with common salt. Pushing our little vessel across the narrow boundary, we sprang on board, and at length were afloat on the waters of the unknown sea.

"We did not steer for the mountainous island, but directed our course towards a lower one, which had been decided we should first visit, the summit of which was formed like the crater at the upper end of Bear river valley. So long as we could touch the bottom with our paddles we were very gay; but gradually, as the water deepened, we became more still in our frail bateau of gum cloth distended with air and with pasted seams. Although the day was very calm there was a considerable swell on the lake; and there were white patches of foam on the surface, which were moving to the southward, indicating the set of a current in that direction, and recalling the recollection of the whirlpool stories. The water continued to deepen as we advanced, the lake becoming almost transparently clear, of an extremely beautiful bright green color; and the spray, which was thrown into the boat and over our clothes, was directly converted into a crust of common salt, which covered also our hands and arms. 'Captain,' said Carson, who for some time had been looking suspiciously at some whitening appearances outside the nearest islands, 'what are those you der? Won't you just take a look with the glass?' We ceased paddling for a moment, and found them to be the caps of the waves that were beginning to break under the force of a strong breeze that was coming up the lake. The form of the boat seemed to be an admirable one, and it rode on the waves like a water-bird; but at the same time it was extremely slow in its progress. When we were a little more than half way across the reach, two of the divisions between the cylinders gave way, and it required the constant use of the bellows to keep in a sufficient quantity of air. For a long time we scarcely seemed to approach our island, but gradually we worked across the rougher sea of the open channel into the smoother water under the lee of the island; and began to discover what we took for a long row of pilcans ranged on the beach were only low cliffs whitened with salt by the spray of the waves; and about noon we reached the shore, the transparency of the water enabling us to see the bottom at a considerable depth.

"It was a handsome broad beach, where we landed, behind which the hill into which the island was gathered, rose somewhat abruptly; and a point of rock at one end enclosed it in a sheltering way, and as there was an abundance of drift wood along the shore, it offered us a pleasant encampment. We did not suffer our fragile boat to touch the sharp rocks; but getting overboard, discharged the baggage, and, lifting it gently out of the water, carried it to the upper part of the beach, which was composed of very small fragments of rock."

"Carrying with us the barometer and other instruments, in the afternoon we ascended to the highest point of the island; a bare rocky peak, eight hundred feet above the lake. Standing on the summit, we enjoyed an extended view of the lake, enclosed in a basin of rugged mountains, which sometimes left marshy flats and extensive bottoms between them and the shore, and in other places came directly down into the water with bold and precipitous bluffs. Following with our glasses the irregular shores, we searched for some indications of a communication with other bodies of water, or the entrance of other rivers, but the distance was so great that we could make out nothing with certainty. To the southward, several peninsular mountains three or four thousand feet high entered the lake appearing so far as the distance and our position enabled us to determine to be connected by flats and low ridges with the mountains in the rear. Although these are probably the islands usually indicated on maps of this region as entirely detached from the shore, we have preferred to represent them, in the small map on the preceding page, precisely as we were enabled to sketch them on the ground, leaving their more complete delineation for a future survey. The sketch of which the scale is nearly sixteen miles to an inch, is introduced only to show clearly the extent of our operations, which, it will be remembered were made when the waters were at their lowest stage. At the season of high waters in the spring, it is probable that all the marshes and low grounds are overflowed, and the surface of the lake considerably greater. In several places (which will be indicated to you in the sketch by the absence of the bordering mountains) the view was of unlimited extent—here and there a rocky islet appearing above the water at a great distance; and beyond, every thing was vague and undefined.

"As we looked over the vast expanse of water spread out beneath us, and strained our eyes along the silent shores over which hung so much doubt and uncertainty, and which were so full of interest to us, I could hardly repress the almost irresistible desire to continue our exploration; but the lengthening snow on the mountains was a plain indication of the advancing season, and our frail linen boat appeared so insecure that I was unwilling to trust our lives to the uncertainties of the lake. I therefore unwillingly resolved to terminate our survey here, and remain satisfied for the present with what we had been able to add to the unknown geography of the region. We felt pleasure also in remembering that we were the first who, in the traditional annals of the country, had visited the islands and broken, with the cheerful sound of human voices, the long solitude of the place. From the point where we were standing, the ground fell off on every side to the water, giving us a perfect view of the island, which is twelve or thirteen miles in circumference, being simply a rocky hill, on which there is neither water nor trees of any kind."

"At sunset, the temperature was 70 deg. We had arrived just in time to obtain a meridian altitude of the sun, and other observations were obtained this evening, which place our camp in latitude 41 deg. 10 min. 42 sec., and longitude 112 deg. 21 min. 05 sec. from Greenwich. From a discussion of the barometrical observations made during our stay on the shores of the lake, we have adopted 4,200 feet for its elevation above the Gulf of Mexico. In the first disappointment we felt from the dissipation of our dream of the fertile Islands, I called this Disappointment Island.

"Out of the wood, we made ourselves pleasant little lodges, open to the water, and after having kindled huge fires to excite the wonder of any straggling savage on the lake shores, lay down for the first time in a long journey in perfect security; no one thinking about his arms. The evening was extremely bright and pleasant; but the wind rose during the night, and the waves began to break heavily on the shore, making our island tremble. I had not expected in our inland journey to hear the roar of an ocean surf and the strangeness of our situation, and the excitement we felt in the associated interest of the place, made this one of the most interesting nights I remember during our long expedition."

On the 1st of April the party met with bands of elk, one of which numbered about two hundred. On the 4th they were still on the banks of the San Joaquin.

"Here the country appears very flat; oak trees have entirely disappeared, and are replaced by a large willow nearly equal to it in size. The river is about one hundred yards in breadth branching into sloughs, and interspersed with islands. At this time, it appears sufficiently deep for a small steamer, but its navigation would be broken by shallows at low water. The prairies along the left bank are alive with immense droves of wild horses, and they have been seen during the day at every opening through the woods which afforded us a view across the river. Latitude by observation, 37 deg. 08 min. 00 sec., longitude 120 deg. 45 min. 22 sec.

The route of the expedition led through a remarkably fertile and pleasant country until the 12th April, when the soil became sandy and vegetation meagre.

"Towards the close of the afternoon we reached a tolerably large river, which empties into a small lake at the head of the valley; it is about thirty-five yards wide, with a stony and gravelly bed, and the swiftest stream we have crossed since leaving the bay. The bottoms produced no grass, though well watered with willow and cottonwood; and, after ascending it for several miles, we made a late encampment on a little bottom, with scanty grass. In greater part the vegetation along our road consisted now of rare and unusual plants, among which many were entirely new.

On the 13th, "we reached the bottom of a creek without water, over which the sandy beds were dispersed in many branches. Immediately where we struck it, the timber terminated, and below, to the right, it was a broad bed of dry and bare sands."

There were many tracks of Indians and horses imprinted in the sand, which, with other indications, informed us was the creek issuing from the pass, and which on the map we have called Pass creek. We ascended a trail for a few miles along the creek, and suddenly found a stream of water five feet wide, running with a lively current, but losing itself almost immediately. This little stream showed plainly the manner in which the mountain waters lose themselves in sand at the eastern foot of the Sierra, leaving only a parched desert and arid plains beyond. The stream enlarged rapidly, and the timber became abundant as we ascended. A new species of pine made its appearance, with several kinds of oaks, and a variety of trees, and the country changing its appearance suddenly and entirely, we found ourselves again traveling among the old orchard like places. Here we selected a delightful encampment in a handsome green oak hollow, where, among the open bells of the trees, was an abundant sward of grass and pea vines. In the evening a Christian Indian rode into the camp, well dressed, with long spurs, and a sombrero, and speaking Spanish fluently. It was an expected apparition, and a strange and pleasant sight in this desolate gorge of a mountain—an Indian face, Spanish costume, jingling spurs, and horse equipped after the Spanish manner. He informed me that he belonged to one of the Spanish missions to the South, distant two or three days' ride, and that he had obtained from the priests leave to spend a few days with his relations in the Sierra. Having seen us enter the pass, he had come down to visit us. He appeared familiarly acquainted with the country, and gave me definite and clear information in regard to the desert region east of the mountains. I had entered the pass with a strong disposition to vary my route, and to travel directly across the Sierrita to the Great Lake, in the view of obtaining some acquaintance with the interior of the Great Basin, while pursuing a direct course for the frontier; but his representation, which described it as an arid and barren desert, that had repulsed by its sterility all the attempts of the Indians to penetrate it, determined me for the present to relinquish the plan; and, agreeably to his advice, after crossing the Sierra, continue our intended route along its eastern base to the Spanish trail. By this route a party of six Indians, who had come from a great river in the eastern part of the desert to trade with his people, had just started on their return. He would himself return the next day to San Fernando, and as our roads would be the same for two days, he offered his services to conduct us so far on our way. His offer was gladly accepted."

OUTRAGE.
For some fancied injury done to their property on Long Island by the railroad, some individuals on Saturday night sawed away the support of a bridge, by which the cars, with their passengers, would have been precipitated into an abyss, and their lives probably all been sacrificed. There were about one hundred and fifty passengers in the cars, but the injury to the bridge was discovered in time to prevent the danger. The upright timbers on each end were entirely cut away with axes, and the bridge left so as to present no appearance of danger from the road, and yet to be absolutely unsafe for the passage of the train. The track was torn up for a distance of many rods on the eastern side of the bridge. The men by whom this great outrage was committed, were about forty in number, and their faces were blackened, and their persons otherwise disguised. The watchman who discovered them was seized by them and severely beaten. He escaped, however, so as to give seasonable notice of what had occurred, and thus to prevent, undoubtedly, a great sacrifice of life to the spirit of revenge. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Antidote for Bed Bugs.—A correspondent of the New York Express says that the following recipe has been long and successfully used in the City Hotel of that city:
"Take a quantity of whale oil, and about the same quantity of lard or tallow, simmer them a few minutes together, so as they will mix. Apply the mixture with a feather or fine brush to the crevices and joints of the bedsteads, and these vermin will not only desert the bed but leave the room."

Prussian Whalers.—The Prussian bark Rica, from Volga, Prussia, arrived at New Bedford to obtain officers, and the complete fitting for the whale fishery in the Indian Ocean, and on the N. W. Coast of America. This is the second Prussian vessel that has gone to New Bedford to procure American whalers, and the proper equipments for a long voyage. A large and extensively fitted-out Prussian ship sailed from there last spring.

Guns.—The Pittsburgh Gazette, of the 13th inst., says:—Five more of Uncle Sam's bull-dogs are on the wharf for shipment to Cleveland. They are beautiful 32's and intended, we believe, for the defence of Buffalo. Government is building a fort there.

From Jacmel.—Captain Fowler, of the schooner Sarah Lavinia, at New York, in sixteen days from Curacao, reports that, on the 16th ult., a Haytian schooner arrived at Curacao from Jacmel, and brought information that a civil war had broken out between the blacks and the mulattoes.

A Monster Locomotive.—The N. Y. Tribune mentions that a magnificent engine has just been put on the Long Island road. It was built by Hinkley & Drury, Boston, and it is the largest one ever built in this country for passenger trains. Its weight, in running trim, is seventeen tons. It has four driving wheels, of a little more than six feet diameter. The cost of this engine is $7,500. Dr. Drury calculates that with an ordinary train it will easily run 40 miles an hour, and if put upon its metal, 60 miles. It is named 'The Boston.'

THE JEWS.

(From the Britannia.)
The spurious liberality of the age has lately exhibited itself in opening the corporations to the Jews. Why they should be opened more than they were fifty or five hundred years ago is a question to which no answer can be given, further than that, as everything is thrown open to everybody, the Jews come in for their share. No Christian man can have any feeling of hostility to any body of men in the world. But our forefathers were not altogether fools. They accomplished the object of making a great empire of a little kingdom; of giving us a pure religion in place of a gross and desperate superstition; of giving us a free constitution while despotism reigned throughout Europe, and of laying the foundation of all the prosperity that we enjoy or ever shall enjoy. And yet those forefathers could never find out the necessity, or even the advantage, of giving either municipal or political power to the Jews. Still this was not for want of solicitation on the part of those innovators who think that whatever is wrong, the proposal was often made, and always repelled, for the sound and sufficient reason that England was a Christian country; that she was sincere in her religion; that her religion, and thus to her freedom and virtue; and that to give power to men who denounced her religion, and who necessarily would destroy it if they had the power, was to act the part of fools and criminals.

This language was always constitutional and convincing until now; but since we have given power to the Roman Catholics, who pronounce us all heretics, and declare and pronounce that all heretics are given over to eternal ruin, the present policy seems to be, to throw down all barriers against all religious error; and to throw open the gates of our religious citadel to every sect whose acknowledged purpose is to leave not one stone upon another.

FROM THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

The Express has a file of the 'Friend' to May 16th, overlaid, by the Ann Louisa. We extract a few items of interest.

The papers give an account of the funeral ceremonies at the interment of T. Halliell, of His Majesty's Envoys.

A late gale at Lahaina produced a great commotion in the whaling fleet at anchor in the roadstead. Between 30 and 40 ships put to sea, and only the Morea of New Bedford rode out the gale, and she came near going upon the reef. Vermont, of Mystic, lost chain and anchor, jib-boom and flying jib-boom and spirit-sail yard. Nantux was run into by Vermont, and carried away three topsail yards and three boats. Calumet, of Stockholm, lost jib and flying jib-boom, chain and anchor. Isaac Hicks, fore-yard, three anchors and chains. We have heard the damage estimated at between 30 and $40,000 to the whole fleet. At Honolulu the gale was severe, but no damage.

Capt. Halsey, of the Franklin, touched at Pitcairn's Island on the 18th January last. Found the colony in a prosperous condition, and had no difficulty in obtaining a good supply of vegetables. The day previous to his leaving the Island, the natives had succeeded in obtaining one of the Bounty's guns. It had been under water 56 years.

Twenty-six of the Van Dieman's Land prisoners had arrived at Honolulu in the whale ship Steiglitz, seeking passage for the United States. Their names are:—
From New York State.—Nelson Griggs, Luther Darby, Daniel D. Henstis, Orin W. Smith, John Thomas, Gideon Goodrich, Jerry Griggs, Robert Marsh, Nathan Woodington, Benis Woodbury, John Crookshank, John G. Swabury, Ira Pelley, Leonard Delano, Edward A. Wilson, Elton Fellows, Elzbur Stephens, John Gilman, Joseph Thompson, David Howe, From Michigan.—Chancey Sheldon, Henry V. Barnum, From Ohio.—Samuel Snow, Alvan B. Sweet, From Canada.—James De Wit Fero, John Grant.

Tahiti.—In Tahiti the state of public affairs remained unsettled. The public mind seemed to be in suspense, waiting the arrival of the English Admiral. In the mean time, however, the French are carrying forward the public works and fortifications.

Oregon.—By the arrival of the H. Bay Company's bark Coverlitz, we have received advices from Oregon. The Legislative committee of Oregon had risen from their sitting adjourned from June last. The town at the Wallamette Falls is incorporated; and at the election of city council much spirit was exhibited. The parties in politics are now Hon. H. B. men and Americans. George Abernethy, Esq., is elected Mayor. The health of the country is remarkably good. The season thus far had been warm and exceedingly rainy. Much damage had been done by high water in the country.

Prussian Whalers.—The Prussian bark Rica, from Volga, Prussia, arrived at New Bedford to obtain officers, and the complete fitting for the whale fishery in the Indian Ocean, and on the N. W. Coast of America. This is the second Prussian vessel that has gone to New Bedford to procure American whalers, and the proper equipments for a long voyage. A large and extensively fitted-out Prussian ship sailed from there last spring.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS IN HANCOCK.PROCLAMATION:
No. 1.TO THE CITIZENS OF HANCOCK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

WHEREAS a mob from one to two hundred men under arms, have gathered themselves together in the southwest part of Hancock county, and are at this time destroying the dwellings and other buildings, stacks of grain and other property, of a portion of our citizens, in the most inhuman manner, compelling defenceless children and women from their sick beds, and exposing them to the rays of the parching sun, there to lay and suffer with out the aid and assistance of a friendly hand, to minister to their wants in their suffering condition.

The rioters spare not the widow nor the orphan, and while I am writing this proclamation the smoke is rising to the clouds, and the flames are devouring four buildings, which have just been set on fire by the rioters. Thousands of dollars worth of property has already been consumed; an entire settlement of about sixty or seventy families laid waste, the inhabitants thereof are fired upon, narrowly escaping with their lives, and forced to flee before the ravages of the Mob.

By the revised laws of our State under the criminal code, sixth division 58th Section, Page 181, the crime of Arson is defined as follows: "Every person who shall wilfully and maliciously burn, or cause to be burned, any dwelling house, kitchen, office, shop, barn, stable, store house, &c., &c., shall be deemed guilty of arson, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary, for a term not less than one year nor more than ten years, and should the life or lives of any person be lost in consequence of any such burning as aforesaid, such offender shall be guilty of Murder, and shall be indicted and punished accordingly."

And whereas the laws of this State make it my duty as a peace officer of this county, to suppress all riots, routs, &c., &c., and all other crimes.

Therefore I Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, in the name of the people of said state, and by the authority vested in me by virtue of my office, hereby solemnly command the said rioters and other peace-breakers to desist forthwith, disperse and go to their homes, under the penalty of the laws. And I hereby call upon all the law abiding citizens as a posse comitatus of Hancock county, to give their united aid in suppressing the riot-law.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Sheriff of Hancock county, Ills.
P. S. It is a part of my policy, that the citizens of Nauvoo remain quiet, and not a man from that city leave as a posse, until it be made manifest that the law and order citizens without the city, will not have sufficient force to suppress the rioters of this disgraceful outrage; but that 2,000 effective men hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's warning, to any point in Hancock county.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Sheriff, &c.
Green Plains, Hancock county, Ills.,
Sept. 13th, 1845.

PROCLAMATION
No. 2.To the Citizens of Hancock County Ill., and the surrounding country.

It is truly painful that my first proclamation did not have the desired effect of quelling the mob in Hancock county; I was strong in the hope that when men, engaged in such fiendish and wicked purposes, came to reflect, after the excitement of the moment, would cease, and go to their homes.

The burning and destruction of houses and other property was commenced on the 10th of September inst., by a body of armed men who gathered themselves together in the south west part of this county, headed, as it is said, by the notorious Levi Williams. The mob is spreading itself in different directions: some of the mob have been in pursuit of me since Wednesday afternoon about 3 o'clock; they pursued me on the public road and have threatened my life; they levelled their arms at me, and desisted only when fired upon and the fear of death put them in mind of their illegal mob proceedings. On yesterday, an armed force undertook to take me; I became apprised of their intentions—evaded them, and fled to Bear Creek, where I had a posse comitatus, and from thence I retired, for the second time to Warsaw, to ascertain if any reliable force could be procured in that place. I became satisfied that I could get no aid from that place.

I became further satisfied that my life was sought by some of the mobbers, lurking about that town. This information was communicated to me by some persons, friends who had free intercourse with, and confidence and secret intentions of those desperadoes. My friends of Warsaw considered my life in danger, and advised me not to go out, but to remain secreted in some safe place; but my business as an officer of the peace demanded my departure from that place. I procured the aid of a personal friend to guard me out of that place into the prairie some three or four miles. All my friends advised me, that should I meet or see men with arms, that I had better evade them, and under no considerations get into their hands. After parting with the gentleman who so kindly escorted me thus far I had traveled about a mile and a half when I discovered an armed body of some 20 or more men on the Warsaw and Carthage road two or three miles eastward of me and going towards Warsaw. I watched them, and on discovering that 4 men of the force, mounted on horses, left the main body, apparently to strike a point in advance of me, with all the speed of their horses, and finding that they were in pursuit of me, I put the whip to my horse, as I was traveling in a buggy, they taking a near cut, evidently gained on me.

The chase lasted for a distance of about two miles, when I fortunately overtook three men with teams. I immediately informed them that armed men were pursuing me, evidently to take my life. I summoned them as a posse to aid me in resisting them. I dismounted and took a position in the road, with pistol in hand. I commanded them (the mobbers) to stop, when one of them held his musket in a shooting attitude, whereupon one of my posse fired, and it is believed, took effect on one of the lawless banditti. We remained and stood our ground, prepared for the worst, for about ten minutes. The mobbers, retreating some little distance, made no further assault, but finally retreated. I then made my way for the city of Nauvoo, where I am at this time. Knowing the plans and designs of the mob faction in our county, I am induced to be thus full and minute in detailing the particulars of those seeking my life, because I dare take steps as a peace officer, to put an end to the proceedings of the most lawless, disgraceful, and inhuman banditti that ever infested our State. Inasmuch as I have in vain applied to the citizens of this county, without the limits of the city of Nauvoo, therefore,

I, Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of the County of Hancock and State of Illinois, in the name of the people of said State, and by virtue of the authority in me vested, hereby again solemnly command the mobbers and rioters throughout this county to disperse, desist, and forthwith go to their homes under the penalty of the laws of our country, and such other consequences as may follow.

And I hereby call upon, and likewise command every able bodied man throughout the county, to arm themselves in the best possible manner, and to resist any and all further violence on the part of the mob, and to permit no further destruction of property, and to arrest all those engaged in this wicked proceeding and destruction of property, and threatening of lives, and I further command that the posse comitatus repair to the nearest points invaded by the rioters, and to defend at the point of the bayonet and at all hazards the lives and property of the supremacy of the laws.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Sheriff of Hancock County, Ills.
Sept. 16th, A. D. 1845,
half past 2 o'clock P. M.

P. S. It is but proper to state that the Mormon community have acted with more than ordinary forbearance—remaining perfectly quiet and offering no resistance when their dwellings, other buildings and stacks of grain &c., were set on fire in their presence, and they have foreborne until forbearance is no longer a virtue.

The notorious Col. Levi Williams, who is at the head of the mob, has ordered out the Militia of this Brigade, comprising Hancock, McDonough, and Schuyler counties, but it is to be hoped that no good citizen will turn out and aid him or others in the overthrow of the laws of our country, and it is certain that no good citizen will cross the Mississippi river with the design to aid the rioters.

J. B. B. Sheriff.

PROCLAMATION
No. 3.To the citizens of Hancock County, and the surrounding country:

WHEREAS the community at large may and do expect at my hands, a fair and impartial statement of facts with regard to the riot which has been raging, and is still continuing its ravages with the firebrand and otherwise; since the issuing of my second proclamation the mob have become more infuriated than ever:

The Post Master at Carthage, Chauncey Robinson, Esq., who is also County Recorder, was compelled to flee from Carthage with his family, in order that their lives might be spared. Capt. Ross, the Treasurer and Assessor of Hancock county, was also expelled from his residence in Carthage, and obliged to flee to some secure place with his family for safety. At Warsaw Edward A. Bedell, Esq., Post Master of that place, and a Justice of the Peace of the Warsaw Precinct, was obliged to flee to save his life, giving him but a half minute time to prepare to go. These gentlemen have been driven from their homes by force of arms, and threats of immediate death, if they offered any resistance.

Messrs. Bedell & Robinson are well known with very many citizens of the adjoining counties, and they are favorably known to and are amongst our very best citizens in Hancock, (and if there be any merit in it, they rank amongst the oldest settlers of this county.) Capt. Ross is much respected by all honorable men with whom he is acquainted. On the night of the 15th instant an armed mob surrounded my residence at Carthage, in search of me as they said, greatly terrified my wife and children, demanded entrance to search my house, and informed Mrs. B. that I must leave Hancock county immediately, under the penalty of consequence, which meant death.

On the night of the 16th, I raised an armed force of mounted men to march to Carthage, to rescue my family and others threatened. On entering the town we were fired upon by some of the mobbers, who instantly fled. My heart sickened when I think of the distressed situation in which I found my family, in the hands of a gang of black hearted villains, guilty of all the crimes known to our laws. It is however due to say, that there are a few of the Carthaginians and Warsaw people, who have heretofore acted with the mob faction, who are opposed to this riot, yet, up to this time, they have not joined the standard of law and order; the families which I designed to rescue had fled, with the exception of Mrs. Deming, the widow of the late Gen. Deming, who was of opinion that she might escape their vengeance, inasmuch as the death of her husband so recently, it was thought had appeased their wrath against that family.

After we had entered the town, persons were seen running about with fire brands. Anticipating their intention of firing their own buildings, in order to charge the same upon the posse comitatus under my command, we immediately took steps to prevent this, by threatening to put to the sword all those engaged in firing the place. We then directed our march towards Warsaw, and on reaching a point midway to that place, I was informed of new depredations by the mob. I sent my family to Nauvoo for safety, under a small guard, and took up a line of march in the direction of the rising smoke. On reaching a point about three miles from the rising flames, I divided the posse comitatus in order to surround those engaged in the burning; we were discovered by them. On our approach, the mobbers took flight, the posse pursuing with directions to arrest them if possible, and to fire upon them if they would not be arrested. The house burners retreating towards one of their strong places at the speed of their horse, a part of the posse, pursuing at full speed, and firing upon them, killing two, and wounding it is believed others. This occurred on Bear Creek, about two o'clock this afternoon.

I commanded one of the detachments in person, and authorized the person who commanded the other. As I was then satisfied that the burners had fled from that place, we directed our line of march northwardly, when we were informed of the approach of a reinforcement of mounted men, who were ordered to reconnoitre, raise the people to defend, and aid them in defending the settlement against the depredations of the mob. We then directed our course to Nauvoo, performing a forced march of about 65 miles in the space of 20 hours. This expedition I have now a posse comitatus, numbering upwards of 2000 well armed men, firm and ready to aid me in suppressing the riot, and in arresting them. I am happy in informing the citizens that 2000 additional armed men hold themselves in readiness to be called out when necessary.

To those honorable and worthy citizens in the adjoining counties, who have proffered their aid in quelling this disgraceful mob, I will say, after returning my grateful acknowledgements for the kind interest which they have manifested in defence of the rights of American citizens, the Constitution and the laws of our beloved country. That, as yet, I have confidence that I can command force sufficient within this county, to arrest or if that fails, to put to the sword every villain engaged in this inhuman outrage; I am sanguine of success, whether my life be spared or not. Gladly will we receive aid from any of the adjoining counties, for the suppression of the rioters, in the event the force in this county be insufficient. If no considerable number of mobbers gather from without Hancock, success will crown our efforts. I am well advised that no considerable number from any of our adjoining counties, will come and act with any man; and I now declare, that if the mob shall fire their own buildings, grain or other property, for the purpose of charging the same on my posse, I shall deal the same with them as though they destroyed the property of others, and arrest or put to the sword all such incendiaries.

Since my second proclamation, I have learned further particulars of the scoundrels, who were in pursuit of me on the highway on the 16th inst., the fact of which were fully set forth in said proclamation so far as was in my possession. I now inform the public that Franklin A. Worrell was one of the four, who, on that occasion pursued me; was shot by one of the four of my posse, who I summoned on the spot to protect my life. Worrell died the same day.

J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Sheriff H. Co., Ills.
Hancock County, Ills.,
Sept. 17th, A. D. 1845.
P. S. In my second Proclamation of Wednesday road yesterday.

Proclamation
No. 4.

Since issuing proclamation No. 3 new things have transpired in which the community at large feel a deep and abiding interest, who expect from me, a fair, full and unvarnished statement of facts as they exist with regard to the rioters, if within my knowledge, as well as all my proceedings in attempting to suppress the same, with all the important facts as they occur during my progress.

On the evening of the 18th instant, I proceeded with 200 well armed mounted men, for the second time to the south-west part of the county, which has sustained nearly all the suffering and destruction by the mob, joining the detachment which I had previously detailed to reconnoitre, make arrest and prevent further burning. My intention was to attack the encampment of the rioters, on the following day and rout them. I received intelligence that they had changed their position, which caused me to countermand a previous order for a reinforcement of eight hundred infantry and two pieces of ordinance. I also received intelligence that the mob were encamped in the bottom near the Mississippi river, below Warsaw, with at least eight hundred armed men with one piece of artillery. As I had previously determined to march into the camp of the rioters, and arrest or disperse them, I again ordered a reinforcement of four hundred infantry and one piece of artillery, with the intention of attacking the camp; this gave me the command of a posse, with seven hundred men and one piece of ordinance.

Knowing the courage, bravery, and skill of the forces under my command, I was willing to make an attack upon the enemy entrenched behind their fortifications. I then took up a line of march to Carthage, the county seat of Hancock, the residence of nearly all of the notorious Carthage Greys, and the head quarters of a band of the most infamous and villainous scoundrels that ever infested any community, who have, for the last two years abandoned labor and the ordinary avocations of good citizens; they are generally poor; a few have been trading upon borrowed capital; but they are selfish and will not even trust their own mob friends. Many of those have considerable large families; they must live and do live;—how, I would ask do such men get a living? men without means and families, too, and who do nothing but brawl about grog shops, cursing and abusing better citizens than they can be men who are openly upholding mob violence, aiding and abetting the extermination of the very best and old settlers in this county, forsooth they have the independence of affixing with them in opinion. Did not the community in this and the surrounding counties already know the names of those heaven daring land pirates, I should give their names a full length. I entered the town of Carthage about the setting of the sun, as I had a large number of writs for the arrest of those accused of burning houses, barns, and stacks of grain. I ordered my posse to surround the town and permit none to escape, but to bring every man to the Court House in order that I might arrest such persons as I had writs against, and detain such other persons in custody as are accused by respectable persons as being guilty of depredations, until they might be dealt with according to law. All those against whom I had writs fled before I could have them surrounded except one Anthony Barkman.

Col. Gettis, was arrested on suspicion of being one of the ring leaders, he is charged with having ordered out his regiment in order to join the mob, orders signed by him, directing to and commanding the Captains of companies under his command, requiring them immediately to call out their respective companies; this Col. Gettis admits, but claims that he was commanded to do so by a superior officer, viz: Col. Levi Williams, who claims to hold and have the command of this brigade, comprising Hancock, McDonough, and Schuyler counties, by virtue of seniority by commission. Col. Gettis agreed to remain until morning, when I informed him that he would not be detained, as I was unable to get positive testimony that he was engaged in burning, or that he advised others so to do, however, several suspicious circumstances connected with the conduct and acts of Col. G., for several days previous to my entrance into Carthage; for instance, Col. Levi Williams, John McCauly, a notorious advocate of the mobbers, several others of the same gang and this same Col. Gettis, held a secret meeting in Carthage on the 10th inst. Col. G. is a strong advocate for the extermination of a portion of the community of this county. Some of the law and order citizens of Carthage and vicinity felt disposed to censure me for putting him under arrest, as it is believed he is a co operator of the notorious Levi Williams.

After the posse was put in motion in the direction of Carthage, I addressed a communication to Col. Levi Williams and others, in the words and figures following, to wit:

2 o'clock P. M., Sept. 18th, 1845.
Head Quarters of the Sheriff of Hancock county, commanding the posse comitatus of the Southern detachment in said county.
To the Mob gathered in the s. w. part of Hancock county, Ills., commanded and directed by Col. Levi Williams and a few others, who as it is said have a strong force under their influence and guidance, and who are also strongly fortified as I am informed, and who have as I have destroyed much property with force of arms, by going about this county shooting at, and compelling peaceable citizens to leave their homes, and applying firebrands to their buildings, grain, &c., and otherwise by all manner of inhuman treatment to the sick, and helpless women and children. It is unnecessary for me again to remind you of the magnitude of the crimes of which you already stand charged. Some of the sick women and children who were compelled to leave their sick beds, and as it is believed in consequence of exposure to the inclemency of the weather and the rays of the scorching sun, thus adding murder to the lesser crime of arson. My duty as an officer is defined by law. Your mob proceedings require of me an effort to quell you in your mad career if possible without the shedding of blood. You will all do me the justice to say that I have spared no pains in endeavoring to accomplish such a desirable result. I send proclamations, and took pains that copies were sent to your mob camps, you know my duty. You were advised openly of my determination and policy which were fully set forth in my proclamations. You have not desisted in your depredations, but on the other hand you became more emboldened than before. In the mean time I have raised a posse comitatus in order to arrest all engaged in this riot, if possible, and in case they should not submit to law and be arrested, to fire upon them or put them to the sword.

The painful necessity of firing upon a part of your depredators became apparent on the 16th inst., at which time several of the burners were killed; we caught them in the act of burning buildings. I will close this communication by again appealing to you in the name of humanity, the law, and the good of yourselves and our country that you instantly desist your mobbing and burning, deliver yourselves into my hands to be dealt with according to law, that is to say, you the leaders; and to surrender into my hands the ordinance which you procured through fraud and deception; and that you also deliver into my hands all the State arms which you have twice heretofore refused to surrender upon the demand of the Executive of the State by his authorized agent; and forthwith disperse each and all of you to your homes and pursue the ordinary avocations of good peaceable citizens. Such a course will be honorable to you, and will save the shedding of much blood.

I am authorized to receive and take charge of all the public arms in this county.

It is expected that you will comply with the above reasonable requests. I hereby pledge myself to protect you in all your constitutional rights, and that you shall be dealt with according to the laws of our country. Should you see fit to submit to the laws and requirements as set forth above, you will on the part of the mob, communicate to me in writing at the Chapman place, midway between Carthage and Warsaw, on to-morrow at 12 o'clock M. Should you not submit or refuse to reply, your silence will be taken as a refusal to surrender to the laws, when you must expect to meet the consequences.

Respectfully yours, &c.
J. B. BACKENSTOS,
Sheriff of Hancock county, Ills.
P. S. I send by the bearer herof my last proclamation, No. 3.

On the following day Mr. Calkins (the express, returned, and stated that Col. Williams had crossed the river into the State of Missouri; whether he had fled, with the following communication in reply to my letter of yesterday:

"Sept. 18th, '45.
J. B. Backenstos, Sir—I received a communication yesterday, through the hands of Mr. Calkins, addressed to me in the character of the leader of the mob. I entertain no communication, neither will I make any reply to that character. Your communication bespeaks the character of its author, and needs from me that indignant contempt it so richly deserves. If you were worthy the notice of a gentleman, I would meet you on any field, but as you occupy a station so far beneath the dignity of a man that I shall not condescend to have anything to do with you in any manner, shape or form. You can pursue what course with the mob; that you please, I answer not for them, but rest assured that they are at all times ready for you.
LEVI WILLIAMS."

I am directed by Gov. Ford to collect the public arms which have been demanded in vain twice before from the mobbers to wit: the arms of the Carthage Greys and the arms in the hands of Capt. Grover & Davis at Warsaw under this order and instruction I directed my posse at Carthage to collect all the public arms which were so unfortunately placed in the hands of officers and privates who have on many occasions used them as means to terrify insult and abuse the peaceable citizens of our County. I have collected nine stand and a part of the accoutrements and will endeavor to get the balance.

I have them in my possession subject to the order of the Commander in Chief of the Illinois Militia; they are not and shall not be used by the posse under my command, as I have no authority from the Governor for so doing.

The posse under my command have been prompt and obedient to all my orders, with the exception of one order in relation to the collection of the State arms at Carthage. I ordered the posse to ask for and receive from any person in possession of any arms of the Carthage Greys, and deliver them to me at the Court House. This order was disobeyed or misunderstood; by two of the posse by bringing three guns, the private property of citizens, and one man quarrelled with a lady and used in her presence, ungentlemanly language. I ordered the three men immediately under arrest, placed them under guard, sent them home, and returned the guns.

After leaving a sufficient force to defend the place against the mobbers both within and without the town of Carthage, at about 12 o'clock on the 20th inst., we took up our line of march to the place of rendezvous at the Chipman place, between Warsaw and Carthage, thence to proceed against the mob encampment with a design to arrest or rout them from their hiding place. Before I reached midway to Warsaw, I received positive intelligence that the mob had fled the county and state by crossing the Mississippi river at Warsaw with all their arms, cannon, &c., to Missouri. I marched the posse to Warsaw for the purpose of making arrests; remained a short time; when I directed the infantry and artillery northwardly on the prairie road and I proceeded up the potom road with the mounted forces. I am now on the bank of the Mississippi river near Montebello. Since the firing upon the mob at Bear Creek on the 16th inst., there has been no burning of any houses, barns, grain, stacks, or in any thing else that has come to my knowledge. The mobbers, rioters and other outlaws, have principally fled without the limits of this county. Peace and quiet, law and order, has again been restored in Hancock county.

Therefore Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of Hancock county, hereby proclaim the county of Hancock in peace; that the rioters have dispersed and gone to their homes, and fled this county and State. Let all good citizens who were expelled, by the mobbers, from their homes, and those who fled from the county for security against mob violence, return to their homes, and they shall be protected. I have an armed force stationed in the Court House at Carthage, for the protection of the officers of the county, who are compelled by law to reside at the county seat, and for the protection of all persons having business at, or who may desire to visit Carthage, and also to protect from insult and mob violence the inhabitants of Carthage and the surrounding country. I have a number of small scouting parties reconnoitering the county to keep the peace and protect the settlements and make arrests of those who are known to be guilty of the riot, in whose hands writs have been placed. I desire that the citizens will aid them in ferreting them out, that they may be arrested and brought to justice.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Sheriff H. C. Ills.
Bank of the Mississippi five miles near Montebello, Sept. 20th A. D. 1845.

P. S.—The Warsaw Signal Extra of the 18th Sept., contains its usual amount of willful and malicious falsehoods. It is unnecessary for me to deny any statement I pronounce the entire Extra a tissue of lies from beginning to end, so far as they purport to give the news of the killing of Worrell and McBratney, and the balance set forth in relation to the difficulties in our county, and I hold myself responsible to prove the same false, by men of the best standing.
J. B. B. Sheriff.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 21, 1845.

VICTORY AND PEACE.

We take pleasure in saying peace reigns in Hancock county. The "stars and stripes" triumph on life Court House at Carthage, and law and order prevails. It is, perhaps, the highest testimony of Mormon greatness, when called into actual service as a posse by the Sheriff, to say that instead of mashing the whole mob without mercy, for continued and often repeated insults, outbreaks, and murders, they cured a few, and left the rest to remember that life is sweet!

Another token of the highest "RESPECTABILITY," is, that when mob Williams, Sharps and company's envoy extraordinary, and minister plenipotentiary, (A. B. Chambers, Esq., of the St. Louis Republican,) acknowledged himself in the service of the mob, as their apologist, burning spectator, and F. M. they treated him with urbanity and suavity, not forgetting that the good will of a dog is better than the venom of a whiffet.

We could say much because the Lord has wisely given us the victory of law and order over a set of land pirates who were spreading the "fire shower of ruin" among their neighbors of the same blood, and equal privileges; but to extend life's multiply peace, and sustain the institutions of the best government on earth, let this suffice: For God's sake don't tamper again with the rights and destinies of others, lest, as now, the "clashing of brave men's armor," in brave men's hands, cause the living cowards to flee—the dead ones bite the ground!

"SHE SLEEPS TO CONQUER."

Every principle of virtue, every charm that renders life delightful, and every tie that binds man to his fellow, plead for mercy in all cases where it can be extended. So, for a case in point, we, as a church and people, have felt the iron and leaden power of Missouri, from the Executive down to the tipstaff—in the destruction of property by millions, and life by hundreds. And while we have petitioned the judge, the governor, and the president for redress, enduring poverty and privations almost beyond description, it may be said of the church—"She sleeps to conquer!"

Illinois has commenced to fill up the cup of her iniquity: innocent men, women and children are driven from their homes, penniless to die; the sick are thrown out upon the cold ground to languish, helpless, among CHIRRS, TIANS, and their houses and grain are burnt to ashes before their eyes, by a gang of land pirates, who pretend to be the people, the authorities, the preachers, and the dictators of American freedom! And if any of these American moderates happen to get shot dead by the lawful authorities of the country while mobbing: Oh dear! it is "Murder! To arms! To arms!" roars these land pirates. And in fact, some are so tenacious for this kind of "left arm" of our country's disgrace, that they would if they could, puff them as gentlemen of "respectability." But we believe that every law-abiding man, every patriot, and every friend of his country, whenever he finds a man bandying about with a mob to see them run men, women, and children from their homes, and then burn their habitations, will apply the Savior's golden words to them: where there TREASURE is there will their hearts be also!

But, while these dealings in blood, devastation and ruin are winked at, or connived at, or softened, or apologized for by such black mold, black legged, black hearted foes of equal rights, of law and religion, under the shallow pretence that the constitutions and institutions of our country are too weak to maintain the law,—the patriot, the friend of freedom, and the saint exclaim in a voice like thunder:

"See that your honors unvarnished keep—Don't blot father's fame, nor give up the ship!"
While, like the rock, towering up in the midst of the ocean, and braving the surges and storms of ages, the church, glides through persecution, fire and death, not firing the "cannon of revenge," nor dodging the "club of vengeance," that wabbles in the red eyed assassin's hand; but with a smile, ever al-

these dreadful wrongs of life, instead of retaliation she breathes forgiveness as far as God will. In the midst of wrath she remembers mercy. And with an inexpressible condescension, and simple greatness that overgoes the wisdom, shrewdness and philosophy of men—she stoops to conquer VICE.

The Sheriff of Hancock.—We feel it our duty to say that Sheriff Backenstos is entitled to the highest encomium of every American patriot, for the prompt and energetic measures, and his unceasing vigilance, which so successfully put to flight the blood thirsty, pestilential, and property-wasting mob of Hancock County, and vicinity. His proclamations speak for themselves; No 4 in particular should be read by every freeman of the Republic, and in churches generally.

The work is well begun, and that too, without the shedding of much blood. If it be continued, by the united exertions of the whole people, through the friendly grips of justice, faithfully, and humanely administered to each culprit, until the bills of every sufferer are satisfied, debt, cost, and interest, and the penitentiary made to rejoice in the abundance of her delinquents, the "Augean stables" of Hancock will be cleansed.

Let every sufferer and every honest man be ready with precepts when one of the rioters or burners is recognized, to take him and hand him over to the law, that he may receive his reward. But let no man attempt to settle his own claims. Magnify the law.

If the Sheriff in Kentucky had put to the sword a few, and had all the rest of the respectable mob, which forcibly transported C. M. Clay's press out of the State, imprisoned and dealt with according to law, it would have been an honor to the State of Kentucky, and the surrounding world would have exclaimed—LIBERTY WILL LAST AS LONG AS LAW IS TRIUMPHANT!

CHRIST AND SATAN.

The following from the revelations of Jesus Christ, shows his rule in case of mobs:

"Now I speak unto you concerning your families; if men will smite you, or your families, once, and ye bear it patiently and revile not against them, neither see, revenge, ye shall be rewarded; but if ye bear it not patiently, it shall be accounted unto you as being meted out a just measure unto you. And again if your enemy shall smite you the second time, and you revile not against your enemy, and bear it patiently, your reward shall be an hundred fold. And again if he shall smite you the third time, and ye bear it patiently, your reward shall be doubled unto you four fold; and these three testimonies shall stand against your enemy, if he repeat not, and shall not be blotted out. And now verily I say unto you, if that enemy shall escape my vengeance that he be not brought in to judgment before me, then ye shall see to it, that ye warn him in my name that he come no more upon you, neither upon your family; even your children's children unto the third and fourth generation; and then if he shall come upon you, or your children, or your children's children unto the third and fourth generation, I have delivered thine enemy into thine hands, and then if thou wilt spare him thou shalt be rewarded for thy righteousness; and also thy children and thy children's children unto the third and fourth generation; nevertheless thine enemy is in thine hands, and if thou reward him according to his works, thou art justified, if he has sinned thy life, and thy life is endangered by him; thine enemy is in thine hands, and thou art justified."

This is the law of the ancient scribes. Satan's rule as published in the Warsaw Signal is thus: "Forbearance, in this case, is contemptible and pusillanimous. It is not in accordance with the spirit of our institutions; nor does it comport with the dignity of independent men. Many of our law-abiding Anti-Mormons complain that they do not wish to violate the law. What is the law? Do these gentlemen know what the law is? Is acting counter to Ford's or Deming's will a violation of law? No, the people are the law. What have the people done? Have they not repealed the Nauvoo Charter? Have they not justified the killing of the tyrant Joe? and have they not signified their anxiety in many ways that the Mormons should leave the State?—peaceably if they will; forcibly if they must? The next object is, that we dislike to be the aggressors. Shall we wait for them to commit some outrage against the law? Alas, they are not doing it daily? Shall we then wait till they come out and fight us? We have had repeated evidences that they will not do it. 'Persecution' is piteously cried, instead of the clashing of brave men's armor. And thus it will be, till the depositories of corruption send hither their masses in sufficient numbers to overrun our beautiful State.—Shall we withhold the club of vengeance from the viper's head, because he recoils and meekly slinks away? If you, citizens of Hancock, you stamp disgrace upon the American name, and entail poverty and misery upon yourselves and your posterity."

This is the doctrine of devils.

Cast of Mobbing.—Suppose we put the number of houses destroyed by the mob in Hancock county, at 150, those, and the furniture and grain, destroyed at the same time, at $500 each, the lowest possible estimate, will amount to seventy five thousand dollars. Add to this the cost of the Sheriff's posse, and incidental expenses, at about $25,000, and we have the enormous sum of one hundred thousand dollars saddled upon the mob of Hancock county and the State of Illinois, just to gratify the "club of vengeance." Will it be paid. It will, unless the law swings from its moorings. Let every man make out his bill.

Business.—The labor of Nauvoo are beginning to assume the old appearance. The Nauvoo boys are up to business; they can build the city, maintain the supremacy of the law; preach the gospel, and keep peace just as well without a charter as with.

Mob-Conundrum.—Why was William's and Sharp's mob, that were burning houses on Bear Creek, like the 21st chapter and 14th verse of Ezekiel? Now don't be afraid of "Respectability" but let it out. Well, it was because the posse put to the sword the great men that entered in their privacy—Chambers.

Ho, that Wheat!—If our brethren of Iowa, who have not been troubled with "war," will bring that wheat and other provisions, which will render us comfortable through conference, according to promise, they will do good thing, and help the "Neighbor" boys more than all the mobs in the country. Come on! will you do it? Ditto Hancock.

A Little Navigation.—The Reville man did not like to admit that he cabaged, or soldered ed joials. Very well thought we, a little navigation will bring the desired port. So we took two Lakes; one from a "modern writer," and the other from a "writer;"—meaning the "Reville," and brought the "heli a port;"—with poetic shouting. Now we are even Corporal; eyes right.

Growth of Cities.—Cities grow by degrees. New York has been growing a long while. The first census was taken in the year 1696.

Years.	Population.	Increase.
1696	4,302
1731	8,622	4,320
1776	10,381	1,759
1773	21,876	11,495
1786	23,614	1,738
1790	33,131	9,517
1800	60,489	27,358
1810	96,572	36,083
1820	123,706	27,134
1825	166,083	42,377
1830	202,569	36,486
1840	319,700	117,131

Brooklyn.—In 1840 her population was about 36,000. Her newspapers say that the present census will show a population of 60,000, or even 70,000, the increase in one ward proving to be nearly one hundred per cent.

Nauvoo.—In six years Nauvoo will have 20,000 and the best Temple in America—with the Nauvoo House to boot.

From the (Quincy) Daily Morning Courier.

QUINCY, Sept. 18, 1815.

Messrs. Editors:—Enclosed I send you a letter from E. A. BEDELL, Esq., of Warsaw, and though he has arrived in safety at Quincy, I nevertheless submit his letter to you for publication, if you think the astounding detail of facts worthy of notice. Mr. Bedell's character is too well known in this community for his veracity to be doubted by any.

J. H. RALSTON.

MONTEBELLO, Sept. 17, 1815.

J. H. RALSTON, Esq.
Dear Sir:—You will be astonished when I inform you that I have been driven from my house and the Post Office, which I was appointed to fill a few weeks since. The facts are as follows:—The notorious Levi Williams has been at the head of a mob, in this county, for some seven or eight days, burning the buildings of the citizens of the county known as Mormons, and I publicly disapproved of this proceeding. Night before last the Sheriff of this county, J. B. Backenstos, after having been out through the county to summon a posse to suppress this riotous proceeding, came to my house, at Warsaw, to ascertain how much assistance he could procure to quell this mob, and informed me that he had been pursued by three armed men. Shortly after his arrival, I was informed by several personal friends that his life was in great danger if he left town that night. I informed him, and advised him to remain over night. In the morning he got a personal friend to guard him out of town. After he had gone some eight or nine miles, as I was informed, he was pursued by an armed force, from Carthage, under full run. After running some distance, he overtook some men in the road, and summoned them in the name of the people to protect him; one of the persons raised a gun to shoot him when he ordered his posse to fire, and one of his men killed a man by the name of F. A. Worrell, of Carthage; he was an officer of the Carthage Grays, the same who had charge of the Smiths when they were murdered. His body was brought into Warsaw, which created considerable excitement. My deputy Postmaster was absent, and I had to remain in the office the most of the time, or in sight of it. About two o'clock I went to my house to dinner, after which I started to my office, and to my great mortification and surprise I met at my gate the Ex Postmaster of Warsaw, Geo. Rockwell Esq. and Mr. John Montague, who informed me that the Carthage people had come in and that I must leave town immediately, in half a minute. I saw an armed force on Main street, in front of my house and I thought I had better go; but I was informed that the roads were guarded, and I did not know what to do. A friend then took me over the river in a canoe. I gave the key of the Post Office to my wife. I am driven from my house and Office by a WHITE MOB. My father, as you are aware, settled in Warsaw in 1828 before the Black Hawk disturbance, and remained with his family at his residence; while the most of his neighbors, which were few, as the country was new, fortified up.

Now my dear sir, what do you think of this treatment? I will here state that the Mormons have done nothing that I am aware of to create this excitement against them; but these desperadoes will manufacture and circulate all sorts of lies and stories to carry their schemes of mobocracy and arson. The Post Master of Carthage, I am informed, has been driven out of the county, and I presume they will drive his deputy, if he is not of a stamp to suit them. Col. Rose, the Treasurer of the county, has also been driven. This mob has burned at least 70 buildings; they have burned 10 or 15 houses this day. They have burned several barns filled with wheat, also many stacks of wheat and oats. The owners have not raised an arm to defend their property. I know you will be astonished at this, but it is all true. I am this night going to your city, but I expect to be taken prisoner before I reach you, and will probably be killed. You will please have my letter published in that event. My family have arrived here in safety.

I remain your true friend,
and obedient servant,
E. A. BEDELL.

Judge Ralston.
P. S.—The burners were fired on this afternoon, I am informed, and two men killed and some wounded. My informant thinks that the Sheriff was at the head of the men that attacked the burners.

In haste,
E. A. B.

Letter from Mexico.—The U. S. sloop of war Saratoga arrived at Pensacola on the 31st ult., in thirteen days from Vera Cruz. A letter from an officer on board states, explicitly, that prior to the departure of the ship from Vera Cruz, advices had been received from the capital, that Congress had authorized the President of Mexico to act with regard to Texas, and that Gen. Herrera had in consequence ordered 15,000 men to the Rio Grand, (which had already taken up their line of march for their destination,) and issued orders for raising a much larger force. I also confirm the election of Gen. Herrera, as reported. It further states, that Mexico does not intend to declare war against this country, but will exert her utmost efforts to reconquer Texas.

The Tropics correspondent writes that Com. Conner has no intention of leaving Pensacola with his fleet until he hears of a declaration of war, or an act of hostility by Mexico. He will then sail with his whole squadron for San Juan d'Ulva.

[Reville.

Letter from Texas.—The Creole arrived at Mobile on the 3d inst., bringing dates from Corpus Christi of the 31st ult. Gen. Taylor remained as at last accounts.

The 2d Regiment of Dragoons, under Col. Twiggs, arrived at Corpus Christi on the 26th ult. All were in fine health and spirits. Every thing about the camp was perfectly quiet. At about the same time as the Dragoons, three companies of Mexican traders arrived at Gen. Taylor's camp with a goodly number of reports, but upon which no reliance could be placed. One of these reports was, that a regiment of Mexican troops, about 700 strong, left Tampico six weeks previous for Matamoros, but their numbers had been reduced to 300 by sickness and desertion on the march, induced by the want of food and water. At almost every military post in the North-Eastern part of Mexico desertions were extremely frequent. Arista had been seriously ill at Matamoros, but had so far recovered as to resume the duties of his command.—Gen. Parides was reported to be still at Monterey, but with less than 1500 troops, who were continually deserting. The reader must receive these reports strictly as reports.—ib.

CREAM OF TARTAR FRUIT.

Mr. Wise has sent to the National Institute a specimen of the fruit of an African tree, called Baobab, which he thus describes: "The fruit is similar to a gourd in shape and size, and covered with a green felt-like rind. The substance of the rind is as hard, nearly as the shell of the coconut. But if you will cut off the stem, and open it at the stem end, you will find it to contain a natural cream of tartar, which, enclosing the seed, and strung on fibres similar to those of the tamarind-pod, is used to make a delicious, cooling, acidulous beverage, quite refreshing in a hot climate, and similar in its medicinal effects to that of the substance which it so much resembles."

South Carolina.—The drought has been so severe in this State the present season as to cause a general failure of the provision crops, and in many parts the horrors of famine stare the inhabitants in the face. This prospect is said to be truly alarming.—Reg.

NOTICE.
I am authorized to receive wheat, flour, corn, meal, potatoes, butter, lard, honey, eggs, beef, pork, tallow, and even money, from new subscribers to the New York Messenger. So, all wishing this interesting paper, will "govern themselves accordingly."
L. O. BITTLEFIELD.
Sept. 17, 1845.

NOTICE.
I hereby given that J. W. Coolidge, Adm. of the estate of Joseph Smith, will apply to the Court of Probate in and for the County of Hancock on the second Monday of October next, for an order to compound such claims belonging to the estate of Joseph Smith as he may think expedient.
J. W. COOLIDGE Adm.
Sept. 20, 1845-21-4w

PAMPHLETS.
CONTAINING A "correct account of the murder of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in Carthage jail, on the 25th of June 1844," embellished with three splendid engravings, illustrating the horrible event, for sale at this office.
(Sept. 17-1845-20-1f)

HIO! THE TEMPLE, NAUVOO HOUSE AND MY HOUSE.

LET no private interest obstruct the progress of the Temple or Nauvoo House; yet it is obvious to all the church that I should have a house as much so as other men and something to sustain me and my family while we serve them in our capacity. And if the saints, and others design to help me in this matter it is imperatively necessary it should be done soon, if done at all this season. While the masons are employed on the Nauvoo House, you can bring on the materials for my house, stone, brick, lumber, &c., that all things may be ready for the masons when they can be had. A word to the wise is sufficient.
Please hear us and attend to our call in due season, that we may have a house to shield off the chilling blast of winter.
Respectfully your servant,
JOHN E. PAGE.
Sept. 10th, 1845-19-3w.

C. & T. LEWIS,
NO. 190 MAIN STREET, ONE DOOR BELOW THE VIRGINIA HOTEL, ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

HAVING received the largest part of our immense Stock of Fall and Winter Clothing, we are now prepared to supply Country Merchants and others, on the most favorable terms. We have at this time the Largest, Cheapest, and most complete assortment ever brought to Saint Louis, and will continue to receive by every boat until late in the Fall, which will keep our assortment throughout the season, full and complete. Every article usually kept in a Clothing or Furnishing House, can be found at No. 190. Our Goods this Fall are all Fresh and New, made of the very best materials, cut by men of acknowledged skill and ability, and put together in a style fully equal to custom work. We can and will sell Clothing cheaper by 30 per cent than any concern in the Western country—prices so very low that defies all competition.

Do you wish to know how we can do this? We will explain; in the first place we buy our materials of the Manufacturers, and pay the cash down for them, saving the Importers and Jobbers profits for the benefit of our customers. We also save 6 per cent by paying cash for labor. Set the Importers and jobbers profits down at the lowest per cent possible, say
Importers profit, 10 per cent
Jobbers do, 14 per cent
Cash for labor (saved) 6 per cent
and we have the large sum of thirty per cent, which every person can save, by making their purchases of C. & T. Lewis.

T. LEWIS, (one of the firm) residing in New York, and superintends the manufacturing of all our Stock. We possess exclusive advantages at this time for doing a large business.
Vast Resources! Spacious Premises! Immense Stock! Unequalled Talent!!! Unprecedented Variety!!!!

and the most ample means to carry out to the fullest possible extent, a business of such immense magnitude.
The most important consideration for persons about to make their Fall Purchases of Clothing is, how and where, can our money be laid out with the greatest advantage? Should these questions suggest themselves to people about to visit St. Louis, the plain answer is, at C. & T. Lewis, where at all times can be found the Largest, Cheapest, and best assortment of Ready Made Clothing in the Western country.

We respectfully invite all to come in and take a view of our Stock, it will pay you well for the time spent,—we will wait upon you with pleasure.

No. 190 Main street, corner store, one door below the Virginia Hotel. On the top of the House, a large 190.

C. & T. LEWIS,
Terms.—Retail for cash,
Wholesale do do or approved paper
St. Louis, August 25-19-3w

FOR SALE in Hancock county, about 20 miles from Nauvoo; 12 miles from Warsaw; 7 from Lima. 12 acres of good land, about 81 acres and a good cultivation; 25 under pasture, with 2 log houses, one 18 by 21 with frame attached 12 by 24, 2 wells good water, stable, and outbuildings.
Also, 11 acres of good timber land, about 2 miles from the above, with log house and about 20 acres under fence.

Also, a new one story Cottage, containing 6 rooms, with about 3 acres of land situated in one of the most pleasant situations in Nauvoo. Application to be made as to terms, to John Taylor editor of this paper: N. Boscaw, corner of White street on Winchester street; Dr. Atkinson, Buffalo, New York.
Aug. 10-16f

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
County of Hancock.
NOTICE. is hereby given, to all persons having claims against the Estate of Elijah Terry, deceased, to present the same at the office of the Probate Justice of the Peace, for said county on the 22d day of October, A. D. 1845, for proof and a judgment thereof.
PHILO A. GOODWIN,
Adm'r of said Elijah Terry, dec'd.
August 15, 1845-10-4w.

NOTICE.
A LARGE quantity of BRICKLAYERS and CARPENTERS wanted IMMEDIATELY, on the NAUVOO HOUSE and the TEMPLE.
Do you see? Do you hear? if you do, pay ATTENTION!! Recollect time is daily!!
GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWES,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH.
Nauvoo, August 22, 1845-16f

CITY LOTS AND PRAIRIE LANDS.
THE NAUVOO HOUSE ASSOCIATION have several very eligible city lots—and several fine farms, on the prairie, which they will sell very low, or exchange for grain, beef cattle, cows, horses or other property that can be used in building the Nauvoo House.
Please call at the office of the association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets, or on either of the Trustees.

GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWES,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH,
Nauvoo, August 22, 1845-16f

FOR SALE.
BY the Trustees of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
(One large new Two Horse Carriage.)
Any person wishing to purchase, will please call at the Trustees office, in the Brick Store north of the Temple formerly occupied by P. P. Pratt, or at Pres. B. Young's, corner of Kimball and Granger streets.
August 6, 14-1f

Old Connecticut Pottery.

WANDELL & MORE
MANUFACTURERS OF EARTHEN WARE, CITY OF JOSEPH, ILL.;
WAREHOUSE ON MILL LANE STREET, FOUR BLOCKS EAST OF THE TEMPLE.
KEEP constantly on hand, and manufacture to order, every description of articles to their line of business; namely—
Lead Pots, Crucibles, Furnaces, Jugs, Pitchers, Churns, Pans, Pickles, Water Kegs, Wash Basins, Milk Pans, Flower Pots, Tea Pots, Bed Pans, Coffee Pots, Dishes, Butlers, Ginger Pops, Botlers, Chimney Tops, stoves, and bell ed Jars with covers, straight and bell ed.
Butter Pots with covers, 7 1/2 Bread Pots with covers, square and round dishes, from 6 to 14 inches, 5 ovens, Chambers, and other articles too numerous to mention. We are also prepared to manufacture Sugar Moulds and Drips of a superior quality.
We are employing experienced workmen from New York, Connecticut and can assure the public, that our wares will be found equal, if not superior, to anything of the kind in the western country.
We can accommodate the public with wares of thirteen different shades, such as jet-black, blue-black, red, green, yellow, green color, mottled color, etc., etc.
Orders from St. Louis and other southern and western markets, packed in the best manner at a short notice. Cash or produce taken in exchange for wares.
C. W. WANDELL,
M. MORE, Jr.
Nauvoo, July 30, 1845-13-1y

WANTED.
BY the Nauvoo House Association, 200 Tons of hay, 10,000 Bushels of oats, 25,000 Bushels of wheat, 25,000 Bushels of corn, 5,000 Bushels of potatoes, 1,000 Cords of wood, 2,000 Dollars in cash, 1,000 Barrels of pork, 100 Hauls of beef cattle, 100 Horses,
And every thing else that can be made use of in building the "Nauvoo House." Apply at the office of the Association, corner of Parley and Hyde streets.
GEORGE MILLER,
PETER HAWES,
AMASA LYMAN,
GEORGE A. SMITH,
July 22-12f

HIO! PLEASURE IN ADVANCE!

TO those who wish to ride over the Rapids of the beautiful Mississippi I would say, I shall keep a good sail boat near Manhards Steam Mill for their accommodation and passengers to Keokuk. The waters purr along free as air—therefore we will land them at any convenient point on either side of the river after a pleasant sail on the bosom of the Father of waters, and I will endeavor to make engagements for a carriage, that those may take at the waters edge who desire it, after regaling if they choose upon beer, cake, &c. &c. Those who visit our city and wish to view the scenery on the Islands or Iowa, will be conveyed there also. All things will be done decently and in good order. Come and see!
A. YOUNG.
August 9th 1845-15-3w

N. B. I particularly invite the Twelve, President G. Miller, Father John Smith and his clerk, with their families. Mother Smith and the widows of the Martyred Prophet and Patriarch—to come and sail free.

NEIGHBORS.

WE have on hand about 20 copies of the last years Neighbor for binding those wishing to purchase will have to apply soon.
Nauvoo August 13th 1845-15-1f

LOOK HERE.

FIFTEEN or twenty good mechanics wanted immediately in the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage manufacturing association.
GEORGE W. HARRIS, President,
SIDNEY ROBERTS, Clerk pro tem
Nauvoo August 11th 1845-15-1f

NOTARY PUBLIC.
THE undersigned having been appointed NOTARY PUBLIC for Nauvoo, will attend to all business in the line according to law, at his office in the brick store on Water street.
W. W. PHELPS.
April 7 1845-49-3

TIME: TIME.—The subscribers would inform the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that they have now on hand and intend keeping at all times a large quantity of first class Lard, at their Kitchens near the upper end of Main street, formerly occupied by Peter Shinn. All kinds of country produce, (merchandise, &c.) received in payment, cash not refused.
JOSHUA BOYCK,
O. M. ALLEN,
EDMUND NELSON.
May 7, 1845-No 1-6m

NOTICE.
FOR sale or exchange for lands near or within twenty miles of Nauvoo. A Farm of 200 acres, 185 improved, good buildings, a first rate orchard, situated ten miles south of Parkersville, Perry county, Ill. For further particulars enquire of
LEVI STEWART.
Nauvoo, April 23d, 1845-52-1f

THE POTTERS ASSOCIATION.
THE undersigned would inform the citizens of the City of Joseph and the public generally that we are now manufacturing of the best material, and have on hand a large assortment of Earthenware a few yards east of the Temple on Knight street, such as Pitchers, Bowls, Plates, Dishes, Cups and Saucers, Chambers, Peppets and Salts, Nappies, Mugs, &c. which will be sold whole sale and retail, for Cash or Country Produce, cheaper than can be purchased on the Mississippi, of the same quality. We boast of the best material and best workmen in the United States can afford, being English Potters and having worked in the most extensive Manufactories in England.
ELIJAH K. FULLER, President
RICHARD STEELE,
WILLIAM FOX,
RICHARD RALPHS,
JOSEPH RALPHS,
THOMAS RALPHS,
ALFRED GORDON,
JOHN BOURNE CIPK,
June 4th 1845-5-6m

PHONOGRAPHY.
GEO. D. WATTS, wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and vicinity, that he is teaching the art of Phonography in Thirteen Lessons, which will give the necessary instruction for a common practice. He will teach in different parts of the city, where a class can be obtained, at the rate of one dollar per scholar. May 2d, 1845-11f

NEW TEA, COFFEE, AND SUGAR WARE HOUSE. general Grocery and Liquor store, north east corner of Fourth and Market streets, St. Louis, Mo.
The subscribers, having opened the above establishment and having bought entirely for cash, are enabled to sell every article in the above line, at the very lowest cash prices.
Call and try, ere you buy.
Purchasers are solicited to call and examine for themselves.
STRACHAN & NICHOLSON.
April 7:49-6m

NAUVOO MANUFACTURING ASSOCIATION.
Manufactured by the Nauvoo Coach and Carriage Manufacturing Association on Water street, in the City of Nauvoo, opposite Gen. Joseph Smith's store, the following articles, to wit: Coaches, Omnibuses, Chariots, Carriages, Cabs, Broughams, Buggies and Buggy Wagons, Hearse, Soutdowns, Trotting Wagons, Cows and one Horse Lumber Wagon, Ox and Horse Carriages, Snythe Smiths, Plow Horses, Bales, Carding and Thrashing Machines, Horse Powers, Railroad Cars and many other articles too numerous to mention. Sold as cheap as can be purchased in any eastern market. Let all orders must be paid, and addressed to: GEO. W. HARRIS, Esq. Pres't. of the Association.

J. H. & W. H. RALSTON,
Attorneys & Counsellors at Law.
Will attend to all business in their profession that is entrusted to their charge. Particular attention given to the collection of debts.
W. H. RALSTON'S Office at Warsaw, Hancock County, Illinois.
Warsaw, May 12th, 1845, -3-1f

CHEAPEST DRY GOODS IN ST. LOUIS.

WE offer to our friends in Illinois, as well as in our own state, a first rate opportunity of purchasing their goods as we are determined to sell lower than any engaged in our line of business. We sell for cash, and our motto is quick returns and small profits.
WEBB & SMITH.
Corner of 3d and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo.
Country merchants will do well to give us a call.
April 7:49-6m W. &

NOTICE.
A Botanic Association has been formed in the city of Nauvoo, for collecting herbs and roots and preparing the same for the good of the saints. Let every person secure health. And look out for the best pills. Office south east of the Temple on Warsaw and Ripley sts.
JOS. YOUNGER, Pres't.
R. SHEPHERD, Ck.
July 18, 1845:12-3m

FOR SALE.
A House and one third of a lot on Parley Street east of Main near Mr. Oakley's. The house is 20 feet by 30 two stories high. A good well of water on the premises. Terms low for CASH. Enquire of E. T. Demson on Monson street between Fulmer & Warsaw streets or of G. W. Potter near the Post Office.
DANIEL LUTHER.
July 14 1845-11-1f

PIANO FOR MUSIC.
MRS. FITCHFORTH respectfully informs the inhabitants of Nauvoo, that she has commenced teaching Music on the Piano forte, and wish to suit the circumstances of the saints, she offers to teach at the very low rate of one dollar per quarter, for the whole season, as Mrs. P. has had the benefit of many years instruction from several of the most scientific English and German masters; and subsequently has had much experience in teaching, she flatters herself that she will be able to give satisfaction to all those who may favor her with their patronage.
Reference, kindly permitted, to Elders Brigham Young and John Taylor.
Enquire for Mrs. P. at Misses Gray's, millinery, Main street, or at her own residence, corner of Granger and Parley streets, one block east of the 8th street Hall.

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS' SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 22.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois Wednesday, Oct. 1, 1845.

Whole Number 173

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

IS PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Editor and Proprietor.
At the corner of Main and Kimball Street,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 invariably in advance.

MADE BY ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor) post paid, to receive attention.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS IN HANCOCK.

PROCLAMATION: No. 1.

TO THE CITIZENS OF HANCOCK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

WHEREAS a mob from one to two hundred men under arms, have gathered themselves together in the southwest part of Hancock County, and are at this time destroying the dwellings and other buildings, stacks of grain and other property, of a portion of our citizens, in the most inhuman manner, compelling defenceless children and women from their sick beds, and exposing them to the rays of the parching sun, there to lay and suffer without aid and assistance of a friendly hand, to minister to their wants in their suffering condition.

The rioters spare not the widow nor the orphan, and while I am writing this proclamation the smoke is rising to the clouds, and the flames are devouring four buildings, which have just been set on fire by the rioters.—Thousands of dollars worth of property has already been consumed; an entire settlement of about sixty or seventy families had waste, the inhabitants thereof are fired upon, narrowly escaping with their lives, and forced to flee before the ravages of the Mob.

By the revised laws of our State under the criminal code, sixth division 58th Section, Page 181, the crime of Arson is defined as follows: "Every person who shall willfully and maliciously burn, or cause to be burned, any dwelling house, kitchen, office, shop, barn, stable, store house, &c., &c., shall be deemed guilty of arson, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary, for a term not less than one year nor more than ten years, and should the life or lives of any person be lost in consequence of any such burning as aforesaid, such offender shall be guilty of Murder, and shall be indicted and punished accordingly."

And whereas the laws of this State make it my duty as a peace officer of this county, to suppress all riots, &c., &c., and all other crimes.

Therefore Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, in the name of the people of said State, and by the authority vested in me by virtue of my office, hereby solemnly command the said rioters and other peace breakers to desist forthwith, disperse and go to their homes, under the penalty of the laws. And I hereby call upon all the law abiding citizens as a posse comitatus of Hancock County, to give them aid and assistance in suppressing the rioters, and maintain the supremacy of the law.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Sheriff, &c.

P. S. It is a part of my policy that the citizens of Nauvoo remain quiet, and not a man from that city leave as a posse until it be made manifest that the law and order citizens without the city, will not have sufficient force to suppress the rioters of this disgraceful outrage; but that 2,000 effective men hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's warning, to any point in Hancock County.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Sheriff, &c.

Green Pains, Hancock County, Ill., Sept. 18th, 1845.

PROCLAMATION No. 2.

To the Citizens of Hancock County Ill., and the surrounding country.

It is truly painful that my first proclamation did not have the desired effect of quelling the mob in Hancock County; I was strong in the hope that when men engaged in such fiendish and wicked purposes, came to reflect, after the excitement of the moment, would cease, and go to their homes.

The burning and destruction of houses and other property was commenced on the 10th of September inst., by a body of armed men who gathered themselves together, in the south west part of this county, headed, as it is said, by the notorious Levi Williams. The mob is spreading itself in different directions: some of the mob have been in pursuit of me since Wednesday afternoon about 3 o'clock;

they pursued me on the public road and have threatened my life: they levelled their arms at me, and desisted only when fired upon and the fear of death put them in mind of their illegal mob proceedings.—On yesterday, an armed force undertook to take me; I became apprised of their intentions—evaded them, and fled to Bear Creek, where I had a posse comitatus, and from thence I repaired; for the second time to Warsaw, to ascertain if any reliable force could be procured in that place. I became satisfied that I could get no aid from that place.

I became further satisfied that my life was sought by some of the mobbers, lurking about that town. This information was communicated to me by some personal friends who had free intercourse with, and confidence and secret intentions of those desperadoes. My friends of Warsaw considered my life in danger, and advised me not to go out, but to remain secreted in some safe place; but my business as an officer of the peace demanded my departure from that place. I procured the aid of a personal friend to guard me out of that place into the prairie some three or four miles. All my friends advised me, that should I meet or see men with arms, that I had better evade them, and under no considerations get into their hands. After parting with the gentleman who so kindly escorted me thus far I had traveled about a mile and a half when I discovered an armed body of some 20 or more men on the Warsaw and Carthage road two or three miles eastward of me, and going towards Warsaw. I watched them, and on discovering that 4 men of the force, mounted on horses, left the main body, apparently to strike a point in advance of me, with all the speed of their horses, and finding that they were in pursuit of me, I put the whip to my horse, as I was travelling in a buggy, they taking a near cut, evidently gained on me.

The chase lasted for a distance of about two miles, when I fortunately overtook three men with teams. I immediately informed them that armed men were pursuing me, evidently to take my life. I summoned them as a posse to aid me in resisting them. I dismounted and took a position in the road, with pistol in hand. I commanded them (the mobbers) to stop, when one of them held his musket in a shooting attitude, whereupon one of my posse fired, and it is believed, took effect on one of the lawless banditti. We remained and stood our ground, prepared for the worst, for about ten minutes. The mobbers, retreating some little distance, made no further assault, but finally retreated. I then made my way for the city of Nauvoo, where I am at this time. Knowing the plans and designs of the mob faction in our county, I am induced to be thus full and minute in detailing the particulars of those seeking my life, because I dare take steps as a peace officer, to put an end to the proceedings of the most lawless, disgraceful, and inhuman banditti that ever infested our State. Inasmuch as I have in vain applied to the citizens of this county, without the limits of the city of Nauvoo, therefore,

I, Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of the County of Hancock and State of Illinois, in the name of the people of said State, and by virtue of the authority in me vested, hereby again solemnly command the mobbers and rioters throughout this county to disperse, desist, and forthwith go to their homes under the penalty of the laws of our country, and such other consequences as may follow.

And I hereby call upon, and likewise command every able bodied man throughout the county, to arm themselves in the best possible manner, and to resist any and all further violence on the part of the mob, and to permit no further destruction of property, and to arrest all those engaged in this wicked proceeding and destruction of property, and threatening of lives, and I further command that the posse comitatus repair to the nearest points invaded by the rioters, and to defend at the point of the bayonet. And at all hazards the lives and property of the peaceable citizens, and again reinstate the supremacy of the laws.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Sheriff, Hancock County, Ill.

Sept. 16th, A. D. 1845,)
half past 2 o'clock P. M.

P. S. It is but proper to state that the Mormon community have acted with more than ordinary forbearance—remaining perfectly quiet and offering no resistance when their dwellings, other buildings and stacks of grain &c., were set on fire in their presence, and they have foreborne until forbearance is no longer a virtue.

The notorious Col. Levi Williams, who is at the head of the mob, has ordered out the Militia of this Brigade, comprising Hancock, McDonough, and Schuyler counties, but it is to be hoped that no good citizen will turn out and aid him or others in the overthrow of the laws of our country, and it is certain that no good citizen will cross the Mississippi river with the design to aid the rioters.

J. B. B. Sheriff.

PROCLAMATION No. 3.

To the citizens of Hancock County, and the surrounding country.

WHEREAS the community at large may and do expect at my hands, a fair and impartial statement of facts, with regard to the riot which has been raging, and is still continuing its ravages with the firebrand and otherwise; since the issuing of my second proclamation the mob have become more infuriated than ever.

The Post Master at Carthage, Chauncey Robinson, Esq., who is also County Recorder, was compelled to flee from Carthage with his family, in order that their lives might be spared. Capt. Rose, the Treasurer and Assessor of Hancock County, was also expelled from his residence in Carthage, and obliged to flee to some secure place with his family for safety. At Warsaw Edward A. Bedell, Esq., Post Master of that place, and a Justice of the Peace of the Warsaw Precinct, was obliged to flee to save his life, giving him but a half minute time to prepare to go. These gentlemen have been driven from their homes by force of arms, and threats of immediate death, if they offered any resistance.

Messrs. Bedell & Robinson, are well known with very many citizens of the adjoining counties, and they are favorably known too, and are amongst our very best citizens in Hancock, (and if there be any merit in it, they rank amongst the oldest settlers of this county.) Capt. Rose, is much respected by all honorable men with whom he is acquainted. On the night of the 15th instant an armed mob surrounded my residence at Carthage, in search of me as they said, greatly terrified my wife and children, demanded entrance to search my house, and informed Mrs. B. that I must leave Hancock County immediately, under the penalty of consequence, which meant death.

On the night of the 16th, I raised an armed force of mounted men to march to Carthage, to rescue my family and others threatened. On entering the town we were fired upon by some of the mobbers, who instantly fled. My heart sickens when I think of the distressed situation in which I found my family, in the hands of a gang of black hearted villains, guilty of all the crimes known to our laws. It is however due to say, that there are a few of the Carthaginians and Warsaw people, who have heretofore acted with the mob faction, who are opposed to this riot, yet, up to this time, they have not joined the standard of law and order; the families which I designed to rescue had fled, with the exception of Mrs. Deming, the widow of the late Gen. Deming, who was of opinion that she might escape their vengeance, inasmuch as the death of her husband so recently, it was thought had appeased their wrath against that family.

After we had entered the town, persons were seen running about with fire brands. Anticipating their intention of firing their own buildings, in order to charge the same upon the posse comitatus, under my command, we immediately took steps to prevent this, by threatening to put to the sword all those engaged in firing the place. We then directed our march towards Warsaw, and on reaching a point midway to that place, I was informed of new depredations by the mob. I sent my family to Nauvoo for safety, under a small guard, and took up a line of march in the direction of the rising smoke. On reaching a point about three miles from the rising flames, I divided the posse comitatus in order to surround those engaged in the burning; we were discovered by them. On our approach the mobbers took flight, the posse pursuing with directions to arrest them if possible, and to fire upon them if they would not be arrested. The horse burners retreating towards one of their strong places at the speed of their horse, a part of the posse, pursuing at full speed, and firing upon them, killing two, and wounding, it is believed others. This occurred on Bear Creek, about two o'clock this afternoon.

I commanded one of the detachments in person, and authorized the person who commanded the other. As I was then satisfied that the burners had fled from that place, we directed our line of march northwardly, when we were informed of the approach of a reinforcement of mounted men, who were ordered to reconnoitre, raise the people to defend, and aid them in defending the settlement against the depredations of the mob. We then directed our course to Nauvoo, performing a forced march of about 65 miles in the space of 20 hours. This expedition is the first effort at resistance to mob violence in the county, since the outbreak. I have now a posse comitatus, numbering upwards of 2000 well armed men, firm and ready to aid me in suppressing the riot, and in arresting them. I am happy in informing the citizens that 2000 additional armed men hold themselves in readiness to be called out when necessary.

To those honorable and worthy citizens in the adjoining counties, who have proffered their aid in quelling this disgraceful mob, I will say, after returning my grateful acknowledgments for the kind interest which they have manifested in defence of the rights of American citizens, the Constitution and the laws of our beloved country. That, as yet, I have confidence that I can command force sufficient with this county, to arrest or if that fails, to put to the sword every villain engaged in this inhuman outrage; I am sanguine of success, whether my life be spared or not. Gladly will we receive aid from any of the adjoining counties, for the suppression of the rioters, in the event the force in this county be insufficient. If no considerable number of mobbers gather from without Hancock, success will crown our efforts. I am well advised that no considerable number from any of our adjoining counties, will come and act with any mob; and I now declare, that if the mob shall fire their own buildings, grain or other property, for the purpose of charging the same on my posse, I shall deal the same with them as though they destroyed the property of others, and arrest or put to the sword all such incendiaries.

Since my second proclamation, I have learned further particulars of the scoundrels, who were in pursuit of me on the highway on the 16th inst., the fact of which were fully set forth in said proclamation so far as was in my possession. I now inform the public that Franklin A. Worrell was one of the four, who, on that occasion pursued me; was shot by one of the four of my posse, who I summoned on the spot to protect my life. Worrell died the same day.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Sheriff H. Co., Ill.

Hancock County, Ill., Sept. 17th, A. D. 1845.

P. S. In my second Proclamation of Wednesday read yesterday.

Proclamation No. 4.

Since issuing proclamation No. 3 new things have transpired in which the community at large feel a deep and abiding interest, who expect from me, a fair, full and unvarnished statement of facts as they exist with regard to the rioters, if within my knowledge, as well as all my proceedings in attempting to suppress the same, with all the important facts as they occur during my progress.

On the evening of the 18th instant, I proceeded with 200 well armed mounted men, for the second time to the south west part of the county, which has sustained nearly all the suffering and destruction by the mob, joining the detachment which I had previously detailed to reconnoitre, make arrest and prevent further burning. My intention was to attack the encampment of the rioters, on the following day and rout them. I received intelligence that they had changed their position, which caused me to countermand a previous order for a reinforcement of eight hundred infantry and two pieces of ordnance. I also received intelligence that the mob were encamped in the bottom near the Mississippi river, below Warsaw, with at least eight hundred armed men with one piece of artillery. As I had previously determined to march into the camp of the rioters, and arrest or disperse them, I again ordered a reinforcement of four hundred infantry and one piece of artillery, with the intention of attacking the camp; this gave me the command of a posse with seven hundred men and one piece of ordnance.

Knowing the courage, bravery, and skill of the forces under my command, I was willing to make an attack upon the enemy entrenched behind their fortifications. I then took up a line of march to Carthage, the County seat of Hancock, the residence of nearly all of the notorious Carthage Greys, and the headquarters of a band of the most infamous and villainous scoundrels that ever infested any community, who have, for the last two years abandoned labor and the ordinary avocations of good citizens; they are generally poor; a few have been trading upon borrowed capital; but they are selfish and will not even trust their own mob friends. Many of those have considerable large families; they must live and do live;—how, I would ask do such men get a living? men without means and with families, too, and who do nothing but brawl about grog shops, cursing and abusing better citizens than they can be; men who are openly upholding mob violence, aiding and abetting the extermination of the very best and oldest settlers in this county, forsooth they have the independence of differing with them in opinion. Did not the community in this and the surrounding counties already know the names of those heaven daring and pirates, I should give their names at full length. I entered the town of Carthage about the setting of the sun, as I had a large number of writs for the arrest of those accused of burning houses, bars, and stacks of grain, I ordered my posse to surround the town and permit none to escape, but to bring every man to the Court House in order that I might arrest such persons as I had writs against, and detain such other persons in custody as are accused by respectable persons until writs could be procured; that they might be dealt with according to law. All those against whom I had writs fled before I could have them surrounded except one Anthony Barkman.

Col. Gettis, was arrested on suspicion of being one of the ring leaders, he is charged with having ordered out his regiment in order to join the mob, orders signed by him, directing to and commanding the Captains of companies under his command, requiring them immediately to call out their respective companies; this Col. Gettis admits, but claims that he was commanded to do so by a superior officer, viz: Col. Levi Williams, who claims to hold and have the command of this brigade, comprising Hancock, McDonough, and Schuyler counties, by virtue of seniority by commission, Col. Gettis agreed to remain until morning, when I informed him that he would not be detained, as I was unable to get positive testimony that he was engaged in burning, or that he advised others so to do, however, several suspicious circumstances connected with the conduct and acts of Col. G., for several days previous to my entrance into Carthage; for instance, Col. Levi Williams, John McCauley, a notorious advocate of the mobbers, several others of the same gang and this same Col. Gettis, held a secret meeting in Carthage on the 16th inst. Col. G. is a strong advocate for the extermination of a portion of the community of this county. Some of the law and order citizens of Carthage and vicinity felt disposed to censure me for not putting him under arrest, as it is believed he is a co operator of the notorious Levi Williams.

After the posse was put in motion in the direction of Carthage, I addressed a communication to Col. Levi Williams and others, in the words and figures following, to wit:

2 o'clock P. M., Sept. 18th, 1845.
Head Quarters of the Sheriff of Hancock County, commanding the posse comitatus of the Southern detachment in said county.

To the Mob gathered in the s. w. part of Hancock County, Ill., commanded and directed by Col. Levi Williams and a few others, who as it is said have a strong force, under their influence and guidance, and who are also strongly fortified as I am informed, and who have as I have destroyed much property with force of arms, by going about this county shooting at, and compelling peaceable citizens to leave their homes, and applying firebrands to their buildings, grain, &c., and otherwise by all manner of inhuman treatment to the sick, and helpless women and children. It is unnecessary for me again to remind you of the magnitude of the crimes of which you already stand charged. Some of the sick women and children who were compelled to leave their sick beds under your wicked and fiendish law, having died it is believed in consequence of exposure to the inclemency of the weather and the rays of the scorching sun, thus adding murder to the lesser crime of arson. My duty as an officer is defined by law. Your mob proceedings require of me an effort to quell you in your mad career if possible without the shedding of blood. You will all do me the justice to say that I have spared no pains in endeavoring to accomplish such a desirable result. I issued proclamations, and took pains that copies were sent to your mob camps, you know my duty. You were advised openly of my determination and policy which were fully set forth in my proclamations. You have not desisted in your depredations, but on the other hand you became more emboldened than before.

In the mean time I have raised a posse comitatus in order to arrest all engaged in this riot if possible, and in case they should not submit to law and be arrested, to fire upon them or put them to the sword. The painful necessity of firing upon a part of your depredators, became apparent on the 16th inst., at which time several of the rioters were killed; we caught them in the act of burning buildings. I will close this communication by again appealing to you in the name of humanity, the law, and the good of yourselves and our country that you instantly desist your looting and burning, deliver yourselves into my hands to be dealt with according to law, that is to say, to the leaders; and to surrender into my hands the ordinance which you procured through fraud and deception; and that you also deliver into my hands all the State arms which you have twice heretofore refused to surrender upon the demand of the Executive of the State by his authorized agent; and forthwith disperse each and all of you go to your homes and pursue the ordinary avocations of good peaceable citizens. Such a course will be honorable to you, and will save the shedding of much blood.

I am authorized to relieve and take charge of the public arms in this county.

It is expected that you will comply with the above reasonable requests. I hereby pledge myself to protect you in all your constitutional rights, and that you shall be dealt with according to the laws of our country. Should you be fit to submit to the laws and requirements as set forth above, you will on the part of the mob, communicate to me in writing at the Chapman place, midway between Carthage and Warsaw, on to-morrow at 12 o'clock M. Should you not submit or refuse to reply, your silence will be taken as a refusal to surrender to the laws, when you must expect to meet the consequences.

Respectfully yours, &c.
J. B. BACKENSTOS, Sheriff of Hancock County, Ill.

P. S. I sent by the bearer heretofore my last proclamation, No. 3.

On the following day Mr. Calkins, the express, returned, and stated that Col. Williams had crossed the river into the State of Missouri, whither he had fled, with

The following communication in reply to my letter of yesterday:

Sept. 19th, '45.

J. B. Backenstos, Sir—I received a communication yesterday, through the hands of Mr. Calkins, addressed to me in the character of the "leader of the mob." I entertain no communication, neither will I make any reply in that character. Your communication bespeaks the character of its author, and meets from me, that indignant contempt, it so richly deserves. If you were worthy the notice of a gentleman, I would meet you on any field, but as you occupy a station so far beneath the dignity of a man that I shall not condescend to have anything to do with you in any manner, shape or form. You can pursue what course with the "mob." You please, I answer not for them, but rest assured that they are at all times ready for you.
LEVI WILLIAMS.

I am directed by Gov. Ford to collect the public arms which have been demanded in vain twice before from the mobbers to wit: the arms of the Carthage Greys, and the arms in the hands of Capt. Grover & Davis at Warsaw under this order and instruction I directed my posse at Carthage to collect all the public arms which were so unfortunately placed in the hands of officers and privates who have on many occasions used them as means to terrify insult and abuse the peaceable citizens of our County. I have collected nine stand and a part of the accoutrements and will endeavor to get the balance.

I have them in my possession subject to the order of the Commander in Chief of the Illinois Militia; they are not and shall not be used by the posse under my command, as I have no authority from the Governor for so doing.

The posse under my command have been prompt and obedient to all my orders, with the exception of one order in relation to the collection of the State arms at Carthage. I ordered the posse to ask for and receive from any person in possession of any arms of the Carthage Greys, and deliver them to me at the Court House. This order was disobeyed or misunderstood, by two of the posse by bringing three guns, the private property of citizens; and one man quarrelled with a lady and used in her presence, ungentlemanly language. I ordered the three men immediately under arrest, placed them under guard, sent them home, and returned the guns.

After leaving a sufficient force to defend the place against the mobbers both within and without the town of Carthage, at about 12 o'clock on the 20th inst. we took up our line of march to the place of rendezvous at the Chapman place, between Warsaw and Carthage, thence to proceed against the mob encampment with a design to arrest or rout them from their hiding place. Before I reached midway to Warsaw, I received positive intelligence that the mob had fled the county and state by crossing the Mississippi river at Warsaw with all their arms, cannon, &c., to Missouri. I marched the posse to Warsaw for the purpose of making arrests; remained a short time; when I directed the infantry and artillery northwardly on the prairie road and I proceeded up the bottom road with the mounted forces. I am now on the bank of the Mississippi river near Montebello.

Since the firing upon the mob at Bear Creek on the 16th inst. there has been no burning of any houses, barns, grain, stacks, or any thing else that has come to my knowledge. The mobbers, rioters and other outlaws have principally fled without the limits of this county. Peace and quiet, law and order, has again been restored in Hancock County.

Therefore I, Jacob B. Backenstos, Sheriff of Hancock County, hereby proclaim the county of Hancock in peace; that the rioters have dispersed and gone to their homes, or fled this county and State. Let all good citizens who were expelled, by the mobbers, from their homes, and those who fled from the county for security against mob violence, return to their homes, and they shall be protected. I have an armed force stationed in the Court House at Carthage, for the protection of the officers of the county, who are compelled by law to reside at the county seat, and for the protection of all persons having business at, or who may desire to visit Carthage, and also to protect from insult and mob violence the inhabitants of Carthage and the surrounding country. I have a number of small scouting parties reconnoitering the county to keep the peace and protect the settlements and make arrests of those who are known to be guilty of the riot, in whose hands writs have been placed. I desire that the citizens will aid them in ferreting them out, that they may be arrested and brought to justice.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, SHERIFF H. CO. Ill.
Bank of the Mississippi river, near Montebello, Sept. 20th, A. D. 1845.

P. S.—The Warsaw Signal Extra of the 18th Sept., contains its usual amount of willful and malicious falsehoods. It is unnecessary for me to deny any one statement; I pronounce the entire Extra a tissue of lies from beginning to end, so far as they purport to give the news of the killing of Worrell and McCauley, and the balance set forth in relation to the difficulties in our county, and I hold myself responsible to prove the same false, by men of the best standing.
J. B. B. Sheriff.

Proclamation: No. 5.

To the Citizens of Hancock County, Ill., and the surrounding country.

In issuing this my fifth proclamation I shall be obliged to omit many things which have transpired in this County since the 20th inst. (the date of Proclamation No. 4.) nevertheless I shall endeavor to give all the important facts that may be interesting to the community. There seems to be a continuance of peace throughout Hancock County. There has been no burning of houses, or other property since a part of my posse pursued the mob and fired upon them. In my last proclamation I stated that the mobbers had fled the country; as yet they have not returned; they are braving about the adjoining counties, State of Missouri, and Iowa Territory; circulating all kinds of falsehoods, and misrepresentations for the purpose of getting aid in order to recommence burning, and mobbing &c. As yet they have not been able to raise any considerable force to march into Hancock under arms, against the constitution and the laws, and I am certain that unless the mob faction can succeed in deceiving the people without this county by fraud, and forgery of militia orders and proclamations purporting to emanate from the Executive and commander-in-chief of the Illinois militia, that they cannot get force sufficient to recommence their depredations. Let me I entreat the people abroad not to act in haste.

There are many complaints made to me by Mormons and Anti-Mormons, about stealing cattle &c. I have used every exertion in the power of man to ferret out the truth concerning these complaints, and reports. Many Mormons who were burnt out in the south-west part of this county, were employed for the last ten or twelve days in removing their household furniture, other movables and grain to Nauvoo city. After they had finished hauling their goods, proceeded to gather and drive their cattle from the infected district to Nauvoo but could not find them. There are many who are willing to make affidavit that their cattle were left in the hands of the mob when they were exterminated, and when they went in search of their cattle afterwards could not find them. More than 200 head of cattle are missing in this way according to the complaints made to me. There are also complaints by several Mormons that horses have been stolen from them. There are also many articles of minor importance reported to me as having been stolen from the Mormons. Some 50 head of cattle are reported to have been stolen from the settlement about 5 miles east of Warsaw, and about the same number near Carthage. The cattle which are said to have been stolen from near Carthage and Warsaw, belong mostly to B. F. Marsh Esq., and the Messrs. Clandlers, near Warsaw, and to Messrs. Mullen and Falls, and Mr. Alex. Barnes near Carthage. There was also stolen from Ebenezer Rand Esq. of Carthage, 2 Bee gums, and a Mrs. Hawley reports some clothing missing.

Every one of those persons who report property stolen, who are not Mormons, are by no means regarded as enemies by them; but on the other hand they have all denounced this mobbing and burning, as a most infamous act. It is nothing more than reasonable to suppose that men who will burn houses, barns, grain, and other property, and who will drive and exterminate United States Post Masters and other officers, from their offices and homes, with force of arms, under the penalty of death, are none too good to steal cattle, horses, and sheep too. Men who are guilty of such damnable outrages are hardened against all the tender feelings of human beings; the savage would shrink with horror at such base and cowardly acts as are characteristic of this mob faction. Again, why is it that the stealing of cattle and horses is confined nearly in every instance to those who are opposed to the mobbers? If the Mormons are guilty of these depredations complained of, is it not a remarkable circumstance that not a single hoof of all the cattle and horses that are alleged to have been stolen, were taken from any of those engaged in the mobbing; in every case, so far as I can learn, they were taken from persons opposed to this wicked proceeding of the mob party.

That infamous black-hearted and murderous scoundrel Thomas C. Sharp, editor of that treacherous paper called the Warsaw Signal, himself guilty of all the crimes known to our laws, is at the head of this band of mobbers and extortionators. Are the people in Hancock County and the surrounding country prepared that such a debased heaven-daring villain as Sharp shall give tone to public opinion? I ask with an honest and honorable community for a moment seriously entertain any thing that may emanate from such a fountain of corruption? For the honor and perpetuity of our glorious republican institutions, it is to be hoped not. Sharp openly and boldly calls upon the citizens of this and the adjoining counties and other places to come into Hancock to overthrow the law. Fellow citizens will you take the advice of such a scoundrel as Sharp, the author of our difficulties and troubles, a murderer and the apologist of murderers, house burners &c.

Sharp's rule of moral principle is exemplified as follows by his own writings: "If men in the custody of the law, and under promise of protection be murdered in cold blood, Sharp is found the apologist of the murderers, (and) would take a hand himself.)

If men pursue another on our high ways with musket and swords at the speed of their horses for miles, with the intention of killing or arresting without process an officer of the county, against whom no charge is or was alleged, and one of the villains should be killed, murder is the cry of this Sharp; or if a gang of villains burning and continue to burn for six days, the dwellings, barns, and stacks of grain and hay—expelling sick women and children from their sick beds, and exposing them to the inclemency of the weather and die in consequence of such cruel and fiendish treatment; and after having been warned time and again by the proper officer, of what they might expect in case they should not desist; and when caught in the act of burning houses, flee and refuse to be taken are fired upon—a few are killed, Sharp's cry of murder, murder, is again raised at the top of his voice. What a poor trifling scamp—for he certainly does not know how contemptible he is in the eyes of all honorable men. He has no associates except those who are participators with him.

Sharp by his last Signal has made comments upon, and attempts to prove some statements which I made in Proclamations numbered 2 and 3. How does he get his information as to the killing of Worrell, to be in truth? His informants can be no other than those guilty with Worrell, in pursuing me for my life on the highway, and who are ready to say and swear any thing that may clear them from punishment which they so richly deserve; and as to the firing upon the mob, he relies upon men for testimony, guilty of crimes which will secure them a safe place in our state penitentiary for years, and others are candidates like himself for the gallows. Such is the character of Sharp's informants, upon those subjects which he speaks of in his Signal; none others of the mob were within sight or hearing at the time the occurrence took place.

Fellow citizens, a proclamation was handed to me this morning, purporting to be from Gov. Ford of our state; it certainly is a forgery or fraud. You will observe that it is simply dated, "Executive Department, Springfield, Sept. 21st, 1845," it does not state whether it comes from Springfield, Ohio, Ky., or any other state. The proclamation also states that Cols. Baker and Merriam, had volunteered to command, &c. And also the proclamation is signed Thomas Ford, Governor and commander-in-chief; in order to make such a document official, it should be signed as Governor of Illinois and commander-in-chief, of the Illinois militia. I pronounce it a base fraud, I hope no armed men will come into Hancock county, under such circumstances, I shall regard them in the character of a mob, and shall treat them accordingly. I am personally acquainted with Maj. Baker, and Capt. Merriam, and I am warranted in saying that they would under no circumstances, aid or countenance a mob. I will again say, that from the general phraseology of the proclamation, I pronounce it a fraud upon the people; let no man turn out under it, as it evidently is one of Sharp's latest acts of rascality and one of the last dying efforts to raise a mob.

I will herewith submit a few affidavits, they speak for themselves. One of these affidavits fully shows whether Worrell and his blood-hounds knew me or not when they pursued me on the prairie; it also speaks to the point as to the course the anti-mormon mob intended to pursue; it also explains something about looking horses, (and as Tom Ship would have it about the lesser crimes of killing and slaying and burning.) I have only to say that as to the character of John Horner Esq. as a good citizen and honest man, he is honorable and independent, he has no superior in our section of country, and as to Capt. Rose, he is respected by all his standing and character is proof against all base men. As to the other affiant I am not acquainted with him.

Men engaged in burning houses for 6 long days, have fled this county to avoid an arrest; they are now using their utmost endeavors to raise help in the neighboring counties and in the State of Missouri, to recommence burning and mobbing. Will honest men be influenced by such characters, we will see. Every thing has remained quiet for 9 successive days, and unless the mob will again re-assemble in Hancock Co. peace will continue.

I would say to the citizens of Augusta in this county, that as I have been informed by good authority, that some of you had fled the county by crossing into the county of Shelby, and there made an encampment for the gathering of the mob, if such is the fact, let me remonstrate against such an act, and entreat you to come to your homes, and aid in the maintenance of peace.

Some of the mobbers said that I refused to submit to law, there being a writ out against me for killing Worrell, sworn out by one of the parties in company with Worrell when they pursued me. This is false; I twice offered to surrender myself into the hands of the constable, who said that he did not care any thing about it, that he considered it all a mistake in the boys in taking out the writ. I am at all times ready to be tried by the laws of my country.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Sheriff, H. C. Carthage, Sept. 25, 11 o'clock a. m. 1845.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,

Hancock County.

Personally appeared before me the Clerk of the County Commissioners Court of Hancock County, John H. Harper, of said County, who after being duly sworn according to law, deposed and said, that on Wednesday night the 17th inst., I was at Wm. Kendal Jr. Esq. a little after night; Noah M. Rickard drove up with his family and wished the privilege of stopping, a short time, and appeared very much excited, and said to Mr. Kendal in my presence and hearing, that he had just returned from the mob where they were burning houses and that they had burned more than 40 yesterday, and he presumed as many to-day; and he thought it was just and right, and every man ought to turn out and help them. He also stated that 10 or 12 men came to Carthage on Monday to kill Backenstos, and that he (Backenstos) discovered them and narrowly made his escape, and we presumed he had gone to Warsaw; and I was the second person who volunteered to go the next morning after him, and Frank Worrell was the first; and also that Mr. Kendal's son was along, and that the company consisted of six or eight persons; and further that the intention was to follow Backenstos, but if they could not find him, to go to the mob where they were burning; and that on the Carthage and Warsaw road, about two miles this side of Marles, they saw Backenstos coming in his buggy, and we thought he knew us for he left the road and took through the prairie as fast as he could push his horse, and we took after him but he ran until he came to a branch where there was a group of Mormons in the brush; and further that Backenstos could not have shot Worrell, for he was a 100 or a 150 yards off, and had nothing but a pistol, but that it was a yager or musket fired from the bushes, for it was an ounce ball, and went through him. Worrell was put into the wagon and died in my lap in one half hour; but we took him to Warsaw; then we went down where the Mob was burning houses; and when the mob was informed of Worrell's death, they passed a unanimous resolution that they would no longer wait for the Mormons to take the goods out of their houses, but would burn, and slay, and kill, and take horses.

And said Rickard stated, that he had returned home to take his family away, and had got so far with them, and that they wanted help to go and join the mob, for they needed help. This deponent further states that he has resided in Hancock County nearly seven years, and does not belong to the Mormon Church or community, nor ever did; but that he has been, and now is an Elder in the Baptist denomination for about twenty years, and a member twenty-five years.

JOHN HARPER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 22d day of September, A. D. 1845.

GEO. W. THATCHER.

[Clerk, C. C. Hancock Co.]

STATE OF ILLINOIS,

Hancock County.

Personally appeared before me, the Clerk of the County Commissioners Court of Hancock County, Ethel B. Rose, Treasurer and Assessor of said County, who upon being duly sworn according to law, depose and said that on Monday night of the 15th inst., between nine and ten o'clock, P. M., a mob of about eight armed men came to my residence in Carthage and called me out of the house, and bringing their guns to a charge bayonet, notified me that I must leave the county and never come back; unless I could come as an old citizen, that is a person having similar opinions to themselves. And they said if I did not I must suffer the consequences which I took to my death. Said Rose further states that he does those who appeared armed in front of his house, there was a fellow standing back rather near some locust trees, by the name of H. Rose Hopkins who had his own estimation become an old citizen by a residence in this state of about six months. He further states that as they went away he followed out and discovered two other men who had apparently been concealed near a fence. And he verily believes one of those two was Captain R. F. Smith of the Carthage Greys. He states that the reason why he was able to identify objects and men, so well in the night, was that the moon shone exceedingly bright on that night. This deponent states further that he learned of the mob when it came to him with an order of extermination, that C. Robison, the P. M. of Carthage, and County Recorder of this county, was to be the next victim; so he (this deponent) went directly to Robison's, got there before the mob, and informed him what he might expect. While there the mob came, called to him and asked if his name was Robison; he answered yes. They then told him that it was the orders from head quarters that he should leave the county immediately that if he did not, his property should be destroyed and he with it.

E. B. ROSE.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 21st day of September, A. D. 1845.

GEO. W. THATCHER.

[Clerk, C. C. Hancock Co.]

STATE OF ILLINOIS,

Hancock County.

Personally appeared before me, Hazen Kimball, an acting Justice of the Peace, in and for the county of Hancock, James Bellows who being first duly sworn deposed and says, that on or about 14th day of September, A. D. 1845, within the county of Hancock a mob of twelve men with arms came to my house and ordered me to leave with my family forthwith, I see nothing removed such of my goods as I could hardly get out of my house into the woods. The same evening the mob returned and tore down my chimney, cut up my saddle, and done considerable damage to my property, and drove me and my family from all of our goods; and have retained the same in the place since the present time. And the deponent further says that Adam Snyder, Medth Perry were two of the individuals that composed the mob as aforesaid, and further this deponent says not.

JAMES BELLOWES.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this the 25th September, 1845.

HAZEN KIMBALL, J. P. [L. S.]

TO THE PUBLIC:

I was arrested by the Sheriff of Hancock, under a charge of perjury on the evening of the 19th inst., since which time I have been prisoner and under guard, Sheriff Backenstos using every means to my satisfaction, to get me a speedy trial; he took me before Thos. L. Barnes Esq. a Justice of the Peace at Carthage, E. A. Bedell, Esq. another Justice of the Peace being present. I was ready for trial, but the court decided that they had no jurisdiction of the case, unless the Sheriff could make return that the Justice who issued the writ was not to be found, or was absent from home.

The Sheriff then took me to Nauvoo for trial where the justice who issued the warrant lived; and after hearing the testimony I was discharged, there is another States warrant in the hands of the Sheriff, for threatening the life of the Sheriff. I acknowledge that I offered $500 reward for his head, secured with bond and good security. I also openly declared that I would take his life by shooting him, on or about the 15th September.

I would state that I have been treated in a kind and humane manner by the Sheriff, and all the posse around him which I have seen or heard. One of the posse, Col. Markham, who I last year with the aid of others, drove out of Carthage at the point of the bayonet, was with me a great deal, and never even in sulled nor abused me in any manner. There not being time for my trial, I am under a pledge of honor, to surrender myself into the hands of the Sheriff or any of his deputies or any constables, at any time when I can have a speedy trial.

My wife is sick; this the Sheriff knows, and I have strongly begged that I might be permitted to go home, and not be tried at this time, as I am guilty of the threats which I acknowledge, and would be committed or held to bail. I am well treated by all the people of Nauvoo with whom I have met.

ANTONY BARKMAN.

Nauvoo, Sept. 20, 1845.

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 1, 1845.

Law and Order Triumphant.—We feel thankful that we live in a free country yet. Gov. Ford manfully puts matters in a train to sustain Law and Order. The State Register wisely observes that "Sheriff Backenstos deserves credit for his exertions" in quelling the mob of Hancock; and the Missouri Reporter, which has heretofore received a lick or two from us by way of change, has made a full atonement for all out standing balances, in the following just conclusion:

"We have observed the progress of this affair, and have arrived at the conclusion, that the Mormons are more sinned against than sinning. If some of their number have committed petty larceny, their opponents have committed arson by the wholesale, and provoked the taking of human life, after having previously committed the most cold-blooded murders. But, be the cause of quarrel what it may, the strong arm of the State should be made to crush the rioters at once."

If the press and people will now frown down mobocracy and crime by a unity of effort, peace, law and order, will prevail. The way matters look now causes us to exclaim—the democracy of the country is abundantly able to sustain the rights of the people, and transmit to posterity, its happy institutions unimpaired.

Proclamations.—Three proclamations from the Governor have been received. We are only able however, to give one this week.

Look Wild.—The Quincy Morning Courier says that "three hundred Mormons had Colt's patent revolvers and could shoot sixteen times a minute."

Pretty apt, but why not tell the story on this wise: 1000 Mormons were equal to 30,000 of the mob, each Mormon being armed with a fifteen shooter, a brace of Colt's patent revolving pistols, of six barrels each, a dragoon sword and pistols, making 20 rounds, and a "Spanish lasso," to catch the running game, making thirty to one? Aint that tremendous?

The Weather.—We had a fine rain on Sunday, which, after so much dust, has softened the air quite agreeably. There has been a time of dry weather the past month, which has rendered the surrounding country somewhat sickly; a little rain occasionally, and some fall frost, which as yet, has not made its appearance, will do much towards healthifying the climate. The Mississippi river is a perfect healthometer: When it is low, health is low, and when it is high, health is high.

The Governor's posse.—Yesterday Gen. Hardin, Judge Douglass, and Sheriff Backenstos, with about four hundred of the Governor's troops, visited Nauvoo.

Treason.—On the 24th of September, Daniel Spencer, W. W. Phelps, John Taylor, Osborn Spencer, Charles C. Rich, Wm. Clayton, Willard Richards, Edward Hunter, Reynolds Cahoon, Alpheus Cutler, Hosea Stout and John Scott were arrested by the Sheriff upon a writ charging them with "Treason." They were arraigned at Carthage, before T. L. Barnes and E. A. Bedell, Esqs., and Antony Barkman whose name was to the affidavit upon which the writ issued, sworn. Upon investigation it appeared that the witness had been suborned; had signed and sworn to two affidavits, written by George Backman; did not know any of the defendants named in the affidavit; and who were now in Court; nor did he know any of the men in the other affidavit not in Court; had sworn to both affidavits upon reports, and was deceived for he had been with the Mormons and they treated him well; will tell the truth now; is sorry for what he had done; knows nothing against any of the men named in either affidavit. There being no cause of action whatever, the court discharged the defendants.

The other writ, calling for some 10 or 12 principal men of Nauvoo, was said to be in the hands of constable Barnes, who helped burn Fellows' house, barn and grain, and fled for fear of justice. Both of these writs were issued by R. F. Smith, of Carthage Grey memory, who also fled for—(never mind) he knows enough said; we have never seen a blacker plot of death detected.

Earth!—From the days of Abel till now, the children of the world and the children of God could not endure each other's presence; nor live together in peace. The principles of pure religion and the principles of the world's power are diametrically opposed to each other. The former has faith and works in a kingdom and glory through the merits of Jesus Christ; and the latter trusts in an arm of flesh.

The pages of history are full of the persecutions of the ancient saints. Abraham, to save his life, gave his wife to satisfy the lust of a king, and Lot offered his two daughters to the Sodomites to appease their wrath against the angels of God. We have never come to that nor will we, for God in his infinite wisdom, has prepared a better way for his people in the last days.

It is said in the revelations of Jesus Christ, that he that will not take up his sword and fight must needs flee to Zion for safety.

Another important fact is, that the saints are not to fight (as this nation tries to make believe) for conquest or slaughter, only have they ever taken up arms in self defence, against mobocracy. Speaking of the redemption of Zion, unto the saints, if the last days, our Savior says: "Behold, I do not require at their hands to fight the battles of Zion; for, as I said in a former commandment, even so will I fulfil, I will fight your battles."

Behold, the destroyer I have sent forth to destroy and lay waste mine enemies; and not many years hence, they shall not be left to pollute mine heritage, and to blaspheme my name upon the lands which I have consecrated for the gathering of my saints."

Here then we have it in so many words:—Th—Lord will fight the battles, NOT MEN!

The fortunes of war.—It is a source of some amusement to witness the lively spirit, which manifests itself in various ways since the late mob war. Our senior has composed and set to music a beautiful piece, entitled "The Mobber's Retreat, or Chambers' Quick Step from the Burning."

From another song handed to us, we select the following verse:—

"Poor Chambers, the little bull hero,
"Mob Williams' great plumpo,"
"In the garb of a second Nero,"
"Span air for his life:—O heigh O!"

Such indications, democratically speaking, develop the "Whig bumps," like the Irishman's breastplate, "a little too handy to the back door of honor."

Help.—Gen. Hardin has arrived at Carthage with 300 volunteers in favor of law and order. This continues the County of Hancock in the channel of peace and, we hope, of justice too.—The mob have been busy for some time, in passing the old citizens' cattle to parts unknown, because they would not join the mob. Such aggressions soon find a day of retribution in the simplicity of the law.

City Wits.—Too often puppets flitted to hang fine clothes upon—butterflies, made to flaunt and flutter on sunny days through the great promenade—creatures who desert their homes, impoverish their children, ruin their husbands, and nine times in ten end their career by taking the one step from frivolity and heartlessness to infamy.—Chicago Democrat.

If the above is true, cities are sinks of iniquity, schools of scandal, and great centers on the body of the world. Whenever Nauvoo bears such testimony of herself, they may try out Ishlah!

The Mob Chastened.—We clipped the following communication, from a little two penny pusillanimous paper called the Beardstown Gazette, edited by a mobocrat. The slant at Gov. Ford from Alex. Sympton, is all in keeping, but it is an old saying, that "When God and the Governor are willing the devil may get his due."

Beardstown, Sept. 23, 1845.

Mr. Editor:—I am now on my way to return from Springfield, to which place I have been to see his Honor Gov. Ford, in relation to our troubles in Hancock with the Mormons. I called on him, at his house, early yesterday morning, in company with my neighbor, Noah M. Rickard, Esq., from Carthage. I commenced telling the Governor our situation in Hancock, when he stopped me short, and remarked that I could not impose on him in such a way, that he had correct information every day from that county; and that he had issued a proclamation for five hundred men to assist Backenstos, and had given Gen. Hardin entire command; that the anti-Mormons were a set of d—d rascals and scoundrels, and that the Mormons were good citizens.

I told him (the Governor) that I was informed that he had told Backenstos to go ahead and take the county, and that he should protect him; which he neither denied nor assented to. The Governor then took me to the Secretary's office, and there read me the orders to Gen. Hardin; after which I was leaving the office, when he called me back and said, "Now, by G—d, if you go to Hancock or elsewhere, and raise troops to fight the Mormons, I will go to the northern part of the State and get troops, take every anti-Mormon, and by G—d I will have half of you shot."

Respectfully yours,

ALEX. SYMPSON.

A Proclamation?

BY THE GOVERNOR OF THE

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

WHEREAS it has been represented to me that divers persons from Missouri and Iowa Territory, threaten to invade this State for the purpose of taking part in the civil war, which it is hoped, certain wicked and disorderly persons will not be enabled to continue to carry on in the county of Hancock;

Now therefore, I Thomas Ford, Governor of the state of Illinois, do warn all such persons, who will imprudently thrust themselves, into a quarrel with which they have nothing to do, as citizens of this state; that if taken in any act of war or mischief, they will be chastised in a most summary manner; and if they escape beyond the limits of this state, they will be demanded to be surrendered to the authorities of Hancock county, that they may be tried for their crimes and punished according to law.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the state to be affixed.

Done at Springfield, this twenty-sixth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-five.

[L. S.] By the Governor,

THOMAS FORD.

Thompson Campbell, Sec'y. of State.

Nauvoo, Oct. 1st 1845.

To the First President and Council of the Church at Nauvoo:—

Having had a free and full conversation with you this day in reference to your proposed removal from this county, together with the members of your church, we have to request you to submit the facts and intentions stated to us in said conversation to writing; in order that we may lay them before the Governor and people of the State. We hope that by so doing it will have a tendency to allay the excitement at present existing in the public mind.

We have the honor to subscribe ourselves

Respectfully yours, &c.,

JOHN J. HARDIN,

W. B. WARREN,

S. A. DOUGLASS,

J. A. McDUGALL.

Nauvoo, Oct. 1st 1845.

To Gen. John J. Hardin, W. B. Warren,

S. A. Douglass, and J. A. McDougall.

Messrs:—

In reply to your letter of this date, requesting us to submit the facts and intentions stated to you, to writing, in order that you may lay them before the Governor and people of the State. We would refer you to our communication of the 24th ult. to the Quincy Committee &c. a copy of which of which is herewith enclosed.

[The following is a copy of the communication referred to.]

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:—

Nauvoo, September 24, 1845.

Whereas a council of the authorities of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, at Nauvoo, have this day received a communication from Henry Asbury, John P. Robbins, Albert J. Pearson, P. A. Goodwin, J. N. Rulston, M. Rogers, and E. C. Conyers, Messrs. Committee of the citizens of Quincy, requesting us to communicate in writing our disposition and intention at this time, particularly with regard to removing to some place where the peculiar organization of our church will not be likely to engender so much strife and contention as so unhappily exists at this time in Hancock and some of the adjoining counties;

And, whereas, said Committee have reported to us the doings of a public meeting of the citizens of Quincy, on the 22d inst., by which it appears there are some feelings in that place concerning us as a people, and in relation to which sundry resolutions were passed, purporting to be for the purpose of maintaining or restoring peace to the country;

And, whereas, it is our desire, and ever has been, to live in peace with all men, so far as we can, without sacrificing the right of worshipping God according to the dictates of our own consciences, which privilege is guaranteed to us by the Constitution of these United States;

And, whereas, we have, time and again, and again, been driven from our peaceful homes, and our women and children been obliged to exist on the prairies, in the forests, on the roads, and in tents, in the dead of winter, suffering all manner of hardships, even to death itself, as the people of Quincy

OUR MOTTO.—THE SAINTS SINGULARITY—IS UNITY, LIBERTY, CHARITY.

Volume 3.—No. 23.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois Wednesday, Oct. 29 1845.

Whole Number 179

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Editor and Proprietor.

At the corner of Main and Kimball Streets.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$2.00 in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

A liberal allowance will be made to yearly advertisers.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor.

(John Taylor.) POST PAID, to receive attention.

COMMUNICATIONS.

CAMP CARTRIDGE, Oct. 3, 1845.

To the President and High Council of the Church of Latter Day Saints.

Since our conference with you yesterday, we have arrived at this place, and have held free conversations with the Anti-Mormons of this place, and other surrounding counties.

We have read to them your statement made to us on the 1st inst. We have informed them that you individually made similar statements to us with the most solemn protestations of truth, and with every appearance of earnest determination to carry out your expressed intentions in good faith.

In the resolutions which were adopted on yesterday in this place, by the delegates from the counties, (the citizens from Hancock being excluded from the meeting) it was resolved, as we are informed, (not having seen a copy of the resolutions) to accept your proposition to remove in the spring. Since we have made public the statement made by you to us, there seems to be a general acquiescence in it by the citizens of other counties and of this, so far as to agree to return and withhold all further violence, and that you be permitted to depart in peace next spring.

We are convinced that affairs have reached such a crisis, that it has become impossible for your church to remain in peace in this county.

After what has been said and written by yourselves, it will be confidently expected by us and the whole community, that you will remove from the State, with your whole Church, in the manner you have agreed in your statement to us.

Should you not do so, we are satisfied, however much we may deprecate violence and bloodshed, that violent measures will be resorted to, to compel your removal, which will result in most disastrous consequences to yourselves and your opponents, and that the end will be your expulsion from the State.

We think that steps should be taken by you to make it apparent that you are actually preparing to remove in the spring.

By carrying out in good faith, your proposition to remove as submitted to us, we think you should be, and will be permitted to depart peacefully next spring for your destination west of the Rocky Mountains.

For the purpose of maintaining law and order in this county, the Commanding General purposes to have an armed force in this county, which will remain so long as the Governor deems it necessary.

And for the purpose of preventing the use of such force for vexatious or improper objects, we will recommend the Governor of the State to send some competent legal officer to remain here, and have the power of deciding what process shall be executed by said military force.

We recommend to you to place every possible restraint in your power over the members of your church, to prevent them from committing acts of aggression or retaliation on any citizen of the State, as a contrary course may, and most probably will, bring about a collision which will subvert all efforts to maintain the peace in this county; and we purpose making a similar request of your opponents in this and the surrounding counties.

With many wishes that you may find that peace and prosperity in the land of your destination, which you desire, we have the honor to subscribe ourselves,

Yours, &c.
JOHN J. HARDIN,
W. B. WARREN,
S. A. DOUGLASS,
J. A. McDOUGALL.

Copy of a part of a despatch from the Governor.

"I wish you to say to the Mormons for me, that I regret very much, so much excitement and hatred against them should exist in the public mind. Nevertheless it is due to truth to say, that the public mind everywhere is so decidedly hostile to them that public opinion is not inclined to do them common justice. Every bad report against them is greedily swallowed, whilst nothing can be heard which really ought to be heard in their favor. Under these circumstances, I fear that they will never be able to live in peace with their neighbors of Hancock and the surrounding counties.

There is no legal power in the state to compel them to leave, and no such power will be exercised during my administration.

The spirit of the people however, is up, and the signs are very evident that an attempt will be made by the surrounding counties to drive them out. Such an attempt may fail once, or even twice, but if undertaken in earnest and persevered in, it must finally succeed. Those who think it wrong to drive out the Mormons, cannot be made to fight in their defence, and indeed the people of the state will never tolerate the expense of frequent military expeditions to defend them. The Mormons may think themselves strong enough to defend themselves. But do they wish to drive out their enemies; but their enemies will rally again, and murders will be committed, and mischief done, from this time out as each party may find itself able.

I desire that you will impress these facts upon the Mormons, and that you will counsel and promote any peaceable means of accommodation, whereby the Mormons may be induced to leave the state. It is acknowledged by me that the state has no power to insist upon their removal—that it is a great hardship on them to remove from their comfortable homes, and the property which they have accumulated by years of toil.

But is it not better that they should do so voluntarily, than to have a state of continual war?

CAMP CARTRIDGE, Oct. 6, 1845.

To the anti-Mormon citizens of Hancock and the surrounding Counties.

We submit for your consideration copies of a correspondence between ourselves and the 'Twelve' at Nauvoo. Having witnessed with deep regret the deplorable condition of things which exist in this county, both as it regards the peace and safety of this community, we have applied our most strenuous efforts to restore confidence, and set on foot a permanent settlement of the difficulties which distract this county. We seriously trust that object is in a fair train of being accomplished.

The Mormons have pledged themselves by word and in writing, to remove from the State. Aside from these pledges, there are reasons which induce us to the opinion, that such is their intention. You desire to see them remove. We think also, that for the preservation of peace and quiet in this county, that they had best remove; and we have so advised them. But it is not consistent with a proper sense of justice or humanity, that families of women and children should be driven from their homes, by threatening or violence, at this season of the year, to breast the storm of winter unprotected by the covering of a roof. Five or six thousand of the Mormons, including the entire church organization, their prominent men and their church jurisdiction, have pledged themselves to remove next spring, and judging from appearance they will do so. The history of their church shows, that wherever their leaders have gone, the members will follow. This is a part of their religious duties. When therefore, this colony shall have started for a home west of the Rocky Mountains, it will be the best possible evidence that all design removing and will remove. Many citizens of other counties than Hancock have resolved to accept the proposition of the Mormons to remove in the spring; and most or nearly all of these with whom we have had an opportunity of conversing have expressed themselves satisfied with the agreement of the Mormons to remove as submitted to us, if it is carried out in good faith. At the solicitation of me, of all parties, and from a conviction of necessity of the measure, Gen. Hardin has determined to station a portion of his troops in this county to maintain order, who will continue in the field until the Governor shall order them to be disbanded. We have also recommended to the Governor to appoint an attorney to act for the state, who shall direct what process the military force shall execute, and thus prevent them from being harassed by being called on to act in frivolous and improper cases; and at the same time to check and restrain the troops from any improper acts.

Order and quiet are again restored to your county, and men are daily returning to their homes and business, without apprehension of illegal and improper interruption.

These measures we think, ought to satisfy you. All that some of you might demand cannot be granted consistently with the rights of others; you can do so, but with attaining that which is practicable and probable.

We exhort you therefore, to be quiet and orderly, and at the same time warn you not to violate the laws. The troops stationed in Hancock will enforce it at all hazards. Remember, whatever may be the aggressions against you, the sympathy of the public may be forfeited. It cannot be denied that the burning of the houses of Mormons in your county, by which a large number of women and children have been rendered homeless and homeless in the beginning of winter, was an act criminal in itself, and disgraceful to its perpetrators. And it should also be known, that it has led many persons to believe, that, even if the Mormons are as bad as they are represented, they are no worse than those who thus have burned their houses.

Whether your cause is just or unjust, the acts of these incendiaries have thus lost for you something of the sympathy and good will of your fellow citizens; and a resort to, or persistence in such a course under existing circumstances, will make you forfeit all of the respect and sympathy of the community.

We trust and believe, that for this love of burning; and we beseech all those who seek to maintain the peace, to do so, to the torch of the incendiary, nor to distract it down by the clash of arms.

Your Fellow Citizens.

JOHN J. HARDIN,
S. A. DOUGLASS,
W. B. WARREN,
J. A. McDOUGALL.

From the Jackson Standard.

St. Louis, Sept. 26th, 1845.

Messrs. Roberts—I see in the Quincy Whig of the 24th of this month, an editorial attempting to stigmatize Judge Ralston and myself, by asserting that my letter of Sept. 17th from Montebello was written in Quincy, and there endorsed by Judge Ralston, to whom it was addressed. This letter was written by me on the day, and from the place stated in the same, as published in the Quincy Courier and every insinuation to the contrary. I now pronounce willfully and falsely false. I do not suppose this would be necessary in a community where the course of the Quincy Whig is known; for the man who would openly justify, either directly or indirectly, the incendiary proceedings of a set of house burners, whose chief motive for their proceedings was a desire to direct public attention towards the Mormons, in order to hide their own felonies, would not scruple to lie in order to bolster up such a cause. I write now to call upon the Hon. J. P. Hoge to publish a letter written by me to him, upon the same subject, and on the morning of the 24th inst. from Nauvoo, which contains internal evidence that this base charge of the Whig, is wholly and entirely false. As to commencing a squad of Mormons, (as the Whig charges,) I am Deputy Sheriff of Hancock county, and had command of a posse in that character. All of these men were better citizens and more honest men than the writers of that article.

Yours respectfully,

E. A. BEDELL.

P. S.—I will be obliged to editors who will do Judge Ralston and myself the justice to publish this letter.

E. A. B.

From the Quincy Morning Courier.

Quincy, Oct. 7th, 1845.

MR. EDITOR—I saw a communication in the Warsaw Signal extra of the 24th of September last, in which I am charged with having conveyed, in your paper, the impression that George Rockwell was at the head of the company that drove me from Warsaw. I am almost ashamed to notice any article that appears in so vile and corrupt a sheet, and should not, were it not for some reputation Geo. Rockwell may claim, be so freely to me as Sharp represents, why did he not inform me to leave through some of my personal friends or relatives, of whom I have many in that place, I know not, without it was to gratify some personal pique or malice. Said Rockwell is Ex-Post Master at Warsaw, and I now hold that office, not upon my own request or suit, but that of my friends, and by their desire. I do not wish to be understood that a majority of the citizens of Warsaw were engaged in driving me from that place, but that George Rockwell and the citizens of Carthage had a hand in it. I have uniformly taken an open, upright, law-abiding course in all the difficulties in Hancock county, and defy any person to prove to the contrary. I will briefly notice the wonderful outcry that is made in that vile sheet, the Signal, about old settlers. I have been in Hancock county nine or ten years longer than Geo. Rockwell, and some twelve years longer than Sharp; in fact I have been in that county mostly ever since I was about ten years of age. Now this would constitute me an old settler, would it not? And I firmly believe that from one half to two-thirds of the old settlers that the Signal says so much about, are opposed to the late riotous and mobocratic proceedings; a majority of the mobbing party being composed of persons who have but recently come into the county, and who have but a small comparative portion of those rights of soil, &c., about which the Signal makes so much ado and foul misrepresentation. J. B. Backenstorf, Esq., is as old a settler as Sharp, and to say the least, has as many of those rights of soil &c., as the black-hearted editor of the Signal; and I know from personal acquaintance that he is not only an old settler, but an honorable, law-abiding man, none of which qualifications Sharp has or ever will have, in my opinion, nor Geo. Rockwell either, without he turns from the course he has taken lately. Why does said Rockwell make so much fuss about being driven, when in truth he was not, but went away of his own accord, I suppose to keep peace with his own friends, and being a justice of the peace it would sound to better advantage, you know. I was also justice of the peace in the same place and post master, and was driven out of the place of the bayonet. I too was an old settler, but the great advocate of old settler's rights could not so much as notice my case by one solitary line stating the truth of the matter; but I overlooked that, upon the ground that the black-hearted devil will not tell the truth, and in sooth it would be out of place in his filthy sheet, which for a continued series of lying, number after number, I never saw equalled. Why did not Sharp notice the fact of an anti-Mormon being taken up and held to bail for breaking into a store at Carthage, Mo., opposite Warsaw, and many like acts of his clan? Why forego that, which would be telling a little truth occasionally, and would hurt his policy.

Now, sir, you and many others will naturally enquire why, as I have stated, and I myself were driven out? The answer is obvious to all who have been to control those channels of information to sell their nefarious purposes of burning and mobbing. The truth of the matter, with regard to the parties in Hancock county is simply this,—there is a clique or clan of persons composed of a few old settlers and a large majority of settlers and stoppers of a more recent date combined for the purpose of overawing the peaceable, law-abiding old settlers, and for compelling that they may luxuriate upon the spoils and they style themselves anti-Mormons; and truly they have rightly styled themselves "Anties," for they are anti-using defenceless women and children with anything like human indignity, and telling the truth—anti-law and order every thing that is upright and honorable while the majority of the old settlers who respect themselves and the rights and privileges of all as recognized by the laws of our beloved country, styled "Jacks," by this clan of hell-hounds.

Now, my dear sir, I wish you would bear in mind, that the word anti, when used in the Signal, means precisely what I have stated; and I will simply say in conclusion that I should not have quoted any article in that abominable sheet the Signal, whose aim is to excite mobs, to advocate burning, plunder and extermination, and to apologize for and cloak murder, had it not been for the reason stated, a desire to inform those who are not acquainted with its cowardly, rotten hearted editor FROS. C. SHARP, that they may not be deceived by his fiendish course and cursed statements.

Respectfully your ob't serv't.

E. A. BEDELL.

LATE AND IMPORTANT FROM CHINA.

GREAT FIRE IN CANTON: AWFUL DESTRUCTION OF LIFE.

The ship Rainbow, Capt. Land, arrived yesterday from Canton, with dates to the 5th of June.—The Rainbow left New York on the first of February, and brings accounts of her own arrival at China. This is her first voyage. She vessels out of this port. She is owned by Messrs Howland & Aspinwall. The markets at Canton were dull when the Rainbow left.

The Rainbow was boarded by a boat from the frigate Constitution on the 5th of June.

Ambrose Hazzard, seaman, fell from the main top sail yard, and was killed, during a gale off the Cape of Good Hope. A letter from Canton, dated June 5th, says that the crop of tea had been nearly all shipped.

The proposed alterations in the English sugar duty would, it was feared, effectually check all shipments of white or colored sugar from China.

The Midas, from New York, arrived on the 21st of May.

From the Friend of China, of May 31, we have the particulars of a dreadful calamity. It says:

On Sunday afternoon, a fire broke out in a theatre within the walls of the city; it was the cause of a melancholy loss of life, as well as the destruction of much property.

The theatre formed the centre of a square, in which there was only access on one narrow lane.

After the fire was observed, the audience endeavored to escape by the lane, but unfortunately the crowd from within were trying to force their way into the square, and prevented a large number of those who were within from obtaining egress—the two bodies appearing to have got jammed, the greatest confusion prevailing. It is supposed that upwards of eight hundred lives were lost by the fire, the falling timber, or borne down by the crowd and suffocation. The bodies are so horribly mutilated that their friends cannot recognize them; in consequence of this, hundreds lay unclaimed, and the worst consequences are to be apprehended from their exposure in such a manner at this season.

It is to be hoped that the city authorities will have them buried at once; though from the national prejudices of the people with regard to the dead, and the filial affection which prompts them to pay great respect to the ashes of their departed kindred, it is feared that days will be allowed to elapse before the unclaimed and unrecognized are disposed of.

By the Mandarin books, the total number of killed is 1,257, including 52 male and female actors; the wounded are estimated at 2,100.

On Monday—the day after the fire—the art of the ruined wall fell and killed 30 more, wounding several others. It is rather remarkable that thirty years ago a similar accident happened at the same theatre. At that time the authorities forbade dramatic performances by the inhabitants; the present company are outside people. It is anticipated that an edict will be issued, strictly prohibiting all such exhibitions in future. The authorities have purchased 400 coffins for the bodies that have not been claimed, and they will be interred immediately. A large portion of the dead are females; and it is feared that not a few were murdered by the robbers that entered the city on purpose to obtain bracelets and other ornaments.

REVOLUTION IN EQUADOR—PERU AND GREAT BRITAIN—U. S. SQUADRON IN THE PACIFIC.

THE U. S. SQUADRON IN THE PACIFIC.—We have in port a formidable naval force of all nations—Our squadron will be increased in a short time, preparatory to a blockade of the Mexican ports on this side, should war be declared by Mexico, and our boys are in fine spirits. Our glorious little navy pants for an opportunity to show its power in defending the national honor, and if war comes, you may rest assured that the Star Spangled Banner will wave over every Mexican port and fortification on this side, within sixty days after we receive the declaration.

Gen. Flores, late President of the Republic of Ecuador, retired to Europe, having given away to a revolutionary movement, but retaining all his military honors and emoluments.

Gen. Castilla, President of Peru, has convened the general Congress, which is now in session, and it is understood that full satisfaction has been made to Admiral Seymour, for the outrage committed upon British property by the revolution, Peruans lately in arms against General Castilla.

A British fleet is said to be on its way to Oregon, to protect British property and settlers at Astoria, and from the language used by the officers of the British Squadron here, we are led to believe that the report is correct. Indeed, a forcible seizure of the whole of Oregon north of the Columbia seems to be the object of this movement, and instructions to that effect are said to be in possession of the Admiral. I have letters from Oregon to the first of May, which report considerable political excitement among the settlers, and manifestations of hostility to the people. Every obstacle is thrown in the way of American settlements north of the Columbia.

We have had intelligence from Tahiti to the first ultimo. The French retain the Islands, and there is not the most remote prospect that they will ever give them up. The loss to our whaling interests is very serious, as the French authorities prohibit traffic with the natives, and there is no other port for obtaining supplies in that vicinity. An American merchant vessel has been despatched to the Feejee Islands with arms and ammunition for the natives, to enable them to fortify themselves and maintain their independence against an expected attack from the French or English.—New York Sun.

Russia and Circassia.—Accounts from the Caucasus, by the steamer Cambria, bring the important intelligence that the Circassians have taken from the Russians, after some hard fighting and great bloodshed, the Castle of Socheva, on the coast of Abassia. Sheikh-Shamil had arrived at the head of the River Kouban with 30,000 men, and had called upon the inhabitants to furnish one man per house, which would make a very large force. Worzoff's troops have been beaten by the Daghestanians, and three or four ship loads of wounded have been sent to Crimea. Many of the Poles in the Russian army had deserted to Shamil, so that Worzoff, being in want of men, ordered a carbovatz (each worth 3s. 6d. sterling) to raise reinforcements at Akheska, without being able to get many. He further sent a number of Mussulman olemas (doctors of law) from China, with their muffs, to Shemie, to try if they could open negotiations to treat for terms of peace, of course thereby to set the Circassians to sleep. Shamil aware of the treachery, had three of them put to death. The Russian army was suffering dreadfully from a scarcity of provisions; and the soldiers will have to wait for the new crop before they will have a sufficiency of food. The crops in Circassia, though very scanty last year, are good this season.

In consequence of the long succession of reverses experienced by the Russians, the Emperor is said to have "unlearned" the definite pacification of the Caucasus. Already the war has continued for several years, and hosts of brave Russians have perished without being able to make any permanent impression upon the still braver mountaineers, who are fighting for their altars and their hearts; under almost the identical Declaration of Rights which formed the basis of the American Revolution.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

Correspondence of the Tribune.

Philadelphia, Sept. 7.—P. M.

About half past 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, a young man of genteel address, presented at the counter of the Pennsylvania Bank, a forged check for $1500, purporting to be drawn by Mr. J. B. Smith, note broker, 46 Walnut street which was instantly paid. Committed.

At 1 o'clock this morning, a serious fire broke out in the Steam Sugar Refinery of Messrs. Roudet & Canet, in the rear of Second street above Broad, was three stories high, was entirely destroyed, and two or three adjoining houses were considerably injured.—Loss $25,000. The Mt. Vernon House at one time, was in great danger, and the inmates, after removing their property, lost a great portion.

During the above fire one of a more calamitous character occurred in Broad street. It commenced in the rear of James Clarke's Hotel, near the corner of Broad and Cherry, which spread with great rapidity, destroying the extensive Commission Houses of Craig, Bellas & Co., J. Stauffer & Co., Siter, Jarvis, & Co. and several others whose names I do not recollect. The total loss is put down at $300,000.—Among the property consumed was 2000 barrels of flour, besides an immense quantity of grain.

In the stables of Clarke were ten fine horses used for the purpose of drawing the cars to the Inclined Plane, all of which were burned to death.

But the most serious casualty was the loss of life and limb by several active members of the Fire Department. One man was taken out of the ruins dead; his name I did not learn. At the hospital, Daniel Brown lies in a serious condition. He will no doubt die. He has his knee broken in three places—his shoulder broken, and injured and burned. His life is despaired of.

At the Hospital are Daniel Brown, whose knee is broken in three places. Also, his shoulder, head, and body are injured.

John Robins, a member of the Globe Engine had his right leg and shoulder broken, and lies at the hospital, in a doubtful situation.

Mr. James was badly burned—taken to the hospital, but went home,

RIOT IN MONTREAL!!

Montreal, Sept. 2.

Rev Mr. Burns, a Scotchman, usually holds service for the benefit of seamen, on the quay, every Sunday, and sometimes he preaches three or four times in the course of the day. He has several times been insulted, and a week ago was pelted with stones, by the Canalliers, who came over in large numbers, till they amounted to 2000, determined to put a stop to his outdoor remarks.

I learn that the secret of it is, he is an Orangeman of some note, and has been imprudent in his remarks respecting Irishmen and Roman Catholics. This reached the Canalliers, who are always ready to reach the city, provided there is any service wanted in their line.

A note was received from the enemies of Mr. Burns, stating that he should not preach the coming Sunday. This Mr. B. showed to the Mayor, who advised him to leave the city on Saturday.

In the mean time, the Orangemen determined he should preach, and issued the following notice from the Orange Lodges:

"L. P. S.—Dolphin!

Sir and Brother:—You are requested to attend Divine Service, to be held at the Wharf, on Sunday next, at 3 o'clock, there and then to be prepared to defend your Religion, against the repeated attacks of a band of mean Canalliers.

By order of

THE CATTAN.

It may be advisable to keep any weapons of defence you may have, concealed, until the signal is given by the Captain.

The notice was printed in red ink, and meant blood. The Mayor got possession of a copy, and had a strong police force on the ground.

At four o'clock in the afternoon, it is estimated that 10,000 persons were present, composed of both parties. But the preacher had left town, according to the Mayor's advice.

A row was gotten up between members of each party, and a general melee took place. The Mayor finding no chance of quelling the assailants, called for the military, who in large numbers, appeared on the ground, with ball and cartridge.—This had the desired effect, and after a little skirmishing with pistols, several were arrested, and gavo bail yesterday to appear at court. On searching them, one had a pistol loaded with the muzzle; several had long knives and dirks, and others loaded canes, &c.

A letter has been received here, stating that the Home Colonial Office have the matter under discussion to connect all the North American provinces by railroads, from Nova Scotia, through New Brunswick, to this city, as a military road. If the government does not undertake it, they will grant land to the company to prosecute it, and the grant it is said, will be on so liberal a scale, that the British capitalists will take the stock at once.

PUBLIC OPINION.

We present a few of the many specimens of public opinion upon American outlaws and mobbing. The New-York Sun says:

"The State is bound by all the force in its power to protect the persons and property of the Mormons, if they are doing nothing to violate the laws. With their peculiar religious faith, no one has a right to interfere, they are vulnerable only in their character as citizens." The N. Y. Herald says:

"The recent outbreaks in Illinois should lead the independent press throughout the country, and all good citizens, to a united and vigorous effort against the spirit of disorganization and rebellion. Let all these attempts to persecute the Mormons, or any class of people, be at once crushed, and covered with indignant rebuke."

The N. Y. Mirror says:

"We have no language strong enough to express our abhorrence of the mob proceedings in Illinois, against this unfortunate people. They are of a piece with the Philadelphia riots, and the worst proceedings of the anti-renters, and second only in atrocity to the cold-blooded murder of Joe Smith. These mob excesses are the dark side in the picture of our country. Scarce an instance of extensive infraction of the laws by combinations of people has yet occurred in our country in which the perpetrators have not come off victorious. The mobs themselves are comparatively matters of small moment, that is, the direct suffering from their violence against life and property is the smallest item in the amount of evil they cause. It is the impunity with which mobs are raised, and with which they execute their fiendish purposes, that gives just cause for the greatest alarm. What one man would be imprisoned during life, or hung for, a hundred or a thousand may do with an absolute assurance of escape. The murders and outrages in Philadelphia, perpetrated by individuals singly, would have brought hundreds to the gallows; perpetrated in crowds, these atrocities are followed by a few mock trials, which show the utter powerlessness of the law. Joe Smith is murdered while in the custody of the officers of the law, and under the Governor's solemn pledge of honor for his safety. Because this is done by an armed band of fifty or a hundred men, justice sleeps, and many of the murderers—the very murderers—are engaged in burning the dwellings of the Mormons with a view to drive thousands of people from their homes. The spirit, which in Lexington is directed against one individual, is in Illinois directed against an entire class. In both cases the law is powerless, the officers of the law are mere straws, and the disapproving mass of the community of no weight whatever. A most sad and disheartening picture!"

From the People's Organ.

Evils of Fanaticism.—In whatever aspect we view existing affairs between the Mormons and those who are striving to expel them from their vicinity, we perceive glaringly portrayed the evils of fanaticism, whether as marking the character and conduct of the persecuted, or of the persecutors. The Mormons entertain a creed, which the mass of enlightened men look on as outrageous common sense; they are fanatical in the maintenance of that creed; it makes them exclusive, morose towards those differing with them in doctrinal views, and probably less fitted for rational relationship with their fellows, than though they possessed no faith in spiritual things what ever. This is their misfortune, not their fault; a misfortune attendant on ignorance. Enlightened men should pity, rather than blame this benightedness, and strive to win by kindness, rather than reform by coercion.

But on the other hand, the society in proximity with Mormonism has, as a general rule, heretofore been brought, has unfortunately been as fanatical as itself. It has, in the main, been constituted of a class of beings nominally Christians, but who have been as ignorant, selfish, and narrow-minded as any who were led astray by the absurd pretensions of designing prophets. We speak knowingly when we make this remark, and we feel assured that as much fanaticism and misplaced zeal have been enlisted in the opposition which Mormonism has met with in Missouri and Illinois, as ever characterized Mormonism itself.

That there have always been designing knaves among the Mormons, no one who knows much about them will deny; but that as great scoundrels as these have generally been the leaders of their opponents, is a fact which we think equally certain. The first gettys-up of the pesecutions against the Mormons in Jackson county in this State, were bad men, and dangerous members of society. One was a well-known passer of counterfeit money, who has since fled the country. The same of another, who is now in a Mexican prison for coining. Beyond the renowned Anti-Mormon leader, fled from Missouri in consequence of the perpetration of a heartless and cold-blooded murder. Another had gained consequence in society by the possession of wealth wrung from the poor Indians of the frontier, in exchange for liquid fire—and so on to the end of the chapter. It was cupidity that actuated these men; but their enmity and artfulness aroused the fanaticism and intolerance of others. No crime could be perpetrated, but that it was laid to the charge of the Mormons. Their absurd faith was still rendered more absurd by caricature and misrepresentation. They were oppressed, annoyed in every conceivable manner, until, goaded to retaliation, they committed some acts of indiscretion—and hence the pretence for their expulsion. The crusade once begun, nothing could arrest its course. The Mormons were driven from their homes and their improvements laid waste. Many a ruin now marks the site of a once thriving settlement. The persecuted people were finally driven to the north side of the Missouri, and the leaders of this crusade quietly settled down in the possession of the land left, ultimately procuring clear titles to their real estate by the payment of the merest pittance. This was the roguery of the few, but it was consummated through the fanaticism of the many.

We do not believe that the Mormon can ever prosper in this country as a distinct community. Their creed is too narrow, and they need a more free intercourse with the liberal who entertain different religious sentiments. By congregating together they become selfish, and their fanatical exclusiveness increase. Would they mix with the world more, and look upon those differing with them in religious opinions, as members still of one great family, better would it be for them, and better for those with whom they are necessarily brought in contact. They should scatter out, and give up their absurd idea of temporal aggrandizement as a distinct people.

The above is fair reasoning, with the exception of the last paragraph. That is sophism. It would be just as well to stop St. Louis from further gathering and building that city, because unity, community, and industry, will eventually give them the advantage over the country abroad, in point of knowledge, arts and sciences, wealth, and "war," if you please. You might as well philosophize about the "great hive" in Texas, where they have been secure for centuries. No; no, it won't do to go against God; he goes in for gathering.

O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not.

From the (Olivea) Constitutionalist. THE GOVERNOR AND THE MORMONS.

Is it true, that we have no Governor in this State? Is it true, that if we have one, he has not the power to call forth the militia to suppress bloodshed and the horrors of a civil war? Is he so inefficient in popularity, that on a second proclamation for volunteers to suppress an insurrection, he can get no response? Or, is the law so defective, that it can be avoided at pleasure, without the fears of any penalty? This is indeed, a horrid state of affairs. When the State is threatened with civil war! and blood and fire are scattered without mercy on the land by the most damnable spirit that ever infused itself into the breast of man, even in the worst inquiries of Spain, the war of the crusades, or the revolution of France, is there no power to stop this state of affairs? Are the Mormons, because of their peculiar religious opinions, to be hunted down like wild beasts and driven from their country? Are their houses to be burned, their property destroyed with fire and sword because of their religious tenets? The Mormons have rights and privileges as dear to them as any other set of men; and by the constitution and laws of our land, they are equally entitled to protection from mob law, and lynching and violence. If they have offended against any law, it has the power of bringing them to justice, and meting out to them its severest penalties. They have been driven to desperation many times, by the infamous and inflaming appeals, published of them by the Anties; and the cry of "revenge, revenge," is heard, because they fight in defence of their homes; their wives, and their little ones! They are to be driven from the State, because they dare resist the life and sword of their persecutors! If they don't stand their ground, they're not men; and, if they don't fight and defend their rights, even unto death, we mistake them as a people. They must do it, it is inevitable and the strong arm of the law, both divine and human, will sustain them in the conflict. The people of the State will sustain them.

From the Missouri Reporter.

THE MORMON WAR.

A public meeting of delegates from nine counties in the vicinity of Hancock,

Ill., has decided that the Mormons shall have until next April to leave their homes and find new residences elsewhere. The state of feeling which produced the recent outbreak against the Mormons, is greatly to be deplored; and whilst there has unquestionably been much on both sides deserving of censure, yet it will strike all as a novel mode of settling grave difficulties, for a number of men to form themselves into a convention, and order authoritatively about 20,000 persons to abandon their homes, at a stated period, whether they shall have the means of removing comfortably with their families or not.

If the Mormons have violated the laws of Illinois, there must certainly be some legal mode of punishing them, and a resort to violence should not be tolerated. We doubt not that it will be for the interest of both parties—Mormons and Anti-Mormons—that the former should remove from their present settlements, but they should be allowed ample time to sell their property and make the necessary arrangements for the future. They must make a new location, and provide for the transportation of themselves and families to a new home, dispose of their real estate and improvements in Hancock county, be in readiness to raise crops next year, by commencing as soon as they reach their destined resting place, &c.; and all of this cannot be done in a few months. The anxiety evinced, by at least a portion of their assailants, to drive them from their homes at once, leaving them homeless and destitute, to pass through the coming winter as they best can, confirms the charge that most of the excitement is based on a desire to seize upon the Mormon property without compensating the owners therefor. In this state of things, we trust that the proper authorities will protect the Mormons from plunder. It is certainly bad enough that they are to be forced, by a mob, to leave Illinois; and their legal right to the property they may be compelled to leave behind, should be secured to them, until they can sell it to advantage. If they shall be obliged to sell out before next April, or lose their property, they will probably have to make great sacrifices. When driven from Missouri, they were invited to settle in Illinois; and after having built the city of Nauvoo, and labored for years to provide for themselves and families, those who courted their presence, should not be permitted to plunder them with impunity. It may be that some of them have abused their rights; but the innocent should not be confounded with the guilty, and women and children, indiscriminately with the mischief-makers, be driven from their homes, to seek habitations and subsistence they know not where. Many of the vague stories set afloat to their prejudice, have undoubtedly been invented by their enemies. It is true, criminals have some-

from the officers of the law, but it is unjust to visit on 20,000 men, women and children, the punishment due, perhaps, to less than one hundred persons. That their pretended religion is absurd, is no excuse for waging a war of extermination against them. They have the constitutional right to worship as they please, and those who would deprive them of that right, might, if they had the power, exterminate also, some of the many Christian sects. The recent treatment of the Mormons is certainly discredit to those who fomented the outbreak, and viewed in any light, is without justification or excuse. The deluded deserve pity, and not annihilation. The laws provide the only proper mode of punishing the vicious and criminal. The Mormons have consented to leave their present homes, and with their withdrawal from Illinois will terminate the excitement which has been kept up against them for years—at least until their assailants can find some new materials to work upon.

It is not a little remarkable, that those who have been the fiercest in urging on the war against this set, and in encouraging the mob, have always professed, and still profess, to be the devoted champions of "law and order." If the people of a State attempt to vindicate their just rights, and to establish free institutions, we hear loud complaints against their lawlessness; but when a mob takes possession of a part of a neighboring State, the hoarse accents of praise are alone heard from certain quarters, because, forsooth, the assailants are an unpopular set, and the assailants are powerful.

Some men are ever ready to defend the wealthy and privileged in the enjoyment of their power, no matter whether wrongfully obtained or not, but when the legal and constitutional rights of the less influential are assailed, they are the loudest in demanding that the outposts of the law shall be taken and the citadel itself stormed. It matters not what is the character of the Mormons, any grievances arising from their conduct could have been redressed through proper channels. It is the duty of Illinois to vindicate her character, by bringing to punishment all of the leaders in the recent outrages in Hancock county. Those who artfully stimulated these outrages, should be made to feel that the laws must be respected by the leaders of a mob, as well as by the powerless and despicable offender. Justice should be impartially administered to all. The murderers of the Smiths escaped punishment, but we trust that the house burners and plunderers in the recent scenes of violence and bloodshed will be less fortunate. If the Mormons were really guilty of any serious offenses worthy of condign punishment, their assailants are none the less criminal for trampling upon the laws of the State and attempting an armed crusade against men, women and children indiscriminately.

The recent Convention at Carthage cannot be justified. Its delegates have undertaken to set aside the laws of Illinois, by setting in judgment on, and passing sentence of banishment against a whole community, without allowing them even the poor privilege of being heard in their own defence. The right of trial by jury, the rights of property, and the privileges guaranteed to every individual in society by the Constitution, are ruthlessly disregarded by a Convention professing to be influenced by honorable motives. Among its delegates were men occupying prominent places in the community and "learned in law," and they cannot make even the excuse of ignorance, in palliation of their course. The Governor of Illinois is bound by his oath of office, to prevent the execution of the illegal and vindictive scheme, devised by the Carthage Convention, to drive the Mormons from their homes. If they shall leave of their own accord, no one can object; but if the members of the Carthage Convention shall attempt to carry out their threats, or to use violence, they should be treated like any other band of insurrectionists or public plunderers. A single energy is now necessary to maintain the laws of Illinois, and we trust it will be used. The edicts of a mob, whether organized as a Convention, or actively engaged in burning houses and plundering property, should be resisted by those who have been entrusted by the State with this power to protect the lives and property of its citizens.

From the St. Louis Reveille.

"MORMON DIFFICULTIES."

In the first place I will assume that the Mormons, as a people, have as good a right to occupy a part of the State of Illinois; as any other religious set; subject, of course, to the laws that govern that State. The constitution of that State and of the United States, guarantee to them, privileges equal to any other citizens of the State. Now, if they have committed depredations upon their neighbors by stealing, house or barn burning, why not put the law in force against them, the same as you would should other outlaws, commit like depredations? Not go and burn their houses, barns, stacks of grain and hay—turn their helpless women and children out into the mid-night air and pitiless storms, to perish. By many on the other side, it is said, that if they sue the Mormons for stealing, or other depredations, that they will in most cases, either by perjury or numerical strength, prove an alibi. If this be true, I would ask, if there is no law in Illinois for punishing those guilty of perjury.

The Mormons committing perjury, and the Anti-Mormons burning houses, barns, &c., are two wrongs which, if put together, will never make a right. I understand the Anti-Mormons, or rather absolute terms, that the Mormons shall leave the State at no distant period, and that the tranquility of that part of the State, near Hancock county, absolutely requires it of them, have I not as good authority for saying to my neighbor, on my right or my left hand, that he shall leave his house and move to Iowa, Nebraska, or west of the Rocky Mountains, because we have some difficulty in our deal, or do not think alike on matters of religion and politics? Most assuredly I have. Suppose the whole body politic should be governed by the same rule. Should a code of laws be formed competent to govern a community that would use such unheard of propositions? I say not, and I would ask, in the name of ALL that is sacred, if such feelings entertained by one portion of a community towards another is truly that of Americans? If it is, then I am no American. Were the framers of our glorious Declaration of Independence governed by such feelings? No, I trust they were not.

This country, by the enlightened spirit of our institutions, is made free for all who choose to adopt it as their home. No clique or faction has a right to say to the most humble citizen (that obeys the laws) that he shall not reside in or out of this or any other State, or that he shall not have free ingress or egress wherever he, in his wisdom, sees fit to immigrate from one part of the Union to the other.

Mobocracy, rioting, lynch law, and other acts of violence upon persons and property, have of late been substituted for law, which has inflicted a lasting disgrace upon our own happy and free country.—The Anti-Mormons would do well to bear in mind that they have taken the law into their own hands, and while holding it, have been guilty of the most brutal outrages that stand recorded in the catalogue of crimes. Murder, arson, assault upon women and helpless children at midnight, under pretence of obtaining redress, when the ordinary process of law was at hand. Shame on either party who would resort to such measures for redress.

I do not wish to be understood as taking sides with either of the factions, but I would like to see the constituted authorities interfere in this matter, and enforce a proper observance of the Law, and let the guilty be punished in every respect, according to law and evidence.

LOOKER ON.

From the Reveille.

THE MORMON REMOVAL.

On our first page will be found certain extracts from the proceedings of the late Mormon conference. It will be seen that these people are really sincere in their desire to sacrifice everything for peace, and the privilege of governing themselves by their peculiar forms; in short, that they are prepared, one and all, to seek the desert next spring, to subdue by toil, not conquest, their promised land.

The world may ridicule, and the Anti-Mormons brand, but from this moment the disciples of the sheer impostor, Joe Smith, become a deeply interesting people. Their movement is fraught with consequences, moral and political. The same Providence which guided Columbus across the waters, illumines the track of the emigrant, and directs him to a point where at this moment of all others, the seeds of civilization must soonest quicken and yield an important harvest. It will be seen that the vote for removal was unanimous, and that none will remain behind—the poor being assisted by their more fortunate brethren. This document, to a judgment unbiassed by prejudice or passion, is sufficient to stamp as falsehood, much—very much—that has been circulated to the detriment of the Mormon character. Let them go in peace; they will have suffering enough to encounter on their pilgrimage; but it requires not the eye of prophecy to see the vast reward with which a few years will crown their toil and enterprise. Vancouver's Island, to which the attention of the Mormon Elders appears to be directed, would seem to be a most wise selection; the territory is unoccupied, the climate and soil not unpromising, while the island itself, in extent equal to Ireland, abounds in noble sounds and harbors—advantages which a very short time now will develop fully. There, if the Mormons be thieves, they will find nothing save from nature; they will not be roused to bloodshed by encountering a worse fanaticism; but if they be, as they have proved at Nauvoo, capable of drawing forth wealth from the earth, and building cities, moreover, to shelter it and themselves, they will accomplish much for human progress, and deserve the respectful consideration of the world.

Thank'e, Mr. Reveille, that's fair.

THE MORMON "QUESTION."

In a case of mutual grievance it is hard to decide, and in regard to the Hancock County war, we are most distinctly free from any bias—sectional, political, or otherwise, yet it does appear to us, with all the objections to them, that the Mormons at present occupy a position to demand the sympathy and assistance of the country; and that—be it for good or ill—patience and a moderate portion of firmness on their part must secure their permanent triumph. The Era says:

"The mob appear to have been the greatest sufferers thus far, for all the persons who have been killed or wounded were in their ranks. No Mormon has been either killed or wounded so far as heard from."

It appears to us, that the burning of one hundred houses must necessarily have entailed suffering of no small amount, and if blood has been shed in the perpetration of such outrages, from which side should it, in justice, have flowed? We would, ourselves, certainly rather hear that such a salient had been killed, than that a mob had been added to a mob. Take the whole Mormon history, admitting every crime that has ever been charged against them, and the whole mass sinks into comparative insignificance, compared with the horrible lawless outrages which have been tolerated against them. Take also the fact of their marching into Carthage and Waukegan, with the smoke of one hundred of their houses yet hanging above their heads, quietly and peacefully sitting again.

Thank'e, gentlemen, but the "violence" of American liberty will ruin the rights of the people, and destroy her laws and institutions, (mark it,) in less than twenty years!

THE NEIGHBOR.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 29 1845.

TO OUR PATRONS.

As we are making all the preparation in our power to leave the United States next spring, because we are compelled by mobocracy, on account of the weakness of the law and the stupidity or hypocrisy of its executors, to quit the "asylum of the oppressed," we have thought it advisable to discontinue the Neighbor at this number.

In coming to this conclusion, we fall back upon our reserved rights, that we will leave a nation that will not protect its own citizens from the violence of corrupt men; that we will flee from a liberty so terrible that it allows murder and arson to be committed with impunity by a portion of citizens, because they are a mob; and we abandon the estates and tombs of our fathers, because the glory of American liberty has been singed by the blaze of mobocracy.

It may be thought by some that this step of discontinuing the Neighbor, is premature, but when it is understood that the people of the United States gloat themselves upon public opinion, and that opinion, is put in motion and reiterated by men who could whisper, sub rosa, that "it was well that Joseph Smith was killed, for he would revolutionize the world with Mormonism," it will be considered a wise move, for why need we expend money and time, to warn a nation that already is grating its teeth at us, and menacing a threat by a conventional nod, to be gone or we will blot you out from under heaven?

We will suffer wrong rather than do wrong, and if there is any glory attached to expelling the saints from the United States, let the United States blaze in that glory; and if there is any disgrace winding round the escutcheons, and monuments where freedom once was, let it smoke on, till it comes up before Jehovah, and may be he will reward the unfaithful stewards according to their works.

We could fight our way clear, but wisdom says let the wicked slay the wicked: There is room enough upon the earth for many nations to live in peace, and enjoy the little happiness allotted them without "clashing brave man's armor," to terrify cowards or whet the appetites of monsters. The gospel whispers peace. Our greatness consists of our faith, our union and our submission. The power that made Nauvoo; that gathered thousands from various climes and kingdoms; that reared the Temple; and that whispers to us now, "peace be still and see the salvation of God," can guide us to bring forth a better city, an hundred fold of gathering, and five times as good a temple, in five years, where demagogues will not deceive us for our votes, and then connive at our extermination; yea; aside from vexatious lawsuits, we can enjoy more life in five years, than the world has, can, or will realize while money buys judgment, and popularity holds the destinies of the people.

Vice and virtue are the extremes of greatness; the former descends to degradation, and the latter exalts to glory, and that nation is upon the brink of ruin which is so far lost to decorum, that it refuses to punish sin. The secrets of this nation will be searched out with candles, and wo to the blood stained mansions of misery! Pride and wickedness often go across lots so as to enter the banquet of folly at the back door, for fear of the displeasure of good men. If that hath ears to hear let him hear; for the "dreadful revelry" is nigh and the sorrow too.

We owe the United States nothing: we go out by force as exiles from freedom. The Government and people owe us millions for the destruction of life and property in Missouri and in Illinois. The blood of our best men stains the land, and the ashes of our property will preserve it till God comes out of his hiding place, and gives this nation a hotter portion than he did Sodom and Gomorrah. "When they cease to spoil they shall be spoiled," for the Lord hath spoken it.

Our exchanges will be reciprocated with the Times and Seasons.

The Times and Seasons will be continued for the benefit of the saints.

THE PROSPECT, &c. IN HANCOCK.

Since our last was issued, peace has continued in this city; and the county of Hancock has remained in "statu quo," with the exception of Gen. Hardin's "seizure" to bring offenders to justice.—Five or six of the house burners were recognized among Gen. Hardin's troops, (oh military retaliation ah! ah!) endeavouring to apprehend Mormons for retaliation after their houses were burned, their property destroyed, and their cattle driven off. It almost seemed as if the government had sent a guard to hold the Latter Day Saints still, while Gen. Hardin, or some mobber, "clothed with a little authority," run a hot iron into them.

Out of an hundred or more cases and complaints, upon affidavits, with writs ready; we have not heard of the arrest of a single mobber.

This, as Shakspeare would say, "looks a little like a difference in flesh." And if there has not been a "little nimble practice" with an eye towards the next governor, Whigly speaking, then the old grey horse pranced from the capital to the seat of mobbing for nothing.

Sheriff Backenstos was recognised to appear at the circuit court upon examination before Judge Purple at Quincy.—As the Sheriff was in the line of his duty his innocence must be apparent to all.

General Conference.—A general conference was held in the House of the Lord in this city, on the 6th, 7th and 8th of October inst. It was well attended,

HEYWOOD & KIMBALL.

NEIGHBOR---Extra.

Nauvoo, Nov. 19, 1845.

MURDER AND ARSON.

EDMUND DURFEE SHOT—TWO HOUSES BURNED.

As may be seen by the affidavits below, it falls to our painful lot, to chronicle two more outrages upon the lives and rights of the Latter Day Saints, since they have been using all diligence to secure their crops, build wagons, and leave next Spring.

Mr. Durfee was one of the most industrious, inoffensive and good men that could be found, and, having his house burnt in September last, moved to Nauvoo, and went on Saturday last for a load of grain, was shot dead in cold blood, at midnight, while striving, with others, to save his own property from the flames, by an armed mob!

As to the destruction of the houses and property, and the treatment on that occasion, let the affidavit speak for itself.

We have nearly two thousand five hundred wagons commenced for our Pacific journey next Spring, but such outrages certainly are not calculated to aid us in getting ready. We have borne the Missouri persecution; we have mourned the loss of the Prophet and Patriarch, Joseph and Hyrum Smith; we feel the destruction of one or two hundred houses the present season, and our hearts are pained at the murder of Edmund Durfee, because he was a good man, but, we, as in all cases of the saints, leave the disposition of these matters, in the care of a wise God, and the perpetrators, to the mercy of, (as they say) a country of laws, and be those laws honored or disgraced, we cannot be charged with revenge; and we do beseech the people and the authorities not to impute crime to us, to raise excitements, when we see our accusers wiping the blood of innocent men, women, and children, from their garments, as though this was the realm of Nero.

If thieves and robbers escape to Nauvoo, our rule is to deliver them up to the law of the land, and that is all that we can do.

We believe there is virtue and humanity among high minded men, that know what honor is, and we appeal to them to lend a helping hand, while we are fitting out for our intended removal in the Spring. Give us peace, for you that hold the balances of power, can! and when we have settled on the other side of America, you will know of a truth that we were FRIENDS, and not enemies to life, law, and liberty! That we were good men, engaged in a good cause, and will receive the meed of praise we deserve for universal benevolence, and everlasting friendship to goodness.

The jealousy of the present generation is so great against the saints, that we have deemed it our duty to give this and the accompanying affidavits, that the world may know the continued ravages, and bloody outrages of a midnight mob; and for another important reason, that as Major Warren has pledged himself to use every exertion in his power, to allay excitement; prevent the destruction of property, and stop the shedding of blood,—we can not feel any thing better than that he will exhibit his honor and clemency in our behalf, that we may prepare for our exodus in peace, henceforth.

State of Illinois, }
Hancock County, } ss.

Personally appeared before me, Aaron Johnson a justice of the peace within and for said county, James H. Woodland, and after being duly sworn, depose and saith, that on the night of the 15th of November, 1845, in the south part of said county, near Solomon Hancock's house, about midnight, a stack of straw was discovered on fire, and that several persons turned out to suppress the flames; they raked away the straw to prevent it from catching and firing the barn; while thus engaged, a whistle was heard east and one west; and presently a gun was fired at them, and they continued to fire till six guns were discharged at them; the ball of the fourth one entered the body of Edmund Durfee, just above his heart, and he died instantly. and further deponent saith not.

JAMES H. WOODLAND.

Sworn to and subscribed this 17th day of November, 1845,

AARON JOHNSON, J. P. [LS]

State of Illinois, }
Hancock County, } ss.

Personally appeared before me, Isaac Higbee, a justice of the peace within said county, Joseph Swymler, who being duly sworn according to law, depose and saith, that on the night of the 13th day of November 1845, at about half past twelve o'clock, a company of men, about twenty-five or thirty in number, made their appearance at the residence of Samuel Hicks in said county, living near the head of Camp Creek, and called for Samuel Hicks, who got up out of bed and went to the door and asked what was wanting, they said they were the governor's troops right from Carthage, and had a writ for William Rice, who they said was there, and was told that he was not there; they then told Hicks that he knew about the murder of Deventine, which he denied knowing any thing about it; they swore he knew all about it, and they would make him tell, and laid hold of him, and forced him away without any thing on but his shirt. The said Hicks and his wife and one child, all being sick with the ague every day or two, part of the company remained; they then called deponent and his brother up who were there, and ordered them to carry out the goods of the said Hicks, and while his brother was in the chamber, they set fire to the stairs, which prevented him from getting all their goods, and when the fire had got to burning through the roof, they came back with Hicks who had suffered much with cold and ague, and after giving many insults and threats they went away. Deponent recognized in the company, Joseph Agnew, John M. Finch, and a young man by the name of Moss, and further deponent saith not.

JOSEPH SWYMLER.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 17th day of November, 1845.

ISAAC HIGBEE, J. P.

HO! HO!

Many strangers are visiting Hancock county and Nauvoo, for the purpose of purchasing our property. This is all right, and as we talk of re-issuing the "Neighbor" after a while, for a short time to advertize all these and many other matters, we hope they will continue to do so; help keep the peace; help us fit out, and help us away. We want teams, and we want money and merchandize. There never was a greater chance for bargains in personal and real estate, or furniture: and as wise men foresee good and evil, and prepare themselves accordingly, so come on while the day lasts, and buy yourselves rich, and help us to go where we shall neither trouble nor be troubled. Peace, is our motto, and let the will of God be done.